of the LORD on a day of fasting. You must also read them in the hearing of all the Judeans who are coming from their cities. 7 Perhaps their petition will come before the LORD, [f] and each one will turn from his evil way, for the anger and fury that the LORD has pronounced against this people are great.” 8 So Baruch son of Neriah did everything Jeremiah the prophet had commanded him. At the LORD’s temple he read the LORD’s words from the scroll.

Baruch Reads the Scroll 9 In the fifth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah, in the ninth month, [g] all the people of Jerusalem and all those coming in from Judah’s cities into Jerusalem proclaimed a fast before the LORD*.* [h] 10 Then at the LORD*’s temple, in the chamber of Gemariah son of Shaphan the scribe,* [i] in the upper courtyard at the opening of the New Gate [j] of the LORD*’s temple, in the* hearing of all the people, Baruch read Jeremiah’s words from the scroll.

11 When Micaiah son of Gemariah, son of Shaphan, heard all the words of the LORD from the scroll, 12 he went down to the scribe’s chamber in the king’s palace. All the officials were sitting there — Elishama the scribe, Delaiah son of Shemaiah, Elnathan son of Achbor, [k] Gemariah son of Shaphan, Zedekiah son of Hananiah, and all the other officials. 13 Micaiah reported to them all the words he had heard when Baruch read from the scroll in the hearing of the people. 14
Then all the officials sent word to Baruch through Jehudi son of Nethaniah, son of Shelemiah, son of Cushi, saying, “Bring the scroll that you read in the hearing of the people, and come.” So Baruch son of Neriah took the scroll and went to them. 15 They said to him, “Sit down and read it in our hearing.” So Baruch read it in their hearing.

16 When they had heard all the words, they turned to each other in fear and said to Baruch, “We must surely tell the king all these things.” 17 Then they asked Baruch, “Tell us — how did you write all these words? At his dictation? ” C

18 Baruch said to them, “At his dictation. D He recited all these words to me while I was writing on the scroll in ink.”

Jehoiakim Burns the Scroll 19 The officials said to Baruch, “You and Jeremiah must hide yourselves and tell no one where you are.” 20 Then they came to the king at the courtyard, having deposited the scroll in the chamber of Elishama the scribe, and reported everything in the hearing of the king. 21 The king sent Jehudi to get the scroll, and he took it from the chamber of Elishama the scribe. Jehudi then read it in the hearing of the king and all the officials who were standing by the king. 22 Since it was the ninth month, the king was sitting in his winter quarters [l] with a fire burning in front of him. 23 As soon as Jehudi would read three or four columns, Jehoiakim would cut the scroll E with a scribe’s knife and throw the columns into the blazing fire until the entire scroll was consumed by the fire in the brazier. 24 As they heard all these words, the king and all of his servants did not become terrified [m] or tear their garments. 25 Even though Elnathan, Delaiah, and Gemariah had urged the king not to burn the scroll, he would not listen to them. 26 Then the king commanded Jerahmeel the king’s son, Seraiah son of Azriel, and Shelemiah son of Abdeel to seize Baruch the scribe and Jeremiah the prophet, but the LORD had hidden them.

Jeremiah Dictates Another Scroll 27 After the king had burned the scroll with the words Baruch had written at Jeremiah’s dictation, F the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah: 28 “Take another scroll, and once again write on it the very words that were on the original scroll that Jehoiakim king of Judah burned. 29 You are to proclaim concerning Jehoiakim king of Judah: This is what the LORD says: You have burned the scroll, saying, ‘Why have you written on it: [n] The king of Babylon will certainly come and destroy this land and cause it to be without man or beast?’ 30 Therefore, this is what the LORD says concerning Jehoiakim king of Judah: He will have no one to sit on David’s throne, and his corpse will be thrown out to be exposed to the heat of day and the frost of night. [o] 31 I will punish him, his descendants, and his officers for their wrongdoing. I will bring on them, on the residents of Jerusalem, and on the men of Judah all the disaster, which I warned them about but they did not listen.”

32 Then Jeremiah took another scroll and gave it to Baruch son of Neriah, the scribe, and he wrote on it at Jeremiah's dictation [G] all the words of the scroll that Jehoiakim, [p] Judah's king, had burned in the fire. And many other words like them were added.

Jerusalem's Last Days

37 Zedekiah son of Josiah [a] reigned as king in the land of Judah [b] in place of Jehoiachin [c, d] son of Jehoiakim, for Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon made him king. 2 He and his officers and the people of the land did not obey the words of the LORD [e] that He spoke through Jeremiah the prophet.
3 Nevertheless, King Zedekiah sent Jehucal [f] son of Shelemiah and Zephaniah [g] son of Maaseiah, the priest, to Jeremiah the prophet, requesting,
"Please pray to the LORD our God for us! " 4 Jeremiah was going about his daily tasks [A] among the people, for they had not yet put him into the prison. [h] 5
Pharaoh's army had left Egypt, [i] and when the Chaldeans, who were besieging Jerusalem, heard the report, they withdrew from Jerusalem.
6 The word of the LORD came to Jeremiah the prophet: 7 "This is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says: This is what you will say to Judah's king, [j] who is sending you to inquire of Me: Watch: Pharaoh's army, which has come out to help you, [k] is going to return to its own land of Egypt. 8 The Chaldeans will then return and fight against this city. They will capture it and burn it down. [l] 9 This is what the LORD says: Don't deceive yourselves by saying, 'The Chaldeans will leave us for good,' for they will not leave. 10 Indeed, if you were to strike down the entire Chaldean army that is fighting with you, [m] and there remained among them only the badly wounded [B] men, each in his tent, they would get up and burn this city down."

Jeremiah's Imprisonment 11 When the Chaldean army withdrew from Jerusalem because of Pharaoh's army, 12 Jeremiah started to leave Jerusalem to go to the land of Benjamin to claim his portion there [n] among the people. 13 But when he was at the Benjamin Gate, [o] an officer of the guard was there, whose name was Irijah son of Shelemiah, son of Hananiah, and he apprehended Jeremiah the prophet, saying, "You are deserting to the Chaldeans."

14 "That's a lie," Jeremiah replied. "I am not deserting to the Chaldeans! " Irijah would not listen to him but apprehended Jeremiah and took him to the officials. 15 The officials were angry at Jeremiah and beat him and placed him in jail in the house of Jonathan [p] the scribe, for it had been made into a prison. 16
So Jeremiah went into a cell in the dungeon [q] and stayed there many days.

Jeremiah Summoned by Zedekiah 17 King Zedekiah later sent for him and received him, and in his house privately asked him, "Is there a word from the LORD? " [r]

"There is," Jeremiah responded, and he continued, "You will be handed over to the king of Babylon.” [s] 18 Then Jeremiah said to King Zedekiah, “How have I sinned against you or your servants or these people that you have put me in prison? 19 Where are your prophets who prophesied to you, claiming, ‘The king of Babylon will not come against you and this land’? [t] 20 So now please listen, my lord the king. May my petition come before you. [u] Don’t send me back to the house of Jonathan the scribe, or I will die there.”

21 So King Zedekiah gave orders, and Jeremiah was placed in the guard’s courtyard. [v] He was given a loaf of bread each day from the baker’s street until all the bread was gone from the city. So Jeremiah remained in the guard’s courtyard.

Jeremiah Thrown into a Cistern

38 Now Shephatiah son of Mattan, Gedaliah son of Pashhur, Jucal [a] son of Shelemiah, [b] and Pashhur son of Malchijah heard the words Jeremiah was speaking to all the people: 2 “This is what the LORD says: ‘Whoever stays in this city will die by the sword, famine, and plague, but whoever surrenders to the Chaldeans will live. He will keep his life like the spoils of war and will live.’ [c] 3
This is what the LORD says: ‘This city will most certainly be handed over to the king of Babylon’s army, [d] and he will capture it.’ ”

4 The officials then said to the king, “This man ought to die, because he is weakening the morale of the warriors who remain in this city and of all the people by speaking to them in this way. This man is not seeking the well-being of this people, but disaster.” [e]

5 King Zedekiah said, “Here he is; he’s in your hands since the king can’t do anything against you.” 6 So they took Jeremiah and dropped him into the cistern of Malchiah the king’s son, which was in the guard’s courtyard, lowering Jeremiah with ropes. There was no water in the cistern, only mud, and Jeremiah sank in the mud. [f]

7 But Ebed-melech, a •Cushite court official employed in the king’s palace, heard Jeremiah had been put into the cistern. While the king was sitting at the Benjamin Gate, [g] 8 Ebed-melech went from the king’s palace and spoke to the king: 9 “My lord the king, these men have been evil in all they have done to Jeremiah the prophet. They have dropped him into the cistern where he will die from hunger, because there is no more bread in the city.” [h]

10 So the king commanded Ebed-melech, the Cushite, “Take from here 30 men under your authority and pull Jeremiah the prophet up from the cistern before he dies.”

11 So Ebed-melech took the men under his authority and went to the king’s palace to a place below the storehouse. [A] From there he took old rags and worn-out clothes and lowered them by ropes to Jeremiah in the cistern. 12 Ebed-melech the Cushite cried out to Jeremiah, “Place these old rags and clothes between your armpits and the ropes.” Jeremiah did so, 13 and they pulled him up with the ropes and lifted him out of the cistern, but he continued to stay in the guard’s courtyard.

Zedekiah’s Final Meeting with Jeremiah 14 King Zedekiah sent for Jeremiah the prophet and received him at the third entrance of the LORD*’s temple. The king* said to Jeremiah, “I am going to ask you something; don’t hide anything from me.”

15 Jeremiah replied to Zedekiah, “If I tell you, you will kill me, won’t you?
Besides, if I give you advice, you won’t listen to me anyway.” 16 King Zedekiah swore to Jeremiah in private, [i] “As the Lord lives, who has given us this life, [j] I will not kill you or hand you over to these men who want to take your life.”
17 Jeremiah therefore said to Zedekiah, “This is what the Lord, the God of •Hosts , the God of Israel, says: ‘If indeed you surrender to the officials of the king of Babylon, [k] then you will live, this city will not be burned down, and you and your household will survive. 18 But if you do not surrender to the officials of the king of Babylon, then this city will be handed over to the Chaldeans. They will burn it down, and you yourself will not escape from them.’ ” 19 But King Zedekiah said to Jeremiah, “I am worried about the Judeans who have deserted to the Chaldeans. They may hand me over to the Judeans to abuse me.” [l]
20 “They will not hand you over,” Jeremiah replied. “Obey the voice of the Lord in what I am telling you, so it may go well for you and you can live. 21 But if you refuse to surrender, this is the verdict [B] that the Lord has shown me: 22
‘All the women [C] who remain in the palace of Judah’s king will be brought out to the officials of the king of Babylon and will say:

Your trusted friends [D] misled [E] you and overcame you.
Your feet sank into the mire,
and they deserted you.

23 All your wives and sons will be brought out to the Chaldeans. [m] You yourself will not escape from them, for you will be seized by the king of Babylon and this city will burn down.’ ” 24 Then Zedekiah warned Jeremiah, “Don’t let anyone know about these things or you will die. 25 If the officials hear that I have spoken with you [n] and come and demand of you, ‘Tell us what you said to the king; don’t hide anything from us and we won’t kill you. Also, what did the king say to you? ’ 26 then you will tell them, ‘I was bringing before the king my petition that he not return me to the house of Jonathan to die there.’ ” [o] 27 When all the officials came to Jeremiah and questioned him, he reported the exact words to them the king had commanded, and they quit speaking with him because nothing had been heard.
28 Jeremiah remained in the guard’s courtyard until the day Jerusalem was captured, and he was there when it happened. [F]

The Fall of Jerusalem to Babylon

39 In the ninth year of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the tenth month, King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon advanced against Jerusalem with his entire army and laid siege to it. 2 In the fourth month of Zedekiah's eleventh year, on the ninth day of the month, the city was broken into. 3 All the officials of the king of Babylon entered and sat at the Middle Gate: Nergal-sharezer, Samgar, Nebusarsechim [a] the Rab-saris, Nergal-sharezer the Rab-mag, and all the rest of the officials of Babylon's king.
4 When he saw them, Zedekiah king of Judah and all the soldiers fled. They left the city at night by way of the king's garden through the gate between the two walls. They left along the route to the •Arabah . [b] 5 However, the Chaldean army pursued them and overtook Zedekiah in the plains [A] of Jericho, arrested him, and brought him to Nebuchadnezzar, Babylon's king, at Riblah in the land of Hamath. The king passed sentence on him there.
6 At Riblah the king of Babylon slaughtered Zedekiah's sons before his eyes, and he also slaughtered all Judah's nobles. 7 Then he blinded Zedekiah and put him in bronze chains to take him to Babylon. [c] 8 The Chaldeans next burned down the king's palace and the people's houses and tore down the walls of Jerusalem. 9 Nebuzaradan, the commander of the guards, [d] deported the rest of the people to Babylon — those who had remained in the city and those deserters who had defected to him along with the rest of the people who had remained.
10 However, Nebuzaradan, the commander of the guards, left in the land of Judah some of the poor people who owned nothing, and he gave them vineyards and fields at that time. [e]

Jeremiah Freed by Nebuchadnezzar

11 Speaking through Nebuzaradan, captain of the guard, King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon gave orders concerning Jeremiah, saying: 12 “Take him, look after him, and don’t let any harm come to him; do for him whatever he says.” 13 Nebuzaradan, captain of the guard, Nebushazban the Rab-saris, Nergal-sharezer the Rab-mag, and all the captains of the king of Babylon 14 had Jeremiah brought from the guard’s courtyard [f] and turned him over to Gedaliah [g] son of Ahikam, [h] son of Shaphan, to take him home. So he settled among his own people.

15 Now the word of the LORD had come to Jeremiah when he was confined in the guard’s courtyard: [i] 16 “Go tell Ebed-melech the •Cushite : [j] This is what the LORD of •Hosts , the God of Israel, says: I am about to fulfill My words for harm and not for good against this city. They will take place before your eyes on that day. 17 But I will rescue you on that day” — this is the LORD’s declaration — “and you will not be handed over to the men you fear. 18 Indeed, I will certainly deliver you so that you do not fall by the sword. Because you have trusted in Me, you will keep your life like the spoils of war.” [k] This is the LORD’s declaration.

Jeremiah Stays in Judah

40 This is the word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD after Nebuzaradan, captain of the guard, released him at Ramah. [a] When he found him, he was bound in chains with all the exiles of Jerusalem and Judah who were being exiled to Babylon. 2 The captain of the guard took Jeremiah and said to him,
"The LORD your God decreed this disaster on this place, [b] 3 and the LORD has fulfilled it. He has done just what He decreed. Because you people have sinned against the LORD [c] and have not obeyed Him, this thing has happened. 4 Now pay attention: Today I am setting you free from the chains that were on your hands. [d] If it pleases you to come with me to Babylon, come, and I will take care of you. But if it seems wrong to you to come with me to Babylon, go no farther. [A] Look — the whole land is in front of you. [e] Wherever it seems good and right for you to go, go there." 5 When Jeremiah had not yet turned to go, Nebuzaradan said to him: "Return [f] to Gedaliah son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, whom the king of Babylon has appointed over the cities of Judah, and stay with him among the people or go wherever you want to go." So the captain of the guard gave him a ration [g] and a gift [h] and released him. 6 Jeremiah therefore went to Gedaliah son of Ahikam at Mizpah, [i] and he stayed with him among the people who remained in the land.

Gedaliah Advises Peace 7 When all the commanders of the armies in the field — they and their men — heard that the king of Babylon had appointed Gedaliah son of Ahikam over the land and that he had put him in charge of the men, women, and children from the poorest of the land who had not been deported to Babylon, 8 they came to Gedaliah at Mizpah. The commanders included Ishmael [j] son of Nethaniah, Johanan and Jonathan the sons of Kareah, Seraiah son of Tanhumeth, the sons of Ephai the Netophathite, and Jezaniah son of the Maacathite — they and their men.

9 Gedaliah son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, swore an oath to them and their men, assuring them, "Don't be afraid to serve the Chaldeans. Live in the land and serve the king of Babylon, and it will go well for you. [k] 10 As for me, I am going to live in Mizpah to represent [B] you before the Chaldeans [l] who come to us. As for you, gather wine, summer fruit, and oil, place them in your storage jars, and live in the cities you have captured."

11 When all the Judeans in Moab [m] and among the Ammonites and in [n] Edom and in all the other lands [o] also heard that the king of Babylon had left a remnant in Judah and had appointed Gedaliah son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, over them, 12 they all returned from all the places where they had been banished [p] and came to the land of Judah, to Gedaliah at Mizpah, and harvested a great amount of wine and summer fruit.

13 Meanwhile, Johanan son of Kareah and all the commanders of the armies in the field came to Gedaliah at Mizpah 14 and warned him, “Don’t you realize that Baalis, king of the Ammonites, has sent Ishmael son of Nethaniah [q] to kill you? ” But Gedaliah son of Ahikam would not believe them. 15 Then Johanan son of Kareah suggested to Gedaliah in private at Mizpah, “Let me go kill Ishmael son of Nethaniah. No one will know it. Why should he kill you and scatter all of Judah that has gathered to you so that the remnant of Judah would perish? ” [r]

16 But Gedaliah son of Ahikam responded to Johanan son of Kareah, “Don’t do that! What you’re saying about Ishmael is a lie.”

Gedaliah Assassinated by Ishmael

41 In the seventh month, Ishmael son of Nethaniah, son of Elishama, of the royal family and one of the king's chief officers, came with 10 men to Gedaliah son of Ahikam at Mizpah. They ate a meal together there in Mizpah, [2] but then Ishmael son of Nethaniah and the 10 men who were with him got up and struck down Gedaliah son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, with the sword; he killed the one the king of Babylon had appointed in the land. [3] Ishmael also struck down all the Judeans who were with Gedaliah at Mizpah, as well as the Chaldean soldiers who were there. [a]

[4] On the second day after he had killed Gedaliah, when no one knew yet, [5] 80 men came from Shechem, Shiloh, [b] and Samaria [c] who had shaved their beards, [d] torn their garments, and gashed themselves, and who were carrying •grain and incense offerings to bring to the temple of the LORD. [e] [6] Ishmael son of Nethaniah came out of Mizpah to meet them, weeping as he came. When he encountered them, he said: "Come to Gedaliah son of Ahikam! " [7] But when they came into the city, Ishmael son of Nethaniah and the men with him slaughtered them and threw them into [f] a cistern.

[8] However, there were 10 men among them who said to Ishmael, "Don't kill us, for we have hidden treasure in the field — wheat, barley, oil, and honey! " So he stopped and did not kill them along with their companions. [9] Now the cistern where Ishmael had thrown all the corpses of the men he had struck down was a large one [g] that King Asa had made in the encounter with Baasha king of Israel.
[h] Ishmael son of Nethaniah filled it with the slain.

[10] Then Ishmael took captive all the remnant of the people of Mizpah including the daughters of the king — all those who remained in Mizpah over whom Nebuzaradan, captain of the guard, had appointed Gedaliah son of Ahikam. Ishmael son of Nethaniah took them captive and set off to cross over to the Ammonites. [i]

The Captives Rescued by Johanan [11] When Johanan son of Kareah and all the commanders of the armies [j] with him heard of all the evil that Ishmael son of Nethaniah had done, [12] they took all their men and went to fight with Ishmael son of Nethaniah and found him by the great pool in Gibeon. [k] [13] When all the people with Ishmael saw Johanan son of Kareah and all the commanders of the army with him, they rejoiced, [14] and all the people whom Ishmael had taken captive from Mizpah turned around and rejoined Johanan son of Kareah. [15] But Ishmael son of Nethaniah escaped from Johanan with eight men and went to the Ammonites. [16] Johanan son of Kareah and all the commanders of the armies with him then took from Mizpah all the remnant of the people whom he had recovered from Ishmael son of Nethaniah after Ishmael had killed Gedaliah son of Ahikam — men, soldiers, women, children, and court officials whom he brought back from Gibeon. [17] They left, stopping in Geruth Chimham, [l] which is near Bethlehem, in order to make their way into Egypt, [18] away from the Chaldeans. For they feared them because Ishmael son of Nethaniah had struck down Gedaliah son of Ahikam, whom the king of Babylon had appointed in the land. [m]

The People Seek Jeremiah's Counsel

42 Then all the commanders of the armies, along with Johanan son of Kareah, [a] Jezaniah son of Hoshaiah, and all the people from the least to the greatest, [b] approached [2] Jeremiah the prophet and said, "May our petition come before you; [c] pray to the LORD your God on our behalf, [d] on behalf of this entire remnant (for few of us remain out of the many, [e] as you can see with your own eyes), [3] that the LORD your God may tell us the way we should walk and the thing we should do."

[4] So Jeremiah the prophet said to them, "I have heard. I will now pray to the LORD your God according to your words, and every word that the LORD answers you I will tell you; I won't withhold a word from you." [f]

[5] And they said to Jeremiah, "As for every word the LORD your God sends you to tell us, if we don't act accordingly, may the LORD be a true and faithful witness against us. [g] [6] Whether it is pleasant or unpleasant, we will obey the voice of the LORD our God to whom we are sending you so that it may go well with us. [h] We will certainly obey the voice of the LORD our God! "

Jeremiah's Advice to Stay [7] Now at the end of 10 days, the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah, [8] and he summoned Johanan son of Kareah, all the commanders of the armies who were with him, and all the people from the least to the greatest.

[9] He said to them, "This is what the LORD says, the God of Israel to whom you sent me to bring your petition before Him: [10] 'If you will indeed stay in this land, then I will rebuild and not demolish you, [i] and I will plant and not uproot you, because I relent concerning the disaster [j] that I have brought on you. [11] Don't be afraid of the king of Babylon [k] whom you now fear; don't be afraid of him' — this is the LORD's declaration — 'because I am with you to save you [l] and deliver you from him. [12] I will grant you compassion, [m] and he [n] will have compassion on you and allow you to return to your own soil. [13] But if you say, 'We will not stay in this land,' [o] so as not to obey the voice of the LORD your God, [14] and if you say, 'No, instead we'll go to the land of Egypt [p] where we will not see war or hear the sound of the ram's horn [q] or hunger for food, and we'll live there,' [15] then hear the word of the LORD, remnant of Judah! This is what the LORD of •Hosts , the God of Israel, says: If you are firmly resolved to go to Egypt [r] and live there for a while, [16] then the sword [s] you fear will overtake you there in the land of Egypt, and the famine you are worried about will follow on your heels [A] there to Egypt, and you will die there. [17] All who resolve to go to Egypt to live there for a while will die by the sword, famine, and plague. They will have no one escape or survive from the disaster I will bring on them.’

18 “For this is what the LORD of Hosts, the God of Israel, says: ‘Just as My anger and fury were poured out on Jerusalem’s residents, [t] so will My fury pour out on you if you go to Egypt. You will become an object of cursing, scorn, [u] execration, and disgrace, and you will never see this place again.’ 19 The LORD has spoken concerning you, remnant of Judah: ‘Don’t go to Egypt.’ Know for certain that I have warned you today! [v] 20 You have led your own selves astray because you are the ones who sent me to the LORD your God, saying, ‘Pray to the LORD our God on our behalf, and as for all that the LORD our God says, tell it to us, and we’ll act accordingly.’ 21 For I have told you today, but you have not obeyed the voice of the LORD your God in everything He has sent me to tell you. 22 Now therefore, know for certain that by the sword, famine, and plague you will die in the place where you desired to go to live for a while.”

Jeremiah's Counsel Rejected

43 When Jeremiah had finished speaking to all the people all the words of the LORD their God — all these words the LORD their God had sent him to give them — 2 then Azariah [a] son of Hoshaiah, [b] Johanan son of Kareah, and all the other arrogant men responded to Jeremiah, "You are speaking a lie! The LORD our God has not sent you to say, 'You must not go to Egypt to live there for a while! ' 3 Rather, Baruch son of Neriah is inciting you against us to hand us over to the Chaldeans to put us to death or to deport us to Babylon! "

4 So Johanan son of Kareah and all the commanders of the armies did not obey the voice of the LORD to stay in the land of Judah. 5 Instead, Johanan son of Kareah and all the commanders of the armies took the whole remnant of Judah, [c] those who had returned from all the nations where they had been banished to live in the land of Judah for a while — 6 the men, women, children, king's daughters, and everyone whom Nebuzaradan, captain of the guard, had allowed to remain with Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan, [d] along with Jeremiah the prophet and Baruch son of Neriah — 7 and they went to the land of Egypt because they did not obey the voice of the LORD. They went as far as Tahpanhes. [e]

God's Sign to the People in Egypt 8 Then the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah at Tahpanhes: 9 "Pick up some large stones and set them in the mortar of the brick pavement that is at the opening of Pharaoh's palace at Tahpanhes. Do this in the sight of the Judean men 10 and tell them: This is what the LORD of •Hosts , the God of Israel, says: I will send for My servant Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and I will place his throne on these stones that I have embedded, and he will pitch his pavilion over them. 11 He will come and strike down the land of Egypt [f] — those destined for death, to death; those destined for captivity, to captivity; and those destined for the sword, [g] to the sword. 12 I [h] will kindle a fire in the temples of Egypt's gods, [i] and he will burn them and take them prisoner. He will •clean the land of Egypt as a shepherd picks lice off [A] his garment, [j] and he will leave there unscathed. 13 He will smash the sacred pillars of the sun temple [B, k] in the land of Egypt and burn down the temples of the Egyptian gods."

God’s Judgment against His People in Egypt

44 This is the word that came to Jeremiah for all the Jews living in the land of Egypt — at Migdol, [a] Tahpanhes, [b] Memphis, [c] and in the land of Pathros: [d] 2 "This is what the LORD of •Hosts , the God of Israel, says: You have seen all the disaster I brought against Jerusalem and all Judah's cities; look, they are a ruin today without an inhabitant in them 3 because of their evil ways that provoked Me to anger, [e] going and burning incense to serve other gods [f] that they, you, and your fathers did not know. 4 So I sent you all My servants the prophets time and time again, [A] saying: Don't do this detestable thing that I hate. 5 But they did not listen or pay attention; they did not turn from their evil or stop burning incense to other gods. 6 So My fierce wrath poured out and burned in Judah's cities and Jerusalem's streets [g] so that they became the desolate ruin they are today.

7 "So now, this is what the LORD, the God of Hosts, the God of Israel, says: Why are you doing such great harm to yourselves? You are cutting off man and woman, child and infant [h] from Judah, leaving yourselves without a remnant. 8 You are provoking Me to anger by the work of your hands. You are burning incense to other gods in the land of Egypt where you have gone to live for a while. As a result, you will be cut off and become an object of cursing and insult among all the nations of earth. [i] 9 Have you forgotten the evils of your fathers, the evils of Judah's kings, the evils of their wives, your own evils, and the evils of your wives that were committed in the land of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem? 10 They have not become humble to this day, and they have not •feared or followed My instruction or My statutes that I set before you and your ancestors.

11 "Therefore, this is what the LORD of Hosts, the God of Israel, says: I am about to turn against you to bring disaster, [j] to cut off all Judah. 12 And I will take away the remnant of Judah, [k] those who have resolved to go to the land of Egypt to live there for a while; they will meet their end. All of them in the land of Egypt will fall by the sword; they will meet their end by famine. From the least to the greatest, they will die by the sword and by famine. Then they will become an object of cursing, scorn, [l] execration, and disgrace. 13 I will punish those living in the land of Egypt just as I punished Jerusalem by sword, famine, and plague. 14 Then the remnant of Judah — those going to live for a while there in the land of Egypt — will have no fugitive or survivor to return to the land of Judah where they are longing [B] to return to live, [m] for they will not return except for a few fugitives."

The People's Stubborn Response 15 However, all the men who knew that their wives were burning incense to other gods, all the women standing by — a great assembly — and all the people who were living in the land of Egypt at Pathros answered Jeremiah, 16 "As for the word you spoke to us in the name of •Yahweh , we are not going to listen to you! 17 Instead, we will do everything we said we would: burn incense to the queen of heaven [n] and offer •drink offerings to her just as we, our fathers, our kings, and our officials did in Judah's cities [o] and in Jerusalem's streets. Then we had enough food and good things and saw no disaster, 18 but from the time we ceased to burn incense to the queen of heaven and to offer her drink offerings, we have lacked everything, and through sword and famine we have met our end."

19 And the women said, [p] "When we burned incense to the queen of heaven and poured out drink offerings to her, was it apart from our husbands' knowledge [q] that we made sacrificial cakes in her image and poured out drink offerings to her? "

20 But Jeremiah responded to all the people — the men, women, and all the people who were answering him: 21 "As for the incense you burned in Judah's cities [r] and in Jerusalem's streets — you, your fathers, your kings, your officials, and the people of the land — did the LORD not remember them? He brought this to mind. 22 The LORD can no longer bear your evil deeds and the detestable acts you have committed, so your land has become a waste, a desolation, and an object of cursing, without inhabitant, as you see today. 23 Because you burned incense and sinned against the LORD and didn't obey the LORD's voice [s] and didn't follow His instruction, His statutes, and His testimonies, this disaster has come to you, as you see today."

24 Then Jeremiah said to all the people, including all the women, "Hear the word of the LORD, all Judah who are in the land of Egypt. [t] 25 This is what the LORD of Hosts, the God of Israel, says: 'As for you and your wives, you women have spoken with your mouths, and you men fulfilled it by your deeds, saying, "We will keep our vows that we have made to burn incense to the queen of heaven and to pour out drink offerings for her." Go ahead, confirm your vows! Pay your vows! '

26 "Therefore, hear the word of the LORD, all you Judeans who live in the land of Egypt: 'I have sworn by My great name, [u] says Yahweh, that My name will never again be invoked by anyone of Judah in all the land of Egypt, [v] saying, "As the Lord GOD lives." 27 I am watching over them for disaster and not for good, [w] and every man of Judah who is in the land of Egypt will meet his end by sword or famine until they are finished off. 28 Those who escape the sword will return from the land of Egypt to the land of Judah only few in number, [x] and the whole remnant of Judah, the ones going to the land of Egypt to live there for a while, will know whose word stands, Mine or theirs! 29 This will be a sign to you' — this is the LORD's declaration — 'that I am about to punish you in this place, so you may know that My words of disaster concerning you will certainly come to pass. [y] 30 This is what the LORD says: I am about to hand over Pharaoh Hophra, [z] Egypt's king, to his enemies, to those who want to take his life, just as I handed over Judah's King Zedekiah [a] to Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar, who was his enemy, the one who wanted to take his life.' "

The LORD's Message to Baruch

45 This is the word that Jeremiah the prophet spoke to Baruch son of Neriah
[a] when he wrote these words on a scroll at Jeremiah's dictation [A, b] in the fourth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah: [c] 2 "This is what the LORD*, the God of Israel, says to you, Baruch:* 3 'You have said, "Woe is me, because the LORD has added misery to my pain! I am worn out with [B] groaning and have found no rest." ' [d]

4 "This is what you are to say to him: 'This is what the LORD says: What I have built I am about to demolish, and what I have planted I am about to uproot [e] — the whole land! 5 But as for you, do you seek great things for yourself? Stop seeking! For I am about to bring disaster on every living creature' — this is the LORD's declaration — 'but I will grant you your life like the spoils of war [f] wherever you go.' "

PROPHECIES AGAINST THE NATIONS

46 THE WORD OF THE LORD THAT CAME TO JEREMIAH THE PROPHET ABOUT THE NATIONS: [A]

Prophecies against Egypt

2 About Egypt and the army of Pharaoh Neco, Egypt's king, [b] which was defeated at Carchemish [c] on the Euphrates River by Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon in the fourth year of Judah's King Jehoiakim son of Josiah: [d]

3 Deploy small shields [e] and large;
draw near for battle!
4 Harness the horses;
mount the steeds; [A] take your positions with helmets on!
Polish the lances;
put on armor! [f]
5 Why have I seen this?
They are terrified,
they are retreating,
their warriors are crushed,
they flee headlong,
they never look back,
terror is on every side! [g]
6 The swift cannot flee, This is the LORD's declaration.
and the warrior cannot escape!
In the north by the bank of the Euphrates River,
they stumble and fall. [h]

7 Who is this, rising like the Nile, [i] like rivers whose waters churn?
8 Egypt rises like the Nile,
and its waters churn like rivers.
He boasts, "I will go up, I will cover the earth;
I will destroy cities with their residents."
9 Rise up, you cavalry!
Race furiously, you chariots!
Let the warriors go out — •Cush and Put, [j]
who are able to handle shields, and the Ludim, [k]
who are able to handle and string the bow. [l] 10 That day belongs to the Lord, the GOD of •Hosts , a day of vengeance to avenge Himself against His adversaries.

The sword will devour and be satisfied;
it will drink its fill of their blood, because it will be a sacrifice [m] to the Lord, the God of Hosts, in the northern land by the Euphrates River.

11 Go up to Gilead and get balm, [n]
Virgin Daughter Egypt!
You have multiplied remedies in vain;
there is no healing for you.
12 The nations have heard of your dishonor, [o]
and your outcry fills the earth, because warrior stumbles against warrior and together both of them have fallen.

13 This is the word the Lord spoke to Jeremiah the prophet about the coming of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon to defeat the land of Egypt: [p]

14 Announce it in Egypt, and proclaim it in Migdol! [q]
Proclaim it in Memphis and in Tahpanhes!
Say: Take positions! Prepare yourself, for the sword devours all around you. [r] 15 Why have your strong ones been swept away?
Each has not stood,
for the Lord has thrust him down.
16 He continues to stumble. [s]
Indeed, each falls over the other.
They say, “Get up! Let’s return to our people and to the land of our birth, away from the sword that oppresses.” [t]
17 There they will cry out, “Pharaoh king of Egypt was all noise;
he let the opportune moment pass.”

18 As I live —
He will come•Yahweh of Hosts is His name. [u]this is the King’s declaration; like Tabor among the mountains and like Carmel by the sea.

19 Get your bags ready for exile, inhabitant of Daughter Egypt! [v]
For Memphis will become a desolation, uninhabited ruins.

20 Egypt is a beautiful young cow, [w]
but a horsefly from the north is coming against her. [x, y] 21 Even her mercenaries among her are like stall-fed calves.
They too will turn back;
together they will flee;
they will not take their stand,
for the day of their calamity is coming on them,
the time of their punishment. [z]
22 Egypt will hiss like a slithering snake, [B] for the enemy will come with an army;
with axes they will come against her like those who cut trees. [a] 23 They will cut down her forest — though it is dense, this is the LORD's declaration — for they are more numerous than locusts;
they cannot be counted. [b] 24 Daughter Egypt will be put to shame, handed over to a northern people. [c]

25 The LORD of Hosts, the God of Israel, says: "I am about to punish Amon, god of Thebes, [d] along with Pharaoh, Egypt, her gods, and her kings — Pharaoh and those trusting in him. 26 I will hand them over to those who want to take their lives [e] — to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and his officers. But after this, [f] it will be inhabited again as in ancient times."
This is the LORD's declaration.

Reassurance for Israel

27 But you, My servant Jacob, do not be afraid, [g]
and do not be discouraged, Israel, for without fail I will save you from far away
and your descendants, from the land of their captivity!
Jacob will return and have calm and quiet with no one to frighten him.
28 And you, My servant Jacob, do not be afraid — for I will be with you. [h] this is the LORD's declaration —
I will bring destruction on all the nations
where I have banished you,
but I will not bring destruction on you.
I will discipline you with justice,
and I will by no means leave you unpunished. [i]

Prophecies against the Philistines

47 This is the word of the LORD that came to Jeremiah the prophet about the Philistines [a] before Pharaoh defeated Gaza. [b] 2 This is what the LORD says:

Look, waters are rising from the north and becoming an overflowing •wadi .
They will overflow the land and everything in it, [c]
the cities and their inhabitants.
The people will cry out,
and every inhabitant of the land will wail.
3 At the sound of the stomping hooves of his stallions, [d]
the rumbling of his chariots, and the clatter of their wheels, [e] fathers will not turn back for their sons, because they will be utterly helpless [A] 4 on account of the day that is coming to destroy all the Philistines, to cut off from Tyre and Sidon
every remaining ally. [f]
Indeed, the LORD is about to destroy the Philistines,
the remnant of the islands of Caphtor. [g, h]
5 Baldness is coming to Gaza. [i] Ashkelon will become silent, [j]
a remnant of their valley.
How long will you gash yourself?

6 Oh, sword of the LORD! [k]
How long will you be restless?
Go back to your sheath;
be still; be silent!
7 How can it [l] rest
when the LORD has given it a command? [m]
He has assigned it [n] against Ashkelon and the shore of the sea.

Prophecies against Moab

48 About Moab, [a] this is what the LORD of •Hosts , the God of Israel, says:

Woe to Nebo, [b] because it is about to be destroyed;
Kiriathaim will be put to shame; [c] it will be taken captive.
The fortress will be put to shame and dismayed!
2 There is no longer praise for Moab;
they plan harm against her in Heshbon: [d]
Come, let's cut her off from nationhood.
Also, Madmen, [e] you will be silenced;
the sword will pursue you.
3 A voice cries out from Horonaim, [f]
"devastation and great disaster!"
4 Moab will be shattered;
her little ones will cry out.
5 For on the Ascent to Luhith they will be weeping continually, [A] and on the descent to Horonaim will be heard cries of distress over the destruction: [g] 6 Flee! Save your lives!
Be like a juniper bush [B, h] in the wilderness.
7 Because you trust in your works [i] and treasures,
you will be captured also.
Chemosh [j] will go into exile with his priests and officials.
8 The destroyer will move against every town;
not one town will escape.
The valley will perish,
and the plain will be annihilated, [k]
as the LORD has said.
9 Make Moab a salt marsh, [l, m]
for she will run away; [C] her towns will become a desolation, without inhabitant.

10 The one who does the LORD's business deceitfully [D] is cursed, [n] and the one who withholds his sword from bloodshed is cursed.

11 Moab has been left quiet since his youth, settled like wine on its dregs. [o]
He hasn't been poured from one container to another or gone into exile.
So his taste has remained the same,
and his aroma hasn't changed.
12 Therefore look, the days are coming — when I will send those to him, who will pourthis is the LORD's declaration — him out.
They will empty his containers
and smash his jars.
13 Moab will be put to shame because of Chemosh, just as the house of Israel was put to shame because of Bethel [p] that they trusted in.

14 How can you say, "We are warriors — mighty men ready for battle"?
15 The destroyer of Moab and its towns has come up, [E]
and the best of its young men have gone down to slaughter.
16 Moab's•Yahweh of Hosts is His name. [q]This is the King's declaration;
calamity is near at hand;
his disaster is rushing swiftly.
17 Mourn for him, all you surrounding nations, everyone who knows his name.
Say: How the mighty scepter [r] is shattered,
the glorious staff!

18 Come down from glory; sit on parched ground, resident of the daughter of Dibon, [s]
for the destroyer of Moab has come against you;
he has destroyed your fortresses.
19 Stand by the highway and look,
resident of Aroer! [t]
Ask him who is fleeing or her who is escaping: [u]
What happened?
20 Moab is put to shame, indeed dismayed.

Wail and cry out!
Declare by the Arnon
that Moab is destroyed.

21 “Judgment has come to the land of the plateau [v] — to Holon, Jahzah, Mephaath, 22 Dibon, Nebo, Beth-diblathaim, 23 Kiriathaim, Beth-gamul, Beth-meon, [w] 24 Kerioth, [x] Bozrah, and all the towns of the land of Moab, those far and near. 25 Moab’s •horn is chopped off; [y] his arm is shattered.”
This is the LORD’s declaration.
26 “Make him drunk, because he has exalted himself against the LORD. [z] Moab will wallow in his own vomit, and he will also become a laughingstock.
27 Wasn’t Israel a laughingstock to you? [a] Was he ever found among thieves? [b]
For whenever you speak of him you shake your head.”

28 Abandon the towns! Live in the cliffs, residents of Moab!
Be like a dove
that nests inside the mouth of a cave. [c]

29 We have heard of Moab’s pride, great pride, indeed —
his insolence, arrogance, pride, and haughty heart.
30 I know his outburst.
It is empty. This is the LORD’s declaration.
His boast is empty.
31 Therefore, I will wail over Moab.
I will cry out for Moab, all of it;
he will moan for the men of Kir-heres.
32 I will weep for you, vine of Sibmah, with more than the weeping for Jazer.
Your tendrils have extended to the sea;
they have reached to the sea and to Jazer. [d]
The destroyer has fallen on your summer fruit and grape harvest.
33 Joy and celebration are taken from the fertile field and from the land of Moab.
I have stopped the flow of wine from the winepresses;
no one will tread with shouts of joy.
The shouting is not a shout of joy. [e]

34 “There is a cry from Heshbon to Elealeh; they raise their voices as far as Jahaz [f] — from Zoar to Horonaim and Eglath-shelishiyah — because even the waters of Nimrim have become desolate. 35 In Moab, I will stop” — this is the LORD’s declaration — “the one who offers sacrifices on the •high place and burns incense to his gods. [g] 36 Therefore, My heart moans like flutes for Moab, [h] and My heart moans like flutes for the people of Kir-heres. And therefore, the wealth he has gained has perished. 37 Indeed, every head is bald and every beard clipped; [i] on every hand is a gash and •sackcloth around the waist. 38 On all the rooftops of Moab and in her public squares, everyone is mourning because I have shattered Moab like a jar no one wants.” [j] This is the LORD’s declaration.
39 “How broken it is! They wail! How Moab has turned his back! He is ashamed.
Moab will become a laughingstock and a shock to all those around him.” [k]
40 For this is what the LORD says:
He will swoop down like an eagle and spread his wings against Moab. [l] 41 The towns have [F] been captured, and the strongholds seized.
In that day the heart of Moab’s warriors will be like the heart of a woman with contractions. [m] 42 Moab will be destroyed as a people because he has exalted himself against the LORD. [n] 43 Panic, pit, and trap await you, resident of Moab.
44 He who flees from the panic will fall in the pit, and he who climbs from the pit will be captured in the trap, for I will bring against Moab
the year of their punishment.
This is the LORD’s declaration.
45 Those who flee will stand exhausted in Heshbon’s shadow because fire has come out from Heshbon and a flame from within Sihon.
It will devour Moab’s forehead and the skull of the noisemakers.
This is the LORD’s declaration. [o]
46 Woe to you, Moab!

The people of Chemosh have perished because your sons have been taken captive and your daughters have gone into captivity. [p] 47 Yet, I will restore the fortunes [G] of Moab in the last days. [q]
The judgment on Moab ends here. This is the LORD's declaration.

Prophecies against Ammon

49 About the Ammonites, [a] this is what the LORD says:
Does Israel have no sons?
Is he without an heir?
Why then has •Milcom [b, c] dispossessed Gad [d]
and his people settled in their cities?
2 Therefore look, the days are coming — when I will make the shout of battle [e] heard this is the LORD's declaration — against Rabbah of the Ammonites.
It will become a desolate mound,
and its villages will be burned down.
Israel will dispossess their dispossessors, says the LORD.
3 Wail, Heshbon, [f] for Ai is devastated;
cry out, daughters of Rabbah!
Clothe yourselves with •sackcloth , [g] and lament;
run back and forth within your walls, [A] because Milcom will go into exile together with his priests and officials. [h] 4 Why do you brag about your valleys, your flowing valley, [B]
you faithless daughter?
You who trust in your treasures and boast, "Who can attack me? "
5 Look, I am about to bring terror on you [i] — from all those around you. the Lord GOD of •Hosts —this is the declaration of You will be banished, each man headlong, with no one to gather up the fugitives.
6 But after that, I will restore the fortunes [C] of the Ammonites. [j]
This is the LORD's declaration.

Prophecies against Edom

7 About Edom, this is what the LORD of Hosts says:
Is there no longer wisdom in Teman? [k]
Has counsel perished from the prudent?
Has their wisdom rotted away? [l]
8 Run! Turn back! Lie low, residents of Dedan, [m]
for I will bring Esau's calamity on him at the time I punish him. [n] 9 If grape harvesters came to you, wouldn't they leave some gleanings? [o]
Were thieves to come in the night, they would destroy only what they wanted. [p]
10 But I will strip Esau bare;
I will uncover his secret places. [q]
He will try to hide himself, but he will be unable.
His descendants will be destroyed along with his relatives and neighbors.
He will exist no longer.
11 Abandon your fatherless; I will preserve them;
let your widows trust in Me. [r]
12 "For this is what the LORD says: If those who do not deserve to drink the cup must drink it, can you possibly remain unpunished? You will not remain unpunished, for you must drink it too. 13 For by Myself I have sworn" — this is the LORD's declaration — "Bozrah [s] will become a desolation, a disgrace, a ruin, and a curse, and all her cities will become ruins forever." [t]

14 I have heard a message from the LORD;
a messenger has been sent among the nations:
Assemble yourselves to come against her.
Rise up for war!

15 Look, I will certainly make you insignificant among the nations, despised among humanity.
16 As to the terror you cause, [D]
your presumptuous heart has deceived you.
You who live in the clefts of the rock, [u]

you who occupy the mountain summit, though you elevate your nest like the eagle,
even from there I will bring you down.

17 “Edom will become a desolation. Everyone This is the LORD’s declaration. [v] who passes by her will be horrified and scoff because of all her wounds. [w] 18 As when Sodom and Gomorrah were overthrown along with their neighbors,” [x] says the LORD, “no one will live there; no human being will even stay in it as a temporary resident. [y]

19 “Look, it will be like a lion coming from the thickets [E] of the Jordan to the watered grazing land. Indeed, I will chase Edom away from her land in a flash. I will appoint whoever is chosen for her. For who is like Me? Who will summon Me? [z] Who is the shepherd who can stand against Me? ”

20 Therefore, hear the plans that the LORD has drawn up against Edom and the strategies He has devised against the people of Teman: [a] The flock’s little lambs will certainly be dragged away, [b] and their grazing land will be made desolate because of them. 21 At the sound of their fall the earth will quake; the sound of her cry will be heard at the •Red Sea. [c] 22 Look! It will be like an eagle soaring upward, then swooping down and spreading its wings over Bozrah. In that day the hearts of Edom’s warriors will be like the heart of a woman with contractions. [d]

Prophecies against Damascus

23 About Damascus: [e]

Hamath and Arpad are put to shame, [f]
for they have heard a bad report and are agitated;
in the sea there is anxiety that cannot be calmed.
24 Damascus has become weak;
she has turned to run;
panic has gripped her.
Distress and labor pains have seized her
like a woman in labor.
25 How can the city of praise not be abandoned, [g]
the town that brings Me joy?
26 Therefore, her young men will fall in her public squares;
all the warriors will perish in that day.
27 I will set fire to the wallthe LORD of Hosts. [h]This is the declaration of
of Damascus;
it will consume Ben-hadad's citadels. [i]

Prophecies against Kedar and Hazor

28 About Kedar [j] and the kingdoms of Hazor, which Nebuchadnezzar, [k] Babylon's king, defeated, this is what the LORD says:

Rise up, go against Kedar,
and destroy the people of the east!
29 They will take their tents and their flocks along with their tent curtains and all their equipment.
They will take their camels for themselves.
They will call out to them:
Terror is on every side! [l] 30 Run! Escape quickly! Lie low, residents of Hazor —
for Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon this is the LORD's declaration — has drawn up a plan against you;
he has devised a strategy against you.

31 Rise up, go up against a nation at ease,
one living in security.
They have no doors, not even a gate bar; This is the LORD's declaration.
they live alone. [m]
32 Their camels will become plunder, and their massive herds of cattle will become spoil. [n]
I will scatter them to the wind in every direction,
those who shave their temples;
I will bring calamity on them across all their borders.
33 Hazor will become a jackals' den, [o] This is the LORD's declaration.
a desolation forever.
No one will live there;
no human being will even stay in it as a temporary resident. [p]

Prophecies against Elam

34 This is the word of the LORD that came to Jeremiah the prophet about Elam [q] at the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah king of Judah. [r] 35 This is what the LORD of Hosts says:

I am about to shatter Elam's bow, [s]
the source [F] of their might.
36 I will bring the four winds against Elam from the four corners of the heavens, and I will scatter them to all these winds.
There will not be a nation
to which Elam's banished ones will not go.
37 I will devastate Elam before their enemies, before those who want to take their lives.
I will bring disaster on them,
My burning anger.
I will send the sword after them [t] This is the LORD's declaration.
until I finish them off.
38 I will set My throne in Elam, and I will destroy the king and officials from there.
This is the LORD's declaration.

39 In the last days,
I will restore the fortunes [G] of Elam. [u]
This is the LORD's declaration.

Prophecies against Babylon

50 The word the LORD spoke about Babylon, [a] the land of the Chaldeans, through Jeremiah the prophet:
2 Announce to the nations;
proclaim and raise up a signal flag; [b] proclaim, and hide nothing.
Say: Babylon is captured;
Bel [c] is put to shame;
Marduk is devastated;
her idols are put to shame;
her false gods, devastated.
3 For a nation from the north will come against her; [d]
it will make her land desolate.
No one will be living in it — both man and beast will escape. [A] 4 In those days and at that time — the Israelites and Judeans will come together, this is the LORD's declaration — weeping as they come,
and will seek the LORD their God. [e] 5 They will ask about •Zion , turning their faces to this road.
They will come and join themselves [f] to the LORD in an everlasting covenant [g] that will never be forgotten.

6 My people are lost sheep; [h]
their shepherds have led them astray, guiding them the wrong way in the mountains. [i]
They have wandered from mountain to hill;
they have forgotten their resting place.
7 All who found them devoured them.
Their adversaries said, "We're not •guilty ;
instead, they have sinned against the LORD,
their righteous grazing land, [j]
the hope of their ancestors, [k] the LORD."

8 Escape from Babylon; [l]
depart from the Chaldeans' land.
Be like the rams that lead the flock.
9 For I will soon stir up and bring against Babylon an assembly of great nations from the north country.

They will line up in battle formation against her;
from there she will be captured.
Their arrows will be like those of a skilled [m] warrior who does not return empty-handed.
10 The Chaldeans will become plunder;
all Babylon's plunderers will be fully satisfied.
11 Because you rejoice, This is the LORD's declaration.
because you sing in triumph —
you who plundered My inheritance — because you frolic like a young cow treading grain and neigh like stallions, [n] 12 your mother will be utterly humiliated;
she who bore you will be put to shame.
Look! She will lag behind all [B] the nations —
a dry land, a wilderness, [o] an •Arabah .
13 Because of the LORD's wrath,
she will not be inhabited;
she will become a desolation, every bit of her.
Everyone who passes through Babylon will be horrified
and scoff because of all her wounds. [p] 14 Line up in battle formation around Babylon, all you archers!
Shoot at her! Do not spare an arrow,
for she has sinned against the LORD.
15 Raise a war cry against her on every side!
She has thrown up her hands in surrender;
her defense towers have fallen;
her walls are demolished. [q]
Since this is the LORD's vengeance, [r] take out your vengeance on her;
as she has done, do the same to her.
16 Cut off the sower from Babylon
as well as him who wields the sickle at harvest time.
Because of the oppressor's sword, [s]
each will turn to his own people, [t] each will flee to his own land.

The Return of God's People

17 Israel is a stray lamb, chased by lions. [u]
The first who devoured him was the king of Assyria; the last one who crushed his bones was Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon. [v]

18 Therefore, this is what the LORD of •Hosts , the God of Israel, says: "I am about to punish the king of Babylon [w] and his land just as I punished the king of Assyria.

19 I will return Israel to his grazing land, and he will feed on Carmel and Bashan;
he will be satisfied
in the hill country of Ephraim and of Gilead. [x] 20 In those days and at that time —
one will search for Israel's guilt, this is the LORD's declaration — but there will be none,
and for Judah's sins,
but they will not be found,
for I will forgive [y] those I leave as a remnant. [z]

The Invasion of Babylon

21 “Go against the land of Merathaim, and against those living in Pekod.
Put them to the sword;
•completely destroy them —
do everything I have commanded you. [a] this is the LORD’s declaration — 22 The sound of war is in the land [b] — a great destruction.
23 How the hammer of the whole earth is cut down and smashed!
What a horror Babylon has become
among the nations! [c]
24 Babylon, I laid a trap for you, and you were caught, [d] but you did not even know it.
You were found and captured because you fought against the LORD.
25 The LORD opened His armory and brought out His weapons of wrath, [e] because it is a task of the Lord GOD of Hosts in the land of the Chaldeans.
26 Come against her from the most distant places. [C]
Open her granaries;
pile her up like mounds of grain and completely destroy her.
Leave her no survivors.
27 Put all her young bulls to the sword;
let them go down to the slaughter.
Woe to them, because their day has come,
the time of their punishment. [f]

The Humiliation of Babylon

28 “There is a voice of fugitives and those who escape from the land of Babylon announcing in Zion the vengeance of the LORD our God, the vengeance for His temple. [g] 29 Summon the archers to Babylon, all who string the bow;
camp all around her; let none escape.
Repay her according to her deeds; [h]
just as she has done, do the same to her,
for she has acted arrogantly against the LORD, against the Holy One of Israel. [i] 30 Therefore, her young men will fall in her public squares;
all the warriors will perish in that day.
31 Look, I am against you, you arrogant one —This is the LORD’s declaration. [j]
the Lord GOD of Hosts —this is the declaration of because your day has come,
the time when I will punish you.
32 The arrogant will stumble and fall with no one to pick him up.
I will set fire to his cities,
and it will consume everything around him.” [k]

The Desolation of Babylon

33 This is what the LORD of Hosts says:
Israelites and Judeans alike have been oppressed.
All their captors hold them fast; [l]
they refuse to release them.
34 Their Redeemer is strong; •Yahweh of Hosts is His name.
He will fervently plead their case [m]
so that He might bring rest to the earth
but turmoil to those who live in Babylon. [n] 35 A sword is over the Chaldeans — against those who live in Babylon, this is the LORD's declaration — against her officials, and against her sages.
36 A sword is against the diviners,
and they will act foolishly.
A sword is against her heroic warriors,
and they will be terrified.
37 A sword is against his horses and chariots and against all the foreigners among them, [o]
and they will be like women. [p]
A sword is against her treasuries, and they will be plundered.
38 A drought will come on her waters,
and they will be dried up.
For it is a land of carved images,
and they go mad because of terrifying things. [D, q]

39 Therefore, desert creatures [E] will live with hyenas, and ostriches will also live in her.
It will never again be inhabited or lived in through all generations. [r] 40 Just as God demolished Sodom and Gomorrah and their neighboring towns [s] — so no one will live there; this is the LORD's declaration — no human being will even stay in it as a temporary resident. [t]

The Conquest of Babylon

41 Look! A people comes from the north.
A great nation and many kings will be stirred up from the remote regions of the earth. [u] 42 They grasp bow and javelin.
They are cruel and show no mercy.
Their voice roars like the sea, [v]
and they ride on horses, lined up like men in battle formation against you, Daughter Babylon.
43 The king of Babylon has heard reports about them, and his hands fall helpless.
Distress has seized him —
pain, like a woman in labor. [w]

44 "Look, it will be like a lion coming from the thickets [F, x] of the Jordan to the watered grazing land. Indeed, I will chase Babylon [G] away from her land in a flash. I will appoint whoever is chosen for her. For who is like Me? Who will summon Me? Who is the shepherd who can stand against Me? "

45 Therefore, hear the plans that the LORD has drawn up against Babylon and the strategies He has devised against the land of the Chaldeans: Certainly the flock's little lambs will be dragged away; certainly the grazing land will be made desolate because of them. 46 At the sound of Babylon's conquest the earth will quake; a cry will be heard among the nations. [y]

God’s Judgment on Babylon

51 This is what the LORD says:
I am about to stir up a destructive wind [A] against Babylon [a]
and against the population of Leb-qamai. [B, b] 2 I will send strangers to Babylon who will scatter her and strip her land bare, [c] for they will come against her from every side in the day of disaster.
3 Don't let the archer string his bow;
don't let him put on [C] his armor. [d]
Don't spare her young men;
•completely destroy her entire army!
4 Those who were slain will fall in the land of the Chaldeans, those who were pierced through, in her streets. [e] 5 For Israel and Judah are not left widowed by their God, the LORD of •Hosts , though their land is full of •guilt against the Holy One of Israel. [f]

6 Leave Babylon; [g]
save your lives, each of you! [h]
Don't perish because of her guilt.
For this is the time of the LORD's vengeance —
He will pay her what she deserves. [i] 7 Babylon was a gold cup in the LORD's hand, [j] making the whole earth drunk.
The nations drank her wine; [k]
therefore, the nations go mad. [l]
8 Suddenly Babylon fell and was shattered.
Wail for her;
get balm [m] for her wound —
perhaps she can be healed.

9 We tried to heal Babylon, but she could not be healed.
Abandon her!
Let each of us go to his own land, [n]
for her judgment extends to the sky and reaches as far as the clouds. [o]

10 The LORD has brought about our vindication; [p] come, let's tell in •Zion
what the LORD our God has accomplished. [q]

11 Sharpen the arrows!
Fill the quivers!
The LORD has put it into the mind of the kings of the Medes because His plan is aimed at Babylon to destroy her,
for it is the LORD's vengeance, vengeance for His temple. [r] 12 Raise up a signal flag [s] against the walls of Babylon;
fortify the watch post;
set the watchmen in place;
prepare the ambush.
For the LORD has both planned and accomplished
what He has threatened against those who live in Babylon.
13 You who reside by many waters, [t]
rich in treasures,
your end has come,
your life thread is cut.

14 The LORD of Hosts has sworn by Himself:
I will fill you up with men as with locusts,
and they will sing the victory song over you.

15 He made the earth by His power, established the world [u] by His wisdom, [v] and spread out the heavens by His understanding. [w] 16 When He thunders, [D]
the waters in the heavens are in turmoil, [x]
and He causes the clouds to rise from the ends of the earth.
He makes lightning for the rain and brings the wind from His storehouses. [y]

17 Everyone is stupid and ignorant.

Every goldsmith is put to shame by his carved image, [z] for his cast images are a lie; [a] there is no breath in them. [b]
18 They are worthless, [c] a work to be mocked.
At the time of their punishment they will be destroyed. [d] 19 Jacob's Portion [e] is not like these because He is the One who formed all things. [f]
Israel is the tribe of His inheritance; [g] •Yahweh of Hosts is His name. [h]

20 You are My battle club,
My weapons of war.
With you I will smash nations;
with you I will bring kingdoms to ruin.
21 With you I will smash the horse and its rider;
with you I will smash the chariot and its rider.
22 With you I will smash man and woman; [i] with you I will smash the old man and the youth;
with you I will smash the young man and the young woman.
23 With you I will smash the shepherd and his flock;
with you I will smash the farmer and his ox-team. [E]
With you I will smash governors and officials.

24 "I will repay Babylon and all the residents of Chaldea for all their evil they have done in Zion before your very eyes." [j]
This is the LORD's declaration.

25 Look, I am against you, devastating mountain — you devastate the whole earth. this is the LORD's declaration —
I will stretch out My hand against you, [k] roll you down from the cliffs, and turn you into a charred mountain.
26 No one will be able to retrieve a cornerstone or a foundation stone from you, because you will become desolate forever.
This is the LORD's declaration.

27 Raise a signal flag [l] in the land;
blow a ram's horn among the nations;
set apart the nations against her. [m]

Summon kingdoms against her — Ararat, Minni, and Ashkenaz.
Appoint a marshal against her;
bring up horses like a swarm [F] of locusts.
28 Set apart the nations for battle against her —
the kings of Media,
her governors and all her officials,
and all the lands they rule.
29 The earth quakes [n] and trembles because the LORD's intentions against Babylon stand:
to make the land of Babylon an uninhabited desolation.
30 Babylon's warriors have stopped fighting; [o]
they sit in their strongholds.
Their might is exhausted;
they have become like women.
Babylon's homes have been set ablaze,
her gate bars are shattered. [p] 31 Messenger races to meet messenger, [q]
and herald to meet herald, to announce to the king of Babylon that his city has been captured from end to end.
32 The fords have been seized, [r]
the marshes set on fire, and the soldiers are terrified.

33 For this is what the LORD of Hosts, the God of Israel, says:
Daughter Babylon is like a threshing floor
at the time it is trampled. [s]
In just a little while her harvest time will come. [t]

34 "Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon has devoured me;
he has crushed me.
He has set me aside like an empty dish;
he has swallowed me like a sea monster; [u]
he filled his belly with my delicacies;
he has vomited me out," [G] 35 says the inhabitant of Zion;
"Let the violence done to me and my family be done to Babylon.

Let my blood be on the inhabitants of Chaldea,” says Jerusalem.

36 Therefore, this is what the LORD says:
I am about to plead your case [v]
and take vengeance on your behalf;
I will dry up her sea [w]
and make her fountain run dry.
37 Babylon will become a heap of rubble,
a jackals’ den,
a desolation and an object of scorn, [x]
without inhabitant.
38 They will roar together like young lions;
they will growl like lion cubs.
39 While they are flushed with heat, I will serve them a feast, and I will make them drunk so that they revel. [y, z]
Then they will fall asleep forever
and never wake up.
40 I will bring them down like lambs to the slaughter, like rams together with male goats. [a]
This is the LORD’s declaration.

41 How Sheshach has been captured, the praise [b] of the whole earth seized.
What a horror Babylon has become
among the nations! [c]
42 The sea has risen over Babylon; [d]
she is covered with its turbulent waves.
43 Her cities have become a desolation, [e]
a dry and arid land,
a land where no one lives,
where no human being passes through.
44 I will punish Bel [f] in Babylon.
I will make him vomit what he swallowed.
The nations will no longer stream to him;
even Babylon’s wall will fall.

45 Come out from among her, My people! [g]
Save your lives, each of you,

from the LORD’s burning anger.
46 May you not become cowardly and fearful
when the report is proclaimed in the land, for the report will come one year,
and then another the next year.
There will be violence in the land with ruler against ruler.
47 Therefore, look, the days are coming when I will punish Babylon’s carved images. [h] Her entire land will suffer shame, and all her slain will lie fallen within her. [i] 48 Heaven and earth and everything in them will shout for joy [j] over Babylon because the destroyers from the north will come against her.
This is the LORD’s declaration.
49 Babylon must fall because of the slain
of Israel,
even as the slain of all the earth fell because of Babylon.
50 You who have escaped the sword, [k]
go and do not stand still!
Remember the LORD from far away,
and let Jerusalem come to your mind.

51 We are ashamed
because we have heard insults. [l] Humiliation covers our faces because foreigners have entered the holy places of the LORD’s temple. [m]

52 Therefore, look, the days are coming —
this is the LORD’s declaration —
when I will punish her carved images, and the wounded will groan throughout her land.
53 Even if Babylon should ascend to the heavens [n]
and fortify her tall fortresses, destroyers will come against her from Me.
This is the LORD’s declaration.
54 The sound of a cry from Babylon! [o]

The sound of great destruction from the land of the Chaldeans!
55 For the LORD is going to devastate Babylon;
He will silence her mighty voice.
Their waves roar like abundant waters;
the tumult of their voice resounds, 56 for a destroyer is coming against her, against Babylon.
Her warriors will be captured,
their bows shattered,
for the LORD is a God of retribution;
He will certainly repay.
57 I will make her princes and sages drunk,
along with her governors, officials, and warriors.
Then they will fall asleep forever
and never wake up. [p]

58 This is what Yahweh of Hosts is His name. [q]This is the King's declaration; Yahweh of Hosts says:

Babylon's thick walls will be totally demolished,
and her high gates consumed by fire.
The peoples will have labored for nothing; [r]
the nations will exhaust themselves only to feed the fire.

59 This is what Jeremiah the prophet commanded Seraiah son of Neriah son of Mahseiah, [s] the quartermaster, when he went to Babylon with King Zedekiah of Judah in the fourth year of Zedekiah's reign. 60 Jeremiah wrote on one scroll about all the disaster that would come to Babylon; [t] all these words were written against Babylon.

61 Jeremiah told Seraiah, "When you get to Babylon, see that you read all these words aloud. 62 You must say, 'LORD, You have threatened to cut off [u] this place so that no one will live in it — man or beast. Indeed, it will remain desolate forever.' 63 When you have finished reading this scroll, tie a stone to it and throw it into the middle of the Euphrates River. [v] 64 Then say, 'In the same way, Babylon will sink and never rise again because of the disaster I am bringing on her. They will grow weary.' "

The words of Jeremiah end here.

The Fall of Jerusalem

52 Zedekiah was 21 years old when he became king and reigned 11 years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Hamutal daughter of Jeremiah; she was from Libnah. 2 Zedekiah did what was evil in the LORD's sight just as Jehoiakim had done. [a] 3 Because of the LORD's anger, it came to the point in Jerusalem and Judah that He finally banished them from His presence. Nevertheless, Zedekiah rebelled against the king of Babylon. [b]

4 In the ninth year of Zedekiah's reign, on the tenth day of the tenth month, King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon advanced against Jerusalem with his entire army. They laid siege to the city and built a siege wall all around it. 5 The city was under siege until King Zedekiah's eleventh year.

6 By the ninth day of the fourth month the famine was so severe in the city that the people of the land had no food. 7 Then the city was broken into, and all the warriors fled. They left the city by night by way of the gate between the two walls near the king's garden, though the Chaldeans surrounded the city. They made their way along the route to the •Arabah . [c] 8 The Chaldean army pursued the king and overtook Zedekiah in the plains of Jericho. Zedekiah's entire army was scattered from him. 9 The Chaldeans seized the king and brought him to the king of Babylon at Riblah in the land of Hamath, and he passed sentence on him.

10 At Riblah the king of Babylon slaughtered Zedekiah's sons before his eyes and also slaughtered the Judean commanders. 11 Then he blinded Zedekiah and bound him with bronze chains. The king of Babylon brought Zedekiah to Babylon, where he kept him in custody [A] until his dying day. [d]

12 On the tenth day of the fifth month — which was the nineteenth year of King Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon — Nebuzaradan, the commander of the guards, entered Jerusalem as the representative of [B] the king of Babylon. 13 He burned the LORD's temple, the king's palace, all the houses of Jerusalem, and all the houses of the nobles. 14 The whole Chaldean army with the commander of the guards tore down all the walls surrounding Jerusalem. [e] 15 Nebuzaradan, the commander of the guards, deported some of the poorest of the people, as well as the rest of the people who were left in the city, the deserters who had defected to the king of Babylon, and the rest of the craftsmen. 16 But some of the poorest people of the land Nebuzaradan, the commander of the guards, left to be vinedressers and farmers. [f]

17 Now the Chaldeans broke into pieces the bronze pillars for the LORD's temple and the water carts and the bronze reservoir that were in the LORD's temple, [g] and carried all the bronze to Babylon. 18 They took the pots, shovels, wick trimmers, sprinkling basins, dishes, and all the bronze articles used in the temple service. 19 The commander of the guards took away the bowls, firepans, sprinkling basins, pots, lampstands, pans, and •drink offering bowls [h] — whatever was gold or silver.

20 As for the two pillars, the one reservoir, and the 12 bronze bulls under the water carts that King Solomon had made for the LORD's temple, the weight of the bronze of all these articles was beyond measure. 21 One pillar was 27 feet [C] tall, had a circumference of 18 feet, [D] was hollow — four fingers thick — 22 and had a bronze capital on top of it. [i] One capital, encircled by bronze latticework and pomegranates, stood 7 1/2 feet [E] high. The second pillar was the same, with pomegranates. 23 Each capital had 96 pomegranates all around it. All the pomegranates around the latticework numbered 100.
24 The commander of the guards also took away Seraiah the chief priest, Zephaniah the priest of the second rank, and the three doorkeepers. 25 From the city he took a court official who had been appointed over the warriors; seven trusted royal aides [F] found in the city; the secretary of the commander of the army, who enlisted the people of the land for military duty; and 60 men from the common people who were found within the city. 26 Nebuzaradan, the commander of the guards, took them and brought them to the king of Babylon at Riblah. 27 The king of Babylon put them to death at Riblah in the land of Hamath. So Judah went into exile from its land. [j]
28 These are the people Nebuchadnezzar deported: [k] in the seventh year, 3,023 Jews; 29 in his eighteenth year, [l] 832 people from Jerusalem; 30 in Nebuchadnezzar's twenty-third year, Nebuzaradan, the commander of the guards, deported 745 Jews. All together 4,600 people were deported.

Jehoiachin Pardoned

31 On the twenty-fifth day of the twelfth month of the thirty-seventh year of the exile of Judah's King Jehoiachin, Evil-merodach king of Babylon, in the first year of his reign, pardoned King Jehoiachin of Judah and released him from prison. 32 He spoke kindly to him and set his throne above the thrones of the kings who were with him in Babylon. 33 So Jehoiachin changed his prison clothes, and he dined regularly in the presence of the king of Babylon for the rest of his life. 34 As for his allowance, a regular allowance was given to him by the king of Babylon, a portion for each day until the day of his death, for the rest of his life. [m]

JEREMIAH

Word Studies

Introduction

Anathoth, the home of Jeremiah (1:1), was three miles northeast of Jerusalem. Though Jeremiah was opposed and threatened by his fellow citizens (11:21-23), he purchased a field there from his cousin Hanamel in obedience to the word of the Lord to symbolize ultimate hope after exile (32:6-15). Anathoth was overrun by the Babylonians but resettled following the exile (Neh 7:27; 11:32).

The book and prophet Jeremiah hold at least two great distinctions among all the Old Testament prophets: (1) this is the longest Prophetic Book in the Bible (1,364 verses), and (2) Jeremiah's life is more fully described than any of the other 15 writing prophets. Into the tumultuous times of the last half of the seventh century and the first quarter of the sixth century B.C., came this prophet bearing a word from God for the stubborn people of Judah. The book's contents span roughly from 640 to 580 B.C.

Circumstances of Writing Author: Jeremiah was a priest from the town of Anathoth (1:1). At the Lord's command, he neither married nor had children because of the impending judgment that would come upon the next generation. His ministry as a prophet began in 626 B.C. and ended after 586 B.C. He was a contemporary of Habakkuk and possibly Obadiah.

Background: The book of Jeremiah discusses the last days of Judah. King Hezekiah reigned for 42 years (729-686 B.C.) and began to reverse Judah's spiritual bankruptcy. But when Hezekiah's son, Manasseh, came to the throne, idolatrous and superstitious cultic practices and rites came back like a flood. Manasseh's son Amon ruled for only two years (642-640 B.C.). He also reinstated idol worship as the official religion of Judah (2Ch 33:22-23).

Amon's eight-year-old son, Josiah, succeeded him on the throne. This lad walked in the ways of the former King David. When he was 18 years old (622 B.C.), he called for long-delayed repairs to be made to the temple. During this work, a copy of the law of Moses was found. On the basis of hearing this word, the young king and all his people renewed the covenant with the Lord. However, this reformation failed to overcome the effects of the wickedness Manasseh and Amon had instituted.

Message and Purpose Jeremiah is the prophet of the "word of the Lord" (1:2). Of the 349 times the OT uses the phrase "thus says the Lord," Jeremiah accounts for 157 of them. But this prophetic word that Jeremiah spoke was more than an objective revelation from God to the nation; God's words were to be joy and food for Jeremiah's own soul. As 15:16 states, "Your words were found, and I ate them. Your words were a delight to me and the joy of my heart." However, God's word was sometimes a burden to the prophet. He sometimes grew tired of bringing God's message of judgment to an unresponsive people.

The people felt immune to any threat of divine judgment, but Jeremiah repeatedly warned them about the vanity of their reliance on ritual and external formalism. The prophetic word of God was to make the people blush and turn away from meaningless outward piety.

Contribution to the Bible The best known passage in Jeremiah is the new covenant text in 31:31-34. Not only is it the largest OT text quoted in the NT (Heb 8:8-12; 10:16-17), but arguably better than any other passage it links God's ancient promises to Eve (Gn 3:15), Abraham (Gn 12:1-3), and David (2Sm 7:16-19) with NT assurances that God in Christ grants believers new hearts, salvation, and fellowship with Him.

Structure One date rings throughout the entire book of Jeremiah: "the fourth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah king of Judah." That year, 605 B.C., brought major change to the political situation of the Near East. Both Egypt and Assyria were defeated at the battle of Carchemish (46:2-12; 2Kg 24:7; 2Ch 35:20). Nebuchadnezzar ascended the throne of Babylon. In that same year God instructed Jeremiah to put his prophecies into writing as a final test of King Jehoiakim's responsiveness to the word of God.

36:1; and 45:1, thereby dividing the prophet's book into three main sections: the prophet's faithfulness in carrying out God's commission (chaps. 2-24); the fierce opposition to his ministry (chaps. 25-35); and the collapse of Judah (chaps. 36-45).

The book of Jeremiah includes poetic sections (especially in chaps. 2-25) and prose accounts as well. Critical scholars generally say that the poetry is Jeremiah's and the prose is either the work of his friends or a person who is labeled a Deuteronomic writer (so designated because the prose sections are said to reflect the book of Deuteronomy). But we may ask, Could not Jeremiah have written in both poetic and prose form? There is no reason to suppose he was incapable of writing in both forms.

Study Notes 1:1-3 Jeremiah was the instrument through whom God spoke, but it was the divine word that came to him. This was a favorite expression of Jeremiah, indicating that God's word took possession of him and exerted deep influence in his life. Verse 4 repeats this favorite expression, assuring us that Jeremiah's words and God's word stand together, not in some ethereal or romantic way, but concretely as God gave Jeremiah specific words. God's word came to Jeremiah over many years, ending with the Babylonian exile. The revelations began during the reign of the Judean King Josiah (640-609 B.C.), and continued during the reigns of Jehoahaz (reigned for three months in 609 B.C.); Jehoiakim (609-597 B.C.); Jehoiachin (reigned for three months in 597 B.C.); and Zedekiah (597-586 B.C.). Jeremiah did not mention the brief reigns of Jehoahaz or Jehoiachin in his list (v. 3).

1:4 The word of the LORD came to me. The Hebrew expression for the "word" (dabar) means not only the spoken word, as it is frequently and correctly rendered, but also "thing," "action," or "event." Thus "word" and "event" in the OT often are treated as a single perception. A person's thoughts, plans, actions, and spoken or written words are seen as one complete act. Accordingly, Jeremiah both preached and acted out some of his messages in symbolic performances in order to bring the word of God home more forcibly to his audience.

1:5 The prophet was told that God chose him before He formed him in the womb. The verb for "to choose" is the Hebrew verb "to know." Similar concepts are used in the call of the Servant of the Lord (Is 49:5) and the apostle Paul (Gl 1:15). God had more than an intellectual knowledge of Jeremiah; He had a personal relationship with him. He was set . . . apart or separated (as in the root "to be holy," or "set apart" to the Lord) and appointed to be a prophet to the nations. If God is the Lord of the entire world, it is natural that His message would extend to all nations.

1:6 Jeremiah objected, saying I am only a youth. "Youth" (Hb na'ar) can refer to an infant (Ex 2:6), a child (1Sm 1:22), a boy (1Sm 3:1), or even a young man (Gn 22:3; 34:19).

1:7-8 The word deliver also means to "rescue." This was the same strong assurance God had given to His people in the exodus from Egypt (Ex 3:8; 12:27) and when He rescued David from a lion (1Sm 17:37).

1:9 The Lord touched the prophet's mouth and told him, I have now filled your mouth with My words. Almost identical words were spoken to Moses in Dt 18:18: "I will put My words in his mouth." Here is an anthropomorphism (description of God in human terms) that promises that God will personally be the source of His message. Later Jeremiah will speak of having eaten God's word (Jr 15:16). These words became like fire in his mouth (5:14). This same close relationship between God's word and the prophet who delivers them is graphically illustrated in the case of Moses (Ex 4:15-16; 7:1-2). The word of God in Jeremiah's mouth was "like a hammer that pulverizes rock" (Jr 23:29).

1:10 Six metaphors—uproot . . . tear down . . . destroy . . . demolish . . . build, and plant—will constitute Jeremiah's message to the nations; four negative and two positive. Some or all of these same words occur throughout Jeremiah's message (12:14-17; 16:19-21; 18:7-9; 24:6; 25:9-32; 31:28,40; 42:10; 45:4). God's word, Jeremiah understood from Dt 32:39, had the power to bring life or death, wounding or healing, and no one would be able to rescue these nations or individuals from God's hand.

1:11-12 In the first of two visions, God showed the prophet a branch of an almond tree, one of the first trees to blossom in the spring. In 1:12 the Lord interpreted this imagery by saying, I watch over My word. The "almond" is shaqed in Hebrew, and the verb "to watch" is shoqed , and so these verses involve a pun in the original language. Just as the almond tree blossoms early in Israel's springtime and signifies the coming of a fruitful season, God told Jeremiah that He would soon cause him to "blossom" with fruitful words from God.

1:13-15 Next the prophet saw a boiling pot or cauldron, tilted toward the south, spilling its contents of disaster from the north. This was the direction from which foreign armies would come against Israel and Judah. This enemy is identified in 25:9 as Babylon, but the threat collectively came from all the clans and kingdoms of the north. Each northern king would set up his throne, symbolizing his conquest and rule over defeated Judah.

1:16 The reason for such a severe judgment was Judah's burning incense to other gods. This was a clear violation of God's covenant with Israel and the first and second of the Ten Commandments. They were worshiping the works of their own hands. The Hebrew verb shows these were repeated acts and that they were still going on.

1:17-19 Jeremiah was given three commands: (1) stand up, (2) tell them everything that I command you, and (3) do not be intimidated by them. The command to stand up is literally "gird your loins," or "brace yourself." It is used of getting ready for work, battle, debate, or for the tiring job of preaching to an unreceptive audience. The prophet was not to speak out of his own thoughts, but everything that God commanded him. The word for "to be intimidated" (also meaning "to be terrified," "to be confounded," or "to panic") plays on the word to cower (same Hb verb; "to ruin [you]" or "to make [you] a failure") before them. God would make Jeremiah a fortified city, an iron pillar, and bronze walls against the whole land. The prophet would be made strong, resistant, and as impregnable as these objects. There would be strong opposition to his message, but kings . . . officials, and priests would not prevail over God's prophet.

2:2-20 In this section God recalled the "honeymoon" He had enjoyed with Israel from the time of the exodus to the events at Mount Sinai (Ex 3-24). During that time the people believed the Lord and worshiped Him (Ex 4:29-31; 12:22-28; 14:31; see also Hs 2:15; 9:10). However, Israel soon murmured, grumbled, and complained (Ex 14:11; 15:24; 16:2; 17:2). These early "gripe sessions" illustrated a lack of faith, but full-fledged rebellion and apostasy were often the marks of Israel in the years following the establishment of the covenant at Mount Sinai (known as the Sinaitic covenant).

2:2 The loyalty of your youth uses the beautiful Hebrew word chesed for "loyalty" (see Ps 136). It occurs 248 times in the OT and speaks of the "loving-kindness" or "unfailing devotion" Israel (depicted as a bride) initially showed to her bridegroom, the Lord.

2:3 That Israel will be the firstfruits of His harvest, rather than the only fruits, anticipates other peoples and nations coming to the Lord. Israel was holy to the LORD in the same way that certain offerings were called "holy" or "hallowed." They were set aside from common or ordinary use to be reserved for the Lord (Nm 18:8-19,26-29). Israel was also called God's "firstborn" (Ex 4:22; Jr 31:9), meaning first in preeminence and rank.

2:5 The rhetorical what fault did your fathers find in Me uses the language of divorce proceedings (Dt 24:1), as if God had proven to be an unworthy marital partner. But God was not to blame for Israel's apostasy. God had remained faithful, but Israel departed from the covenant to follow worthless idols. The word for "worthless" is the same term used in Ecclesiastes for "vanity." These idols were mere fictions, the products of human imagination.

2:6 Forgetting the story of redemption, Israel soon forgot about God Himself (they stopped asking, "Where is the LORD . . . ?").

2:7 The words fertile land are literally "land of Carmel." Mount Carmel was renowned for its luxurious vegetation and crops (Am 1:2; Mc 7:14).

2:8 Four types of leaders are charged for failing to carry out their responsibilities and for allowing apostasy and unfaithfulness to take over in Israel: priests . . . experts in the law . . . rulers (lit "the shepherds," used metaphorically of political leaders in the OT), and false prophets who prophesied by Baal.

2:9 Therefore introduces a prophetic announcement about coming judgment. God will take His nation to court, and He will act as both plaintiff and judge.

2:10-12 Here is God's courtroom accusation: Israel had behaved ludicrously. They exchanged their Glory for useless idols. Though they alone among the nations knew the one true and living God, they left Him to worship mute objects of stone and wood. Look from Cyprus to Kedar in the desert east of Transjordan, God says, and nowhere will you find another nation making such a foolish exchange, for no other nation had the privilege of knowing the living God. What a privilege Israel had forsaken!

2:13 As the fountain of living water, or a flowing spring, God is the source of everlasting life (17:13; Is 55:1; Zch 13:1; Jn 4:10-14; 7:37-39). In defiance of God as the source of life, Judah had dug her own wells (metaphorically speaking) in the earth and plastered their sides to hold in stale rainwater, only to have the plaster crack, the cisterns fail, and the water escape. Such is the futility of false religion.

A cistern (2:13) with a stone mortar in the foreground. The innumerable cisterns, wells, and pools that exist in Palestine are evidence of the efforts of ancient people to supplement the natural water supply. Here and in 14:3, broken cisterns symbolize pagan gods that could not give or sustain life.

2:14-19 God asks six rhetorical questions. In contrast to the safety they enjoyed in their honeymoon days with the Lord, now the nations attack Israel at will. She was not born a slave, so how did she become everyone else's prey? God says the discipline was a result of their own evil (v. 19).

2:15 The young lions figuratively designate Israel's enemies, especially the Assyrians (see note at Ps 7:1-2).

2:16 Memphis was the capital of Lower Egypt, approximately 13 miles south of Cairo. Tahpanhes was a fortress close to the northeastern boundary of Egypt. The Egyptians would become allies with the Assyrians in the destruction of Judah.

2:18 The Hebrew word translated Nile is shichor, meaning "blackness." Referring to the Nile River in this way denigrates its status as a god among the Egyptians. Hence, it was futile for Judah to trust Assyria or Egypt to rescue them from the coming threat.

2:19 Again and again Jeremiah pleaded with Judah "to turn back" (Hb shuv) to the Lord. Instead, Judah's ongoing apostasies (Hb meshuvah , from the same root as shuv) earned her reprimand from God. Apostasies are characterized as backsliding or rebellion (3:6-8,11-12,14-22; 5:6; 8:5; 14:7; 31:22).

2:20-28 Five images in this section describe Judah's breaking the covenant with God: (1) a beast that has broken loose from its yoke, (2) choice grapes that have gone wild, (3) a stain that will not wash off, (4) a young female camel that cannot walk straight, and (5) a wild donkey in heat, sniffing the wind for a male companion.

2:21 The Sorek vine (a choice vine) grew in the Wadi al-Sarar and yielded a much-prized red wine. Israel was once this vine, but turned degenerate and yielded inferior grapes.

2:22 Lye is probably a reference to niter, a mineral alkali deposited on the shores of some lakes in Egypt. Soap was a vegetable alkali, made by pouring water through wood ashes (Laetsch, p. 41).

2:23 A swift young camel could cause a lot of damage if turned loose in a crowded place, for it would be reckless in its direction and unsteady in its gait.

2:24 This female wild donkey was frantic for a male in the time of her heat. She could not be diverted from her sexual goal. This image depicts Judah mindlessly lusting after foreign gods.

2:26-28 God satirically mocked His people's adoption of Canaanite worship by reversing the genders of the pagan gods. He depicts Judah saying to a tree (representing the goddess Asherah in the form of a standing pole), You are my father, and to a stone (probably the stone pillars representing the male Canaanite deity), You gave birth to me.

2:31 God guided Israel through the wilderness after the exodus from Egypt, but now the people declared, We will go where we want, which signifies the rejection of divine guidance.

2:32 No bride would forget her treasured wedding sash (bride's gown) or bridal jewelry, but faithless Judah had forgotten her marriage vows to the Lord (v. 2).

2:33 Even prostitutes could learn a thing or two from Judah, so skilled was the nation at pursuing other lovers.

2:36 Judah will be put to shame by Egypt, just as they had been by Assyria. Pharaoh Psammetich II (663-610 B.C.) had gained Egypt's independence from Assyria while King Ashurbanipal of Assyria was fending off revolutionaries. Judah thought the time was right to form an alliance with Egypt against Assyria, but this was doomed to failure. Instead of seeking human alliances to gain security, they should have sought a right relationship with God.

3:1 The phrase Wouldn't such a land become totally defiled? alludes to the divorce law in Dt 24:1-4, where a man is not allowed to remarry his ex-wife if she has married and divorced another man. In a similar way, God asks Judah, can you return to Me after defiling the land by your infidelities with false gods?

3:2 Like a nomad compares lustful Judah to a Bedouin waiting in ambush to rob a caravan. Such acts defiled the land.

3:3 Sin in the moral order can have a devastating effect on the ecological order, just as the ground was cursed because of Adam and Eve's sin (Lv 26:18-19; Dt 11:13-17; Am 4:7-8). Ironically, the false god Baal whom Judah worshiped was thought to be the god of rain, dew, thunder, and fertility. The true God withheld these things, demonstrating the futility of false religion. God's bride showed no shame for her sins. Jeremiah used shame language more than any other prophet (vv. 24-25; 2:26,36; 6:15; 8:12; 9:19; 10:14).

3:6-7 Jeremiah 2-20 is often assigned to the time of King Josiah, and therefore to Jeremiah's earliest writings. But if this is the case, it is strange that the prophet did not mention the discovery of the book of the law in 621 B.C. or the reforms that followed. Apostate northern Israel ascended every high hill to practice the fertility cult. On "backsliding and unfaithful Israel," see verses 6,8,11,12,22; 2:19; 5:6; 8:5; 14:7. Both sisters, Israel and Judah, became so calloused that they did not repent and return (Hb shuv) to the Lord.

3:9 The phrase indifferent to her prostitution is literally "through the lightness of adultery." Judah regarded her sins lightly, in spite of what had happened in 722 B.C. to the 10 tribes of northern Israel when the capital city, Samaria, fell to the Assyrians.

3:10 Judah pretended to return to the Lord, but with pretense rather than all her heart.

3:12 I am unfailing in My love refers to God's loyalty, mercy, and grace. On the Hebrew word chesed, or "unfailing love," see note at 2:2.

3:14 God offered His faithless children the chance to return to Zion despite their stubborn refusal to follow the Lord.

3:15 The shepherds mentioned here do not refer to political rulers but to the spiritual leaders or pastors (Jeremiah himself was counted as such in 17:16).

3:16 The future messianic era is signaled by the introductory phrase in those days (see also "in time to come," 30:24; "the days are coming," 31:27,31,38; and "after those days," 31:33). Israel and Judah would multiply and increase in the land in this messianic era. The ark of the covenant, the most central and precious symbol at the heart of Israel's worship, will not even be remembered because something more significant will take its place.

3:17 At that time Jerusalem will be called Yahweh's Throne, replacing the ark of the covenant as the symbol of His presence (Lv 16:2,13; Ps 80:1). The result will be that all the nations will be gathered to Jerusalem and they will cease to follow the stubbornness of their evil hearts.

3:18 The return to Zion is predicted again. But it does not seem to be return from exile. This will be a time when Israel and Judah are reunited as one in the land that God had promised to His people.

3:19 The land of promise is called a desirable land, or literally "a land of longing" (Ps 106:24; Zch 7:14). The divine pathos of I thought: You will call Me, my Father, and never turn away from Me is heartbreaking. Having been rejected as Israel's spouse and husband, God was now rejected by the people of Judah as their Father.

3:21-22 The entire nation will be moved to repentance. In response to such genuine confession of their sin, the Lord will heal their apostasy and rebellion.

3:23 The falsehood and commotion of orgiastic religious practices that were carried out on bare hilltops could earn no one salvation, for the salvation of Israel is only in the LORD.

3:24 Baal is designated by the derisive term often used for him: the shameful one (Hb bosheth, as found in names like Ish-bosheth, also known as Esh-baal; 2Sm 2:8; 1Ch 8:33).

4:1 The people's cry of repentance (3:21-25) is answered with the assurance of what will happen in the future when they genuinely return to the Lord. To this point they had not yet truly repented.

4:2 When Judah and Israel truly repent, then the nations will be blessed by the Lord. The promises made to Israel were never meant to bless them alone, but through them all nations (Gn 12:3; 18:18; 22:18; 26:4; 28:14).

4:3 Unplowed ground was soil long untended and abandoned to wild growth. Hosea issued the same challenge (Hs 10:12). Ground that had lain fallow too long needed to be broken up and cultivated again. Jeremiah and Hosea used this image to picture the need for spiritual renewal.

4:4 A hard build-up around the hearts of the people had to be cut away (Dt 10:16; Rm 2:28-29). Circumcision was a sign of the covenant (Gn 17:10-14), but religious ritual without the right heart relationship to God was worthless.

4:5-31 In this section Jeremiah was so sure that God's judgment was imminent that he described it as already present.

4:7 Jeremiah used many animals, including the lion, to portray the furious warfare that would come from the north. Add to this the eagle (v. 13), wolf, and leopard (5:6), plus the images of the hot winds of the sirocco (4:11), or fire (v. 4), and the threatened disaster grows more frightening.

4:10 This is one of the most controversial verses in Jeremiah. Was Jeremiah accusing God of deceiving the nation? James 1:13 says God doesn't do that. The solution is to recall that God rules over history (Ps 22:28). Scripture is often silent about secondary causes, and since God rules history even things He merely permits can be attributed to Him. In the present case, God allowed false prophets to mislead the nation by saying peace was on the way. Understanding God's rule over history, Jeremiah felt justified in asking this question though he knew that God is not a deceiver. God both allowed this deception and protested against it.

4:15-17 The advances of the enemy from the north can be heard from Dan, at the northern limit of Israel and at the headwaters of the Jordan River, on down to Mount Ephraim, the highlands stretching from Shechem to Bethel.

4:19-22 These verses contain the first of Jeremiah's "confessions" (see his other confessions at 11:18-23; 12:1-6; 15:10-11,15-21; 17:14-18; 18:18-23; 20:7-13,14-18; and possibly 5:3-5; 8:18-9:1). The confessions reflect the pain Jeremiah experienced about the calamity that awaited his people. The prophet was accused of being a traitor, but these verses reveal his patriotism and his sincere love for Judah. It gave him no joy or satisfaction to proclaim such devastating words; he was under divine obligation to do so.

4:23-28 This is one of the most haunting passages in all the prophets because of its vivid, realistic portrayal of God's coming wrath against sin. The judgment moves beyond the Babylonian conquest to the coming Day of the Lord at the end of history.

4:23 Jeremiah borrowed the phrase the earth . . . was formless and empty from Gn 1:2. The imagery portrays the reversal of God's acts of creation. Such will be the devastation of the coming Day of the Lord.

4:27 Though the earth will be laid waste, it will not come to an end. There is always the promise of a remnant of those who are faithful to the Lord.

4:30 Jeremiah depicted Jerusalem in her death agony still rejecting God as her husband. Instead of choosing repentance and mourning, she dressed in scarlet, adorned herself with gold jewelry, and enlarged her eyes with paint. This imagery plays off the fact that women of Bible times applied a silver-white metallic substance as a base for black kohl on the upper and lower eyelids. But Jerusalem prettied herself for nothing; her lovers would only take her life.

5:1 The phrase find one person is a hyperbole. Jeremiah and his scribe Baruch would certainly count as two righteous persons. This reminds us of the five cities of the plain, which would have been spared had just 10 righteous persons lived there (Gn 18:22-32). God still extends mercy to cities and nations on the grounds of the few righteous people they contain. To act justly is to act according to the norms of behavior that God has established. This is clear in Hab 2:4: "The righteous one shall live by his faith."

5:5 Jeremiah thought, I will go to the powerful. He was probably expressing irony because the prominent citizens of Judah were no more loyal to the covenant than were the poor people.

5:6 On lion, see note at 2:15.

5:7 The phrase I satisfied their needs is literally "I fed them to the full." They gashed themselves as in the Canaanite cultic practices (1Kg 18:28).

5:8 Jeremiah pictured the people of Judah as well-fed, eager stallions or "lusty stallions." Their sexual immorality at the brothels of pagan temples was like horses whinnying after a mate.

5:10 God will severely prune His vineyard, which has turned into a wild vine; but He will not completely destroy the nation (God's vine; cp. Is 5:1-7; Ezk 17:1-6). The branches will be pruned back, but the root and stock will remain much as Paul argued in Rm 11:17-24.

5:12 The phrase it won't happen is literally "not He," meaning the Lord will not punish Judah. This attitude mistakenly presumed that God's promises to bless Israel precluded the possibility of judgment for sins.

5:13 The false prophets of peace fostered in the people a belief that nothing bad would happen to them. Jeremiah's rejoinder was that these false prophets were "windbags" (lit "will become wind"). The Hebrew word ruah can mean "wind" or "spirit." Thus this verse forms a wordplay in which the false prophets are said to be filled with wind rather than spirit.

5:14-17 In a solemn introduction, Jeremiah declared his message in the name of the Lord God of Hosts. God is the commander of the armies of heaven and earth (1Sm 17:45). In contrast to the words of false prophets, the words in Jeremiah's mouth would consume the unrepentant nation. An enemy nation would fall on the house of Israel. The description of that nation as being established . . . ancient, with an unintelligible language, and boasting mighty warriors fits Babylon.

5:18 On I will not finish you off, see note at verse 10. A remnant of faithful people will be preserved even as God's judgment falls.

5:21 The word for hear this is the same Hebrew word (shema) that introduces the great Shema of Dt 6:4. It called Israel to covenantal accountability.

5:24 The fixed weeks of the harvest were the seven weeks from Passover to Pentecost in which the barley harvest was gathered first, followed by the wheat harvest.

5:26-28 Those who had grown powerful and rich through dishonest gain and neglect of the fatherless were like fowlers lying in wait. As fowlers set a net with several tame birds in the net to attract wild, unsuspecting birds, so too wicked men preyed upon innocent victims.

5:30 The word horrible is derived from a Hebrew stem meaning "filthiness" or “rottenness” (29:17; Hs 6:10). Here it describes the wickedness of the false prophets, priests, and people.

5:31 The phrase priests rule by their own authority is literally “rule by their hands,” meaning either at the direction of the false prophets, or on the priests’ own authority.

6:1 Hebrew has a play on words between Tekoa (teqo‘a) and sound (tiq‘u) the ram’s horn. Tekoa, about five miles south of Bethlehem, was the hometown of the prophet Amos. Beth-haccherem was either ‘Ain Karim, west of Jerusalem, or modern Ramat Rachel (ancient Khirbet Salih), located on the road from Jerusalem to Bethlehem. A smoke signal was sent to warn about the approach of an enemy (Jdg 20:38,40).

6:3 The enemy and his troops are called shepherds and their flocks.

6:6 Cut down the trees; raise a siege ramp refers to military actions which the Assyrians and Babylonians boasted about in their victory memorials. They carried dirt in baskets, pouring it against the city walls until the slope was halfway up the wall. Then they built towers from felled trees to hurl heavy stones and firebrands against the wall (2Sm 20:15; Ezk 29:18).

6:7 Evil was erupting so spontaneously in Judah by now that Jeremiah compared it to a gushing well. The invasion was justified because Judah was guilty of oppression (v. 6), evil . . . violence, and destruction, resulting in a society with sickness and wounds.

6:9 Jeremiah was to pass his hand once more like a grape gatherer to make sure every last grape had been gathered. This ensured that everyone heard the message and had a chance to repent.

6:10 An uncircumcised ear was closed, impervious to God’s Spirit and word.

6:14 Soothing words of peace, peace did no good when the stage was already set for calamity.

6:15 On weren’t at all ashamed, see note at 3:3.

6:16 The ancient paths were the ones followed by Noah and the patriarchs, who believed God’s promises and walked with God.

6:17 God appointed watchmen or sentinels (metaphors for true prophets), who would sound the ram’s horn to warn of impending trouble (Ezk 3; 33).

6:19 The fruit of their own plotting represents destruction growing from the nation’s sin and iniquity; they will harvest what they have sown (Pr 1:31). My word is paralleled by My instruction. The nation had ignored God’s teaching through His prophet and disregarded the law Moses had delivered centuries earlier.

6:20 Frankincense came from southern Arabia. It was an aromatic resin from trees used in perfume and incense. Sheba was a country in southwestern Arabia, the center of incense and spices trade. Incense and burnt offerings were no substitute for obeying God (7:21-24; Is 1:11-15; Am 5:21; Mc 6:6-8).

6:21 The stumbling blocks in this verse are undefined. God will allow events such as the Babylonian invasion because of the failure of His people to heed His calls to repent.

6:23 The word javelin probably refers to a sword.

6:25 The phrase terror is on every side (Hb magor missabib) is a favorite saying of Jeremiah. He used it to warn Pashhur the evil priest (20:3,10). But the people turned Jeremiah's saying around and used it against him, saying that all he saw were terrors coming from every direction.

6:26 The death of an only son (Hb yachid) meant that hope for descendants was gone (Gn 22:2).

6:27 Jeremiah was to act as an assayer among the people (cp. 9:7). An assayer was a metallurgist who tested the quality of ore (in this case, the quality of the people).

6:28 The people are described as stubborn rebels ("rebel of rebels," or "the most stubborn of rebels"), active in spreading slander.

6:29 To refine silver, lead and silver were heated together so that the oxidized lead would bind impurities (dross), leaving pure silver (Ps 66:10). However, here the ore (the people of Judah) was so impure that the alloys remained. The refining process failed. The evil ones were the dross that could not be separated from the pure silver.

7:1 Jeremiah's temple gate sermon from this chapter is repeated in chapter 26.

7:2 The Hebrew verb translated worship is a picturesque metaphor. It means "to cause oneself to bow down and prostrate oneself before one of high estate to whom allegiance is owed."

7:3 The phrase I will allow you to live in this place can also mean, "I will dwell or live with you" (cp. v. 7).

7:4 This refers not only to the temple itself, but to the complex of buildings around the temple. God had promised David an eternal dynasty in the chosen city of Zion, or Jerusalem (2Sm 7:12-13; Ps 132:13-14). The people came to believe that the temple was a talisman (good luck charm) that would never be destroyed.

7:9 The sins of the people included violations of the Eighth, Sixth, Seventh, Ninth, First, and Second of the Ten Commandments.

7:10 All that is called by God's name is the personal property of the Lord to which He lays claim (vv. 11,14,30).

7:11 Just as robbers steal and then lie low until the heat of pursuit is over, so the people were participating in all kinds of evil and then fleeing to the house of God for safety. They were making God's house a den of robbers, or literally "a cave" used by bandits.

7:12, 14 Shiloh, 18 miles north of Jerusalem, near modern Seilun, was where the tabernacle and the ark of the covenant were set up after the conquest of Canaan (Jos 18:1; 22:12; Jdg 21:19). This place was destroyed by the Philistines in 1050 B.C. (Ps 78:60-64) after the battle of Ebenezer (1Sm 4:1-11), as confirmed by Danish excavations in 1922-31.

7:13 I have spoken to you time and time again is a unique anthropomorphism (description of God in human terms) that Jeremiah used repeatedly (v. 25; 11:7; 25:3-4; 26:5; 29:19; 32:33; 35:14-15; 44:4). It depicts the Lord "rising up early and speaking."

7:16 The Lord commanded the prophet, Do not pray for these people. The nation had passed the point of no return (11:14; 14:11; 15:1). God would no longer listen to intercessions on behalf of the people of Judah.

7:18 The queen of heaven was the Assyrian-Babylonian goddess Ishtar, parallel to the Canaanite goddess Astarte. Both were astral deities (perhaps Venus) linked with love, fertility, and warfare. The women made cakes, perhaps in the shape of stars (44:15-19) as part of her worship ritual. King Manasseh introduced this false worship (2Kg 21:1-9), and it revived after King Josiah's death.

7:20 God was directly affected by what His people did, but anger is not one of His primary qualities or attributes. Rather, it is a response to injustices, which strike against His holy nature. Jeremiah referred to God's anger many times (v. 18; 8:19; 11:17; 25:6-7; 32:29-32; 44:3,8).

7:22 The phrase I did not speak with them . . . concerning burnt offering and sacrifice does not show, as some critics have assumed, that the laws about the cult and sacrifices originated in the era after the prophets rather than back in Moses' day. The word "concerning" (Hb 'al dibre) is best rendered "for the sake of," "in the interest of," or "out of concern for" (Dt 4:21; 2Sm 18:5; 2Kg 22:13). The point is that God never commanded His people to perform empty rituals. Rather, their offerings and sacrifices were to be heartfelt and born of a desire for obedience.

7:29 Judah is addressed as a former virgin or bride of the Lord. The undefiled Nazirites were required to cut and burn their hair when the term of their vow was fulfilled (Nm 6:13-18). Now Judah is told that she must cut off the hair of your sacred vow and throw it away not because she has completed her vow, but rather because she has violated it. She is no longer consecrated to the Lord, having become a prostitute physically and spiritually.

7:31 Topheth is an Aramaic word meaning "firepit," "fireplace," or "hearth," which was pronounced with the vowels from the Hebrew word bosheth, meaning "shame." This high place was located in the Valley of Hinnom, south of Jerusalem. Kings Ahaz (2Kg 16:3) and Manasseh (2Kg 21:5-6) instituted pagan sacrifices here, including the offering of Judah's children to the god Baal or Molech. Child sacrifice was forbidden by Mosaic law (Lv 18:21; 20:2-5; Dt 18:10). This practice was abolished under King Josiah (2Kg 23:10). During Jeremiah's days the sacrifices appear to have been revived. Later generations dumped their garbage in the Valley of Hinnom (Hb gey-hinnom), perhaps in protest to the atrocities that had been enacted there. Understandably, this place became a symbol for the place of future judgment called Gehenna (Mt 5:22).

7:33-34 So devastating will be the invasion of Judah that corpses will lie everywhere (see note at Ps 79:2). But worst of all, no one will be left to scare scavengers away. The land will fall silent and become a desolate waste.

8:1 At that time links what follows with Jeremiah's temple gate sermon in chapter 7. The exhuming of bones (here of kings, officials, priests, prophets, and residents) out of their graves will be the ultimate insult to the defeated people. Judah will be unable to guard the remains of their ancestors, much less themselves.

8:2 In an ironic demonstration of the futility of false religion, the bones (v. 1) will be exposed to the sun, the moon, and the whole heavenly host, which they have loved, served, followed, consulted, and worshiped. The astral deities Judah worshiped will look down, powerless to prevent this desecration.

8:4-5 Once again the emphasis is on the word "to turn/return" or "repent" (Hb shuv). Jeremiah made a play on the words, saying: If they turn away, do they not return? Why have these people turned away? Normally, those who fall try to get up again. So why was this people acting so contrary to nature? The answer is they've taken hold of deceit.

8:6 The phrase no one regrets [or repents of] his evil (Hb niham) fits with the repeated (Hb) shuv, "turn/return," as a call for repentance.

8:7 The stork . . . turtledove . . . swallow, and crane are migratory birds. They instinctively obey the laws of nature set by their Creator. This contrasts with God's rational and intelligent beings who saw the impending signs of disaster but decided to do nothing to correct their path.

8:8-9 The people of Judah thought that mere possession of the law of God was all they needed to be secure and right with God. But they had falsified its words and intentions. Verse 8 literally says, "Verily, behold, it is to a delusion [that] it has been given; the pen of the scribes is deceitful." In the hands of the scribes, God's law was twisted into a covering for corruption.

8:12 On they weren't at all ashamed, see note at 3:3.

8:13-9:23 This section spells out the doom of Judah and its inhabitants.

8:14 God will give Judah poisoned water to drink. This metaphor occurs again in 9:15 and 23:15 as a judgment on the people. The waters may symbolize the cities to which Judah will flee in futile search of peace, wells and springs that the enemy has salted with poison, or the "cup of God's wrath" (25:15-16).

8:16 The city of Dan, to the far north and bordering on Phoenicia, marked the route that the enemy from the east will take. The desert to the east was virtually impassable.

8:17 The battle metaphors change from the speed of the horse to the creeping terror of the snake. God will send poisonous snakes among the people. The point is that if death does not come from warriors on horse, it will come by some other means God appoints. There will be no escape.

8:20 The phrase harvest has passed, summer has ended, but we have not been saved is a proverbial saying meaning that all opportunities have passed and no hope of rescue exists.

8:22 Gilead was a territory in Transjordan, north of Moab, where its northern regions were heavily wooded. It was well known for its medicinal balm, a resin from the balsam tree that was applied to wounds, but neither healing nor healer could cure the hurt of the people.

9:2 The prophet longed for a traveler's lodging place so he could take a break and get some rest from his ministry to the people. This emotion here is just as strong as it was in verse 1, which shows the depths of Jeremiah's grief over Judah's resistance to the word of God.

9:4 Every brother will certainly deceive, Jeremiah argued, punning on Jacob's name (Gn 27:36), here also rendered correctly as "will certainly deceive" (Hb 'aqov ya'qov ; lit "will deceive [like] the deceiver/Jacob"; cp. Hs 12:2-4).

9:7 Amazingly, God is still not ready to reject His people; He will once more attempt to refine and test them (17:10; Ps 66:10; Pr 17:3). The furnace of trials will determine if God can take away the dross of their sin. God declared, what else can I do in view of the fact that Judah was the daughter of My dear people.

9:10-11 The whole ecosystem will collapse, leaving only scavengers (jackals).

9:15 Wormwood belonged to the aster family. It had a bitter taste and the same effect as the poisonous water.

9:16 God's declaration I will scatter them among the nations is just what Moses had warned would happen if the people abandoned the Lord (Lv 26:33; Dt 28:36,64).

9:17-22 This section is a poem about death, the grim reaper. Death is personified as an intruder who sneaks in through the window at night.

9:17 The women who mourn were professional mourners whose dirges would start the mourning process for the conquered nation.

9:23-24 Two contrasting ways are described in two triads of values. Wisdom . . . strength, and wealth are the values that the wise . . . the strong, and the wealthy aspire to. But the person who understands and knows the Lord sets his highest values on the fact that God alone is the LORD . He shows faithful love (Hb chesed ; used 248 times in the OT, meaning "loyalty, steadfast love, grace"), justice, and righteousness. God's people should note what He delights in and order their priorities accordingly. The supreme goal and glory of humanity is to know and enjoy God.

9:25 The circumcised yet uncircumcised lumps Judah in with four other nations that practiced circumcision of the flesh but neglected circumcision of the heart (4:4; Gl 5:2-5). Circumcision of the flesh was merely an outward symbol. If that alone were enough to please God, the pagan nations mentioned here would enjoy God's favor.

9:26 The phrase inhabitants . . . who clip the hair on their temples refers to Arabian tribes that cut hair from the corners of their temples to honor Bacchus, the pagan god of wine. Israel was forbidden to do this (Lv 19:27; Dt 14:1) out of respect for the Lord.

10:1 Even though the 10 northern tribes had been in exile for more than a century, this message is addressed to the whole house of Israel.

10:2-3 The warning do not learn suggests the idea of not "becoming a disciple" of these idols. The way of the nations involved their religious practices and customs. Those ways were worthless (Hb hevel ; "fog, mist, or breath"). This word is used almost 40 times in the book of Ecclesiastes and is usually rendered "vanity" or "worthless."

10:4 The idol makers used silver from Tarshish (often linked with Spain) and gold from Uphaz (perhaps the same city as Ophir, which may have been located in Africa or Arabia), to beautify and overlay the carved wooden form.

10:5 The idols are compared to scarecrows, though the word can be rendered "palm tree" (as in the KJV and ASV) or "pillar."

10:6-8 The majesty and incomparability of the Lord (there is no one like You) are contrasted with the uselessness and impotence of idols.

10:9 On Tarshish and Uphaz, see note at verse 4.

10:11 This is the only verse in the book of Jeremiah that is in Aramaic, a language similar to Hebrew. These idol merchants probably could understand Aramaic very well since their business dealings required that they know this language.

10:12-16 This section is repeated in 51:15-19.

10:16 Jacob's Portion refers to the Lord Himself, because He had given Himself as Israel's inheritance. Usually the people made this claim for themselves, but in this mutual belonging, God is as much a possession of Israel as their land is. Since idols are lifeless, imaginary gods, they were unable to commit themselves to anyone.

10:17 The word for belongings comes from the same stem as "Canaan." These people were the merchants of their day and a symbol of commercialism.

10:21 The imagery of shepherds (Judah's leaders) who were stupid and a flock that was scattered is expanded in Ezekiel 34. Ezekiel described a good shepherd who would gather in the scattered flock. If the people would seek the Lord and His word, things would turn out differently.

10:22 A great commotion would announce the arrival of the Babylonian army in 587 B.C. The imagery of being made desolate and becoming a jackals' den is often used to describe the total destruction of conquered cities (51:37; Zph 2:13-15).

10:23-25 This is a personal prayer by Jeremiah, but it applied to the entire nation of Judah.

10:24 Discipline me, LORD, is a verb used frequently in the wisdom literature of the OT for educational or corrective punishment. Jeremiah, like the prophet Daniel (Dn 9:4-19), prayed in the first person, identifying himself with his people. But neither the prophet nor the nation wanted God to deal with them according to what they really deserved. Jeremiah may have reasoned that if God disciplined with justice, there would be a chance that He would offer mercy. If He disciplined in . . . anger, however, He would certainly destroy them.

10:25 The prayer ends with a request for God to pour out His wrath on the nations and devour them as they had consumed Judah. This request is granted in 30:16, but only after Judah had been devoured due to her refusal to repent.

11:2 The phrase listen (pl) to the words of this covenant and tell (pl) them is difficult in Hebrew, because Jeremiah is addressed personally, yet the verbs are plural. Perhaps the problem is solved by emphasizing the "words" or terms of the covenant. The covenant is the main subject in verses 2, 3, and 6 where Jeremiah addressed the people.

11:3 At the heart of the covenant given by the Lord at Sinai were two terms: a curse and the call to obey the words of the covenant. Obedience would bring blessing, disobedience a curse.

11:4 You will be My people, and I will be your God were two parts of the oft-repeated promise of God.

11:5 A land flowing with milk and honey was a figure of speech indicating the fruitfulness of Canaan (32:22; Ezk 20:6,15). Its plentiful grass was turned into milk by grazing livestock, and the nectar of flowering plants was changed into honey by bees.

11:7 Until today shows that this warning had been issued year after year, even up to "today" (the time of Jeremiah), all to no avail.

11:9 There appears to have been a general conspiracy and revolt against King Josiah's call for reform and revival in Judah. But it did not escalate into political action (e.g., a coup). Instead, it was a revolt against God.

11:14 Again as in 7:16 (see note there), God did not permit Jeremiah to pray for the people. It was now too late (14:11-12; 15:1).

11:15 My "beloved" (Hb yadid) is the same name the prophet Nathan gave to Solomon—Jedidiah, "The Lord's Beloved one." Judah had been the Lord's "beloved" (12:7; Ps 78:68-72; 82:2). God asked, What right does My beloved have to be in My house? This same point was made in Jeremiah's temple gate sermon (7:3-11). Like a son or daughter expelled for bad behavior, Judah's sin caused her to lose her privileges.

11:16-17 In another metaphor that depicted the nation as a thing created by God, Jeremiah declared the Lord had planted the flourishing olive tree (2:21; 5:10; 6:9; Ps 52:8; 92:12-15; Hs 14:7).

11:19 Because Jeremiah had not suspected all the plots and schemes arrayed against him, he was like a docile lamb led to slaughter. His enemies planned to destroy the tree with its fruit (lit "its bread"), a proverbial expression indicating that they would destroy both him and whatever he produced ("food" or "bread"). Jeremiah was not married, so this refers to the destruction of his life's work, not a wife or children.

11:20 Out of a desire for justice, Jeremiah prayed for God's vengeance on his enemies.

11:21-23 Jeremiah's hometown of Anathoth plotted against him, presumably because his own family thought he had brought disgrace on them. Or did they regard him as a traitor because his pronouncements seemed to favor Babylon over Judah?

12:1-4 This is another of Jeremiah's "confessions" (see note at 4:19-22).

12:1 Even though God is righteous in all His actions and judgments, Jeremiah pressed the age-old question, Why does the way of the wicked prosper? Asaph wanted the same question answered (Ps 73), and so did David (Ps 37).

12:5-6 The Lord responded to Jeremiah's complaint (see vv. 1-4). If running refers to the false prophets who "ran" even though the Lord did not send them (23:21), how did Jeremiah hope to compete with horses? This may be an allusion to the Babylonian horses that would soon descend on Judah and the prophet. Or it may be that if Jeremiah thought his family and friends in Anathoth were hard to deal with, what would he do when the wicked (riders on horses) were turned loose on him?

12:7 God still referred to the nation of Judah as My house . . . My inheritance, and the love of My life. But these descriptions He must now abandon and give Judah into the hands of her enemies. The word inheritance or "heritage" occurs five times in this chapter, usually of God's gift of the land of Canaan to Israel (vv. 7,9,14-15), but in verse 8 it refers to the people.

12:10-11 Similar to the picture of 2:6-8, the good land will be desolate, suffering from drought, neglect, invaders, and divine judgment.

12:13 The image of planting and harvesting thorns is both literal and metaphorical. Thorns grow up on neglected land, and Judah will experience the "thorny" effect of an invasion.

12:14-17 This section deals with Israel's evil neighbors, who will be uprooted (cp. 1:10) just as Judah will be. The nations that ransack Israel will themselves be overrun by the Lord. But like Judah, God will build them up (cp. Jr 10) if they will repent and turn to the Lord.

13:1 The Lord told Jeremiah to purchase a new linen undergarment. This item of clothing extended from the waist to the thighs. The Hebrew word 'ezor has been translated as "girdle" (KJV, NEB), "waistcloth" (RSV), and "loincloth" (JB). But it was made of valuable linen, material usually reserved for priests (Lv 16:4).

13:3-5 Jeremiah was then instructed to take the underwear he had bought and was wearing and hide it in a rocky crevice along the Euphrates River, which lay about 350 miles northeast of Anathoth—a round trip journey of 700 miles. The Hebrew word for the Euphrates is perath. Another site, using the same word, perath, was a spring at Wadi Farah, about four miles northeast of doomed Anathoth. Since the Hebrew names for both sites are the same, each suggests that destruction (symbolized by the ruined underwear, v. 7) would come from the region of the Euphrates River.

13:8-10 God's interpretation of this symbolic action was: Just like this I will ruin the great pride of both Judah and Jerusalem. Thus, the nation had gone from being untarnished when she was called as God's bride (2:2-3) to being rotten and useless because of her sinfulness.

13:11 The nation of Judah had previously clung to the Lord's waist as people whom He called My people for My fame, praise, and glory. But they would be removed just as Jeremiah's underwear was taken into Babylonian-controlled territory and ruined.

13:12-14 God had Jeremiah announce a common proverb: Every jar should be filled with wine. The people's derisive reply was essentially, "Why of course, what do you think those jars are for anyway?" But the metaphor meant that the people themselves were the earthen jars that should be filled with wine. Everyone from the top of society to the bottom would be filled with drunkenness, or the wrath of God (25:15-16,27). God would smash these jars.

13:15-17 The word pride ties this section together with the two parables in verses 1-11, even though two different Hebrew words are used with the same meaning. Judah was guilty of self-exaltation, haughtiness, and high-mindedness. She would not heed God's directives.

13:16 The nation of Judah is depicted as a weary traveler on a mountain caught in the dark, stumbling about, anxious for the dawn, and accepting directions from no one, not even God. The command to give glory to the LORD your God occurs frequently in the OT as a call to confess one's sins (Jos 7:19; Jn 9:24). Unless Judah confessed, even darker days lay ahead.

13:18 The Lord commanded Jeremiah to address the king (Jehoiachin) and his queen mother, Queen Nehushta, who were deported to Babylon by Nebuchadnezzar in 597 B.C. (2Kg 24:8-15). Jehoiachin was only 18 years old when he ascended the throne for a short rule of three months. His mother probably exerted a lot of influence over him. Neither of them was receptive to God's call through the prophet.

13:19 Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon will strike the cities of south Judah, the Negev first. But eventually all of Judah will be taken into exile. The words "all" and "taken completely into exile" are hyperbolic. The Babylonians did leave a remnant along with Jeremiah in the land (39:9-10).

13:20 The verbs look up and see are feminine imperatives. They are addressed to Jerusalem, who as a shepherd had abandoned her flock and sheep, misleading the people.

13:21 The Hebrew word for leaders (ro'sh) has a twofold sense—"head/chief" and "a poisonous plant/poison." Accordingly, Judah's self-chosen allies will become not just their chiefs but their poison as well.

13:22 In answer to Jerusalem's question about why these things happened, God pointed to their great guilt. Speaking euphemistically, God promised to expose Judah's secret parts (politely expressed as your skirts have been stripped off, i.e., they will be sexually attacked; see Lv 18:6-19; 20:17; Dt 22:30). Your body exposed is literally "your heels have suffered violence," another euphemism for sexual attack.

13:23-24 The question Can the Cushite (a Nubian or an Ethiopian) change his skin, or a leopard his spots? anticipates a negative answer. It was unlikely that Judah would change after centuries of acting in such an evil way.

13:25 Lot or "inheritance" is most commonly used for the portion of the land each family of Israel was to receive after the conquest of Canaan (Nm 26:55-56).

But no portion was reserved for this rebellious generation. Instead God scattered them abroad in exile (Jr 13:24).

13:25 Judah had trusted in Falsehood or "the Lie." The article "the" goes with "Lie" (Hb bashsheqer). Therefore, "the Lie" is a derisive term for the pagan gods, especially Baal.

13:26 On I will pull your skirts up over your face, see note at verse 22. Judah's shame will be exposed.

13:27 This verse cites three sexual descriptions of Judah's wickedness: adulteries . . . lustful neighing, and prostitution. These refer to the people's practices out in the open as they went after sex with an animal passion in their worship of Canaanite gods.

14:1-17:27 The message in this long section was delivered during a severe drought (Hb batstsaroth) that hit Judah. The plural in the Hebrew may indicate the intensive nature of the drought.

14:2-6 This section is a lament with the devastation pictured as a crisis where there was no water . . . no grass, and no green plants.

14:2 Her gates represents the cities of Judah.

14:3-4 One indication of Judah's grief and sorrow was that the people covered their heads in shame (2Sm 15:30).

14:7 Either Jeremiah, acting on behalf of the people, or the nation itself acknowledged that the drought had struck as a result of their sin. They appealed to God to act for Your name's sake. Since God's name expressed His character, and since His glory was known among the peoples of earth chiefly through His covenant people, the people asked God to act for the sake of His reputation and honor.

14:8 Yahweh is described in one of the prophet's favorite names for the Lord: Hope of Israel (see 17:7,13; 50:7; Ps 71:5; Ac 28:20; Col 1:27; 1Tm 1:1). The complaint was that God seemed to show no more interest in Judah than a foreigner or a traveler who was just passing through the land.

14:9 How could God be like a warrior unable to save? Jeremiah knew God had the power to deliver His people if He wanted. Thus he knew the issue was not a lack of power on God's part, but a decree to punish. We are called by Your name means "we belong to you, Lord."

14:10 God explained His judgments on Judah. This verse reminds us of Hs 8:13; 9:9.

14:11-12 Once again the prophet was forbidden to pray for the people of Judah (see notes at 7:16 and 15:1). The Lord would not accept any of the ritual that had no meaning, including a fast, a burnt offering, or a grain offering. Instead, God will finish them off by sword, famine, and plague.

14:13-16 The false prophets are blamed for Judah's resistance to the word of God. More than any other prophet, Jeremiah dealt with false prophets (23:9-22; 28). Though they had been called to be revivalists who turned the people back to God, they instead flattered and promised peace.

14:14 This verse cites four methods the false prophets were using: (1) they were prophesying a lie in the Lord's name; (2) they were using false visions (3) and worthless divination; and (4) they were speaking the deceit of their own minds.

14:17 Judah is called the virgin daughter of my people because she had been guarded and protected from pagan nations and their gods.

14:18 The word travel means "to go about" as a herdsman, or "to travel about" as a merchant or tradesperson, or even in Syriac, "to go about as a beggar." The false prophets and priests could practice their illegitimate trade in exile, Jeremiah declared.

14:19-22 Finally, the people admitted that it was their wickedness that had brought this trouble, but in desperation they pleaded for God's help for three reasons: (1) Your name, (2) Your glorious throne, and (3) Your covenant. God's throne was Jerusalem, particularly the temple (2Kg 19:15; Ps 99:1).

14:22 Jeremiah returned to the rain theme that began in 14:3. The astral deities could not bring rain; the only hope for relief from the drought was action from the Lord.

15:1 Even if great prayer warriors such as Moses and Samuel came before Him, they could not persuade God to change His decision. The people had gone so far in sin that no prayer would help them. Moses successfully interceded for Israel numerous times (Ex 32:7-14,30-32; Nm 14:13-19; Dt 9:13-29) as did Samuel (1Sm 7:8-9; 12:17-25). But Judah was now beyond all hope.

15:3 The fourfold curses (death, sword, famine, captivity) appear frequently in Jeremiah and Ezekiel. The same afflictions appear with the four horseman of Revelation (Rv 6:1-8).

15:4 Judah would be made a horror to all the kingdoms of the earth, just as Moses had predicted in Dt 28:37 (Jr 24:9; 29:18; 34:17). This verse contains the only reference to King Manasseh (696-642 B.C.) in the book of Jeremiah. He is listed here as the reason for the terrible state of affairs in Judah. So far-reaching was the evil Manasseh introduced that Judah was still bound for destruction, even after the revival introduced by his grandson, King Josiah, in 621 B.C. (2Kg 23:26).

15:6 You (emphatically, "It was you who") have left Me first, declared the Lord; this is why God rejected them.

15:7 God will use a winnowing fork to toss the nation of Judah like grain into the wind so the chaff will be blown away. The metaphor suggests that the destruction would not be total. A remnant of faithful people would be spared.

15:7 The phrase gates of the land refers to the outlying towns of Judah.

15:10-12 This is another "confession" of Jeremiah (see note at 4:19-22). Here he wished he had never been born. He was tempted to reject his call and mission.

15:10 The prophet felt he had incited dispute and conflict—words for legal strife and legal contention—always taking his people to court.

15:10 Jeremiah insisted he had not done any lending or borrowing, which were often associated with ill-gotten gain through charging outrageous interest (Dt 23:19).

15:12 Anyone may actually refer to the false prophet Hananiah. He had broken the wooden yoke around Jeremiah's neck, but he would not be able to break the yoke of iron (28:10-13). Neither would he be able to stop the iron from the north—Babylon.

15:15-18 This is another of Jeremiah's "confessions" (see note at 4:19-22). God's answer occurs in 15:19-21.

15:15 Avenge me, Jeremiah cried. He did not seek his own retribution but left it to God. His enemies were actually opposing God, not His prophet.

15:16 Both Jeremiah and Ezekiel (Ezk 2:8-3:3) initially found God's words delightful. In the expression Your words were found, there may be an allusion to the discovery of the book of the law in the temple in King Josiah's time (2Kg 22:13; 23:2).

15:18 Jeremiah accused God of being a mirage, or "a deceitful brook"—a stream that went dry in the summer and could not be depended on to supply water. Contrast this image with 2:13, where the prophet described God as a "fountain of living water."

15:19 God startled the prophet by calling on him to return (Hb shuv ; "turn, repent"). God wanted him to stop talking this way so He could restore (Hb shuv, hiphil ; "cause to turn") him to stand in His presence once again. God called Jeremiah's words in verses 15-18 worthless. The prophet must repent if he is to continue to serve as the Lord's spokesman.

15:20-21 These words amount to a recommissioning service for Jeremiah (1:18-19). God would make him a fortified wall of bronze (see note at 1:17-19) in the presence of his people who had become his enemies. The three verbs of deliverance, featured also in the exodus story, emphasize several sides of God's salvation/deliverance: Hebrew hoshia', to bring out from bondage into a wide place; Hebrew hitstsil, to snatch a person from a predator or a powerful oppressor; and Hebrew padah, to liberate a person by paying a ransom to set him free.

16:2 Jeremiah must not marry. This call to celibacy was unusual for an Israelite. Already the prophet was isolated from his own citizens (15:10) and lonely (15:17); now he must face celibacy and restrictions against going to funeral feasts (16:5) or times of festivity (v. 8). He became a social outcast.

16:4 Deadly diseases, apparently of epidemic proportions, awaited the rebellious nation of Judah.

16:5 A mourning feast was like a funeral wake.

16:6 According to the pagan mourning customs of that time, people cut themselves or shaved their heads (cp. 41:5; 47:5; 48:37; Is 15:2-3; 22:12; Ezk 7:18; Am 8:10; Mc 1:16). Since these were pagan customs, Israel was forbidden to practice them (Lv 21:5; Dt 14:1).

16:7 Neighbors apparently brought food and drink for the relatives of the deceased (food and a cup of consolation). The "bread/food of the mourners" is mentioned in Dt 26:14 and Hs 9:4, but not the "cup." In later Judaism, a special cup of wine was drunk by the chief mourner.

16:13 The Hebrew verb for worship is the same stem as the noun "servant" or "vassal." Worship, then, is "service." The expression day and night means "all the time."

16:16-17 The double imagery of God sending out many fishermen and many hunters was a frequent metaphor in Israel (Ezk 12:13; 29:4-5; Am 4:2; 9:1-4; Hab 1:14-17).

16:18 The Hebrew word mishneh usually means "twofold" or double (cp. Is 40:2), but tablets from Alalakh contain a similar word meaning "equivalent." If "double" is the correct translation, it means "ample, full, or complete" punishment. If "equivalent" is the correct rendering, the sentence means God would repay them the equivalent of their sinful iniquity. In either case, the Israelites reaped what they sowed.

17:1-27 There is no central theme in this chapter. It is a collection of wise sayings on how life should be lived.

17:1 The iron stylus with a diamond point (cp. Jb 19:24) was an iron engraver's tool that chiseled the sin of Judah onto their hard hearts and the horns of their altars. These horns were the projections at the four stone corners on top of the altar (Ex 27:2; 29:12; 30:1-3,10; Lv 4:7). Archaeologists have found such altars at Arad and Tel Sheba. The tablet of Judah's heart listed her sins, a far contrast to what would happen when God placed His law on hearts in the new covenant (31:33).

17:2 Asherah poles were upright carved wooden objects representing the fertility mother goddess of the Canaanites (2Kg 13:6; 17:16; 18:4; 21:3; 23:6,15).

17:3 High places were elevated platforms on top of a mountain or hill. An altar to a pagan god and a carved pole for the fertility goddess Asherah were located on these sites (2Kg 21:3; 2Ch 14:3). They also featured a stone pillar symbolizing the male deity (2Kg 3:2), along with other deities and perhaps a shelter (1Kg 12:31; 16:32-33).

17:4 Just as Jeremiah predicted a 70-year captivity in 25:11 and 29:10, so his statement relinquish your inheritance in this verse may hint of that impending judgment. The Hebrew word for "relinquish" (shamat; "lose") is used in connection with the sabbatical year. Later, Jeremiah explained that Judah's exile would last 70 years to make up for the seven sabbatical years she had failed to observe.

17:5-13 The poem in these verses has close parallels with Ps 1 and the wisdom literature of Job, Proverbs, and Ecclesiastes. It focuses on two ways of death and two ways of life.

17:5-6 In these verses there is a play on the words for man . . . mankind and flesh. In Hebrew, the first word is gever , meaning "strong one," man as male. The second is 'adam , "man made of dust." The third is basar , "flesh." Put together, these indicate a poor substitute for trusting in the Lord. The people's misplaced trust is like a juniper in the Arabah, a bush that shriveled in the scorching heat. The Arabah, part of the Great Rift Valley that stretches from the south end of the Dead Sea to the Gulf of Aqabah, is desertlike.

17:9-11 These verses contain three wisdom sayings: (1) The heart is more deceitful than anything and is incurable (lit "perverse" or "beyond cure"; 13:23). (2) I, Yahweh, examine the mind (Hb "heart"), I test the heart (lit "kidneys"). The "mind" and the "heart" are hidden elements of a human personality, but God sees them perfectly. (3) The partridge (perhaps a sand grouse) hatches eggs it didn't lay. Some people amass wealth via the sweat of others, but like these birds, they will discover that their wealth does not last forever (Pr 23:4-5).

17:12 The phrase a throne of glory refers to the temple where the Lord dwelled, and thus to His rule (Lm 5:19).

17:13 On Lord , the hope of Israel, see note at 14:8. Judah had turned her back on her hope and had abandoned the Lord , the fountain of living water (see note at 2:13).

17:14 The Lord is described as Jeremiah's praise or hope. He trusted the Lord to heal and save him.

17:16 Jeremiah took no delight in announcing God's coming judgment, nor did he shrink away from the unpleasant task.

17:17 Jeremiah feared God might desert him and leave him alone before his enemies.

17:19 The People's Gate was not the gate of the temple. The gate Jeremiah referred to is unknown, but it was apparently a place where people commonly gathered.

17:22-27 The Sabbath day, mentioned several times in these verses, testifies to the fact that God was the Creator of the seventh day and that He had a covenant with Israel. If the Sabbath law was observed, the Davidic line of kings would continue to sit on the throne and Jerusalem would continue to be the center of worship.

17:26 The land of Benjamin was north of Judah; the Judean foothills were the western lowlands, west and southwest of Judah; the hill country was the central part of the country; and the Negev was the dry, arid land south of Judah. Frankincense was not the incense offering, but the incense that was added to the offerings (Ex 30:7-9). Thank offerings were a type of peace or fellowship offering (Lv 7:11).

18:2 Like the episode with the underwear (see note at 13:3-5), the trip to the potter's house provided Jeremiah with a symbolic action message. Pottery making was very common in the ancient Near East. Potters commonly used a wheel, turned by foot, as they shaped a lump of clay with their hands. The vessel was then fired in a kiln to make it hard.

A Middle Eastern potter (18:1-6) fashioning pottery in the same manner as in Jeremiah's time.

18:4 The jar the potter was working on was flawed, but how or why this happened is not stated.

18:5-6 The Lord was the potter, and Israel (later the nations as well) were the clay.

18:7-10 The lesson of the potter illustrates God's grace for all who will repent and turn back to Him. Both alternatives are given: God threatened to uproot, tear down, and destroy Judah, but He promised to build and plant others (cp. 1:10). God never changes His character, nature, or being (Nm 23:19), but He changes in His actions toward humans when they change their response to Him.

18:11 The Lord used the same word for about to bring harm to you that He had used for "potter," or "One forming [harm] against you." The word choice was deliberate so Judah would grasp the connection.

18:13 God called on the nations to verify that Judah had done a most terrible thing by defecting from Him. On virgin Israel, see note at 14:17.

18:14 Nature is a lot more dependable and constant than Judah had been.

18:16 Judah had become a land of horror and an object of scorn, or of "hissing" or "whistling." This was the ultimate expression in the Near Eastern "loss of face." People would make a hissing sound at a guilty person and shake their heads in scorn and disbelief.

18:17 The east wind was the hot wind or sirocco from the desert (4:11; 13:24; Hs 13:15), the same direction from which Babylon would come. Instead of the Aaronic benediction of Nm 6:24-26 with the Lord smiling on Judah, He had turned His back—a universal symbol of rejection (Hs 5:15).

18:18 The people foolishly believed that divine revelations would continue and life would go on as usual despite Jeremiah's gloomy predictions.

18:19-23 This is another of Jeremiah's "confessions" (see note at 4:19-22). His accusers said, "Come, let's denounce him" (18:18), or literally, "Let us smite him with the tongue." Jeremiah charged his opponents with the following: (1) paying "no attention to all his words" (v. 18), (2) digging a pit for him (vv. 20,22), (3) hiding snares for his feet (v. 22), and (4) planning to kill him (v. 23).

19:1 The Lord told Jeremiah to buy a potter's clay jar as his next symbolic action. This was probably a narrow-necked water jar (Hb baqbuq) . In verse 7, "I will spoil" (Hb baqqotih ; "to empty out, cancel, spoil") is a wordplay on "jar."

19:2 Along with some elders, Jeremiah was told to go to the Valley of Hinnom (later Gehenna; see note at 7:31) near the entrance of the Potsherd Gate. This gate, south of the Jerusalem wall, was the gate through which broken pottery and other trash were transported to the city dump. The Valley of Hinnom is the modern Wadi er-Rababi. It runs along the western side of Jerusalem toward the south where it joins the Wadi Kidron on the southeastern corner of the city.

19:3 The ears of those who heard about the coming destruction will shudder or "tingle" (1Sm 3:11; 2Kg 21:12).

19:4 The blood of the innocent refers to the practice of offering children as burnt offerings to Baal or Molech (see note at 7:31). Human sacrifice is well attested in Canaan and Phoenicia, especially during the days of kings Ahaz (2Kg 16:3) and Manasseh (2Kg 21:6).

19:6-7 Though the plans of Judah and Jerusalem included expectation of God's ongoing favor, in reality the covenant curses would be enacted (Dt 28:15ff). Topheth (see note at 7:31) and the Valley of Hinnom would then be called Valley of Slaughter to reflect God's judgment. The corpses of Judah's dead would remain unburied, a sign of judgment as birds of the sky and wild animals fed on their remains (7:33; 16:4; 34:20; Dt 28:26).

19:9 So severe would be the conditions of the siege that Judah's survivors would eat the flesh of their sons and daughters. This cannibalism is attested in the siege of Samaria (2Kg 6:26-29) and in the Babylonian siege in 587 B.C. (Lm 2:20; 4:10). According to Josephus in Wars of the Jews , this also happened in A.D. 70 when Jerusalem fell to the Romans.

19:10-11 As the prophet shattered the clay jar, he announced that God would shatter these people and this city as well. This was a symbolic act of warning to Judah. So many corpses would be gathered that there would be no place left to bury the dead but Topheth.

19:13 The city will become impure (ritually unclean) and a place where the Lord will no longer stay, like that place Topheth (see note at 7:31).

19:15 Judgment will fall on this city (Jerusalem) and its dependent villages, meaning the rest of Judah's cities.

20:1 Ironically, Pashhur, the chief official or "overseer" of the temple of the LORD , came against Jeremiah, the true prophet whom God had set "over nations and kingdoms" as an overseer (1:10). This Pashhur is probably the same as the father of Gedaliah (38:1), but not the same as another official named Pashhur in 21:1; 38:1. Jeremiah predicted Pashhur would go into exile in Babylon (20:6).

20:2 Pashhur ordered that Jeremiah be beaten. This was the first act of violence against the prophet. The Upper Benjamin Gate (built by King Jotham; 2Kg 15:35) was the northern gate of the upper temple court and the most prominent gate in the city.

20:3 By God's commission, Jeremiah changed Pashhur's name to Magor-missabib, meaning "terror all around." This name appears five times in Jeremiah (v. 10; 6:25; 46:5; 49:29) and in Lm 2:22. Elsewhere the term is found only in Ps 31:13 and Is 31:9.

20:4 This is the first time the king of Babylon is mentioned in the book of Jeremiah. His inclusion here prompts some scholars to date this prophecy after the battle of Carchemish in 605 B.C. This was roughly the halfway mark of Jeremiah's 40-year ministry.

20:6 Even though Pashhur was a priest, he had apparently prophesied falsely along with his friends. For this sin he would face captivity and death in a foreign land.

20:7-18 This is the last of Jeremiah's "confessions" (see note at 4:19-22). As his saddest and most bitter complaint, it is one of his most revealing self-disclosures.

20:7 Jeremiah cried, You deceived me, LORD. So bold, offensive, and verging on blasphemous were these words that many have tried to soften them by translating them as "enticed," or "persuaded." Jeremiah did not accuse God of lying. But the Hebrew verb pathah means "to seduce" as a virgin is seduced (Ex 22:16). Thus, he thought God had "twisted his arm" in calling him to prophetic ministry. Jeremiah's audiences made him a laughingstock.

20:8 People characterized the prophet's message as "doom and gloom," or in his words violence and destruction (see note at 6:7).

20:9 Whenever Jeremiah decided to quit and no longer speak in God's name, the divine message became a fire burning in his heart, shut up in his bones. Thus he felt compelled to speak, no matter how unpopular his message.

20:10 A gossip campaign began to build against Jeremiah as they nicknamed him Mr. Terror . . . on every side.

20:11 Jeremiah believed that God would turn the tables on his persecutors. God had promised him that He would be with him like a violent warrior or "a mighty champion" (1:8,18; 15:20-24).

20:12 This verse is virtually the same as 11:20, bracketing the first and the last of the prophet's "confessions."

20:13 Some question the genuineness of this verse because they find it hard to imagine Jeremiah singing for joy in these circumstances. But his heart understandably fluctuated with conflicting emotions. His task was hard and doom surrounded him, yet God was with him.

20:14-15 Whereas a messenger who brought news of a birth was usually rewarded in that culture, Jeremiah said the man who announced his birth should have been cursed. Notice that Jeremiah did not curse his parents for bringing him into the world. Cursing one's parents was forbidden (Ex 21:17).

20:16 Jeremiah wished the messenger's demise would be like that of the cities the LORD demolished. Those cities, Sodom and Gomorrah (Gn 19:24-25), were examples of God's sudden destruction.

20:18 Because of all the criticism Jeremiah had to take, he struggled inwardly. But he never wavered in fulfilling his mission.

21:1-14 This chapter contains three messages that God revealed to Jeremiah: (1) a message to King Zedekiah of Judah, (2) a message to the people of Jerusalem, and (3) a message to the house of the king of Judah.

21:1 This Pashhur is not the same person as the Pashhur in 20:1. Zephaniah was the successor of Jehoiada the priest (29:25-26; 37:3; 52:24) and second in rank behind the high priest.

21:2 King Zedekiah of Judah depended on Pharaoh Hophra of Egypt to take care of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon. Zedekiah sent Pashhur to Jeremiah to foretell what the outcome of his foolish rebellion against Babylon would be. He was hopeful that the Lord would perform wonderful works for Judah, just as He had done in the days of Hezekiah (2Kg 18-19) and Jehoshaphat (2Ch 20).

21:2 The spelling of Nebuchadnezzar's name (in the Hebraized form) as Nebuchadrezzar in some translations more closely approximates ancient Babylonian inscriptions. The full Akkadian form is Nabu-kudurri-usur, meaning "Nebo [a god], do protect the crown."

21:4 Chaldeans is the normal term for Babylonians. The Assyrians gave the name Kaldu to the area between the Tigris and Euphrates rivers and between the city of Babylon and the Persian Gulf. Thus the tribal groups living there were called Chaldeans. A Chaldean dynasty was started under Nabopolassar, whose son Nebuchadnezzar organized many nationalities under the name of "Chaldeans" or "Babylonians."

21:5 An outstretched hand and a mighty arm are routine metaphors describing God's miraculous intervention in times past, such as at the exodus (Dt 4:34).

21:6 During military sieges, the possibility of an epidemic or great plague is heightened. Such illness would further weaken the people's ability to defend against attackers.

21:8-10 Jeremiah turned to address the people of Judah.

21:8 The phrase the way of life and the way of death is reminiscent of Dt 30:19. But here it has the opposite twist of its usage in Deuteronomy.

21:9 The prophet counseled desertion for the citizens of Judah. In other circumstances this would have been considered treason, but Jeremiah's authority was from God. The people were faced with a choice of obeying God or humans. The person who surrendered to Babylon would retain his life like the spoils of war. This is an idiomatic expression meaning literally "his soul will be to him for booty" (38:2; 39:18; 45:5).

21:11-14 The message to the house of the king of Judah in these verses must have come at a time when repentance and righteousness would still reverse the threatened judgment of God. "House" refers to the dynasty of the king.

21:12 The task of the king and his officials was to administer justice every morning, presumably before the heat of the day (2Sm 4:5). This is how the ideal king would operate (Jr 23:5-6). Likewise, the victim of robbery called for action not only against common thieves, but also against all sorts of economic thievery, such as cheating on wages, land-grabbing, and other types of oppression.

21:13 The phrases you who sit above the valley and you atop the rocky plateau refer to the city of Jerusalem as well as the king. The city, with its palace complex, was surrounded by valleys. There is irony and sarcasm in these designations because the king and the people had a false sense of security. Complacently and proudly the people asked, Who can come down against us? The short answer: God Himself.

21:14 The word forest is used here figuratively for the royal palace (1Kg 7:2; 10:21).

22:1 Jeremiah was to go down from the temple or Mount Zion to the king's palace, which was south of the temple (26:10; 36:12).

22:3 The sins mentioned here fit the reigns of all the Judean kings of this period, but they were especially fitting for Jehoiakim's time (2Kg 23:35). These themes appear frequently in the law, especially Dt 10:18-19; 24:17-22; 27:19 and Ex 22:21-24.

22:4 The conditional prospect of blessing and prosperity was once again offered to the king with the words if you conscientiously carry out this word. The Davidic dynasty would be continued and the people would live securely in the land as God had promised David (2Sm 7).

22:5 To underline the solemnity of this message, the Lord declared, I swear by Myself, giving the strongest possible authentication to Jeremiah's words.

22:6-9 These verses refer not to the Davidic line, but to the royal palace. The regions of Gilead and Lebanon were noted for trees such as cedars (1Kg 5:6,8-10; 7:2-5; 10:27). However, the lofty and startling cedar columns of the palace would be burned up in the fall of Jerusalem.

22:9 The phrase they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh occurs only here and at Dt 29:25. It refers to the Sinaitic covenant, not God's covenant with David (2Sm 7).

22:10 Instead of weeping for the dead King Josiah, who was killed at the Battle of Megiddo in 609 B.C. (2Kg 23:29-35; 2Ch 35:24-25), Jeremiah told the people to reserve their tears for Josiah's son, King Shallum. This king was also known as Jehoahaz. After a short reign of three months, Jehoahaz would be exiled to Egypt, where he would die (2Kg 23:34). In that sense, Josiah would be better off than his son. Jehoahaz would be the first Judean king to die in exile.

22:13-16 Jeremiah denounced King Jehoiakim more severely than he denounced any other king. In a manic building campaign that was typical of Near Eastern kings, Jehoiakim violated Mosaic law (Lv 19:13; Dt 24:14-15) by forcing Judean laborers to build and remodel his palace without paying them any wages. Meanwhile he continued paying enormous sums as tribute to Pharaoh Neco of Egypt. By his love of luxury and his tyranny over Judah, he imitated King Manasseh (2Kg 24:3-4). History had taught Jehoiakim very little.

22:15 Jehoiakim thought that luxurious buildings made a man a king, but

Jeremiah asked sarcastically, Are you a king because you excel in cedar?

22:16 Concern for the poor and needy demonstrates what it means to know the Lord. More than head knowledge is required. What is needed is a personal relationship with the Lord that results in justice and righteousness for all. To know God in this manner is to do His will.

22:17 Not only was Jehoiakim tyrannical, covetous, and oppressive; he was also guilty of shedding innocent blood. For example, because the prophet Uriah had prophesied against him, the king brought Uriah back from Egypt and had him executed (26:20-23).

22:18-19 A humiliating death awaited evil King Jehoiakim. His own family (brother . . . sister) and friends would not mourn his death, but he would be buried like a donkey, dragged off and thrown outside the gates of Jerusalem. This meant no burial at all, which was considered a curse (Dt 28:26). Some have questioned the fulfillment of this prophecy, because 2Kg 24:6 says that Jehoiakim "rested with his fathers." But "resting" with one's fathers is not the same thing as being buried (see 2Kg 15:38; 16:20). The fact that Scripture does not describe the later fulfillment of this prophecy in no way indicates that it did not happen. Second Kings 24:6 does not contradict this prophecy because 1Kg 21:19; 22:30-38,40 uses the same wording for King Ahab's similarly disgraceful death.

22:18 This call to mourning may have come on the eve of Nebuchadnezzar's 597 B.C. attack on Jerusalem.

22:20 The people are told to pick a mountain in the north, Lebanon, for example, or Bashan in northern Transjordan, or Abarim, the mountains of Moab, east of the Dead Sea. From these heights they could broadcast their lament over what was about to happen. The words your lovers refer to the faithful patriots in Judah, the leaders of the nation, or perhaps Egypt and those countries to whom King Jehoiakim had looked for help against Babylon.

22:22-23 There is a play on words in the expression the wind will take charge of [or "will shepherd"] all your shepherds. The coming doom is also likened to childbirth. The people will groan when labor pains come on you, agony like a woman in labor.

22:24-30 In these verses Jehoiachin (son of Jehoiakim) is condemned. He reigned for only three months. Jehoiachin was also called Coniah (vv. 24,28), which is an abbreviated form of Jeconiah, the alternate of the throne name Jehoiachin. See textual footnote at 37:1.

22:24 A signet ring contains the king's official seal, which he used to stamp official documents. Such documents bore the sign of royal authority (Hg 2:23). Because of his sins, God says in figurative language that, were Jehoiachin a signet ring on His right hand, He would rip that privilege away from him. Jehoiachin was exiled to Babylon in 597 B.C. (2Kg 24:8-17; 25:27-30).

22:26 Jehoiachin's mother was Nehushta (2Kg 24:8).

22:29 The repetition of earth gives a strong and solemn emphasis to the message God was about to deliver.

22:30 The words record this man as childless are startling since Jehoiachin had seven sons (1Ch 3:17). This is an allusion to the fact that none of his descendants would ascend to the throne. Isaiah 39:7 predicted that some of Hezekiah's descendants (Jehoiachin and his sons fell into this category) would "be carried off to Babylon" to become "eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon." The Weidner Tablets verify that Jehoiachin and his sons received a daily ration of oil while captive in Babylon. Jehoiachin's uncle, Zedekiah, reigned after him, but he died before Jehoiachin died in Babylon. Thus Jehoiachin was the last living Judean king in the line of David.

23:1-2 The shepherds were not only Zedekiah and the three godless Judean kings mentioned in chapter 22, but all leaders of Judah, including spiritual and civil leaders. The phrases the sheep of My pasture . . . My people, and My flock are used by Jeremiah more than 40 times to designate the close relationship between God and the people of Judah. There is a play on words for not attended to ["My flock"] and I will attend to ["shepherds"]. The Hebrew word is paqad, meaning "to care for" or "to chastise." God will discipline the shepherds for not taking care of His flock.

23:3-4 The upcoming exile was a sure thing, but so too the future regathering was sure to happen. The good shepherds that God would raise up were not only Zerubbabel, Ezra, and Nehemiah, but leaders far into the future. God would bring Judah and Israel back from all the lands where He had banished them.

23:5 The expression the days are coming points to messianic times. It is used 15 times in the book of Jeremiah. Branch of David refers to the Messiah. It appears five times in the Prophets (v. 5; 33:15; Is 4:2; Zch 3:8; 6:12). Four pictures of Jesus the Messiah, often compared to the emphasis given in each of the four Gospels, are: "the Branch of David" (Jr 23:5), compared to Matthew's presentation (Mt 1:1) of Jesus the King; "My Servant, the Branch" (Zch 3:8), compared to Mark's depiction (Mk 10:45) of Jesus as the Servant; "a man whose name is Branch" (Zch 6:12), compared to Luke's presentation (Lk 23:47) of Jesus in His human aspects; and "the branch of the Lord" (Is 4:2), compared to John's presentation (Jn 20:31) of Jesus as being from God. He will reign wisely speaks of the manner of the Messiah's reign (see also Is 52:13).

23:6 In contrast to the name of Zedekiah, meaning "The Lord is righteousness" (a name given to Mattaniah by Nebuchadnezzar in 2Kg 24:17), the coming Messiah will be named Yahweh Our Righteousness. Zedekiah was nothing like the Messiah in his character or actions.

23:7-8 God's deliverance of His people from Egypt will be surpassed in a future worldwide regathering of Israel, exceeding even the return orchestrated by King Cyrus of Persia.

23:9 Jeremiah's words refer back to his laments and "confessions" in chapters 11-20.

23:10 The physical and spiritual immorality of a land . . . full of adulterers has yielded a godless society.

23:11-31 Both prophet and priest were accomplices in corrupting and misleading the people. Jeremiah had more to say against false prophets than any other OT writer (vv. 9-40; 2:8; 5:30-31; 6:13-14; 8:10-11; 14:13-15; 18:18-23; 26:8,11,16; 27:1-28:16). His four charges against them were: (1) low morals and character (23:14), (2) they invented their own messages (v. 16), (3) they did not have a call from God (vv. 21-22), and (4) they were plagiarists (v. 30).

23:13 The something disgusting ("offensive thing") that Jeremiah saw was Israel being led . . . astray as prophets prophesied in Baal's name. Their polluted lives were hindrances to legitimate proclamation of God's message.

23:14 To God the false prophets had become as bad as the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah. They encouraged moral laxity and sin rather than repentance.

23:15 What the false prophets were about to experience would be like eating wormwood—a shrub with a bitter taste—and drinking poisoned water (9:15).

23:16-17 These peace prophets created messages as figments of their own minds. They deceived the people by promising peace, prosperity, and success. The false prophets were making the people worthless, a word reflecting the Hebrew noun hevel ("vapor," vanity," "transitoriness"), as used in the book of Ecclesiastes.

23:18 Some understand the council of the LORD to be a gathering of divine beings over whom God presided or consulted, as was believed in Near Eastern polytheism. But the biblical concept is different. The "council of the Lord" referred to God's desire to share His teaching with His prophets, as Amos declared (Am 3:7).

23:19-20 This announcement of judgment is repeated almost identically in 30:23-24. The storm (4:11-12; 13:24; 18:17; 25:32) unleashes the purposes of God's heart for judgment.

23:21-22 Even though God did not send these prophets, yet they ran (cp. 2Sm 18:19). They had no authority as God's courier and no understanding of God's purposes.

23:23-24 God is not a pagan local god confined to His shrine or temple. He is both immanent (near) and transcendent (far).

23:25-29 Jeremiah did not deny that God sometimes uses dreams. He used them with Joseph (Gn 37; 41) and with authentic prophets (Nm 12:6). But the dreams to which the prophet referred here were fabricated and preyed on the gullible. The dreams of the false prophets were like straw, not grain. God's word, by contrast, was like a hammer that pulverizes rock.

23:30 Since they did not truly speak from God, God said the false prophets could only plagiarize My words from each other as they made up false messages in God's name.

23:33-38 The word burden comes from the Hebrew verbal root nasa', meaning "to lift up." All instances of the Hebrew noun massa' imply a "burden," for all are judgment passages. So when the people or the false prophets asked, What is the burden of the LORD? (v. 33), the answer was the short retort given in the Latin Vulgate and the Greek Septuagint (LXX): "You are the burden." The pun of the two senses of "burden" (prophetic burden of judgment and the burden of trying to speak to stubborn people) recurs throughout this section.

23:39-40 Because of the deceptive words of the false prophets, God would surely forget them and throw them away from His presence—a drastic measure for a serious offense.

24:1-10 In this vision Jeremiah saw two baskets of figs, one good and one bad. These images seem to fit poorly with Jeremiah's pessimistic estimate that all Jerusalem was wicked (chap. 5) and his attitude toward the exiles (chap. 29). Those who remain true to God in the midst of mass compromise often mistakenly think they are all alone in devotion to God (see 1Kg 19:14-18).

24:1 The phrase the LORD showed me marks a supernatural revelation to the prophet, much like that in Am 7:1,4,7. This happened in a vision and not in reality, because bad figs could not be offered to the Lord (Dt 26:2).

24:2 The early figs, which ripened in May-June, were very juicy and were considered a delicacy. Their Hebrew name was bakkuroth ("newly ripe," "early ripening"), suggesting the similar Hebrew word for "firstfruits."

24:5 God regarded as good the exiles from Judah that He sent away to Babylon in 597 B.C. They were the pride of the nation in skills, leadership, and craftsmanship. Some of the leaders in that deportation had intervened on Jeremiah's behalf on several occasions (chaps. 26, 36).

24:6 In keeping with the call of Jeremiah in 1:10, God promised these good figs that He would build them . . . plant them . . . not demolish, and not uproot them.

24:7 Two parts of the tripartite formula for the promise of God appear in this verse: They will be My people, and I will be their God. God would give them a heart to know Him because they will return to Me with all their heart. The new heart did not depend on the people returning to God, because He had already given them a heart to know Him. The new heart of 32:37-41 was also an unconditional promise of God.

24:8-10 The bad figs were inedible. This describes those who were still living in the land or those who had fled to Egypt. Their disobedience to God led them into ever greater sin as they hardened their hearts. As He had done with Pharaoh, God responded by further hardening their hearts.

25:1-38 This chapter describes a critical year in the history of the Near East. In this year Jeremiah dictated his prophecies to his scribe Baruch (36:1-6), the battle of Carchemish unfolded, and Nebuchadnezzar ascended the throne of Babylon (see notes at 36:1 and 45:1-5).

25:1 That the first year of Nebuchadnezzar paralleled the fourth year of King Jehoiakim of Judah is not in conflict with Dn 1:1, which says Nebuchadnezzar laid siege in Jehoiakim's "third year." The two countries used different methods of reckoning the initiation of a king's reign. Judah used the accession-year principle, where the portion of the calendar year that remained when the king came to power was called his first year of reign. Babylon used the non-accession-year principle, where the first year of reign was calculated only with the advent of the new calendar year (hence, a king who took the throne on January 2 would begin his first year of reign on January 1 of the next calendar year).

25:3 Jeremiah had ministered in Judah for 23 years, but he had to conclude that the people had not obeyed. Jeremiah was not the only prophet sent by God during this time (Uriah, Zephaniah, and Habakkuk). In spite of his efforts, four times in verses 3-8 Judah's disobedience is emphasized.

25:5-7 The imperatives turn and live are highlighted, but little success resulted from these urgent messages from God.

25:9 All the families of the north meant Babylon's allies or the many nations and tribes within the Babylonian Empire. Nebuchadnezzar is called My servant three times in Jeremiah (v. 9; 27:6; 43:10), just as King Cyrus of Persia was called God's servant or shepherd in Is 44:28; 45:1. Both were called by God as instruments of His plan to completely destroy Judah and the surrounding nations. "Completely destroy" is related to the Hebrew noun cherem, where the enemy was "put under the ban" and set apart for destruction.

25:11 The 70 years is often regarded as a round number, but here it is the literal period of time between 606/605 B.C. when Daniel was taken captive, and 536 B.C. when Zerubbabel led the first group of resettlers back to Judah.

25:12-14 At the end of the 70 years, God would punish the king of Babylon and that nation, not for carrying out His will but for her own sins (50:11-13).

25:15-16 The cup of the wine of wrath is a common biblical image indicating God's wrath (49:12; 51:7; Ps 60:3; Is 51:17,22; Ezk 23:31; Hab 2:16; Rv 14:8,10; 16:19; 18:6). The prophet did not physically take the cup to all the nations, but all nations would experience that cup in the tragedies of the future.

25:19-22 All the nations listed in chapters 46-51 except Damascus are included in this section. Judah heads the list and then comes Pharaoh of Egypt, perhaps because he instigated the alliance of Judah against Babylon. The list runs from south to north.

25:20 The land of Uz is mentioned in Jb 1:1. It was probably east and northeast of Edom. The remnant of Ashdod is singled out because Pharaoh Psammetik I of Egypt (663-609 B.C.) took the city after a 29-year siege.

25:25 The location of Zimri is unknown, though the name appears in Nm 25:14 and elsewhere. Elam and Media were east of the Tigris River.

25:26 Sheshach is probably a cipher code for Babylon, written in what the Hebrews called Atbash, where letters of the Hebrew alphabet are substituted for their opposite (see note at 51:1). Here the letters bet-bet-lamed of Babylon are changed to shin-shin-khet.

25:29 The Lord asked, How could the nations possibly go unpunished? The same principles that governed Judah must also govern the world.

25:30-33 The imagery changes from a cup of wine to a lion. This signals the Lord's voice from on high. It changes again to an image of the Lord treading out grapes in the winepress (Is 63:3; Rv 14:19-20; 19:15), and once more to the image of a great storm as nation after nation succumbs to Babylon's advances.

25:34-38 Three times in these verses Jeremiah used the shepherd metaphor and then switched over to describe the nations' impending disaster. They will be shattered like a precious vase. The nations will be shattered by the One who is Lord over all the earth.

26:1-24 This chapter is connected with chapter 7, the prophet's famous temple gate sermon.

26:1 The date for this event is set as the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim (609 B.C.). This is chronologically earlier than 25:1, Jehoiakim's "fourth year." King Josiah had died that year, and Jehoahaz had ruled only three months.

26:2 Nothing of God's revelation was to be held back, not even a word.

26:3 A repentance that delivers nations must start with individuals. God has called each to return from his evil way of life.

26:4-6 This is a summary of the more complete message in chapter 7 with three emphases: (1) the call to obey God's law, (2) the alignment of Jeremiah's message with My servants the prophets, and (3) the seriousness of the impending threat against the city of Jerusalem and the temple.

26:6, 9 On Shiloh, see note at 7:12,14.

26:7-8 The priests, the prophets, and all the people listened until Jeremiah finished his address, but then their pent-up fury broke loose as they took hold of him, yelling, You must surely die! They thought Jeremiah had spoken blasphemy (Lv 24:16; Dt 18:20). How could God destroy the city and temple, which they considered invincible because of God's promise to David?

26:9 The people assembled against (lit "thronged about") Jeremiah in a hostile manner.

26:10 The New Gate is thought to be the gate leading to the inner court of the temple (36:10). This was the place where trials were held. King Jotham built it (2Kg 15:35).

26:12-15 Jeremiah defended himself with great courage, unusual brevity, and straightforward accounting for his 20 years of ministry among them (cp. 25:3, three years earlier). His message originated with God, and he had stayed on message.

26:18 Micah the Moreshite alludes to Mc 1:1. The quoted verse is from Mc 3:12. Moresheth was a village 23 miles southwest of Jerusalem. Micah's warnings were heeded, and the nation was delivered because the people responded with repentance. This argument from the past was effective, and Jeremiah was released.

26:20-23 These verses show that Uriah son of Shemaiah did not fare as well as Micah did. Why some faithful servants are delivered and others are not is in God's hands.

26:20 Kiriath-jearim was about eight miles northwest of Jerusalem where the ark of the covenant was kept after it was returned by the Philistines (1Sm 7:1-2).

26:22 Elnathan son of Achbor might have been one of the sons of Achbor son of Micaiah, an official of King Josiah (2Kg 22:12,14). Elnathan tried to stop King Jehoiakim from burning Jeremiah's scroll (Jr 36:25).

26:23 Uriah was brought . . . out of Egypt by King Jehoiakim of Judah. As a vassal nation under Egypt, Jehoiakim had rights of extradition in accordance with international treaties.

26:24 Ahikam son of Shaphan supported Jeremiah. Shaphan was the scribe of King Josiah's reform (2Kg 22:3-14). Gemariah, another son of Shaphan, argued that King Jehoiakim should not burn Jeremiah's scroll (Jr 36:10,25). A third son of Shaphan, Gedaliah, was appointed governor of Judah after the fall of Jerusalem (39:14; 40:5-16).

27:1 The beginning of the reign of Zedekiah was in 594 B.C. (28:1). The LXX may preserve the more accurate reading: "in the fourth year of Zedekiah." Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon had just put down an uprising by some of his troops. News of this palace revolt may have stirred false hopes, especially in Judah.

27:2 Jeremiah was commanded by God to make chains and yoke bars for himself. Palestinian yokes consisted of a beam across the shoulders of oxen, with parallel pegs coming out of the beam on either side of the ox's neck and tied with thongs under the neck.

27:3 The phrase send word (in Hb, "send them") implies that Jeremiah made a separate yoke for each king of the five nations mentioned here, apparently giving an appropriate message for each ambassador. The enumeration of the nations from the south to the north may indicate that they were prompted by Pharaoh Psammetik II of Egypt to revolt when it appeared Babylon was going through internal troubles.

27:6 Revolt was futile because God had already assigned Babylon to execute judgment over these nations on His behalf. Again, Nebuchadnezzar is called My servant or instrument (see note at 25:9; cp. Cyrus in Is 44:28).

27:7 Nebuchadnezzar, his son, and his grandson were given power over all the mentioned nations. Their dominance lasted for three generations, including the kings Nebuchanezzar, Evil-Merodach (52:31; 2Kg 25:27) and Belshazzar (Dn 5:2). God appoints power and determines its duration as well; the exile would not be over quickly as some false prophets had promised.

27:9-11 Five different types of false foretellers are listed here: false prophets, diviners (prophesied from the way arrows fell), dreamers, fortune-tellers (or "enchanters" who interpreted various signs), and sorcerers (conjurers). All these were banned from Israel (Dt 18:9-13). Their message (don't serve the king of Babylon) was nothing but falsehood.

27:12 King Zedekiah, his advisers, and all the people were to put their necks under the yoke in submission to Babylon.

27:16 The articles (not just "vessels," "utensils," or "furnishings") from the Lord's temple would not be coming back to Judah soon. Nothing was returned until the beginning of the reign of Cyrus of Persia in 536 B.C.

27:18 The primary task of a genuine prophet was to intercede with the LORD.

27:19 The pillars, made of bronze and placed in front of the temple, were called Jachin and Boaz (1Kg 7:15-22). These would be broken up, because they were too big to be taken away intact. The sea was a massive cast basin sitting on the backs of 12 cast oxen. It was used as a wash basin by the priests (1Kg 7:23-26). The water carts were stands on wheels that supported the lavers (1Kg 7:27-37). The same three items are singled out in Jr 52:17.

28:1-17 The phrase in that same year places the incident in this chapter not long after the events in chapter 27.

28:1 Hananiah son of Azzur, whom the LXX calls a "false prophet," was a native of Gibeon, a city of priests five miles northwest of Jerusalem (modern el-Jib). He publicly contradicted Jeremiah's prophecy about the yoke (chap. 27).

28:2 I have broken the yoke refers to the prophecy Jeremiah had just delivered in chapter 27. Hananiah had the audacity to use the same introductory formula for a divine message that God had given Jeremiah, His genuine prophet.

28:3 Within two years, Hananiah predicted, everything would be restored. Such specificity must have made him look credible. But when his prophecy failed, he deserved the penalty prescribed in Dt 18:21-22.

28:4 Jeconiah is another name for King Jehoiachin of Judah (27:20).

28:6 Jeremiah responded to Hananiah's brazen prediction with an Amen. Whether he did so sarcastically or because he was thrown off balance since Hananiah's prophecy disputed everything God had shown him up to this point, we cannot say for sure.

28:8-9 Jeremiah reminded Hananiah that the prophets who had preceded them spoke of war, disaster, and plague. Prophets who prophesied peace had to show they were genuine by the fulfillment of their words (Dt 13:1-5; 18:15-22). So Hananiah was running against the grain not only of Jeremiah's words but of the messages of all the prophets from the past.

28:13 The Lord told Jeremiah to make an iron yoke bar, because Hananiah had made Jeremiah's word about God's judgment all the more certain and hardened.

28:15-17 In another wordplay the Lord declared that since He had not sent Hananiah to prophesy, He would send him off the face of the earth. Two months later Hananiah died. We are not told how this happened or if God caused his death, but the reason for his death is that he had spoken rebellion against the LORD (see Dt 13:5).

29:1 The rest of the elders appears to be those who had survived deportation to Babylon.

29:2 King Jeconiah is another name for King Jehoiachin (see note at 22:24-30). The Hebrew form of queen mother is a feminine ending on the same masculine form for "a mighty man of valor" or a "hero" (Hb haggevirah). The court officials (Hb hassarisim) is usually rendered "eunuchs," but it was also a title for palace officers (52:25; Gn 37:36; 40:2; 1Sm 8:15).

29:3 Jeremiah sent his letter by an emissary that King Zedekiah of Judah was sending to Babylon, which accompanied tribute he was paying to Nebuchadnezzar. The two men who carried the letter were Elasah son of Shaphan and Gemariah son of Hilkiah. Shaphan was a sort of secretary of state under King Josiah (2Kg 22:8-14), and Gemariah was the high priest under Josiah (2Ch 34-35). Despite a crooked government and priesthood, these men show that some people remained faithful to the Lord, even during the worst of times.

29:4-7 Jeremiah's letter must have arrived in Babylon shortly after the exiles did. It warned that this would not be a short exile.

29:7 Jeremiah's advice to the exiles was remarkable. He urged them to pray for Babylon and its prosperity. By doing this the exiles would prosper as well (1Tm 2:1-2).

29:10 The 70 years for Babylon are also noted in 25:11. The duration of the Babylonian kingdom is linked with the length of the exile (see note at 25:11). From Nebuchadnezzar's accession to the throne in 605 B.C. to the fall of Babylon in 539 B.C. was 66 years.

29:12-13 These verses are a renewal of God's promise in Dt 30:3-5.

29:15-19 Many interpreters think these verses are misplaced since Jeremiah was so critical of Zedekiah in a letter carried by his ambassadors. But verses 4-23 may not be a single letter. Verses 15-19 could be a second letter not carried to Babylon by the king's officials.

29:17 The people left in Jerusalem who were not among the initial exiles will be made like rotten figs. This same imagery appears in chapter 24.

29:21-23 Ahab son of Kolaiah and Zedekiah son of Maaseiah were two prophets singled out for committing adultery with their neighbors' wives as well as prophesying lies. There is a wordplay here. The name Kolaiah is related to the Hebrew term qelalah ("curse") and qalah ("to burn"). Thus they would roast in the fire. So heinous were their lying prophecies that the king of Babylon would charge them with treason and condemn them to death by burning (Dn 3:6,20,23).

29:24-25 Shemaiah the Nehelamite was another false prophet. He had apparently ordered the priest Zephaniah to silence Jeremiah. Zephaniah was warden over police regulations in the temple (21:1; 37:3; 52:24).

29:26 Shemaiah charged Jeremiah with being a madman.

29:29-32 Zephaniah the priest read Shemaiah's letter to Jeremiah, who responded with another letter from the Lord to the exiles. He exposed Shemaiah's hypocrisy and set his punishment—that he would have no descendants and he would not live to see the restoration God had predicted. No harm, however, came to Jeremiah, in fulfillment of God's promise (1:8,19; 15:20).

30:1-33:26 These chapters were written during the final days of the siege of Jerusalem (the last 18 months of that siege; 32:1-2); yet they foretell a bright future. Jeremiah was in prison and the city was in dire straits; nevertheless, he foresaw in the distant future the restoration of the nation to its land, the new covenant of redemption, the rule of a purified Davidic king over a purified Zion, and a large number of Gentiles coming to the Messiah.

30:2 The command from the Lord to Jeremiah to write down on a scroll all the words that I have spoken introduces chapters 30-31, and probably 32-33 as well.

30:3 The days are . . . coming announces eschatological times (3:16; 16:14; 23:5; 31:27,31). It is the distant future that Jeremiah had in mind. The phrase I will restore the fortunes (lit "turn the turnings" or "reverse the fortunes") appears often in these chapters. Restore them to the land I gave to their ancestors looks to a time beyond the future return from the exile. The exiles, when they returned, retook only a small portion of the ancestral lands. Thus the restoration God promised here looks beyond this event.

30:7-8 Much debate revolves around the phrase on that day. Was this the day Cyrus captured Babylon? If so, why would it be so horrendous for Israel? Cyrus was their liberator. "That day" therefore must be the time when God will judge all nations. "That day" is used in Scripture to introduce the "Day of the Lord" (Am 5:18-20; Zph 1:14-18). All oppression (his understood collectively of all Israel's oppressors) of Israel will be overcome on that future day.

30:9 God will raise up David their king for them refers to the future ideal king, a so-called "second David." This messianic person in the line of David is paired with the LORD their God. The Jewish Targum correctly interprets this line as "Messiah, the son of David."

30:10 Judah and Israel are called My servant Jacob. Elsewhere diverse persons such as Nebuchadnezzar, Cyrus, and the Messiah are said to be God's servants or shepherds (e.g., 25:9; Is 44:28). God promised to regather Israel from all the lands where He had scattered them (Jacob will return). Their condition will be one of calm and quiet, a pastoral metaphor, like sheep resting with no one to frighten them.

30:11 God will chasten and destroy all the nations that oppress Israel. But He will not bring destruction on Israel, even though no one will be left unpunished.

30:12-17 Israel's wounds will be beyond human help, but the Lord will serve as their physician (but I will bring you health, see also 3:22 and 33:6). Israel's sad condition appears in three metaphors: no medicine, no physician, and no lovers.

30:15-16 Some argue that there is a radical change in God's attitude between these two verses. But God remains the same. His judgment must fall to bring Israel to the point where He can restore them. Israel's best hope was that God remains constant in spite of human fickleness. Israel's enemies will experience the same things Israel went through: (1) The nations who devoured you will be devoured, (2) those who sent Israel into captivity will go off into exile, (3) the plunderers will be plundered, and (4) those who raided Israel will be raided.

30:18-20 In these verses a whole new day, not just a restoration, is promised for Israel. Jerusalem will be rebuilt, repopulated, and ruled by a new leader who is responsive to God.

30:18 Every city will be rebuilt on its mound or "tel." The Arabic word tell (Hb tel) denotes a mound that stands on the ruins of a destroyed or abandoned town.

30:21-22 This messianic prophecy emphasizes three functions: (1) the Messiah will be a native (one of them), not a foreigner; (2) He will carry the priestly prerogative, which allows him to approach the Lord like Melchizedek (Heb 5:5-6); and (3) He will declare You will be My people, and I will be your God.

30:23-24 To forestall any false security from the promises just delivered in verses 17-22, judgment must be poured out on the guilty. God's judgment will be like a sudden windstorm. His wrath will continue until the purposes of His heart are completely fulfilled. His purposes cannot be enacted until the sins of Israel and her adversaries have been addressed.

31:1-6 In these verses God declared that He will reunify all Israel. His words of comfort are addressed to all the families of Israel.

31:2 The combining of the wilderness with those who survived the sword links the exodus and wilderness experience with the return from exile in Assyria.

Survivors of both events enjoy God's favor and grace.

31:3 God's love for Israel has continued up to the present (Dt 7:8; 10:15; Hs 11:1). It is an everlasting and a faithful love.

31:4-5 With a threefold repetition of again, Israel's future will parallel her past. God pictures His love for Israel by calling her His virgin bride (2:1-3; Hs 2:14-23), recalling the early days in the wilderness.

31:6 The assumption is that the temple will be rebuilt in Jerusalem. Ephraim, standing for the 10 northern tribes of Israel, will again go up to Zion to worship.

31:7 Israel is called the chief of the nations (cp. Dt 26:19; Am 6:1) because they are God's elect. Five imperatives (sing . . . shout . . . proclaim, praise . . . say) are given to Israel to celebrate the great deliverance of God for the remnant of Israel.

31:8 God's future restoration will come not only from the northern land (Assyria and Babylon), but it will come from remote regions of the earth. This refers to a worldwide regathering in which no one will be excluded.

31:9 The phrase Ephraim is My firstborn means not first in chronology (Ephraim was Joseph's second son), but first in rank and priority just as Israel was called God's "firstborn" (Ex 4:22). Jacob (Israel) was God's "firstborn," even though he was Isaac's second son. David, eighth son of Jesse, is called a "firstborn" in Ps 89:27, and Jesus is called "the firstborn of all creation (Col 1:15; Rv 1:5), both signifying first in rank and importance, not chronology.

31:10 The nations, all Gentiles, are to be told that the One who scattered Israel will gather them.

31:11 The Lord ransomed Jacob, as if He had paid the ransom price (Hb padah ; cp. Ex 13:13,15; 34:20). The words redeemed him recalls the practice of a family redeemer (Hb ga'al ; cp. Lv 25:25,48; Nm 35:12,19; Ru 2:20; 3:9,8,14), a man who was expected to rescue a close relative from danger or hardship.

31:12-14 The harvests will grow, with the result that the priests' portion will increase with an abundance.

31:15 Rachel, Joseph's mother, is pictured as weeping in Ramah, a town five miles north of Jerusalem. Ramah served as the staging grounds for the deportation to Babylon (40:1-4). Rachel was Jacob's favorite wife. She died giving birth to Benjamin (Gn 35:18). She is also referred to as the mother of all 10 northern tribes of Israel since her descendants Ephraim and Manasseh were heads of the two leading tribes in that region. The citation in Mt 2:17-18 depicts Rachel as the embodiment of all Israel's mothers weeping for their slain children, a tragedy that Herod's atrocities called to mind once more.

31:16 The reward for Rachel's work is that her children will come back from exile from all over the world, just as Jacob and Rachel returned from serving Laban with all their children as their "reward."

31:16-17 Rachel is twice told to stop weeping, because your children will return.

31:18-20 Ephraim, representing the 10 northern tribes, finally saw how he had acted as an untrained (or "undisciplined") calf (cp. Hs 10:11) and as a rebel against God. But now chastened and repentant, he struck his thigh . . . ashamed and humiliated. Ephraim will be forgiven and, like the prodigal, will return home. God's love will triumph over Israel's rebellion (Hs 11:1-11).

31:21 These road markers and signposts would lead Israel back home from Babylon and function as signposts of the "ancient paths" they had traveled with God (6:16).

31:22 Virgin Israel is called a faithless daughter—an apostate, backsliding turnabout. The phrase a female will shelter a man is perhaps the most obscure phrase in all of Jeremiah. Some see this as a prophecy of the virgin birth of Christ. But the word "female" does not have a definite article with it, and such a general word for "woman" cannot be made to mean a virgin. Further, "to shelter" does not mean conceiving, nor does any of this fit the context. No one interpretation satisfies all difficulties since the intention of the verb "to shelter" is uncertain. Something new may mean that "woman" refers to Israel and "man" to the Lord, so that a new relationship between Israel and her God will arise in the latter days.

31:26 Some people take this verse to be a contradiction of 23:25, where Jeremiah criticized revelatory dreams. But there he spoke only of the dreams of false prophets (see note at 23:25-29).

31:29-30 The proverb about the fathers eating sour grapes, and the children's teeth being set on edge reflects the widespread belief that they were being unfairly punished for the sins of the previous generation, but Moses taught that this was not true (Dt 24:16). Ezekiel also refuted this proverb (Ezk 18:2-4).

31:31-34 The NT frequently used this passage about the new covenant (Lk 22:20; 1Co 11:25; 2Co 3:5-14; and Heb 8:8-12, the longest quote from the OT in the NT). It is a classic text that has shaped much of Christian theological reflection.

31:31 The new covenant is set in eschatological times of the Messiah and the consummation of history (the days are coming). The name of this new covenant suggests a radical break from past covenants. But the word for "new" in Hebrew can also mean "renewed covenant," especially since three-fourths of the contents of this covenant recall the Abrahamic-Davidic covenants. The principal parties of the covenant are the house of Israel and the house of Judah. While there has been a cleavage between the 10 northern tribes and the two southern tribes, both parts are included here, suggesting a rejoining of the two parts. This new covenant also applies to the church, because Gentiles were part of this continuing Abrahamic-Davidic new covenant when God promised that in Abraham's seed all nations would be blessed. Among the other names given to this new covenant in the OT is "Everlasting Covenant," which speaks to its duration.

31:32 The problem with the old covenant was not with its maker or its contents, but with God's people who broke their marriage vows to Him (cp. 11:10). God said this covenant would not be like the covenant I made with their ancestors at the exodus or on Sinai, but it would be made "after those days" (v. 33) when the people of Israel are restored to their land.

31:33 God will still place His law within them and write it on their hearts. This law or instruction is a point of continuity between the old and new covenants, only this time God would write the law internally rather than externally on tablets. Gone would be the evil will and heart of the people, which had characterized Israel in the past (13:10; 18:12; 23:17).

31:34 Once the merely external law is a thing of the past, no longer will one teach his neighbor or his brother, saying, 'Know the LORD ,' for they will all know Me. Teaching will also be a thing of the past. From the least to the greatest of them indicates all people no matter their social class ("great" to the "poor," cp. 5:4-5) or age ("youngest" to the "oldest," cp. 6:13). The phrase I will forgive . . . and never again remember their sin reflects the grace of God that forgives sin and the omniscience of God that chooses not to call it to mind or to hold it against us.

31:36-37 The permanence of God's promise to Israel is compared to the durability of the cosmos: If this fixed order departs . . . then also Israel's descendants will cease . . . I will reject all of Israel's descendants. It is impossible for Israel to disappear, or to cease existing.

31:38 Once again in days connected to the consummation of history, Jerusalem will be rebuilt from the Tower of Hananel to the Corner Gate. The Tower of Hananel was in the northeast corner of Jerusalem (Neh 3:1; 12:39; Zch 14:10), and the Corner Gate was probably at the northwest corner of the city wall (2Kg 14:13; 2Ch 26:9).

31:39 The hill of Gareb and Goah are unknown to us today. Since the other places mentioned were on the north side of Jerusalem, it may be assumed that these unknown places were on the south.

31:40 The valley, presumably composed of corpses and ashes, must be the Hinnom Valley (see note at 7:31), where Israel buried the dead. The Horse Gate apparently was on the eastern wall of the city at the northern end of the Kidron Valley (Neh 3:28).

32:1 -2 The promise of a bright future was given during one of Judah's darkest moments in 588 B.C. when Jeremiah was imprisoned in the guard's courtyard (33:1), in the tenth year of Zedekiah king of Judah and the eighteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar. This dating is correct if Nebuchadnezzar's reign is based on his accession year in the fall of 605 B.C. (see note at 25:1). His first official full year as king was 604 B.C. (52:29). Otherwise, his eighteenth by Jewish reckoning was his seventeenth year by Babylonian reckoning.

32:3-5 The Babylonian siege, which began in King Zedekiah's ninth year (39:1), was temporarily lifted when news came that the Egyptian army was approaching (37:5). Jeremiah was arrested during this lull in the siege on the grounds that he was trying to escape and because he was encouraging Judah to surrender to Babylon (37:11-14). It was God who would hand this city over to Babylon's king, but it would be Nebuchadnezzar who would capture it, showing that God's overarching plan for history is fulfilled by human choices. Zedekiah would be left in Babylon until God attended to him. Attend in this context connotes a sense of threat.

32:6 After the parenthetical explanation in verses 2-5, verse 6 picks up from verse 1 with a first-person description of what is about to take place.

32:7 Jeremiah was given symbolic evidence for the hope he had just preached about Israel's future. His cousin, Hanamel, would offer him the right of redemption for family property in his hometown of Anathoth. The legal precedent for this action is found in Lv 25:25-28. In the event of poverty or debt, the next of kin had the right to purchase the property, keeping it in the family. This same type of transaction is demonstrated in the Ruth story (Ru 3:9-13; 4:1-12).

32:8 Jeremiah had the right of inheritance and redemption in relation to the property.

32:9 The prophet purchased the land for 17 shekels of silver. This refers to the weight of the silver. Coins were not used until the Persian period in the seventh century B.C. Monetary values were set by weighing ingots of precious metals. Silver was one of the chief forms of payment. A hoard of such ingots was found in a cooking pot beneath the floor in En-gedi from Jeremiah's time and another in Tel Miqne-Ekron from the same period.

32:10-11 Four steps were involved in this real estate transaction: Jeremiah recorded the transaction on a scroll, sealed it, called in witnesses, and stored it in two copies: a sealed copy and an open copy. The sealed copy was rolled up with a seal placed on the outside as a backup copy to verify that no tampering had taken place. The open copy was a duplicate.

32:12 Jeremiah's scribe was Baruch son of Neriah, son of Mahseiah. A number of seal impressions (known as bullae) used to seal documents on parchments or papyrus have been discovered. One says, "Berekyahu son of Neriyahu the scribe." This seal's origin is unknown, but the names inscribed on it fit this verse, for the divine name (Yahweh, or the "Lord") is indicated by Yahu, which appears as a suffix to the names Baruch and Neriah. Baruch, meaning "blessed," is the shortened form of the proper name on this seal impression.

32:14 The earthen storage jar that Jeremiah used was the kind the Dead Sea Scrolls were sealed in. Other such jars have been found at Elephantine, Egypt.

32:15 Jeremiah's purchase of the field at Anathoth symbolized Israel's future restoration to the land.

32:17 Only twice in his book is Jeremiah recorded as praying—here and in 42:4. In this prayer the prophet declared, Nothing is too difficult for You. His emphasis was not on the difficulty of what God does, but on the "wondrous" (Hb pele') nature of the divine work in creation and history (Gn 18:14; Ex 3:20; 15:11).

32:18 The phrase You show faithful love to thousands occurs also in Ex 20:6; Dt 5:10; compare Ex 34:7; Dt 7:9. God's retribution is just and fair, not capricious. He only lays the fathers' sins on their sons' laps when they themselves repeat those sins.

32:21-22 You brought Your people Israel out of Egypt repeats the language of Dt 26:8-9.

32:27 On is anything too difficult for Me, see note at verse 17.

32:29-35 The first-person pronoun appears 10 times in these verses. God's anger is real, but its expression is always contingent on Israel's repentance.

32:33 Once again, Israel had turned their backs to God and not their faces (see note at 18:17).

32:35 The idolatrous worship of Baal and Molech, in which Israel caused their sons and daughters to pass through the fire (see notes at 7:31 and 19:4) is also banned in Lv 18:21 and 20:2-5.

32:36-44 In six remarkable promises in these verses, God declared that He will: (1) gather His people from all lands (23:3; 29:14; 30:10; 31:8-14; Is 11:12; Ezk 11:17; 36:24); (2) make them live in safety; (3) declare that they will be My people, and I will be their God; (4) give them one heart and one way so . . . they will fear Me always; (5) make an everlasting covenant with them (Is 55:3; 61:8; Ezk 16:60; 37:26); and (6) take delight in them and faithfully plant them in this land.

32:41 God pledges to carry this out with all His heart and mind. This is the only place in the OT where this expression is used of God.

32:42-44 The last verses of this chapter return to Jeremiah's purchase of the field in Anathoth. This was a sure sign that fields in Judah would once again belong to Hebrews in the future. This will include all the geographical areas in Israel, from Benjamin, where Jeremiah's purchase was made, to Jerusalem . . . Judah, and all the way south to the Negev.

33:1 The phrase a second time links verses 1-13 with the previous chapter.

33:3 The things that God will reveal are incomprehensible, or "inaccessible." The Hebrew word is betsuroth, used of "walled up" cities that were "fortified."

33:4-5 The sense of these verses seems to be that all efforts to rescue Jerusalem will fail. These actions include tearing down houses for stones to plug up holes in the city wall and to set up barricades. The corpses will be citizens of Judah, not Babylonian soldiers.

33:6 The word for health is literally "new flesh" (8:22). Thus the exile will have a healing effect on Judah. The word abundance occurs only here. Related to the Hebrew word for "crown" or "diadem," it means "treasures."

33:8 This emphasis on forgiveness picks up the theme of the new covenant (see note at 31:31-34). Three key Hebrew words for sin are used in this verse.

33:13 The Jewish Targum substitutes the word "Messiah" for the one who counts them, but this is not necessary. The word refers to a person who counted sheep as they came into the sheepfold at night to make sure that none were missing.

33:14-26 These verses are not in the LXX. Some think the promises are too exaggerated in their predictions since none of them have happened so far, but the time when this will happen is in the days . . . coming, meaning the distant future (v. 14). The perpetuity of the Davidic dynasty and Levitical priesthood are promised, keeping with the revelation in chapters 23 and 30-33.

33:15 On the Righteous Branch, see notes at 23:5 and 23:6.

33:16 The name Yahweh Our Righteousness was formerly a name applied to the Messiah. In this verse it is applied to Jerusalem (see note at 23:6).

33:17-18 These verses do not literally promise the constant presence of a Davidic king and a Levitical priesthood (history shows this did not happen). Rather, it means that there will be no cessation of David's dynasty or of the office of the priesthood (will never fail to have a man always before Me). Jesus fulfilled the offices of King and Priest (Ps 110:4). Christ's priesthood does not follow Levi's line, but the line of Melchizedek, the priest of Salem (Gn 14:17-20).

33:19-22 God compared the irrevocability of His promises to David (2Sm 7) and Levi's lines (Nm 17) with His unbreakable covenant with day and night. God would break His covenant with David and the Levites no sooner than day and night would cease to come at their regular time. The promise given to the whole nation (Gn 15:5; 22:17)—that they would be innumerable—is extended to the descendants of My servant David and the Levites.

33:24 Some disbelieving Israelites were saying that the LORD had rejected the two families He had chosen. These families were not the royal and priestly families referred to in verses 21-22, but the northern and southern kingdoms of Israel. The verb "to choose" is used uniquely here in Jeremiah. It is often used elsewhere of God's election of Israel (Ex 19:5-6; Am 3:2).

33:25-26 Even after the nation of Israel ceases to exist, the promises made to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob are guaranteed by God and are as sure as His covenant with the day and with the night. Count on the natural order collapsing and going out of existence before God's promises to David, Levi, and the nation evaporate.

34:1 The attack against Jerusalem and all its surrounding cities is spoken of in hyperbolic, global terms—all the earthly kingdoms, or literally "all the kingdoms of the earth." It was as if the whole world was lined up against Judah.

34:3 King Zedekiah would meet the Babylonian king eye to eye and speak face to face. There his eyes would be put out after he was forced to watch the execution of his sons (39:5-7; 52:8-11).

34:5 Zedekiah would not be killed. He would die in Babylon and have a burning ceremony just like the "funeral fire" at other royal funerals (2Ch 16:14; 21:19). This ceremony involved burning spices on the coffins, but it did not necessarily involve cremation.

34:7 Only Lachish and Azekah remained of all of Judah's cities as the siege of Jerusalem continued. Lachish was a fortified city 30 miles southwest of Jerusalem. Azekah, likewise fortified, was northeast of Lachish. Discovered among the ruins of Lachish were letters written on pottery. One contained the words of a sentinel: "We are watching for the signals of Lachish . . . because we do not see Azekah." Presumably, Azekah had already fallen when these words were written.

34:8-10 King Zedekiah's covenant with all the people was not the same as the Lord's covenant (v. 18), that all male and female Hebrew slaves should be set free. The motivation for issuing this proclamation of emancipation is not given. It seems to have come just before the temporary lifting of Nebuchadnezzar's siege against Jerusalem in late spring or early summer of 588 B.C. due to a rumor about the approach of the Egyptian army. All the king's officials and the people agreed to free their male and female slaves and to release them from their debts.

34:11 When the siege was lifted, the people abandoned their panic-inspired piety, with the result that slave owners repudiated their solemn oath to God in violation of the provisions in Ex 21:2-6; Dt 15:12-18.

34:14 At the end of seven years is actually "at the end of six years" as the passage makes clear and as the Sinaitic law specified (Ex 21:2-6). However, Dt 15:1,12 states, "at the end of seven years."

34:15-16 The king, his officials, and the people made a covenant before the Lord at the temple, only to change their minds, thus profaning God's name.

34:17 With a devastating play on words and an irony of ironies, God would take Judah's revoked proclamation of emancipation and make His own proclamation: Judah would experience freedom from His protection, thus falling to sword, to plague, and to famine.

34:18-20 In a covenant ceremony, a calf was cut (Hb karath; "to cut," "to make a covenant") in two in order that the parties to the covenant could pass between its pieces. This is similar to Gn 15:10,17, where only God walked between the pieces, figuratively vowing His own destruction if He failed to keep His word. Parties who passed between the pieces were in effect saying, "If I do not keep the terms of this covenant, may I die like this slaughtered animal."

34:19-20 Everyone who passed between the pieces would be handed over to their enemies.

34:21-22 Nebuchadnezzar's army had withdrawn briefly, but God would give the command to bring them back to this city (Jerusalem). Archaeologists have not found a single town in Judah that was occupied from the time of this destruction up to the Hebrew return from exile.

35:1-19 After devoting several chapters to King Zedekiah, Jeremiah in this chapter skips back to approximately 10 years earlier, the time of Jehoiakim son of Josiah (609-598 B.C.).

35:2 The house (household) of the Rechabites is known largely from this chapter. Their founder was Jonadab or Jehonadab, son of Rechab, who lived under King Jehu of the northern kingdom. Jehonadab apparently supported the king's radical reform movements (2Kg 10:15-23), which included demolishing the Baal cult and other elements of Canaanite culture. The Rechabites also promised their ancestor that they would not build houses or plant vineyards, apparently so they would be able to remain mobile. They were devout worshipers of the Lord. The Lord told Jeremiah to invite the Rechabites into the temple to offer them a drink of wine.

35:3-4 Jaazaniah and Habazziniah are not mentioned elsewhere. The father of Jaazaniah, identified here as Jeremiah, is not the prophet. Jaazaniah must have been the head of the Rechabites at this time.

35:4 The chamber Jeremiah used for this occasion was near the officials' chamber, which was above the chamber of Maaseiah son of Shallum the doorkeeper. Maaseiah may have been the father of the priest Zephaniah (21:1; 29:25; 37:3).

35:5 The jars filled with wine were large drinking bowls with dipping cups. Drink wine, Jeremiah invited them.

35:6-11 The Rechabites declined the offer of wine, making it clear that they had obeyed the voice of Jonadab, son of . . . Rechab, in all he commanded us. Their rejecting a sedentary culture and its trappings, such as wine cultivation and indulgence, was just the illustration Jeremiah needed to teach obedience to the Lord's commands.

35:17-19 Disaster would be Judah's lot because of her persistent disobedience, but the Rechabites would never fail to have a man to always stand before Me. The phrase "to stand before the Lord" is used for those who serve Him (7:10; 15:19; Dt 4:10; 10:8; 1Kg 17:1; 18:15; 2Kg 3:14). What happened to the Rechabites after 587 B.C. is unknown except for Malchijah son of Rechab. He repaired the Dung Gate in the days of Nehemiah (Neh 3:14).

36:1 This fourth year of Jehoiakim in 605-604 B.C. was a critical time (25:1; 45:1). Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon had defeated the Assyrian forces at Carchemish on the Euphrates River and had begun his move south to Syria and Israel. Everything was heading toward the finale that Jeremiah had warned about for many years.

36:2-3 The prophet was instructed to take a scroll, which in Hebrew was called a megillath sepher, "a book-scroll," made of goat skins or papyrus. This word occurs only here; verse 4; Ps 40:7; and Ezk 2:9. Was it a scroll of book length? Modern book or codex formats did not appear until the first century A.D. Jeremiah was to write on this scroll all the words God had spoken concerning Israel, Judah, and all the nations. Some object to "Israel" in this verse, but Jeremiah did address his words to the now-banished northern part of the nation from time to time (3:6-11). His call in 1:10 had been to "all the nations." The scroll was to cover the time I first spoke to you during Josiah's reign until today. The hope was that when Judah heard about the disaster I am planning to bring on them, each would turn from his evil way. The hope on which all preaching is based is God's willingness to forgive . . . wrongdoing and . . . sin in response to repentance.

36:4 Baruch son of Neriah came from a well-known family (see note at 32:12). Baruch's function is literally described: "Baruch wrote from the mouth of Jeremiah all the words the Lord had spoken to him on a book-scroll." Jeremiah claimed that the source of his words was God Himself and that Baruch just acted as his secretary.

35:5 Jeremiah had been restricted ("shut up," "confined," "imprisoned") from going to the temple, so he sent Baruch to read the scroll there.

36:6 When Baruch had transcribed all the words Jeremiah spoke to him from God, he was to give a public reading of the scroll on a day of fasting. Public fasts were often declared in Israel, especially during times of calamity (Jl 2:12,15) or war. This public reading might recall a similar day in which the public reading of the Torah sparked Josiah's revival (2Kg 23:1-3). A number of months passed between the writing of the scroll and its public reading, as seen from the dates in Jr 36:1,9,22.

36:9 The fifth year of Jehoiakim was 604 B.C., and the ninth month (December 604) was when the Babylonians sacked the Philistine city of Ashkelon. This event may have forced Jehoiakim to switch his allegiance from Egypt to Babylon.

36:9-10 Gemariah was the son of Shaphan the scribe. Shaphan was King Josiah's secretary of state (2Kg 22:3,8,12). Gemariah was the brother of Ahikam, one of Jeremiah's few friends (Jr 26:24), but he was not the Gemariah mentioned in 29:3. Gemariah allowed Baruch to use his room in the temple's inner court, which provided a setting in which the assembled people could hear Baruch's reading.

36:11 When Micaiah son of Gemariah and grandson of Shephan—a family supportive of Jeremiah—heard what Baruch read, he repeated the words to all the king's officials (v. 12).

36:14 As Baruch read, he sat down in the typical Oriental manner of teaching (Lk 4:20). These cabinet ministers treated Baruch with respect and kindness (Jr 36:15,19).

36:16-19 The officials seemed to believe what Jeremiah had written. It must have been the opposite of what they were being told by the king and his counselors. Knowing the danger Jeremiah and Baruch were in, they urged them to hide themselves and tell no one where they were. This precaution was understandable because of what had happened to Uriah the prophet (26:20-23).

36:20-21 Fearing what the king's response might be, the officials deposited the scroll in the chamber of Elishama the scribe. But the king ordered Jehudi to retrieve it and read it for him.

36:22-25 Despite urgings from a few officials not to burn the scroll, King Jehoiakim cut the scroll up and threw the pieces into a blazing fire as he reclined in his winter quarters. This was a warm section of the palace apparently facing the winter sun (Am 3:15). The court officials were indifferent and irreverent as the king acted with defiance and blasphemy against the Word of God.

36:26 The king also ordered the arrest of Baruch and Jeremiah, but the Lord had provided protection for them through loyal friends.

36:28 God ordered Jeremiah to write on another scroll the very words that were on the original scroll. God's Word would not be so easily destroyed.

36:30 As punishment for his brazen act, Jehoiakim would have no one to sit on David's throne, and his corpse would be thrown out to the heat of day and the frost of night. Some assume that Jehoiakim died in a palace uprising or a revolution of the people (v. 31; cp. 22:18-19).

36:32 In creating the replacement scroll, Jeremiah dictated to Baruch the words that had been on the first scroll plus many other words like them. Presumably, these new words dealt with the fulfillment of his prophecies about Judah as events unfolded after the burning of the first scroll.

37:1-21 Eighteen years passed between the events of chapter 36 and those of chapter 37.

37:1 In fulfillment of Jeremiah's prophecy in 36:30, Zedekiah (a brother of Jehoiakim) was placed on the throne in place of Jehoiachin (also known as Coniah), son of Jehoiakim. Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon had made Zedekiah king. This is an unusual expression until we remember that Jehoiachin was deported to Babylon after only three months as king, and Zedekiah was installed in his place by the Babylonian king.

37:2 Judah's problems were never just political; they were mostly spiritual problems shared by the newly installed king, his officers and the people of the land. They had no desire to heed the word from the Lord.

37:3 For the second time (21:1-2), Zedekiah sent messengers to Jeremiah requesting, Please pray to the LORD our God for us.

37:4 Jeremiah was free to come and go as he pleased, but this would soon change.

37:5 The phrase Pharaoh's army had left Egypt probably refers to Pharaoh Hophra (44:30) or Apries of Herodotus (2.161; 4.159). This caused Babylon to withdraw temporarily from the siege of Jerusalem in the summer of 588 B.C. The Babylonians soon defeated the Egyptians, and the siege of Jerusalem resumed.

37:6-10 Jeremiah's answer to Zedekiah's prayer request was that the Egyptian army would return home to Egypt and the Babylonians would resume their siege and sack Jerusalem. This was hardly a morale booster for Zedekiah and the people of Judah.

37:12 Jeremiah was arrested as he set out to inspect and claim his portion of the property in his native town of Anathoth (1:1; 32:8). He had just purchased this property from his cousin Hanamel (chap. 32).

37:13 An officer of the guard presumed Jeremiah was deserting to the enemy. After all, the prophet had encouraged others to surrender to the Babylonians (see note at 21:9).

37:15 The house of Jonathan the scribe had been made into a prison. Officer's homes often served as prisons in the ancient Near East.

37:16 Jeremiah was placed in a cell in the dungeon (lit "the house of a cistern-pit"). This was a vault adjoining an underground dungeon, where he could have been left to die (v. 20).

37:17 King Zedekiah called for Jeremiah a third time, but this time in secrecy. Perhaps he hoped this would encourage a good word from the Lord. But the word from the prophet was not good. He, the king of Judah, would be handed over to the king of Babylon.

37:18-20 These verses show Jeremiah's humanity as he asked for humane treatment from Zedekiah and a bill of particulars to specify the crimes for which he had been imprisoned.

37:21 Zedekiah reversed his officials' decision and transferred Jeremiah to the guard's courtyard. Here he was given a loaf of bread each day from the baker's street. Streets of Near Eastern cities were often named after those whose businesses were on that street, hence Baker's Street—the only street name in Jerusalem known to us.

38:1 Jucal and Pashhur, already mentioned in 21:1 and 37:3, were among the four persons who heard Jeremiah's messages from the guard's courtyard (37:21).

38:2 The Chaldeans derived their name from an ancient name Chaldai, which referred to a group of Aramean tribes that moved into lower Mesopotamia somewhere around 1000 to 900 B.C. After they moved from their tribal settlements to urban settings, they acquired the name Babylonians, or more precisely, Neo-Babylonians. Thus "Chaldeans" and "Babylonians" are used interchangeably.

38:3 Jeremiah repeated the substance of this message over and over again (21:7; 37:8).

38:4 The prophet was charged with weakening the morale (lit "the hands") of the warriors. In Lachish Letter VI, one of 21 letters written on potsherds left during the siege of Jerusalem and Judah, this very expression is used of certain nobles in Jerusalem (see ANET, 16, pp. 321-22).

38:5 This verse portrays King Zedekiah as a weakling without moral fiber who was controlled by his officials.

38:6 Malchiah the king's son was not one of Zedekiah's sons, but a royal prince (see 36:26 for a similar expression).

38:7-9 Ebed-melech, a Cushite court official, whose name means "servant of the king," was a royal official of Ethiopian descent. He told Zedekiah what the officials had done and how desperate Jeremiah's situation was. It took real courage for him to oppose those who were determined to stop Jeremiah's proclamations.

38:10 Ebed-melech was authorized to take 30 men to pull Jeremiah . . . up from the cistern before he dies. One Hebrew manuscript and the Greek Septuagint read "three" for "thirty," but this is not enough evidence to overrule the Hebrew text as it stands. Perhaps 30 were needed for the total task: some for protection and some for pulling the prophet out of the pit.

38:11-13 The old rags and worn-out clothes were needed to protect Jeremiah from the ropes, since he was mired down in mud (v. 6). The narrative in 37:17-21 does not include all these details about Jeremiah's rescue, but both record the prophet's plea not to be sent back to this cistern (37:20; 38:26).

38:14 The third entrance, where this secret discussion between Jeremiah and the king took place, is otherwise unknown. Could it have been the king's private entrance to the temple?

38:16 Zedekiah swore (as the LORD lives) to the prophet that he would not kill him or turn him over to his enemies.

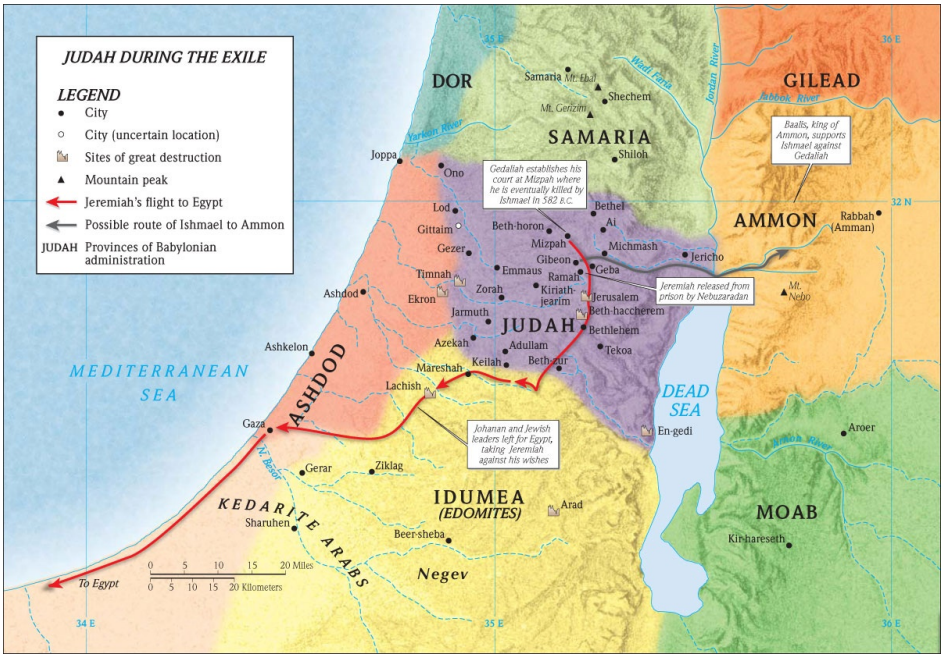
38:19 Apparently a few citizens of Judah had already deserted to the Babylonians (see note at v. 2). The king feared these deserters might abuse him if he fell into the hands of the Babylonians.

38:21 The vision the Lord had shown Jeremiah (the verdict that the LORD has shown me) was the basket of figs (24:1-10), and it still foretold the same dire consequences.

38:22 Zedekiah feared the ridicule of Judah's defectors (v. 19). But he was even more frightened of the women (his own harem) who would remain in the palace of Judah's king. They might shower insult and ridicule on him for being so gullible that he trusted weak allies and false prophets. The women would try to curry favor with their new Babylonian overlords.

38:27 What Jeremiah told all the officials of the king was the truth. The prophet had requested that he not be sent back to his cistern prison again. Some argue that this was not the whole truth but only a half-truth. However, some persons give up their right to know the full truth. For example, the Lord instructed Samuel to tell Saul that he had come to offer a sacrifice, not revealing that he had also come to anoint David as king. Saul by his actions had forfeited his right to know the full truth (1Sm 16:1-4).

39:1 -2 The siege of Jerusalem began in January of 588 B.C. and lasted until July of 587 B.C., except for a brief interlude in the summer of 588 (52:4-6).



39:3 The names and titles of the Babylonians are not entirely clear. Nergal-sharezer was the Samgar, which is either a Babylonian title or a district in Babylon named "Simmagir." Nebusarsechim may be the same as "Nebushazban" (v. 13). Both are called the Rab-saris, or "a chief official of the court." A second person named Nergal-sharezer was a Rab-mag, another unknown Babylonian title. This one was Nebuchadnezzar's son-in-law who later became king of Babylon (560-556 B.C.). One more name appears in verses 9-10,13 as part of the Babylonian entourage—Nebuzaradan, the commander or captain of the guards. The Middle Gate at which the officials of the king of Babylon . . . sat was probably between the upper and lower portions of Jerusalem. This is where the Babylonian officials set up the occupational court and government.

39:4-5 The king's garden and the gate between the two walls are otherwise unknown. King Zedekiah fled to the Arabah, referring to the Jordan Valley, where Jericho was located about 20 miles east of Jerusalem. After he was captured he was taken to Nebuchadnezzar's headquarters at Riblah in the land of Hamath, about 65 miles north of Damascus.

39:6-8 So important and tragic was the fall of Jerusalem that it is recorded in Scripture four times: chapters 39; 52; 2Kg 25; and 2Ch 36. Zedekiah saw the slaughter of his sons and his nobles (Jr 39:6) just before his eyes were put out by Nebuchadnezzar. Then he was carted off to Babylon in bronze chains. His palace was burned, along with the houses of the people, and the walls of Jerusalem were torn down.

39:9-10 The Babylonians deported the people of Judah to Babylon. This was the final deportation, coming 11 years after King Jehoiachin was taken away in 598 B.C. The poor people who owned nothing were given vineyards and fields. The word for "fields" has an uncertain meaning and could be translated "wells" or "watering places."

39:11-14 Jeremiah was turned over to Gedaliah son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, whom the Babylonians had just appointed governor of Judah. The Babylonians must have heard from the deserters and other sources that Jeremiah had advised that Judah's king should submit to the siege. Ironically, the prophet received better treatment from the enemy than he had received from his own people. Some have declared there is a contradiction between the events described in verses 11-14 and those in 40:1-6, but the two accounts supplement each other. Jeremiah was released from prison into Gedaliah's care (39:14). Jeremiah mingled with the captives as they were getting ready to be sent off to Babylon (v. 14). Unrecognized at first, Jeremiah was placed in chains and readied for deportation to Babylon (40:1). At Ramah, Jeremiah was recognized and released (40:4).

39:15-18 Ebed-melech is commended for his courageous act of rescuing Jeremiah from the muddy cistern (see notes at 38:7-9 and 38:10). There would be no reprisals against him. Ebed-melech was blessed because he trusted in the Lord—one of the few who heard Jeremiah's message and believed.

40:1-6 This passage amplifies and supplements 39:11-14 (see note there).

40:1 The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD does not seem to be given until 42:9. The captain of the Babylonian guard released Jeremiah at Ramah, modern er-Ram, about five miles north of Jerusalem, a staging area for the deportation. Apparently, the Babylonians had mistakenly put Jeremiah in chains to be deported.

40:2-3 Some doubt that Nebuzaradan, a Babylonian, could have spoken such high Hebrew theology. But it is clear from 2Kg 18:22 that the Assyrians paid close attention to the beliefs of enemy nations in order to wage psychological warfare against them. This captain of the guard may also have been acquainted with some of Jeremiah's teachings. Perhaps he had heard them from messages sent by ambassadors, from Jeremiah's letters to those in exile, and from deserters.

40:5 Jeremiah was told to return to Gedaliah son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan. In 1935, James Starkey, the excavator of Lachish, found a stamp-seal with these words: "Gedalyahu, the one over the house," i.e., palace governor (Is 36:22). This could be the same Gedaliah mentioned here, even though the name was common. The Hebrew title "[the one] who is over the house" designates a royal administrative official.

40:6 Mizpah was perhaps present-day Tell en-Nasbeh, about eight miles north of Jerusalem. Others locate it four miles southwest of Ramah at present-day Nabi Samwil. Gedaliah made this site his headquarters or administrative center.

40:8 In the absence of leaders, guerrilla bands emerged from hiding after the Babylonians took their captives back to Babylon. Most of the population of Judah was from the underprivileged class, with a few royal princesses who were left behind (43:6). Netophah (the Netophathite) was a Judean town between Bethlehem and Tekoa. Maacah (the Maacathite) was southeast of Hermon.

40:9 The guerrilla bands were pacified by Governor Gedaliah with an oath and the advice to settle down in the land. Gedaliah would be the mediator with the Babylonians.

40:11-12 Refugee Jews started returning from all over Moab, Ammon, Edom, and all the other lands. Summer was coming to an end, so it was necessary to gather the harvest (consisting of a great amount of wine and summer fruit) for the winter and to pay the Babylonian taxes. Apparently, the conquerors did not use a scorched-earth policy.

40:13-14 Johanan warned Gedaliah that Baalis, king of the Ammonites, had sent Ishmael to kill the newly appointed governor.

40:15-16 Despite Johanan's offer to make a preemptive strike against Ishmael, Gedaliah refused to do so. He felt the rumors about Ishmael were a lie.

41:1 Gedaliah was assassinated in the seventh month, our month of October. This occurred either in 587 B.C., three months after the fall of Jerusalem, or five years later in 582 B.C. in connection with another deportation of Jews mentioned in 52:30. The year cannot be fixed with certainty. Ishmael son of Nethaniah . . . of the royal family, was a member of the Davidic line and one of King Zedekiah's chief officers. He did not agree with Jeremiah's advice to surrender to the Babylonians either before or after the fall of Jerusalem.

41:2-3 Ishmael came with his 10 men and sat down for a meal with Gedaliah, who did not suspect treachery. In a breach of Eastern hospitality, they killed both Judeans and Chaldean soldiers on the spot.

41:4-5 Ishmael continued his slaughter by killing 70 of the 80 men who came from Shechem, Shiloh, and Samaria, carrying grain and incense offerings . . . to the temple. Though the temple was destroyed (note that these were bloodless sacrifices), the plot of ground it had occupied was still regarded as sacred, just like the Western Wall in Jerusalem today. Even though these men lived in pagan northern Israel, they continued to worship God in Jerusalem.

41:5 Though the 80 pilgrims were genuine worshipers of the Lord, syncretism was evident in the fact that they gashed themselves, a cultic practice adopted from Baal worship yet forbidden in the law of God (5:7; Dt 14:1; 1Kg 18:28).

41:8 Ishmael spared 10 men among the 80 because they offered him hidden treasure in the field. Ishmael's greed and deceit showed his true character. He had no good reason for killing the 70 men.

41:9 The cistern into which Ishmael stuffed the bodies of the slain was a large one from the time of King Asa. Three hundred years previously, Asa had built a fortress at Mizpah from the material he had dragged off from Baasha's construction of a fortress at Ramah (1Kg 15:22; 2Ch 16:6). Excavations at Tel en-Nasbeh may have uncovered this very cistern.

41:10 The phrase daughters of the king is puzzling. There are no references anywhere else to Zedekiah's daughters, so they may have been women of royal descent. Did the Babylonian garrison at Mizpah not know about their existence? Were they released after they were blinded? Did Nebuchadnezzar offer clemency to some of the royal princesses? We do not know.

41:11-18 Johanan, who opposed Ishmael, apparently returned to Mizpah, where he learned about Ishmael's treachery. Johanan tracked Ishmael with all the captives he had taken from Mizpah to the great pool in Gibeon, about three miles away. This large pit, hewn out of rock, is about 82 feet deep. Twelve of Abner's men fought 12 of Joab's men (2Sm 2:12-16) near this pool at what is today the city of el-Jib. Johanan rescued the captives, and Ishmael escaped with eight men. Johanan feared what the Babylonians might do as reprisals for Ishmael's killing spree, so he was determined to take the remnant of people left in Judah off to Egypt.

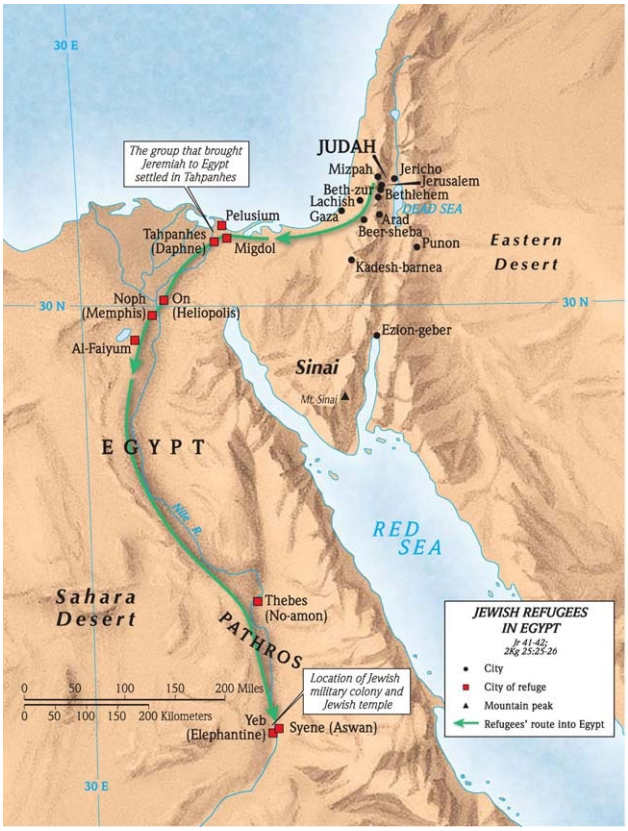
42:1 -2 The commanders and all the people came to Jeremiah to pray for guidance on what to do. They wanted Jeremiah to plead to the LORD your God so He would direct them. The prophet agreed to do so. How Jeremiah reached this group—or whether he had been living in Mizpah when Ishmael's attack happened—is not revealed. This Jezaniah is not the same as the Jezaniah of 40:8, but he is the same as the Azariah of 43:2; the Greek Septuagint reads Azariah in both 42:1 and 43:2. Then as now, men could go by more than one name, as did King Uzziah (aka Azariah, 2Kg 15:1). Hoshaiah may be the same man mentioned in the Lachish Letters, inscribed potsherds that tell about the last moments before the city's fall to Nebuchadnezzar.

42:5-6 Three times the people affirmed that they would do whatever the Lord told Jeremiah. They would certainly (lit "yes, indeed") obey the voice of the LORD.

42:7-9 Jeremiah was unwilling to speak until he had the Lord's answer, so it took 10 days. This must have caused more jitters about reprisals from the Babylonians. Perhaps the delay was part of God's test of the people. Would they be willing to wait for the Lord's answer despite their anxiety?

42:8-12 Once again Jeremiah delivered an unpopular message. God said He would not uproot them if they stayed in the land. This message disappointed them, for they wished to flee to Egypt rather than remain. God decided to relent concerning the disaster that He had brought on Judah (v. 10). This does not mean God changed His being, character, person, or purpose. The Hebrew verb is niham ("to be sorry," "to regret," "to relent"), which here means God "grieves" over Judah and changes His actions due to a change in Judah's response now that judgment had been meted out in the fall of Jerusalem. This verb with this meaning also occurs in 4:18; 18:8,10; 26:3,13,19 (see note at 18:7-10).

42:13-17 If the remnant of Judah's citizens trusted in humans and not in God, terrifying consequences awaited them in Egypt—sword . . . famine, and death. Though Egypt was defeated at the battle of Carchemish in 605, she had not experienced warfare in her own country. Indeed Egypt was the only country that had escaped this scourge. Judah had experienced war almost constantly since the battle of Megiddo in 609 B.C. when King Josiah was killed. The remnant of Judah are those who remained after the city's fall in 587 B.C.



42:18-22 The disobedient refugees would become an object of cursing, scorn, execration, and disgrace, just as Dt 28:68 predicted. They would experience exactly what they were trying to avoid by going to Egypt. The survivors in that land would suffer the same horrors for their disobedience that their relatives and friends had suffered in Judah for their disobedience. Their duplicity in asking for guidance but then refusing to obey it shows that they had led their own selves astray (lit "you are leading astray at the cost of your own lives"). This is a fatal mistake! The trio of judgments is sounded once more: sword, famine, and plague (cp. vv. 16-17; 14:12).

43:1-3 After Jeremiah finished telling the message God had given him, the leaders accused him of speaking a lie. They reversed the charge Jeremiah had brought against Judah's false prophets and charged him with speaking falsely (23:14,25-26; 27:10; 28:15; 29:21). They charged that Baruch (Jeremiah's secretary) was inciting him against them to deport them to Babylon.

43:4-7 These verses are bookended in a paragraph that has at its beginning and end the words "they did not obey the voice of the LORD " (vv. 4,7). The rebellious group arrived in Egypt at Tahpanhes, a fortified city on the northern border of Lower Egypt where Pharaoh had one of his palaces. It was probably modern Tell el-Dafenneh. Ironically, the remnant of Jews fled back to the land they had escaped from about 900 years earlier.

43:8-11 The Lord told Jeremiah to pick up some large stones and set them in the mortar of the brick pavement at the opening of Pharaoh's palace. Then Jeremiah was to announce to the remnant of Judah that Nebuchadnezzar would place his throne on these stones (v. 10). Egypt would experience the same thing that Judah had been through. Nebuchadnezzar did invade Egypt in the twenty-seventh year of his reign (568-567 B.C.; cp. Ezk 29:17-20), as Jeremiah predicted. What happened to Jeremiah and Baruch remains a mystery.

43:12 The Babylonian conqueror would pick Egypt clean, just as a shepherd picks lice off his garment. This delousing imagery does not seem to depict any resistance from the Egyptians.

43:13 The sun temple is a reference to Heliopolis (Hb On), known for its temple to the sun god Re. This city, five miles northeast of Cairo, was noted for its obelisks (sacred pillars). Besides those that were smashed, these obelisks were later carted off to New York, Rome, London, Istanbul, and Alexandria, leaving only one at On. Originally two rows of pillars lined the approach to Re's temple.

44:1-30 This chapter contains Jeremiah's last recorded public words. It is not known where or when he died. One tradition says he was murdered in Egypt by his fellow citizens of Judah.

44:1 Migdol, meaning "Tower," was on Egypt's northeastern border. It is located in modern Tell el-Her, and is mentioned in the time of the exodus (Ex 14:2; Nm 33:7) as well as in Ezekiel's time (Ezk 29:10; 30:6). On Tahpanhes, see note at 43:4-7. Memphis, or Noph, was located on the west bank of the Nile River about 15 miles south of Cairo, approximately at the head of the Nile delta. Pathros (lit "the land of the south") was located in Upper (i.e., southern) Egypt, approximately halfway between Cairo and the Aswan Dam, about three hundred miles south of Memphis. According to the Elephantine Papyri, a Jewish colony settled here in the fifth century B.C.

44:2-14 This passage is divided into three sections, each beginning with this is what the LORD of Hosts, the God of Israel, says (vv. 2,7,11). Verses 2-6 review Israel's history, verses 7-10 indict the rebellious fugitives in Egypt, and verses 11-14 announce judgment on the disobedient people.

44:2-4 In spite of God's persistent efforts to reverse Judah's infidelities, they continued their idolatry. The verb burning incense is Hebrew qitter , which is correctly rendered "burn incense," but is also used of offering burnt offerings of animals (Lv 1:9,17; 3:11,16; 1Sm 2:16; etc.) or a meal offering (Am 4:5).

44:4 God sent His servants the prophets (7:25; 26:5; 29:19; 35:15) to steer His people away from their infidelities, but to no avail. Time and time again is literally "rising early and sending."

44:7-9 In these verses God posed four questions: (1) Why are you doing such great harm to yourselves? (2) Why are you provoking Me to anger by the work of your hands? (3) Why are you burning incense to other gods in . . . Egypt? (4) How can you have forgotten the long history of evil that has marked your lives?

44:11-14 God's judgment for their sin will be strong: disaster and famine. They will become an object of cursing, scorn, execration, and disgrace. This is an enlarged warning over what Jeremiah declared in 42:17-18.

44:15-19 This is one of the most surprising passages in the Bible. In blatant defiance of God, all the men stated their preference for the queen of heaven, for by their logic their harsh fate was not a punishment from the God of Israel but was instead a result of ceasing sacrifices to her!

44:16-18 Jeremiah's view of the relationship between the nation's faithfulness to God and national well-being is sharply challenged by the renegade troupe of Judeans in Egypt. From their perspective, Judah's economy and overall health were good before the 621 B.C. revival under King Josiah, but since that revival, only hardships had come. They failed to understand that things went well before Josiah only because of God's merciful patience. After Josiah judgment was due, for Judah's repentance was incomplete.

44:17 On queen of heaven, see note at 7:18.

44:20-30 Chronologically speaking these verses contain the last messages of Jeremiah recorded in this book. The remaining chapters stem from an earlier time in his life.

44:20 Without introducing his words with the normal messenger formula ("this is the Lord's declaration"), Jeremiah emphatically addressed all the people.

44:21-22 Jeremiah responded to the argument that the offerings made to the queen of heaven were the same ones the people had historically offered to the Lord. In fact that was just the problem: Yahweh remembered those false sacrifices, and He could bear them no longer. That is why their land had become a desolate waste.

44:23 The prophet's reference to God's instruction . . . statutes, and testimonies takes us to the heart of God's charge against them. All of their acts were a breach of the covenant.

44:24-25 Jeremiah took up a second point in the rebels' argument—that they must be faithful to their vows (cp. v. 17). His response was ironical, if not sarcastic: Go ahead, confirm your vows! Pay your vows. Jeremiah must have had in mind 42:4-6, where the people had vowed to do whatever the Lord commanded. How could they keep vows to a pagan idol when they could not even keep their vows to the living God?

44:27 In 31:28 God was "watching over" His people to build and plant them, but here He would watch over them to allow harm to come to them.

44:30 Pharaoh Hophra of Egypt (589-570 B.C.) was an ally of King Zedekiah of Judah. He had sent his troops to help besieged Jerusalem (37:5). But he will also die by the hands of his enemies, just as surely as King Zedekiah fell into Babylonian hands. Pharaoh Hophra was assassinated by Amasis, who became pharaoh in 570 B.C., just before the Babylonians invaded Egypt (43:13-26; Ezk 29:17-20; 30:20-26).

45:1-5 Once again, 605 B.C. seems to be a marker for the history of Israel and Judah and for the grand story of the Bible (see notes at 25:1 and 36:1). Following this last summary are messages to the nations about God's actions in history, past and future.

45:1 Baruch ("Blessed") son of Neriah ("The Lord is my lamp") came from a notable family. He was the grandson of Mahseiah (32:12), governor of Jerusalem under King Josiah (2Ch 34:8, Maaseiah). The phrase these words is usually linked with the scroll that King Zedekiah burned in chapter 36. This could be the reason for Baruch's depression in this chapter. His brother had attained status in government, but his work of writing down the dictated words from Jeremiah the prophet had gone up in smoke. He had nothing to show for his labors.

45:4-5 These verses say, in effect, from God's viewpoint: "Baruch, if you think you have problems, what about Me? I am about to tear down what I have taken centuries to build up."

45:5 It is not clear what great things Baruch was seeking for himself. He may have been guilty of self-serving ambition, which Ps 131:1 rebukes. On the other hand, he may have wanted to see the mighty deeds of God that were promised in Dt 10:21; Ps 71:19. The most God promised to Baruch was that He would grant him his life like the spoils of war. That was the same promise given to the Ethiopian eunuch who saved Jeremiah's life (39:18).

46:1-51:64 Even though the Greek Septuagint version of the OT (third century B.C.) placed these prophecies against the nations after 25:13, there is no reason to doubt that they came from Jeremiah the prophet. It was not unusual for prophets to include a word from God for the foreign nations. Isaiah (Is 13-21), Ezekiel (Ezk 25-32), and Amos (Am 1:3-2:3) all did it. Often these messages were sent to foreign capitals by ambassadors living in Jerusalem. Rarely were they delivered personally by the prophet. The prophecies focus on 10 nations—Egypt, Philistia, Moab, Ammon, Edom, Syria (Damascus), Kedar, Hazor, Elam, and Babylon. Possibly the messages were given at various times during Jeremiah's ministry, then collected under the common theme of judgment for failure to live up to God's standards. Yahweh threatened these nations even though they were not part of the covenant because He is God of all nations. As such, He has the right to expect a standard of holiness and righteousness that accords with His nature, especially since all people are made in His image. So God will judge the foreign nations' sins, just as He will judge the sins of Israel and Judah.

46:1 This verse with its introduction serves as a superscription for the entire collection in chapters 46 through 51. The same formula appears at 14:1; 47:1; and 49:34.

46:2 The phrase the army of Pharaoh Neco, Egypt's king, which was defeated at Carchemish refers to the Pharaoh who killed King Josiah at Megiddo in 609 B.C. Neco placed Jehoahaz on the throne for three months and then removed him, imprisoned him at Riblah, and installed Jehoiakim in his place. In Jehoiakim's fourth year, Neco II went to aid the Assyrians against the rising Babylonian menace, but was defeated at the battle of Carchemish in 605 B.C.

46:3-12 These verses contain one of the most vivid poems in the OT. It was written either just before or just after the Babylonians thrashed Egypt. The poem describes the Egyptian army preparing for its confrontation with Nebuchadnezzar. It bristles with sarcasm. We can almost hear Egyptian officers barking out commands, preparing their troops for the conflict.

46:3 The Egyptians used small shields (small round bucklers used by lightly armed soldiers) and large shields (for protecting the whole body of the heavily armed soldier) in this battle.

46:4 The words horses and steeds show the charioteers were readied at the same time as the infantry. Chariot divisions were an important part of Egyptian warfare. John Bright (Jeremiah, p. 301) renders the sharp staccato of these lines so we can hear the commands being barked out: "Harness—horses! Riders—mount! Fall in—with helmets! Whet—lances! On—full armor!"

46:5 Why have I seen this (lit "Why or what do I see?") indicates that no sooner had the battle begun than the Egyptians broke ranks and fled for their lives. Terror is on every side shows that panic was widespread. This expression is a favorite of Jeremiah. He used it of the "foe from the north" (6:25), and for his detractor (20:3). It was also used as a taunt against Jeremiah himself (20:10).

46:7-8 Egypt's resurgence under Pharaoh Neco II is compared to the annual flood of the Nile River. Egypt fancied itself as one who will cover the earth, presumably like the Nile River. The same metaphor is used of Assyria (Is 8:7-8).

46:9 Apparently mercenary troops accompanied the Egyptian army from Cush, or Ethiopia, to the south of Egypt. Put may be the Punt of Egyptian literature. It bordered the east African coast. Lud, or Ludim, is variously understood as Lydia in Asia Minor (cp. the Ludites of Ezk 30:5) or the land in North Africa (Gn 10:13).

46:10 A theological interpretation of Egypt's defeat is given here. Some associate the vengeance with God's judgment of Egypt for killing King Josiah of Judah at Megiddo in 609 B.C. But the day of vengeance mentioned here is broader than this single event (Is 61:2). Egypt's defeat is viewed as a sacrifice to the Lord (cp. Is 34:5-7; Ezk 39:17-20; Zph 1:7).

46:11 Gilead's plant that produced healing medicine cannot be identified with certainty, but the association of this healing balm with Gilead is strong (8:22; 51:8; Gn 37:25). However, no remedy or healing salve could heal Egypt. Virgin Daughter Egypt is an unusual title for that nation, since it brings to mind "Virgin Israel" (18:13; 31:4,21).

46:13 With the defeat of the Egyptian force at Carchemish, Nebuchadnezzar advanced toward Egypt. In August of 605 B.C. Naboplassar, the father of Nebuchadnezzar, died. His son rushed back to Babylon to secure his throne. But the advance on Egypt soon resumed. By the end of 604 B.C. the Babylonian army had captured and sacked Ashkelon (47:2-9). Then it pressed on toward Egypt.

46:14 Migdol was on the northeastern border of Egypt. Noph or Memphis was the ancient capital of Lower Egypt, situated 25 to 30 miles south of Cairo. Its kings were the pyramid builders. Tahpanhes or Daphne was a fortress southwest of the Pelusium near the northwest border of Egypt (see note at 2:16). Egypt was to take positions and prepare themselves. The battle with Babylon was about to begin.

46:15 The phrase why have your strong ones been swept away shows that the gods of Egypt could not stand in this hour of crisis.

46:16 They say introduces two sentences spoken by the foreign mercenaries supporting Egypt. They decided to get up and return home.

46:17 Pharaoh Hophra of Egypt had boasted of what he would do, but he failed to pull it off. He was all noise. He had let the opportune moment pass. This pharaoh had promised to come to the aid of King Zedekiah during the final siege of Jerusalem (37:5-6), but it was only so much talk.

46:18 The title King is applied to the Lord. His sovereign declaration is that Nebuchadnezzar will come to Egypt. The Babylonian king will come like Tabor among the mountains and like Carmel by the sea. Tabor rises 1,800 feet in the Plain of Esdraelon while Carmel by the Mediterranean Sea rises 1,700 feet on its western face. Neither peak is especially tall, but because of their isolated positions and their steep slopes, they stand out against their surroundings. So victorious Babylon would tower over Egypt like these mountain peaks.

46:19 Inhabitant of Daughter Egypt is reminiscent of phrases applied to Judah's citizens: "My daughter, my people" (4:11; 6:26; 8:11,19,21-33; 14:17). Jeremiah advised the Egyptians to pack their bags for exile, just as his people had packed their bags in Judah to avoid exile forced by the same enemy. Memphis, capital of Lower Egypt, would become uninhabited ruins.

46:20 Egypt is pictured as a "beautiful heifer," but King Nebuchadnezzar is depicted as a horsefly from the north that would sting this young cow.

46:21 Egypt's mercenaries or hired soldiers were provided for, but they would turn and run in the day of their calamity.

46:22-24 The snake figure for Egypt was appropriate. It was their insignia of royalty. Despite the snake's hiding in the forest, the woodcutters will chop down the forest and Egypt will be handed over to the Babylonians.

46:25-26 The God of Israel will punish Amon, god of Thebes. Amon was the chief god of the city of Thebes, the capital of Upper Egypt. Later the god Amon was merged with Re to become Amon-Re, the sun god and the god of the rulers of Egypt. However, after Thebes is punished, there is a promise of restoration, which is repeated for other nations as well (48:47; 49:6,39).

46:27-28 These verses are virtually the same as 30:10-11. If Egypt had the prospect of restoration, this was even truer for Israel and Judah. The phrase My servant Jacob is reminiscent of texts in Is 41:8-14; 43:1-5, where Israel is also called the servant of the Lord. God would bring destruction on all the nations where He had banished them, but He would not bring destruction on Judah. Discipline will fall on Judah, but He will not totally destroy His people.

47:1-7 The superscription for this chapter is similar to 14:1; 46:1; 49:34, with the addition of the title prophet to Jeremiah's name, as in 46:1 and 49:34.

47:1 The phrase before Pharaoh defeated Gaza is part of the chronological notation, because the real invader will come out of the north and not from Egypt. But on what occasion did Pharaoh capture Gaza? Some link it with Neco's 609 B.C. defeat and slaying of King Josiah at Megiddo. This happened as Neco went to assist the Assyrians against the Babylonians. Others say Gaza was attacked in late 601 after Neco met Nebuchadnezzar and sent him home to Babylon to regroup his forces while Neco captured Gaza. The matter is not certain.

47:2 The reference to the waters . . . rising from the north surely points to the Babylonians. Isaiah used the same figure for the Assyrians (Is 8:7-8). But instead of the floods bringing fertile deposits to the land, they would make the Philistines cry out and wail.

47:3 With the same staccato of the previous chapter, the speed and terror of the battle will cause fathers not to turn back for their sons (lit feeling helpless "for [the] laziness of [their] hands"). So deep will the terror be that the Philistines will be powerless to fight, forsaking even their own children.

47:4 The Philistines and the Phoenicians are grouped together here; presumably there was an alliance between their cities. If so, then Nebuchadnezzar's actions against the Phoenician cities of Tyre and Sidon were merely preparatory for what was to come for the Philistine cities. Nebuchadnezzar besieged Tyre in 594 and 587 B.C. The phrase the Philistines, the remnant of the islands of Caphtor accords with Am 9:7 where Caphtor is described as the original home of the Philistines. Caphtor is usually identified with the island of Crete and the Aegean islands. The Philistines apparently belonged to a group known as the Sea Peoples. Their main wave of conquest and/or immigration was halted by Ramesses III around 1188 B.C., when they settled on the coastal plains of Palestine.

47:5 There are three signs of mourning here: shaving one's head to baldness, being silent, and inflicting gashes on oneself (16:6; 41:5). Two alternate translations for a remnant of their valley should be noted. First, the Hebrew word 'emeq, rendered "valley," may be the same as the Ugaritic/Canaanite word 'mq, meaning "strength." In this light the phrase could be translated, "O you last of their strength." Second, the LXX reads "Anakim," which links the people of Gaza and Ashkelon with the race of giants that were in the land before the Israelites invaded it (Nm 13:22-23; Dt 1:28). Joshua 11:22 notes remnants of this race still lived in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod.

47:6-7 Attempts to quiet the sword of the LORD would be futile. What had been decreed by the Lord against Ashkelon and the shore of the sea was finished when Nebuchadnezzar overran Ashkelon after a siege in 604-603 B.C. In an Aramaic letter archaeologists found at Memphis, King Adon of Ashkelon sought Neco's help as enemy troops reached Aphek. Receipts from the sons of the king and others from Ashkelon were also found at Babylon along with receipts from King Yaukin (Jehoiakim) of Judah and his sons. The attack against Ashkelon prompted King Jehoiakim to proclaim a fast in Jerusalem (chap. 36). This fast gave Baruch the opportunity to read Jeremiah's scroll.

48:1-47 This chapter contains Jeremiah's prophecy against the Moabites. Moab was located east of the Dead Sea, bounded on the south by the river Zered, on the north by the river Arnon, on the east by the desert, and on the west by the Dead Sea. A few towns mentioned in this chapter were north of the Arnon, since this small country extended north from time to time. The tribes of Reuben and Gad originally occupied this land (Nm 32:33-38). But in the time of Mesha, king of Moab (ninth century B.C.), Moab regained these areas. It was mostly a plateau with fertile lands.

48:1 Nebo was 12 miles east of the northern tip of the Dead Sea. It is also known from the days of the Reubenites (Nm 32:3,38). Kiriathaim, known from the Moabite Stone as a Moabite city, is possibly modern el-Qereiyat, about five miles northwest of Dibon.

48:2 Heshbon was the capital city of the Amorite king Sihon (Nm 21:25-30). An iron-age city has been identified through excavations at Heshbon. Madmen . . . will be silenced may be a wordplay on the city Dimon and the Hebrew verb dmm, "to be dumb, silent."

48:3-4 Horonaim ("double cave"?) is mentioned on the Moabite Stone but is otherwise unknown. Her little ones will cry out is rendered in the LXX as "their cry can be heard clear to Zoar." Zoar was probably located at the end of the Dead Sea, one of the five cities of the plain (Gn 13:10-11).

48:5 The Ascent to Luhith is otherwise unknown.

48:7 Pride in her works and in Chemosh, the national deity of Moab (Nm 21:29, 1Kg 11:7,33), were the sources of Moab's troubles as far as God was concerned. Chemosh/Kemosh is known on the Moabite Stone as Ashtar-Kemosh. Ashtar in Canaan was associated with the morning star, so it seems he was one of the astral deities. Solomon built a high place for Chemosh (1Kg 11:7) so the Moabite women in his harem could have a place of worship.

48:8 The valley probably refers to the Jordan Valley, which bordered Moab on the west. The plain signifies the plateau of the Transjordanian highland where most Moabite cities were located.

48:9 The phrase make Moab a salt marsh is the preferred reading following Ugaritic/Canaanite sisuma, "salt." Sowing an enemy's fields with salt was a way to destroy his land (Jdg 9:45). She will run away is obscure, but it could also be rendered, "She shall surely be laid in ruins."

48:10 The "destroyer" (v. 8), as the agent of the Lord, must not do the LORD's business deceitfully or negligently. God's business requires precision, promptness, and faithfulness.

48:11 Complacency is implied by the phrase settled like wine on its dregs—an apt metaphor for Moab and her renowned vineyards. Moab has been left quiet. Even though she had been a tributary nation to Israel, she had never gone into exile. Since she was off the main trail, she had experienced few if any invasions.

48:12 God will send those to him [Moab] who will pour him out (lit "I will send tilters who will tilt him"). Tilters worked in wine cellars to decant the wine. In order for wine to age properly, it was not left to settle on its dregs in the vessel too long (Zph 1:12). After 40 days or so it was poured into other vessels and separated from its dregs. If not handled properly, the wine would not achieve the quality the tilters sought. In the same way Moab had rested on her laurels, but this time of complacency was over.

48:13 A wordplay is evident as Moab will be put to shame [Hb bosh] because of Chemosh. In parallel to Chemosh, the house of Israel [would be] put to shame because of Bethel. This must be an allusion to the calf worship set up by King Jeroboam in Bethel (1Kg 12:26-33).

48:15 Regardless of what the Moabites thought, Yahweh was still their Lord, not Chemosh.

48:17 The neighboring lands are invited to sympathize with the Moabites. The symbols of their power and authority, the mighty scepter and the glorious staff, will be shattered. In about 580 B.C. Moab lost her independence forever.

48:18 The phrase resident of the daughter of Dibon addresses this city that stood on two hills. Her people are invited to come down from glory and sit on parched ground. Dibon, modern Diban, was 13 miles east of the Dead Sea and four miles north of the Arnon River. The Moabite Stone, which mentions Dibon, was discovered here in 1868.

48:19 Aroer was the northernmost city of Reuben on the north side of the Arnon River.

48:20 Jeremiah called for a proclamation alongside the Arnon that Moab is destroyed.

48:21-24 Eleven towns of Moab are mentioned in these verses.

48:21 The Moabite Stone mentions the towns of Jahzah . . . Dibon . . . Beth-diblathaim, Kiriathaim . . . Beth-meon, Kerioth, and Bozrah, even though the identification of these towns is uncertain. Likewise, the locations for Holon and Mephaath (a Levitical city in Jos 21:37) are unknown. Beth-gamul may be Khirbet el Jemeil, eight miles east of Dibon. Kerioth is referred to in Am 2:2. Bozrah may be Bezer (Dt 4:43; Jos 20:8; 21:36) but not the Edomite city by the same name in Jr 49:13,22.

48:25 The horn and arm are OT metaphors for strength and military might. "Horn" is used of one's descendants in Ps 132:17.

48:26 Drunkenness is another metaphor used by Jeremiah in 25:15-29. Those under the wrath of God were made to drink from the wine cup of God's wrath. This is an apt figure for the Moabite wine-producing industry.

48:29-30 Jeremiah piled up several synonymous terms to depict Moab's pride: insolence, arrogance, and haughty heart.

48:31-36 In these verses four different Hebrew verbs are used for the Moabite weeping and wailing.

48:31 Kir-heres (lit "city of potsherds") is probably the Kir-hareseth of 2Kg 3:25 and Is 16:7 (cp. Is 16:11). It may be identified with el-Kerak, about 17 miles south of the Arnon River and 11 miles east of the Dead Sea.

48:32 God would weep more for the vine of Sibmah than for Jazer. Sibmah's branches reached down to the Dead Sea with its famous vineyards and gardens, but her destruction would include all its renowned vegetation and grape vineyards. The destroyer, a recurrent theme in this chapter (vv. 8,15,18), will fall on Moab's summer fruit and grape harvest.

48:33 The shouts heard are not those of the joyous grape treaders, but the shouting of warriors who have come to conquer Moab.

48:34 Another seven towns of Moab are mentioned in this verse along with the 11 Moabite towns in verses 21-24.The mention of the cities here seems to move from north to south. A cry and an uproar go up from the humiliation of the destroyer.

48:35 God Himself will put an end to Moab's idolatrous worship.

48:36 The wailing of Moab will be like that of a flute or a reed pipe. Flutes were used at funerals; they signified mourning.

48:37 On these four symbols of mourning, see note at 47:5.

48:38 The phrase like a jar no one wants was used of King Jehoiachin (22:28).

48:40 The image of the eagle is similar to Ezekiel's use of the same figure to depict Babylon, who would swoop down and take the top of the cedar tree (Ezk 17:3-5). In Ezk 17:7-8, the eagle stands for Egypt.

48:43 A good example of triple assonance can be found in the three Hebrew words behind panic, pit, and trap (Hb pachad wapachath wapach; see note at Is 24:17-18).

48:45-46 Some believe these verses may be a free quotation from an old Hesbon song mentioned in Nm 21:28-29 and 24:17. If so, the words of Balaam the prophet seem poised to be fulfilled.

48:47 In spite of all the dire predictions against Moab, God will restore its fortunes in the future. The prophecies of restoration are not limited to Israel and Judah.

49:1-6 Ammon was a country east of the Jordan River and north of Moab. Its boundaries were not well fixed, and it often was in conflict with Israel. Its capital city was Rabbah, modern Amman, Jordan, situated in the valley of the Jabbok River. The Ammonites were descended from Ben-Ammi, son of Lot (Gn 19:38). During the days of the judges, Jephthah defeated them (Jdg 11:4-33), and King Nahash of Ammon later opposed King Saul (1Sm 11:1-11). David sought peace with the Ammonites but was rebuffed (2Sm 10), yet Solomon held them in check (1Kg 4:13-19). Amos condemned them in the eighth century B.C. for their cruel behavior (Am 1:13-15). In the seventh century B.C. the Ammonites were somewhat free, but they were still a vassal of Assyria. During the reign of the Judean King Zedekiah, the Ammonites participated with Judah in a revolt against Babylon (Jr 27:3), and they continued their revolt beyond the fall of Jerusalem in 587 B.C. Nebuchadnezzar's army took the country around 582 B.C.

49:1 This verse reflects the territorial dispute between the Ammonites and the tribe of Gad (cp. Jdg 11:23-24). The Lord asked through Jeremiah, Should Ammon and its god have dispossessed Gad, who was still living there and who had been given that territory? (See Nm 21:21-31; 32:1-39.) Milcom, also known as Molech, was the national deity of Ammon. His name meant "the king," but the Hebrews refused to pronounce it in a way that signified "king." They substituted the vowels of "o" and "e" from the Hebrew word bosheth, meaning "shame," thereby stigmatizing the name of Ammon's deity (see note at 7:31).

49:2 Rabbah was the capital city of the Ammonites. It is identified with modern Amman, Jordan. The archaeological term tell signifies the ruins of a city (see note at 30:18). It appears in the phrase a desolate mound (Hb tel shemana).

49:3 Heshbon was referred to as a Moabite city (48:2), but it must have belonged to Ammon at this time. The Ai referred to here is not the same as the Ai in Israel, but is another town with the same name, meaning "ruin." The phrase run back and forth within your walls could also be rendered "rush to and fro in confusion among the sheep pens." The picture is one of people darting about in the open areas of the city in total confusion.

49:4 Ammon was bragging about their valleys, their flowing valleys. An alternative translation would render "valleys" as "strength" (see note at 47:5). In either case ("valleys" or "strength") the Ammonites were complacent and needed rebuffing.

49:5 God would bring terror on the Ammonites. This phrase seems to be a variant of Jeremiah's (Hb) magor missabib ("terror on every side"; 6:25; 20:3,4,10; 46:5).

49:6 As God would do with Egypt (46:26), Moab (48:47), and Elam (49:39), He would one day restore the fortunes of Ammon as well.

49:7-22 Edom descended from Esau, brother of Jacob. The Edomites were the subject of more judgment prophecies than any other nation (Ps 137:7; Is 34:1-17; 63:1-6; Lm 4:21-22; Ezk 25:12-14; 35:1-15; Am 1:11-12; Ob; Mal 1:2-5). Jeremiah was surprisingly softer in his tone against them than he was in his prophecies against other nations. Edom stretched from the Gulf of Aqabah, east of the Sinai Peninsula about 100 miles north, to the River Zered, which flowed into the southern end of the Dead Sea and marked the border between Moab and Edom. East of Edom was the desert; on the west was the Arabah, the great depression that the Jordan River flowed through to the north. Edom was mostly mountainous. It was settled originally by the Horim ("cave people") whom Edom expelled (Dt 2:12,22). Edom's prosperity came from its iron and copper mines as well as its position on the King's Highway (Nm 20:17,19).

49:7 God began His prophecy against Edom with a set of rhetorical questions. The first was about wisdom in Teman. Edom was famous for wisdom (Ob 8 and possibly the book of Job), but it does not seem to have served them well. Teman was Esau's first grandson (Gn 36:11,15). Often the name stands for the whole country or as here for a city or province in Edom.

49:8 The residents of Dedan, a region not too far away in north Arabia, are told to steer their caravans away from Edom because of the destruction God will bring on the nation.

49:9-10 Normally gatherers of grapes and thieves left some goods behind, but in this judgment God will strip Esau bare. Esau was the twin brother of Jacob.

49:9-11 These verses are similar to Ob 5-6.

49:12 The image of drinking from the cup is a metaphor for the judgment God will bring to the nations (25:12-29; 48:26; cp. Is 34:5-6; Lm 4:21).

49:13 Bozrah was the capital and chief city of Edom in Jeremiah's time. It is identified with modern el-Buseira, about 20 miles southeast of the Dead Sea. It is not to be confused with the Moabite Bozrah (48:24).

49:14-16 These verses parallel closely Obadiah 1-4.

49:16 Edom thought they were unconquerable, because the people lived in the clefts of the rock. The rocks were later called Sela or Petra, which became the fortress and capital of the Edomites.

49:17-18 The ruin of Edom will be like that of the five cities of the plain: Sodom . . . Gomorrah, Admah, Zeboiim, and Zobah.

49:19-22 God is compared to a lion and an eagle. He will drag away the lambs (the Edomites, v. 20) and swoop down on them as His prey. In the midst of this judgment, God asked a question about His incomparability: who is like Me? Obviously, no one is His equal. These themes are similar to Is 40:18,25; 45:9-11. Verses 19-21 are repeated in 50:44-46 and applied to Babylon. The sound of Edom's cry will be like that of the cry heard at the Red Sea (Hb yam suph; also called the "Reed Sea").

49:23-27 Damascus was the capital city of Syria (Aram). Therefore this city stands for the entire nation. While Damascus in not named in the list of cities falling under divine judgment in 25:18-26, this prophecy does have parallels in Is 17:1-6 and Am 1:3-5. It appears that the Syrian/Aramaean armies joined Babylon in its attack on Jerusalem in 597 B.C. This may be why Damascus is condemned in these verses.

49:23-24 Hamath and Arpad were two smaller Aramaean/Syrian city-states. Hamath, often called a Canaanite and then later a Hittite city (Gn 10:18), was 110 miles north of Damascus on the Orontes River. Arpad was 95 miles north of Hamath. All three cities were conquered by the Assyrian king, Tiglath-pileser, in 738 B.C. (Is 10:9; 36:19; 37:13). Sargon II crushed a rebellion in 720 B.C. in Damascus. This city was also captured by Nebuchadnezzar in 605 B.C. Damascus was agitated and troubled like the sea, even though it had no seacoast. Fear and anguish gripped this city like a woman in labor. Jeremiah used this figure of many nations, including Israel, Moab, Edom, and Babylon (v. 22; 6:24; 48:41; 50:43).

49:25 Damascus was a delight to God. He called it the town that brings Me joy. It has been continuously occupied since ancient times.

49:27 The prophecy ends with a virtual quote from Am 1:4. A fire would consume the palaces or citadels of Ben-hadad—a royal name for Aramaean kings stretching from the ninth to the eighth centuries B.C.

49:28-33 Kedar was an Ishmaelite tribe in the Arabian desert (Gn 25:13) that is frequently referred to in the OT (Is 21:16,17; 42:11; 60:7; Ezk 27:21). They were known for their sheep-breeding (Is 60:7), their dwelling east of the Ammonites (Is 42:11), their trading with Tyre (Ezk 27:21), and their archery skills (Is 21:16-17).

City walls and buildings outside Hazor (49:33), one of Israel's most heavily fortified cities. The site of Hazor is composed of a 30-acre upper tell or mound rising 130 feet above the surrounding plain and a 175-acre lower enclosure which was well-fortified. These dimensions make Hazor the largest city in ancient Canaan. Estimates set the population at its height at over 40,000.

49:28 This Hazor is not the city in northern Israel (Jos 11:1-13). It was apparently a now-unknown town in a desert region. The Lord gave a command for Nebuchadnezzar to rise up and destroy the people of the east. The "people/sons of the east" are identified with the Midianites and Amalekites in Jdg 6:3 and with other nomadic peoples who often raided Israelite territory (Gn 29:1; Jdg 7:12; 8:10; 1Kg 4:30; Jb 1:3; Is 11:14; Ezk 25:4).

49:29 The five items that will be taken (tents . . . flocks . . . tent curtains . . . equipment, and camels) are what we would expect nomads rather than city dwellers to own. The characteristic phrase terror is on every side is used again by Jeremiah (6:25; 20:3,4,10; 46:5). Here it seems to refer to the shout of the army as it fell on the Bedouin camps.

49:30 The Arabian peoples are urged to run and escape quickly. God will provide an escape before the judgment comes (v. 8; 48:6,28; 50:8; 51:6). Nebuchadnezzar had a plan and a strategy, which was not his only but God's as well (25:9; cp. 26:3; 36:3; 49:20). The exact date of the Babylonian campaign against the desert tribes is unknown, but Nebuchadnezzar did conduct a raid against them in 599-598 B.C., before his attack on Jerusalem.

49:33 Conventional expressions are used for the extent of the destruction on these tribes. They will become a jackals' den (9:11; 10:22; 51:37) and a desolation forever (v. 2; 4:27; 6:8; 9:11; 10:22; 12:10-11; 32:43; 44:6; 50:13). No one will live there (4:7,29; 9:11; 26:9; 33:10; 44:22; 46:19; 51:29,37).

49:34-39 Elam was the first of Shem's sons (Gn 10:22). It was an ancient kingdom (Gn 14:1) about 200 miles east of Babylon in modern southwestern Iran. Its capital city was Shushan, also known as Susa (Neh 1:1; Est 1:2,5; Dn 8:2). Elam may be a general name for Persia. It was subdued by Assyria and later came under Babylonian and Persian rule.

49:34 This prophecy came at the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah king of Judah (ca 597 B.C.).

49:35 Elamites were known for their skill in archery (Is 22:6), but the Lord would take that away. When Elam was absorbed into the Persian Empire about 539 B.C., landowners were required to furnish the Persian king with a bowman or to pay a bow tenure—a sum of money to hire an archer in his place.

49:36-37 The four winds is used elsewhere to depict military might (Ezk 37:9; Dn 8:8; Zch 2:6; 6:5). God will bring these military powers to destroy Elam.

49:39 As with Israel (29:14), Moab (48:47), Ammon (49:6), and Egypt (46:26), God promised to restore the fortunes of Elam. This Gentile nation would become a recipient of God's promises.

50:1-51:64 Jeremiah's final prophecy against the nations is reserved for Babylon. Almost as much space is devoted to Babylon as to all the other nations combined. This argues against those who felt Jeremiah was so pro-Babylonian that he could see no wrong with them.

50:1 The land of the Chaldeans reverts to the name of the seminomadic tribe which settled south of Ur (see note at 21:4). Nebuchadnezzar's father, Nabopolassar, was a native Chaldean who ascended the throne in 626 B.C. and gave birth to the Neo-Babylonian period that continued until the fall of Babylon in 539 B.C.

50:2 Bel, meaning "lord," was the title of the storm god Enlil, chief god of Nippur. Later Bel became a name for Marduk. As the major god of Babylon, Marduk was the Babylonian creator-god (by supposedly creating order out of chaos). In the Babylonian creation story of Enuma Elish, he was referred to as the "king of the gods." Babylon's idols and her false gods are stigmatized by Jeremiah. The word for false gods in Hebrew is gillulim (lit "balls of excrement"). This term is used of pagan idols in Lv 26:30; Dt 29:17; 1Kg 15:12. It was also used by Ezekiel to demean foreign gods. Similarly, Isaiah used the Hebrew word 'elilim (lit "nothings") as a pun, contrasting God (Elohim) with false gods ('elilim) .

50:3 The nation from the north is not immediately identified, but Jeremiah used this phrase so frequently (v. 41; 1:14; 4:6; 6:1; 13:20; 15:12; 46:20; 47:2; 51:48) that it became increasingly clear he usually meant Babylon. This nation had to come out of the north to attack Judah because the desert east of Judah prevented armies from attacking from that direction. But here the prophet seems to refer to Persia, since the attack will be against Babylon.

50:4-5 As promised in chapters 30-33, a complete restoration of the Israelites and Judeans—a new reunited total Israel—will result. This speaks of a future restoration, unification, repentance, and renewal of the covenant with the people of God. The same everlasting covenant referred to in 32:40 (see 31:31-34) is alluded to again.

50:6 Judah's shepherds, who led the people astray, include their kings, priests, prophets, and other leaders.

50:8 With judgment so certain for Babylon, those who live there are told to escape from Babylon and depart from the Chaldeans' land. Just as male goats ("rams") rush out to lead the flock when the pen is opened, so should those left in Babylon scatter before the judgment begins.

50:9 An assembly of great nations from the north country will come against Babylon, and she will be captured.

50:11-12 God will judge Babylon in retaliation for what she did to Judah. Babylon plundered My inheritance—a reference to Israel—and she frolicked like a young cow treading grain. The image is of a heifer frisking around the threshing floor, eating whatever she wanted to eat. Babylon's mother is the city of Babylon, the "mother" of all her inhabitants. She who turned so many other cities into dry wastelands would now be treated the same way.

50:14-15 The attacking forces are ordered to line up and let the battle of Babylon begin. Now it is Babylon that will throw up her hands in surrender. This is declared to be the LORD's vengeance, meaning that Babylon will reap the consequences of her sin.

50:16 The sower and the one who wields the sickle depict the rural population that will feel the onslaught of warfare even before the city dwellers.

50:17-20 In the middle of His declaration of judgment on Babylon, God utters a promise to restore Israel, His stray lamb, back to the promised land. Assyria crushed Israel in the eighth century B.C., and the Babylonians did the same thing in the sixth. God's forgiveness of Israel's sin in those days will be complete. Even if someone searched for her guilt, there will be none.

50:21 Babylon's enemies are to attack Merathaim and those living in Pekod. Merathaim was probably the district of Marratim at the head of the Persian Gulf. Pekod was probably puqudu, a people of eastern Babylonia. The phrase completely destroy them translates the Hebrew word cherem ("to place under the ban" and "to render to God as an involuntary offering"). Several cities in the book of Joshua were designated for total destruction (Dt 20:17; Jos 6:21; 10:1).

50:23-24 Babylon is called the hammer of the whole earth; Persia is referred to with similar imagery (51:20). Babylon had set traps and hunted nations. Now she would be trapped.

50:25 Babylon's downfall will be the work of the Lord. He has opened His armory and unleashed His weapons of wrath. This is precisely what the Persian conqueror did (Is 44:28-45:1).

50:28 God's vengeance is mentioned again (see note at vv. 14-15).

50:29-32 The archers are urged to press the attack against Babylon because of the nation's insolence, defiance, and arrogance against the Holy One of Israel (Is 1:4; 5:19,24).

50:33-34 All Israel is in view in these verses. The nation is portrayed as waiting for its release. Yahweh, who had redeemed (Hb ga'al ; Ex 6:6; 15:13) in the past, would be their Redeemer (Hb go'el) again. He would bring rest to the earth.

50:35-38 Babylon's enemies are depicted as God's sword that hangs heavy over Babylon's officials . . . her sages . . . her heroic warriors, their horses and chariots, and her treasuries. The Babylonian terrifying things (Hb 'emim) is a contemptuous way of referring to Babylon's gods.

50:39 Desert creatures will inhabit deserted Babylon. John Bright tries to preserve the Hebrew assonance of siyyim and 'iyyim by rendering them as "goblins and ghouls." Sometimes these creatures seem to be like animals and at other times like demons and evil spirits that were said to infest deserted areas.

50:40 Babylon's destruction will be as severe and as permanent as the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah (49:18; Gn 19:24-25; Is 13:19).

50:41-43 These verses repeat 6:22-24 with only a few minor variations. Previously addressed to Judah, they are now directed to Babylon.

50:44-46 These verses repeat with some minor changes the condemnation of Edom (49:19-21). Perhaps the repetition is based on the similarity of sins between Babylon and Edom.

50:44 The earthly rulers are asked, Who is the shepherd who can stand against Me? No one can resist God or overthrow His purposes.

51:1-64 The judgment message against Babylon continues in the longest chapter in the book of Jeremiah, concluding with a special message to Babylon.

51:1 Leb-qamai (lit "the heart of those who rise against me") is a figure of speech called Atbash , a Jewish device where letters are substituted for their opposites in the alphabet. In the English equivalent, the letter A would be changed to Z, B to Y, and so on. Leb-qamai is therefore a cipher for Kasdim or Chaldea (Babylonia), just as "Zimki" in 25:25 might be a cipher for "Elam," and "Sheshak" in 25:26 and 51:41 is an Atbash cipher for "Babel." It is not clear why Jeremiah used Atbash in these cases since elsewhere he clearly points to Babylon. The destructive wind is known elsewhere in the OT as the east wind or sirocco. This wind is an apt figure for the winnowing (v. 2) that God will perform on Babylon.

51:3 Behind the translation of completely destroy is the Hebrew word cherem (see note at 50:21).

51:5 On the Holy One of Israel, see note at 50:29-32. Unlike Babylon, Israel will not be left widowed as they were in previous days. Israel's future restoration is the theme of this verse.

51:6 On the surface, the call to leave Babylon (see note at 50:8) seems to coincide with the prophet Daniel's choice to remain in Babylon and serve as a top administrator. Daniel knew Jeremiah's prophecy (Dn 9:2). This raises several possibilities, including that God did not mean for all of His people to leave Babylon.

51:7-8 Babylon's great wealth is depicted as a gold cup. Previously, Babylon had been God's instrument of wrath to judge the nations; now it is her turn to drink the cup of God's wrath (25:15-29).

51:9 There was a balm in Gilead (see note at 8:22) to heal Israel's wounds, but there would be no healing for Babylon. The phrase her judgment extends to the sky and reaches as far as the clouds is a proverbial expression indicating that Babylon's judgment will be severe (Nm 13:28; Dt 1:28).

51:10 The vindication of Judah was their promised return after 70 years of captivity (25:11-14) because God would be their Redeemer (50:34). The goal of the return was to witness to those in Jerusalem about what the LORD our God has accomplished.

51:11-12 Babylon's enemies are identified for the first time in these verses as the Medes. Media was a country northeast of Babylon (in modern Iran) with its capital at Ecbatana. Media rose to prominence in the seventh century B.C. In 549 B.C. it came under Persian rule and joined Cyrus in the defeat of the Babylonian Empire. Though the Medes and the Persians were the instruments, it was God's plan . . . aimed at Babylon to destroy her. God both designs and executes His plans.

credit: Terry Fretheim 51:13-14 The one who resided by many waters was Babylon. The Euphrates and Tigris rivers were symbolic of her strength.

51:15-19 God is the only wise Creator who rules over all. His name is Jacob's Portion (cp. 10:16). This makes Israel's place in the Creator's design of the world distinctive and perpetual.

51:20-23 The phrase with you ("you" being God's battle club) falls 10 times in these verses like the beat of a heavy war drum. Many see King Cyrus of Persia (Is 41:2-4,25; 45:1-6) as the unnamed "battle club." The verb will smash is repeated nine times, like the beat of a second war drum.

51:25-26 The image of a devastating mountain that rolls down from the cliffs and turns into a charred mountain is difficult to conceive unless the image is of a volcano that spews rock and hot coals, leaving a burned-out crater. This image matches the once-arrogant Babylon that would soon become a burnt-up, ruined empire.

51:27-28 Three kingdoms of the Median Empire—Ararat, Minni, and Ashkenaz—are invited to join battle against Babylon. These kingdoms were northwest of Babylon in what is today generally called Armenia. Ararat occupied southeastern Turkey and the northern regions of Iraq and Iran, about the same area where the Kurdish people live today. Minni or Mannaya (aka the Maneans) lived south of Lake Urmia in the southwestern regions of modern Iran. Ashkenaz generally refers to Indo-European peoples whom Herodotus called Scythians. All these names are known from cuneiform texts discovered by archaeologists.

51:29-32 Babylon was completely demoralized by this announcement of the pending attack. They stopped fighting, holed up in their strongholds, and became like women. The reed-filled marshes that surrounded Babylon were set on fire, cutting off escape and flushing out fugitives.

51:33-34 Babylon will be made ready like a threshing floor that is trampled to get ready for the threshing of the harvest—which will be the thrashing of Babylon. Yahweh answered Zion's complaint against Babylon in this way: Babylon will be given a feast, following which she "will fall asleep forever" (v. 39).

51:41 On the cipher Sheshach, see note at 25:26.

51:44 God will destroy two things for which Babylon was famous—the idol Bel (see note at 50:2) and the wall around Babylon. The outer wall was 12 feet thick with a lane 23 feet wide between it and the inner wall, which was 21 feet thick. The walls were so thick that several chariots could drive abreast atop them. Towers rose from the walls every 60 feet. Outside the walls, a moat-like ditch was bricked and filled with water from the Euphrates River.

51:45 Once more there is a call for the citizens of Judah to come out from among Babylon (vv. 6,50; 50:8).

51:46-48 Rumors of feuds and revolts will come one year . . . then another the next year. No one has linked any specific event with these statements. Nebuchadnezzar's son, Amel-Marduk (Evil-Merodach) was assassinated in 560 B.C. by his brother-in-law Neriglissar (560-556 B.C.). Neriglissar's heir, Labashi-Marduk had a short reign of a few months and was replaced by Nabonidus (556-539 B.C.). Things were beginning to fall apart in Babylon.

51:50-58 The structure of this section is similar to verses 45-49. It calls the people to leave the city even if they are far away and to focus on returning to Jerusalem after a time of lamentation.

51:59-64 One final symbolic act has Jeremiah speaking with Seraiah, brother of Baruch. Seraiah was to accompany King Zedekiah during the fourth year of his reign on a trip to Babylon. He would take a scroll on which the prophet had recorded his prophecies against Babylon. Seraiah was to read aloud these words, then pray that God would fulfill them, making Babylon an uninhabited place. Then he was to tie a stone to the scroll and throw it into the Euphrates River and declare, In the same way, Babylon will sink and never rise again.

The note that the words of Jeremiah end here are probably from the compiler, who wanted to separate chapter 51 from chapter 52. The final chapter parallels 2Kg 24:18-25:30, even though they differ in some respects.

Chapters 50-51 As mentioned in the chart on page 1326, the book of Revelation contains several allusions to Jeremiah chapters 50-51. Terry Fretheim has noted that these include: Jeremiah Revelation 51:7 Drinking the cup of God's wrath 18:3

51:9 Babylon's sins piled up to heaven 18:5

51:22 Judgment as a harvest 14:14-15

51:25-26 Babylon as a volcano 18:8-9

51:36 Sea will become dry 21:1

51:48 Heaven and earth rejoice 18:20

51:59-64 Scroll thrown into Euphrates River 18:21

52:1-34 A shortened form of this material is found in 39:1-10. A longer form is preserved in 2Kg 24:18-25:30, which in turn is condensed in 2Ch 36:11-21. The differences with the 2Kg 24:18-25:30 passage are: (1) some expansions in Jr 52:10-11,21-23 (expanded over 2Kg 25:7,17), (2) one omission (2Kg 25:22-26), perhaps because the information about Gedaliah had already been covered in Jr 40-41, and (3) one addition (52:28-30), which lists the number of exiles, possibly to give a sign of hope for the future.

52:1-3 This is a brief background and explanation about why Jerusalem had to fall. King Zedekiah (597-587 B.C. ) did what was evil in the LORD 's sight, and it came to the point where God could no longer turn His back on the nation's sin.

52:4-11 The siege of Jerusalem, with its horrible famine, began in the ninth year of Zedekiah's reign (January 588), and it dragged on until July of 587 B.C., Zedekiah's eleventh year. The king and his warriors attempted to escape by the king's garden, but they were overtaken by the Babylonian army in the plains of Jericho. At Riblah the Babylonian king had Zedekiah's sons slaughtered before his eyes just before Zedekiah was blinded.

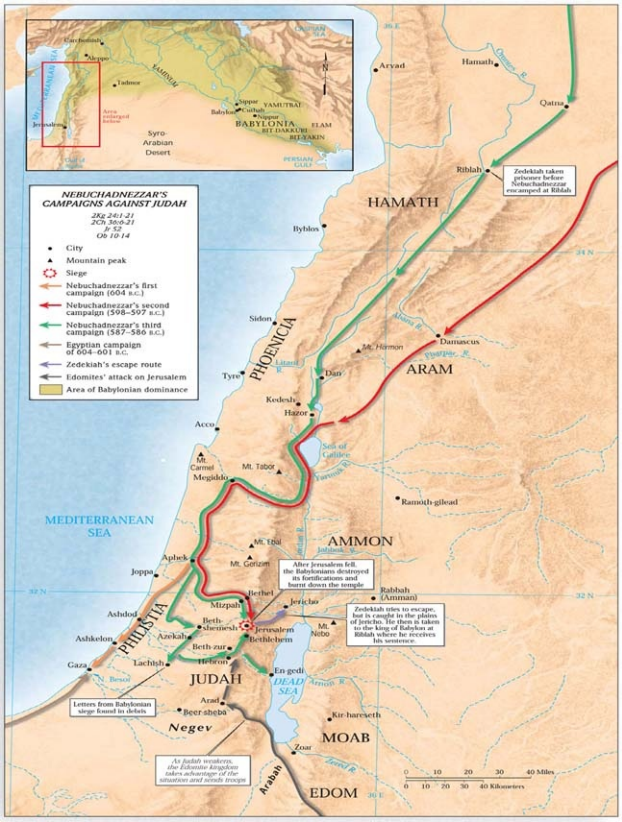
52:12-23 One month after the fall of Jerusalem, the Babylonian army returned under the command of Nebuzaradan to burn down the temple, the king's palace, the houses of the city, and to raze the city walls. The temple vessels are listed one by one, as if to prolong the agony of the report and to note that all the most cherished items of the temple were dismantled. Nothing could depict more convincingly the destruction of the temple, the central focus of Israel's religious life.

52:24-30 Seventy-four priestly, royal, and military leaders were executed. These included the chief priest Seraiah (not the same Seraiah as 40:8 and 51:59) and Zephaniah the priest of the second rank. Most leaders were exiled to Babylon; why these specific leaders were executed is not known.

52:31-34 About 26 years after the destruction of Jerusalem, King Jehoiachin found favor in exile under the Babylonian king Evil-merodach. The former Judean king was given a standing above all the other exiled kings in Babylon, was awarded a place at the royal table, and was provided with new robes and privileges. No reason is given for this special treatment. In another 20 years, King Cyrus of Persia would allow the exiles to return home (538 B.C.; Ezr 1:1-4).



Word Studies ‘azav Hebrew Pronunciation [ah ZAV]

HCSB Translation leave, abandon, forsake Uses in Jeremiah 25
Uses in the OT 216
Focus Passage Jeremiah 2:13,17,19

‘Azav, a transitive verb, means leave (Gn 2:24), abandon (Jr 17:13), and forsake (Ps 22:1). It is synonymous with natash (“leave,” Ps 27:9) and raphah (“leave,” Jos 1:5). ‘Azav implies renounce (Pr 28:13), desert (Jos 22:3), or reject (1Kg 12:8). Levites could be neglected or forgotten (Dt 12:19; 14:27). One leaves something behind (Ex 2:20), gives it up (Ezk 23:8), withholds it (Gn 24:27), or stops it (Neh 5:10). Once ‘azav is entrust oneself (Ps 10:14), and once change facial expression (Jb 9:27). “Leaving upon oneself” is expressing (Jb 10:1) complaints. Regular passive participles often contrast with “slave” as free (Dt 32:36). Twice ‘azav means restore (Neh 3:8), and once help (Ex 23:5); some argue that these cases involve a homonym. God is the most frequent object of ‘azav. Abandoning Him for idols (1Sm 12:10) was Israel’s most dangerous sin. He might abandon in return (2Ch 15:2).

shuv Hebrew Pronunciation [SHUV]
HCSB Translation return, turn back Uses in Jeremiah 115
Uses in the OT 1,075
Focus Passage Jeremiah 3:1,7,10,12,14,19,22

Shuv means turn (Jos 19:12), turn back (Ex 14:2), or return (Gn 3:19). Anger subsides or turns away (Gn 27:44-45). Water recedes (Gn 8:3); messages are revoked (Is 45:23), promises abandoned (Ps 132:11). Shuv is change (Lv 13:16), resume (Jos 4:18), reappear (Lv 14:43), or retire (Nm 8:25). "Returning to your heart" is keeping in mind or coming to one's senses (Dt 4:39; 30:1). Shuv denotes repent (Ps 7:12) or reconsider (Jb 6:29). It accompanies other verbs to show repeated action (Zch 5:1). Causative verbs signify bring (take, drive, let go, pull, put) back (Gn 14:16), restore (Gn 40:13), repay (Gn 50:15), pay (Ex 21:34), or avert (Ezr 10:14). One takes vengeance (Dt 32:43) and stops (Jb 9:12) or rejects (Ps 132:10) another. "Returning words" is answering (Jdg 5:29). Intensive verbs indicate turn back, return, turn around/away (Jr 8:5; Ezk 38:4), lead astray (Is 47:10), restore, and renew (Ps 23:3).

meshuvah Hebrew Pronunciation [meh shu VAH]
HCSB Translation turning away, rebellion Uses in Jeremiah 10
Uses in the OT 13
Focus Passage Jeremiah 14:7

Meshuvah is the most frequent of the nouns that derive from shuv (turn, return). Three nouns emphasize the idea of a turning away from God. Meshuvah, which occurs (4x) with shuv, suggests apostasies (Jr 2:19), rebellions (Jr 14:7), infidelity (Hs 14:4), or waywardness (Pr 1:32). It appears as unfaithful, unfaithfulness, or unfaithful deeds (Jr 3:6,22; 5:6). It involves turning away (Jr 8:5) or from (Hs 11:7). Shovav (4x) is being faithless (Jr 3:14) or turning back to sinful desires (Is 57:17). Shovev (3x) connotes faithless (Jr 31:22) or pagan (Mc 2:4). Two other nouns from shuv have the opposite implication. Shuvah is returning to God (Is 30:15), and shiybah implies restoration to favor (Ps 126:1). One noun from shuv, teshuvah (8x), is neutral. It indicates a physical return (1Sm 7:17), spring as "the turning of the year" (2Sm 11:1), or an answer (Jb 21:34).

dever Hebrew Pronunciation [DEH ver]
HCSB Translation plague, pestilence Uses in Jeremiah 17
Uses in Prophetic Writings 31
Uses in the OT 48
Focus Passage Jeremiah 21:6-7,9

Dever is plague (Ex 5:3) or pestilence (Lv 26:25) that strikes animals, people, or both (Ex 9:3,15; Jr 21:6). Some suppose it was specifically bubonic plague and see the Philistines' outbreak of tumors in the presence of mice as evidence (1Sm 5:9; 6:4). Yet debate exists whether bubonic plague struck the Near East so early. Dever most often pertains to Israel, whom God threatened to inflict with a curse for disobedience (Lv 26:25). But it was the subject of prophecies about many lands (Jr 28:8) and is even part of a description characterizing God (Hab 3:5). So others seem correct in regarding dever as applicable to any pestilence that causes death. With few exceptions dever is usually a divine judgment. It seems to follow defeat in battle (Jr 21:9) and in 24 verses accompanies sword and famine (Jr 14:12). God delivers the godly from it (Ps 91:3,6).

ne'um Hebrew Pronunciation [neh OOM]
HCSB Translation declaration, oracle Uses in Jeremiah 176
Uses in the OT 376
Focus Passage Jeremiah 22:5,16,24

The history of ne'um is uncertain. Many compare an Arabic word meaning "growl, roar, or sigh." The related verb na'am, deliver (Jr 23:31), occurs once, probably developed from ne'um, and takes ne'um as its object. Ne'um regularly (365x) stands in a formula indicating a declaration from the Lord. Otherwise, it appears six times in the Balaam oracles (Nm 22-24), three times of David (2Sm 23:1; Ps 36:1), and once of false prophets of God (Jr 23:31). Ne'um occurs only 19x outside the Prophets. So it implies a prophetic declaration or oracle (Nm 24:3). Once it is oration, describing Agur's words (Pr 30:1). But since Agur's words are Scripture, they may have prophetic authority. The words "declaration of the Lord" usually open or close divine messages but can occur in the middle (Am 2:11). Such words emphasize the divine source of the oracle and add solemnity to it.

shever Hebrew Pronunciation [SHEH ver]
HCSB Translation brokenness, destruction, injury Uses in Jeremiah 15
Uses in the OT 44
Focus Passage Jeremiah 30:12,15

Shever, from the verb shavar (break), has many of its connotations. Jeremiah especially likes both words. Shever describes a broken foot (Lv 21:19), spirit (Is 65:14), or people (Jr 6:14). It denotes fracture (Lv 24:20) or injury (Jr 30:12). It is a personal downfall (Pr 18:12) and a people's brokenness (Jr 6:14), ruin (Am 6:6), or wretchedness (Is 59:7). It suggests land fissures (Ps 60:2), collapse of a wall (Is 30:13), or shattering of a jar (Is 30:14). Shever mostly implies disaster (Jr 4:20) or destruction (Is 15:5); it occurs with terms for "devastation" (shod, Jr 48:3; she'th, Lm 3:47). Shever indicates dream interpretation (Jdg 7:15). It connotes a crashing (Zph 1:10) or thrashing (Jb 41:25). It can be translated by verbs like destroy (Is 1:28). Related shibbaron indicates destruction (Jr 17:18) and bitter groaning (Ezk 21:6).

megillah Hebrew Pronunciation [meh gil LAH] HCSB Translation scroll Uses in Jeremiah 14
Uses in the OT 21
Focus Passage Jeremiah 36:2,4,6,14,20-21

Megillah, from the verb galal ("roll"), refers to scrolls, which were unrolled from side to side (not top to bottom). Vertical lines might mark columns, with writing placed on horizontal lines. Megillah could be a late word, the earlier term being sepher ("writing, book"); both refer to Scripture in Ps 40:7. An Egyptian tomb held a papyrus scroll dating to about 3,000 B.C. Many Dead Sea Scrolls are leather; they are up to 12 inches high and 29 feet long, the Isaiah Scroll being 17 sheepskin sheets sewn together by linen. But some Dead Sea Scrolls are papyrus. The scroll Jehoiakim burnt indoors during winter might have made the room uninhabitable had it been leather (Jr 36:23). Ezekiel ate a divine scroll to picture his mission of sharing God's Word (Ezk 3:1-3). A visionary flying scroll 30 by 15 feet, written front and back, detailed God's laws (Zch 5:1-4).

gur Hebrew Pronunciation [GUR]
HCSB Translation live for a while, be a resident alien Uses in Jeremiah 14
Uses in the OT 82
Focus Passage Jeremiah 44:8,12,14,28

Gur denotes live for a while (Jr 44:8). One is a resident alien (Gn 21:23), living/staying (Gn 21:34; 26:3) as a foreigner/alien (2Sm 4:3). Gur occurs with ger, foreigner, as reside (Ex 12:48) or live. It connotes stay (Is 16:4), linger (Jdg 5:17), lodge (Ps 5:4), settle (Is 23:7), or dwell (Is 33:14). Gur suits Levites who had no tribal territory (Dt 18:6), and someone living in another's tent, even if forever (Ps 61:4). Participles mean stranger (Is 5:17), foreigner who stays (Lv 25:6), temporary resident (Ps 105:12), guest (Jb 19:15), and human habitation (Jb 28:4). The reflexive-passive means whirl (Jr 30:23). Magor (11x) suggests home (Ps 55:15), pilgrimage (Gn 47:9), where one lives as an alien or foreign resident (Ezk 20:38), and where one lives, stays, or resides (Jb 18:19). Earthly life represents "house of pilgrimage" (Ps 119:54).

HCSB Translation be discouraged, shattered, terrified Uses in Jeremiah 19
Focus Passage Jeremiah 48:1,20,39

Chathath means be intimidated (Jr 1:17), discouraged (Dt 1:21), afraid (Jb 39:22), dismayed (Is 20:5), or terrified (Is 31:4). It occurs 17x with yara' ("be afraid") and 11x with bosh ("be ashamed"). Nations are shattered (Is 7:8), peoples broken (Is 8:9), and idols devastated (Jr 50:2). Ground is cracked (Jr 14:4). The passive-reflexive verb signifies stand in awe (Mal 2:5). The intensive means frighten (Jb 7:14). Bows are shattered (Jr 51:56). The causative indicates shatter (Is 9:4), devastate (Jr 49:37), terrify, or cause to cower (Jr 1:17). Mechittah (11x) denotes terror (Is 54:14), shock (Jr 48:39), ruin (Pr 13:3), ruins (Ps 89:40), destruction (Pr 10:15), and devastation. Chittiyth (8x) involves terror (Ezk 26:17). Chath is terror or fear (Jb 41:33); adjectivally, it suggests broken (1Sm 2:4) or terrified. Chathchath is danger (Ec 12:5), and chittah is terror (Gn 35:5). Chathath implies something dreadful (Jb 6:21).

taphas Hebrew Pronunciation [tah FAS]
HCSB Translation seize, capture, handle Uses in Jeremiah 18
Uses in the OT 65
Focus Passage Jeremiah 50:16,24,46

Taphas concerns forceful taking hold by the hands (Dt 9:17). It means seize (Is 3:6), grab (Gn 39:12), or grasp (Ezk 29:7). Individuals wield sickles (Jr 50:16) or brandish swords (Ezk 38:4). People arrest (1Kg 13:4), apprehend (Jr 37:13), or catch (Ps 71:11) individuals. Armies capture (Dt 20:19) or take (Jos 8:8) cities. Cities occupy summits (Jr 49:16). God takes hold of Israelite hearts (Ezk 14:5). People profane God's name (Pr 30:9). Taphas describes ability. People are able to handle shields and bows (Jr 46:9). Sailors handle an oar (Ezk 27:29). People play lyres and flutes (Gn 4:21). Archer can be literally "one handling the bow" (Am 2:15). Priests were experts in the law (Jr 2:8). Troops going out to war is literally "those who take hold of war" (Nm 31:27). The passive participle depicts plated idols (Hab 2:19). Passive-reflexive verbs indicate being caught, captured, or conquered (Jr 50:46).

Lament over Jerusalem

Alef

1 How [a] she sits alone, [b]
the city [c] once crowded with people!
She who was great among the nations has become like a widow. [d]
The princess among the provinces has been put to forced labor.

Bet

2 She weeps aloud during the night, [e]
with tears on her cheeks.
There is no one to offer her comfort,
not one from all her lovers. [f, g]
All her friends have betrayed her;
they have become her enemies.

Gimel

3 Judah has gone into exile
following [A] affliction and harsh slavery;
she lives among the nations
but finds no place to rest. [h]
All her pursuers have overtaken her in narrow places.

Dalet

4 The roads to •Zion [i] mourn, for no one comes to the appointed festivals. [j]
All her gates are deserted;
her priests groan,
her young women grieve,
and she herself is bitter.

He

5 Her adversaries have become her masters; [k]
her enemies are at ease, [l]
for the LORD has made her suffer because of her many transgressions.
Her children have gone away
as captives before the adversary.

Vav

6 All her splendor [m] has vanished from Daughter Zion. [n]
Her leaders are like stags that find no pasture;
they walk away exhausted
before the hunter. [o]

Zayin

7 During the days of her affliction and homelessness [p]
Jerusalem remembers all her precious belongings that were hers in days of old.
When her people fell into the adversary's hand,
she had no one to help.
The adversaries looked at her,
laughing over her downfall.

Khet

8 Jerusalem has sinned grievously;
therefore, she has become an object of scorn. [B]
All who honored her now despise her,
for they have seen her nakedness.
She herself groans and turns away.

Tet

9 Her uncleanness stains her skirts. [q]
She never considered her end.
Her downfall was astonishing; [r]
there was no one to comfort her.
LORD, look on my affliction,
for the enemy triumphs!

Yod

10 The adversary has seized all her precious belongings.
She has even seen the nations enter her sanctuary —
those You had forbidden to enter Your assembly. [s]

Kaf

11 All her people groan
while they search for bread. [t]
They have traded their precious belongings for food in order to stay alive. [u] LORD, look and see how I have become despised.

Lamed

12 Is this nothing to you, all you who pass by? [v]
Look and see!
Is there any pain like mine,
which was dealt out to me,
which the LORD made me suffer
on the day of His burning anger? [w]

Mem

13 He sent fire from heaven [x] into my bones;
He made it descend. [y, z]
He spread a net for my feet [a]
and turned me back.
He made me desolate,
sick all day long.

Nun

14 My transgressions have been formed into a yoke, [b, C], [c] fastened together by His hand;
they have been placed on my neck,
and the Lord has broken my strength.
He has handed me over to those I cannot withstand.

Samek

15 The Lord has rejected [d]
all the mighty men within me.
He has summoned an army [D] against me to crush my young warriors.

The Lord has trampled Virgin Daughter Judah [e] like grapes in a winepress. [f]

Ayin

16 I weep because of these things;
my eyes flow [E] with tears. [g]
For there is no one nearby to comfort me, [h]
no one to keep me alive.
My children are desolate
because the enemy has prevailed.

Pe

17 Zion stretches out her hands;
there is no one to comfort her.
The LORD has issued a decree against Jacob that his neighbors should be his adversaries.
Jerusalem has become something impure [i] among them.

Tsade

18 The LORD is just,
for I have rebelled against His command. [j] Listen, all you people;
look at my pain.
My young men and women
have gone into captivity. [k]

Qof

19 I called to my lovers, [l]
but they betrayed me.
My priests and elders perished in the city while searching for food to keep themselves alive. [m]

Resh

20 LORD, see how I am in distress.

I am churning within; [n]
my heart is broken, [F]
for I have been very rebellious.
Outside, the sword takes the children;
inside, there is death. [o]

Shin

21 People have heard me groaning, [p]
but there is no one to comfort me.
All my enemies have heard of my misfortune;
they are glad that You have caused it. [q]
Bring on the day You have announced, so that they may become like me. [r]

Tav

22 Let all their wickedness come before You,
and deal with them
as You have dealt with me because of all my transgressions. [s]
For my groans are many,
and I am sick at heart.

Judgment on Jerusalem

Alef

2 How the Lord has overshadowed Daughter •Zion with His anger!
He has thrown down Israel's glory
from heaven to earth.
He has abandoned His footstool [a, b] in the day of His anger. [c]

Bet

2 Without compassion [d] the Lord has swallowed up all the dwellings of Jacob.
In His wrath He has demolished
the fortified cities [e] of Daughter Judah.
He brought them to the ground and defiled the kingdom and its leaders. [f]

Gimel

3 He has cut off every •horn [g] of Israel in His burning anger and withdrawn His right hand [h] in the presence of the enemy.
He has blazed against Jacob like a flaming fire that consumes everything. [i]

Dalet

4 He has bent His bow like an enemy; [j]
His right hand is positioned like an adversary.
He has killed everyone who was loved, [A] pouring out His wrath like fire on the tent of Daughter Zion.

He

5 The Lord is like an enemy;
He has swallowed up Israel.
He swallowed up all its palaces and destroyed its fortified cities.
He has multiplied mourning and lamentation within Daughter Judah. [k]

Vav

6 He has done violence to His temple [B]
as if it were a garden booth, destroying His place of meeting. [l]
The LORD has abolished appointed festivals and Sabbaths in Zion.
He has despised king and priest in His fierce anger.

Zayin

7 The Lord has rejected His altar, repudiated His sanctuary; [m]
He has handed the walls of her palaces over to the enemy.
They have raised a shout in the house of the LORD
as on the day of an appointed festival.

Khet

8 The LORD determined to destroy the wall of Daughter Zion.
He stretched out a measuring line [n]
and did not restrain Himself from destroying.
He made the ramparts and walls grieve;
together they waste away.

Tet

9 Zion's gates have fallen to the ground; [o]
He has destroyed and shattered the bars on her gates.
Her king and her leaders live among the nations, instruction [C] is no more,
and even her prophets receive no vision from the LORD. [p]

Yod

10 The elders of Daughter Zion sit on the ground in silence.
They have thrown dust on their heads [q]
and put on •sackcloth .

The young women of Jerusalem have bowed their heads to the ground. [r]

Kaf

11 My eyes are worn out from weeping; [s]
I am churning within.
My heart is poured out in grief [D, t]
because of the destruction of my dear people, [u] because children and infants faint in the streets of the city. [v]

Lamed

12 They cry out to their mothers:
Where is the grain and wine? [w] as they faint like the wounded in the streets of the city, as their lives fade away
in the arms of their mothers.

Mem

13 What can I say on your behalf?
What can I compare you to, Daughter Jerusalem?
What can I liken you to,
so that I may console you, Virgin Daughter Zion?
For your ruin is as vast as the sea.
Who can heal you? [x]

Nun

14 Your prophets saw visions for you that were empty and deceptive; [y]
they did not reveal your •guilt and so restore your fortunes. [z]
They saw •oracles for you that were empty and misleading.

Samek

15 All who pass by scornfully clap their hands [a] at you.

They mock [E,] [b] and shake their heads [c] at Daughter Jerusalem: Is this the city that was called the perfection of beauty, [d]
the joy of the whole earth? [e]

Pe

16 All your enemies
open their mouths against you. [f]
They hiss and gnash their teeth, [g] saying, “We have swallowed her up. [h]
This is the day we have waited for!
We have lived to see it.”

Ayin

17 The LORD has done what He planned;
He has accomplished His decree,
which He ordained in days of old.
He has demolished without compassion, [i] letting the enemy gloat over you and exalting the horn of your adversaries.

Tsade

18 The hearts of the people cry out to the Lord.
Wall of Daughter Zion, [j] let your tears run down like a river day and night. [k]
Give yourself no relief and your [F] eyes no rest.

Qof

19 Arise, cry out in the night from the first watch of the night.
Pour out your heart like water before the Lord’s presence. [l] Lift up your hands to Him for the lives of your children who are fainting from hunger

on the corner of every street. [m]

Resh

20 LORD, look and consider who You have done this to.
Should women eat their own children, [n]
the infants they have nurtured? [G] Should priests and prophets be killed in the Lord's sanctuary?

Shin

21 Both young and old are lying on the ground in the streets.
My young men and women
have fallen by the sword.
You have killed them in the day of Your anger, slaughtering without compassion. [o]

Tav

22 You summoned my attackers [H] on every side, [p] as if for an appointed festival day;
on the day of the LORD's anger
no one escaped or survived.
My enemy has destroyed
those I nurtured [I] and reared.

Hope through God’s Mercy

Alef

3 I am the man who has seen affliction
under the rod of God’s wrath.
2 He has driven me away and forced me to walk in darkness instead of light. [a] 3 Yes, He repeatedly turns His hand against me all day long.

Bet

4 He has worn away my flesh and skin; [b]
He has shattered my bones. [c]
5 He has laid siege against me, [d] encircling me with bitterness and hardship. [e] 6 He has made me dwell in darkness like those who have been dead for ages. [f]

Gimel

7 He has walled me in so I cannot escape; [g]
He has weighed me down with chains.
8 Even when I cry out and plead for help,
He rejects my prayer. [h]
9 He has walled in my ways with cut stones; [i]
He has made my paths crooked. [j]

Dalet

10 He is [A] a bear waiting in ambush, a lion in hiding. [k]
11 He forced me off my way and tore me to pieces;
He left me desolate.
12 He strung His bow [l] and set me as the target for His arrow.

He

13 He pierced my kidneys with His arrows. [m]
14 I am a laughingstock [n] to all my people, [o] mocked by their songs [p] all day long.
15 He filled me with bitterness, satiated me with •wormwood . [q]

Vav

[16] He ground my teeth on gravel [r] and made me cower [B] in the dust.
[17] My soul has been deprived [s] of peace; [t]
I have forgotten what happiness is.
[18] Then I thought: My future [C] is lost,
as well as my hope from the LORD.

Zayin

[19] Remember [D] my affliction and my homelessness, [u]
the wormwood and the poison. [v] [20] I continually remember them and have become depressed. [w, x] [21] Yet I call this to mind, and therefore I have hope: [y]

Khet

[22] Because of the LORD's faithful love [z]
we do not perish, [a]
for His mercies never end.
[23] They are new every morning;
great is Your faithfulness! [b] [24] I say: The LORD is my portion, [c] therefore I will put my hope in Him.

Tet

[25] The LORD is good to those who wait [d] for Him, to the person who seeks Him.
[26] It is good to wait quietly [e]
for deliverance from the LORD. [f] [27] It is good for a man to bear the yoke [g] while he is still young.

Yod

[28] Let him sit alone and be silent, [h]

for God has disciplined him.
29 Let him put his mouth in the dust [i] — perhaps there is still hope.
30 Let him offer his cheek to the one who would strike him; [j] let him be filled with shame.

Kaf

31 For the Lord
will not reject us forever.
32 Even if He causes suffering,
He will show compassion
according to His abundant, faithful love. [k] 33 For He does not enjoy bringing affliction [l] or suffering on •mankind .

Lamed

34 Crushing all the prisoners of the land [E] beneath one's feet, 35 denying justice to a man [m] in the presence of the •Most High, 36 or suppressing a person's lawsuit [n] —
the Lord does not approve of these things.

Mem

37 Who is there who speaks and it happens, unless the Lord has ordained it? [o] 38 Do not both adversity and good come from the mouth of the Most High? [p] 39 Why should any living person complain, any man, because of the punishment for his sins?

Nun

40 Let us search out and examine our ways, and turn back to the LORD. [q] 41 Let us lift up our hearts and our hands [r]
to God in heaven:
42 We have sinned and rebelled;

You have not forgiven. [s]

Samek

[43] You have covered Yourself in anger and pursued us;
You have killed without compassion. [t]
[44] You have covered Yourself with a cloud
so that no prayer can pass through. [u] [45] You have made us disgusting filth among the peoples. [v]

Pe

[46] All our enemies
open their mouths against us. [w] [47] We have experienced panic and pitfall, [x] devastation and destruction.
[48] My eyes flow with streams of tears because of the destruction of my dear people.

Ayin

[49] My eyes overflow unceasingly, without end, [y]
[50] until the LORD looks down from heaven and sees. [z] [51] My eyes bring me grief because of the fate of all the women in my city.

Tsade

[52] For no apparent reason, my enemies [F] hunted me like a bird. [a] [53] They dropped me alive into [G] a pit [b] and threw stones at me.
[54] Water flooded over my head, [c]
and I thought: I'm going to die! [d]

Qof

[55] I called on Your name, •Yahweh , from the depths of the •Pit . [e]

56 You hear my plea:
Do not ignore my cry for relief.
57 You come near when I call on You;
You say: “Do not be afraid.”

Resh

58 You defend my cause, Lord; [f]
You redeem my life. [g]
59 LORD, You see the wrong done to me;
judge my case.
60 You see all their malice,
all their plots against me. [h]

Sin / שׂ Shin

61 LORD, You hear their insults, [i] all their plots against me.
62 The slander [H] and murmuring of my opponents attack me all day long.
63 When they sit and when they rise, look,
I am mocked by their songs. [j]

Tav

64 You will pay them back what they deserve, LORD, according to the work of their hands. [k]
65 You will give them a heart filled with anguish. [I, l]
May Your curse be on them!
66 You will pursue them in anger and destroy them under Your heavens. [m, J, n]

Terrors of the Besieged City

Alef

4 How the gold has become tarnished, the fine gold become dull!
The stones of the temple [A] lie scattered at the corner of every street. [a]

2 •Zion ’s precious people — once worth their weight in pure gold [b] — how they are regarded as clay jars,
the work of a potter’s hands!

Gimel

3 Even jackals offer their breasts to nurse their young,
but my dear people have become cruel
like ostriches [c] in the wilderness.

Dalet

4 The nursing infant’s tongue clings to the roof of his mouth from thirst. [d]
Little children beg for bread, but no one gives them any.

He

5 Those who used to eat delicacies are destitute in the streets;
those who were reared in purple garments [e] huddle in garbage heaps.

Vav

6 The punishment of my dear people which was overthrown in an instant without a hand laid on it.

Zayin

7 Her dignitaries were brighter than snow, whiter than milk;

their bodies [B] were more ruddy than coral,
their appearance like sapphire. [C]

[8] Now they appear darker than soot; [g]
they are not recognized in the streets.
Their skin has shriveled on their bones;
it has become dry like wood.

[13] Yet it happened because of the sins of her prophets and the •guilt of her priests, who shed the blood of the righteous within her. [l]

Nun

14 Blind, they stumbled in the streets, [m] defiled by this blood, [n]
so that no one dared to touch their garments.

Samek

15 “Stay away! •Unclean ! ” people shouted at them.
“Away, away! Don’t touch us! ” [o]
So they wandered aimlessly. [p]
It was said among the nations,
“They can stay here no longer.”

Pe

16 The LORD Himself has scattered them;
He regards them no more.
The priests are not respected;
the elders find no favor.

Ayin

17 All the while our eyes were failing as we looked in vain for assistance; [q]
we watched from our towers for a nation [r] that refused to help.

Tsade

18 Our steps were closely followed so that we could not walk in our streets.
Our end drew near; [s] our time ran out.
Our end had come!

Qof

19 Those who chased us were swifter than eagles in the sky; [t]
they relentlessly pursued us over the mountains and ambushed us in the wilderness.

Resh

20 The LORD's anointed, [u] the breath of our life, [D, v] was captured in their traps.
We had said about him,
"We will live under his protection among the nations."

Sin

21 So rejoice and be glad, Daughter Edom, [w]
you resident of the land of Uz! [x]
Yet the cup [y] will pass to you as well;
you will get drunk and expose yourself.

Tav

22 Daughter Zion, your punishment is complete;
He will not lengthen your exile. [E]
But He will punish your iniquity, Daughter Edom, and will expose your sins. [z]

Prayer for Restoration

5 •Yahweh , remember what has happened to us.
Look, and see our disgrace! [a] 2 Our inheritance has been turned over to strangers, our houses to foreigners.
3 We have become orphans, fatherless;
our mothers are widows.
4 We must pay for the water we drink;
our wood comes at a price.
5 We are closely pursued;
we are tired, and no one offers us rest.
6 We made a treaty with [A] Egypt and with Assyria, to get enough food. [b] 7 Our fathers sinned; they no longer exist, but we bear their punishment.
8 Slaves rule over us; [c]
no one rescues us from their hands.
9 We secure our food at the risk of our lives because of the sword in the wilderness.
10 Our skin is as hot [B] as an oven [d]
from the ravages of hunger.
11 Women are raped in •Zion , girls in the cities of Judah.
12 Princes are hung up by their hands;
elders are shown no respect. [e] 13 Young men labor at millstones; [f] boys stumble under loads of wood.
14 The elders have left the city •gate ,
the young men, their music. [g] 15 Joy has left our hearts; [h] our dancing has turned to mourning.
16 The crown has fallen from our head. [i] Woe to us, for we have sinned. [j] 17 Because of this, our heart is sick;
because of these, our eyes grow dim: [k]
18 because of Mount Zion, which lies desolate and has jackals prowling in it. [l]

19 You, LORD, are enthroned forever;
Your throne endures from generation to generation. [m]
20 Why have You forgotten us forever, [n] abandoned us for our entire lives?
21 LORD, restore us to Yourself, so we may return; [o] renew our days as in former times, 22 unless You have completely rejected us and are intensely angry with us.

LAMENTATIONS

Introduction | Outline | Timeline | Study Notes | Word Studies

Introduction

"Because of the Lord's faithful love we do not perish, for His mercies never end. They are new every morning; great is Your faithfulness!" (3:22-23) This is a book about pain but with hope in God. The author vividly addresses the extremes of human pain and suffering as few other authors have done in history. For this reason, Lamentations is an important biblical source expressing the hard questions that arise during our times of pain. The suffering the author discusses was brought on by the brutal overthrow of Jerusalem in 586 B.C., one of the darkest times in Jewish history.

When naming a book of the Hebrew Bible, the first word was often adopted as the name of the whole book. In this case, 1:1; 2:1; and 4:1 begin the typical Hebrew cry of woe (Hb 'ekah ; "Ah," "Alas," "How"), an exclamatory rather than interrogative Hebrew particle. Thus the book would have been known as Alas! Later rabbis referred to the book more by its contents— qinot , i.e., "lamentations"—so this title came to be passed down in the Talmud and in the Greek translation (the Septuagint).

Circumstances of Writing Author: Jeremiah's name has long been associated with this book. The Alexandrian form of the Greek Septuagint has these words preceding 1:1: "And it came to pass, after Israel had been carried away captive, and Jerusalem became desolate, that Jeremiah sat weeping, and lamented with this lamentation over Jerusalem." The Latin Vulgate adds this phrase: "and with a sorrowful mind, sighing and moaning, he said." The Talmud observes that "Jeremiah wrote his own book and the book of Kings and Lamentations." Given this rich tradition linking Jeremiah to Lamentations, it seems safe to conclude he did indeed write this book.

Background: The sad background for these five poems of lament was the sacking of Jerusalem and the burning of the temple in 587 B.C. by the Babylonian army. Even though the book lists only one proper name ("Edom," 4:21-22), the allusions and the historical connections to the events listed so dramatically in 2Kg 25; 2Ch 36:11-21; and the book of Jeremiah are unmistakable. Perhaps a short list of the key events and some of their allusions in the book of Lamentations will help make this point: Events Lamentations 1. Siege of Jerusalem 2:20-22; 3:5,7

2. Famine in the city 1:11,19; 2:11-12,19-20; 4:4-5,9-10; 5:9-10
3. Flight of the Judean army 1:3,6; 2:2; 4:19-20
4. Burning of the temple, palace, and the city 2:3-5; 4:11; 5:18
5. Breaching of the city walls 2:7-9
6. Exile of the people 1:1,4-5,18; 2:9,14; 3:2,19; 4:22; 5:2
7. Looting of the temple 1:10; 2:6-7
8. Execution of the leaders 1:15; 2:2,20
9. Vassal status of Judah 1:1; 5:8-9
10. Collapse of expected foreign help 4:17; 5:6

Message and Purpose Lamentations does not offer a complete or understandable explanation for the suffering and pain found here, but it was important that the pain and suffering be connected to the actual events of 586 B.C. If these pent-up feelings of agony could not be attached to some datable event, the pain could threaten to take on cosmic proportions. This is why history is necessary. When sorrow becomes detached from history, suffering gets out of hand because perspective is lost, tempting a suffering person to lose touch with reality.

There was more than enough to weep over. The united lament of the people related to their covenant history with God. This anchored their sorrow but also gave their grief specific barriers, lest they should be overwhelmed and lose all hope.

Contribution to the Bible Few things contrast religious and humanistic traditions more than their respective responses to suffering. The humanist sees suffering as a bare, impersonal event without ultimate meaning or purpose. For believers, suffering is a personal problem because they believe that all events of history are under the hand of a personal God. And if that is true, then how can God's love and justice be reconciled with our pain?

Lamentations gives no easy answers to this question, but it helps us meet God in the midst of our suffering and teaches us the language of prayer. Instead of offering a set of techniques, easy answers, or inspiring slogans for facing pain and grief, Lamentations supplies: (1) an orientation, (2) a voice for working through grief from "A" to "Z," (3) instruction on how and what to pray, and (4) a focal point on the faithfulness of God and the affirmation that He alone is our portion.

Structure The book of Lamentations exhibits a remarkably fine artistic structure. Each of its five chapters (five poems) is a structurally unified text. The fact that there is an uneven number of poems allows the middle poem (chap. 3) to be the midpoint of the book. Thus, there is an ascent (or crescendo) up to a fixed climax for the entire book, thereby making chapter 3 central in its form and the message it imparts. Accordingly, the first two chapters form the steps leading up to the climax of 3:22-24, and from here there is a descent in chapters 4 and 5.

The poems or songs of this book also exhibit the so-called acrostic form (a crisscross inversion such as a-b, b-a). As such, chapters 1 and 5 are overall summaries of the disaster, 2 and 4 are more detailed descriptions of what took place, and chapter 3 occupies the central position.

Lamentations also utilizes the form of the alphabetic acrostic with the 22-letter Hebrew alphabet. In chapter 5, each of its 22 stanzas consists of a single line, but this is the only chapter that is not in an alphabetic acrostic. Chapter 3 is the most structured of the five poems.

The vanity of human pride (4:21-22) V. The Prayer (a future view; 5:1-22) A. Jerusalem invokes God's grace (5:1-18) B. Jerusalem invokes God's glory (5:19-22)

Timeline

Study Notes 1:1-7 In this section the poet uses the third person as he speaks on behalf of Jerusalem. It is her loneliness that strikes the poet as the losses mount up: loss of abundance (v. 1), loss of allies (v. 2), loss of a resting place (v. 3), loss of happiness (v. 4), loss of prestige (v. 5), loss of courage (v. 6), and loss of worship

(v. 7; see W. Kaiser, Grief and Pain , pp. 47-48).

1:1 The poet begins with an ejaculatory word How—a word used in biblical texts for laments and funerals. It is much like the Jewish oiee Vaah! Three contrasts of status are listed. Jerusalem was once populous, great among the nations, the queen of the cities, but now she is solitary, a widow, and a tributary slave.

1:2 Not a single comforter among all the city's former suitors remains; they have all turned traitors and enemy oppressors.

1:3 The afflictions of war and famine, the heavy tribute paid to Pharaoh Neco and King Nebuchadnezzar, plus their bitter exile, meant Judah now had no place to rest. Pursuers had caught Judah in narrow places, and they had fallen as easy prey.

1:4 The tragedy that had overtaken the nation had now overtaken the center of their religious life—Zion. Gone were all the appointed festivals as everything was left deserted.

1:5 Now for the first time the name of the LORD (Yahweh) is introduced as the One who had made Judah suffer because of her many transgressions.

1:6 Like stags running away from hunters, leaving no one to defend the herd, so Judah's leaders had abandoned the nation (2Kg 24:1,12; Dn 1:2)—as did King Zedekiah when he fled for his life during the siege of Jerusalem (2Kg 25:4).

1:7 This verse summarizes the whole section with the name of Jerusalem appearing for the first time. The worst of it all was the laughing of the adversaries.

1:8-11 This section explores some of the sources of Judah's grief. Notable are its shame (v. 8), its defilement (v. 9), its desecration (v. 10), and famine (v. 11).

1:8 It was most humiliating to be stripped of all clothing. This act was usually reserved for the punishment of prostitutes (Ezk 16:35-39; 23:29) or for exiles being marched off into captivity.

1:9 Judah never considered her end, nor did she believe that God would fulfill His threats against His people (Dt 28:15-68). Thus, her downfall was astonishing to her.

1:10 Judah lost the most outstanding of all her glorious possessions—the temple of God. The sanctuary was off limits to Gentiles previously, but now the nations tramped through it with disregard.

1:11 In order to stay alive, the people bartered their precious belongings for food. Valuables such as jewels were exchanged for meager foodstuffs.

1:12-17 The second half of this first lament intensifies as the plan and purpose of God are unveiled.

1:12 A plea for pity goes out to the nations to see if there is any pain like Judah's. It is another Day of the Lord, this day of His burning anger.

1:13-15 Four strong metaphors depict the sufferings that Jerusalem endured: (1) fire from heaven, (2) a hunter's net for her feet, (3) an animal yoke on her neck, and (4) being trampled and crushed like grapes in a winepress. Each figure depicted the dies irae , the "day of wrath" belonging to the Lord. The fire from on high was nothing less than fire from God (Gn 19:24; Ps 11:6). So was the net from God, because it came as a check on one's lifestyle (Ps 94:13; Jr 50:24; Ezk 12:13; 17:20; 32:3; Hs 7:12). The yoke recalled Jeremiah's encounter with the false prophet Hananiah (Jr 28). Likewise, the winepress was a symbol of the final judgment (Is 63:1-4; Jr 6:9; Jl 3:13; Rv 14:18-20; 19:13-15).

1:16 The heartbreak was wrenching to the core of Jeremiah's being, because the enemy had prevailed.

1:17 Once again, for the fourth time in this chapter, the mournful words fall: there is no one to comfort her.

1:18-22 After structuring his first poem around the first 17 letters of the Hebrew alphabet, describing all the while Israel's bitter response to her suffering, with the eighteenth letter Jeremiah begins a brief interlude in which Judah confesses that the Lord is in the right and asks Him to deal with them [Judah's enemies] as You have dealt with me.

1:18 Judah's confession begins with the LORD is just; the people of Judah had rebelled against His command.

1:19 Judah's professed lovers ended up being her betrayers, and they themselves had perished in the city while searching for food.

1:20-21 Two requests are issued in these verses: (1) for the Lord to witness the enormous mental and emotional distress Judah was experiencing, and (2) for the Lord to pay back the jeering nations.

1:22 Jeremiah's request for the day of wrath to fall on the nations as it had fallen on Judah need not make us blush even though Jesus told us to "love our enemies" (Mt 5:44). The kind of love Jesus had in mind was required even of OT believers such as Jeremiah, but it does not conflict with what Jeremiah says here. There are two types of enemies. First, there are those who simply bear ill will toward us. These we must love, commending them to God in prayer. Second, some enemies do more than bear ill will toward us. They maliciously rage against us and our God, threatening our very lives. If they persist in this despite our sincere efforts to make peace, we are justified in turning them over to God for His sentencing and judgment (Ps 139:19).

2:1-22 God's anger is mentioned elsewhere in Lamentations (1:12; 3:1,43,66; 4:11; 5:22), but the theme is especially common in this section. The first 10 verses of chapter 2 contain 40 descriptions of God's anger and judgment.

2:1 The phrase Israel's glory must mean that the temple of God has been destroyed. His footstool usually refers to the ark of the covenant, but this can hardly be the meaning here, since Jr 3:16 may suggest that the ark was absent even before the destruction of the temple.

2:2 The land has been devastated and laid waste.

2:3 God's work is described both actively (He has cut off every horn of Israel, meaning all strength and power) and passively (He has withdrawn His right hand). The destruction of Jerusalem was as much a work of God as it was an accomplishment of Babylon.

2:4-5 God is declared to be a divine warrior who has bent His bow, raised His right hand, and swallowed up Israel as He poured out His wrath like fire on Daughter Zion.

2:6 As an enemy, God has destroyed His place of meeting (the temple), despising king and priest in His fierce anger.

2:7 God rejected and repudiated not only the temple with its altar and sanctuary, but also the walls of her palaces. The royal palace, state buildings, the temple—God judged every aspect of Jerusalem. The enemy raised shouts in the house of the LORD, not Hebrew worshipers.

2:8-9 The ramparts and walls grieve as God measures them for destruction. Their ruin leaves Jerusalem defenseless, with the result that her king and leaders live among the nations after they are hauled off in exile. Another sign of God's judgment is that He gives them no more instruction or vision from the LORD.

2:10 The elders and the young women sat silently on the ground, clothed in sackcloth with dust on their heads. These were symbols of extreme distress and mourning.

2:11-12 Jeremiah allows us to see and hear his responses to what has happened as children and infants faint in the streets and in the arms of their mothers.

2:13 Words fail Jeremiah as he struggles to make sense of what has happened. It is as catastrophic as a churning sea.

2:14 Jeremiah had warned that the false prophets' words were empty and deceptive (Jr 23:18-22; cp. Ezk 13:10-16).

2:15-16 The pagan nations not only clap their hands at Judah and shake their heads, but as an ultimate insult, they hiss and gnash their teeth at Jerusalem. The city that had been known as the perfection of beauty (Ps 50:2) and the joy of the whole earth (Ps 48:2) was now an object of ridicule.

2:17 Despite the enemy's gloating over Judah, the destruction was not ultimately due to their power and cunning. This destruction was by God's decree.

2:18 In a personification, the Wall of Daughter Zion is called upon to let its tears flow day and night as long as the ruins remain.

2:19 Judah is to call on the name of the Lord with her heart poured out like water starting with the first watch—from sunset until 10:00 p.m.

2:20-22 Jeremiah had taught the people, both young and old (v. 21), how to express repentance to God in prayer (see Jr 14:17-19).

2:20 Should women eat their own children? This is how desperate conditions became during the siege of Jerusalem. People fought over whose child should be eaten next (4:10).

2:22 The phrase attackers on every side may also be rendered "terrors on every side." This jeer was hurled at Jeremiah repeatedly during his ministry (Jr 6:25; 20:3,10; 46:5; 49:29).

3:1-66 This chapter is distinctive in form and content from all others in the book. The identity of I am the man (v. 1) strikes us immediately. Who is speaking here? It is an individual "I" (vv. 1-24) that changes to a "we" (vv. 22,40-47) and back to "I" again in verses 48-66. Some say it is a generalized "everyman," others a historical personage such as King Jehoiachin. But it is probably Jeremiah speaking as a collective personage. He suffered as an "I" while carrying out his unpopular role as prophet, prayer warrior, and pleader for his people; and he also suffered as a "we" as his people and his city were destroyed.

3:1 The rod of God's wrath was Babylon. God used this nation as His instrument of judgment against His people (Jb 9:34; 21:9; Ps 89:32; Pr 22:8; cp. Is 10:5, where Assyria is described as the rod of God's judgment).

3:3 God's hand was repeatedly . . . against His erring people, bringing to frustration every plan and desire they had as long as they held out against God.

3:4-6 The days of rebellion by the people against God had aged the poet and left him like a dead man. Like the nation, Jeremiah could sense life ebbing away.

3:5 God was encircling the poet with bitterness, or "gall."

3:6 Dwelling in darkness implies that death and adversity had wrapped itself around Jeremiah (Jb 12:25; Am 5:18).

3:7-9 God had walled . . . in His representative Jeremiah and weighed him down so that he felt he was walking in a maze—paths that led nowhere, full of dead ends.

3:10-11 In another bold figure of speech, God is compared to a bear waiting in ambush or a lion in hiding (see Hs 13:8; Am 5:19). There is a mixing of metaphors here; Jeremiah had already compared Israel's enemies to lions (Jr 5:6; 49:19; 50:44). Thus what God had permitted the nation's enemy to do (stalk and destroy Judah) could also be attributed to God Himself.

3:12 God is depicted as an archer (Jb 16:12-13) who shoots with deadly accuracy at His prey.

3:13-14 So strong and intense was the pain Jeremiah felt that it was as if he had been pierced by God's arrows. He had been the object of ridicule, mockery, and scoffing (Jr 20:7) by his own people.

3:15-16 So cruel was the mocking laughter that it was like getting a full meal that consisted of bitterness and wormwood. It was like feeding on the gravel of Baal worship instead of the bread of life, God's word.

3:17-18 It was as if the curse of God rested on Jeremiah (Jr 16:5), so that his future was lost as well as his hope from the LORD .

3:19 Four terms show the depth of Jeremiah's sorrow: affliction . . . homelessness . . . wormwood, and poison. Jeremiah's memory of the past was bitter to the utmost.

3:20-24 Just as quickly as the prophet was tempted by bitter thoughts, he adopted a better line of thought: instead of brooding over his anguish and sorrow, he will put his hope in the love of the Lord, because His mercies never end. The fact that Jeremiah was still alive was proof that God's faithful love was constant. Here is the heart of this book: Great is Your faithfulness. The Lord Himself was the poet's portion (see Ps 16:5; 73:26; 119:57; 142:5).

3:25-39 The dominant thought of this section is that the LORD is good. All five triads in this section (vv. 25-27,28-30,31-33,34-36,37-39) begin not only with the same letter from the Hebrew alphabet, but with the same Hebrew word or related words in each line.

3:25-27 God's goodness is presented in three aspects: (1) God is good in His nature and being, (2) God is good to those who have learned to wait silently and endure His lessons through suffering, and (3) God is good to those who submit agreeably to divine providence.

3:28-30 This triad teaches how a person is to suffer patiently: (1) sit alone and be silent, which allows for reflection with God, (2) put your mouth in the dust, which keeps you from speaking in anger, and (3) offer your cheek to the striker, an attitude of humility. Each tactic is increasingly difficult, and each raises the hope that God will deliver His people from trouble.

3:31-33 There are three reasons for hope: (1) The Lord will not reject His people forever, (2) God's compassion outweighs the sorrow He sends, and (3) God does not enjoy bringing affliction or suffering on mankind.

3:34-36 God does not look favorably on humanity's cruelty and injustice (Ps 22:18; Pr 23:31; Is 53:2). None of our injustices fall outside God's control or oversight. He sees it all and keeps accurate books. Therefore, denying justice and disregarding human rights invites the judgment of God, in whose presence all this takes place (Ps 113:5-6).

3:37 This verse seems to have Ps 33:9 in mind: "He spoke, and it came into being."

3:38 Everything, both adversity and good, comes from the hand of God. Even evil is something that He will sometimes permit according to His wisdom.

3:39 This verse returns to the theme of verse 22. How can any living person complain, since the fact that he is alive is evidence that God's gracious love and mercy are still operating?

3:40-47 Jeremiah shifted to the first-person plural pronoun ("us" and "our") for the rest of this chapter. In these verses his representative role is made plain. He will lead his people in a confession of their sins and exhort them to return to the Lord.

3:40 No phrase is more characteristic of the prophets—especially Jeremiah—than turn back to the LORD (see Jr 3:1). It is the OT word for repentance. It called for the people to search out and examine their ways, an act that implied their sin was hidden from the eyes and hearts of those who had been deceived (Jr 17:9).

3:41 Here is an appeal to prayer, as signified by the lifting of one's hands (2:19).

3:42 This verse states the content of the prayer. The contrast between we and the Lord (You) is emphatic and specific.

3:43-45 It was impossible for God to answer the prayers of the people as long as sin festered in their lives. God's wrath was like a cloud that prayer could not penetrate.

3:48 The third line of the triad of verses 46-48 dramatically (as in v. 40) breaks back into the first-person pronoun with its reference to my eyes (which continues in v. 49). So this is a lament against Israel's enemies.

3:51 The fate of defenseless women in the city was a cause for much grief, and an indication of just how total was Jerusalem's undoing.

3:52-54 Jeremiah referred to his experience of being thrown into a pit (Jr 38:4-6). He also expressed his pain and anguish over the wretched condition of his own people and what they had endured from the Babylonians. Water flooded over my head is a metaphor for all sorts of distress (Jb 27:20; Ps 42:7; 66:12; 88:7; 124:4; Is 43:2). This representative sufferer was hunted . . . like a bird and for no apparent reason. In that way he was like Jesus, the chief substitutionary sufferer (Jn 15:21).

3:55-66 The final 12 verses of this chapter are a prayer for deliverance, which is how chapters 1 and 2 end.

3:55 Like the psalmist, Jeremiah called on God's name from the depths of the Pit (see Ps 130:1).

3:56-57 God heard Jeremiah's plea. His words of assurance were, Do not be afraid.

3:58-60 There was no better judge for Jeremiah's case than the Lord, who saw all and yet was able to defend the prophet's cause and redeem his life.

3:61-63 The Lord, the Omniscient One, heard and saw everything. Jeremiah and Israel could be sure they were in good hands.

3:64-66 Sufferers must leave revenge (pay them back) in the hands of the Lord. Jeremiah never raised his own hand to seek personal vengeance for all he had suffered.

4:1-2 God's people were worth their weight in gold. The prophet used three terms for gold: the general term gold, fine gold, and pure gold. That is what the holy nation was before God, but now smeared with sin, they were regarded as clay jars, like pieces of broken pottery.

4:3-4 The jackals offer their breasts to nurse their young, but Israel's parents neglected their young during the crisis. They are like ostriches, which are legendary for their habit of laying eggs and then leaving them (Jb 39:13-18).

4:5 Those who had been raised on delicacies and clothed in purple now had to go hungry and huddle in garbage heaps.

4:6 Greater privilege (revelation from God) brought greater responsibility to God and thus greater degrees of guilt for wrongdoing. Thus Judah's guilt was greater than that of Sodom.

4:7-8 The phrase her dignitaries is often rendered as "her Nazirites." But Gn 49:26 and Dt 33:16 use it of a person who is "separated" by rank and task from his contemporaries. Hence, these dignitaries, once ruddy and glamorous, were darker than soot and their skin was shriveled on their bones.

4:9 A swift death by the sword was better than a slow death by starvation.

4:10 So horrific were the effects of the famine during the siege of Jerusalem that even compassionate women, who under normal circumstances would never think of such a thing, cooked their own children for food.

4:11 All the miseries that had befallen Jerusalem were allowed by the Lord. Exhausted His wrath means His planned judgment was fulfilled, not that He became weary and thus relented.

4:12 What many kings of the earth and all the world's inhabitants had thought impossible had happened: Jerusalem had fallen.

4:13-14 The reason for this tragedy was the sins of the prophets and the guilt of the priests (as Jeremiah had warned time and again; Jr 6:13; 8:8-12; 23:11-36; 26:7-24; 28:1-17). Now no one dared to touch their garments. They were the outcasts of society.

4:15-16 The survivors, who once cheered the false prophets and priests, now yelled at them: Unclean! . . . Away, away! Don't touch us! They were now homeless, aimless, and despised.

4:17 They looked in vain for a nation to come to their assistance. No human could overturn the judgment God had handed down.

4:20 Likewise, their trust in the heir of the Davidic line (The LORD's anointed, the breath of our life) proved futile. He was also captured in their traps. King Zedekiah was chained, blinded after watching his sons being massacred, and exiled to Babylon.

4:21-22 The nation of Edom might jeer for the moment, but the cup of God's wrath would fall on them also (Jr 25:15-29; Hab 2:15-16).

5:1 To remember in Scripture is never just calling something to mind. It involves a corresponding action.

5:2-4 Israel's inheritance had been turned over to strangers. Though they once owned everything, now even water and wood had to be purchased from foreigners.

5:5 The people of God were without rest, implying spiritual and physical troubles (Heb 3:16-4:11).

5:6 Israel lost her inheritance and suffered unrest because she made alliances with Egypt and Assyria. These policies showed that Israel was placing her trust in man rather than God (Jr 2:18,36).

5:7 It was no use repeating the old cynical proverb from Jr 31:29, "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." The people must admit, "We have sinned" (Lm 5:16).

5:9 Even the scanty harvests were subject to predatory raids by desert tribes.

5:10 Figuratively speaking, the people's skin was as hot as an oven as they suffered from the fever of extreme hunger.

5:11-14 Hardly anyone in Jerusalem was left unscathed. Women and girls were raped . . . princes were hung up by their hands . . . elders were shown no respect, young men and boys labored under enormous loads, and the elders, normally a fixture at the city gate, had all left.

5:15 All joy and merriment had turned to mourning.

5:16 The fallen crown symbolized Israel's loss of honor and glory. The reason was clear: we have sinned.

5:18 The once-magnificent city of Zion had become the haunt of jackals.

5:19 Though the city was wrecked and ruined, God's people could always find comfort and security in Him because His throne endures from generation to generation.

5:20 Jeremiah asked the Lord, have You forgotten us forever? But His goodness and mercy (3:22-24; Ps 23:6) argued just the opposite.

5:21 Only if the Lord restored the people would they enjoy life as it used to be. Such restoration is God's to give in response to repentance (turning from sin) and faith (trust in God).

5:22 One final question remained: Had God been so intensely angry with His people that He had completely rejected them? No. He would restore and renew them as He had done in the past.

Word Studies tsar Hebrew Pronunciation [TSAR]

HCSB Translation adversary, foe, enemy Uses in Lamentations 9
Uses in the OT 69
Focus passage Lamentations 2:4,17

This root in other languages denotes "enemy," "hostility," "opposition," and "damage." Tsar occurs most often in poetry and 18x as a synonym for 'oyev, the most common word for "enemy" (Est 7:6). Tsar signifies foe (Dt 32:27), adversary (Nm 10:9), or enemy (Gn 14:20). It derives from and appears with the verb tsarar (26x), which means attack (Nm 10:9), harass (Nm 33:55), or oppress (Am 5:12). Tsarar most often functions as a participle indicating foe (Ex 23:22), adversary (Ps 7:6), enemy (Ps 6:7), or one who attacks (Ps 143:12). The participle appears with the related verb tsur (4x), which implies being a foe (Ex 23:22) or hostile (Est 8:11) and showing hostility (Dt 2:9). Tsarah, a feminine form of tsar, denotes a second wife who is a rival in a bigamous marriage (1Sm 1:6).

EZEKIEL

1 In the thirtieth year, in the fourth month, on the fifth day of the month, while I was among the exiles by the Chebar Canal, [a] the heavens opened [b] and I saw visions of God. [c] 2 On the fifth day of the month — it was the fifth year of King Jehoiachin's exile — 3 the word of the LORD came directly to Ezekiel the priest, the son of Buzi, in the land of the Chaldeans by the Chebar Canal. And the LORD's hand was on him there. [d]

Vision of the LORD's Glory 4 I looked and there was a whirlwind coming from the north, [e] a great cloud with fire flashing back and forth and brilliant light all around it. In the center of the fire, there was a gleam like amber. [f] 5 The form of four living creatures came from it. [g] And this was their appearance: They had human form, 6 but each of them had four faces and four wings. 7 Their legs were straight, and the soles of their feet were like the hooves of a calf, sparkling like the gleam of polished bronze. [h] 8 They had human hands under their wings on their four sides. [i] All four of them had faces and wings. [j] 9 Their wings were touching. The creatures did not turn as they moved; each one went straight ahead. [k] 10 The form of each of their faces was that of a man, [l] and each of the four had the face of a lion on the right, the face of an ox on the left, and the face of an eagle. [m] 11 That is what their faces were like. Their wings were spread upward; each had two wings touching that of another and two wings covering its body. [n] 12 Each creature went straight ahead. [o] Wherever the Spirit [A] wanted to go, they went without turning as they moved. [p]

13 The form of the living creatures was like the appearance of burning coals of fire and torches. [q] Fire was moving back and forth between the living creatures;
it was bright, with lightning coming out of it. 14 The creatures were darting back and forth [r] like flashes of lightning. [s]

15 When I looked at the living creatures, there was one wheel on the ground beside each creature that had four faces. 16 The appearance of the wheels [t] and their craftsmanship was like the gleam of beryl, [u] and all four had the same form. Their appearance and craftsmanship was like a wheel within a wheel.
17 When they moved, they went in any of the four directions, without pivoting as they moved. 18 Their rims were large and frightening. Each of their four rims were full of eyes [v] all around. 19 So when the living creatures moved, [w] the wheels moved beside them, and when the creatures rose from the earth, the wheels also rose. 20 Wherever the Spirit [B] wanted to go, the creatures went in the direction the Spirit was moving. The wheels rose alongside them, for the spirit of the living creatures was in the wheels. 21 When the creatures moved, the wheels moved; when the creatures stood still, the wheels stood still; and when the creatures rose from the earth, the wheels rose alongside them, for the spirit of the living creatures was in the wheels.

22 The shape of an expanse, [x] with a gleam like awe-inspiring crystal, [y] was spread out over the heads of the living creatures. [z] 23 And under the expanse their wings extended one toward another. Each of them also had two wings covering their bodies. 24 When they moved, I heard the sound of their wings like the roar of mighty waters, [a] like the voice of the •Almighty , [b] and a sound of commotion like the noise of an army. [c] When they stood still, they lowered their wings.

25 A voice came from above the expanse over their heads; when they stood still, they lowered their wings. 26 The shape of a throne with the appearance of sapphire [C] stone was above the expanse. [D,] [d] There was a form with the appearance of a human on the throne high above. [e] 27 From what seemed to be His waist up, I saw a gleam like amber, with what looked like fire enclosing it all around. [f] From what seemed to be His waist down, I also saw what looked like fire. There was a brilliant light all around Him. 28 The appearance of the brilliant light all around was like that of a rainbow in a cloud on a rainy day. [g] This was the appearance of the form of the LORD's glory. [h] When I saw it, I fell facedown and heard a voice speaking. [i]

Mission to Rebellious Israel

2 He said to me, “Son of man, stand up on your feet [a] and I will speak with you.” [2] As He spoke to me, the Spirit entered me and set me on my feet, [b] and I listened to the One who was speaking to me. [3] He said to me: “Son of man, I am sending you to the Israelites, to [A] the rebellious pagans [c] who have rebelled against Me. The Israelites and their ancestors have transgressed against Me to this day. [d] [4] The children are obstinate [B] and hardhearted. [e] I am sending you to them, and you must say to them, ‘This is what the Lord GOD says.’ [5] Whether they listen or refuse to listen [f] — for they are a rebellious house — they will know that a prophet has been among them. [g]

[6] “But you, son of man, do not be afraid of them or their words, [h] though briers and thorns are beside you and you live among scorpions. [i] Don’t be afraid of their words or be discouraged by the look on their faces, for they are a rebellious house. [7] But speak My words to them whether they listen or refuse to listen, [j] for they are rebellious.

[8] “And you, son of man, listen to what I tell you: Do not be rebellious like that rebellious house. Open your mouth and eat what I am giving you.” [k] [9] So I looked and saw a hand reaching out to me, [l] and there was a written scroll in it. [m] [10] When He unrolled it before me, it was written on the front and back; words of lamentation, mourning, and woe were written on it.

3 He said to me: “Son of man, eat what you find here. Eat this scroll, [a] then go and speak to the house of Israel.” 2 So I opened my mouth, and He fed me the scroll. 3 “Son of man,” he said to me, “eat [A] and fill your stomach with this scroll I am giving you.” So I ate it, [b] and it was as sweet as honey in my mouth.
[c]

4 Then He said to me: “Son of man, go to the house of Israel and speak My words to them. 5 For you are not being sent to a people of unintelligible speech or difficult language but to the house of Israel. 6 You are not being sent to many peoples of unintelligible speech or difficult language, whose words you cannot understand. No doubt, if I sent you to them, they would listen to you. [d] 7 But the house of Israel will not want to listen to you because they do not want to listen to Me. [e] For the whole house of Israel is hardheaded and hardhearted. 8 Look, I have made your face as hard as their faces and your forehead as hard as their foreheads. [f] 9 I have made your forehead like a diamond, harder than flint. Don’t be afraid of them or discouraged by the look on their faces, even though they are a rebellious house.”

10 Next He said to me: “Son of man, listen carefully to all My words that I speak to you and take them to heart. 11 Go to your people, the exiles, and speak to them. Tell them, ‘This is what the Lord God says,’ whether they listen or refuse to listen.” [g]

12 The Spirit then lifted me up, [h] and I heard a great rumbling sound behind me — praise the glory of the Lord in His place! — 13 with the [i] sound of the living creatures’ wings brushing against each other [j] and the sound of the wheels beside them, [k] a great rumbling sound. 14 So the Spirit lifted me up and took me away. I left in bitterness and in an angry spirit, and the Lord’s hand was on me powerfully. [l] 15 I came to the exiles at Tel-abib, who were living by the Chebar Canal, and I sat there among them stunned for seven days. [m]

Ezekiel as a Watchman 16 Now at the end of seven days the word of the Lord came to me: [n] 17 “Son of man, I have made you a watchman over the house of Israel. [o] When you hear a word from My mouth, give them a warning from Me.
[p] 18 If I say to the wicked person, [q] ‘You will surely die,’ but you do not warn him — you don’t speak out to warn him about his wicked way in order to save his life — that wicked person will die for his iniquity. Yet I will hold you responsible for his blood. 19 But if you warn a wicked person and he does not turn from his wickedness or his wicked way, he will die for his iniquity, but you will have saved your life. [r] 20 Now if a righteous person turns from his righteousness and practices iniquity, [s] and I put a stumbling block in front of him, he will die. [t] If you did not warn him, he will die because of his sin and the righteous acts he did will not be remembered. Yet I will hold you responsible for his blood. [21] But if you warn the righteous person that he should not sin, and he does not sin, he will indeed live because he listened to your warning, and you will have saved your life."

[22] Then the hand of the LORD was on me there, and He said to me, "Get up, go out to the plain, [u] and I will speak with you there." [v] [23] So I got up and went out to the plain. The LORD's glory was present there, [w] like the glory I had seen by the Chebar Canal, [x] and I fell facedown. [24] The Spirit entered me and set me on my feet. [y] He spoke with me and said: "Go, shut yourself inside your house. [25] And you, son of man, they will put ropes on you [z] and bind you with them so you cannot go out among them. [26] I will make your tongue stick to the roof of your mouth, [a] and you will be mute [b] and unable to rebuke them, for they are a rebellious house. [27] But when I speak with you, I will open your mouth, [c] and you will say to them, 'This is what the Lord GOD says.' Let the one who listens, listen, and let the one who refuses, refuse — for they are a rebellious house.

Jerusalem's Siege Dramatized

4 “Now you, son of man, take a brick, set it in front of you, and draw the city of Jerusalem on it. 2 Then lay siege against it: [a] construct a siege wall, build a ramp, pitch military camps, and place battering rams against it on all sides. 3 Take an iron plate and set it up as an iron wall between yourself and the city.
Turn your face toward it so that it is under siege, and besiege it. This will be a sign for the house of Israel. [b]

4 “Then lie down on your left side and place the iniquity [A] of the house of Israel on it. You will bear their iniquity for the number of days you lie on your side. 5 For I have assigned you the years of their iniquity according to the number of days you lie down, 390 days; so you will bear the iniquity of the house of Israel. [c] 6 When you have completed these days, lie down again, but on your right side, and bear the iniquity of the house of Judah. I have assigned you 40 days, a day for each year. 7 You must turn your face toward the siege of Jerusalem with your arm bared, and prophesy against it. 8 Be aware that I will put cords on you so you cannot turn from side to side until you have finished the days of your siege. [d]

9 “Also take wheat, barley, beans, lentils, millet, and spelt. Put them in a single container and make them into bread for yourself. You are to eat it during the number of days you lie on your side, 390 days. 10 The food you eat each day will be eight ounces [B] by weight; you will eat it from time to time. [C] 11 You are also to drink water by measure, a sixth of a gallon, [D] which you will drink from time to time. 12 You will eat it as you would a barley cake and bake it over dried human excrement in their sight.” 13 The LORD said, “This is how the Israelites will eat their bread — ceremonially •unclean — among the nations where I will banish them.” [e]

14 But I said, “Oh, Lord GOD, I have never been defiled. From my youth until now I have not eaten anything that died naturally or was mauled by wild beasts.
[f] And impure meat has never entered my mouth.” [g]

15 He replied to me, “Look, I will let you use cow dung instead of human excrement, and you can make your bread over that.” 16 Then He said to me, “Son of man, I am going to cut off the supply of bread in Jerusalem. [h] They will anxiously eat bread rationed by weight and in dread drink water by measure. [i] 17
So they will lack bread and water; everyone will be devastated and waste away because of their iniquity. [j]

Ezekiel Dramatizes Jerusalem's Fall

5 “Now you, son of man, take a sharp sword, [a] use it as you would a barber’s razor, and shave your head and beard. Then take a set of scales and divide the hair. 2 You are to burn up a third of it in the city when the days of the siege have ended; [b] you are to take a third and slash it with the sword all around the city; and you are to scatter a third to the wind, for I will draw a sword to chase after them. 3 But you are to take a few strands from the hair and secure them in the folds of your robe. [c] 4 Take some more of them, throw them into the fire, and burn them in it. [d] A fire will spread from it to the whole house of Israel.

5 “This is what the Lord God says: I have set this Jerusalem in the center of the nations, with countries all around her. 6 But she has rebelled against My ordinances with more wickedness than the nations, and against My statutes more than the countries that surround her. For her people have rejected My ordinances and have not walked in My statutes.

7 “Therefore, this is what the Lord God says: Because you have been more insubordinate than the nations around you [e] — you have not walked in My statutes or kept My ordinances; you have not even kept the ordinances of the nations around you — 8 therefore, this is what the Lord God says: See, I am against you, Jerusalem, and I will execute judgments within you in the sight of the nations. 9 Because of all your detestable practices, I will do to you what I have never done before and what I will never do again. [f] 10 As a result, fathers will eat their sons [g] within Jerusalem, [A] and sons will eat their fathers. I will execute judgments against you and scatter all your survivors to every direction of the wind.

11 “Therefore, as I live” — this is the declaration of the Lord God — “I am going to cut you off and show you no pity, because you have defiled My sanctuary [h] with all your detestable practices and abominations. [i] Yes, I will not spare you. 12 A third of your people will die by plague and be consumed by famine within you; [j] a third will fall by the sword all around you; and I will scatter a third to every direction of the wind, and I will draw a sword to chase after them. [k] 13 When My anger is spent and I have vented My wrath on them, I will be appeased. [l] Then after I have spent My wrath on them, they will know that I, •Yahweh , have spoken in My jealousy. [m]

14 “I will make you a ruin and a disgrace among the nations around you, in the sight of everyone who passes by. 15 So you [n] will be a disgrace and a taunt, a warning and a horror, to the nations around you when I execute judgments against you in anger, [o] wrath, and furious rebukes. I, Yahweh, have spoken. 16

When I shoot deadly arrows of famine at them, arrows for destruction that I will send to destroy you, inhabitants of Jerusalem, I will intensify the famine against you and cut off your supply of bread. 17 I will send famine and dangerous animals against you. They will leave you childless, Jerusalem. Plague and bloodshed will sweep through you, and I will bring a sword against you. I, Yahweh, have spoken." p

Prophecy against Israel's Idolatry

6 The word of the LORD came to me: 2 “Son of man, turn your face toward the mountains of Israel [a] and prophesy against them. 3 You are to say:
Mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord GOD! This is what the Lord GOD says to the mountains and the hills, to the ravines and the valleys: I am about to bring a sword against you, and I will destroy your •high places. [b] 4 Your altars will be desolated and your incense altars smashed. I will throw down your slain in front of your idols. 5 I will lay the corpses of the Israelites in front of their idols and scatter your bones around your altars. 6 Wherever you live the cities will be in ruins and the high places will be desolate, so that your altars will lie in ruins and be desecrated, [A] your idols smashed and obliterated, your incense altars cut down, and your works wiped out. 7 The slain will fall among you, and you will know that I am •Yahweh .

8 “Yet I will leave a remnant when you are scattered among the nations, for throughout the countries there will be some of you who will escape the sword. [c] 9 Then your survivors will remember Me among the nations where they are taken captive, [d] how I was crushed by their promiscuous hearts that turned away from Me and by their eyes that lusted after their idols. [e] They will loathe themselves because of the evil things they did, [f] their detestable practices of every kind. 10 And they will know that I am the LORD; I did not threaten to bring this disaster on them without a reason.

Lament over the Fall of Jerusalem 11 “This is what the Lord GOD says: Clap your hands, stamp your feet, [g] and cry out over all the evil and detestable practices of the house of Israel, who will fall by the sword, famine, and plague. [h] 12 The one who is far off will die by plague; the one who is near will fall by the sword; and the one who remains and is spared [B] will die of famine. In this way I will exhaust My wrath on them. [i] 13 You will all know that I am Yahweh when their slain lie among their idols around their altars, [j] on every high hill, [k] on all the mountaintops, and under every green tree and every leafy oak — the places where they offered pleasing aromas to all their idols. 14 I will stretch out My hand against them, [l] and wherever they live I will make the land a desolate waste, from the wilderness to Diblah. [m] Then they will know that I am Yahweh.”

Announcement of the End

7 And the word of the LORD came to me: 2 “Son of man, this is what the Lord GOD says to the land of Israel:
An end! The end has come on the four corners of the land. [a] 3 The end is now upon you;
I will send My anger against you
and judge you according to your ways.
I will punish you for all your detestable practices.
4 I will not look on you with pity or spare you, [b]
but I will punish you for your ways [c]
and for your detestable practices within you.
Then you will know that I am •Yahweh .” [d]
5 This is what the Lord GOD says:
Look, one disaster after another is coming! [e]
6 An end has come; the end has come!
It has awakened against you.
Look, it is coming!
7 Doom [A] has come on you, [f]
inhabitants of the land.
The time has come; the day is near.
There will be panic on the mountains and not celebration. [g]

8 I will pour out My wrath on you very soon; [h]
I will exhaust My anger against you
and judge you according to your ways.
I will punish you for all your detestable practices.
9 I will not look on you with pity or spare you.
I will punish you for your ways
and for your detestable practices within you.
Then you will know that it is I, Yahweh, who strikes.

10 Look, the day is coming!
Doom has gone out. [i]
The rod has blossomed; [j] arrogance has bloomed. [k]
11 Violence has grown into a rod of wickedness. [l]

None of them will remain:
none of their multitude,
none of their wealth,
and none of the eminent [m] among them.

12 The time has come; the day has arrived.
Let the buyer not rejoice [n]
and the seller not mourn,
for wrath is on all her masses. [o] 13 The seller will certainly not return to what was sold
as long as he and the buyer remain alive. [B]
For the vision concerning all its people will not be revoked,
and none of them will preserve
his life because of his iniquity.

14 They have blown the trumpet [p]
and prepared everything,
but no one goes to war,
for My wrath is on all her masses.
15 The sword is on the outside; [q] plague and famine are on the inside.
Whoever is in the field will die by the sword, and famine and plague will devour whoever is in the city.

16 The survivors among them will escape [r] and live on the mountains
like doves of the valley,
all of them moaning,
each over his own iniquity.
17 All their hands will become weak, [s] and all their knees will turn to water.
18 They will put on •sackcloth , and horror will overwhelm them.
Shame will cover all their faces,
and all their heads will be bald. [t]

19 They will throw their silver into the streets, and their gold will seem like something filthy. [u]

Their silver and gold will be unable to save them in the day of the LORD's wrath. [v]
They will not satisfy their appetites or fill their stomachs,
for these were the stumbling blocks [w]
that brought about their iniquity.

20 He appointed His beautiful ornaments for majesty, but [C] they made their abhorrent images from them,
their detestable things. [x]
Therefore, I have made these into something filthy for them.
21 I will hand these things over to foreigners as plunder [y]
and to the wicked of the earth as spoil,
and they will profane them.
22 I will turn My face from the wicked
as they profane My treasured place.
Violent men will enter it and profane it.

23 Forge the chain, [z]
for the land is filled with crimes of bloodshed, and the city is filled with violence. [a] 24 So I will bring the most evil of nations [b]
to take possession of their houses.
I will put an end to the pride of the strong,
and their sacred places will be profaned. [c] 25 Anguish is coming!
They will seek peace, but there will be none.
26 Disaster after disaster will come, [d]
and there will be rumor after rumor. [e]
Then they will seek a vision from a prophet, [f]
but instruction will perish from the priests and counsel from the elders. [g] 27 The king will mourn;
the prince will be clothed in grief;
and the hands of the people of the land will tremble.

I will deal with them according to their own conduct, and I will judge them by their own standards. [h]
Then they will know that I am Yahweh.

Visionary Journey to Jerusalem

8 In the sixth year, in the sixth month, on the fifth day of the month, I was sitting in my house and the elders of Judah were sitting in front of me, [a] and there the hand of the Lord God came down on me. [b] 2 I looked, and there was a form that had the appearance of a man. [c] From what seemed to be His waist down was fire, and from His waist up was something that looked bright, [d] like the gleam of amber. [e] 3 He stretched out what appeared to be a hand and took me by the hair of my head. Then the Spirit lifted me up between earth and heaven and carried me in visions of God [f] to Jerusalem, to the entrance of the inner gate that faces north, where the offensive statue that provokes jealousy [g] was located. 4 I saw the glory of the God of Israel [h] there, like the vision I had seen in the plain. [i]

Pagan Practices in the Temple 5 The Lord said to me, "Son of man, look toward the north." I looked to the north, and there was this offensive statue north of the altar gate, at the entrance. 6 He said to me, "Son of man, do you see what they are doing here, more detestable things that the house of Israel is committing, [j] so that I must depart from My sanctuary? You will see even more detestable things."

7 Then He brought me to the entrance of the court, and when I looked there was a hole in the wall. 8 He said to me, "Son of man, dig through the wall." So I dug through the wall, and there was a doorway. 9 He said to me, "Go in and see the terrible and detestable things they are committing here." 10 I went in and looked, and there engraved all around the wall was every form of detestable thing, crawling creatures and beasts, as well as all the idols of the house of Israel. [k]

11 Seventy elders from the house of Israel were standing before them, with Jaazaniah son of Shaphan [l] standing among them. Each had a firepan in his hand, and a fragrant cloud of incense was rising up. 12 Then He said to me, "Son of man, do you see what the elders of the house of Israel are doing in the darkness, each at the shrine of his idol? For they are saying, 'The Lord does not see us. The Lord has abandoned the land.' " [m] 13 Again He said to me, "You will see even more detestable things, which they are committing."

14 So He brought me to the entrance of the north gate of the Lord's house, and I saw women sitting there weeping for Tammuz. 15 And He said to me, "Do you see this, son of man? You will see even more detestable things than these."

16 So He brought me to the inner court of the Lord's house, and there were about 25 men at the entrance of the LORD's temple, between the portico and the altar, [n] with their backs to the LORD's temple and their faces turned to the east. [o] They were bowing to the east in worship of the sun. [p] 17 And He said to me, "Do you see this, son of man? Is it not enough for the house of Judah to commit the detestable things they are practicing here, that they must also fill the land with violence [q] and repeatedly provoke Me to anger, [r] even putting the branch to their nose? [s, t] 18 Therefore I will respond with wrath. [u] I will not show pity or spare them. [v] Though they cry out in My ears with a loud voice, [w] I will not listen to them."

Vision of Slaughter in Jerusalem

9 Then He called to me directly with a loud voice, “Come near, executioners of the city, each of you with a destructive weapon in his hand.” 2 And I saw six men coming from the direction of the Upper Gate, [a] which faces north, each with a war club in his hand. There was another man among them, clothed in linen, [b] with writing equipment at his side. They came and stood beside the bronze altar.

3 Then the glory of the God of Israel [c] rose from above the •cherub where it had been, to the threshold of the temple. He called to the man clothed in linen with the writing equipment at his side. 4 “Pass throughout the city of Jerusalem,” the LORD said to him, “and put a mark on the foreheads [d] of the men who sigh and groan [e] over all the detestable practices committed in it.”

5 He spoke as I listened to the others, “Pass through the city after him and start killing; do not show pity or spare them! [f] 6 Slaughter the old men, the young men and women, as well as the older women and little children, [g] but do not come near anyone who has the mark. [h] Now begin at My sanctuary.” [i] So they began with the elders who were in front of the temple. 7 Then He said to them, “Defile the temple and fill the courts with the slain. [j] Go! ” So they went out killing people in the city.

8 While they were killing, I was left alone. And I fell facedown and cried out, “Oh, Lord GOD! [k] Are You going to destroy the entire remnant of Israel when You pour out Your wrath on Jerusalem? ”

9 He answered me: “The iniquity of the house of Israel and Judah is extremely great; the land is full of bloodshed, [l] and the city full of perversity. For they say, ‘The LORD has abandoned the land; [m] He does not see.’ [n] 10 But as for Me, I will not show pity or spare them. [o] I will bring their actions down on their own heads.” [p] 11 Then the man clothed in linen with the writing equipment at his side reported back, “I have done as You commanded me.”

God’s Glory Leaves the Temple

10 Then I looked, and there above the expanse over the heads [a] of the •cherubim was something like sapphire [A] stone resembling the shape of a throne that appeared above them. 2 The LORD spoke to the man clothed in linen and said, "Go inside the wheelwork beneath the cherubim. Fill your hands with hot coals from among the cherubim and scatter them over the city." [b] So he went in as I watched.

3 Now the cherubim were standing to the south of the temple when the man went in, and the cloud [c] filled the inner court. [d] 4 Then the glory of the LORD rose from above the cherub to the threshold of the temple. [e] The temple was filled with the cloud, [f] and the court was filled with the brightness of the LORD's glory. [g] 5 The sound of the cherubim's wings could be heard as far as the outer court; it was like the voice of •God Almighty when He speaks.

6 After the LORD commanded the man clothed in linen, saying, "Take fire from inside the wheelwork, from among the cherubim," the man went in and stood beside a wheel. 7 Then the cherub reached out his hand to the fire that was among them. He took some, and put it into the hands of the man clothed in linen, who took it and went out. 8 The cherubim appeared to have the form of human hands under their wings. [h]

9 I looked, and there were four wheels beside the cherubim, [i] one wheel beside each cherub. The luster of the wheels was like the gleam of beryl. [j] 10 In appearance, all four had the same form, like a wheel within a wheel. 11 When they moved, they would go in any of the four directions, [k] without pivoting as they moved. But wherever the head faced, they would go in that direction, [B] without pivoting as they went. 12 Their entire bodies, [l] including their backs, hands, wings, and the wheels that the four of them had, were full of eyes all around. [m] 13 As I listened the wheels were called "the wheelwork." 14 Each one had four faces: [n] the first face was that of a cherub, the second that of a man, the third that of a lion, and the fourth that of an eagle.

15 The cherubim ascended; these were the living creatures I had seen by the Chebar Canal. [o] 16 When the cherubim moved, the wheels moved beside them, and when they lifted their wings to rise from the earth, even then the wheels did not veer away from them. 17 When the cherubim stood still, [p] the wheels stood still, and when they ascended, the wheels ascended with them, for the spirit of the living creatures was in them.

18 Then the glory of the LORD moved away from the threshold of the temple [q] and stood above the cherubim. [r] 19 The cherubim lifted their wings and ascended from the earth right before my eyes; [s] the wheels were beside them as they went. The glory of the God of Israel was above them, and it stood at the entrance to the eastern gate of the LORD's house.

20 These were the living creatures I had seen [t] beneath the God of Israel by the Chebar Canal, [u] and I recognized that they were cherubim. 21 Each had four faces and each had four wings, [v] with the form of human hands under their wings. 22 Their faces looked like the same faces I had seen [w] by the Chebar Canal. Each creature went straight ahead.

Vision of Israel's Corrupt Leaders

11 The Spirit then lifted me up [a] and brought me to the eastern gate of the LORD's house, which faces east, and at the gate's entrance were 25 men. Among them I saw Jaazaniah son of Azzur, and Pelatiah son of Benaiah, leaders of the people. [2] The LORD said to me, "Son of man, these are the men who plan evil [b] and give wicked advice in this city. [3] They are saying, 'Isn't the time near to build houses? [A, c] The city is the pot, [d] and we are the meat.' [4] Therefore, prophesy against them. Prophesy, son of man!"

[5] Then the Spirit of the LORD came on me, and He told me, "You are to say: This is what the LORD says: That is what you are thinking, house of Israel; and I know the thoughts that arise in your mind. [e] [6] You have multiplied your slain in this city, [f] filling its streets with the dead.

[7] "Therefore, this is what the Lord GOD says: The slain you have put within it are the meat, [g] and the city is the pot, but I [h] will remove you from it. [i] [8] You fear the sword, [j] so I will bring the sword against you." [k] This is the declaration of the Lord GOD. [9] "I will bring you out of the city and hand you over to foreigners; I will execute judgments against you. [l] [10] You will fall by the sword, [m] and I will judge you at the border of Israel. [n] Then you will know that I am •Yahweh . [11] The city will not be a pot for you, [o] and you will not be the meat within it. I will judge you at the border of Israel, [12] so you will know that I am Yahweh, whose statutes you have not followed and whose ordinances you have not practiced. Instead, you have acted according to the ordinances of the nations around you." [p]

[13] Now while I was prophesying, Pelatiah son of Benaiah died. [q] Then I fell facedown and cried out with a loud voice: "Oh, Lord GOD! [r] Will You bring to an end the remnant of Israel?"

Promise of Israel's Restoration [14] The word of the LORD came to me again: [15] "Son of man, your own relatives, those who have the right to redeem you, [s, B] and the entire house of Israel, all of them, are those that the residents of Jerusalem have said this to, 'Stay away from the LORD; this land has been given to us as a possession.'

[16] "Therefore say: This is what the Lord GOD says: Though I sent them far away among the nations and scattered them among the countries, yet for a little while I have been a sanctuary for them [t] in the countries where they have gone.

[17] "Therefore say: This is what the Lord GOD says: I will gather you from the peoples [u] and assemble you from the countries where you have been scattered, and I will give you the land of Israel.

18 “When they arrive there, they will remove all its [v] detestable things [w] and practices from it. 19 And I will give them one heart [x] and put a new spirit within them; I will remove their heart of stone [y] from their bodies [C] and give them a heart of flesh, [z] 20 so they may follow My statutes, [a] keep My ordinances, and practice them. Then they will be My people, and I will be their God. [b] 21 But as for those whose hearts pursue their desire for detestable things and practices, I will bring their actions down on their own heads.” [c] This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.

God’s Glory Leaves Jerusalem 22 Then the •cherubim , with the wheels beside them, lifted their wings, [d] and the glory of the God of Israel was above them. 23 The glory of the LORD [e] rose up from within the city and stood on the mountain [f] east of the city. [g, h] 24 The Spirit lifted me up [i] and brought me to Chaldea and to the exiles in a vision from the Spirit of God. After the vision I had seen left me, 25 I spoke to the exiles about all the things the LORD had shown me.

Ezekiel Dramatizes the Exile

12 The word of the LORD came to me: 2 “Son of man, you are living among a rebellious house. [a] They have eyes to see but do not see, and ears to hear but do not hear, [b] for they are a rebellious house. [c] 3 “Son of man, get your bags ready for exile and go into exile in their sight during the day. You will go into exile from your place to another place while they watch; perhaps they will understand, though they are a rebellious house.
4 During the day, bring out your bags like an exile’s bags while they look on.
Then in the evening go out in their sight like those going into exile. 5 As they watch, dig through the wall and take the bags out through it. 6 And while they look on, lift the bags to your shoulder and take them out in the dark; cover your face so that you cannot see the land. For I have made you a sign to the house of Israel.” [d]
7 So I did just as I was commanded. In the daytime I brought out my bags like an exile’s bags. In the evening I dug through the wall by hand; I took them out in the dark, carrying them on my shoulder in their sight.
8 Then the word of the LORD came to me in the morning: 9 “Son of man, hasn’t the house of Israel, that rebellious house, [e] asked you, ‘What are you doing? ’ [f]
10 Say to them: This is what the Lord GOD says: This •oracle is about the prince [g] in Jerusalem and all the house of Israel who are living there. [A] 11 You are to say, ‘I am a sign for you. Just as I have done, so it will be done to them; they will go into exile, [h] into captivity.’ 12 The prince who is among [i] them will lift his bags to his shoulder in the dark and go out. They [j] will dig through the wall to bring him out through it. He will cover his face so he cannot see the land with his eyes. 13 But I will spread My net over him, and he will be caught in My snare. I will bring him to Babylon, the land of the Chaldeans, yet he will not see it, [k] and he will die there. 14 I will also scatter all the attendants who surround him and all his troops to every direction of the wind, [l] and I will draw a sword to chase after them. 15 They will know that I am •Yahweh [m] when I disperse them among the nations and scatter them among the countries. [n] 16 But I will spare a few of them from the sword, [o] famine, and plague so they can tell about all their detestable practices among the nations where they go. Then they will know that I am Yahweh.”

Ezekiel Dramatizes Israel’s Anxiety 17 The word of the LORD came to me:
18 “Son of man, eat your bread with [p] trembling and drink your water with shaking and anxiety. 19 Then say to the people of the land: This is what the Lord

God says about the residents of Jerusalem in the land of Israel: They will eat their bread with anxiety and drink their water in dread, for their [B,] [q] land will be stripped of everything [r] in it because of the violence of all who live there.
[20] The inhabited cities will be destroyed, and the land will become a desolation. Then you will know that I am Yahweh."

A Deceptive Proverb Stopped [21] Again the word of the Lord came to me: [22] "Son of man, what is this proverb you people have about the land of Israel, [s] which goes:

The days keep passing by, [t]
and every vision fails?

[23] Therefore say to them: This is what the Lord God says: I will put a stop to this proverb, and they will not use it again in Israel. [u] But say to them: The days draw near, [v] as well as the fulfillment of every vision. [24] For there will no longer be any false vision or flattering •divination [w] within the house of Israel.
[25] But I, Yahweh, will speak whatever message I will speak, and it will be done. [x] It will no longer be delayed. [y] For in your days, rebellious house, I will speak a message and bring it to pass." This is the declaration of the Lord God.

[26] The word of the Lord came to me: [27] "Son of man, notice that the house of Israel is saying, 'The vision that he sees concerns many years from now; [z] he prophesies about distant times.' [28] Therefore say to them: This is what the Lord God says: None of My words will be delayed any longer. The message I speak will be fulfilled." This is the declaration of the Lord God.

Israel's False Prophets Condemned

13 The word of the LORD came to me: 2 “Son of man, prophesy against the prophets of Israel who [a] are prophesying. Say to those who prophesy out of their own imagination: [b] Hear the word of the LORD! 3 This is what the Lord GOD says: Woe to the foolish prophets who follow their own spirit and have seen nothing. 4 Your prophets, Israel, are like jackals among ruins. 5 You did not go up to the gaps [c] or restore the wall around the house of Israel so that it might stand in battle on the day of the LORD. 6 They see false visions and speak lying •divinations . [d] They claim, ‘This is the LORD’s declaration,’ when the LORD did not send them, [e] yet they wait for the fulfillment of their message. 7 Didn’t you see a false vision and speak a lying divination when you proclaimed, ‘This is the LORD’s declaration,’ even though I had not spoken?

8 “Therefore, this is what the Lord GOD says: I am against you because you have spoken falsely and had lying visions.” This is the declaration of the Lord GOD. 9 “My hand will be against the prophets who see false visions and speak lying divinations. [f] They will not be present in the fellowship of My people or be recorded in the register of the house of Israel, and they will not enter the land of Israel. Then you will know that I am the Lord •Yahweh .

10 “Since they have led My people astray saying, ‘Peace,’ [g] when there is no peace, for when someone builds a wall they plaster it with whitewash, [h] 11 therefore, tell those who plaster it that it will fall. Torrential rain will come, [i] and I will send hailstones plunging [j] down, and a windstorm will be released. 12 Now when the wall has fallen, will you not be asked, ‘Where is the coat of whitewash that you put on it?’

13 “So this is what the Lord GOD says: I will release a windstorm in My wrath. Torrential rain will come in My anger, and hailstones will fall in destructive fury. 14 I will tear down the wall you plastered with whitewash and knock it to the ground so that its foundation is exposed. [k] The city will fall, and you will be destroyed within it. Then you will know that I am Yahweh. 15 After I exhaust My wrath against the wall and against those who plaster it with whitewash, I will say to you: The wall is no more and neither are those who plastered it — 16 those prophets of Israel who prophesied to Jerusalem and saw a vision of peace for her when there was no peace.” [l] This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.

17 “Now, son of man, turn [A] toward the women of your people who prophesy [m] out of their own imagination. Prophesy against them [n] 18 and say: This is what the Lord GOD says: Woe to the women who sew magic bands on the wrist of every hand and who make veils for the heads of people of every height in order to ensnare lives. Will you ensnare the lives of My people but preserve your own? [o] 19 You profane Me in front of My people for handfuls of barley [p] and scraps of bread; you kill those who should not die and spare those who should not live, when you lie to My people, who listen to lies.

20 "Therefore, this is what the Lord GOD says: I am against your magic bands that you ensnare people with like birds, and I will tear them from your arms. I will free the people you have ensnared like birds. 21 I will also tear off your veils and deliver My people from your hands, [q] so that they will no longer be prey in your hands. Then you will know that I am Yahweh. 22 Because you have disheartened the righteous person with lies, even though I have not caused him grief, [r] and because you have encouraged the wicked [s] person not to turn from his evil way to save his life, 23 therefore you will no longer see false visions or practice divination. [t] I will deliver My people from your hands. Then you will know that I am Yahweh."

Idolatrous Elders Punished

14 Some of the elders of Israel came [a] to me and sat down in front of me. [b]
2 Then the word of the LORD came to me: 3 "Son of man, these men have set up idols in their hearts and have put sinful stumbling blocks before their faces. [c] Should I be consulted by them at all? [d]

4 "Therefore, speak to them and tell them: This is what the Lord GOD says: When anyone from the house of Israel sets up idols in his heart, puts a sinful stumbling block before his face, and then comes to the prophet, I, •Yahweh , will answer him appropriately. [e] I will answer him according to his many idols, 5 so that I may take hold of the house of Israel by their hearts. They are all estranged from Me because of their idols.

6 "Therefore, say to the house of Israel: This is what the Lord GOD says: Repent and turn away [f] from your idols; turn your faces away from all your detestable things. 7 For when anyone from the house of Israel or from the foreigners who reside in Israel separates himself from Me, setting up idols in his heart and putting a sinful stumbling block before his face, and then comes to the prophet to inquire of Me, [A] I, Yahweh, will answer him Myself. 8 I will turn against that one and make him a sign and a proverb; I will cut him off from among My people. [g] Then you will know that I am Yahweh.

9 "But if the prophet is deceived and speaks a message, it was I, Yahweh, who deceived that prophet. [h] I will stretch out My hand against him and destroy him from among My people Israel. [i] 10 They will bear their punishment — the punishment of the one who inquires will be the same as that of the prophet — 11 in order that the house of Israel may no longer stray from following Me and no longer defile themselves [j] with all their transgressions. Then they will be My people and I will be their God." [k] This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.

Four Devastating Judgments 12 The word of the LORD came to me: 13 "Son of man, if a land sins against Me by acting faithlessly, and I stretch out My hand against it to cut off its supply of bread, [l] to send famine through it, and to wipe out both man and animal from it, 14 even if these three men [m] — Noah, [n] Daniel, [o] and Job [p] — were in it, they would deliver only themselves by their righteousness." This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.

15 "If I allow dangerous animals [q] to pass through the land and depopulate it so that it becomes desolate, with no one passing through it for fear of the animals, 16 even if these three men were in it, as I live" — the declaration of the Lord GOD — "they could not deliver their sons or daughters. They alone would be delivered, but the land would be desolate. [r]

17 “Or if I bring a sword [s] against that land and say: Let a sword pass through it, so that I wipe out both man and animal from it, [t] 18 even if these three men were in it, as I live” — the declaration of the Lord God — “they could not deliver their sons or daughters, but they alone would be delivered.

19 “Or if I send a plague into that land [u] and pour out My wrath on it with bloodshed to wipe out both man and animal from it, 20 even if Noah, Daniel, and Job were in it, as I live” — the declaration of the Lord God — “they could not deliver their son or daughter. They would deliver only themselves by their righteousness.

21 “For this is what the Lord God says: How much worse will it be when I send My four [v] devastating judgments against Jerusalem — sword, famine, dangerous animals, and plague — in order to wipe out both man and animal from it! 22 Even so, there will be survivors left in it, sons and daughters who will be brought out. Indeed, they will come out to you, and you will observe their conduct and actions. [w] Then you will be consoled about the devastation I have brought on Jerusalem, about all I have brought on it. 23 They will bring you consolation when you see their conduct and actions, and you will know that it was not without cause that I have done what I did to it.” [x] This is the declaration of the Lord God.

Parable of the Useless Vine

15 Then the word of the LORD came to me: 2 “Son of man, how does the wood of the vine, [a] that branch among the trees of the forest, compare to any other wood? 3 Can wood be taken from it to make something useful? Or can anyone make a peg from it to hang things on? 4 In fact, it is put into the fire as fuel. [b] The fire devours both of its ends, and the middle is charred. Can it be useful for anything? 5 Even when it was whole it could not be made into a useful object. How much less can it ever be made into anything useful when the fire has devoured it and it is charred!

6 “Therefore, this is what the Lord GOD says: Like the wood of the vine among the trees of the forest, which I have given to the fire as fuel, so I will give up the residents of Jerusalem. 7 I will turn against them. [c] They may have escaped from the fire, but it will still consume them. [d] And you will know that I am •Yahweh when I turn against them. 8 I will make the land desolate because they have acted unfaithfully.” This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.

Parable of God's Adulterous Wife

16 The word of the LORD came to me again: 2 “Son of man, explain Jerusalem’s detestable practices to her. [a] 3 You are to say: This is what the Lord GOD says to Jerusalem: Your origin and your birth were in the land of the Canaanites. Your father was an Amorite and your mother a Hittite. [b] 4 As for your birth, your umbilical cord wasn’t cut on the day you were born, [c] and you weren’t washed •clean [A] with water. You were not rubbed with salt or wrapped in cloths. [d] 5 No one cared enough about you to do even one of these things out of compassion for you. But you were thrown out into the open field because you were despised on the day you were born.

6 “I passed by you and saw you lying in your blood, and I said to you as you lay in your blood: Live! Yes, I said to you as you lay in your blood: Live! [e] 7 I made you thrive [f] like plants of the field. [g] You grew up and matured and became very beautiful. [B] Your breasts were formed and your hair grew, but you were stark naked.

8 “Then I passed by you and saw you, and you were indeed at the age for love. So I spread the edge of My garment over you and covered your nakedness. [h] I pledged Myself to you, [i] entered into a covenant with you, and you became Mine.” [j] This is the declaration of the Lord GOD. 9 “I washed you with water, rinsed off your blood, and anointed you with oil. 10 I clothed you in embroidered cloth and provided you with leather sandals. I also wrapped you in fine linen and covered you with silk. 11 I adorned you with jewelry, putting bracelets on your wrists and a chain around your neck. 12 I put a ring in your nose, [k] earrings on your ears, and a beautiful tiara on your head. 13 So you were adorned with gold and silver, [l] and your clothing was made of fine linen, silk, and embroidered cloth. You ate fine flour, honey, and oil. You became extremely beautiful and attained royalty. 14 Your fame spread among the nations because of your beauty, for it was perfect through My splendor, [m] which I had bestowed on you.” This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.

15 “But you were confident in your beauty and acted like a prostitute because of your fame. [n] You lavished your sexual favors on everyone who passed by. [o] Your beauty became his. [C] 16 You took some of your garments and made colorful •high places for yourself, and you engaged in prostitution on them. These places should not have been built, and this should never have happened! [D] 17 You also took your beautiful jewelry made from the gold and silver I had given you, [p] and you made male images so that you could engage in prostitution with them. 18 Then you took your embroidered garments to cover them, and set

My oil and incense before them. 19 You also set before them as a pleasing aroma the food I gave you — the fine flour, oil, and honey that I fed you. q That is what happened.” This is the declaration of the Lord God.
20 “You even took your sons and daughters you bore to Me and sacrificed them to these images as food. r Wasn’t your prostitution enough? 21 You slaughtered My children and gave them up when you passed them through the fire s to the images. 22 In all your detestable practices and acts of prostitution, you did not remember the days of your youth t when you were stark naked and lying in your blood.
23 “Then after all your evil — Woe, woe to you! ” — the declaration of the Lord God — 24 “you built yourself a mound and made yourself an elevated place in every square. u 25 You built your elevated place at the head of every street v and turned your beauty into a detestable thing. You spread your legs to everyone who passed by and increased your prostitution. 26 You engaged in promiscuous acts with Egyptian men, your well-endowed neighbors, and increased your prostitution w to provoke Me to anger.
27 “Therefore, I stretched out My hand against you and reduced your provisions. I gave you over to the desire of those who hate you, the Philistine women, x who were embarrassed by your indecent behavior. 28 Then you engaged in prostitution with the Assyrian men because you were not satisfied. y
Even though you did this with them, you were still not satisfied. 29 So you extended your prostitution to Chaldea, z the land of merchants, but you were not even satisfied with this!
30 “How your heart was inflamed with lust” — the declaration of the Lord God — “when you did all these things, the acts of a brazen prostitute, 31 building your mound at the head of every street and making your elevated place in every square. But you were unlike a prostitute because you scorned payment.
a 32 You adulterous wife, who receives strangers instead of her husband! 33 Men give gifts to all prostitutes, but you gave gifts to all your lovers. You bribed them to come to you from all around for your sexual favors. 34 So you were the opposite of other women in your acts of prostitution; no one solicited you. When you paid a fee instead of one being paid to you, you were the opposite.
35 “Therefore, you prostitute, hear the word of the Lord! 36 This is what the Lord God says: Because your lust was poured out and your nakedness exposed by your acts of prostitution with your lovers, and because of all your detestable idols and the blood of your children that you gave to them, b 37 I am therefore

those you hated. I will gather them against you from all around and expose your nakedness [d] to them so they see you completely naked. 38 I will judge you the way adulteresses and those who shed blood are judged. [e] Then I will bring about your bloodshed in wrath and jealousy. [f] 39 I will hand you over to them, and they will level your mounds and tear down your elevated places. They will strip off your clothes, [g] take your beautiful jewelry, and leave you stark naked. 40 They will bring a mob against you [h] to stone you and cut you to pieces with their swords. 41 Then they will burn down your houses and execute judgments against you in the sight of many women. I will stop you from being a prostitute, [i] and you will never again pay fees for lovers. 42 So I will satisfy My wrath against you, [j] and My jealousy will turn away from you. Then I will be silent and no longer angry. 43 Because you did not remember the days [k] of your youth but enraged Me with all these things, I will also bring your actions down on your own head." [l] This is the declaration of the Lord GOD. "Haven't you committed immoral acts in addition to all your detestable practices?

44 "Look, everyone who uses proverbs will say this proverb about you:

Like mother, like daughter.

45 You are the daughter of your mother, who despised her husband and children. You are the sister of your sisters, [m] who despised their husbands and children. Your mother was a Hittite and your father an Amorite. [n] 46 Your older sister was Samaria, [o] who lived with her daughters to the north of you, and your younger sister was Sodom, who lived with her daughters to the south of you. 47 Didn't you walk in their ways and do their detestable practices? It was only a short time before you behaved more corruptly than they did. [E, p]

48 "As I live" — the declaration of the Lord GOD — "your sister Sodom and her daughters have not behaved as you and your daughters have. [q] 49 Now this was the iniquity of your sister Sodom: she and her daughters had pride, plenty of food, [r] and comfortable security, but didn't support the poor and needy. 50 They were haughty and did detestable things before Me, so I removed them when I saw this. [F, s] 51 But Samaria did not commit even half your sins. You have multiplied your detestable practices beyond theirs and made your sisters appear righteous by all the detestable things you have committed. 52 You must also bear your disgrace, since you have been an advocate for your sisters. For they appear more righteous than you because of your sins, which you committed more abhorrently than they did. So you also, be ashamed and bear your disgrace, since you have made your sisters appear righteous.

53 "I will restore their fortunes, [t] the fortunes of Sodom and her daughters and those of Samaria and her daughters. I will also restore [u] your fortunes among them, [v] 54 so you will bear your disgrace and be ashamed of all you did when you comforted them. [w] 55 As for your sisters, Sodom and her daughters and Samaria and her daughters will return to their former state. You and your daughters will also return to your former state. 56 Didn't you treat your sister Sodom as an object of scorn when you were proud, 57 before your wickedness was exposed? It was like the time you were scorned by the daughters of Aram [x, y] and all those around her, and by the daughters of the Philistines — those who treated you with contempt from every side. 58 You yourself must bear the consequences of your indecency and detestable practices" [z] — this is the LORD's declaration.

59 "For this is what the Lord GOD says: I will deal with you according to what you have done, since you have despised the oath by breaking the covenant. [a] 60 But I will remember the covenant I made with you in the days of your youth, and I will establish an everlasting covenant with you. [b] 61 Then you will remember your ways [c] and be ashamed when you [d] receive your older and younger sisters. I will give them to you as daughters, but not because of your covenant. 62 I will establish My covenant with you, [e] and you will know that I am •Yahweh , 63 so that when I make •atonement for all you have done, you will remember and be ashamed, [f] and never open your mouth again because of your disgrace." [g] This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.

Parable of the Eagles

17 The word of the LORD came to me: 2 “Son of man, pose a riddle and speak a parable to the house of Israel. [a] 3 You are to say: This is what the Lord GOD says:
A great eagle with great wings, [b] long pinions,
and full plumage of many colors came to Lebanon and took the top of the cedar. [c] 4 He plucked off its topmost shoot, brought it to the land of merchants,
and set it in a city of traders.
5 Then he took some of the land’s seed and put it in a fertile field; [d]
he set it like a willow, [e]
a plant [A] by abundant waters.
6 It sprouted and became a spreading vine, low in height with its branches turned toward him, [f]
yet its roots stayed under it.
So it became a vine,
produced branches, and sent out shoots.

7 But there was another great eagle with great wings and thick plumage.
And this vine bent its roots toward him!
It stretched out its branches to him from its planting bed, [g]
so that he might water it.
8 It had been planted in a good field by abundant waters
in order to produce branches, bear fruit, and become a splendid vine.

9 You are to say: This is what the Lord GOD says:
Will it flourish?
Will he not tear out its roots [h] and strip off its fruit
so that it shrivels?
All its fresh leaves will wither!
Great strength and many people will not be needed to pull it from its roots.

10 Even though it is planted, will it flourish?
Won't it completely wither
when the east wind strikes it? [i]
It will wither on the bed where it sprouted."
11 The word of the LORD came to me: 12 "Now say to that rebellious house: [j] Don't you know what these things mean? Tell them: The king of Babylon came to Jerusalem, took its king and officials, [k] and brought them back with him to Babylon. 13 He took one of the royal family [l] and made a covenant with him, putting him under oath. [m] Then he took away the leading men of the land, 14 so the kingdom might be humble and not exalt itself [n] but might keep his covenant in order to endure. 15 However, this king revolted against him [o] by sending his ambassadors to Egypt so they might give him horses and a large army. [p] Will he flourish? Will the one who does such things escape? Can he break a covenant and still escape?
16 "As I live" — this is the declaration of the Lord GOD — "he will die in Babylon, in the land of the king who put him on the throne, [q] whose oath he despised and whose covenant he broke. 17 Pharaoh will not help him with his great army and vast horde in battle, [r] when ramps are built and siege walls constructed to destroy many lives. 18 He despised the oath by breaking the covenant. He did all these things even though he gave his hand in pledge. [s] He will not escape! "
19 Therefore, this is what the Lord GOD says: "As I live, I will bring down on his head My oath that he despised and My covenant that he broke. 20 I will spread My net over him, [t] and he will be caught in My snare. [u] I will bring him to Babylon and execute judgment on him there for the treachery he committed against Me. [v] 21 All the fugitives [w] among his troops will fall by the sword, and those who survive will be scattered to every direction of the wind. [x] Then you will know that I, •Yahweh , have spoken."
22 This is what the Lord GOD says:
I will take a sprig from the lofty top of the cedar and plant it. [y]
I will pluck a tender sprig from its topmost shoots, and I will plant it
on a high towering mountain.
23 I will plant it on Israel's high mountain [z]
so that it may bear branches, produce fruit, and become a majestic cedar.

Birds of every kind will nest under it, [a] taking shelter in the shade of its branches.
24 Then all the trees of the field will know that I am Yahweh.
I bring down the tall tree,
and make the low tree tall. [b]
I cause the green tree to wither and make the withered tree thrive. [c]
I, Yahweh, have spoken
and I will do it. [d]

Personal Responsibility for Sin

18 The word of the LORD came to me: 2 “What do you mean by using this proverb concerning the land of Israel:
The fathers eat sour grapes, [a]
and the children’s teeth are set on edge? [b] 3 As I live” — this is the declaration of the Lord GOD — “you will no longer use this proverb in Israel. [c] 4 Look, every life belongs to Me. [d] The life of the father is like the life of the son — both belong to Me. The person who sins is the one who will die. [e]
5 “Now suppose a man is righteous and does what is just and right: 6 He does not eat at the mountain shrines [f] or raise his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel. He does not defile his neighbor’s wife [g] or come near a woman during her menstrual impurity. [h] 7 He doesn’t oppress anyone [i] but returns his collateral to the debtor. [j] He does not commit robbery, but gives his bread to the hungry [k] and covers the naked with clothing. 8 He doesn’t lend at interest or for profit [l] but keeps his hand from wrongdoing and carries out true justice between men. [m] 9 He follows My statutes and keeps My ordinances, acting faithfully. Such a person is righteous; he will certainly live.” [n] This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.
10 “Now suppose the man has a violent son, who sheds blood [o] and does any of these things, 11 though the father has done none of them. Indeed, when the son eats at the mountain shrines and defiles his neighbor’s wife, 12 and when he oppresses the poor and needy, commits robbery, and does not return collateral, and when he raises his eyes to the idols, commits detestable acts, [p] 13 and lends at interest or for profit, will he live? He will not live! Since he has committed all these detestable acts, he will certainly die. His blood will be on him. [q] 14 “Now suppose he has a son who sees all the sins his father has committed, and though he sees them, he does not do likewise. 15 He does not eat at the mountain shrines or raise his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel. He does not defile his neighbor’s wife. 16 He doesn’t oppress anyone, hold collateral, or commit robbery. He gives his bread to the hungry and covers the naked with clothing. 17 He keeps his hand from harming the poor, not taking interest or profit on a loan. He practices My ordinances and follows My statutes. Such a person will not die for his father’s iniquity. He will certainly live.
18 “As for his father, he will die for his own iniquity because he practiced fraud, robbed his brother, and did what was wrong among his people. [r] 19 But you may ask, ‘Why doesn’t the son suffer punishment for the father’s iniquity? ’

[s] Since the son has done what is just and right, carefully observing all My statutes, he will certainly live. 20 The person who sins is the one who will die. [t] A son won't suffer punishment for the father's iniquity, and a father won't suffer punishment for the son's iniquity. [u] The righteousness of the righteous person will be on him, [v] and the wickedness of the wicked person will be on him. [w]

21 "Now if the wicked person turns from all the sins he has committed, [x] keeps all My statutes, and does what is just and right, he will certainly live; he will not die. 22 None of the transgressions he has committed will be held against him. [y] He will live because of the righteousness he has practiced. [z] 23 Do I take any pleasure in the death of the wicked? " [a] This is the declaration of the Lord GOD. "Instead, don't I take pleasure when he turns from his ways and lives? 24 But when a righteous person turns from his righteousness [b] and practices iniquity, committing the same detestable acts that the wicked do, will he live? None of the righteous acts he did will be remembered. [c] He will die because of the treachery he has engaged in and the sin he has committed.

25 "But you say, 'The Lord's way isn't fair.' [d] Now listen, house of Israel: Is it My way that is unfair? Instead, isn't it your ways that are unfair? 26 When a righteous person turns from his righteousness and practices iniquity, he will die for this. He will die because of the iniquity he has practiced. 27 But if a wicked person turns from the wickedness he has committed and does what is just and right, he will preserve his life. 28 He will certainly live because he thought it over and turned from all the transgressions he had committed; he will not die. 29 But the house of Israel says, 'The Lord's way isn't fair.' Is it My ways that are unfair, house of Israel? Instead, isn't it your ways that are unfair?

30 "Therefore, house of Israel, I will judge each one of you according to his ways." [e] This is the declaration of the Lord GOD. "Repent and turn from all your transgressions, so they will not be a stumbling block that causes your punishment. 31 Throw off all the transgressions you have committed, and get yourselves a new heart and a new spirit. [f] Why should you die, house of Israel? 32 For I take no pleasure in anyone's death." This is the declaration of the Lord GOD. "So repent and live!

A Lament for Israel's Princes

19 “Now, lament for the princes of Israel [a] 2 and say:

What was your mother? A lioness!
She lay down among the lions;
she reared her cubs among the young lions.
3 She brought up one of her cubs,
and he became a young lion. [b]
After he learned to tear prey,
he devoured people.
4 When the nations heard about him,
he was caught in their pit.
Then they led him away with hooks to the land of Egypt. [c]

5 When she saw that she waited in vain,
that her hope was lost,
she took another of her cubs
and made him a young lion.
6 He prowled among the lions, [d]
and he became a young lion.
After he learned to tear prey,
he devoured people.
7 He devastated their strongholds [e]
and destroyed their cities.
The land and everything in it shuddered
at the sound of his roaring.
8 Then the nations from the surrounding provinces set out against him. [f]
They spread their net over him;
he was caught in their pit.
9 They put a wooden yoke on him [A] with hooks [g]
and led him away to the king of Babylon.
They brought him into the fortresses
so his roar could no longer be heard on the mountains of Israel. [h]

10 Your mother was like a vine in your vineyard, [i, j] planted by the water;

it was fruitful and full of branches [k]
because of plentiful waters.
11 It had strong branches, fit for the scepters of rulers;
its height towered among the clouds. [B]
So it was conspicuous for its height
as well as its many branches.
12 But it was uprooted in fury, [l] thrown to the ground,
and the east wind dried up its fruit.
Its strong branches were torn off and dried up; [m]
fire consumed them.
13 Now it is planted in the wilderness, [n]
in a dry and thirsty land.
14 Fire has gone out from its main branch [C]
and has devoured its fruit,
so that it no longer has a strong branch,
a scepter for ruling. [o]

This is a lament and should be used as a lament.”

Israel's Rebellion

20 In the seventh year, in the fifth month, on the tenth day of the month, some of Israel's elders came to consult the LORD, [a] and they sat down in front of me. 2 Then the word of the LORD came to me: 3 "Son of man, speak with the elders of Israel and tell them: This is what the Lord GOD says: Are you coming to consult Me? As I live, I will not be consulted by you." [b] This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.

4 "Will you pass judgment against them, will you pass judgment, son of man?
Explain the detestable practices of their fathers to them. [c] 5 Say to them: This is what the Lord GOD says: On the day I chose Israel, I swore an oath [A, d] to the descendants of Jacob's house and made Myself known to them in the land of Egypt. I swore to them, saying: I am •Yahweh your God. [e] 6 On that day I swore [B] to them that I would bring them out [f] of the land of Egypt into a land I had searched out for them, a land flowing with milk and honey, [g] the most beautiful of all lands. [h] 7 I also said to them: Each of you must throw away the detestable things that are before your eyes and not defile yourselves with the idols of Egypt. [i] I am Yahweh your God. [j]

8 "But they rebelled against Me and were unwilling to listen to Me. None of them threw away the detestable things that were before their eyes, and they did not forsake the idols of Egypt. So I considered pouring out My wrath on them, [k] exhausting My anger against them within the land of Egypt. 9 But I acted because of My name, [l] so that it would not be profaned in the eyes of the nations they were living among, in whose sight I had made Myself known to Israel by bringing them out of Egypt.

10 "So I brought them out of the land of Egypt and led them into the wilderness. [m] 11 Then I gave them My statutes and explained My ordinances to them — the person who does them will live by them. [n] 12 I also gave them My Sabbaths to serve as a sign between Me and them, [o] so they will know that I am Yahweh who sets them apart as holy.

13 "But the house of Israel rebelled against Me in the wilderness. [p] They did not follow My statutes and they rejected My ordinances — the person who does them will live by them. [q] They also completely profaned My Sabbaths. [r] So I considered pouring out My wrath on them in the wilderness to put an end to them. [s] 14 But I acted because of My name, so that it would not be profaned in the eyes of the nations in whose sight I had brought them out. 15 However, I swore [C] to them [t] in the wilderness that I would not bring them into the land I had given them — the most beautiful of all lands, flowing with milk and honey — 16 because they rejected My ordinances, profaned My Sabbaths, and did not follow My statutes. For their hearts went after their idols. u 17 But I spared them from destruction and did not bring them to an end in the wilderness. v

18 “Then I said to their children in the wilderness: Don’t follow the statutes of your fathers, defile yourselves with their idols, or keep their ordinances. w 19 I am Yahweh your God. Follow My statutes, keep My ordinances, and practice them. x 20 Keep My Sabbaths holy, y and they will be a sign between Me and you, so you may know that I am Yahweh your God.

21 “But the children rebelled against Me. z They did not follow My statutes or carefully keep My ordinances — the person who does them will live by them. They also profaned My Sabbaths. So I considered pouring out My wrath on them and exhausting My anger against them in the wilderness. 22 But I withheld My hand and acted because of My name, so that it would not be profaned in the eyes of the nations in whose sight I brought them out. 23 However, I swore D to them in the wilderness that I would disperse them among the nations and scatter them among the countries. a 24 For they did not practice My ordinances but rejected My statutes and profaned My Sabbaths, and their eyes were fixed b on their fathers’ idols. 25 I also gave them statutes that were not good and ordinances c they could not live by. 26 When they made every firstborn pass through the fire, d I defiled them through their gifts in order to devastate them so they would know that I am Yahweh. e 27 “Therefore, son of man, speak to the house of Israel, and tell them: This is what the Lord God says: In this way also your fathers blasphemed Me by f committing treachery against Me: 28 When I brought them into the land that I swore E to give them and they saw any high hill or leafy tree, g they offered their sacrifices and presented their offensive offerings there. They also sent up their pleasing aromas and poured out their •drink offerings there. 29 So I asked them: What is this •high place you are going to? And it is called High Place to this day.

30 “Therefore say to the house of Israel: This is what the Lord God says: Are you defiling yourselves the way your fathers did, h and prostituting yourselves with their detestable things? 31 When you offer your gifts, making your children pass through the fire, i you continue to defile yourselves with all your idols to this day. So should I be consulted by you, house of Israel? As I live” — this is the declaration of the Lord God — “I will not be consulted by you!

Israel's Restoration

32 "When you say, 'Let us be like the nations, like the peoples of other countries, worshiping wood and stone,' [j] what you have in mind will never happen. [k] 33 As I live" — the declaration of the Lord GOD — "I will rule over you with a strong hand, an outstretched arm, [l] and outpoured wrath. 34 I will bring you from the peoples and gather you from the countries where you were scattered, [m] with a strong hand, an outstretched arm, [n] and outpoured wrath. 35 I will lead you into the wilderness of the peoples [o] and enter into judgment with you there face to face. 36 Just as I entered into judgment with your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt, [p] so I will enter into judgment with you." This is the declaration of the Lord GOD. 37 "I will make you pass under the rod [q] and will bring you into the bond of the covenant. 38 And I will also purge you of those who rebel and transgress against Me. [r] I will bring them out of the land where they live as foreign residents, but they will not enter the land of Israel.
Then you will know that I am Yahweh.

39 "As for you, house of Israel, this is what the Lord GOD says: Go and serve your idols, each of you. But afterward you will surely listen to Me, and you will no longer defile My holy name with your gifts and idols. [s] 40 For on My holy mountain, Israel's high mountain" — the declaration of the Lord GOD — "there the entire house of Israel, all of them, [t] will serve Me in the land. There I will accept them and will require your contributions and choicest gifts, [u] all your holy offerings. 41 When I bring you from the peoples and gather you from the countries where you have been scattered, I will accept you as a pleasing aroma.
And I will demonstrate My holiness through you in the sight of the nations. [v] 42 When I lead you into the land of Israel, the land I swore [F] to give your fathers, you will know that I am Yahweh. [w] 43 There you will remember your ways and all your deeds that you have defiled yourselves with, [x] and you will loathe yourselves for all the evil things you have done. [y] 44 You will know that I am Yahweh, [z] house of Israel, when I have dealt with you because of My name [a] rather than according to your evil ways and corrupt acts." This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.

Fire in the South

45 [b] The word of the LORD came to me: 46 "Son of man, face the south and preach against it. Prophesy against the forest land in the •Negev , [c] 47 and say to the forest there: Hear the word of the LORD! This is what the Lord GOD says: I am about to ignite a fire in you, and it will devour every green tree and every dry tree in you. The blazing flame will not be extinguished, and every face from the south to the north will be scorched by it. 48 Then all people will see that I, Yahweh, have kindled it. [d] It will not be extinguished."

49 Then I said, "Oh, Lord GOD, they are saying of me, 'Isn't he just posing riddles? ' " [e]

Chapter 21 [a] God's Sword of Judgment

[1]The word of the LORD came to me again: [2] "Son of man, turn your face toward [b] Jerusalem and preach against the sanctuaries. Prophesy against the land of Israel, [3] and say to it: This is what the LORD says: I am against you. [c] I will draw My sword from its sheath and cut off both the righteous and the wicked from you. [4] Since I will cut off [A] both the righteous and the wicked, My sword will therefore come out of its sheath against everyone from the south to the north. [d] [5] So all the people will know that I, •Yahweh , have taken My sword from its sheath — it will not be sheathed again. [e]

[6] "But you, son of man, groan! Groan bitterly with a broken heart [B] right before their eyes. [7] And when they ask you, 'Why are you groaning?' then say: Because of the news that is coming. [f] Every heart will melt, and every hand will become weak. Every spirit will be discouraged, and every knee will turn to water. Yes, it is coming and it will happen." This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.

[8] The word of the LORD came to me: [9] "Son of man, prophesy: This is what the Lord says! You are to proclaim:

A sword! [g] A sword is sharpened and also polished. [h] [10] It is sharpened for slaughter, polished to flash like lightning!
Should we rejoice?
The scepter of My son,
the sword despises every tree. [C] [11] The sword is given to be polished, to be grasped in the hand.
It is sharpened, and it is polished,
to be put in the hand of the slayer. [i] [12] Cry out and wail, son of man, for it is against My people.
It is against all the princes of Israel!
They are given over to the sword with My people.
Therefore strike your thigh in grief. [j]
[13] Surely it will be a trial!
And what if the sword despises even the scepter?
The scepter will not continue. [D]

This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.

14 Therefore, son of man, prophesy and clap your hands together. [k]
Let the sword strike two times, even three.
It is a sword for massacre,
a sword for great massacre —
it surrounds [E] them!
15 I have appointed a sword [l] for slaughter [F] at all their gates,
so that their hearts may melt
and many may stumble.
Yes! It is ready to flash like lightning; [m] it is drawn [G] for slaughter.
16 Slash to the right;
turn to the left —
wherever your blade is directed.
17 I also will clap My hands together, and I will satisfy My wrath. [n]
I, Yahweh, have spoken."

18 Then the word of the LORD came to me: 19 "Now you, son of man, mark out two roads that the sword of Babylon's king can take. Both of them should originate from the same land. And make a signpost at the fork in the road to each city. 20 Mark out a road that the sword can take to Rabbah of the Ammonites [o] and to Judah into fortified Jerusalem. 21 For the king of Babylon stands at the split in the road, at the fork of the two roads, to practice •divination : he shakes the arrows, consults the idols, and observes the liver. 22 The answer marked [H] Jerusalem appears in his right hand, indicating that he should set up battering rams, [p] give the order to [I] slaughter, raise a battle cry, set battering rams against the gates, build a ramp, and construct a siege wall. 23 It will seem like false divination in the eyes of those who have sworn an oath to the Babylonians, [J, q] but it will draw attention to their •guilt so that they will be captured.

24 "Therefore, this is what the Lord GOD says: Because you have drawn attention to your guilt, exposing your transgressions, so that your sins are revealed in all your actions, since you have done this, you will be captured by them.

25 And you, profane and wicked prince of Israel, [r, s]

the day has come [t]
for your punishment.” [K]

26 This is what the Lord God says:
Remove the turban, and take off the crown.
Things will not remain as they are; [L] exalt the lowly and bring down the exalted. [u] 27 A ruin, a ruin,
I will make it a ruin!
Yet this will not happen
until He comes; [v]
I have given the judgment to Him. [M]
28 “Now prophesy, son of man, and say: This is what the Lord God says concerning the Ammonites and their contempt. You are to proclaim:
A sword! A sword
is drawn for slaughter,
polished to consume, [w] to flash like lightning.
29 While they offer false visions [x]
and lying divinations about you,
the time has come to put you to the necks of the profane wicked ones;
the day has come
for your punishment. [N]

30 Return it to its sheath! [y]

I will judge you [z]
in the place where you were created,
in the land of your origin.
31 I will pour out My indignation on you;
I will blow the fire of My fury on you. [a]
I will hand you over to brutal men, skilled at destruction.
32 You will be fuel for the fire.
Your blood will be spilled in the land.
You will not be remembered, [b]
for I, Yahweh, have spoken.”

Indictment of Sinful Jerusalem

22 The word of the LORD came to me: 2 “As for you, son of man, will you pass judgment? Will you pass judgment against the city of blood? Then explain all her detestable practices to her. a 3 You are to say: This is what the Lord GOD says: A city that sheds blood b within her walls so that her time of judgment has come and who makes idols for herself so that she is defiled! 4 You are •guilty of the blood you have shed, c and you are defiled from the idols you have made.
You have brought your judgment days near and have come to your years of punishment. Therefore, I have made you a disgrace to the nations and a mockery to all the lands. 5 Those who are near and those far away from you will mock you, you infamous one full of turmoil.

6 “Look, every prince of Israel d within you has used his strength to shed blood. 7 Father and mother are treated with contempt, e and the foreign resident is exploited within you. The fatherless and widow are oppressed in you. f 8 You despise My holy things and profane My Sabbaths. g 9 There are men within you who slander in order to shed blood. h People who live in you eat at the mountain shrines; they commit immoral acts within you. 10 Men within you have sexual intercourse with their father’s wife and violate women during their menstrual impurity. i 11 One man within you commits a detestable act with his neighbor’s wife; j another wickedly defiles his daughter-in-law; and yet another violates his sister, his father’s daughter. k 12 People who live in you accept bribes in order to shed blood. l You take interest and profit on a loan and brutally extort your neighbors. m You have forgotten Me.” n This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.

13 “Now look, I clap My hands together against the dishonest profit you have made o and against the blood shed among you. 14 Will your courage endure p or your hands be strong in the days when I deal with you? I, •Yahweh , have spoken, and I will act. q 15 I will disperse you among the nations and scatter you among the countries; r I will purge your uncleanness. s 16 You t will be profaned in the sight of the nations. Then you will know that I am Yahweh.” u Jerusalem as God’s Furnace 17 The word of the LORD came to me: 18 “Son of man, the house of Israel has become dross to Me. v All of them are copper, tin, iron, and lead inside the furnace; w they are the dross of silver. 19 Therefore, this is what the Lord GOD says: Because all of you have become dross, I am about to gather you into Jerusalem. 20 Just as one gathers silver, copper, iron, lead, and tin into the furnace to blow fire x on them and melt them, so I will gather you in My anger and wrath, put you inside, and melt you. 21 Yes, I will gather you together and blow on you with the fire of My fury, and you will be melted within the city. 22 As silver is melted inside a furnace, so you will be melted inside the city. Then you will know that I, Yahweh, have poured out My wrath on you." [y]

Indictment of a Sinful Land 23 The word of the LORD came to me: 24 "Son of man, say to her: You are a land that has not been cleansed, [z] that has not received rain in the day of indignation. 25 The conspiracy of her prophets [a] within her is [b] like a roaring lion tearing its prey: they devour people, seize wealth and valuables, and multiply the widows within her. 26 Her priests do violence to My instruction and profane My holy things. [c] They make no distinction between the holy and the common, and they do not explain the difference between the •clean and the •unclean . [d] They disregard [A] My Sabbaths, and I am profaned among them.

27 "Her officials within her are like wolves tearing their prey, shedding blood, and destroying lives in order to make profit dishonestly. 28 Her prophets plaster with whitewash for them by seeing false visions and lying •divinations , [e] and they say, 'This is what the Lord GOD says,' when the LORD has not spoken. 29 The people of the land have practiced extortion and committed robbery. [f] They have oppressed the poor and needy and unlawfully exploited the foreign resident. 30 I searched for a man among them who would repair the wall [g] and stand in the gap before Me on behalf of the land so that I might not destroy it, [h] but I found no one. 31 So I have poured out My indignation on them and consumed them with the fire of My fury. I have brought their actions down on their own heads." [i] This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.

The Two Immoral Sisters

23 The word of the LORD came to me again: 2 “Son of man, there were two women, [a] daughters of the same mother, 3 who acted like prostitutes in Egypt, [b] behaving promiscuously in their youth. Their breasts were fondled there, and their virgin nipples caressed. 4 The older one was named Oholah, [c] and her sister was Oholibah. [d] They became Mine and gave birth to sons and daughters. As for their names, Oholah represents Samaria and Oholibah represents Jerusalem.
5 “Oholah acted like a prostitute even though she was Mine. She lusted after her lovers, the Assyrians: [e] warriors 6 dressed in blue, governors and prefects, all of them desirable young men, horsemen riding on steeds. 7 She offered her sexual favors to them; all of them were the elite of Assyria. She defiled herself with all those she lusted after and with all their idols. 8 She didn’t give up her promiscuity that began in Egypt, [f] when men slept with her in her youth, caressed her virgin nipples, and poured out their lust on her. 9 Therefore, I handed her over to her lovers, [g] the Assyrians she lusted for. 10 They exposed her nakedness, seized her sons and daughters, and killed her with the sword.
Since they executed judgment against her, she became notorious among women.
11 “Now her sister Oholibah saw this, but she was even more depraved in her lust than Oholah, and made her promiscuous acts worse than those of her sister.
[h] 12 She lusted after the Assyrians: [i] governors and prefects, warriors splendidly dressed, horsemen riding on steeds, all of them desirable young men. 13 And I saw that she had defiled herself; both of them had taken the same path. 14 But she increased her promiscuity when she saw male figures carved on the wall, [j] images of the Chaldeans, engraved in vermilion, [k] 15 wearing belts on their waists and flowing turbans on their heads; all of them looked like officers, a depiction of the Babylonians in Chaldea, the land of their birth. 16 At the sight of them [A] she lusted after them and sent messengers to them in Chaldea. [l] 17 Then the Babylonians came to her, [m] to the bed of love, and defiled her with their lust.
But after she was defiled by them, she turned away from them in disgust.
18 When she flaunted her promiscuity and exposed her nakedness, I turned away from her in disgust just as I turned away from her sister. [n] 19 Yet she multiplied her acts of promiscuity, remembering the days of her youth when she acted like a prostitute in the land of Egypt 20 and lusted after their lovers, whose sexual members were like those of donkeys and whose emission was like that of stallions. 21 So you revisited the indecency of your youth, when the Egyptians caressed your nipples to enjoy your youthful breasts. [o]

22 “Therefore Oholibah, this is what the Lord God says: I am going to incite your lovers against you, those you turned away from in disgust. I will bring them against you from every side: 23 the Babylonians and all the Chaldeans; Pekod, Shoa, and Koa; [p] and all the Assyrians with them — desirable young men, all of them governors and prefects, officers and administrators, all of them riding on horses. 24 They will come against you with an alliance of nations and with weapons, chariots, and [q] wagons. They will set themselves against you on every side with shields, bucklers, and helmets. I will delegate judgment to them, and they will judge you by their own standards. 25 When I vent My jealous rage on you, [r] they will deal with you in wrath. They will cut off your nose and ears, and your descendants will fall by the sword. They will seize your sons and daughters, and your descendants will be consumed by fire. 26 They will strip off your clothes and take your beautiful jewelry. [s] 27 So I will put an end to your indecency and sexual immorality, which began in the land of Egypt, and you will not look longingly at them or remember Egypt anymore.
28 “For this is what the Lord God says: I am going to hand you over to those you hate, to those you turned away from in disgust. 29 They will treat you with hatred, take all you have worked for, and leave you stark naked, [t] so that the shame of your debauchery will be exposed, both your indecency and promiscuity. 30 These things will be done to you because you acted like a prostitute with the nations, [u] defiling yourself with their idols. 31 You have followed the path of your sister, so I will put her cup in your hand.” [v]
32 This is what the Lord God says:
You will drink your sister’s cup, [w]
which is deep and wide.
You will be an object of [B] ridicule and scorn,
for it holds so much. [x]
33 You will be filled with drunkenness and grief, with a cup of devastation and desolation,
the cup of your sister Samaria.
34 You will drink it and drain it;
then you will gnaw its broken pieces,
and tear your breasts.
For I have spoken.
This is the declaration of the Lord God.
35 Therefore, this is what the Lord God says: “Because you have forgotten Me [y] and cast Me behind your back, [z] you must bear the consequences of your indecency and promiscuity.”

36 Then the LORD said to me: “Son of man, will you pass judgment against Oholah and Oholibah? [a] Then declare their detestable practices to them. [b] 37 For they have committed adultery, and blood is on their hands; they have committed adultery with their idols. They have even made the children they bore to Me pass through the fire as food for the idols. [c] 38 They also did this to Me: they defiled
My sanctuary [d] on that same day and profaned My Sabbaths. [e] 39 On the same day they slaughtered their children for their idols, they entered My sanctuary to profane it. [f] Yes, that is what they did inside My house.

40 “In addition, they sent for men who came from far away when a messenger was dispatched to them. And look how they came! You bathed, painted your eyes, [g] and adorned yourself with jewelry for them. [h] 41 You sat on a luxurious couch with a table spread before it, [i] on which you had set My incense and oil. 42
The sound of a carefree crowd was there. Drunkards [C] from the desert were brought in, along with common men. They put bracelets on the women’s hands and beautiful crowns on their heads. 43 Then I said concerning this woman worn out by adultery: Will they now have illicit sex with her, even her? 44 Yet they had sex with her as one does with a prostitute. This is how they had sex with Oholah and Oholibah, those obscene women. 45 But righteous men will judge them the way adulteresses [j] and those who shed blood are judged, for they are adulteresses and blood is on their hands.

46 “This is what the Lord GOD says: Summon [D] an assembly against them and consign them to terror and plunder. [k] 47 The assembly will stone them and cut them down with their swords. [l] They will kill their sons and daughters and burn their houses with fire. 48 So I will put an end to indecency in the land, and all the women will be admonished not to imitate your indecent behavior. 49 They will repay you for your indecency, [m] and you will bear the consequences for your sins of idolatry. Then you will know that I am the Lord •Yahweh .”

Parable of the Boiling Pot

24 The word of the LORD came to me in the ninth year, in the tenth month, on the tenth day of the month: 2 “Son of man, write down today’s date, this very day. The king of Babylon has laid siege to Jerusalem this very day. [a] 3 Now speak a parable [b] to the rebellious house. Tell them: This is what the Lord GOD says:

Put the pot [c] on the fire — put it on,
and then pour water into it!
4 Place the pieces of meat in it, every good piece —
thigh and shoulder.
Fill it with choice bones.
5 Take the choicest of the flock and also pile up the fuel [A] under it.
Bring it to a boil
and cook the bones in it.”
6 Therefore, this is what the Lord GOD says:
Woe to the city of bloodshed, [d]
the pot that has rust inside it,
and whose rust will not come off!
Empty it piece by piece;
lots should not be cast for its contents.
7 For the blood she shed [B] is still within her.
She put it out on the bare rock;
she didn’t pour it on the ground to cover it with dust. [e]
8 In order to stir up wrath and take vengeance, [f]
I have put her blood on the bare rock, so that it would not be covered.
9 Therefore, this is what the Lord GOD says:
Woe to the city of bloodshed! [g]
I Myself will make the pile of kindling large.
10 Pile on the logs and kindle the fire!
Cook the meat well and mix in the spices! [h, C]
Let the bones be burned!
11 Set the empty pot on its coals

so that it becomes hot and its copper glows.
Then its impurity will melt inside it;
its rust will be consumed. [i] 12 It has frustrated every effort; [D] its thick rust will not come off.
Into the fire with its rust!
13 Because of the indecency of your uncleanness —
since I tried to purify you, but you would not be purified from your uncleanness —
you will not be pure again until I have satisfied My wrath on you. [j]
14 I, •Yahweh , have spoken.
It is coming, and I will do it! [k]
I will not refrain, I will not show pity, and I will not relent.
I [l] will judge you
according to your ways and deeds. [m]
This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.

The Death of Ezekiel's Wife: A Sign 15 Then the word of the LORD came to me: 16 "Son of man, I am about to take the delight of your eyes [n] away from you with a fatal blow. But you must not lament or weep or let your tears flow. [o] 17 Groan quietly; do not observe mourning rites for the dead. [p] Put on your turban and strap your sandals on your feet; do not cover your mustache or eat the bread of mourners." [E, q]

18 I spoke to the people in the morning, and my wife died in the evening. The next morning I did just as I was commanded. 19 Then the people asked me, "Won't you tell us what these things you are doing mean for us? "

20 So I answered them: "The word of the LORD came to me: 21 'Say to the house of Israel: This is what the Lord GOD says: I am about to desecrate My sanctuary, the pride of your power, the delight of your eyes, and the desire of your heart. Also, the sons and daughters you left behind will fall by the sword. [r] 22 Then you will do just as I have done: You will not cover your mustache or eat the bread of mourners. [F] 23 Your turbans will remain on your heads and your sandals on your feet. You will not lament or weep [s] but will waste away [t] because of your sins and will groan to one another. 24 Now Ezekiel will be a sign for you. [u] You will do everything that he has done. When this happens, you will know that I am the Lord Yahweh.

25 “ ‘Son of man, know that on the day I take their stronghold from them, their pride and joy, the delight of their eyes and the longing of their hearts, as well as their sons and daughters, 26 on that day a fugitive will come to you and report the news. v 27 On that day your mouth will be opened to talk with him; you will speak and no longer be mute. w So you will be a sign for them, and they will know that I am Yahweh.’ ”

PROPHECIES AGAINST THE NATIONS
JUDGMENT AGAINST AMMON

25 Then the word of the LORD came to me: 2 “Son of man, turn your face toward the Ammonites and prophesy against them. [a] 3 Say to the Ammonites: Hear the word of the Lord GOD: This is what the Lord GOD says:
Because you said, ‘Good!’ [b] about My sanctuary when it was desecrated, about the land of Israel when it was laid waste, and about the house of Judah when they went into exile, 4 therefore I am about to give you to the people of the east as a possession. They will set up their encampments and pitch their tents among you. They will eat your fruit and drink your milk. 5 I will make Rabbah a pasture [c] for camels and Ammon a sheepfold. Then you will know that I am •Yahweh .”

6 For this is what the Lord GOD says: “Because you clapped your hands, [d] stamped your feet, and rejoiced over the land of Israel with wholehearted contempt, 7 therefore I am about to stretch out My hand against you [e] and give you as plunder to the nations. I will cut you off from the peoples and eliminate you from the countries. I will destroy you, and you will know that I am Yahweh.”

Judgment against Moab

8 This is what the Lord GOD says: “Because Moab and Seir said, [f] ‘Look, the house of Judah is like all the other nations,’ 9 therefore I am about to expose Moab’s flank beginning with its [A] frontier cities, the pride of the land: Beth-jeshimoth, Baal-meon, [g] and Kiriathaim. 10 I will give it along with Ammon to the people of the east as a possession, so that Ammon will not be remembered among the nations. 11 So I will execute judgments against Moab, and they will know that I am Yahweh.”

Judgment against Edom

12 This is what the Lord God says: “Because Edom acted vengefully against the house of Judah [h] and incurred grievous •guilt by taking revenge on them, 13 therefore this is what the Lord God says: I will stretch out My hand against Edom and cut off both man and animal from it. I will make it a wasteland; they will fall by the sword from Teman to Dedan. 14 I will take My vengeance [i] on Edom through My people Israel, and they will deal with Edom according to My anger and wrath. So they will know My vengeance.” This is the declaration of the Lord God.

Judgment against Philistia 15 This is what the Lord God says: “Because the Philistines acted in vengeance and took revenge with deep contempt, [j] destroying because of their ancient hatred, 16 therefore this is what the Lord God says: I am about to stretch out My hand against the Philistines, [k] cutting off the Cherethites and wiping out what remains of the coastal peoples. [B, l] 17 I will execute great vengeance against them with furious rebukes. They will know that I am Yahweh [m] when I take My vengeance on them.”

The Downfall of Tyre

26 In the eleventh year, on the first day of the month, the word of the LORD came to me: 2 “Son of man, because Tyre [a] said about Jerusalem, ‘Good!
[b] The gateway to the peoples is shattered. She has been turned over to me. I will be filled now that she lies in ruins,’ 3 therefore this is what the Lord GOD says:
See, I am against you, Tyre! [c] I will raise up many nations against you, just as the sea raises its waves. 4 They will destroy the walls of Tyre and demolish her towers. I will scrape the soil from her and turn her into a bare rock. 5 She will become a place in the sea to spread nets, for I have spoken.” This is the declaration of the Lord GOD. “She will become plunder for the nations, [d] 6 and her villages on the mainland will be slaughtered by the sword. [e] Then they will know that I am •Yahweh .”

7 For this is what the Lord GOD says: “See, I am about to bring King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon, king of kings, [f] against Tyre from the north with horses, chariots, cavalry, and a vast company of troops. 8 He will slaughter your villages on the mainland with the sword. He will set up siege works against you, [g] and will build a ramp [A] and raise a wall of shields against you. 9 He will direct the blows of his battering rams against your walls and tear down your towers with his iron tools. 10 His horses will be so numerous that their dust will cover
you. When he enters your gates as an army entering a breached city, your walls will shake from the noise of cavalry, wagons, and chariots. 11 He will trample all your streets with the hooves of his horses. [h] He will slaughter your people with the sword, and your mighty pillars will fall to the ground. 12 They will take your wealth as spoil and plunder your merchandise. [i] They will also demolish your walls and tear down your beautiful homes. Then they will throw your stones, timber, and soil into the water. 13 I will put an end to the noise of your songs, [j] and the sound of your lyres will no longer be heard. 14 I will turn you into a bare rock, and you will be a place to spread nets. You will never be rebuilt, for I, Yahweh, have spoken.” [k] This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.

15 This is what the Lord GOD says to Tyre: “Won’t the coasts and islands quake at the sound of your downfall, [l] when the wounded groan and slaughter occurs within you? 16 All the princes of the sea will descend from their thrones, [m] remove their robes, and strip off their embroidered garments. They will clothe themselves with trembling; they will sit on the ground, tremble continually, and be appalled [n] at you. 17 Then they will lament [o] for you and say of you:

How you have perished, city of renown,
you who were populated from the seas! [p]

She who was powerful on the sea,
she and all of her inhabitants inflicted their terror. [B] 18 Now the coastlands tremble [q]
on the day of your downfall;
the islands in the sea
are alarmed by your demise.”

19 For this is what the Lord God says: “When I make you a ruined city like other deserted cities, when I raise up the deep against you so that the mighty waters cover you, 20 then I will bring you down to be with those who descend to the •Pit , [r] to the people of antiquity. I will make you dwell in the underworld [C] like [s] the ancient ruins, with those who descend to the Pit, so that you will no longer be inhabited or display your splendor [t] in the land of the living. [u] 21 I will make you an object of horror, and you will no longer exist. [v] You will be sought but will never be found again.” This is the declaration of the Lord God.

The Sinking of Tyre

27 The word of the LORD came to me: 2 “Now, son of man, lament for Tyre. [a]
3 Say to Tyre, who is located at the entrance of the sea, merchant of the peoples [b] to many coasts and islands: This is what the Lord GOD says:

Tyre, you declared,
‘I am perfect in beauty.’
4 Your realm was in the heart of the sea;
your builders perfected your beauty.
5 They constructed all your planking with pine trees from Senir. [c, d]
They took a cedar from Lebanon to make a mast for you.
6 They made your oars of oaks from Bashan.
They made your deck of cypress wood from the coasts of Cyprus, [e] inlaid with ivory.
7 Your sail was made of fine embroidered linen from Egypt,
and served as your banner.
Your awning was of blue and purple fabric
from the coasts of Elishah.
8 The inhabitants of Sidon and Arvad [f]
were your rowers.
Your wise men were within you, Tyre;
they were your captains.
9 The elders of Gebal and its wise men [g] were within you, repairing your leaks.

All the ships of the sea and their sailors came to [A] you to barter for your goods.
10 Men of Persia, Lud, and Put [h] were in your army, serving as your warriors.
They hung shields and helmets in you;
they gave you splendor.
11 Men of Arvad and Helech were stationed on your walls all around,
and Gammadites were in your towers.
They hung their shields [B] all around your walls;
they perfected your beauty.

12 “Tarshish [i] was your trading partner because of your great wealth of every kind. They exchanged silver, iron, tin, and lead for your merchandise. 13 Javan, Tubal, and Meshech [j] were your merchants. They exchanged slaves [C] and bronze utensils for your goods. 14 Those from Beth-togarmah [k] exchanged horses, war horses, and mules for your merchandise. 15 Men of Dedan [l, m] were also your merchants; many coasts and islands were your regular markets. They brought back ivory tusks [n] and ebony as your payment. 16 Aram [o, p] was your trading partner because of your numerous products. They exchanged turquoise, [D] purple and embroidered cloth, fine linen, coral, [E] and rubies [F] for your merchandise. 17 Judah and the land of Israel were your merchants. They exchanged wheat from Minnith, [q] meal, [G] honey, oil, and balm, for your goods.
18 Damascus was also your trading partner because of your numerous products and your great wealth of every kind, trading in wine from Helbon and white wool. [H] 19 Vedan [I] and Javan from Uzal [J, r] dealt in your merchandise; wrought iron, cassia, [s] and aromatic cane were exchanged for your goods. 20 Dedan [t] was your merchant in saddlecloths for riding. 21 Arabia and all the princes of Kedar were your business [K] partners, trading with you in lambs, rams, and goats.
22 The merchants of Sheba [u] and Raamah traded with you. They exchanged gold, the best of all spices, and all kinds of precious stones for your merchandise. [v] 23 Haran, Canneh, Eden, [w] the merchants of Sheba, Asshur, [x] and Chilmad traded with you. 24 They were your merchants in choice garments, cloaks of blue and embroidered materials, and multicolored carpets, [L] which were bound and secured with cords in your marketplace. 25 Ships of Tarshish [y] were the carriers for your goods.

So you became full and heavily loaded [M]
in the heart of the sea.
26 Your rowers have brought you onto the high seas, [z]
but the east wind has shattered you
in the heart of the sea.
27 Your wealth, merchandise, and goods,
your sailors and captains,
those who repair your leaks,
those who barter for your goods,
and all the warriors within you,
with all the other people on board, [N]

sink into the heart of the sea
on the day of your downfall.

28 The countryside shakes
at the sound of your sailors' cries. [a] 29 All those who handle an oar disembark from their ships.
The sailors and all the captains of the sea stand on the shore.
30 They raise their voices over you and cry out bitterly.
They throw dust on their heads; [b]
they roll in ashes.
31 They shave their heads because of you and wrap themselves in •sackcloth .
They weep over you
with deep anguish and bitter mourning.

32 In their wailing they lament for you, [c]
mourning over you:
Who was like Tyre,
silenced [O] in the middle of the sea?
33 When your merchandise was unloaded from the seas,
you satisfied many peoples.
You enriched the kings of the earth with your abundant wealth and goods.
34 Now you are shattered by the sea in the depths of the waters;
your goods and the people within you have gone down.
35 All the inhabitants of the coasts and islands are appalled [d] at you.
Their kings shudder with fear;
their faces are contorted.
36 Those who trade among the peoples mock [P, e] you;
you have become an object of horror
and will never exist again." [f]

The Fall of Tyre's Ruler

28 The word of the LORD came to me: 2 “Son of man, say to the ruler of Tyre:
This is what the Lord GOD says:
Your [A] heart is proud,
and you have said, ‘I am a god; [a] I sit in the seat of gods
in the heart of the sea.’
Yet you are a man and not a god, though you have regarded your heart
as that of a god.
3 Yes, you are wiser than Daniel; [b]
no secret is hidden from you!
4 By your wisdom and understanding you have acquired wealth for yourself.
You have acquired gold and silver for your treasuries. [c] 5 By your great skill in trading you have increased your wealth, but your heart has become proud because of your wealth.”
6 Therefore this is what the Lord GOD says:
Because you regard your heart as that of a god,
7 I am about to bring strangers against you,
ruthless men from the nations.
They will draw their swords against your magnificent wisdom and will defile your splendor. [d] 8 They will bring you down to the •Pit , [e] and you will die a violent death
in the heart of the sea.
9 Will you still say, ‘I am a god,’
in the presence of those who kill [f] you?
Yet you will be only a man, not a god,
in the hands of those who kill you.
10 You will die the death of the uncircumcised [g]
at the hands of strangers. [h]
For I have spoken.
This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.

A Lament for Tyre's King

11 The word of the LORD came to me: 12 "Son of man, lament [i] for the king of Tyre and say to him: This is what the Lord GOD says:

You were the seal [B] of perfection, [C]
full of wisdom and perfect in beauty. [j] 13 You were in Eden, [k] the garden of God.
Every kind of precious stone covered you:
carnelian, topaz, and diamond, [D]
beryl, onyx, and jasper, sapphire, [E] turquoise [F] and emerald. [G]
Your mountings and settings were crafted in gold; [l]
they were prepared on the day you were created.
14 You were an anointed guardian cherub, [m]
for [H] I had appointed you.
You were on the holy mountain of God;
you walked among the fiery stones.
15 From the day you were created you were blameless in your ways until wickedness was found in you.
16 Through the abundance of your trade,
you were filled with violence, and you sinned.
So I expelled you in disgrace
from the mountain of God, and banished you, guardian cherub, [I]
from among the fiery stones.
17 Your heart became proud because of your beauty; [n]
For the sake of your splendor
you corrupted your wisdom.
So I threw you down to the earth;
I made you a spectacle before kings.
18 You profaned your sanctuaries by the magnitude of your iniquities in your dishonest trade.
So I made fire come from within you,
and it consumed you. [o]
I reduced you to ashes on the ground in the sight of everyone watching you.

19 All those who know you among the nations are appalled at you.
You have become an object of horror
and will never exist again.” p

A Prophecy against Sidon

20 The word of the LORD came to me: 21 “Son of man, turn your face toward Sidon [q] and prophesy against it. 22 You are to say: This is what the Lord GOD
says:

Look! I am against you, Sidon, [r] and I will display My glory within you.
They will know that I am •Yahweh
when I execute judgments against her [s] and demonstrate My holiness through her.
23 I will send a plague against her [t]
and bloodshed in her streets;
the slain will fall within her,
while the sword is against her [J] on every side.
Then they will know that I am Yahweh.

24 “The house of Israel will no longer be hurt by [K] prickly briers or painful thorns [u] from all their neighbors who treat them with contempt. Then they will know that I am the Lord Yahweh.

25 “This is what the Lord GOD says: When I gather the house of Israel [v] from the peoples where they are scattered and demonstrate My holiness through them in the sight of the nations, then they will live in their own land, which I gave to My servant Jacob. 26 They will live there securely, [w] build houses, and plant vineyards. [x] They will live securely when I execute judgments [y] against all their neighbors who treat them with contempt. Then they will know that I am Yahweh their God.”

A Prophecy of Egypt's Ruin

29 In the tenth year, in the tenth month on the twelfth day of the month, the word of the LORD came to me: 2 "Son of man, turn your face toward Pharaoh king of Egypt and prophesy against him and against all of Egypt. a 3 Speak to him and say: This is what the Lord GOD says:

Look, I am against you, Pharaoh king of Egypt,
the great monster A, b lying in the middle of his Nile,
who says, 'My Nile is my own;
I made it for myself.'
4 I will put hooks in your jaws c and make the fish of your streams cling to your scales.
I will haul you up from the middle of your Nile, and all the fish of your streams will cling to your scales.
5 I will leave you in the desert, d
you and all the fish of your streams.
You will fall on the open ground and will not be taken away or gathered for burial. e I have given you to the beasts of the earth and the birds of the sky as food. f

6 Then all the inhabitants of Egypt
will know that I am •Yahweh ,
for they g have been a staff made of reed
to the house of Israel.
7 When Israel grasped you by the hand,
you splintered, h tearing all their shoulders;
when they leaned on you,
you shattered and made all their hips unsteady. i

8 "Therefore this is what the Lord GOD says: I am going to bring a sword j against you and wipe out man and animal from you. 9 The land of Egypt will be a desolate ruin. k Then they will know that I am Yahweh. Because you l said, 'The Nile is my own; I made it,' 10 therefore, I am against you and your Nile. I will turn the land of Egypt into ruins, a desolate waste from Migdol to Syene, as far as the border of •Cush . 11 No human foot will pass through it, and no animal foot will pass through it. [m] It will be uninhabited for 40 years. 12 I will make the land of Egypt a desolation among [B] desolate lands, and its cities will be a desolation among [C] ruined cities [n] for 40 years. I will disperse the Egyptians among the nations and scatter them across the countries. [o] 13 "For this is what the Lord GOD says: At the end of 40 years I will gather the Egyptians from the nations where they were dispersed. [p] 14 I will restore the fortunes of Egypt and bring them back to the land of Pathros, the land of their origin. There they will be a lowly kingdom. 15 Egypt will be the lowliest of kingdoms and will never again exalt itself over the nations. I will make them so small they cannot rule over the nations. 16 It will never again be an object of trust [q] for the house of Israel, drawing attention to their sin of turning to the Egyptians. Then they will know that I am the Lord Yahweh."

Babylon Receives Egypt as Compensation 17 In the twenty-seventh year in the first month, on the first day of the month, the word of the LORD came to me:
18 "Son of man, Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon made his army labor strenuously against Tyre. [r] Every head was made bald and every shoulder chafed, but he and his army received no compensation from Tyre for the labor he expended against it. 19 Therefore this is what the Lord GOD says: I am going to give the land of Egypt to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, [s] who will carry off its wealth, seizing its spoil and taking its plunder. This will be his army's compensation. 20 I have given him the land of Egypt as the pay he labored for, since they worked for Me." This is the declaration of the Lord GOD. 21 "In that day I will cause a •horn to sprout [t] for the house of Israel, and I will enable you to speak out [u] among them. Then they will know that I am Yahweh."

Egypt's Doom

30 The word of the LORD came to me: 2 “Son of man, prophesy and say: This is what the Lord GOD says:
Wail: [a] Woe for the day!
3 For a day is near;
a day belonging to the LORD is near. [b]
It will be a day of clouds, [c] a time of doom for the nations.
4 A sword will come against Egypt, and there will be anguish in •Cush
when the slain fall in Egypt, and its wealth is taken away,
and its foundations are torn down.
5 Cush, Put, and Lud, [d]
and all the various foreign troops, [A] plus Libya [B] and the men of the covenant land [e] will fall by the sword along with them.
6 This is what the LORD says:
Those who support Egypt will fall,
and its proud strength will collapse.
From Migdol to Syene
they will fall within it by the sword.
7 They will be desolate This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.
among [C] desolate lands,
and their cities will lie
among ruined [D] cities. [f]
8 They will know that I am •Yahweh
when I set fire to Egypt [g]
and all its allies are shattered.
9 On that day, messengers will go out from Me in ships [h] to terrify confident Cush. Anguish will come over them on the day of Egypt’s doom. For indeed it is coming.”
10 This is what the Lord GOD says:
I will put an end to the hordes [E] of Egypt
by the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon.
11 He along with his people,
ruthless men from the nations,
will be brought in to destroy the land.

They will draw their swords against Egypt and fill the land with the slain. [i] 12 I will make the streams dry and sell the land into the hands of evil men. [j]
I will bring desolation
on the land and everything in it by the hands of foreigners.
I, Yahweh, have spoken.
13 This is what the Lord GOD says:
I will destroy the idols and put an end to the false gods in Memphis. [k]
There will no longer be a prince from the land of Egypt.
So I will instill fear in that land.
14 I will make Pathros [l] desolate, set fire to Zoan,
and execute judgments on Thebes.
15 I will pour out My wrath on Pelusium,
the stronghold of Egypt,
and will wipe out the crowds [F] of Thebes.
16 I will set fire to Egypt;
Pelusium will writhe in anguish,
Thebes will be breached,
and Memphis will face foes in broad daylight. [G] 17 The young men of On [m] and Pi-beseth will fall by the sword,
and those cities [H] will go into captivity.
18 The day will be dark [n] in Tehaphnehes, when I break the yoke of Egypt there and its proud strength comes to an end in the city.
A cloud [o] will cover Tehaphnehes, [I]
and its villages will go into captivity.
19 So I will execute judgments against Egypt, and they will know that I am Yahweh.

Pharaoh's Power Broken

20 In the eleventh year, in the first month, on the seventh day of the month, the word of the LORD came to me: 21 “Son of man, I have broken the arm [p] of Pharaoh king of Egypt. Look, it has not been bandaged — no medicine has been applied and no splint put on to bandage it so that it can grow strong enough to handle a sword. 22 Therefore this is what the Lord GOD says: Look! I am against Pharaoh king of Egypt. I will break his arms, both the strong one and the one already broken, and will make the sword fall from his hand. 23 I will disperse the Egyptians among the nations and scatter them among the countries. [q] 24 I will strengthen the arms of Babylon’s king and place My sword [r] in his hand. But I will break the arms of Pharaoh, and he will groan before him as a mortally wounded man. 25 I will strengthen the arms of Babylon’s king, but Pharaoh’s arms will fall. They will know that I am Yahweh when I place My sword in the hand of Babylon’s king and he wields it against the land of Egypt. 26 When I disperse the Egyptians among the nations and scatter them among the countries, they will know that I am Yahweh.”

Downfall of Egypt and Assyria

31 In the eleventh year, [a] in the third month, on the first day of the month, the word of the LORD came to me: 2 “Son of man, say to Pharaoh king of Egypt and to his hordes:

Who are you like in your greatness?
3 Think of Assyria, a cedar in Lebanon, [b] with beautiful branches and shady foliage and of lofty height.
Its top was among the clouds. [A] 4 The waters caused it to grow;
the underground springs made it tall, directing their rivers all around the place where the tree was planted and sending their channels to all the trees of the field.
5 Therefore the cedar became greater in height
than all the trees of the field. [c]
Its branches multiplied, and its boughs grew long as it spread them out because of the plentiful water. [d] 6 All the birds of the sky
nested in its branches, [e]
and all the animals of the field gave birth beneath its boughs;
all the great nations lived in its shade.
7 It was beautiful in its greatness,
in the length of its limbs,
for its roots extended to abundant water.
8 The cedars in God’s garden could not rival it; [f]
the pine trees couldn’t compare with its branches, nor could the plane trees match its boughs.
No tree in the garden of God could compare with it in beauty.
9 I made it beautiful with its many limbs,
and all the trees of Eden,
which were in God’s garden, envied it.

10 “Therefore this is what the Lord GOD says: Since it [g] became great in height and set its top among the clouds, [B] and it [C] grew proud [h] on account of its height, 11 I determined to hand it over to a ruler of nations; [i] he would surely deal with it. I banished it because of its wickedness. 12 Foreigners, ruthless men from the nations, [j] cut it down and left it lying. Its limbs fell on the mountains and in every valley; its boughs lay broken in all the earth's ravines. All the peoples of the earth left its shade and abandoned it. 13 All the birds of the sky nested on its fallen trunk, and all the animals of the field were among its boughs.

14 This happened so that no trees planted beside water would become great in height and set their tops among the clouds, [D] and so that no other well-watered trees would reach them in height. For they have all been consigned to death, to the underworld, among the •people who descend to the •Pit . [k]

15 "This is what the Lord GOD says: I caused grieving on the day the cedar went down to •Sheol . [l] I closed off the underground deep because of it: [E] I held back the rivers of the deep, and its abundant waters were restrained. I made Lebanon mourn on account of it, and all the trees of the field fainted because of it. 16 I made the nations quake at the sound of its downfall, when I threw it down to Sheol to be with those who descend to the Pit. Then all the trees of Eden, [m] all the well-watered trees, the choice and best of Lebanon, were comforted [n] in the underworld. 17 They too descended with it to Sheol, to those slain by the sword.
As its allies [o,] [F] they had lived in its shade among the nations.

18 "Who then are you like in glory and greatness among Eden's trees? You also will be brought down to the underworld to be with the trees of Eden. You will lie among the uncircumcised with those slain by the sword. [p] This is Pharaoh and all his hordes" — the declaration of the Lord GOD.

A Lament for Pharaoh

32 In the twelfth year, in the twelfth month, on the first day of the month, the word of the LORD came to me: 2 “Son of man, lament [a] for Pharaoh king of Egypt and say to him:

You compare yourself to a lion of the nations, but [A] you are like a monster [b] in the seas.
You thrash about in your rivers,
churn up the waters with your feet,
and muddy the [B] rivers.”

3 This is what the Lord GOD says:
I will spread My net over you [c]
with an assembly of many peoples, and they [d] will haul you up in My net.
4 I will abandon you on the land and hurl you on the open field.
I will cause all the birds of the sky to settle on you and let the beasts of the entire earth
eat their fill of you. [e] 5 I will put your flesh on the mountains [f]
and fill the valleys with your carcass.
6 I will drench the land
with the flow of your blood,
even to the mountains;
the ravines will be filled with your gore.

7 When I snuff you out,
I will cover the heavens
and darken their stars.
I will cover the sun with a cloud, [g]
and the moon will not give its light.
8 I will darken all the shining lights
in the heavens over you,
and will bring darkness on your land.

This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.

9 I will trouble the hearts of many peoples, when I bring about your destruction

among the nations,
in countries you do not know.
10 I will cause many nations to be appalled at you, and their kings will shudder with fear because of you [h]
when I brandish My sword in front of them.
On the day of your downfall
each of them will tremble
every moment [i] for his life.

11 For this is what the Lord GOD says:
The sword of Babylon's king
will come against you!
12 I will make your hordes fall
by the swords of warriors,
all of them ruthless men from the nations. [j]
They will ravage Egypt's pride, and all its hordes will be destroyed.
13 I will slaughter all its cattle that are beside many waters.
No human foot will churn them again,
and no cattle hooves will disturb them. [k] 14 Then I will let their waters settle and will make their rivers flow like oil.
15 When I make the land of Egypt This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.
a desolation,
so that it is emptied of everything in it,
when I strike down all who live there,
then they will know that I am •Yahweh . [l]
16 "This is a lament that will be chanted; [m] the women of the nations will chant it. They will chant it over Egypt and all its hordes." This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.

Egypt in Sheol

17 In the twelfth year, [n] on the fifteenth day of the month, the word of the LORD came to me: 18 “Son of man, wail over the hordes of Egypt and bring Egypt and the daughters of mighty nations down to the underworld, [C] to be with those who descend to the •Pit : [o]

19 Who do you surpass in loveliness?
Go down and be laid to rest with the uncircumcised!
20 They will fall among those slain by the sword.
A sword is appointed! [p]
They drag her and all her hordes away.
21 Warrior leaders will speak from the middle of •Sheol about him [q] and his allies:
They have come down;
the uncircumcised lie
slain by the sword. [r]

22 Assyria is there with all her company;
her graves are all around her.
All of them are slain, fallen by the sword.
23 Her graves are set in the deepest regions of the Pit,
and her company is all around her burial place.
All of them are slain, fallen by the sword —
those who once spread terror
in the land of the living.

24 Elam [s] is there with all her hordes around her grave.
All of them are slain, fallen by the sword —
those who went down to the underworld [D] uncircumcised, who once spread their terror
in the land of the living.
They bear their disgrace
with those who descend to the Pit.
25 Among the slain
they prepare a resting place for Elam with all her hordes.

Her graves are all around her.
All of them are uncircumcised,
slain by the sword,
although their terror was once spread
in the land of the living.
They bear their disgrace
with those who descend to the Pit.
They are placed among the slain.

26 Meshech and Tubal [E, t] are there,
with all their hordes.
Their graves are all around them.
All of them are uncircumcised, slain by the sword,
although their terror was once spread
in the land of the living.
27 They do not lie down with the fallen warriors of the uncircumcised, [u] who went down to Sheol
with their weapons of war, whose swords were placed under their heads. [F]
The punishment for their sins rested on their bones,
although the terror of these warriors was once in the land of the living.
28 But you will be shattered and will lie down among the uncircumcised, with those slain by the sword. [v]

29 Edom [w] is there, her kings and all her princes, who, despite their strength, have been placed among those slain by the sword.
They lie down with the uncircumcised,
with those who descend to the Pit.
30 All the leaders of the north [x]
and all the Sidonians [y] are there.
They went down in shame with the slain,
despite the terror their strength inspired.
They lie down uncircumcised
with those slain by the sword.

They bear their disgrace
with those who descend to the Pit.

31 Pharaoh will see them and be comforted [z] over all his hordes — Pharaoh and all his army,
slain by the sword.

This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.

32 For I will spread My [a] terror
in the land of the living,
so Pharaoh and all his hordes
will be laid to rest among the uncircumcised,
with those slain by the sword.”

This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.

Ezekiel as Israel's Watchman

33 The word of the LORD came to me: 2 “Son of man, speak to your people and tell them: Suppose I bring the sword against a land, and the people of that land select a man from among them, appointing him as their watchman, 3 and he sees the sword coming against the land and blows his trumpet [a] to warn the people. 4 Then, if anyone hears the sound of the trumpet but ignores the warning, [b] and the sword comes and takes him away, his blood will be on his own head. 5 Since he heard the sound of the trumpet but ignored the warning, his blood is on his own hands. [A] If he had taken warning, he would have saved his life. 6 However, if the watchman sees the sword coming but doesn’t blow the trumpet, so that the people aren’t warned, and the sword comes and takes away their lives, then they have been taken away because of their iniquity, but I will hold the watchman accountable for their blood.

7 “As for you, son of man, I have made you a watchman for the house of Israel. [c] When you hear a word from My mouth, give them a warning from Me.
8 If I say to the wicked, ‘Wicked one, you will surely die,’ [d] but you do not speak out to warn him about his way, that wicked person will die for his iniquity, yet I will hold you responsible for his blood. 9 But if you warn a wicked person to turn from his way and he doesn’t turn from it, he will die for his iniquity, but you will have saved your life.

10 “Now as for you, son of man, say to the house of Israel: You have said this, ‘Our transgressions and our sins are heavy on us, and we are wasting away because of them! [e] How then can we survive? ’ [f] 11 Tell them: As I live” — the declaration of the Lord GOD — “I take no pleasure in the death of the wicked, but rather that the wicked person should turn from his way and live. [g] Repent, repent of your evil ways! Why will you die, house of Israel?

12 “Now, son of man, say to your people: The righteousness of the righteous person will not save him on the day of his transgression; neither will the wickedness of the wicked person cause him to stumble on the day he turns from his wickedness. The righteous person won’t be able to survive by his righteousness on the day he sins. 13 When I tell the righteous person that he will surely live, but he trusts in his righteousness and commits iniquity, then none of his righteousness will be remembered, and he will die because of the iniquity he has committed. [h]

14 “So when I tell the wicked person, ‘You will surely die,’ but he repents of his sin and does what is just and right — 15 he returns collateral, makes restitution for what he has stolen, and walks in the statutes of life [i] without practicing iniquity — he will certainly live; he will not die. 16 None of the sins he committed will be held against him. He has done what is just and right; he will certainly live. [j]

17 "But your people say, 'The Lord's way isn't fair,' [k] even though it is their own way that isn't fair. 18 When a righteous person turns from his righteousness and commits iniquity, he will die on account of this. 19 But if a wicked person turns from his wickedness and does what is just and right, he will live because of this. 20 Yet you say, 'The Lord's way isn't fair.' I will judge each of you according to his ways, house of Israel."

The News of Jerusalem's Fall 21 In the twelfth year of our exile, in the tenth month, on the fifth day of the month, a fugitive from Jerusalem came to me and reported, "The city has been taken! " 22 Now the hand of the LORD had been on me the evening before the fugitive arrived, and He opened my mouth before the man came to me in the morning. So my mouth was opened and I was no longer mute. [l]

Israel's Continued Rebellion 23 Then the word of the LORD came to me: 24 "Son of man, those who live in the [B] ruins in the land of Israel are saying, 'Abraham was only one person, [m] yet he received possession of the land. [n] But we are many; the land has been given to us as a possession.' [o] 25 Therefore say to them: This is what the Lord GOD says: You eat meat with blood in it, [p] raise your eyes to your idols, and shed blood. Should you then receive possession of the land? 26 You have relied on your swords, you have committed detestable acts, and each of you has defiled his neighbor's wife. Should you then receive possession of the land? [q]

27 "Tell them this: This is what the Lord GOD says: As surely as I live, those who are in the ruins will fall by the sword, those in the open field I have given to wild animals to be devoured, and those in the strongholds and caves will die by plague. [r] 28 I will make the land a desolate waste, [s] and its proud strength will come to an end. [t] The mountains of Israel [u] will become desolate, with no one passing through. 29 They will know that I am •Yahweh when I make the land a desolate waste because of all the detestable acts they have committed.

30 "Now, son of man, your people are talking about you near the city walls and in the doorways of their houses. One person speaks to another, each saying to his brother, 'Come and hear what the message is that comes from the LORD! ' 31 So My people come to you in crowds, [C] sit in front of you, and hear your words, but they don’t obey them. Although they express love with their mouths, their hearts pursue dishonest profit. 32 Yes, to them you are like a singer of love songs who has a beautiful voice and plays skillfully on an instrument. They hear your words, but they don’t obey them. 33 Yet when it comes [v] — and it will definitely come — then they will know that a prophet has been among them.”

The Shepherds and God's Flock

34 The word of the LORD came to me: 2 “Son of man, prophesy against the shepherds of Israel. Prophesy, and say to them: This is what the Lord GOD says to the shepherds: Woe to the shepherds of Israel, who have been feeding themselves! [a] Shouldn’t the shepherds feed their flock? 3 You eat the fat, wear the wool, and butcher the fattened animals, but you do not tend the flock. [b] 4 You have not strengthened the weak, healed the sick, bandaged the injured, brought back the strays, or sought the lost. [c] Instead, you have ruled them with violence and cruelty. 5 They were scattered for lack of a shepherd; [d] they became food for all the wild animals [e] when they were scattered. 6 My flock went astray on all the mountains and every high hill. [f] They were scattered over the whole face of the earth, and there was no one searching or seeking for them.

7 “Therefore, you shepherds, hear the word of the LORD. 8 As I live” — the declaration of the Lord GOD — “because My flock has become prey and food for every wild animal since they lack a shepherd, for My shepherds do not search for My flock, and because the shepherds feed themselves rather than My flock, 9 therefore, you shepherds, hear the word of the LORD!

10 “This is what the Lord GOD says: Look, I am against the shepherds. [g] I will demand My flock from them [A] and prevent them from shepherding the flock. The shepherds will no longer feed themselves, for I will rescue My flock from their mouths so that they will not be food for them.

11 “For this is what the Lord GOD says: See, I Myself will search for My flock and look for them. 12 As a shepherd looks for his sheep on the day he is among his scattered flock, so I will look for My flock. I will rescue them from all the places where they have been scattered [h] on a cloudy and dark day. 13 I will bring them out from the peoples, gather them from the countries, and bring them into their own land. I will shepherd them on the mountains of Israel, in the ravines, and in all the inhabited places of the land. 14 I will tend them with good pasture, and their grazing place will be on Israel’s lofty mountains. There they will lie down in a good grazing place; they will feed in rich pasture on the mountains of Israel. 15 I will tend My flock and let them lie down.” [i] This is the declaration of the Lord GOD. 16 “I will seek the lost, [j] bring back the strays, bandage the injured, [k] and strengthen the weak, but I will destroy [l] the fat and the strong. I will shepherd them with justice.

17 “The Lord GOD says to you, My flock: I am going to judge between one sheep and another, between the rams and male goats. [m] 18 Isn’t it enough for you to feed on the good pasture? Must you also trample the rest of the pasture with your feet? Or isn't it enough that you drink the clear water? Must you also muddy the rest with your feet? 19 Yet My flock has to feed on what your feet have trampled, and drink what your feet have muddied.

20 "Therefore, this is what the Lord GOD says to them: See, I Myself will judge between the fat sheep and the lean sheep. 21 Since you have pushed with flank and shoulder and butted all the weak ones with your horns until you scattered them all over, 22 I will save My flock, and they will no longer be prey for you. I will judge between one sheep and another. 23 I will appoint over them a single shepherd, My servant David, and he will shepherd them. He will tend them himself and will be their shepherd. [n] 24 I, •Yahweh , will be their God, and My servant David [o] will be a prince among them. I, Yahweh, have spoken.

25 "I will make a covenant of peace [p] with them and eliminate dangerous animals [q] in the land, so that they may live securely [r] in the wilderness and sleep in the forest. 26 I will make them and the area around My hill [s] a blessing: I will send down showers in their season [t] — showers [B] of blessing. 27 The trees of the field will give their fruit, and the land will yield its produce; My flock will be secure in their land. They will know that I am Yahweh when I break the bars of their yoke and rescue them from the hands of those who enslave them. [u] 28 They will no longer be prey for the nations, and the wild animals of the land will not consume them. They will live securely, and no one will frighten them. 29 I will establish for them a place renowned for its agriculture, [v] and they will no longer be victims of famine in the land. They will no longer endure the insults of the nations. [w] 30 Then they will know that I, Yahweh their God, am with them, and that they, the house of Israel, are My people." [x] This is the declaration of the Lord GOD. 31 "You are My flock, the human flock of My pasture, and I am your God." This is the declaration of the Lord GOD. [y]

A Prophecy against Edom

35 The word of the LORD came to me: 2 “Son of man, turn your face toward Mount Seir [a] and prophesy against it. 3 Say to it: This is what the Lord
GOD says:

Look! I am against you, Mount Seir.
I will stretch out My hand against you and make you a desolate waste. [b] 4 I will turn your cities into ruins, and you will become a desolation.
Then you will know that I am •Yahweh .

5 “Because you maintained an ancient hatred [c] and handed over the Israelites to the power of the sword in the time of their disaster, the time of final punishment, [d] 6 therefore, as I live” — this is the declaration of the Lord GOD — “I will destine you for bloodshed, and it will pursue you. Since you did not hate bloodshed, it will pursue you. [e] 7 I will make Mount Seir a desolate waste and will cut off from it those who come and go. [f] 8 I will fill its mountains with the slain; [g] those slain by the sword will fall on your hills, in your valleys, and in all your ravines. 9 I will make you a perpetual desolation; your cities will not be inhabited. Then you will know that I am Yahweh.

10 “Because you said, ‘These two nations and two lands will be mine, and we will possess them’ — though the LORD was there [h] — 11 therefore, as I live” — the declaration of the Lord GOD — “I will treat you according to the anger and jealousy you showed in your hatred of them. I will make Myself known among them [i] when I judge you. 12 Then you will know that I, Yahweh, have heard all the blasphemies you uttered against the mountains of Israel, saying, ‘They are desolate. They have been given to us to devour!’ 13 You boasted against Me [j] with your mouth, and spoke many words against Me. I heard it Myself!

14 “This is what the Lord GOD says: While the whole world rejoices, I will make you a desolation. 15 Just as you rejoiced over the inheritance of the house of Israel because it became a desolation, so I will deal with you: you will become a desolation, Mount Seir, and so will all Edom in its entirety. Then they will know that I am Yahweh.

Restoration of Israel's Mountains

36 “Son of man, prophesy to the mountains of Israel and say: Mountains of Israel, hear the word of the LORD. [a] 2 This is what the Lord GOD says:
Because the enemy has said about you, ‘Good! [b] The ancient heights [c] have become our possession,’ 3 therefore, prophesy and say: This is what the Lord GOD says: Because they have made you desolate and have trampled you from every side, so that you became a possession for the rest of the nations and an object of people’s gossip and slander, [d] 4 therefore, mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord GOD. This is what the Lord GOD says to the mountains and hills, to the ravines and valleys, to the desolate ruins and abandoned cities, which have become plunder [e] and a mockery to the rest of the nations all around.

5 “This is what the Lord GOD says: Certainly in My burning zeal I speak against the rest of the nations and all of Edom, [f] who took [A] My land as their own possession with wholehearted rejoicing and utter contempt [g] so that its pastureland became [B] plunder. 6 Therefore, prophesy concerning the land of Israel and say to the mountains and hills, to the ravines and valleys: This is what the Lord GOD says: Look, I speak in My burning zeal [h] because you have endured the insults of the nations. 7 Therefore this is what the Lord GOD says: I swear [C] that the nations all around you will endure their own insults. [i]

8 “You, mountains of Israel, will produce your branches [j] and bear your fruit for My people Israel, since their arrival is near. 9 Look! I am on your side; I will turn toward you, [k] and you will be tilled and sown. 10 I will fill you with people, with the whole house of Israel in its entirety. [l] The cities will be inhabited and the ruins rebuilt. 11 I will fill you with people and animals, [m] and they will increase and be fruitful. I will make you inhabited as you once were and make you better off than you were before. Then you will know that I am •Yahweh . [n] 12 I will cause people, My people Israel, to walk on you; they will possess you, [o] and you will be their inheritance. You will no longer deprive them of their children.

13 “This is what the Lord GOD says: Because people are saying to you, ‘You devour men and deprive your nation of children,’ [p] 14 therefore, you will no longer devour men and deprive your nation of children.” [q] This is the declaration of the Lord GOD. 15 “I will no longer allow the insults of the nations to be heard against you, and you will not have to endure the reproach of the peoples anymore; [r] you will no longer cause your nation to stumble.” [s] This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.

Restoration of Israel's People 16 The word of the LORD came to me: 17 "Son of man, while the house of Israel lived in their land, they defiled it with their conduct and actions. t Their behavior before Me was like menstrual impurity. u 18 So I poured out My wrath v on them because of the blood they had shed on the land, and because they had defiled it with their idols. 19 I dispersed them among the nations, and they were scattered among the countries. w I judged them according to their conduct and actions. x 20 When they came to the nations where they went, they profaned My holy name, y because it was said about them, 'These are the people of Yahweh, yet they had to leave His land in exile.' 21 Then I had concern for My holy name, z which the house of Israel profaned among the nations where they went.

22 "Therefore, say to the house of Israel: This is what the Lord GOD says: It is not for your sake that I will act, [a] house of Israel, but for My holy name, [b] which you profaned among the nations where you went. 23 I will honor the holiness of My great name, which has been profaned among the nations — the name you have profaned among them. The nations will know that I am Yahweh" — the declaration of the Lord GOD — "when I demonstrate My holiness through you in their sight. [c]

24 "For I will take you from the nations and gather you from all the countries, and will bring you into your own land. [d] 25 I will also sprinkle clean water on you, and you will be •clean . [e] I will cleanse you from all your impurities and all your idols. [f] 26 I will give you a new heart and put a new spirit within you; [g] I will remove your heart of stone [D] and give you a heart of flesh. [h] 27 I will place My Spirit within you [i] and cause you to follow My statutes and carefully observe My ordinances. [j] 28 Then you will live in the land that I gave your fathers; [k] you will be My people, and I will be your God. [l] 29 I will save you from all your uncleanness. I will summon the grain and make it plentiful, and will not bring famine on you. [m] 30 I will also make the fruit of the trees and the produce of the field plentiful, so that you will no longer experience reproach among the nations on account of famine.

31 "Then you will remember your evil ways and your deeds that were not good, [n] and you will loathe yourselves for your iniquities and detestable practices. [o] 32 It is not for your sake that I will act" [p] — the declaration of the Lord GOD — "let this be known to you. Be ashamed and humiliated because of your ways, house of Israel!

33 "This is what the Lord GOD says: On the day I cleanse you from all your iniquities, I will cause the cities to be inhabited, and the ruins will be rebuilt. [q] 34 The desolate land will be cultivated instead of lying desolate in the sight of everyone who passes by. 35 Then they will say, ‘This land that was desolate has become like the garden of Eden. [r] The cities that were once ruined, desolate, and destroyed are now fortified and inhabited.’ 36 Then the nations that remain around you will know that I, Yahweh, have rebuilt what was destroyed and have replanted what was desolate. I, Yahweh, have spoken and I will do it. [s]

37 “This is what the Lord GOD says: I will respond to the house of Israel and do this for them: [t] I will multiply them in number like a flock. [E] 38 So the ruined cities will be filled with a flock of people, just as the flock of sheep for sacrifice [u] is filled [F] in Jerusalem during its appointed festivals. Then they will know that I am Yahweh.”

The Valley of Dry Bones

37 The hand of the LORD was on me, [a] and He brought me out by His Spirit [b] and set me down in the middle of the valley; it was full of bones. 2 He led me all around them. There were a great many of them on the surface of the valley, and they were very dry. 3 Then He said to me, "Son of man, can these bones live? "

I replied, "Lord GOD, only You know." [c]

4 He said to me, "Prophesy concerning these bones and say to them: Dry bones, hear the word of the LORD! 5 This is what the Lord GOD says to these bones: I will cause breath to enter you, and you will live. [d] 6 I will put tendons on you, make flesh grow on you, and cover you with skin. I will put breath in you so that you come to life. Then you will know that I am •Yahweh ." [e]

7 So I prophesied as I had been commanded. While I was prophesying, there was a noise, a rattling sound, and the bones came together, bone to bone. 8 As I looked, tendons appeared on them, flesh grew, and skin covered them, but there was no breath in them. 9 He said to me, "Prophesy to the breath, [A] prophesy, son of man. Say to it: This is what the Lord GOD says: Breath, come from the four winds and breathe into these slain so that they may live! " [f] 10 So I prophesied as He commanded me; the breath [B] entered them, [g] and they came to life and stood on their feet, a vast army.

11 Then He said to me, "Son of man, these bones are the whole house of Israel. [h] Look how they say, 'Our bones are dried up, [i] and our hope has perished; [j] we are cut off.' [k] 12 Therefore, prophesy and say to them: This is what the Lord GOD says: I am going to open your graves and bring you up from them, [l] My people, and lead you into the land of Israel. 13 You will know that I am Yahweh, My people, when I open your graves and bring you up from them. [m] 14 I will put My Spirit in you, [n] and you will live, and I will settle you in your own land. Then you will know that I am Yahweh. I have spoken, and I will do it." [o] This is the declaration of Yahweh.

The Reunification of Israel 15 The word of the LORD came to me: 16 "Son of man, take a single stick and write on it: [p] Belonging to Judah and the Israelites associated with him. Then take another stick and write on it: Belonging to Joseph — the stick of Ephraim — and all the house of Israel associated with him. [q] 17 Then join them together into a single stick so that they become one in your hand. [r] 18 When your people ask you, 'Won't you explain to us what you mean by these things? ' [s] — 19 tell them: This is what the Lord GOD says: I am going to take the stick of Joseph, which is in the hand of Ephraim, and the tribes of Israel associated with him, and put them together with the stick of Judah. I will make them into a single stick so that they become one in My hand.

20 “When the sticks you have written on are in your hand and in full view of the people, [t] 21 tell them: This is what the Lord GOD says: I am going to take the Israelites out of the nations where they have gone. [u] I will gather them from all around and bring them into their own land. 22 I will make them one nation in the land, [v] on the mountains of Israel, and one king will rule over all of them. [w]
They will no longer be two nations and will no longer be divided into two kingdoms. 23 They will not defile themselves anymore with their idols, [x] their detestable things, and all their transgressions. [y] I will save them from all their apostasies by which [z] they sinned, [a] and I will cleanse them. Then they will be My people, and I will be their God. [b] 24 My servant David will be king over them, and there will be one shepherd for all of them. [c] They will follow My ordinances, and keep My statutes and obey them. [d]

25 “They will live in the land that I gave to My servant Jacob, [e] where your fathers lived. They will live in it forever with their children and grandchildren, and My servant David will be their prince forever. [f] 26 I will make a covenant of peace with them; [g] it will be an everlasting covenant [h] with them. I will establish and multiply them and will set My sanctuary among them forever. 27 My dwelling place will be with them; [i] I will be their God, and they will be My people. [j] 28 When My sanctuary is among them forever, the nations will know that I, Yahweh, sanctify Israel.” [k]

The Defeat of Gog

38 The word of the LORD came to me: 2 “Son of man, turn your face toward Gog, of the land of Magog, [a] the chief prince of [A] Meshech and Tubal. [b] Prophesy against him 3 and say: This is what the Lord GOD says: Look, I am against you, Gog, chief prince of Meshech and Tubal. 4 I will turn you around, put hooks in your jaws, [c] and bring you out with all your army, including horses and riders, [d] who are all splendidly dressed, a huge company armed with shields and bucklers, all of them brandishing swords. 5 Persia, [e] •Cush , and Put are with them, all of them with shields and helmets; 6 Gomer [f] with all its troops; and Beth-togarmah [g] from the remotest parts of the north along with all its troops — many peoples are with you.

7 “Be prepared and get yourself ready, you and all your company who have been mobilized around you; you will be their guard. 8 After a long time you will be summoned. In the last years you will enter a land that has been restored from war [B] and regathered from many peoples to the mountains of Israel, which had long been a ruin. [h] They were brought out from the peoples, and all of them now live securely. 9 You, all of your troops, and many peoples with you will advance, coming like a thunderstorm; you will be like a cloud covering the land.

10 “This is what the Lord GOD says: On that day, thoughts will arise in your mind, and you will devise an evil plan. 11 You will say, ‘I will go up against a land of open villages; I will come against a tranquil people who are living securely, [i] all of them living without walls and without bars or gates [j] — 12 in order to seize spoil and carry off plunder, [k] to turn your hand against ruins now inhabited and against a people gathered from the nations, who have been acquiring cattle and possessions and who live at the center of the world.’ 13 Sheba [l] and Dedan [m] and the merchants of Tarshish [n] with all its rulers [C] will ask you, ‘Have you come to seize spoil? Have you assembled your hordes to carry off plunder, to make off with silver and gold, to take cattle and possessions, to seize great spoil? ’

14 “Therefore prophesy, son of man, and say to Gog: This is what the Lord GOD says: On that day when My people Israel are dwelling securely, [o] will you not know this 15 and come from your place in the remotest parts of the north [p]
— you and many peoples with you, who are all riding horses — a mighty horde, a huge army? 16 You will advance against My people Israel like a cloud covering the land. It will happen in the last days, Gog, that I will bring you against My land so that the nations may know Me, when I show Myself holy through you in their sight. [q]

17 “This is what the Lord God says: Are you the one I spoke about in former times through My servants, the prophets of Israel, who for years prophesied in those times that I would bring you against them? 18 Now on that day, the day when Gog comes against the land of Israel” — this is the declaration of the Lord God — “My wrath will flare up. D 19 I swear in My zeal and fiery rage: r On that day there will be a great earthquake in the land of Israel. 20 The fish of the sea, the birds of the sky, the animals of the field, every creature that crawls on the ground, and every human being on the face of the earth will tremble before Me. The mountains will be thrown down, the cliffs will collapse, and every wall will fall to the ground. 21 I will call for a sword against him on all My mountains” — the declaration of the Lord God — “and every man’s sword will be against his brother. s 22 I will execute judgment on him with plague and bloodshed. I will pour out torrential rain, hailstones, fire, and brimstone on him, as well as his troops and the many peoples who are with him. t 23 I will display
My greatness and holiness, and will reveal Myself in the sight of many nations.
u Then they will know that I am •Yahweh .

The Disposal of Gog

39 “As for you, son of man, prophesy against Gog and say: This is what the Lord God says: Look, I am against you, Gog, chief prince of [A] Meshech and Tubal. [a] 2 I will turn you around, drive you on, [b] and lead you up from the remotest parts of the north. I will bring you against the mountains of Israel.
3 Then I will knock your bow from your left hand and make your arrows drop from your right hand. 4 You, all your troops, and the peoples who are with you will fall on the mountains of Israel. I will give you as food to every kind of predatory bird and to the wild animals. 5 You will fall on the open field, [c] for I have spoken.” This is the declaration of the Lord God.

6 “I will send fire against Magog [d] and those who live securely on the coasts and islands. Then they will know that I am •Yahweh . 7 So I will make My holy name known among My people Israel and will no longer allow it to be profaned.
Then the nations will know that I am Yahweh, the Holy One in Israel. [e] 8 Yes, it is coming, and it will happen.” This is the declaration of the Lord God. “This is the day I have spoken about.

9 “Then the inhabitants of Israel’s cities will go out, kindle fires, and burn the weapons — the bucklers and shields, the bows and arrows, the clubs and spears.
For seven years they will use them to make fires. 10 They will not gather wood from the countryside or cut it down from the forests, for they will use the weapons to make fires. They will take the loot from those who looted them and plunder those who plundered them.” [f] This is the declaration of the Lord God.

11 “Now on that day I will give Gog a burial place there in Israel — the Valley of the Travelers [B] east of the Sea. It will block those who travel through, for Gog and all his hordes will be buried there. So it will be called the Valley of Hamon-gog. [g] 12 The house of Israel will spend seven months burying them in order to cleanse the land. [h] 13 All the people of the land will bury them and their fame will spread [i] on the day I display My glory.” [j] This is the declaration of the Lord God.

14 “They will appoint men on a full-time basis to pass through the land and bury the invaders [C] who remain on the surface of the ground, in order to cleanse it. They will make their search at the end of the seven months. 15 When they pass through the land and one of them sees a human bone, he will set up a marker next to it until the buriers have buried it in the Valley of Hamon-gog. 16 There will even be a city named Hamonah [k] there. So they will cleanse the land.

17 “Son of man, this is what the Lord God says: Tell every kind of bird and all the wild animals: Assemble and come! Gather from all around to My sacrificial feast that I am slaughtering for you, a great feast on the mountains of Israel; [l]

you will eat flesh and drink blood. 18 You will eat the flesh of mighty men and drink the blood of the earth's princes: rams, lambs, male goats, and all the fattened bulls of Bashan. 19 You will eat fat until you are satisfied [m] and drink blood until you are drunk, at My sacrificial feast that I have prepared for you.
20 At My table you will eat your fill of horses and riders, of mighty men and all the warriors." This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.

Israel's Restoration to God 21 "I will display My glory among the nations, [n] and all the nations will see the judgment I have executed and the hand I have laid on them. 22 From that day forward the house of Israel will know that I am Yahweh their God. 23 And the nations will know that the house of Israel went into exile on account of their iniquity, because they dealt unfaithfully with Me. [o] Therefore, I hid My face from them and handed them over to their enemies, so that they all fell by the sword. 24 I dealt with them according to their uncleanness and transgressions, and I hid My face from them.

25 "So this is what the Lord GOD says: Now I will restore the fortunes of Jacob [p] and have compassion on the whole house of Israel, [q] and I will be jealous for My holy name. 26 They will feel remorse for [r, D] their disgrace [s] and all the unfaithfulness they committed against Me, when they live securely in their land with no one to frighten them. 27 When I bring them back from the peoples and gather them from the countries of their enemies, I will demonstrate My holiness through them in the sight of many nations. [t] 28 They will know that I am Yahweh their God when I regather them to their own land after having exiled them among the nations. I will leave none of them behind. [E] 29 I will no longer hide My face from them, for I will pour out My Spirit on the house of Israel." [u] This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.

The New Temple

40 In the twenty-fifth year of our exile, at the beginning of the year, on the tenth day of the month in the fourteenth year after Jerusalem had been captured, [a] on that very day the LORD's hand was on me, [b] and He brought me there. 2 In visions of God [c] He took me to the land of Israel and set me down on a very high mountain. [d] On its southern slope was a structure resembling a city. 3
He brought me there, and I saw a man whose appearance was like bronze, [e] with a linen cord and a measuring rod in his hand. [f] He was standing by the gate.
4 He spoke to me: "Son of man, look with your eyes, listen with your ears, [g] and pay attention to everything I am going to show you, for you have been brought here so that I might show it to you. Report everything you see to the house of Israel." [h]

The Wall and Outer Gates

5 Now there was a wall surrounding the outside of the temple. [i] The measuring rod in the man's hand was six units of 21 inches; [j] each unit was the standard length plus three inches. [A] He measured the thickness of the wall structure; it was about 10 feet, [B] and its height was the same. [C] 6 Then he came to the gate that faced east and climbed its steps. [k] He measured the threshold of the gate; it was 10 feet deep — the first threshold was 10 feet deep. 7 Each recess was about 10 feet [D] long and 10 feet [E] deep, and there was a space of 8 3/4 feet [F] between the recesses. The inner threshold of the gate on the temple side next to the gate's portico was about 10 feet. [G] 8 Next he measured the portico of the gate; 9 it [l] was 14 feet, [H] and its pilasters were 3 1/2 feet. [I] The portico of the gate was on the temple side.

10 There were three recesses on each side of the east gate, each with the same measurements, and the pilasters on either side also had the same measurements.
11 Then he measured the width of the gate's entrance; it was 17 1/2 feet, [J] while the width [K] of the gateway was 22 3/4 feet. [L] 12 There was a barrier of 21 inches [M] in front of the recesses on both sides, and the recesses on each side were 10 1/2 feet [N] square. 13 Then he measured the gateway from the roof of one recess to the roof of the opposite one; the distance was 43 3/4 feet. [O] The openings of the recesses faced each other. 14 Next, he measured the pilasters — 105 feet. [P] The gate extended around to the pilaster of the court. [Q] 15 The distance from the front of the gate at the entrance to the front of the gate's portico on the inside was 87 1/2 feet. [R] 16 The recesses and their pilasters had beveled windows all around the inside of the gateway. [m] The porticoes also had windows all around on the inside. Each pilaster was decorated with palm trees. [n]

17 Then he brought me into the outer court, [o] and there were chambers and a paved surface laid out all around the court. [p] Thirty chambers faced the pavement, 18 which flanked the gates and corresponded to the length of the gates; this was the lower pavement. 19 Then he measured the distance from the front of the lower gate to the exterior front of the inner court; it was 175 feet. [S]
This was the east; next the north is described.

20 He measured the gate of the outer court facing north, both its length and width. 21 Its three recesses on each side, its pilasters, and its portico had the same measurements as the first gate: 87 1/2 feet [T] long and 43 3/4 feet [U] wide. 22 Its windows, portico, and palm trees had the same measurements as those of the gate that faced east. Seven steps led up to the gate, and its portico was ahead of them. 23 The inner court had a gate facing the north gate, like the one on the east. He measured the distance from gate to gate; it was 175 feet. V

24 He brought me to the south side, and there was also a gate on the south. He measured its pilasters and portico; they had the same measurements as the others. 25 Both the gate and its portico had windows all around, like the other windows. It was 87 1/2 feet W long and 43 3/4 feet X wide. 26 Its stairway had seven steps, and its portico was ahead of them. It had palm trees on its pilasters, one on each side. 27 The inner court had a gate on the south. He measured from gate to gate on the south; it was 175 feet. Y

The Inner Gates

28 Then he brought me to the inner court through the south gate. When he measured the south gate, it had the same measurements as the others. 29 Its recesses, pilasters, and portico had the same measurements as the others. Both it and its portico had windows all around. It was 87 1/2 feet [Z] long and 43 3/4 feet [A] wide. 30 (There were porticoes all around, 43 3/4 feet long and 8 3/4 feet [B] wide. [q]) 31 Its portico faced the outer court, and its pilasters were decorated with palm trees. Its stairway had eight steps.

32 Then he brought me to the inner court on the east side. When he measured the gate, it had the same measurements as the others. 33 Its recesses, pilasters, and portico had the same measurements as the others. Both it and its portico had windows all around. It was 87 1/2 feet [C] long and 43 3/4 feet [D] wide. 34 Its portico faced the outer court, and its pilasters were decorated with palm trees on each side. Its stairway had eight steps.

35 Then he brought me to the north gate. [r] When he measured it, it had the same measurements as the others, 36 as did its recesses, pilasters, and portico. It also had windows all around. It was 87 1/2 feet [E] long and 43 3/4 feet [F] wide.
37 Its portico [s] faced the outer court, and its pilasters were decorated with palm trees on each side. Its stairway had eight steps.

Rooms for Preparing Sacrifices

38 There was a chamber whose door opened into the portico of the gate. [t] The •burnt offering was to be washed there. [u] 39 Inside the portico of the gate there were two tables on each side, on which to slaughter the burnt offering, •sin offering, [v] and •restitution offering. [w] 40 Outside, as one approaches the entrance of the north gate, there were two tables on one side and two more tables on the other side of the gate's portico. 41 So there were four tables inside the gate and four outside, eight tables in all on which the slaughtering was to be done. 42 There were also four tables of cut stone for the burnt offering, [x] each 31 1/2 inches [G] long, 31 1/2 inches wide, and 21 inches [H] high. The utensils used to slaughter the burnt offerings and other sacrifices were placed on them. 43 There were three-inch [I] hooks [J] fastened all around the inside of the room, and the flesh of the offering was to be laid on the tables.

Rooms for Singers and Priests

44 Outside the inner gate, within the inner court, there were chambers for the singers: [y, z] one [a] beside the north gate, facing south, and another beside the south [b] gate, facing north. 45 Then the man said to me: “This chamber that faces south is for the priests who keep charge of the temple. [c] 46 The chamber that faces north is for the priests who keep charge of the altar. These are the sons of Zadok, [d] the ones from the sons of Levi who may approach the LORD to serve Him.” [e] 47 Next he measured the court. It was square, 175 feet [K] long and 175 feet wide. The altar [f] was in front of the temple.

48 Then he brought me to the portico of the temple and measured the pilasters of the portico; they were 8 3/4 feet [L] thick on each side. The width of the gateway was 24 1/2 feet, [M] and the side walls of the gate were [g] 5 1/4 feet [N] wide on each side. 49 The portico was 35 feet [O] across and 21 [h] feet [P] deep, and 10 steps led [i] up to it. [j] There were pillars by the pilasters, one on each side. [k]

Inside the Temple

41 Next he brought me into the great hall and measured the pilasters; [a] on each side the width of the pilaster was 10 1/2 feet. [b, A] 2 The width of the entrance was 17 1/2 feet, [B] and the side walls of the entrance were 8 3/4 feet [C] wide on each side. He also measured the length of the great hall, 70 feet, [D] and the width, 35 feet. [E, c] 3 He went inside the next room and measured the pilasters at the entrance; [d] they were 3 1/2 feet [F] wide. The entrance was 10 1/2 feet [G] wide, and the width of the entrance's side walls on each side [e] was 12 1/4 feet. [H] 4 He then measured the length of the room adjacent to the great hall, 35 feet, [I] and the width, 35 feet. [f] And he said to me, "This is the most holy place."
[g]

Outside the Temple

5 Then he measured the wall of the temple; it was 10 1/2 feet [J] thick. The width of the side rooms all around the temple was seven feet. [K, h] 6 The side rooms were arranged one above another in three stories of 30 rooms each. [L] There were ledges on the wall of the temple all around to serve as supports for the side rooms, so that the supports would not be in the temple wall itself. [i] 7 The side rooms surrounding the temple widened at each successive story, for the structure surrounding the temple went up by stages. This was the reason for the temple's broadness as it rose. And so, one would go up from the lowest story to the highest by means of the middle one. [M, j]

8 I saw that the temple had a raised platform surrounding it; this foundation for the side rooms was 10 1/2 feet high. [N, k] 9 The thickness of the outer wall of the side rooms was 8 3/4 feet. [O] The free space between the side rooms of the temple 10 and the outer chambers was 35 feet [P] wide all around the temple. [l] 11 The side rooms opened into the free space, one entrance toward the north and another to the south. The area of free space was 8 3/4 feet [Q] wide all around.

12 Now the building that faced the temple yard toward the west was 122 1/2 feet [R] wide. The wall of the building was 8 3/4 feet [S] thick on all sides, and the building's length was 157 1/2 feet. [T]

13 Then the man measured the temple; it was 175 feet [U] long. [m] In addition, the temple yard and the building, including its walls, were 175 feet long. 14 The width of the front of the temple along with the temple yard to the east was 175 feet. 15 Next he measured the length of the building facing the temple yard to the west, with its galleries [V] on each side; [n] it was 175 feet.

Interior Wooden Structures The interior of the great hall and the porticoes of the court — 16 the thresholds, the beveled windows, [o] and the balconies all around with their three levels opposite the threshold — were overlaid with wood on all sides. [p] They were paneled from the ground to the windows (but the windows were covered), 17 reaching to the top of the entrance, and as far as the inner temple and on the outside. On every wall all around, on the inside and outside, was a pattern 18 carved with •cherubim and palm trees. [q] There was a palm tree between each pair of cherubim. [r] Each cherub had two faces: 19 a human face turned toward the palm tree on one side, [s] and a lion's face turned toward it on the other. They were carved throughout the temple on all sides. 20 Cherubim and palm trees were carved from the ground to the top of the entrance and on the wall of the great hall.

21 The doorposts of the great hall were square, [t] and the front of the sanctuary had the same appearance. 22 The altar was [W] made of wood, 5 1/4 feet [X] high and 3 1/2 feet [Y] long. [u] It had corners, and its length [v] and sides were of wood. [w]
The man told me, “This is the table that stands before the LORD.” [x]

23 The great hall and the sanctuary each had a double door, [y] 24 and each of the doors had two swinging panels. [z] There were two panels for one door and two for the other. 25 Cherubim and palm trees were carved on the doors of the great hall like those carved on the walls. There was a wooden canopy [Z, a] outside, in front of the portico. 26 There were beveled windows and palm trees on both sides, [b] on the side walls of the portico, the side rooms of the temple, and the canopies. [A]

The Priests' Chambers

42 Then the man led me out by way of the north gate into the outer court. [a]
He brought me to the group of chambers opposite the temple yard and opposite the building [b] to the north. 2 Along the length of the chambers, which was 175 feet, [A, c] there was an entrance on the north; the width was 87 1/2 feet.
[B] 3 Opposite the 35 foot space [C] belonging to the inner court and opposite the paved surface [d] belonging to the outer court, the structure rose gallery by gallery [e] in three tiers. 4 In front of the chambers was a walkway toward the inside, [f] 17 1/2 feet [D] wide and 175 feet [E] long, [g] and their entrances were on the north. 5 The upper chambers were narrower because the galleries took away more space from them than from the lower and middle stories of the building.
6 For they were arranged in three stories and had no pillars like the pillars of the courts; [h] therefore the upper chambers were set back from the ground more than the lower and middle stories. 7 A wall on the outside ran in front of the chambers, parallel to them, toward the outer court; it was 87 1/2 feet [F] long. 8 For the chambers on the outer court were 87 1/2 feet long, while those facing the great hall were 175 feet [G] long. [i] 9 At the base of these chambers there was an entryway on the east side as one enters them from the outer court. [j]

10 In the thickness of the wall of the court toward the south, [k] there were chambers facing the temple yard [l] and the western building, 11 with a passageway in front of them, just like the chambers that faced north. [m] Their length and width, as well as all their exits, measurements, and entrances, were identical. 12 The entrance at the beginning of the passageway, the way in front of the corresponding [H] wall as one enters on the east side, was similar to the entrances of the chambers that were on the south side.

13 Then the man said to me, “The northern and southern chambers that face the temple yard are the holy chambers where the priests who approach the LORD will eat [n] the most holy offerings. [o] There they will deposit the most holy offerings — the •grain offerings, •sin offerings, and •restitution offerings — for the place is holy. [p] 14 Once the priests have entered, they must not go out from the holy area to the outer court until they have removed the clothes they minister in, for these are holy. [q] They are to put on other clothes before they approach the public area.” [r]

Outside Dimensions of the Temple Complex 15 When he finished measuring inside the temple complex, he led me out by way of the gate that faced east and measured all around the complex. [s]

16 He measured the east side with a measuring rod;
it was 875 feet [I] by the measuring rod. [J] 17 He [t] measured the north side;
it was 875 feet [K] by the measuring rod. [L] 18 He [u] measured the south side;
it was 875 feet [M] by the measuring rod. [N] 19 Then he turned to the west side and measured 875 feet [O] by the measuring rod. [P]

20 He measured the temple complex on all four sides. It had a wall all around it, [v] 875 feet long and 875 feet [w] wide, to separate the holy from the common. [x]

Return of the LORD's Glory

43 He led me to the gate, [a] the one that faces east, [2] and I saw the glory of the God of Israel [b] coming from the east. [c] His voice sounded like the roar of mighty waters, [d] and the earth shone with His glory. [e] 3 The vision I saw [f] was like the one I had seen when He [g] came to destroy the city, [h] and like the ones I had seen by the Chebar Canal. [i] I fell facedown. [j] 4 The glory of the LORD entered the temple by way of the gate that faced east. [k] 5 Then the Spirit lifted me up [l] and brought me to the inner court, and the glory of the LORD filled the temple. [m]

6 While the man was standing beside me, I heard someone speaking to me from the temple. [n] 7 He said to me: “Son of man, this is the place of My throne and the place for the soles of My feet, [o] where I will dwell among the Israelites forever. [p] The house of Israel and their kings will no longer defile My holy name by their religious prostitution and by the corpses [A, q] of their kings at their •high places. [r, s] 8 Whenever they placed their threshold next to My threshold and their doorposts beside My doorposts, with only a wall between Me and them, they were defiling My holy name by the detestable acts they committed. [t] So I destroyed them in My anger. 9 Now let them remove their prostitution and the corpses [B, u] of their kings far from Me, and I will dwell among them forever. [v]

10 “As for you, son of man, describe the temple to the house of Israel, [w] so that they may be ashamed of their iniquities. [x] Let them measure its pattern, [y] 11 and they will be ashamed of all that they have done. Reveal [z] the design of the temple to them — its layout with its exits and entrances [a] — its complete design along with all its statutes, design specifications, and laws. Write it down in their sight [b] so that they may observe its complete design and all its statutes and may carry them out. [c] 12 This is the law of the temple: all its surrounding territory on top of the mountain [d] will be especially holy. Yes, this is the law of the temple.

The Altar

13 “These are the measurements of the altar [e] in units of length (each unit being the standard length plus three inches [f]): [C] the gutter is 21 inches [D] deep and 21 inches wide, with a rim of nine inches [E] around its edge. This is the base [g] of the altar. 14 The distance from the gutter on the ground to the lower ledge is 3 1/2 feet, [F] and the width of the ledge is 21 inches. [G] There are seven feet [H] from the small ledge to the large ledge, whose width is also 21 inches. 15 The altar hearth [I] is seven feet [J] high, and four horns [h] project upward from the hearth. 16 The hearth is square, 21 feet [K] long by 21 feet wide. [i] 17 The ledge is 24 1/2 feet [L] long by 24 1/2 feet wide, with four equal sides. [j] The rim all around it is 10 1/2 inches, [M] and its gutter is 21 inches [N] all around it. The altar’s steps face east.” [k]

18 Then He said to me: “Son of man, [l] this is what the Lord God says: These are the statutes for the altar on the day it is constructed, so that •burnt offerings [m] may be sacrificed on it and blood may be sprinkled on it: [n] 19 You are to give a bull from the herd [o] as a •sin offering [p] to the Levitical priests who are from the offspring of Zadok, [q] who approach Me in order to serve Me.” [r] This is the declaration of the Lord God. 20 “You must take some of its blood and apply it to the four horns [s] of the altar, the four corners of the ledge, and all around the rim. In this way you will purify the altar and make •atonement for it. [t] 21 Then you must take away the bull for the sin offering, and it must be burned outside the sanctuary in the place appointed for the temple. [u]

22 “On the second day you are to present an unblemished male goat as a sin offering. They will purify the altar just as they did with the bull. 23 When you have finished the purification, you are to present a young, unblemished bull [v] and an unblemished ram from the flock. [w] 24 You must present them before the Lord; the priests will throw salt on them and sacrifice them as a burnt offering to the Lord. [x] 25 You will offer a goat for a sin offering each day for seven days. [y] A young bull and a ram from the flock, both unblemished, must also be offered. 26 For seven days the priests are to make atonement for the altar and cleanse it. In this way they will consecrate it [O] 27 and complete the days of purification. Then on the eighth day [z] and afterward, the priests will offer your burnt offerings and •fellowship offerings on the altar, and I will accept you.” [a] This is the declaration of the Lord God.

The Prince's Privilege

44 The man then brought me back toward the sanctuary's outer gate that faced east, and it was closed. 2 The LORD said to me: "This gate will remain closed. It will not be opened, and no one will enter through it, because the LORD, the God of Israel, has entered through it. [a] Therefore it will remain closed. 3 The prince himself will sit in the gateway to eat a meal before the LORD. [b] He must enter by way of the portico [c] of the gate and go out the same way."

4 Then the man brought me by way of the north gate to the front of the temple.
I looked, and the glory of the LORD filled His temple. [d] And I fell facedown. [e] 5
The LORD said to me: "Son of man, pay attention; [f] look with your eyes and listen with your ears to everything I tell you about all the statutes and laws of the LORD's temple. [g] Take careful note of the entrance of the temple along with all the exits of the sanctuary.

The Levites' Duties and Privileges 6 "Say to the rebellious people, [h] the house of Israel: This is what the Lord GOD says: I have had enough [i] of all your detestable practices, house of Israel. 7 When you brought in foreigners, [j] uncircumcised in both heart and flesh, [k] to occupy My sanctuary, you defiled My temple while you offered My food — the fat and the blood. You [l] broke My covenant by all your detestable practices. 8 You have not kept charge of My holy things [m] but have appointed others to keep charge of My sanctuary for you.

9 "This is what the Lord GOD says: No foreigner, uncircumcised in heart and flesh, may enter My sanctuary, not even a foreigner who is among the Israelites.
10 Surely the Levites who wandered away from Me when Israel went astray, and who strayed from Me after their idols, [n] will bear the consequences of their sin.
[o] 11 Yet they will occupy My sanctuary, serving as guards at the temple gates [p] and ministering at the temple. They will slaughter the •burnt offerings [q] and other sacrifices for the people and will stand before them to serve them. [r] 12 Because they ministered to the house of Israel before their idols and became a sinful stumbling block to them, therefore I swore an oath [A] against them" [s] — this is the declaration of the Lord GOD — "that they would bear the consequences of their sin. 13 They must not approach Me to serve Me as priests [t] or come near any of My holy things or the most holy things. They will bear their disgrace and the consequences of the detestable acts they committed. 14 Yet I will make them responsible for the duties of the temple [u] — for all its work and everything done in it.

The Priests' Duties and Privileges 15 "But the Levitical priests descended from

Zadok, [v] who kept charge of My sanctuary when the Israelites went astray from Me, will approach Me to serve Me. They will stand before Me to offer Me fat and blood." This is the declaration of the Lord GOD. 16 "They are the ones who may enter My sanctuary [w] and draw near to My table to serve Me. [x] They will keep My mandate. 17 When they enter the gates of the inner court they must wear linen garments; [y] they must not have on them anything made of wool when they minister at the gates of the inner court and within it. 18 They must wear linen turbans on their heads and linen undergarments around their waists. [z] They are not to put on anything that makes them sweat. 19 Before they go out to the outer court, [a] to the people, they must take off the clothes they have been ministering in, leave them in the holy chambers, and dress in other clothes [b] so that they do not transmit holiness to the people through their clothes. [c]

20 "They may not shave their heads [d] or let their hair grow long, [e] but must carefully trim their hair. 21 No priest may drink wine before he enters the inner court. [f] 22 He is not to marry a widow or a divorced woman, but must marry a virgin from the offspring of the house of Israel, [g] or a widow who is the widow of a priest. 23 They must teach My people the difference between the holy and the common, and explain to them the difference between the •clean and the •unclean . [h]

24 "In a dispute, they will officiate as judges and decide the case according to My ordinances. [i] They must observe My laws and statutes regarding all My appointed festivals, and keep My Sabbaths holy. [j] 25 A priest may not come near a dead person so that he becomes defiled. [k] However, he may defile himself for a father, a mother, a son, a daughter, a brother, or an unmarried sister. 26 After he is cleansed, he is to count off seven days for himself. [l] 27 On the day he goes into the sanctuary, into the inner court [m] to minister in the sanctuary, he must present his •sin offering." This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.

28 "This will be their inheritance: I am their inheritance. [n] You are to give them no possession in Israel: I am their possession. 29 They will eat the •grain offering, the sin offering, [o] and the •restitution offering. Everything in Israel that is permanently dedicated to the LORD will belong to them. [p] 30 The best of all the •firstfruits of every kind and contribution of every kind from all your gifts will belong to the priests. [q] You are to give your first batch of dough to the priest [r] so that a blessing may rest on your homes. [s] 31 The priests may not eat any bird or animal that died naturally or was mauled by wild beasts. [t]

The Sacred Portion of the Land

45 “When you divide the land by lot as an inheritance, [a] you must set aside a donation to the LORD, a holy portion of the land, [b] 8 1/3 miles [A] long and 6 2/3 miles [c] wide. This entire tract of land will be holy. 2 In this area there will be a square section [B] for the sanctuary, 875 by 875 feet, [C, d] with 87 1/2 feet [D] of open space all around it. 3 From this holy portion, [E] you will measure off an area 8 1/3 miles [F] long and 3 1/3 miles [G] wide, in which the sanctuary, the most holy place, [e] will stand. [H] 4 It will be a holy area of the land to be used by the priests who minister in the sanctuary, who draw near to serve the LORD. [f] It will be a place for their houses, as well as a holy area for the sanctuary. 5 There will be another area 8 1/3 miles [I] long and 3 1/3 miles [J] wide for the Levites who minister in the temple; [g] it will be their possession for towns to live in. [h]

6 “As the property of the city, you must set aside an area 1 2/3 of a mile [K] wide and 8 1/3 miles [L] long, adjacent to the holy donation of land. [i] It will be for the whole house of Israel. 7 And the prince will have the area on each side of the holy donation of land and the city’s property, adjacent to the holy donation and the city’s property, stretching to the west on the west side and to the east on the east side. [j] Its length will correspond to one of the tribal portions from the western boundary to the eastern boundary. 8 This will be his land as a possession in Israel. My princes will no longer oppress My people [k] but give the rest of the land to the house of Israel according to their tribes.

9 “This is what the Lord GOD says: You have gone too far, [M, l] princes of Israel! Put away violence and oppression and do what is just and right. [m] Put an end to your evictions of My people.” This is the declaration of the Lord GOD. 10 “You must have honest scales, an honest dry measure, [N] and an honest liquid measure. [O, n] 11 The dry measure [P] and the liquid measure [Q] will be uniform, with the liquid measure containing 5 1/2 gallons [R] and the dry measure holding half a bushel. [S] Their measurement will be a tenth of the standard larger capacity measure. [T] 12 The •shekel will weigh 20 gerahs. [o] Your mina will equal 60 shekels.

The People’s Contribution to the Sacrifices 13 “This is the contribution you are to offer: Three quarts [U] from five bushels [V] of wheat and [p] three quarts from five bushels of barley. 14 The quota of oil in liquid measures [W] will be one percent of every [X] cor. The cor equals 10 liquid measures or one standard larger capacity measure, [Y] since 10 liquid measures equal one standard larger capacity measure. 15 And the quota from the flock is one animal out of every 200

from the well-watered pastures of Israel. These are for the •grain offerings, •burnt offerings, and •fellowship offerings, to make •atonement for the people.” [q] This is the declaration of the Lord GOD. [16] “All the people of the land must take part in this contribution for the prince in Israel. [17] Then the burnt offerings, grain offerings, and •drink offerings for the festivals, New Moons, and Sabbaths — for all the appointed times of the house of Israel — will be the prince’s responsibility. He will provide the •sin offerings, grain offerings, burnt offerings, and fellowship offerings to make atonement on behalf of the house of Israel.

[18] “This is what the Lord GOD says: In the first month, on the first day of the month, you are to take a young, unblemished bull and purify the sanctuary. [19] The priest must take some of the blood from the sin offering and apply it to the temple doorposts, the four corners of the altar’s ledge, and the doorposts of the gate to the inner court. [r] [20] You must do the same thing on the seventh day of the month for everyone who sins unintentionally or through ignorance. [s] In this way you will make atonement for the temple.

[21] “In the first month, on the fourteenth day of the month, you are to celebrate the •Passover , a festival of seven days during which unleavened bread will be eaten. [t] [22] On that day the prince will provide a bull as a sin offering on behalf of himself and all the people of the land. [23] During the seven days of the festival, he will provide seven bulls and seven rams without blemish as a burnt offering to the LORD on each of the seven days, along with a male goat each day for a sin offering. [24] He will also provide a grain offering of half a bushel [Z] per bull and half a bushel per ram, along with a gallon [A] of oil for every half bushel. [25] At the festival that begins on the fifteenth day of the seventh month, [u, v] he will provide the same things for seven days — the same sin offerings, burnt offerings, grain offerings, and oil.

Sacrifices at Appointed Times

46 “This is what the Lord God says: The gate of the inner court that faces east must be closed during the six days of work, but it will be opened on the Sabbath day [a] and opened on the day of the New Moon. [2] The prince should enter from the outside by way of the gate’s portico and stand at the doorpost of the gate while the priests sacrifice his •burnt offerings and •fellowship offerings.
He will bow in worship at the threshold of the gate and then depart, but the gate must not be closed until evening. [3] The people of the land will also bow in worship before the Lord at the entrance of that gate on the Sabbaths and New Moons.

[4] “The burnt offering that the prince presents to the Lord [b] on the Sabbath day is to be six unblemished lambs [c] and an unblemished ram. [5] The •grain offering will be half a bushel [A] with the ram, [d] and the grain offering with the lambs will be whatever he wants to give, as well as a gallon [B] of oil for every half bushel. [6] On the day of the New Moon, the burnt offering is to be a young, unblemished bull, as well as six lambs and a ram without blemish. [7] He will provide a grain offering of half a bushel [C] with the bull, half a bushel with the ram, and whatever he can afford with the lambs, together with a gallon [D] of oil for every half bushel. [8] When the prince enters, [e] he must go in by way of the gate’s portico and go out the same way.

[9] “When the people of the land come before the Lord at the appointed times, [E,] [f] whoever enters by way of the north gate to worship must go out by way of the south gate, and whoever enters by way of the south gate must go out by way of the north gate. No one must return through the gate by which he entered, but must go out by the opposite gate. [10] When the people enter, the prince will enter with them, and when they leave, he will leave. [11] At the festivals and appointed times, the grain offering will be half a bushel [F] with the bull, half a bushel with the ram, and whatever he wants to give with the lambs, along with a gallon [G] of oil for every half bushel.

[12] “When the prince makes a freewill offering, whether a burnt offering or a fellowship offering as a freewill offering to the Lord, [g] the gate that faces east must be opened for him. He is to offer his burnt offering or fellowship offering just as he does on the Sabbath day. Then he will go out, and the gate must be closed after he leaves.

[13] “You must offer an unblemished year-old male lamb as a daily burnt offering to the Lord; you will offer it every morning. [h] [14] You must also prepare a grain offering every morning along with it: three quarts, [H] with one-third of a gallon [I] of oil to moisten the fine flour — a grain offering to the LORD. This is a permanent statute to be observed regularly. [15] They will offer the lamb, the grain offering, and the oil every morning as a regular burnt offering.

Transfer of Royal Lands

16 “This is what the Lord GOD says: If the prince gives a gift to each of his sons as their inheritance, it will belong to his sons. It will become their property by inheritance. 17 But if he gives a gift from his inheritance to one of his servants, it will belong to that servant until the year of freedom, [i] when it will revert to the prince. His inheritance belongs only to his sons; it is theirs. 18 The prince must not take any of the people’s inheritance, evicting them from their property. [j] He is to provide an inheritance for his sons from his own property, so that none of My people will be displaced from his own property.”

The Temple Kitchens

19 Then he brought me through the entrance [k] that was at the side of the gate, into the priests' holy chambers, which faced north. I saw a place there at the far western end. 20 He said to me, "This is the place where the priests will boil the •restitution offering and the •sin offering, [l] and where they will bake the grain offering, [m] so that they do not bring them into the outer court and transmit holiness to the people." 21 Next he brought me into the outer court and led me past its four corners. There was a separate court in each of its corners. 22 In the four corners of the outer court there were enclosed [J] courts, 70 feet [K] long by 52 1/2 feet [L] wide. All four corner areas had the same dimensions. 23 There was a stone wall [M] around the inside of them, around the four of them, with ovens built at the base of the walls on all sides. 24 He said to me: "These are the kitchens where those who minister at the temple will cook the people's sacrifices."

The Life-Giving River

47 Then he brought me back to the entrance of the temple and there was water flowing from under the threshold of the temple toward the east, for the temple faced east. The water was coming down from under the south side of the threshold of the temple, south of the altar. [a] 2 Next he brought me out by way of the north gate and led me around the outside to the outer gate that faced east; there the water was trickling from the south side. 3 As the man went out east with a measuring line in his hand, [b] he measured off a third of a mile [A] and led me through the water. It came up to my ankles. 4 Then he measured off a third of a mile [B] and led me through the water. It came up to my knees. He measured off another third of a mile [C] and led me through the water. It came up to my waist.
5 Again he measured off a third of a mile [D] , and it was a river that I could not cross on foot. For the water had risen; it was deep enough to swim in, a river that could not be crossed on foot.

6 He asked me, “Do you see this, son of man? ” Then he led me back to the bank of the river. 7 When I had returned, I saw a very large number of trees along both sides of the riverbank. [c] 8 He said to me, “This water flows out to the eastern region and goes down to the •Arabah . When it enters the sea, the sea of foul water, [E,] [d] the water of the sea becomes fresh. [e] 9 Every kind of living creature that swarms will live wherever the river flows, [f] and there will be a huge number of fish because this water goes there. Since the water will become fresh, there will be life everywhere the river goes. 10 Fishermen will stand beside it from En-gedi to En-eglaim. [g] These will become places where nets are spread out to dry. Their fish will consist of many different kinds, like the fish of the Mediterranean Sea. [h] 11 Yet its swamps and marshes will not be healed; they will be left for salt. 12 All kinds of trees providing food will grow along both banks of the river. Their leaves will not wither, and their fruit will not fail. [i] Each month they will bear fresh fruit because the water comes from the sanctuary. Their fruit will be used for food and their leaves for medicine.” [j]

The Borders of the Land

13 This is what the Lord God says: “This is [k] the border you will use to divide the land [l] as an inheritance for the 12 tribes of Israel. Joseph will receive two shares. [m] 14 You will inherit it in equal portions, since I swore [F] to give it to your ancestors. [n] So this land will fall to you as an inheritance.

15 “This is to be the border of the land:

> On the north side [o] it will extend from the Mediterranean Sea by way of Hethlon and Lebo-hamath to Zedad, [p] 16 Berothah, and Sibraim (which is between the border of Damascus and the border of Hamath), as far as Hazer-hatticon, which is on the border of Hauran. 17 So the border will run from the sea to Hazar-enon at the border [q] of Damascus, with the territory of Hamath to the north. This will be the northern side.
> 18 On the east side it will run between Hauran and Damascus, along the Jordan between Gilead and the land of Israel; you will measure from the northern border to the eastern sea. [r] This will be the eastern side.
>
> 19 On the south side it will run from Tamar to the waters of Meribath-kadesh, [s] and on to the Brook of Egypt [t] as far as the Mediterranean Sea. [u] This will be the southern side.
> 20 On the west side the Mediterranean Sea will be the border, from the southern border up to a point opposite Lebo-hamath. This will be the western side.

21 “You are to divide this land among yourselves according to the tribes of Israel. [v] 22 You will allot it as an inheritance for yourselves and for the foreigners living among you, [w] who have fathered children among you. You will treat them [G] like native-born Israelites; along with you, they will be allotted an inheritance among the tribes of Israel. 23 In whatever tribe the foreigner lives, you will assign his inheritance there.” This is the declaration of the Lord God.

The Tribal Allotments

48 “Now these are the names of the tribes:

From the northern end, along the road of Hethlon, to Lebo-hamath as far as Hazar-enon, at the northern border of Damascus, alongside Hamath and extending from the eastern side to the sea, will be Dan — one portion.
2 Next to the territory of Dan, from the east side to the west, will be Asher — one portion.
3 Next to the territory of Asher, from the east side to the west, will be Naphtali — one portion.
4 Next to the territory of Naphtali, from the east side to the west, will be Manasseh — one portion.
5 Next to the territory of Manasseh, from the east side to the west, will be Ephraim — one portion.
6 Next to the territory of Ephraim, from the east side to the west, will be Reuben — one portion.
7 Next to the territory of Reuben, from the east side to the west, will be Judah — one portion.
8 “Next to the territory of Judah, from the east side to the west, will be the portion you donate to the LORD, 8 1/3 miles [A] wide, and as long as one of the tribal portions from the east side to the west. [a] The sanctuary will be in the middle of it.
9 “The special portion you donate to the LORD will be 8 1/3 miles [B] long and 3 1/3 miles [C] wide. 10 This holy donation will be set apart for the priests alone. It will be 8 1/3 miles [D] long on the northern side, 3 1/3 miles [E] wide on the western side, 3 1/3 miles [F] wide on the eastern side, and 8 1/3 miles [G] long on the southern side. The LORD’s sanctuary will be in the middle of it. 11 It is for the consecrated priests, the sons of Zadok, who kept My charge [b] and did not go astray as the Levites did when the Israelites went astray. 12 It will be a special donation for them out of the holy donation of the land, a most holy place adjacent to the territory of the Levites.
13 “Next to the territory of the priests, the Levites will have an area 8 1/3 miles
[H] long and 3 1/3 miles [I] wide. The total length will be 8 1/3 miles [J] and the width
3 1/3 miles. [K, c] 14 They must not sell or exchange any of it, and they must not transfer this choice part of the land, for it is holy to the LORD. [d] 15 “The remaining area, 1 2/3 of a mile [L] wide and 8 1/3 miles [M] long, will be for common use by the city, [e] for both residential and open space. The city will be in the middle of it. 16 These are the city’s measurements:

1 1/2 miles [N] on the north side;
1 1/2 miles [O] on the south side;
1 1/2 miles [P] on the east side;
and 1 1/2 miles [Q] on the west side.
17 The city's open space will extend:

425 feet [R] to the north,
425 feet [S] to the south, 425 feet [T] to the east, and 425 feet [U] to the west.
18 "The remainder of the length alongside the holy donation will be 3 1/3 miles [V] to the east and 3 1/3 miles [W] to the west. It will run alongside the holy donation. Its produce will be food for the workers of the city. 19 The city's workers from all the tribes of Israel will cultivate it. [f] 20 The entire donation will be 8 1/3 miles [X] by 8 1/3 miles; [Y] you are to set apart the holy donation along with the city property as a square area.
21 "The remaining area on both sides of the holy donation and the city property will belong to the prince. [g] He will own the land adjacent to the tribal portions, next to the 8 1/3 miles [Z] of the donation as far as the eastern border and [A] next to the 8 1/3 miles [B] of the donation as far as the western border. The holy donation and the sanctuary of the temple will be in the middle of it. 22 Except for the Levitical property and the city property in the middle of the area belonging to the prince, the area between the territory of Judah and that of Benjamin will belong to the prince. [h]
23 "As for the rest of the tribes:

From the east side to the west, will be Benjamin — one portion.
24 Next to the territory of Benjamin, from the east side to the west, will be Simeon — one portion.
25 Next to the territory of Simeon, from the east side to the west, will be Issachar — one portion.
26 Next to the territory of Issachar, from the east side to the west, will be Zebulun — one portion.
27 Next to the territory of Zebulun, from the east side to the west, will be Gad — one portion.

28 Next to the territory of Gad toward the south side, the border will run from Tamar to the waters [i] of Meribath-kadesh, to the Brook of Egypt, and out to the Mediterranean Sea. 29 This is the land you are to allot as an inheritance to Israel's tribes, [j] and these will be their portions." This is the declaration of the Lord GOD.

The New City

30 “These are the exits of the city:

On the north side, which measures 1 1/2 miles, [C] 31 there will be three gates facing north, the gates of the city being named for the tribes of Israel: one, the gate of Reuben; one, the gate of Judah; and one, the gate of Levi.

32 On the east side, which is 1 1/2 miles, [D] there will be three gates: one, the gate of Joseph; one, the gate of Benjamin; and one, the gate of Dan.

33 On the south side, which measures 1 1/2 miles, [E] there will be three gates: one, the gate of Simeon; one, the gate of Issachar; and one, the gate of Zebulun.

34 On the west side, which is 1 1/2 miles, [F] there will be three gates: one, the gate of Gad; one, the gate of Asher; and one, the gate of Naphtali.

35 The perimeter of the city will be six miles, [G] and the name of the city from that day on will be: •Yahweh Is There.” [k]

Introduction

Ezekiel settled with a group of Jewish exiles near the city of Nippur by the Chebar River. Shown here are ruins of a temple in Nafur, Iraq (ancient Nippur), a city that was most important for its religion. Various gods controlled every aspect of life. The chief deity was En-lil, also occasionally called Bel ("the lord"). He was thought of as god of the terrestrial world and the father of other gods. In this setting Yahweh, the sovereign God, appeared to Ezekiel and called him to prophesy both judgment and hope.

The book of Ezekiel contains the divinely inspired prophecies of the prophet with the same name. These prophecies consist of oracles in the first person, giving the reader a sense of access to Ezekiel's private memoirs. Written primarily to the exiles in Babylon, the prophecies equally emphasize judgment of sins and the promise of hope and restoration.

Background Author: There is sufficient reason for maintaining that the prophet Ezekiel composed the book of Ezekiel in Babylon. The work demonstrates such homogeneity and literary coherence that it is reasonable to conclude that all editorial work was carried out by a single person, the prophet himself.

The inclusion of historical dates at the beginning of many of the oracles and prophecies in Ezekiel is another important unifying factor. The book is one of the most chronologically ordered books of the Bible. Thirteen times a passage is introduced by an indication of time. The common point of orientation for the dates given in Ezekiel is the exile of King Jehoiachin of Judah in 598/597 B.C.

The occurrence of visions throughout the book (chaps. 1; 8-11; 40-48) is another strong argument in favor of its overall unity. Finally, stylistic features throughout the book strengthen the unity argument.

Background: Ezekiel, son of Buzi, was among the approximately 10,000 citizens of Judah deported to Babylon when King Nebuchadnezzar invaded Jerusalem in 598/597 B.C. (2Kg 24:10-17). His prophetic call came to him five years later (the fifth year of King Jehoiachin's exile), in 593. He received his call at the age of 30 (1:1), the year he should have begun his duties as a priest (Nm 4:3). The last dated oracle in the book occurs in the twenty-seventh year of King Jehoiachin (29:17), thus indicating that Ezekiel's ministry lasted 22 or 23 years. The prophet lived during the greatest crisis in Israel's history—the destruction of Jerusalem and its temple, plus the exile of Judah's leading citizens to Babylon.

Message and Purpose The message of the book revolves around the pivotal event in the history of Israel—the fall of Jerusalem in 586 B.C. Prior to the announcement of Jerusalem's fall, Ezekiel's message was characterized by judgment. In his scathing review of Israelite history, Ezekiel exposed the nation's moral depravity and absence of spiritual concern (2:1-8; 8:7-18; 13:1-23; 17:1-21; 20:1-32). After the destruction of Jerusalem was complete and the nation was in exile, his message changed. He turned to a proclamation of hope, which is what the people now needed most. God would provide a new heart and a new spirit to enable the people to be faithful and avoid a future judgment (11:17-20; 36:26-28). The Lord would establish a new temple (chaps. 40-48) and a new way of worship for the people once they were restored.

The arrangement of the book (the announcement of judgment in the beginning and the declaration of restoration at the end) suggests that Ezekiel's message was ultimately one of hope and encouragement.

Six major theological statements are affirmed on behalf of Israel in the book: (1) The Lord will regather His scattered people (11:16-17; 16:1-63; 20:41; 34:11-13; 36:24; 37:21). (2) The Lord will bring the nation back to their land and will cleanse them from defilement (11:17-18; 20:42; 34:13-15; 36:24; 37:21). (3) The Lord will give His people a new heart and a new spirit so they might walk in His ways (11:19-20; 16:62; 34:30-31; 36:25-28; 37:23-24. (4) The Lord will restore the Davidic dynasty (34:23-24; 37:22-25). (5) The Lord will bless Israel with unprecedented prosperity and security in their land (34:25-29; 36:29-30; 37:26). (6) The Lord will establish His permanent residence in the midst of Israel (37:26-28; 40:1-48:35). All the covenants made with Israel will be fulfilled when she is restored to the promised land and the messianic kingdom is established.

Contribution to the Bible There are not many quotations of the book of Ezekiel in the NT, but there are some notable correlations. For instance, the structure of the book of Revelation, which begins with a vision of Christ, corresponds to the appearances of God in Ezekiel's visions. The end of the book of Revelation also reflects the end of Ezekiel, where the river flows from the presence of God (Ezk 47:1-12; Rv 21:1-22:6). Finally, the depiction of the return of the exiles as resurrected from the dead is analogous to Paul's concept of regeneration (Eph 2:5).

Structure The prophet Ezekiel displayed a distinct style throughout his prophetic work. The phrase "son of man" occurs 93 times as a title for Ezekiel, focusing on the prophet's human nature. The expression "the hand of the LORD was on me," which is said elsewhere only of Elijah (1Kg 18:46) and Elisha (2Kg 3:15), occurs in the various major sections of Ezekiel (1:3; 3:22; 33:22; 37:1). The so-called recognition formula "that you (or they) may know that I am Yahweh," a characteristic phrase of the exodus narrative (Ex 6:6-8; 7:5; 10:1-2; 14:4,18), occurs about 60 times in Ezekiel. The introductory oracle phrase "the word of the LORD came to me" occurs 46 times in the book and alerts the reader to the beginning of a separate section. The phrase "I, Yahweh, have spoken" also occurs frequently in Ezekiel (5:13,15,17; 17:21,24; 22:14; 24:14; 26:14; 30:12; 36:36; 37:14).

Another feature for which Ezekiel is well known is his performance of symbolic, dramatic actions. Accounts of this method of communication occur throughout the book. He also used the literary technique of allegory to communicate his prophecies. His allegories include: Jerusalem as a vine (chap. 15) and majestic eagles (17:1-21), the Davidic dynasty as a lioness (19:1-9) and a vineyard (19:10-14), a sword as judgment (21:1-17), and Oholah and Oholibah as corrupt sisters (23:1-35).

A final characteristic of the book is the citation of previously written Scripture in Ezekiel's prophecies. This is evident in the judgment oracles of chapters 4-5 that depend heavily on the curses listed in Leviticus 26. Ezekiel also references other portions of canonical Scripture, including Numbers 18:1-7,22-23 (in Ezk 44:9-16) and Zephaniah 3:1-4 (in Ezk 22:25-29).

Study Notes 1:1 The Targum, an Aramaic translation of the Hebrew OT, connects this date —in the thirtieth year—with Josiah's reforms in 621 B.C., but it is not easy to see any connection between the events in Josiah's reign and the time of this prophecy (2Kg 22:8-13). A rabbinic tradition understands the number as a reference to the Year of Jubilee. The editorial explanation (Ezk 1:2-3) takes "the thirtieth year" as equivalent to the fifth year of Jehoiachin's exile. Thirty was the age at which priests qualified for induction into their office (Nm 4:30). Just as Ezekiel was 30 and saw heaven open at the banks of a river, Jesus was 30 when He saw heaven open at His baptism in the Jordan River (Mt 3:16; Lk 3:21-23).

Ezekiel was among the 8,000 soldiers and nobility who had been sent into exile along with the king (2Kg 24:14-16) in 597 B.C. The Chebar, a river in Babylonia where the Jewish exiles settled, was the site of Ezekiel's visions (vv. 1,3; 3:15,23; 10:15,20,22; 43:3). The Hebrew nehar kevar corresponds to Akkadian nar kabari/u "the Kabaru Canal," a body of water mentioned twice in Akkadian documents from the Babylonian city of Nippur in the fifth century B.C. In the land of exile, God tore the heavens open and invited Ezekiel to see His glory, which was the grounding of both Israel's judgment and hope. The only other reference in the OT to the opening of the heavens occurs in Gn 7:11, although Is 64:1 speaks of the Lord rending the heavens. In the NT, the heavens were opened at Christ's baptism (Mt 3:16). Stephen saw the heavens open and was given supernatural perception of heavenly realities (Ac 7:56). Similar cases of the heavens opening are found in Rv 4:1; 19:11.

There are important similarities between the visions given to Isaiah and Ezekiel. Both prophets saw heavenly winged creatures serving God. Both underwent symbolic preparation for the prophetic ministry—Isaiah's lips were cleansed by fire; Ezekiel ate the scroll. Both men were commissioned to go to a people who would not respond to the prophetic message.

While Ezekiel was physically present with the exiles throughout his vision, he was so overwhelmed that he was oblivious to his surroundings. The initiative for Ezekiel's vision and prophecies lay solely with God, as was so with all true prophets.

1:2 The date given in verse 1 is anchored in verse 2 by the time of King Jehoiachin's exile. In fact all the dates in Ezekiel are figured in relation to this. Jehoiachin reigned only three months and ten days (2Kg 24:8; 2Ch 36:9). His removal and deportation provided the reference point for Ezekiel's prophecies. A king's accession to the throne was the normal time-marker by which prophecies were dated (2Kg 25:27; Jr 52:31). According to the Babylonian Chronicle, the date of Jehoiachin's captivity was April 22, 597 B.C.

1:3 The name Ezekiel means "may El strengthen or toughen." The other person in the OT known as Ezekiel was also a priest from the Levitical line (1Ch 24:16). Since foreign lands were considered unclean (Ezk 4:13; Am 7:17), it is not surprising that Israelite exiles would seek communion with God close to running water (Lv 14:5,50; 15:13; Nm 19:17; see Ac 16:13). In Ezekiel the name Chaldeans is interchanged with "Babylonians" (12:13; 23:15,23). God's hand is a manifestation of His power (Ex 9:3; Dt 2:15; 1Sm 5:9; Is 41:20). The power of the Spirit of God on the prophets enabled them to communicate divine truth.

1:4 The Babylonian army is described as an atmospheric storm. Storms and clouds were often associated with appearances of God (Jb 38:1; Ps 18:7-15; 29:3-9; 104:3; Is 29:6). The phrase fire flashing back and forth occurs elsewhere only in Ex 9:24 in the account of the plague of hail. The pillar of fire and the pillar of cloud led the Hebrews in the wilderness (Ex 13:17-22). God's appearance on Mount Sinai was characterized by lightning, smoke, and fire (Ex 19:16-18). God is characterized elsewhere as a consuming fire (Dt 4:24; Heb 12:28-29).

1:5 The prominence of the number four in Ezekiel's vision (four living creatures) is related to the ancient custom of envisioning earth in four parts (cp. "four corners of the earth" in Is 11:12) or four directions ("north and south, east and west" in Gn 13:14). Ezekiel's use of "four" symbolizes the divine capacity to control the entire world. From Ezekiel 10 we know that the four creatures were cherubim (10:5,20). Cherubim were embroidered on the curtain of the tabernacle (Ex 26:31). They were placed on top of the ark of the covenant in the holy of holies, where the tablets of covenant were kept (Ex 25:18-22). They were enforcers of divine judgment. When Adam and Eve were thrown out of the garden of Eden, cherubim were appointed to prohibit their entry back into the garden (Gn 3:24). Elsewhere God is said to be He who "dwells between the cherubim" (1Sm 4:4; 2Sm 6:2; Ps 99:1).

1:6 In the description of the living creatures, the gender of the creatures vacillates. Out of 45 descriptions, only 12 take the grammatically proper feminine plural, while the others are all masculine plural. In many ways the vision defies the capacity of human speech to provide description. Words cannot do justice to the vision of God. While we can know true things about God, He is ultimately beyond our full comprehension.

1:9 The outspread wings of the cherub in the holy of holies "touched" one another (1Kg 6:27); the verb used here occurs in Ex 26:3 and elsewhere for the interlinking of cloth strips that made up the curtains of the desert tabernacle. Whatever direction the four living creatures wished to take was straight ahead for one of the four. Thus, all directions were "straight ahead."

1:10 The lion was considered the fiercest of beasts (Nm 23:24; 24:9; Jdg 14:18; 2Sm 1:23; 17:10), while the eagle was the most magnificent of birds (Dt 28:49; 2Sm 1:23; Jb 39:27; Jr 48:40; Lm 4:19). The ox was the most valued of domestic animals (Jb 21:10; Pr 14:4; cp. Ex 21:36). Humans were given dominion over all the creatures God made (Gn 1:28; Ps 8:6-7).

Jewish Exiles in Babylon 1:11 Each creature had one pair of wings raised upward, touching the wing tips of the adjacent creature. This feature is identical to the cherubim over the ark of the covenant in the holy of holies. The cherub in the holy of holies also functioned as a symbolic footstool for the invisible throne of God (Ex 25:18-22; 1Sm 4:4; 2Sm 6:2; 2Kg 19:15; Ps 80:1; 99:1).

1:13 The fiery character of the living creatures (burning coals of fire) is reminiscent of the seraphim of Is 6 who were also fiery winged creatures. Fire will figure in the punishment of Jerusalem in Ezk 10:2 (Ps 50:3; 97:3).

1:14 In Nah 2:4, the chariots appear "like torches; they dart back and forth like lightning." Matthew 24:27 depicts lightning going from one part of the world to the other.

1:16 The Septuagint took beryl to refer to a bright yellow precious stone, probably topaz.

1:18 The rims were the circumferences of the wheels. The eyes in the rims symbolized divine omniscience and watchfulness (2Ch 16:9; Pr 15:3; Zch 3:9; 4:10; Rv 4:6).

1:26 Made of lapis lazuli, the sapphire stone was one of the most prized stones in the ancient world.

1:27 Fire is often associated with the appearance of God (Ex 3:2-15; 24:17; Rv 4:1-4). The vision of the throne is similar to what Moses and the 70 elders observed on Mount Sinai (Ex 24:9-11). Numerous features of Ezekiel's vision are repeated in John's portrayal of the heavenly throne (Rv 4:2-8).

1:28 The rainbow in Ezekiel's vision recalls the ancient covenant God made with Noah and the human race (Gn 9). The glory of the Lord is a visible manifestation of God (Ex 16:7; 24:16-17; 40:34-35). The glory of the Lord also refers to the "pillar of fire" that accompanied the Israelites in their desert wanderings (Ex 16:10; Nm 14:14). Clouds, like fire, are frequently associated with the appearance of God (Ex 19:16; Jdg 5:4). Ezekiel declared that he fell facedown. This is the posture a person assumed before a king in ancient times. The Bible teaches that man cannot see God and live (Ex 33:18,20). Thus God must reveal Himself in a way that dims His full glory. What Ezekiel saw was not God in His essence, but a representation. Hence words like "likeness" and "appearance" pervade descriptions of God throughout the chapter. God did not manifest His full glory, but revealed as much as could be beheld by a mortal man. Even this partial unveiling of God's glory was enough to overwhelm Ezekiel. When God visibly manifests Himself, reverence and worship must follow, as biblical testimony from Moses onward makes clear (Ex 3:6; cp. Mt 17:1-9). The sound of God's voice was like the voice John heard in his vision (Rv 1:15).

2:1 The expression son of man occurs about 90 times in the book of Ezekiel. It should be distinguished from the same phrase in Dn 7:13, where it reflects a messianic title that was used in intertestamental Judaism and in the Gospels. Unlike the usage in Dn 7:13, Ezekiel's usage of the phrase can mean simply a "member of humanity." On stand up on your feet, see Dn 10:11; Ac 26:16.

2:2 The same Spirit of God that activated the chariot wheels (1:12,19; 10:16-17) and the living beings now entered Ezekiel. The Spirit would supply the strength to accomplish Ezekiel's prophetic ministry. It is not in our power to obey what God commands us. He must supply the power. In OT times, the Holy Spirit did not indwell all believers but came upon selected persons temporarily for a specific service (3:24; Ex 31:1-11; 1Sm 10:9-11; Ps 51:11).

2:3 Normally in the OT the Israelites are referred to as a "people" (Hb 'am) and Gentiles as "nations" (Hb goyim). Here the designations are reversed. The traditional language of election has been turned on its head, so that the Gentiles have become an 'am (Hb for a "people") while Israel has become goyim (pagans). The Scriptures characteristically call foreigners goyim, a sign of disgrace and reproach. The people of God have become no different than the pagan people around them. According to 3:5-7, the problem was not intellectual but spiritual. The phrase who have rebelled against Me is used of subjects who refused to be loyal to their king (17:15; 2Kg 18:7).

2:4 The term obstinate often occurs in the phrase "stiff of neck, stubborn." It was used to describe Pharaoh's disposition (Ex 7:3) and thus emphatically illustrates the resistance of the people to Ezekiel's message. The Israelites had become the open enemies of God. The obstinate nature of the nation was later illustrated by their rejection of the Messiah (Ac 7:51-52).

2:5 The phrase a rebellious house occurs frequently in Ezekiel; instead of the "house of Israel," a common phrase describing God's people, they have become the "house of rebellion." The phrase they will know contains a shortened version of what is known as the recognition formula: "They will know that I am the Lord." The recognition formula occurs 92 times in Ezekiel. It is an intentional link to the frequent occurrence of the phrase in the book of Exodus. The criterion of true prophecy lies in the prophet's certainty that God had sent him (Is 6:8-10; Jr 1:4-10; Am 7:15). God's Word is absolutely true, no matter how it is received (Is 55:11; 2Co 2:15-16).

2:6 The word thorns was a standard figure of speech for hostility (28:24; Mc 7:4).

2:9 Some scrolls could be very long; one of the famous Dead Sea Scrolls measured approximately 24 feet in length. Normally scrolls were written on only one side, but papyrus scrolls in ancient Egypt and later in the Greco-Roman period could be written on both sides. The scroll and Ezekiel's consumption of it in the vision are reminiscent of references in the book of Revelation (Rv 5; 6; 10:9-10).

2:10 The lament or dirge is thought to derive from the mournful dirges that were wailed at funerals. See the lament over the deaths of Saul and Jonathan (2Sm 1:17), as well as the lament over Josiah's death (2Ch 35:25). Ezekiel will later lament for the princes of Israel (19:2-14). The scroll was saturated with words of judgment. See Zch 5:3 and Rv 5:1 for the same figure.

3:1 To eat this scroll signifies devouring the words written on it. After Ezekiel consumed the scroll, he would proclaim the words to the people.

3:3 The words as sweet as honey show that an encounter with the Word of God is a pleasant experience (Ps 19:10; 119:103).

3:5 The phrase unintelligible speech or difficult language reminds us of Moses' excuses in Ex 4:10 (cp. Is 33:19).

3:7 God warned Moses that Pharaoh would not listen to him (Ex 3:19). God told Isaiah that his prophetic ministry would only show the spiritual insensitivity of a corrupted people (Is 6:9-10). The refusal-to-listen theme is also prominent in Jeremiah (Jr 3:25; 7:13; 9:12; 11:8; 16:12; 17:23; 18:10; 19:15; 22:5; 25:3-4,7). Jesus' comment that a prophet receives honor everywhere but his hometown (Mt 13:57) parallels Ezekiel's experience. Even when there was little hope of bringing about repentance, God still sent prophets so the people would realize that His word had been among them.

3:15 In the Akkadian language, the phrase Tel-abib literally means "mound of the flood," indicating that the location was well known as a ruined site. Mourning for the dead lasted seven days (Gn 50:10; Jb 2:13). The consecration ceremony for admission into the priesthood, which Ezekiel had anticipated for himself before the exile, also lasted seven days (Lv 8:33).

3:16 The phrase the word of the LORD came to me occurs almost 50 times in Ezekiel. It is also used to report a revelation experience with reference to Samuel (1Sm 15:10), Nathan (2Sm 7:4), Gad (2Sm 24:11), the Bethel prophet (1Kg 13:20), Jehu (1Kg 16:1), Elijah (1Kg 17:2,8; 18:1; 21:17,28), and Isaiah (2Kg 20:4; cp. Is 38:4).

3:17 In order to give a timely warning of approaching danger, lookouts or watchmen were posted on high places such as roofs of gatehouses (2Sm 18:24) or towers (2Kg 9:17). God gave His commandments for the people's good (Dt 5:28-33; 6:25; 10:12-13). If they were obedient to the stipulations, they would experience God's blessing (Lv 26:1-13; Dt 16:20; 28:1-14; Mal 3:10-12). If the people disobeyed these ordinances, the Lord promised that He would bring curses upon them. These statutes were designed to lead them to repentance (Lv 26:14-39; Dt 28:15-68).

3:18 Ezekiel's failure to deliver God's message would render him guilty of murder (I will hold you responsible for his blood) and thus subject to capital punishment (Gn 9:5-6). Thus whether Ezekiel lived or died depended on his "righteousness"—his faithfulness to the holy commission he had received. Ezekiel's commission as son of man/Adam can be compared to the first Adam and to the tree of the knowledge of good and evil (Gn 2:17). If Ezekiel was obedient he would live and would bring the possibility of life to those who heard him, but if he failed, he and his hearers would "surely die" (Ezk 3:18; Gn 2:17; 2Sm 4:11-12; Ac 18:6).

3:20 To lay a stumbling block before a person was to expose him to danger (Jr 6:21).

3:21 On warn the righteous person, see a similar warning in 1Co 10:12. Those who responded faithfully to the watchman's proclamation would live. This signified not just physical life but the fullness of fellowship with the Lord that flows from obedience.

3:24 Being shut in the house illustrates the siege of Jerusalem. This does not mean that Ezekiel was literally never to leave his house (cp. 5:2; 12:3); instead he was to refrain from open fellowship with others. Leaders often came to him at his house to receive God's word (8:1; 14:1; 20:1). General confinement to his home is reflected in all the locations of prophesying mentioned in the book (8:1; 14:1; 20:1; 33:30).

3:26 The expression tongue stick to the roof of your mouth is an idiomatic way of saying that a person cannot talk (Jb 29:10; Ps 137:6). Ezekiel's speechlessness lasted seven years (Ezk 33:21-22). He remained silent, except when God instructed him to deliver a message. There may be a correlation between the seven days that Ezekiel sat among his fellow exiles (3:15), and his seven-year speechlessness: one year of divinely imposed speechlessness for each day of hardened resistance.

3:27 Ezekiel remained unable to speak in the intervals between God's addresses. These lapses into muteness finally stopped when it was announced that Jerusalem had fallen (1Co 9:16; Col 1:24-29).

4:1 Sketching a city plan on a clay brick was not an uncommon practice in the ancient world. Ezekiel was instructed to sketch the siege of Jerusalem. Nebuchadnezzar's construction of the siege wall around Jerusalem is described in 2Kg 25:1 and Jr 52:4.

4:2 The purpose of a siege was to wear enemies down by halting their flow of food and supplies. Battering rams were pushed up siege ramps to attack the city walls.

4:3 The hiding of God's face indicated that He could no longer look favorably upon the people. The people would experience the covenant curses for their disobedience (Lv 26:17; Dt 31:17-18; 32:20). War (it is under siege), along with its repercussions, is included in the list of covenantal curses (Dt 28:52-57).

4:5-6 One popular view accounting for the periods of 390 days or years and 40 days or years is to calculate the 390 years backwards from 586 B.C., placing the starting point for the period of Israel's iniquity in 976 B.C., the year when the construction of the temple began. This would indicate that the nation was characterized by rebellion during the entire time the temple was standing. However, the best conclusion is that the 430-year period was chosen to represent the period of Israel's stay in Egypt. By depicting the total period of sin and judgment in terms of a renewed Egyptian bondage, the prophet invited the hope that the end of the appointed time of punishment would result in a new exodus and a new entry into the promised land. An ancient Jewish tradition noted that the number 390 derived from the Hebrew numerical value of ymy msr , the consonants of the phrase "the days of the siege" (v. 8; 5:2).

4:8 The siege that Ezekiel was predicting lasted two years (2Kg 25:1-8).

4:9 The food products mentioned in this verse, all native to Mesopotamia, constitute a siege diet. According to an experiment recorded in Jewish tradition, no one would touch Ezekiel's bread, not even a dog.

4:12 Because Ezekiel was aware of the laws regarding the removal of human excrement, he reacted with disgust (Dt 23:11-13). Land outside of Israel was considered unclean (Jos 22:19; Am 7:17).

4:14 Eating flesh that had been mauled by wild beasts disqualified a priest from priestly service (44:31; Lv 22:8). Impure meat was sacrificial meat that had not been eaten by the third day after the animal was slaughtered (Lv 7:18; 19:7).

4:16 The expression supply of bread indicates the destruction of the whole food supply (Lv 26:26; Is 3:1).

4:17 To be defeated or devastated in war was to experience a covenant curse (Lv 26:17,37; Dt 28:25,49,52; 32:23-24,30,42).

5:1 Shaving one's head was often associated with mourning rites (7:18; 27:31; Jb 1:20; Is 7:20; 15:2,2-3; Jr 7:29; 48:37). Mourning for the dead in this way was prohibited for the Israelites (Dt 14:1). Weighing on scales was a symbol of evaluation for impending judgment (Pr 21:2; Dn 5:27).

5:3 From the last third of hair that was consigned to dispersion, Ezekiel was to take and bind some in the folds of his robe. This portrayed survival of only a remnant of exiles. From the ancient perspective, exile was a fate from which people never returned. Hair scattered to the wind would be impossible to retrieve. By tucking the remnants of hair into his garment, Ezekiel indicated that the future of the people of God lay with the Babylonian exiles (Lv 26:36-39; Hg

2:12). There would never be a complete end of Israel brought about by God's judgment.

5:5 According to Ps 132:13-14, the Lord's oath to the Davidic house was specifically linked to His choice of Zion or Jerusalem as His special dwelling place (Dt 12:5; 1Kg 8:41-43; Ps 48:1-14).

5:6 According to Dt 4:7-8, Israel's covenantal obligations to the Lord gained the admiration of the nations of the world. If Israel had obeyed these laws, she would have been the light of the world.

5:7 Ezekiel accused Israel of being worse than the nations (16:27; cp. 2Kg 21:11; Jr 2:11).

5:10 Cannibalism was prohibited in the law of Moses (Lv 26:29; Dt 28:53-57) and was denounced by the prophets (Is 9:19-21; Jr 19:9; Zch 11:9). Tragically, the Israelites resorted to cannibalism in Jerusalem during the siege and the subsequent fall to Babylon's forces in 588-586 B.C. (Lm 1:7-14; 2:20-22; 4:4-10).

5:11 The expression show you no pity was used to discourage leniency in criminal cases (Dt 7:16; 13:8; 19:13,21; 25:12). The defilement of the holy sanctuary is the sole issue in 8:1-18.

5:12 Famine and plague often accompanied the siege of a city. These were also numbered among the covenant curses of Lv 26:25-26.

5:15 The nation that was chosen for honor (Dt 26:19) now became the moral spectacle of the nations (you will be a disgrace and a taunt). The role of the nations here contrasts with the original blessing which Israel was supposed to bring them. She failed at this task (Lk 12:48).

5:16 The phrase when I shoot deadly arrows of famine at them begins a list of judgments. These are identical to the standard types of covenant curses associated with disobedience of God's law (famine, Lv 26:26,29; wild animals, Lv 26:22; Dt 32:24; disease, Dt 28:21; bloodshed, Dt 32:42).

6:2 The idiom turn your face reflects the Lord's adverse attitude toward His people, here identified as the mountains of Israel. The phrase "mountains of Israel" does not occur outside the book of Ezekiel. Mountains represent the whole land because the land of Israel was mountainous and hilly (Dt 11:12). Mountains were often centers of idolatrous worship, and thus reference to Israel as mountainous is a reference to Israel's apostasy (Ezk 6:13; 18:6,11; 22:9).

6:3 The translation of the Hebrew word bamah as high places goes back at least to the Latin Vulgate, which translated the word excelsus . These man-made installations were elevated platforms where sacrifices were performed. They existed in the land of Canaan before the Israelite conquest and were supposed to have been destroyed (Nm 33:52). After Shiloh was destroyed (Jr 7:12), but before the temple in Jerusalem was built, the high place was used as a place of legitimate worship.

6:4 For the Hebrews, burning corpses on altars defiled the altars (1Kg 13:2; 2Kg 23:16). Ezekiel's favorite word for idol (Hb gillulim) is based on the root gll , which means "to roll." Many believe the term is associated with round dung pellets, which would graphically express Ezekiel's disposition toward useless idols.

6:6 The Hebrew verb machah ("to wipe out") is used in Gn 6:7 and 7:4,23 to describe the decimation of the human race by the flood (2Kg 21:13).

6:7 The phrase you will know that I am Yahweh is known as a recognition formula. It is a characteristic way of closing oracles or sections within oracles (some 60 times in Ezekiel) and expresses the intended effect of the event predicted in the oracle. It was frequently used in the context of the exodus from Egypt (Ex 7:5; 14:4).

6:10 The expression threaten to bring this disaster on them occurs outside this passage only in the account of the golden calf (Ex 32:14).

6:11 Ezekiel was commanded to sing a number of taunt songs against Israel's enemies (e.g., chaps. 27; 28; 31; and 32).

6:13 The phrases on every high hill, on all the mountaintops, and under every green tree and every leafy oak echo Dt 12:2 and Hs 4:13 (1Kg 14:23; Jr 2:20). In the pagan belief system of the ancient Near East, people sought the assistance of gods and goddesses of nature to bless themselves and make themselves productive.

6:14 On desolation as punishment, see Lv 26:32-35,43; Dt 29:23. Most of the Hebrew manuscripts read Diblah here, although a minority, including the Septuagint, read Riblah, which represented the northern border of Israel (47:15-17). If the reading "Diblah" is correct, this is the only reference to this city in the Bible. The Hebrew name may mean "cake of figs." Riblah was a city in Syria (2Kg 23:33; 25:21; Jr 39:5; 52:9,27) that served as the headquarters of Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon during his third expedition against Jerusalem in 588-586 B.C.

7:2 The Hebrew expression 'admat yisra'el (the land of Israel) occurs only in Ezekiel. The more common expression for the "land of Israel" translates a Hebrew phrase 'erets yisra'el . In the use of the term here, the emphasis is on the ground or soil rather than the land of the nation. The expression the end has come does not refer to the end of the latter days but the end of great tribulation, as in Gn 6:13. Just as in the days of Noah's flood (Gn 6), the sins of the people had reached such a point that it was time for the land to be wiped clean of them.

7:7 The Day of the Lord refers to a time of God's intervention in history to deliver or to judge (Is 2:12-22; chap. 13). But in some ways the Day of the Lord focuses on an event rather than a definite extent of time. Beginning with Amos the day was viewed as a time of great judgment (Am 5:18-20). The nearness of the Day of the Lord is a common theme in prophetic literature (Ezk 30:3; Jl 1:15; 2:1; Zph 1:7,14).

7:13 After the seventh sabbatical year (49 years) the Year of Jubilee took place, during which each person who had lost or sold his land received back his personal property (Lv 25:8-22). The year began on the Day of Atonement of this fiftieth year. This generous attitude was to be displayed because the land actually belonged to the Lord; it had been given to the Israelites through an extended lease (Lv 25:23).

7:19 On something filthy, see Is 2:20 and Zph 1:18 for parallel phrases. The filthy thing (Hb niddah) was the technical term used for the ceremonial impurity that resulted from menstruation (Lv 15:19-33) and the touching of a corpse (Nm 19:13-21). Wealth had become the people's stumbling block (Mt 6:19-24; Lk 6:24-25; 1Tm 6:6-10,17-19; Jms 5:1-6).

7:20 Jewish medieval commentators as well as the Aramaic Targum translation indicate that the phrase beautiful ornaments is an allusion to the temple, as in verse 22 (cp. Dn 1:2; 5:3-4).

7:21 The phrase I will hand these things over to foreigners refers to a fulfillment of Dt 28:49-57.

7:22 Many Israelites considered themselves invincible because the presence of God resided in Jerusalem (My treasured place)—they thought that God would never let His holy dwelling be destroyed (Jr 7:1-5)—but even the temple would not escape God's judgment (Mc 3:12).

7:23 The phrase the city is filled with violence clearly echoes Gn 6:11.

7:26 Like the series of catastrophes that struck Job (cp. Jb 1:13-19), no sooner would one disaster be reported than word of another would come.

8:1 The words in the sixth year, in the sixth month, on the fifth day of the month show that Ezekiel had reflected on his first vision for 14 months. The actions of the elders of Judah provide a shocking contrast to the 70 elders of Israel in the Pentateuch. Israel's leaders in the desert period, who had the privilege of seeing God (Ex 24:1-11), were endowed with the same spirit as Moses (Nm 11:16-30).

8:3 The nearest analogies to Ezekiel's experience occurred with Elijah, who was carried about by the Spirit (1Kg 18:12; 2Kg 2:1-12,16-18); and with Elisha, who was given astonishing extrasensory powers (2Kg 5:26; 6:17,32-33). The term translated offensive statue (Hb semel) occurs elsewhere only in Dt 4:16 and 2Ch 33:7,15. Scholars believe the term may be a foreign word and thus appropriate to associate with the worship of a foreign god. This image may have been one of the Asherahs set up in the temple by Manasseh (2Kg 21:7; 2Ch 33:7,15). This conclusion is suggested by the use of the same word (Hb semel) in reference to Manasseh's idol in 2Ch 33:7,15. God is a jealous God who accepts no rival; He will not share His glory with idols (Is 42:8).

8:10 The phrase every form of detestable thing is reminiscent of Rm 1:23.

8:11 The seventy elders were probably the leaders of the nation whose position was established by Moses' appointment of officials to assist him in governing God's people (Ex 24:1,9; Nm 11:16-25). The prophet echoed the critical moment in the Day of Atonement ceremonies when the cloud of incense screened the ark from the vision of the high priest (Lv 16:2,13).

8:14 Wailing for Tammuz was a Babylonian ritual marking the death and descent into the underworld of the Sumerian god Dumuzi. The mythological course of death and return for Dumuzi (Tammuz) was thought to be parallel to the annual rhythm of nature.

8:16 The final and supreme act of idolatry took place within the inner court of the temple itself, where 25 men bowed toward the east, worshiping the sun. According to 2Kg 21:5, worship of the sun god appears to have gained sponsorship during the reign of Manasseh, who built altars for foreign gods in the courts of the temple. The area between the portico and the altar was probably for use by priests alone, and was where they prayed to God on a fast day (Jl 2:17)).

8:17 The phrase putting the branch to their nose may have referred to an idolatrous practice, or possibly it is an idiomatic expression indicating contempt for God.

9:2 Linen was often worn by angelic messengers (Dn 10:5; Rv 15:6), but it was also the fabric for priestly garments (Ex 28:42); linen thus portrays purity and holiness. The bronze altar, originally built by Solomon (2Ch 4:1), was relocated during the reign of Ahaz to the northeast corner of the temple to make room for his own pagan altar (2Kg 16:14).

9:4 It is possible that those to be spared received the sign of the cross (put a mark on the foreheads), like those sealed for deliverance in Rv 7:3-4 and 14:1.

9:6 This deliverance from judgment (do not come near anyone who has the mark) resembles the Passover story, where the household was spared if the blood of a sacrificial lamb was placed above the door (Ex 12:7,13).

9:7 The historical fulfillment of this event (fill the courts with the slain) is depicted in 2Ch 36:17-19.

9:9 This verse is an apparent echo of the flood (Gn 6:11). The saying of the lawless (the LORD has abandoned the land; He does not see) repeats in inverted form what the idolatrous elders had said in 8:12.

10:1 The inner curtains and the veil that closed off the holy of holies in the tabernacle were adorned with cherubim (Ex 26:1,31; 36:8,35). Two golden cherubim with extended wings were part of the covering of the ark of the covenant within the holy of holies of the tabernacle (Ex 25:18-22; 37:7-9). Cherubim were also carved in the walls of the Jerusalem temple and covered with gold (1Kg 6:29; 2Ch 3:7; Ezk 41:18-20). In both the tabernacle and the temple, the cherubim constituted a throne for God's invisible presence and glory (1Sm 4:4; 2Sm 6:2; 2Kg 19:15; Ps 18:10; 80:1; 99:1). The creatures in the vision in Ezekiel 1 were not named. Ezekiel recognized these creatures to be cherubim.

10:2 The image of a city burned with fire came true for Jerusalem in 586 B.C. (2Kg 25:9).

10:3 All the time that the glory of the Lord dwelt in the temple, the cloud that accompanied it to reveal the glory of the Lord filled the court (see Ex 19:9; Lv 16:2).

10:6 Fire in the Bible is often associated with God's judgment against wickedness and sin (Gn 19:24; Dt 32:22; Am 1-2). According to Ezekiel, the same fire from God that purified the mouth of Isaiah (Is 6:6) and brought destruction to Sodom and Gomorrah (Gn 19:24) would now purge the city of Jerusalem in judgment.

10:12 In 1:18 only the wheels were "full of eyes all around," whereas here the creatures in their entirety were full of eyes. The four creatures John saw around God's throne were also covered with eyes (Rv 4:8).

10:18 In this verse Ezekiel set forth the fulfillment of the warning uttered by Moses (Dt 31:17) that was later repeated by Hosea (Hs 9:12). God had determined to forsake His sanctuary. His temple was supposed to be the place of His rest and dwelling (Ps 132:14; Is 66:1).

10:19 The movement of God's glory to the eastern gate anticipated its ultimate departure from the temple complex and Jerusalem (11:22-23). The east gate would also be the site of the final judgment for Jews (Zch 14:1-9). Jesus went to the mountain east of the city, the Mount of Olives, and ascended to the Father (Ac 1:9-12). God's presence among His people was an indication of His favor toward them (Dt 4:29,31). His absence, on the other hand, was a sign of His rejecting them (Dt 31:17-18). The ultimate privilege of faith is access to the presence of God.

11:1 This verse mentions the same 25 men who had been described earlier (see note at 8:16).

11:3 In 24:3-5 Jerusalem is portrayed as a pot being filled with the choicest morsels. The people thought they could go ahead and build houses (Jr 32:6-15) because they belonged in Jerusalem, whereas the exiles were like the entrails that were discarded as unfit for the cooking pot. Jeremiah 29:5 may address this same concern from the context of those in exile and the elders in captivity.

11:5 On the Spirit of the LORD came on me, see note at 2:2.

11:6 This accusation of the leaders of Judah is illustrated in 19:3,6, where kings are charged with devouring humans, and in 22:27, where Ezekiel portrays Israel's leaders as ravenous, violent animals.

11:9 The judgments that had once fallen on Egypt (Ex 6:6; 12:12) would now fall on the inhabitants of Jerusalem. They would be handed over to foreigners.

11:11 This prophecy I will judge you at the border of Israel was literally fulfilled at Riblah (2Kg 25:18-21; Jr 52:24-27).

11:15 God had given Israel the land, but He had also threatened to remove them from it because of their disobedience (Dt 28:36,64-68). God would spare a remnant, but the remnant would not include the corrupt leadership (Ezk 6:8; 12:16).

11:16 The temple was a symbol of the Lord's presence among the Israelites. With the coming of Jesus, the presence of God is no longer located in the physical, man-made temple, but the presence once again dwelt among the people (Jn 1:14), just as it had during the desert period and, according to Ezk 11:16, during the exile. In other words, with the coming of Jesus there is a fundamental redemptive-historical change in the demonstration of God's glory and presence. The closest parallels are found in the NT, with Jesus' appropriation of the term "sanctuary" to Himself (Jn 2:19-22) and His statement that true worship will occur in spirit and truth (Jn 4:21-24). But here the Lord promised personally to be for the exiles what the temple had been for them in Jerusalem.

11:17 The Lord may abandon His land, but He will not permanently forsake the people. The regathering (I will gather you from the peoples) refers to the end of the Babylonian exile but also may refer to a future gathering of Israel at the beginning of the millennial kingdom (36:24-38; 37:11-28).

11:18 The new inhabitants will remove the detestable idols and vile images that once filled the land (7:20; 8:3-17). Some scholars believe the historical fulfillment of these actions occurred in Ezra 6-10.

11:19 The heart of stone is that of the unregenerate, those who refuse to submit to the will of God (Zch 7:12). The stony heart is another way of referring to the "hardhearted" (Ezk 2:4; 3:7). The radical spiritual transformation of the people and the associated physical blessings promised in this and other prophecies of the new covenant (34:20-31; 36:24-38; 37:15-28; Jr 31:31-34) will take place in the future messianic age.

11:20 The restoration of Israel's relationship with God (they will be My people, and I will be their God) will fulfill the goal of the first exodus (Ex 6:7; cp. Gn 17:7-8; 2Co 6:16; Rv 21:3).

11:23 The glory of God, leaving the city, took the direction of King David's flight from Absalom, on the mountain [Mount of Olives] east of the city (see 2Sm 15:23). Jesus Christ ascended to heaven from the Mount of Olives and promised to return to the same place (cp. Zch 14:4; Ac 1:9-12).

12:2 Blindness (unseeing eyes) and deafness (unhearing ears) often indicate disobedience or disbelief (Dt 29:1-4; Is 6:9-10; 43:8; Jr 5:21; Mt 13:13-15; Mk 8:18; Jn 12:39-40; Ac 28:26-27). The phrase rebellious house occurs in the prophetic commissioning of Ezekiel (2:5-8; 3:9), but it also occurs in 3:26-27.

12:5 Ezekiel's readers understood that breaking through a wall indicated exile, since the conquering armies would dig through the wall at strategic points in order to enter the city (Am 4:3).

12:7 The exile's bags symbolize the remnant that will be led out of the homeland as captives.

12:12 The covering of King Zedekiah's face was Ezekiel's symbolic prophecy of the blinding of the king of Judah by Nebuchadnezzar and his exile to Babylon (2Kg 25:7).

12:13 The phrase I will spread My net over him uses the image of a bird hunter (Hs 7:12) or animal hunter (Ezk 19:8). The words yet he will not see it refer to the ancient Near Eastern custom of gouging out the eyes of captives.

12:16 The statement I will spare a few of them refers to a remnant that will be preserved by the Lord. They will realize their guilt and turn to the Lord in heathen lands (6:8-10). God promised that there would always be a few people who remained loyal to Him (Lv 26:42-45; cp. Ex 32:10; Dt 4:30-31).

12:19 The phrase because of the violence reflects the rationale for the judgment of the earth by the flood (Gn 6:11,13).

12:22 The expression the days keep passing by, and every vision fails reflects the test of true prophecy (Dt 18:20-22). If a prophecy did not come true, the person who made the prediction was a false prophet.

12:24 Even King Hezekiah succumbed to the influential reassurances of false prophets (2Kg 20:19). In Ezekiel's day false prophets opposed the claims of God's true messengers in Jerusalem (Jr 28:1-4) and Babylon (Jr 29:1,8-9).

13:3 In no sense were these people prophets of God. The source of their message was their own spirit. This is also true of modern false teachers (2Pt 2:1-2). According to Dt 18:18, genuine prophets receive their messages directly from God and speak for Him.

13:4 The sight of jackals scavenging in the ruins of the city pictures the despair of the people after the fall of Jerusalem (Lm 5:18).

13:8 The phrase I am against you is addressed to Israel one other time in Ezekiel (21:3). It was normally directed toward foreign nations.

13:10 Paul used this image—plaster it with whitewash—when he called the high priest in Jerusalem a "whitewashed wall" (Ac 23:3).

13:17 Women practiced magic in Jerusalem (Jr 7:18; 44:17,19) as well as in Babylon. The Mosaic law condemned witches and necromancers (Lv 20:27; 1Sm 28:9; cp. Lv 19:31). There were a number of legitimate prophetesses in the OT, including Miriam (Ex 15:20), Deborah (Jdg 4:4), Huldah (2Kg 22:14), and Noadiah (Neh 6:14). Prophetesses are also mentioned in the NT (Lk 2:36-38; Ac 21:9; 1Co 11:5).

13:23 God will bring false prophecy and sorcery to an end (Am 8:11; Mc 3:6-7; Zch 13:1-6). Jeremiah 23:16-32 is very similar to this chapter. There were false prophets both in the exile and in Jerusalem. Counterfeit prophets attempted to thwart the prophets of God who announced the coming doom. The false prophets were motivated by self-interest. The Christian is to test every spirit (1Jn 4:1) and examine everything in light of Scripture (Ac 17:11).

14:3 The phrase set up idols in their hearts literally means "to raise on one's heart," conveying the notion of commitment to the service of an idol. This word for idols (Hb gillulim) was used in 6:4-6,13. It literally denotes "dung pellets," thus indicating what the prophet thought of idols. Greed was an inherent motivation for idolatry since worshipers believed the idols were bound to repay generous worship with prosperity. This is why the NT associates idolatry with greed (Eph 5:5). While the idolatry in Jerusalem was openly displayed (Ezk 8), the idolatry practiced by Hebrew exiles in Babylon was more subtle, as revealed by the people's heart convictions.

14:4 God's answer and judgment against those who worshiped idols was for their own good so His people might not continue to be alienated from Him.

14:7 The word foreigners refers to non-Israelites who had identified themselves with the people of God and who sometimes became proselytes to the true faith.

14:8 To be cut . . . off refers to experiencing premature death, perhaps by means of the death penalty (Lv 20:2-5).

14:9 If the people continued to refuse to listen to prophets whom God sent to tell them the truth, the Lord would judge them by sending lying prophets to tell them what they wanted to hear rather than what they needed to hear. The Lord eventually abandons people to their corrupt passions (Rm 1:18-32).

14:10 The expression they will bear their punishment is a legal phrase from Lv 20:17. In that passage as here, the concept of being "cut off" accompanies this statement of judgment.

14:11 The formula then they will be My people and I will be their God has its origin in Ex 6:7 in connection with the establishment of the covenant relationship between God and His people. It recurs in the description of the ultimate bliss in the covenantal blessings (Lv 26:12).

14:14 Some people of Judah must have wondered whether the impending judgment on Jerusalem might be diverted if some well-known righteous man or men (Noah, Daniel, and Job) could be found (Gn 18). The biblical Daniel was exiled to Babylon in 605 B.C. (Dn 1:1). He would have had time to establish a reputation as a wise and righteous man by the time Ezekiel ministered. Daniel was well known for his righteousness (Dn 1:17-21; 2:14,48; 5:12). All of these men—Noah, Daniel, and Job—were recognized for their righteous behavior in the midst of corrupt generations and prevailed in difficult situations because of their righteousness. Ezekiel's reference to these men affirmed that moral responsibility is not transferable; it is individual.

14:15 The threat of dangerous animals devouring the land and destroying the people is mentioned in the Mosaic law (Lv 26:22; Dt 32:24).

14:21 Sword curses (predictions of punishment by war) occur in Lv 26:25,33; Dt 32:41-42. On famine curses, see Lv 26:26,29,45; Dt 28:53-56; 32:24. Dangerous animal curses appear in Lv 26:22; Dt 32:24. Pestilence or plague curses are found in Lv 26:14; Dt 28:21-22; 32:24. These four curses are also mentioned in Ezekiel 5.

14:22 When the exiles saw the wicked behavior of the survivors of the perilous judgments (you will observe their conduct and actions), they would be assured of God's justice—that He had acted righteously in His judgment. The exiles would regard the destruction of Judah's capital as well deserved.

15:6 The vine as an image of Israel goes back to Nm 13:23 where it appears as a symbol of the richness of Canaan, the land promised to Israel. The image of the vine portrays God's loving care for the nation as a vinedresser taking care of what He had planted (Ps 80:8-9; Is 5:1-7). It is clear from Mt 21:33-41 that God desires fruit (good works) from His vine. Unless people come into vital relationship with the true Vinedresser, there can be no fruit. Fire is a frequent figure for destruction in Ezekiel (5:2,4; 10:2; 16:41; 23:47; 24:10-11). The burning of the wood accompanied the destruction of Jerusalem. In Babylonian invasions fire accompanied annihilation (2Kg 25:9; 2Ch 36:19). Fire will be a prominent feature of the great tribulation (Rv 14:18).

16:1-63 This chapter is similar in purpose to 20:3-31, where a review of Israel's past history set the context for its coming judgment.

16:1 Jerusalem had a centuries-old, pre-Israelite history (Gn 14:18), and the city resisted Israelite conquest in the days of Joshua (Jos 15:63). It became an Israelite city only after David's conquest (2Sm 5:6-9).

16:3 In biblical ethnography Canaanites, Amorites, and Hittites were closely related. Moreover, these three were related to the Jebusites, the pre-Israelite inhabitants of Jerusalem (Gn 10:15-18; Jdg 19:11; 2Sm 5:6). The Amorites were pre-Israelite, Semitic inhabitants of Palestine (Gn 48:22; Jos 5:1; 10:5; Jdg 1:34-36). The Hittites were non-Semitic residents of Canaan who earlier had flourished in Asia Minor during the second millennium B.C. (Gn 23:10-20; 26:34; 2Sm 11:3-27; 1Kg 11:1). By going back to the people's origin, Ezekiel emphasized that the people had always been characterized by rebellion. They were sinners like all peoples of the earth, and they often allowed themselves to be led astray into idol worship.

16:4 Exposure of unwanted babies, especially girls, was common in the ancient world. In this description the infant was abandoned, apparently still attached to the placenta, and left to die (you were not rubbed with salt or wrapped in cloths). Contemporary Arab midwives in Palestine commonly coat a baby's body with a mixture of salt and oil after cutting the umbilical cord.

16:5 God finding His people in the open field resembles the description in Dt 32:10 where God found Israel "in a desolate land, in a barren, howling wilderness."

16:6 The phrase saw you lying in your blood emphasizes that Israel was abandoned by her mother. The expression I said to you as you lay in your blood: Live! may refer to God's basic desire for all people to live, summed up by this one word (18:23,32; 1Tm 2:4). The command is reminiscent of the mandate to be fruitful and multiply (Gn 1:22,28), which was repeated to Jacob (Gn 28:3; 35:11; cp. Gn 17:2,6).

16:8 The special word for love (Hb dodim) in this verse refers to the love that leads to sexual relations (23:17; Sg 1:2,4; 4:10; 5:1; 7:13). Spreading a garment over a person was a proposal of marriage (Ru 3:9). The portrayal of Israel as the Lord's wife (you became Mine) derives from the first of the Ten Commandments, which says we must worship God alone. A wife's obligation to remain true to her husband offered a fitting parallel to Israel's obligations to God. In the Hebrew Torah, Yahweh is called qanna' ("passionate, jealous") toward those who broke faith with Him (Ex 20:5; 34:14). Ezekiel inherited a prophetic tradition in which sexual infidelity was used as a metaphor for Israel's adoption of Canaanite religion (Jr 2:20; Hs 1:2; 2:5-13; 3:1) and for its political alliances with foreign powers (Jr 2:33,36; Hs 8:9).

16:9 The expression rinsed off your blood may be associated with bleeding that occurs with the first experience of sexual intercourse (Dt 22:13-21). Or it may refer to menstrual blood, indicating sexual maturity.

16:10 Jerusalem is clothed in materials that are elsewhere used in decorating the tabernacle (embroidered cloth). This is a subtle suggestion that Jerusalem was the home of the temple (Ps 48:2; 50:2; Lm 2:15).

16:15 The accusation (acted like a prostitute) referred both to a spiritual turning away from the Lord and to physical involvement with the fertility rites of Canaanite paganism (Jr 3:1-5; Hs 4:13-14; 9:1; cp. Gn 38:14-16). The infidelity of the city began with Solomon's introduction of idolatry and his creation of multiple shrine sites for idol worship (1Kg 11:1-10). Jerusalem played the harlot; she committed the sin of idolatry (Jms 4:4). Her pride led her astray (Dt 32:15; Jr 7:4; Mc 3:11).

16:17 The fabrication of objects of false worship from jewelry recalls the episode of the golden calf on Mount Sinai (Ex 32:2-4,24).

16:18 Putting clothing on idols is also mentioned in Jr 10:9.

16:20 The practice of child sacrifice (your sons and daughters you . . . sacrificed) occurred during the reigns of Ahaz (2Kg 16:3) and Manasseh (2Kg 21:6), and it was even more widely practiced during the time of Jeremiah (Jr 7:31; 19:5; 32:35). Child sacrifice is also further mentioned in Ezekiel (20:26; 23:37). By sacrificing her offspring Jerusalem proved that she was a moral descendant of Canaanite ancestry. The Mosaic law prohibited this practice (Lv 18:21; 20:2; Dt 12:31; 18:10).

16:22 The same concept and image (you did not remember the days of your youth) is conveyed in Hs 2:4-14.

16:26 Spiritual prostitution involved illicit worship of idols. It also included choosing and developing political and military alliances for security (promiscuous acts with Egyptian men; see Is 23:17-18). To reflect God's revulsion over these alliances, Ezekiel described these illicit lovers as "having oversized organs." He referred to them as your well-endowed neighbors.

16:31 Prostitutes normally engaged in illicit sexual relations as a means of earning income, but Jerusalem had descended so far into sin that she scorned the payment a prostitute normally received (1Co 7:22-23).

16:36 The public humiliation of a prostitute by exposing her nakedness is mentioned in Jr 13:22,26; Hs 2:10; and Nah 3:5. According to the law, this degradation was to be followed by stoning and sometimes by burning (Dt 22:22; Ezk 16:40).

16:39 Contracts discovered from Nuzi (fifteenth century B.C., northern Iraq) specified that if a wife divorced her husband, she would "go out naked."

16:41 This form of punishment (they will burn down your houses) was not uncommon in the OT (Jdg 12:1; 15:6).

16:45 Jerusalem was like her mother, a Hittite, who was married to an Amorite, the people who were removed from Canaan by the Israelites because their sins had reached an intolerable level (Gn 15:16). God's justice now seemed to require that Israelites left in their land should also be removed.

16:46-47 The Israelites had become worse than Sodom, the city infamous for its corruption (Dt 32:32; Is 1:10; Jr 23:14). Sodomy is a sexual act named after the homosexual perversions at Sodom (Gn 19:5-29). Sodomy is "detestable" according to Lv 18:22; 20:13. The Bible frequently compares cities or peoples to Sodom, which was taken to be the epitome of evil and degradation (Dt 29:23; 32:32; Is 1:9-10; 3:9; Lm 4:6; Mt 10:15; 11:23-24; Jd 7).

16:56 The phrase when you were proud refers to the golden days of Jerusalem during the reign of David and the beginning of Solomon's reign.

16:59 Jerusalem's contempt toward the oath and the breaking of the covenant would be answered by the suspension of God's own covenant obligations. Judah's sin was especially grievous because she had despised the oath of obedience she made to the Lord at Sinai (Ex 19:6). The current generation had reached the limit of God's forbearance. In some sense God severed His relationship with that generation, though without breaking His covenant promises.

16:60 References to the Lord remembering His covenant occur only in relationship to the patriarchal covenants (Gn 9:15-16; Ex 2:24; 6:5; Lv 26:42,45; Ps 105:8). The mention of God remembering His covenant is contrasted with Jerusalem's forgetting the terms of her relationship with God (Ezk 16:22,43). When this new relationship is established, the people will remember their ways and be ashamed. The everlasting covenant is the new covenant spoken of in Is 59:21; 61:8; and Jr 31:31-34, but it should be viewed as closely related to the Abrahamic covenant. The features of the new covenant were actually the outworking of the basic elements of God's promises to Abraham (Is 55:3; Jr 32:40).

16:62 Prophetic passages that announce the restoration of Israel (I will establish My covenant with you) reflect the teaching of Dt 30:3. The letters to the churches in the book of Revelation illustrate how God acts in a similar way by disciplining His church (Rv 2:14,20).

17:2 A riddle (Hb chidah) is an obscure and mysterious saying. It hides the truth it imparts, while a parable (Hb mashal) elucidates the truth that underlies it by putting it in fresh light. Judges 14:12-19 offers an example of how a riddle might be developed and handled in popular usage.

17:3 The great eagle in this verse is Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon (v. 12). He was a brilliant military strategist and succeeded his father, Nabopolassar, in 602 b.c. The fulfillment of the riddle came in Nebuchadnezzar's campaign against Jerusalem in 597 B.C. and his deportation of Jehoiachin (and Ezekiel) as part of the second deportation to Babylon (2Kg 24:10-12). The historical background behind this passage may be found in 2Kg 24:8-20; 2Ch 36:9-13; Jr 37; 52:1-17. Lebanon refers to Jerusalem (v. 12). In ancient times the Lebanon mountain range was covered with cedars. The cedar refers to David's dynasty, his royal family. The top of the cedar removed by the king of Babylon was Jehoiachin, who was taken into exile in 597 B.C. (2Kg 24:8-16).

17:4 The phrase land of merchants may be translated as "land of Canaan." Merchants and Canaanites can be interchanged due to the affinity of the Phoenicians for trade (Zph 1:11). The term is occupational rather than geographical. Here the phrase refers to Babylon (Ezk 16:29), the great center of commerce in all Asia.

17:5 The land's seed in this verse is King Zedekiah of Judah, son of Josiah (2Kg 23-34).

17:6 This image (low in height with its branches turned toward him) represents Zedekiah turning toward Nebuchadnezzar to whom he owed his power. The spreading vine may be of low stature to represent the loss of thousands of Judah's leading citizens to deportation (2Kg 24:15-16; Jr 52:28).

17:7 While the first eagle represents the king of Babylon, the second great eagle is Egypt. This eagle is the Egyptian pharaoh, either Psammetichus II (595-589 B.C.) or Hophra (589-570 B.C.). King Zedekiah of Judah attempted to seek Egypt's aid in an attempt to break free from the Babylonian yoke. For the details of these events, see 2Ch 36:13; Jr 35:5-7; 44:30; 52:11.

17:9 Taking up the roots signifies the abolition of national existence (Am 2:9). In this specific case, it refers to the deportation of Judah to Babylon.

17:10 The east wind is the hot, dry wind known in Hebrew as the chamsin. The east wind is an instrument of God's will. Note the effect of the east wind in the exodus narratives (Ex 10:13; 14:21; cp. Ps 78:26), as well as in Jonah (Jnh 4:8) and Hs 13:15. King Zedekiah was violating Dt 17:16.

17:13 The phrase he took one of the royal family and made a covenant with him describes Nebuchadnezzar's installation of his own puppet king, Mattaniah, whom he renamed Zedekiah after Jehoiachin was removed from the throne. The people of the upper class of the land were carried away with Jehoiachin to Babylon (2Kg 24:15).

17:16 This prophecy (he will die in Babylon) was fulfilled in 2Kg 25:7.

17:19 Nebuchadnezzar had forced his vassal covenant on King Zedekiah of Judah (2Ch 36:13). The oath had been sworn to the God of Israel, so a violation of the agreement would bring the anger of the Lord. The king's most serious transgression was not against Nebuchadnezzar but against his responsibility and loyalty to God. As a consequence, God would carry out the impending punishment of exile and imprisonment in Babylon (2Kg 25:7,11-21).

17:22 Other prophets used a variety of horticultural expressions—including "shoot," "sprout," and "branch"—to designate the messianic figure who would revive the Davidic line (Is 4:2; 11:1; Jr 23:5; 33:15; Zch 3:8; 6:12). In this context, a sprig (Hb yoneqeth) serves as a forerunner of the messianic figure mentioned in later salvation oracles. God would replant a king from the line of David on the mountain heights of Israel. The mountain on which the cedar will be planted is the symbol of a mighty kingdom (Is 2:2; Mc 4:1).

17:23 Birds thriving under a leader's protection is a repeated biblical theme (Dn 4:20-22; Hs 14:5-7). The expression birds of every kind recalls the flood story (Gn 7:14). God's plan includes all the peoples of the world.

17:24 The concept of the Messiah as the low tree or "dry tree" awaiting glorification fits with the view of the Messiah as Suffering Servant. This passage should be correlated with Is 2:2-4 and Mc 4:1-4 where it is said that in messianic times the entire world will recognize the Lord and be subject to His will on Mount Zion. A new sprig will be planted and will flourish under the blessing of the Lord's protection. The fulfillment of this prophecy awaited the arrival of a greater son of David, Jesus the Messiah, who would claim the world as His kingdom (Jn 12:32; cp. Rv 22:16-17).

18:2 The Hebrew word for set on edge describes the effect on the teeth that results from eating grapes. The word appears elsewhere only in Ec 10:10, where it is used of blunted or worn iron. It may indicate the sensation of eating something bitter or sour. In the Ten Commandments, God said He would visit sin on the third and fourth generations of those who rebel against Him (Ex 20:5). This was intended to warn adults that their sins would have ominous influence on their children's lifestyle choices and thus on their relations to God. Following the model of their parents, they would choose sin and thus earn God's punishment. The people in Ezekiel's day misconstrued this reality, as reflected in this proverb accusing God of unfairness. A person's sin may outlive him and have negative repercussions on other people (Ezk 18:19-32), but God does not punish the innocent for the sins of others. This misinterpretation of God's justice is also reflected in Lm 5:7: "Our fathers sinned; they no longer exist, but we bear their punishment." The proverb was current in Jerusalem as well (Jr 31:29-30); see Dt 24:16.

18:3 God demanded that the people not recite this false proverb. It not only misconstrued God's conduct and character, but those who recited it regarded themselves as completely innocent (Pr 26:9).

18:5 The righteous person's actions are described largely in accordance with the Holiness Code (Lv 17-26).

18:6 In OT times, mountains were often the location for idolatrous sacrifices (20:28; 34:6; Hs 4:13). This verse affirms that the righteous person would not be involved in idolatrous practices (does not eat at the mountain shrines). An Aramaic translation of this verse suggests that what was forbidden was "eating sacrifices of the dead." To draw near a woman is a euphemism for sexual intercourse (Lv 18:14; Dt 22:14; Is 8:3).

18:7 On returns his collateral to the debtor, see Ex 22:26; Dt 24:12-13. Robbery refers to the seizure of property, usually by the rich (Is 3:14; 10:2; Mc 2:2).

18:8 This moral statute not to lend at interest is based on Lv 25:36-37. The law prohibited charging interest on loans made to fellow Israelites (Ex 22:25; Lv 25:35-37; Dt 23:19-20). Deuteronomy 23:20 allowed an Israelite to charge interest to a foreigner.

18:9 Because a person was called righteous in the OT does not mean that he was sinless or that he kept the law in every detail. It does affirm that he was a willing member of the covenant community who obeyed the ordinances of community life and sought atonement through the sacrificial system when he violated a law (Jb 1:1; Php 3:6). For the righteous person in the OT, to live refers to life in all its fullness. A meaningful life is one that enjoys the fullness of relationship with God and thus includes communion with God (Ps 63:3; 73:27-28). The expression of Ezk 18:9 does not advocate "works righteousness." Salvation has always been by faith (Hab 2:4). However, there is no real faith where there are no real works of righteousness (Jms 2:17). God intends for good works to characterize His people. They are created in Christ for this purpose (Eph 2:10).

18:10 The phrase sheds blood occurs often in Ezekiel (16:38; 22:3,27; 23:45; 33:25). Its frequency indicates that human life was not valued among the Israelites at the time of the exile.

18:12 The poor and needy are often mentioned together in the OT (Dt 24:14; Jr 22:16; Ps 35:10; 37:14).

18:13 The expression his blood will be on him indicated that the one who performed a justified capital punishment (i.e., the executioner) was free of any guilt. The blame lay with the offender.

18:20 God's judgment does not recognize fathers and sons, only those who are righteous and those who are wicked.

18:21 True repentance involves confession, sorrow for sin, and a pledge to live an obedient life (Ps 51:1-12).

18:22 God will forgive and receive anyone who turns to Him in repentance and faith, no matter the degree of his past rebellion (v. 21; Rm 5:6-11; Eph 2:1-8; Col 1:20-22; 2Pt 3:9). There is no reason for a person to live under condemnation for past sins if he is truly repentant and has experienced the new birth (Rm 8:1-17).

18:24 On turning from righteousness to iniquity, see Heb 2:3 and 2Pt 2:20-22. These verses contain warnings against those who knowingly and willfully turn from God. Those who are right with God will persevere to the end (Mt 10:22; 22:13; Mk 4:1-20).

18:30 Every person will face a final judgment in which obedience to God's commands will be fairly and justly evaluated.

18:31 What had been promised earlier in the book (11:19) is viewed now as attainable but not inevitable. Later in the book of Ezekiel (36:26-27) the people of Israel are promised a new heart and a new spirit. In this verse the people are commanded to obtain these new qualities. In similar fashion, Dt 10:16 commands God's people to circumcise the whole heart, which Dt 30:6 says is accomplished by the Lord. This same tension between human obligation and divine grant is also found in the NT (Php 2:12-13).

18:32 In every generation the church must be warned of a coming future judgment. This warning is meant to affect how we live (Rm 14:10,12; 2Co 5:10; Gl 6:7-8). Though believers are spared from eternal punishment, there are consequences for ongoing disobedience (Rm 11:22; 1Co 15:2; Col 1:23; Heb 3:14).

19:1 Sad songs of the type found in chapter 19 are known in Hebrew by the name qinah, which means "funeral dirge" or "funerary lament." They have a unique meter, and their content is similar to modern eulogies (2Sm 1:19-27). The switch of subjects from Ezekiel 18 seems to indicate that the emphasis on individual responsibility also applies to the monarchy of Judah. This chapter would therefore indicate that the house of David fell not because of the sins of past kings (Josiah was righteous), but because of the sins of the kings during the time leading up to the exile. The pronouncement of this rejection in the form of the funeral lament suggests that the house of David had been overwhelmed by the powers of death.

19:2 The mother in this allegory is the nation of Israel, who had produced the kings of the nation.

19:3 Genesis 49:9 seems to be the background for Judah, the royal line, being compared to a lion. In the Balaam oracles, the nation itself is compared to a lion (Nm 23:24; 24:9). The first cub-king represents Jehoahaz, son of Josiah. He was crowned by the people after Josiah's death but was almost immediately deposed by Pharaoh Neco. He was then brought in fetters to Egypt after reigning only three months (2Kg 23:30-34).

19:4 The expression they led him away with hooks is also found in an Assyrian inscription that describes captives being led away during the reign of King Ashurbanipal.

19:5-9 This lion displayed greater power than the first by tearing down strongholds and devastating towns. The nations trapped him also, leading him with hooks to the land of Babylon. This second lion appears to refer to Jehoiachin. After a reign of only three months and ten days (2Ch 36:9), Jehoiachin was imprisoned in Babylon for 37 years until the Babylonian king Evil-Merodach released him. Jehoiakim died in Jerusalem, so he was not included in this lament (2Kg 25:27-30; Jr 52:31-34).

19:10 Ezekiel used the vine metaphor in 15:1-8 and 17:5-10 with reference to the decline and fall of Judah (Is 24:7; Jr 2:21; 6:9). But this imagery of the vine typifies the nation of Israel as a whole (Ps 80:8-16; Is 5:1-7; 27:2-6). The combination of lion and vine may be derived from Gn 49:9-11.

19:12 The east wind represents Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon and his army. The image refers to the capture and death of King Zedekiah and the destruction of Jerusalem in the siege of 586 B.C.

19:13 Zedekiah was captured in the desert (wilderness) near Jericho, blinded, bound in chains, and taken to Babylon (2Kg 25; Jr 52).

19:14 Fire destroying the fruit of the vine recalls the image of Jotham's fable, in which the worthless bramble caused a fire that consumed the cedars of Lebanon (Jdg 9:20). The Davidic dynasty and the Israelite monarchy appear to come to a sudden end in Zedekiah. Fire is alternatively a symbol for annihilation or ongoing punishment (Gn 19:24; Jr 50:32; Am 1:4,7,10,12,14; 2:2,5; 7:4; Mt 25:41; Rv 20:14). The scepter will be temporarily removed from Judah as a punishment for sins. In the person of Christ, however, God's promise that the scepter will not depart from the line of Judah (Gn 49:10) will be ultimately fulfilled.

20:1 As in 8:1 and 14:1, a delegation of elders came to Ezekiel's home seeking an oracle from the Lord. It had been almost 11 months since the vision of the abominations of the temple in 8:1.

20:4 Like chapters 16 and 23, chapter 20 presents a negative view of Israel's history, but unlike them, it does not use allegory.

20:5 The phrase I swore an oath is literally "I raise my hand in oath." The uplifted hand (vv. 5,15,23,42) was apparently a gesture used when a person made an oath (36:7; 44:12; 47:14; Ex 6:8; Neh 9:15; Ps 106:26). The phrase descendants of Jacob's house is a reference to all Israel (i.e., Israel and Judah; see 37:25). The statement made Myself known to them in the land of Egypt recalls the Lord's encounter with Moses in Ex 6:3, where God swore by oath and revealed the meaning of His name. Ezekiel portrayed the Israelites in Egypt, not the patriarchs, the recipients of the oath. Israel's history as a nation began in Egypt where God chose her. He took an oath to bring His people into the fruitful and glorious land that He had promised Abraham (Gn 12:7; Ex 3:8,13-18; 6:1-8; Jr 3:19).

20:6 Though one would expect the Hebrew term nathan ("give") in the phrase a land I had searched out for them, the verb tur ("search") is used instead. This term is taken from the desert wandering accounts, where the Lord went before the Israelites, scouting places for them to rest or camp (Dt 1:33; Nm 10:33). The phrase a land flowing with milk and honey occurs in Ex 3:8,17; 13:5; 33:3; Lv 20:24; Nm 13:27; Dt 6:3; 11:9; 26:9; 27:3; Jos 5:6; Jr 11:5; 32:22 (cp. Dt 1:25; 8:7-9). Deuteronomy 8:7-10 and Jr 3:19 describe the natural beauty of the land of Israel. Its true significance, however, was its designation as God's dwelling place (Dt 12:5,11).

20:7 The idols of Egypt became Israel's idols as well. Joshua 24:14 also mentions that the Israelites had worshiped foreign gods. On Israel's idolatry in Egypt, see Lv 17:7; 18:3; Ps 106:7; Ezk 23:3; Am 5:25-27.

20:8 Their act of ignoring the word of the Lord (unwilling to listen to Me) demonstrated the inward attitude of the people toward God.

20:9 God's name would be degraded if He did not perform what He had proposed for the nation of Israel. Moses had used this same argument effectively in His intercession for Israel after the golden calf incident and in the wilderness (Ex 32:12; Nm 14:16).

20:10 The reference to the wilderness evokes the judgments God had to execute upon His rebellious people (Ex 32:15-35; Nm 11; 14:10-38; 16:31-50; Ps 106:7-48).

20:11 The phrase the person who does them will live by them appears to come from Lv 18:5. Deuteronomy 30:15-19 states forcefully that to follow the commandments is to choose life and blessing; not to follow them is to choose death and curse. Obedience of the law was the response of a person who realized how much God loved him. This truth is similar to Jesus' statement, "If you love Me, you will keep My commands" (Jn 14:15).

20:12 The prophet, in harmony with Is 58:13-14 and with Moses himself (Ex 20:8-11), commanded the Israelites to sanctify the Sabbath. The Sabbath was a visible manifestation of the Mosaic covenant (Is 56:1-8). With its regular one-day-in-seven observance, the Sabbath was at cross-purposes with the nature-based calendars of the pagans, which revolved around the seasons and phases of the moon. The Sabbath was a perpetual reminder of Yahweh's covenant with

His people.

20:13 The Sabbath was profaned if it was not observed (Jr 17:21-23) or was improperly observed (Am 8:5).

20:15 The phrase I swore to them is literally "I lifted up my hand." The upraised hand was used earlier in reference to God's oath to bring the chosen people into the promised land (v. 5). Now the expression is used to refer to the solemn oath that this generation would never enter (v. 15). Later, Ezekiel used the formula to describe God's announcement that the people would go into exile (v. 23).

20:16 Israel failed at one point to enter the land of Canaan because of unbelief (Nm 14) expressed in four specific violations: they rejected My ordinances, profaned My Sabbaths . . . did not follow My statutes . . . went after their idols.

20:21 The rebellion of the second generation refers to acts of apostasy following the incident of the spies, particularly the events at Meribah (Nm 20) and Baal Peor (Nm 25).

20:23 The Pentateuch is silent about this remarkable oath (I swore) to exile the people, but it is alluded to in Ps 106:27. God made this oath before His people had even entered the land.

20:25-27 One of the ways that God punishes sin is to abandon people to it, so that they suffer its consequences. Thus the statutes and ordinances in this verse refer to the futile and blameworthy commandments of the pagan religions to which Israel had turned. These laws "required" the Israelites to sacrifice every firstborn (v. 26), a practice condemned by God (Lv 20:1-5). These statutes and ordinances devastated rather than blessed the people who obeyed them. In Ezk 14:9 God said He intentionally deceived false prophets. Similarly, the present passage says God gave the rebellious people worthless and unprofitable statutes (cp. Is 63:17). Ongoing disobedience leads to ever greater sin, until God finally turns people over to deception (Ps 81:12; Ezk 14:9; Ac 7:42; Rm 1:24-25; 2Th 2:11). Even in judgment, the rebellious came to know that God is Yahweh. The phrase they made every firstborn pass through the fire refers to the child sacrifices made by followers of the pagan god Molech. According to pagan perception, sacrifices made to a god put that god in your debt, such that he or she was bound to act favorably toward you.

20:28 These practices were common in pagan worship (Dt 12:2; 2Kg 16:4; Jr 3:6; 17:2; Hs 4:13).

20:30 The primary apostasy of the nation of Israel was idolatry—violation of the first commandment. This transgression demonstrated Israel's rebelliousness, and it was a clear violation of the covenant. The history of Israel from its very beginnings is a history of turning from God. All humans, no matter their nationality or ethnicity, share in the same sin nature that leads to this rebellion.

20:32 Here we find an allusion to the account of the choice of the initial Israelite king in 1 Samuel 8. This led to the election of Saul as Israel's first king. The designation of the heathen gods as wood and stone should have been enough to signal that these heathen gods were mere fictions. The same expression occurs in Dt 4:28; 28:36.

20:33 The phrase as I live recalls the language of Ex 6:6, which describes God's opposition to Egypt and its pharaoh. A strong hand and outstretched arm calls to mind God's strength in delivering His people from Egypt (Dt 4:34; 5:15; 7:19; 11:2; 26:8; Ps 136:12). Ironically, now His hand and arm will bring wrath rather than deliverance for His people.

20:34 The phrase I will bring you from the peoples that describes Israel's exodus from Egypt is now given a new twist. The ferocity that was once unleashed upon Egypt will now be turned against rebellious Israel to force her to accept God's kingship over her in the land.

20:35 Israel's exile among the nations is compared to the wilderness tradition in the book of Numbers. God's restoration of Israel would be like a return to the desert through which she journeyed on her way to the promised land (Hs 2:14).

20:37 The phrase pass under the rod appears to be an allusion to the Levitical law of counting animals for the tithe (Lv 27:32-33). While the selection in Leviticus was for dedication, here it is for destruction. God uses this metaphor to portray the purge of Israel that will take place when the temple is destroyed.

20:39 Desecrations of the holy name are recorded in Lv 18:21; 20:3; 21:6; 22:32.

20:40 The phrase on My holy mountain occurs only here in the book of Ezekiel. It refers to Jerusalem or Zion (Ps 2:6; 3:4; 15:1; Is 11:9; 56:7; 57:13; 65:11; Ob 16; Zph 3:11). The reference to the high mountain of Israel in Ezk 17:22-23 and 40:2 also relates to Jerusalem, anticipating a renewed Israel at worship on a high mountain in chapters 40-48. The term serve is a technical word for priestly ministry. Thus this expression (serve Me in the land) is in harmony with the goal established at Mount Sinai—that the created nation would be a kingdom of priests (Ex 19:6).

20:41 The Lord will accept the people as a soothing or pleasing aroma, an expression used of God's response to an animal sacrifice. Only here in the OT is the expression used in reference to people as a "soothing aroma." This paves the way for Paul's application of the expression to the church in 2Co 2:14-16. In Eph 5:2 the term refers to Christ.

20:43 Ezekiel's expression you will loathe yourselves for all the evil things you have done describes a thorough repentance (6:9; 16:63; 36:31; Lk 15:17-19). Such a humiliating experience was the surest antidote against the pride that had led Israel again and again to rebel against God. Perceiving God in His holiness and majesty causes one to abhor one's sinful ways (Jb 42:5-6; Is 6:5).

20:44 The first fulfillment of this promise (when I have dealt with you because of My name) took place immediately after the exile. It also awaits a future fulfillment, according to Paul in Rm 11:25. When used in application to morality, the term corrupt acts occurs elsewhere only in Gn 6:11-12 where it describes the corruption of the human race before the flood.

20:46 The orientation in the phrase face the south and preach against it would be from the north, the direction of a Babylonian invasion.

20:47 The prophetic image of fire for judgment is particularly evident in Amos 1-2. It has already been used by Ezekiel in connection with the covenant metaphor of the vine (Ezk 15:4-7; cp. 19:12,14). Fire is routinely a means of divine punishment in the Bible (Gn 14:23-28; Dt 28:24; 32:22; Rv 20:15).

21:2 Every time the phrase son of man, turn your face toward appears, it is in a judgment context. In Lk 9:51 the Son of Man, Jesus, "determined (lit "turned His face") to go to Jerusalem" against which He soon announced judgment (Lk 19:41; 21:20-24).

21:3 God's opposition to His people is expressed by the image of the drawn sword, the common way of referring to warfare in the OT. History would prove that God's drawn sword was King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon and his armies. The sword refers to divine judgment in Is 31:8; 34:6; and 66:16.

21:4 No one will survive the coming invasion, not even the righteous. The Bible advocates corporate responsibility. The principle is illustrated in the case of Achan (Jos 7:1-26; see Ezk 18:1-4). For Judah as a nation, it was too late to repent; destruction was decreed. Individuals could repent and have assurance of eternal life, but many righteous people were going to be swept up in the coming destruction. Even today, Christians should not assume that God will preserve the righteous from general disasters or judgments against nations.

21:5 Ezekiel's prophecies against foreign nations declared repeatedly that they would be annihilated "that they may know that I am Yahweh" (25:7,11,17; 26:6; 39:6). The same paradox occurs in the exodus story. For example, in Ex 14:4 God declared that He would destroy Pharaoh and his army so that the Egyptians would know that He was Lord. God will not bring upon His people a partial defeat and exile this time, as was the case in 598 B.C. when Ezekiel was exiled. This time, God will finish the job through His agent, the Babylonians.

21:10 The scepter symbolized the Lord's covenant promise to David that his house would have eternal title to the throne of Jerusalem (2Sm 7). This promise was rooted in the blessing spoken by Jacob, which said that the scepter would never pass from Judah (Gn 49:10). This interpretation is reinforced by the Hebrew phrase beni (My son), an echo of Gn 49:9 and 2Sm 7:14. Judah's hope in the midst of judgment was that the ultimate "scepter of Judah," the Messiah, would never be extinguished.

21:14 In verse 17 the act of clapping the hands together is associated with God's wrath. It should also be viewed here as an expression of anger (6:11). The mention of three strikes of the sword may refer to the three attacks and deportations that the Babylonians launched against Jerusalem in 605, 597, and 588-586 B.C.

21:20 Rabbah was the capital of Ammon (Jr 49:2). It is the location of modern Amman, the capital of Jordan. The combined conspiracy of Judah and Ammon against Babylonia in 589 B.C. undoubtedly precipitated this coming of the Babylonian army (Jr 27:3).

21:21 The practice of shaking marked arrows in a quiver, letting them fall to the ground or shooting them into the distance and then interpreting the pattern, was known as belomancy (2Kg 13:15-19). It was a form of casting lots. The idols (Hb teraphim) appear to have been miniature household gods that were consulted even by Israelites (Gn 31:30; Hs 3:4; Zch 10:2). The examination of the liver of a sacrificial animal—called hepatoscopy and the best known of these practices in Mesopotamian literature—is mentioned only here in the OT. Though God did not condone divination in any form, as sovereign over the earth He controls all things. Thus in some sense even pagan practices could, by God's choice, reveal His will (Jnh 1:7).

21:23 Divination is expressly prohibited in Dt 18:10 and 2Kg 17:17. The phrase sworn an oath to the Babylonians probably refers to the treaty oaths made by Babylonia and Judah.

21:26 The turban was worn by priests, but it also served as a setting for the crown (Ex 28:36-37; 29:6; 39:31; Lv 8:9). The removal of these signs of dignity signifies degradation, as in Jb 19:9 and Lm 5:16. The removal of the priesthood and the kingship from Judah is symbolized by the removal of the high priest's turban (Ex 28:4,37,39; 29:6) and the king's crown.

21:27 The turban and the crown would not be worn again until He comes—a clear reference to Gn 49:10 and the king-priest Messiah (cp. Heb 5-7). Ezekiel used this reference with its messianic overtones to emphasize that the kingship (and priesthood) would be removed in judgment but returned ultimately in the Messiah's coming in accord with Gn 49:10 (Ps 2:6; Jr 23:5-6; Ezk 37:24; Zch 6:12-15).

21:31 The fire of the Lord's fury reflects the covenant curses. Fire was a symbol of divine judgment (Dt 28:24; 32:22).

22:2 Seven times in this prophecy (vv. 1-16) the words blood or "bloodshed" occur, suggesting that the crimes against God's covenant were routine as well as thoroughgoing in Jerusalem. Rabbinic tradition relates this oracle to Manasseh's shedding of innocent blood in Jerusalem (2Kg 21:6). As in Ezekiel 18, the catalogue of crimes listed here derives especially from the Holiness Code in Leviticus 17-26. The city is personified as a person violating the Mosaic law. Verses 1-16 are very similar to Is 1:2-31 and may be an allusion to that prophetic text.

22:3 These two sins (sheds blood . . . makes idols) summarize the violation of the Ten Commandments which legislated stipulations about a person's relationship to God as well as to his fellow man. Rather than loving God, the city had turned to idolatry. Love for fellow Israelites had been replaced by treachery. The city's pouring out of blood is countered by God's pouring out of wrath (v. 22).

22:5 As a result of their lack of obedience, God had made them a reproach and a mockery to all the nations. Paul had the same concept in mind when he addressed Israel in Rm 2:24.

22:6 The indictment of verses 6-12 contains a catalogue of sins based on the regulations in Leviticus 18-20. The kings are specifically indicted because it was their responsibility to make sure justice was administered in the community, especially by protecting the poor and weak (Ps 72:1-4).

22:7 The lack of concern for those in need (fatherless and widow) was a clear violation of the Mosaic covenant (Ex 22:20; 23:9,12; Dt 14:29; 16:11,14; 24:19-21; 26:12-19).

22:9 Leviticus 19:16 contains the only other occurrence of the legal word slander (Hb rakil) in the Bible. There it is also associated with bloodshed. Thus it is clear that Ezekiel was alluding to a legal stipulation that would have been well known to his audience. Ezekiel's use of the Hebrew word zimmah (immoral acts) to denote unchastity (vv. 9,11; 16:27,58; 23:21,27,35,44,48) followed the tradition in the Mosaic law (Lv 18:17-18; 19:29; 20:14).

22:10 The reference to their father's wife means stepmother rather than birthmother. Lewdness with one's stepmother is a violation of the law in Lv 20:11 (cp. 1Co 5:1; see Dt 22:30; Am 2:7).

22:11 All the sins mentioned in this verse were specifically forbidden in the law (Lv 18:7-20; 20:10-21; Dt 22:22-23,30; 27:22).

22:12 You have forgotten Me is the explanation for all the listed violations. Forgetting God is another way of saying that they have rejected His covenant (Dt 4:23; 8:19).

22:15 The residents of Jerusalem will be scattered all over the world (among the countries) if they continue to pursue disobedience. Moses had warned Israel that continual national disobedience would lead to dispersion (Lv 26:27-39; Dt 28:64-68).

22:18 Just as precious metals are melted to remove dross, Israel will be purified by fire to remove sins and impurities. Now the city will once again be melted by the heat of God's wrath in the furnace of Jerusalem. The Babylonians would execute this fire of God's wrath when they burned and sacked Jerusalem.

22:21 The phrase will be melted within the city may refer to the misery of being besieged by foreign enemies, which in itself was a divine punishment (Dt 28:52-57). The image of the smelter's fire was used by Ezekiel to represent the final purge that God planned for Judah. It is also an eschatological picture, referring to the time when God will purge His creation of sin (2Pt 3:9-14; Rv 20:15).

22:24 Ezekiel's combination of rain and judgment goes back to the account of the biblical flood in Genesis (Gn 6-8). Just as the purpose of this flood was to cleanse the world of human wickedness and violence (Hb chamas; Gn 6:5,11), the Lord declared that a similar kind of cleansing was now overdue for the land of Israel (Ezk 13:11; 38:22). The withholding of rain was a covenant curse (Lv 26:19).

22:26-27 Government officials were supposed to protect people, the first function of government being the establishment of justice for everyone (Rm 13). The denunciation of the leadership in Ezk 22:25-28 has such close affinities to the denunciation of leaders in Zph 3:1-4 that there may be some kind of relationship between these two texts. For instance, each passage contains a nearly identical list of leaders. Even more striking is the fact that both passages describe the officials as wolves (Zph 3:3) and the priests as those who do violence to My instruction (Zph 3:4). It is possible that Ezekiel knew this oracle from the prophet Zephaniah.

22:30 This proposal (I searched for a man among them who would repair the wall) is reminiscent of Gn 18:22-33, where God promised to spare Sodom and Gomorrah if only 10 righteous persons were found there. Although we normally think of a prophet as one who represented God and delivered His word to the people, it is also true that the Bible includes intercession (stand in the gap) as part of a prophet's task (1Sm 12:23; Jr 37:3; 42:2). Compare the task of the prophetic "watchman" (Ezk 3:17-21; 33:1-6).

23:2 Since Israel was often portrayed as the wife of God (Jr 2-3; Hs 1-3), Ezekiel used the metaphor of harlotry (two women) to describe Samaria and Jerusalem. While chapter 16, another allegorical passage, focuses on Judah's idolatry, chapter 23 emphasizes Judah's illicit foreign alliances in addition to her idolatry. In chapter 16 the issue is Israel's trust in other gods; here she trusts in other nations.

23:3 Adultery and prostitution were both odious to God and punishable by death, according to numerous legal passages in Leviticus (Lv 19:29; 20:10; 21:9) and Deuteronomy (Dt 23:17). The adulterous cities will be destroyed.

23:4 Samaria, the older one, embraced idolatry and international alliances much earlier than Jerusalem. She would also precede Jerusalem in captivity. The phrase they became Mine recalls marriage rituals described in 16:8-13. The two names Oholah and Oholibah relate to the Hebrew noun 'ohel (tent), corresponding to the cities they represent. The names recall the period when Israel lived in tents in the desert, reinforcing the notion of long-standing harlotry since that was a time in which Israel suffered punishment for its idolatries. Both names may have a connection to the tabernacle where God "met" with His people in the wilderness. The meaning of "Oholibah" (Jerusalem), "my tent is in her," may indicate that God's house, the temple, in fact resided in Jerusalem (2Sm 6:17; 1Kg 8:4; Ps 48:1-14). The mention of the mother of the sisters emphasizes their common origin from the united nation of Israel that existed for a time. The cities were the capital cities of the northern and southern kingdoms, respectively.

23:5 Prostitution here represents political alliances with pagan powers—not idolatry as in chapter 16 (v. 15). The graphic language underscores God's disgust with Israel for playing the game of international politics rather than relying on Him for security and support. Samaria's (Oholah) relations with the officers of Assyria presupposes the earlier alliance under Jehu's descendants Menahem (2Kg 15:17-22) and Hoshea (2Kg 17:1-6). The Black Obelisk of the Assyrian king Shalmaneser III (dated ca 841 B.C.) mentions "Jehu son of Omri" and actually shows him bowing to the Assyrian king, paying homage. This is one of the most significant archaeological finds related to biblical studies because it provides extrabiblical evidence for Jehu's submission to an Assyrian ruler.

23:11 Rather than embracing her God-given mission to bring the message of salvation to the nations (Gn 12:1-3), as a prostitute Jerusalem used the nations for her own advantage. Judah allied with Assyria (2Kg 16:7-9) and then Babylon (Ezk 17:13; 2Kg 24:1,17; cp. Is 39:1-8). Ezekiel may also have had in mind the disastrous political move of King Ahaz, who willingly made Judah Assyria's vassal. Rather than trusting God for deliverance (as Isaiah urged him to do), Ahaz enlisted Assyria's aid. With that act Judah became a vassal of Assyria for the next century (2Kg 16:5-9; Is 7).

23:14 Like the idols of the house of Israel in 8:10, these male images were carved on a wall. Visual art in Bible times was often painted on walls.

23:20 The reference to relations with Egypt (lusted after their lovers) may recall Solomon's early alliance with Egypt (1Kg 3:1) and Jehoiakim's support from Pharaoh Neco before he turned to Babylonia (2Kg 23:31-24:7).

23:23 The word Chaldeans, often interchanged with Babylonians, initially referred to the people living north of the Persian Gulf. Pekod, Shoa, and Koa were Aramean tribes east of the Tigris River that were allied with Babylonia. Ezekiel may have mentioned such obscure, distant lands and peoples in order to convey to Israel the idea that "the whole world" was against them (chaps. 38-39).

23:31 The cup in the Bible is a neutral metaphor, based apparently on the custom of the host to pour wine into the cup of each of his guests (Ps 16:5). It was most frequently used, however, to refer to a toxic or intoxicating drink (Ps 75:8; Jr 25:15-16; Lm 4:21; Hab 2:15-16)—a cup of judgment or a cup of wrath (Is 51:17; Jr 51:7; Rv 17:3-4; 18:6). The motif of the cup was to culminate in Jesus, who absorbed in His own person the fullness of God's judgment, accepting it willingly from His hand (Mk 14:36).

23:34 Beating the breast was the customary response to a crisis (Is 32:12; Nah 2:7). The tearing of breasts intensified the image.

23:38 The defiling of God's sanctuary in Jerusalem was documented in chapter 8. Samaria, by its practice of worship at the illegal sanctuary of Bethel, defiled God's true sanctuary (1Kg 12:25-30).

23:41 Incense and oil not only belonged to the Lord, but they were products used in the offering of sacrifices.

23:42 The word drunkards may also be rendered as "men from Sheba." Sheba was located at the southwest corner of the Arabian Peninsula (modern Yemen) and was known for trading (27:22; 38:13; 1Kg 10:1-10; Jb 6:19).

23:46 Terror and plunder were standard types of covenant punishments (Lv 26:16-17; Dt 28:31,66-67; 32:25).

23:47 Stoning was the prescribed punishment for idolatry, child sacrifice, and adultery (Lv 20:2; Dt 13:10; 17:5; 22:21,24). These are the same judgments

Ezekiel had pronounced earlier (16:40-41).

23:48 The actions of the Israelites and the consequences they suffer will provide a warning to other nations.

24:1 The date of this prophecy is significant. This was the day that Nebuchadnezzar's siege of Jerusalem began in January of 588 B.C. Later in Israel's history the date became an appointed fast day and was observed as early as the time of the prophet Zechariah (Zch 8:19). This was the day Ezekiel had been pointing to for more than four years. The date was so significant that it was also mentioned by the writer of 1 and 2 Kings (2Kg 25:1) and by the prophet Jeremiah (Jr 39:1; 52:4).

24:3 This is the last occurrence of the phrase the rebellious house, which is unique to Ezekiel (2:5-6,8; 3:9,26-27; 12:2-3,9,25; 17:12). Those left in Jerusalem were like the choice meat intended for the pot, as opposed to the discarded by-products that represented the people taken away into exile. Now Ezekiel will utter a parable based on the same sort of imagery, once again (11:11) condemning rather than reassuring Jerusalem.

24:4 The phrase every good piece refers to choice offerings (Nm 18:12), including the breast and thigh (Gn 32:32; Ex 29:26-28; Lv 7:28-36; 10:12-15; Nm 18:18).

24:5 The flock elsewhere in Ezekiel represents the people of Israel (chap. 34). Thus the pieces of meat (choicest of the flock) probably picture Jerusalem's inhabitants, who would be "boiled" in the judgment fire of Nebuchadnezzar's siege.

24:6 Jerusalem is called the city of bloodshed, just as the pagan city of Nineveh is in Nah 3:1. Rust represents injustice and bloodguilt (22:6-12).

24:7 Uncovered blood evoked God's vengeance (Gn 4:10; Is 26:21).

24:16 A blow resulted in a sudden death either from combat (1Sm 4:17; 2Sm 18:7) or from plague or disease (Ex 9:14; Nm 14:37; 17:13; 25:8-9). The statement take the delight of your eyes away from you is reminiscent of God's command to Abraham (Gn 22) to offer his son as a sacrifice.

24:17 In this passage five of the typical gestures of ancient Israelite mourning are alluded to: groaning (Is 24:7; Mal 2:13), removing one's turban or sandals (2Sm 15:30), covering one's lips (Mc 3:7), and eating special mourning bread (Hs 9:4). In addition, dust was often thrown atop the head (Jos 7:6; 1Sm 4:12). These practices were never prescribed in the law, but they became standard responses to tragedy.

24:21 The destruction of the sanctuary included the fall of the city. God's destruction of the people's sanctuary is one of the covenant punishments prescribed for national disobedience in the Mosaic law (Lv 26:31). Jerusalem died (as did Ezekiel's wife), and with it the temple and the prescribed methods of worship. This created a first-rate identity crisis for Hebrews who wished to remain faithful to God.

24:22 The people were not permitted to mourn; Jerusalem's fall was foretold and yet they persisted in sin. Thus they should have expected this judgment. The Mosaic law did not call for mourning over those who were justly executed for their crimes, and in like manner the citizens of Jerusalem had no right to mourn for the just execution of their city. Besides, they would not have time to mourn in any event since they would immediately be taken as captives to Babylon.

24:26 This prophecy, which says a fugitive arriving from fallen Jerusalem will mark the end of Ezekiel's silence, is fulfilled in 33:21-22.

24:27 Ezekiel's ability to speak again will signal that his six-year ministry of announcing judgment is over and a new ministry of consolation will begin.

25:1-32:32 This section of Ezekiel bridges the book's message of doom and its message of hope. Doom for Israel's antagonists spells hope for Israel itself. The placement of these oracles at this point disrupts the flow of the book and heightens the tension as the destruction of the temple is imminent. God's judgment on these nations is based on the Abrahamic covenant, which said that those who cursed Israel would be cursed by God (Gn 12:1-3). All the nations named in the oracle had either taken part in Jerusalem's destruction or had rejoiced over it. The audience for these oracles was Judean, and so they had cause for future hope.

25:2 Ammon, Moab, and Edom are mentioned in the order of their geographic location, from north to south. The Ammonites are perhaps mentioned first in this section of oracles because the only previous oracle against a foreign nation was also about Ammon (21:28-32). The Ammonites were descendants of Abraham's nephew, Lot (Gn 19:30-38). The Ammonites were known for their idolatry (1Kg 11:7,33), cruelty (Am 1:13), pride (Zph 2:9-10), and opposition to God's people (Dt 23:3-4; Jdg 3:13; 1Sm 11:1-3; 2Sm 10:1-14; 2Kg 24:2; Neh 4:3,7-8).

25:7 With ironic justice, the nation that rejoiced over the destruction of Judah (v. 3) will suffer the same fate. They will be conquered and oppressed by their enemies, a standard covenant punishment (Lv 26:16-17; Dt 28:31,33,43).

25:8-9 Like the Ammonites, the people of Moab were descendants of Lot and one of his daughters (Gn 19:30-38). Shortly after the Israelites were released from Egyptian bondage, the Moabites caused a great setback for the young Israelite nation by introducing them to Baal worship (Nm 21:1-25; 31:16). Judah went on to dominate Moab both politically and militarily throughout much of its history. During Ezekiel's time, however, Moabite troops joined forces with Nebuchadnezzar and attacked King Jehoiakim of Jerusalem (2Kg 24:2). When Judah was defeated the Moabites responded with delight (Jr 48:29; Zph 2:8-9).

25:12 The struggle between Edom and Judah began when their respective patriarchs were born as twin brothers. Jacob, who went on to father the Israelites, grabbed the heel of Esau, who fathered the Edomites, as they struggled to emerge from Rebekah's womb (Gn 25:21-34). Centuries later, shortly after the Israelites emerged from bondage in Egypt, Edom refused to let them pass through their land en route to Canaan (Nm 20:14-21). This was the beginning of a long adversarial relationship between Israel and Edom. There were conflicts between Israel and Edom during the reigns of Saul (1Sm 14:47), Solomon (1Kg 11:14-22), Jehoshaphat (2Ch 20:1-23), Jehoram (2Kg 8:20-21), and Ahaz (2Ch 28:17). The most blatant example of Edom's opposition to the people of God was Edom's role in the destruction of the Jerusalem temple (Ps 137:7; Lm 4:21-22; Ob 1-14). Like the Moabites and Ammonites, the Edomites were a warring (Gn 27:39-40), idolatrous (2Ch 25:14,20), cruel (Am 1:11-12), and vengeful (Ezk 25:12-14) people. Ezekiel and other prophets declared that Israel would possess Edom in the end time (35:1-36:15; Is 11:14; Dn 11:41; Am 9:12; Ob 18-19). This prophecy was fulfilled when Edom was defeated by the Maccabees and incorporated into the Jewish state.

25:14 God announced His verdict on Edom, and this judgment is further expanded in 35:1-36:15. Edom is always included in oracles against nations by the Major Prophets.

25:15 The Philistines migrated to the coast of Palestine from the Greek coasts and islands of the Aegean Sea (Jr 47:4; Am 9:7; Zph 2:5). As early as the time of the judges they were constant adversaries of Israel (Jdg 3:31; 10:7; 13-16; 1Sm 4; 13; 31; 2Sm 5; 2Kg 18:8; 2Ch 21:16-17; 28:18). David was credited with the final subjugation of the Philistines during his reign (2Sm 5:17-25). Though there is virtually no record of the existence of the Philistines after the time of the Maccabees (second century B.C.), the region of Canaan came to be called Palestine (Philistine = Palestine).

25:16 The Cherethites (possibly Cretans) were presumably an ethnic group of Aegean origin that settled along the southwestern coast of Canaan. By David's time they had such a positive relationship with Israel that David chose many Cherethites as his personal guardsmen (1Sm 30:14; 2Sm 8:18). They are frequently mentioned along with the Pelethite forces that together formed a mercenary unit during the time of David (2Sm 8:18; 20:23). The Pelethites and Cherethites accompanied David on his flight from Absalom (2Sm 15:18).

26:2 The Phoenicians represented the remnants of the original population that occupied Canaan before the Israelites arrived. As the most powerful city on the Phoenician coast, Tyre dominated not only other coastal cities but much of the Phoenician inland areas as well. Tyre's Hebrew name is tsur, which means "rock." Built atop an island off the Phoenician coast, Tyre was virtually impregnable by sea or land. The Assyrians conquered the northern kingdom of Israel (722 B.C.) but were forced to withdraw from their siege of Tyre after five years of effort. Relations between Israel and Tyre were often cordial (1Kg 5; 7). Tyre, the preeminent maritime power of the ancient world, joined Judah in revolt against the Babylonian Empire (Jr 27:3). After Nebuchadnezzar defeated Jerusalem he besieged Tyre for 13 years (585-572 B.C.) but was unsuccessful in his campaign to conquer the offshore rock fortress. In the fourth century B.C., Alexander built a causeway of stone, timber, and rubble a half mile long and 200 feet wide from the mainland to the island. By this means Tyre was finally conquered, thus fulfilling Ezekiel's prophecy (27:36).

26:6 It was not until Tyre's conquest by Alexander the Great that this prophecy (her villages on the mainland will be slaughtered by the sword) was fulfilled. Alexander built a causeway from the mainland to the island and took the city after seven months.

26:14 Nebuchadnezzar besieged Tyre for 13 years. After the siege ended Nebuchadnezzar had political control over Tyre for many years.

26:19 With these words (when I raise up the deep against you so that the mighty waters cover you) the Lord threatened Tyre with a judgment reminiscent of the Genesis flood (Gn 6-8).

26:20 The phrase the Pit is a figurative way of expressing death. It is virtually synonymous with the grave (Pr 1:12; Is 14:15; 38:18).

27:3 Ezekiel portrayed Tyre as a well-built ship. This symbolizes the way Tyre achieved wealth through maritime trade. The inhabitants of Tyre thought the city was indestructible. The warning here is that such pride is the prelude to destruction (Pr 6:17; 8:13; 16:18).

27:5 Cedar from Lebanon was prized for its height and strength (1Kg 4:33; 5:6; 1Ch 17:1-6; Ezr 3:7; Is 2:13). The material was often imported into Israel from Lebanon for building projects.

27:7 Egypt was known for its fine linen cloth (Gn 41:42; Pr 7:16).

The ruins of the ancient seaport city of Gebal (27:9) or Byblos, located in present-day Lebanon 27:12 There is much debate about the exact location of Tarshish*. While the place cannot be identified with certainty, it has often been linked with Tartessus—a Phoenician colony in western Spain. The nation of Spain was a source of metals in the ancient world.*

27:16 Phoenicia was known for trade in purple dye derived from shellfish. Both names for the country, Phoenicia (Gk Phoinikos) and Canaan, mean "purple."

27:23 In ancient Near Eastern sources, Eden was considered to be a district south of Haran, mentioned in connection with Haran in 2Kg 19:12. See Beth-eden in Am 1:5.

27:26 Tyre's ruin came in the very element where she was most at home—the open seas.

27:27 The demise of another world system, Babylon the Great, is described in the book of Revelation. The articles of Babylon's worldwide commerce (Rv 18:12-13) are similar to what is mentioned here in the description of Tyre's fall.

28:2 This ruler of Tyre may be identified as Ittobaal II, whose name meant "Baal is with him," or Ethbaal III. Possibly the language was kept vague so that the condemnation could aptly describe any Tyrian king. Like the inhabitants of Tyre, the ruler of this city was guilty of pride (27:1-9; Pr 6:17-8:13; 16:18).

28:3 The fame of the prophet Daniel had spread in the exile, even beyond the bounds of his own people (14:14,20; Dn 1:20; 2:48; 4:18-27; 5:11-12; 6:3). Daniel's character was just the opposite of the pride and self-sufficiency of the king of Tyre.

28:10 In his disgraceful death, the king of Tyre will join the ranks of the uncircumcised. Since Phoenicians as well as most other ancient Near Eastern males practiced circumcision, Ezekiel's use of the term must be figurative. The point is that the king will be assigned to the most undesirable compartment of the netherworld, along with other degraded and unclean persons (31:18; 32:17-32).

28:13 The prideful king of Tyre is compared either to a guardian angel at the “mountain of God” (v. 14) or to errant Adam in the garden of Eden. Nine of the twelve precious gemstones listed here were included on the high priest’s breastpiece (Ex 28:15-20; 39:10-13).

28:14 Though the context is an oracle against the king of Tyre, many believe that this anointed . . . cherub should ultimately be identified as Satan himself. In that case the passage would have double reference. As an angel, Satan had continuous and unhindered access to the glorious presence of God before he rebelled.

28:17 The primary fault of the Tyrian king was greed. This may explain why there are numerous allusions to the garden of Eden in the account. As Adam and Eve attempted to obtain equality with God (Gn 3:4), so also did the king of Tyre (Ac 12:20-23). Also, the description is similar to that which is given for the serpent in Rv 12:9.

28:21 Sidon was another key Phoenician port city. It was located 25 miles north of Tyre. Sidon and Tyre often are mentioned together (Jr 27:3; 47:4; Jl 3:4). During times when Tyre was in decline, Sidon would increase in prominence. In the Persian period, Sidon stood at the head of the Phoenician cities.

28:23 As in the account of the exodus, God will gain glory from the execution of judgment on the enemies of His people (Ex 14:4,17-18).

28:25 The gathering of God’s people is a common theme in Ezekiel and later biblical books (11:17; 20:34,41-42; 29:13; 34:13; 36:24; 37:21; 38:8; 39:27; Neh 1:9; Zch 10:8,10). Another common theme in Ezekiel is the demonstration of God’s holiness (vv. 22,25; 20:41; 36:23; 38:16; 39:27).

28:26 Once the nations that treated Israel with contempt are destroyed, the exiles will return to the land of Israel (Gn 12; 28; 35) and rebuild their community. Then they will exhibit God’s holiness in the world.

29:2 Egypt was Israel’s constant foe after keeping the nation in bondage for 400 years during its early history. This oracle against Egypt is somewhat unique insomuch as God promises to restore the pagan nation to its land after a period of 40 years. If Egypt fell to the Babylonians about 568 B.C., as implied in the chronicles of the Babylonian kings, then a 40-year “captivity” of Egypt would have ended under the Persians, who famously encouraged exiled peoples to return to their homelands (2Ch 36:22-23). Though she was restored to her land, Egypt never returned to her former position of preeminence in the international arena. Moreover, her “restoration” may not have been an act of divine grace for Egypt’s sake so much as it was a reminder of Israel’s past faithlessness in the wilderness, which earned them a 40-year penalty (Nm 32:13). When Christ returns, the positions of Israel and Egypt will be reversed. Israel will rule over

Egypt, and the Egyptians will no longer be idolaters but will worship the one true God (Is 18-19).

29:3 In ancient Near Eastern literature, the word monster (Hb tannin) refers to the mythical sea monster, the chaos god, known elsewhere as Rahab or Leviathan. Ezekiel equates Pharaoh with tannin. Like the ruler of Tyre in chapter 28, Pharaoh dared to defy the Lord. Egypt is compared to a dragon in Is 30:7 (Jb 9:13; 26:12-13; Ps 89:9-10; Is 51:9-10).

29:7 Egypt's guilt stemmed from its pact to assist King Zedekiah of Judah in his defiance of Nebuchadnezzar, the agent of God's wrath against Judah. By resisting Nebuchadnezzar, Pharaoh Hophra was hindering the execution of God's plan. Over the centuries, Israel had repeatedly sought aid (military and otherwise) from Egypt against the counsel of God (Dt 17:16; 1Kg 10:28; Is 30:1-3). In Is 36:6 and 2Kg 18:21, placing trust in Pharaoh is portrayed as leaning on a staff no stronger than a reed. The reed will break and injure the hand that holds it. The phrase you splintered, tearing all their shoulders; when they leaned on you looks back to Hophra's unsuccessful attempt to give military support during the siege of Jerusalem. His attack against Nebuchadnezzar in the spring of 588 B.C. failed to relieve Jerusalem (Jr 37:5-10). God's people had once again turned elsewhere for the support they should have sought in Him alone (Is 36:6-7).

Hypostyle Hall in the Temple of Amun-Re at Thebes, Egypt (29:9) 29:12 In the Bible 40 years is a frequent expression for a complete and lengthy period of time (Nm 14:33; 1Kg 2:11). If Egypt fell to the Babylonians in 568 B.C., as most ancient Near Eastern histories maintain, then this 40-year "captivity" of Egypt ended when the Persians came to power.

29:16 After the Babylonians were defeated and the Persians seized control, Egypt was never again a formidable world power.

29:21 Horn refers to the horn of an animal. Because animals used these during conflict, "horn" was used as a metaphor for strength or power (1Sm 2:1; 1Kg 22:11; Ps 92:10; Jr 48:25). Here the reference is to the strength of Messiah and the future restoration of the Davidic monarchy in the aftermath of Egypt's collapse (Ps 132:17; Is 11:1-16). The word "grow" or sprout is a specific messianic image. The ultimate fulfillment of this verse is found in Christ (17:22-24), who will come to the aid of Israel and defend her against the heathen world in the last days (Lk 1:69; Rv 5:6).

30:2 The Day of the Lord theme occurs in many prophetic books (Is 2:6-21; 13; 14; Jl 1-2; Am 5:18-20; Obadiah; Zph 1:2-18; 2:1-3).

30:3 Clouds often appear in texts that address the changes that take place in the end times (v. 18; 32:7-8; 34:12; Jl 2:2; Zph 1:15).

30:5 The phrase men of the covenant land is literally "sons of the land of the covenant." It contains an implied reference to Jewish mercenaries who fought with Pharaoh's forces.

30:13 The judgment that will be executed against Egypt (I will destroy the idols and put an end to the false gods in Memphis) recalls language of the exodus account (Ex 6:6), perhaps suggesting a reenactment of the exodus.

30:20 The date formula indicates that this oracle was announced shortly before the fall of Jerusalem. The date may allude to Pharaoh Hophra's attempt to intervene to deliver Judah from the crisis (Jr 37:5).

30:21 The figurative expression I have broken the arm of Pharaoh refers to Nebuchadnezzar's defeat of Hophra, who attempted to relieve Jerusalem in 588 B.C. (2Kg 24:7; Jr 37:5).

Valley of the Kings containing tombs of pharaohs, across the Nile from Luxor at ancient Thebes (30:21-24) 31:3 Lebanon was known for its cedars (vv. 15-18; Jdg 9:15; 1Kg 4:33; 5:6; 2Kg 14:9; Ezr 3:7; Ps 29:5; 92:12; 104:16). The cedar was a renowned ancient Near Eastern symbol of royalty and majesty. In the Bible it is frequently mentioned in texts describing the production of palaces and temples. The fall of Assyria forms the precedent and paradigm for the fall of Egypt. Isaiah 14:3-23 likewise portrays the demise of the Babylonian king, relating it to the downfall of Assyria (Is 14:24-27; see Nah 3:8-10 for a similar comparison of Egypt and Assyria). Similarly, Isaiah portrayed the Assyrian monarch as a tall tree that would fall (Is 10:5-34).

31:4 This description of the cedar is reminiscent of the primeval waters of Gn 1:2 as well as the location of the trees in the garden of Eden in Genesis 3. These allusions may serve to heighten the origin and significance of the Pharaoh.

31:10 Because the tree representing the Pharaoh had become prominent (great in height), it would be cut down (Is 2:6-21; 10:5-34).

31:15 Though in the OT the godly may express fear of being abandoned by God to Sheol (Ps 88:3), nowhere is a righteous person said actually to have gone to Sheol. The contrast between the destiny of the righteous and the unrighteous after death is most clearly apparent in Psalm 49.

31:18 The trees would die disgracefully as uncircumcised foreigners without a decent burial. This reality would be particularly poignant for Egyptian royalty because they built pyramids in the hopes of making themselves comfortable in the afterlife.

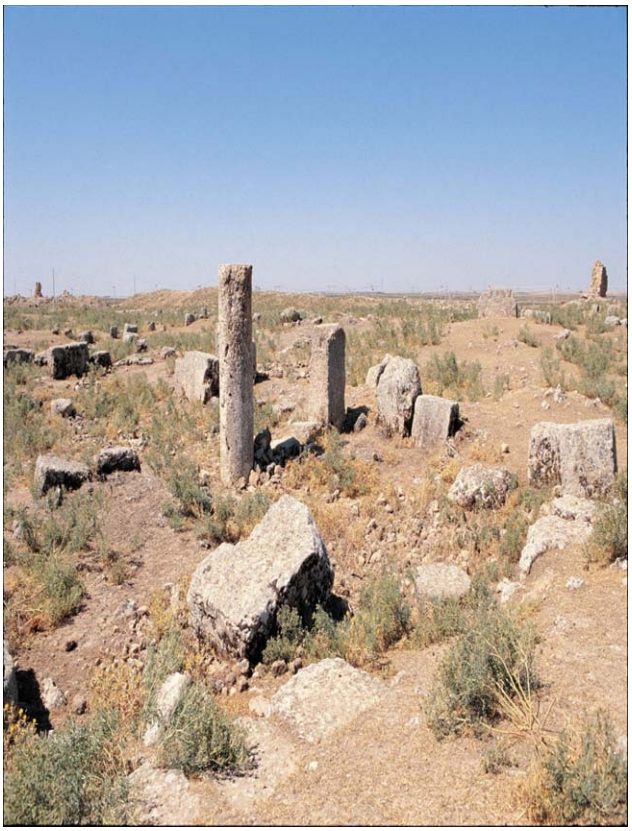
32:2 Many scholars see this as a portrayal of Pharaoh's defeat by God (like a monster in the seas), much like passages that figuratively speak of God defeating the mythical sea dragon Leviathan (Jb 38:8-11; Ps 74:12-17; 104:7-9; Is 27:1). God can lay any foe low, no matter his powers.

32:3 The Lord will cast His net over Pharaoh, a method by which hunters captured crocodiles and lions (19:8).

32:6 The image of flowing blood recalls the plague of blood, the first plague in the exodus account (Ex 7:19-24).

32:7 The darkness in this verse recalls the exodus plague of darkness against Egypt (Ex 10:21-29) as well as the darkness that will accompany the Day of the Lord. On the Day of the Lord the heavens will be darkened, and the sun, moon, and stars will fail to give light (Jl 2:1-2; 3:15; Zph 1:15).

32:12-13 On the night of the first Passover, only firstborn humans and animals died (Ex 12:29). In this coming judgment on Egypt, all people and animals will be destroyed.



The ruins at Haran, the last Assyrian stronghold, abandoned in 609 B.C. when the Babylonians defeated the Assyrian army of Ashur-uballit II (the last Assyrian king), and captured Haran.

32:16 Women by custom served as mourners in the ancient Near East (Jr 9:17-18).

32:19 The reference to circumcision is a metaphor for uncleanness and vileness. It is a theological rather than a literal evaluation. The phrase the uncircumcised is used 10 times in chapter 32 (vv. 19,21,24-30,32), to emphasize that the death of the Pharaoh will be a death of shame and defeat. In this oracle, Egypt was the climactic seventh nation that occupied the underworld (v. 18).

32:26 Meshech and Tubal (see Ezk 27:13) were probably located on the northern border of modern Turkey. They are the allies of Gog in chapters 38-39.

33:1 -2 This announcement of a new oracle (Son of man, speak to your people) begins a transitional section in the book, bridging the oracles about the nations to prophecies of consolation that close the book.

33:2 In ancient times every major town had a watchman stationed at a high point, either at the city gate (2Sm 18:24) or on a lookout tower (2Kg 9:17). The task of the watchman may be seen in several biblical passages (Is 21:6-9; Jr 6:1,17; Hs 8:1; Am 3:6; Hab 2:1). The watchman was not responsible for the fate of the people in the city if he warned them of pending danger. Conversely, he was responsible if he failed to raise the alarm. The watchman is used here as a prophetic agent calling for repentance. The oracle is addressed to the people rather than to the prophet alone (Ezk 3:16-27). The metaphor of the lookout was first applied to Ezekiel in a private message at the start of his career. The prophet's role as sentinel explains how the intention behind Ezekiel's doom prophecy was not death but life—a warning call to repentance.

33:3 The trumpet was made from a ram's horn (Jos 6:4,6,13). It was used to warn the people of approaching danger (Neh 4:18-20; Jr 4:19; Am 3:6; 1Co 14:8) as well as to announce the beginnings of religious celebrations (Day of Atonement, Lv 25:9; New Moon festival, Ps 81:3).

33:6 Given its essential role in biological systems, blood is synonymous with life (see Gn 9:5; 42:22).

33:10 Earlier in chapter 18, charges announced from God through Ezekiel had aimed to convict the exiles of their sin and rebellion. Now that the judgment had become drastic reality (Lm 1:12; 2:13,20), the people felt that total destruction awaited them. But Ezekiel's theme of taking responsibility shows that a person's personal sinfulness is forgivable even if his nation is pressed hard under ongoing judgment. This section (33:10-20) in many ways paraphrases sections of 18:21-32. This is the first time the exiles expressed a consciousness of their sins. Previously they had placed the blame for their predicaments on their fathers (18:2) and even God (18:19,25).

33:12 This section (vv. 12-20) addresses the same subject as 18:21-29. Each person, whether righteous or wicked, has a choice to live faithfully each day.

33:13 Ezekiel 18:21-24 began by addressing the repentant wicked (vv. 21-23) and then moved to the backslidden righteous (v. 24). Here Ezekiel begins with the backslidden righteous and ends with the repentant wicked (vv. 14-16).

33:15 This description of the obedient life answers the question of verse 10: "How then can we survive?"

33:21 The six messages in 33:21-39:29 are dated in this verse. The time it took for the bearer of the news to reach Ezekiel was five to six months. When the exiles returned from Babylon, the journey took four or five months (Ezr 7:9). The siege of Jerusalem lasted two years and seven months (2Kg 25:8). Now that the prophet had been informed of Jerusalem's fall, the prophet would address the restoration of Israel (Ezk 33:21-39:29) and the temple (chaps. 40-48). Many of the prophecies of restoration reverse the earlier images of devastation and ruin. The fall of Jerusalem was a watershed, fulfilling the prophetic judgments; now was time for a message of hope and promise. The fulfillment of the prophecy from 24:26 displays God's sovereign power over history and marks a turning point in the prophet's relation to his listeners.

33:24 This saying (Abraham was only one person . . .) is based on a tradition represented in Genesis 15, in which Abraham, still childless, was promised innumerable descendants and possession of the land. Notice the similarity between this popular saying and one that was prevalent just six years earlier (Ezk 11:14-21). Those who remained behind were repeating their earlier claim to the land (11:15). The lack of heartfelt devotion, as well as the self-centeredness evident in the quotation, contrasts with Abraham's faithfulness and total dependence on God. Abraham is not only important historically, but he is also revered as the father of Judaism, Christianity, and Islam. Abraham was the first person in the Bible to be called a Hebrew (Gn 14:13), and he was the first to be designated as a prophet (Gn 20:7; cp. Ps 105:15). In the Genesis narratives, Abraham demonstrated a strong trust in God and His commands (Gn 12:4; 17:23; 21:14; 22:3). The NT appeals to Abraham as a model of what it means to trust God (Rm 4; Gl 3; Heb 11; Jms 2). Abraham is important not only for his faith but also because of the promises God made to him in a covenant that is central to God's plan for the ages. This covenant is known as the Abrahamic covenant (Gn 12).

33:25 The list of sins in this verse is similar to the basic prohibitions for Gentile believers in Ac 15:29. The list is also similar to OT laws for strangers.

33:27 The dangers mentioned in this verse (sword . . . wild animals . . . plague) are also typical of Mosaic covenant punishment predictions (Lv 26:22; Dt 32:24; cp. 2Kg 17:25-26). Notice the threefold threat in Ezk 5:12; 7:15; 12:16 and the fourfold threat in 14:12-21. Ezekiel's strategy was deliberate. Those who are in the ruins are very unlike faithful Abraham, who received God's promise of land but was also enjoined to walk before God and be blameless (Gn 17:1-8).

33:29 Detestable acts denotes sexual violations of the Holiness Code, particularly Lv 18:26-30 (Ezk 5:17; 14:21). Because they disobeyed the Mosaic covenant stipulations, the Israelites failed to receive the Abrahamic covenant blessings, one of which was the blessing of occupying the promised land (Ex 20:4-5,13-14; Lv 17:10-14; 18:6; 19:26).

33:32 On hear your words . . . don't obey them, see Is 29:13; Mt 21:28-32; cp. Jms 1:22-25.

34:1 Ezekiel 34 is a self-contained literary unit. It begins with the introductory phrase the word of the LORD came to me and concludes with the recognition formula (vv. 30-31). The passage is similar to Jr 23:1-6.

34:2 The shepherds of Israel is a figurative expression referring to political leaders, perhaps primarily the kings. Kings and other leaders were commonly called "shepherds" (2Sm 7:7; Ps 78:70-72; Is 44:28; 63:11; Jr 10:21; 23:1-6; 25:34-38; Mc 5:4-5; Zch 11:4-17). Sheep are the most frequently mentioned animals in the Bible, and those who take care of them, “the shepherds,” appear in approximately 100 biblical passages. Many of the most prominent individuals in the OT were shepherds, including Abraham (Gn 12:16), Isaac (Gn 26:14), Moses (Ex 3:1), David (2Sm 7:8), and Amos (Am 1:1). Because sheep are helpless if left to themselves, a person must have qualities such as care and compassion in order to be a good shepherd. Thus both civil and religious leaders are often spoken of as shepherds of the people, the flock. Just as the leaders of Israel were denounced for exploiting the sheep in Ezk 34:2,8,10, Peter warned elders against leading the church with self-serving motives (1Pt 5:2-3). On the positive side, the shepherd metaphor is used in the NT to describe how church pastors and elders should fulfill their responsibilities (Jn 21:15-17; Ac 20:28-29; 1Pt 5:1-5).

34:4 This characteristic feature of a shepherd (sought the lost) is mentioned in many biblical texts (Jr 50:6; Mt 18:12-14; Lk 15:4; 19:10). The word cruelty is the same word used to compare the oppression of the taskmasters who ruled brutally over the Israelites during their bondage in Egypt (Ex 1:13-14). This type of action was prohibited in the Mosaic law (Lv 25:43,46). A member of the community of Israel was not to be treated this way.

34:5 The verb scattered was often used by Ezekiel to describe Israel’s exile and dispersion (11:16-17; 12:15; 20:23,34,41; 22:15; 28:25). Because the people were scattered they became food for wild animals and wandered over the mountains, but no shepherd searched for them (Mk 6:34).

34:6 This dispersion may allude to the Assyrian and Babylonian captivities, which scattered Israel and Judah among the nations. See the identical figure of a routed army in Micaiah’s oracle (1Kg 22:17).

34:11 The verb to look for (Hb biqqer) is used in Leviticus to refer to the physical examination of a leper (Lv 13:36). In passages that address the offering of sacrifices, the verb describes the examination of a prospective sacrificial animal (Lv 27:33).

34:12 While most exiles were sent to Babylon, this was not the only foreign country that received displaced Israelites (Jr 43:1-7).

34:13 This promise of restoration (I will bring them . . . into their own land) is mentioned in 11:17 and repeated in 20:34,41-42; 28:25. The restoration of the nation is especially emphasized in Ezekiel 38-39 (see also 36:24; 37:21; 38:8; 39:27). These three phrases represent and reflect the exodus from Egypt. Hence, God’s rescuing of Israel from Babylon and restoring her to Canaan follows the model of the formative saving event in the OT—the exodus from Egypt.

34:16 God is the good shepherd (Ps 23; Is 40:11; Jr 23:3; 31:10; Mc 2:12; 4:6-

8) who will gather the dispersed flock. This prophecy was not exhausted when Israel returned to her land after the Babylonian captivity. It still awaits future fulfillment in the millennium. Concern for social justice was a common topic for Ezekiel and other prophets (Is 3:13-15; 5:8; Am 5:12; 6:1-7; Mc 2:1-5). God will execute judgment against the fat and the strong, greedy sheep who trample good pasture and muddy clear waters, gorging themselves while depriving the needy of life's essential resources.

34:23 In addition to God becoming the shepherd for Israel, He also promised to appoint a ruler, the Messiah, from the line of David (see 2Sm 7:12-14a; Ps 89:4,20,29). Jeremiah equated the Messiah with the true Shepherd from the line of David, calling him "a righteous Branch," and "The Lord Is Our Righteousness." During His reign "Judah will be saved, and Israel will dwell securely" (Jr 23:5-6). This identity is also indicated elsewhere in the prophetic literature (Is 55:3-4; Jr 30:9; Ezk 37:24-25; Hs 3:5). David is referred to by name elsewhere in passages that look to the future restoration of Israel (Is 11:1-10; Jr 30:9; Ezk 37:24-25; Hs 3:5). Thus the Lord would be Israel's God; His servant David, the Messiah, would be Israel's ruler on earth after He restored Israel to her land. "My servant David" was a standing title of King David (1Kg 11:34,36,38; 2Kg 8:19; Ps 36:1; 78:70; see Is 55:3-4). David was important not just historically but theologically as well. This is evident from the covenant that God established with him (2Sm 7). This covenant was ultimately fulfilled in the person of Jesus, the Messiah. He is the Good Shepherd (Jn 10:11-18), who descended from the line of David to be King of Israel (Mt 1:1).

34:25 The archetype for this covenant of peace is the covenant with Noah in which the Lord swore after the flood to never again destroy all living things by water (Gn 9:8-17). This covenant should be equated with the new covenant relationship, which will provide peace (Nm 25:12; Jos 9:15; 10:1; Ps 29:11; 85:8; Is 54:10). Because of sin, man lost peace with God (Gn 3:15; 4:8), but peace was available through the Mosaic covenant as a result of obedience (Lv 26:6). The covenant of peace looks forward to the blessings Israel will experience in the millennium. But even now peace may be experienced through relationship with Christ. It is only in Christ, the one true son of David, that this prophecy is fulfilled. Some of the benefits have begun already, such as the peace that surpasses understanding (Php 4:7; cp. Jn 14:27). Other benefits await full implementation at the time when Messiah (the promised Davidic king) comes again. The language used to describe Israel's future restoration (live securely in the wilderness and sleep in the forest) is cast in the language of the exodus, suggesting that the restoration of Israel will be a new exodus, reminiscent of the nation's earlier deliverance from Egyptian bondage.

34:26 In Israel autumn rains signaled the beginning of the rainy season, and spring rains the end (Jr 5:24). Blessing is a term that occurs frequently in the creation account, and this depends on the work of the Creator. God usually blesses His people by ensuring that natural processes work optimally rather than by circumventing them via miracles.

34:27 The term yoke occurs more than 50 times in the Bible. It refers to the wooden bar or frame that joined animals so they could carry or pull a heavier load. The bars consisted of wooden pegs inserted through holes in the yoke. Rope fastened the whole apparatus to the animal's neck, forming a collar (30:18; Lv 26:13; Jr 27:2; 28:10-13). The yoke became a symbol of bondage or of joining together for labor. Most occurrences of "yoke" in the Bible are figurative, as in Ezk 34:27, which represents foreign domination (Dt 28:48; Jr 27:8-12).

34:28 God will banish wild animals. Thus the people will live in safety (Lv 26:5-6). Ezekiel's idyllic picture of the messianic age as a time of universal peace, involving even the animal world, recalls Is 11:6-9 and Hs 2:18-23. The doom prophecies of Ezekiel 1-24 drew on the curses of the covenant documents (particularly Lv 26), and now the restoration visions draw on the language of blessings for covenant obedience (especially those of Lv 26) and present them as unconditional prophecies of future bliss.

34:29 The prophets declared that when Israel was finally obedient to the Lord, she would experience blessings on earth. This same theme occurs in Rm 11:25-27. Agricultural bounty is a standard way of describing the benefits of the restoration age (Dt 30:9; Am 9:13).

34:30 This conclusion (they will know that I, Yahweh their God, am with them) reflects covenant language, as seen in the establishment of Israel's relationship with God at the exodus (11:20; Ex 6:7; Hs 1:9).

34:31 This language (You are My flock . . . I am your God) is associated with reestablishment of the divine covenant established with Moses (Ex 6:7; Jr 7:23; Hs 2:23).

35:2 Mount Seir was the ancient name for the mountainous regions south of the Dead Sea on both sides of the Rift Valley. The Edomites inhabited the region and displaced the former residents, the Horites (Dt 2:12,22). Mount Seir was the central mountain of the Edomite nation and thus was synonymous with the country of Edom itself (Gn 32:3). In 126 B.C. Edom was subjugated by John Hyrcanus the Hasmonean. He compelled the Edomites to become Jews (1 Macc. 5:3,65). King Herod, who sought desperately to kill Jesus as a baby, was himself an Idumean, or Edomite. Edom disappeared following the sixth century A.D. as Arab nomads, who later became known as Nabateans, overran their territory.

Mount Seir is used in this oracle as a foil for "the mountains of Israel" in Ezekiel 36. Most likely Edom was mentioned here to represent the judgment that God would inflict on all nations who opposed Israel.

35:4 This curse (I will turn your cities into ruins) echoes the covenant curse against Israel for its continual disobedience (Lv 26:31).

35:5 The bitter relations between Israel and Edom began in the womb of Rebekah (Gn 25:22-23) and continued with Jacob's deception of Isaac for Esau's blessing (Gn 27). The phrase ancient hatred occurs elsewhere in the Bible only in 25:15 in reference to the actions of the Philistines. The theological significance of the word "hatred" (Hb *' ebah) is clear from its use in Gn 3:15 in reference to the perpetual hostility that exists between the serpent and Eve's descendants. "Hatred" here refers to the hostility between Jacob and Esau, as their personal rivalry (Gn 27:41) spilled over into a national conflict (Nm 20:14-21; 2Sm 8:13-14). When Nebuchadnezzar leveled Jerusalem, the Edomites stood by clapping their hands with joy at this disaster (Ps 137; Lm 4:21; Jl 3:19; Ob 1-14; Mal 1:2-5).

35:6 Twice it is stated in this verse that blood will pursue the Edomites. This is retribution in kind, as the punishment is commensurate with the crime (Ps 109:17; Mt 7:2; 26:52). "Disaster," "blood," and "Edom" sound similar in Hebrew and are thus interrelated in the passage.

35:11 This expression (I will treat you according to) indicates that punishment should be commensurate with the crime. It came to be known as the (Lat) lex talionis . The concept can be seen in principle in texts such as Gn 9:6: "Whoever sheds man's blood, his blood will be shed by man." In Exodus 21 we learn that the compensation had to fit the damage when a person accidentally injured a pregnant woman. The principle cited in the text is: "Life for life, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot, burn for burn, bruise for bruise, wound for wound" (Ex 21:23-25). Simply put, the punishment should fit the crime. This guards against excessive punishment for a wrong committed. It also guards against personal revenge, which rarely matches the crime. As for Edom, her punishment will fit her crime.

35:15 As Edom rejoiced over Judah's fall (Ob 12), so the world would later rejoice over Edom's fall. When God restores Israel's fortunes in the future, He will judge the other nations of the world based on their treatment of Israel (Gn 12:1-3; Mt 25:31-46). Edom declined steadily under Babylonian, Persian, Greek, and finally Roman rule. In the time of Roman rule it was designated as the region of Idumea. During the time between the testaments, an Arabic people, the Nabateans, occupied Edom. They made Petra their capital.

36:1 Chapter 36 is set in antithesis to chapter 35. When God intervenes on Israel's behalf, the "mountains" of Israel's enemies will be judged (35:1-3,8) but the mountains of Israel will be blessed. The terrain of Israel was an elevated region between the Jordan Valley and the Mediterranean Sea coast characterized by mountainous areas (Dt 32:13). Thus, this reference to the mountains of Israel should be understood as a reference to the entire nation.

36:3 That Israel would become the object of ridicule had been foretold in Dt 28:37 and reiterated in Jr 24:9. The term translated slander (Hb dbh) recalls the faithless Israelite scouts and their evaluation of the promised land (Nm 13:32). Now this appraisal was spoken from every side about the nation of Israel.

36:5 The phrase burning zeal occurs elsewhere only in verse 6. Formerly God's passion was kindled by Israel's rebellion against Him; now it flares against the arrogant Gentiles. Edom is once against pictured as representative of all nations that sought to harm Israel (Is 34; 63:1-6). The theological foundation of God's reaction is based on Gn 12:1-3 where God promised that all nations that opposed Israel would be cursed. God's personal identification with the land of Israel is demonstrated by the phrase My land (see Lv 25:23). The term for possession (Hb moresh) is from the same root as "take possession" in 35:10, connecting Edom to the current prophecy as well. Edom's claim of the promised land ridiculed Israel but also insulted God because the land was His and He had given it to His people. In the legal prescriptions for the celebration of the Year of Jubilee, God announced, "The land . . . is Mine" (Lv 25:23).

36:6 The word translated "land" (Hb ' adamah) is not the normal term used in the expression the land of Israel. This term could be rendered "soil" in this context. It would be appropriate in this prophecy of renewal of the land's fertility (Gn 4:2; Pr 12:11).

36:7 The phrase I swear means literally "with uplifted hand." This gesture accompanied the taking of an oath (20:5,15,23; 47:14).

36:8 In the OT, agricultural abundance was seen as a blessing from God (Dt 30:9) and a preview of the blessings of the coming messianic age. The emphasis on fruit-bearing trees and arboriculture before agriculture shifts the focus to the narratives about the garden of Eden (Gn 2:15-16; 3:17-19). This oracle reverses the judgments on the mountains of Israel in Ezekiel 6.

36:9 The phrase I will turn toward you also occurs in Lv 26:9 in the context of the covenant blessings that would accompany obedience to the Mosaic law. Thus the renewed abundance of fruitfulness in the land will coincide with the blessings that accompanied obedience to the Mosaic law (Lv 26:1-13).

36:10 The phrase whole house of Israel refers to the 12 tribes that had originally made up the nation, not just Judah alone. As in 37:15-23, Ezekiel was speaking of the restoration of all Israel.

36:11 The references to increased fertility and population growth (increase and be fruitful) refer back to the creation account where God's blessing upon animals (Gn 1:22) and humans (Gn 1:28) resulted in them filling the earth (Gn 9:1,7). What is promised in this verse is a return to Eden-like conditions, where blessings flow from God's presence among His people. This new fertility will exceed anything the land had ever experienced (Lv 26:9).

36:12 God's people will be able to roam freely in the land of Israel because it will no longer be possessed by her enemies. Walking through land was a way to claim ownership (Gn 13:17; Jos 24:3; 1Kg 21:16). This promise reverses the desolation predicted in Ezk 6:14.

36:13 The threat of the land "devouring" (Hb ' klt) inhabitants not only recalls 5:13-17, but also echoes, for a second time, the statements of the faithless spies about the land of Canaan: "The land we passed through to explore is one that devours (Hb ' klt) its inhabitants" (Nm 13:32).

36:17 Since a woman's monthly menstrual period rendered her unclean under Jewish law (Lv 15:19-30; 18:19), God categorized the conduct of Israel as uncleanness or defilement. A woman in this condition was not eligible to take part in religious activities (Lv 15:19-24). Her impurity lasted seven days, after which she was considered clean and fit to return to the house of the Lord.

36:18 The dual offenses of blood they had shed on the land and idolatry summarize Israel's social injustices and idolatrous practices (22:3). The people have sinned against God and their fellow man—the two categories of sin outlined in the Ten Commandments.

36:19 To be faithful and loyal, God had no choice but to bring on His people the curses of the covenant they had broken, namely scattering them among the nations (see Dt 29:22-28). Moreover, by God's policy the homeland vomits out its inhabitants when it becomes defiled (Lv 18:25,28).

36:20 Though God expelled His people from the promised land for the purpose of chastening and eventually restoring them, their exile reflected unfavorably upon God among foreign nations. The ancients believed that if a people were forced from their land—by conquest, famine, disease, etc.—it was a sign that their god was not strong enough to protect and care for them (2Kg 18:32-35; 19:10-12). Thus the Hebrew exile was taken as a sign that Israel's God was weaker than the gods of the nations that defeated Jerusalem. The nations profaned God's holy name, meaning they defamed His essence, character, and reputation.

36:22 In chapter 20 the expression but for My holy name states the reason for the withholding of divine punishment (20:9,14,22). Here it is the reason for divine restoration. In the NT, concern for God's name is a central theme—"Your name be honored as holy" (Mt 6:9; see Jn 1:12; 12:28).

36:23 The ultimate purpose of God's plans with Israel was that Israel and the whole world would know the true God.

36:25 Once the Israelites have arrived in the land, God will sprinkle them with clean water so they will be clean. This figurative language is based on water purification practices when the priest threw water on persons or objects to cleanse them of impurity (Nm 19:13,20). Sprinkling with water or blood symbolized the cleansing that comes through forgiveness (Ex 12:22; Lv 14:4-7; Ps 51:7; 1Co 6:11). The first order of business for the Israelites when they return to their homeland will be to pay attention to their spiritual condition (Ps 119:9; Is 4:4; Zch 13:1; Heb 10:22). The Lord Himself will sprinkle His people with clean water. On sprinkling with water as a ritual act of cleansing, see Ex 30:19-20; Lv 14:51; Nm 19:18; cp. Zch 13:1; Heb 10:22. The most significant use of water as a cleansing agent occurred during the biblical flood. God inundated the earth to remove the impurities and wickedness that had been caused by man.

36:26 The statement I will give you a new heart and put a new spirit within you reflects the teaching of Dt 30:6-8—that the Lord will circumcise the hearts of His people so they may live in obedience. This radical new creation (Ezk 11:19; 18:31; Jr 31:31-34) was necessary to break the people's bondage to the cycle of sin and retribution emphasized in Ezekiel 20. Regeneration is a secret act of God by which He imparts new spiritual life to dead hearts. This is sometimes called being "born again" (Jn 3:3-8). Texts which address regeneration include Eph 2:5; Col 2:13; Jms 1:17-18; 1Pt 1:3. More than any other prophet, Ezekiel emphasizes the Holy Spirit's role in regeneration.

36:27 When God places His Spirit in His people, they will be able to follow His decrees and keep His laws. Thus, the people will be transformed, never again to profane God's holy name. This work of the Spirit is attested in many passages of Scripture (11:19-20; 18:31; 37:14; 39:29; Jl 2:28-29; Ac 2:17-18; 2Co 3:16-18; Gl 5:16-26). This work of God to transform lives through the implementation of a new heart and a new spirit is referred to in NT as the "new birth" or being "born again."

36:30 What is described in this passage (you will no longer experience reproach among the nations) does not refer to the return to Canaan under Zerubbabel, Ezra, and Nehemiah. Rather, it looks to a final and complete restoration under the Messiah in the end times.

36:31 God's unmerited grace causes sinners to loathe their ways, leading to reflection and repentance (you will remember your evil ways). This chapter moves beyond texts such as Lv 26:40-42 and Jr 31:18-20, where repentance is the driving motivation behind restoration.

36:35 In this prophecy for the land of Israel, God will restore the land to a "better than original" estate. It will become like the garden of Eden, the ultimate symbol of fertility and fruitfulness (28:13; 31:9; cp. Is 51:3; Jl 2:3). It will be paradise regained (Rm 8:19-22; 2Pt 3:13; Rv 21:1-4). Supernatural fertility of the land is one of the characteristics of the messianic kingdom (Is 35:1-2; 55:13; Ezk 47:1-12; Zch 8:12). The replenishing of the land so that it resembles the garden of Eden (Gn 2-3) will reveal God to the nations. The mention of this idyllic state suggests a future fulfillment beyond that which occurred in the return from Babylon under the leadership of Zerubbabel, Ezra, and Nehemiah. These conditions will not be realized until the messianic age. Romans 8:18-25 indicates that creation still longs for complete deliverance from sin's curse.

36:38 The number of people is compared to the numerous sheep that passed through Jerusalem at the time of the appointed feasts (Lv 23). Through God's sovereign empowerment the people can now replenish the earth in harmony with God's purposes for creation—"Be fruitful, multiply, fill the earth" (Gn 1:28; cp. Gn 9:1,7). The phrase a flock of people conveys the idea of abundance (1Kg 8:63; 1Ch 29:21; 2Ch 35:7).

37:1 The introductory phrase the hand of the Lord was on me indicates a new subject. The hand is often used metaphorically for power in Scripture. The arrival of the hand of the Lord upon the prophet speaks of the overwhelming force with which the prophet was seized by God. On the "hand of the Lord" coming upon Ezekiel to overpower him, see 1:3; 3:14; 8:1; 40:1. The work of the Spirit in transporting Ezekiel to a different location occurs in 3:14; 8:3; 11:1,24; 43:5, indicating the beginning of a visionary revelation. As an Israelite trained in the priesthood, Ezekiel knew the importance of treating a human corpse properly. This vast array of skeletons left unburied (it was full of bones) reminded Ezekiel of the execution of the judgment curses for disobedience (Dt 28:26).

37:2 Bones that were very dry indicated that death had taken place long ago. Hence, life was obviously beyond resuscitation (1Kg 17:17-24; 2Kg 4:18-37; but see 2Kg 13:21). Dry bones are a metaphor for a downcast spirit in other biblical passages (Pr 15:30; 17:22).

37:3 Ezekiel was aware that God had the power to raise people from the dead (1Kg 17:17-24; 2Kg 4:18-37; Is 26:19; Dn 12:1-2). But these bones were dry, meaning that the flesh had decayed. This seemed to make resuscitation impossible (can these bones live?).

37:6 When the breath of life is breathed into a body, it comes alive (see Ps 119:25; Jn 6:63).

37:9 The four winds probably indicate the full power of the entering breath since the winds come from every direction. The picture reminds us of the creation event, where the Spirit of God hovered over the raw elements of the world, transforming it into a habitable earth (Gn 1:2).

37:10 The two-stage process of forming the physical body and filling it with the breath of life is patterned after the creation of Adam in Gn 2:7. The use of the same verb (Hb naphach) for " breathe into these slain" (37:9) and " breathed into his nostrils" (Gn 2:7) makes this correlation certain. In both cases the bodies did not come to life until they received an infusion of the Spirit (the words for "wind," "breath," and "spirit" are identical in Hebrew and Greek).

37:11 These bones symbolize the restoration of the whole house of Israel to its own land.

37:12 Continuing His explanation of the vision, God added a new dimension to the resurrection of the dry bones. He declared that He would open the graves of His people and take them from their place of burial, demonstrating the reality of national rebirth. Just as the events in the vision were miraculous, so will be Israel's restoration. The vision showed that Israel's new life depended on God's power.

37:14 Both Elijah and Elisha were involved in resurrection events (1Kg 17:17-24; 2Kg 4:18-37; 13:20-21). The focus on the work of the Spirit expands on the meaning of the statement of 36:27. I will settle you in your own land picks up the theme from the exodus and conquest. It also explains Paul's statement that the reincorporation of Israel into the community of faith was like "life from the dead" (Rm 11:15). The Jews who live in Israel today should not be viewed as fulfilling this prophecy. Rather, the prophecy will be fulfilled when God gathers believing Israelites to the land (Jr 31:33; 33:14-16) at the second coming of Christ (Mt 24:30-31).

37:16 The key word "one" (single in this verse) occurs 10 times in verses 15-28. On the use of a stick or staff to represent a tribe, see Nm 17:1-26.

37:17 By being placed end to end, the two sticks would appear to be a single stick. Ezekiel's contemporary, Jeremiah, shared Ezekiel's prophetic vision of a reunited Israel (Jr 3:12,14; 31:2-6; cp. Ezk 4:4-8; 16:53). Fundamental to all prophecy concerning Israel is the presupposition of a united people, a healing of the breach in the commonwealth of God's people (Is 11:12-13). The prophets recognized the northern tribes as still in existence and knew of no lost tribes (Is 43:5-7; 49:5-6; Jr 3:12-15). Israelites came from the northern kingdom into the kingdom of Judah particularly during the time of crisis (2Ch 15:9; 30:11,18).

37:19 God will reunite the two kingdoms that had been separated since Solomon's death (1Kg 12). For similar reunion prophecies, see Jr 3:18; 23:5-6;

Hs 1:11; Am 9:11. Isaiah 11 also uses the image of a growing tree to symbolize the unification of Israel and Judah under a Davidic king.

37:24 The "servant" language (cp. Is 49; 53) is characteristic of messianic prophecies. The Davidic heritage, represented by such terms as king and My servant David (cp. 2Sm 7:5,8; Ps 89:20) will establish national unity and keep at bay abuses that were prevalent in Judah's preexilic history. The new ruler will embody the ideals established in Dt 17:14-20, submitting to the authority of the Lord. The reunification of the tribes is connected to the fostering of messianic hope (Ezk 37:25-28; cp. Rm 11:25-36).

38:1 The introductory phrase the word of the LORD came to me indicates a change of subject from the previous chapter. The message in chapters 38-39 should be seen as the sixth and last in Ezekiel's series of messages delivered the night before the news about the fall of Jerusalem arrived. The chapters describe the final attempt by foreigners to possess the land of Israel.

38:2 Gog may most immediately refer to Gyges, king of Lysia, from the seventh century B.C. Even so, the reference transcends this Gog's historical circumstances to refer to a leader who will oppose Israel in the far future. A modern parallel would be for us to speak of a prominent but vile leader as a "new Hitler." The only other occurrence of "Gog" is in Rv 20:8. Gog seems to transcend historical categories, serving as a symbol of the forces of antichrist. If so, Gog has become a transnational symbol of evil, much like Edom and Egypt (Ex 15; Is 34; 63:1-6; Mal 1:2-5). The references to the invasion of Gog in Revelation 19-20 allow for the view that Gog represents the "beast" as well as "Satan." Gog's being dragged and led around by hooks (Ezk 38:4; 39:2) may be analogous to or even parallel with God releasing Satan from prison in Rv 20:7. In Ezekiel 25-32 the prophet addressed nations that Judah was familiar with. Now, we read about the plan of God for distant, unknown nations. This is parallel to the book of Revelation's depiction of the battle of Armageddon. Revelation 20:8 identifies Gog and Magog as a figure for all the pagan foes of Israel and the Messiah. Magog is found elsewhere in the OT only in Gn 10:2 and its parallel in 1Ch 1:5, where Magog is identified as the second son of Japhetheh.

Because the Hebrew word for chief (Hb ro'sh) sounds similar to the name "Russia," many modern Bible students have attempted to identify Russia with the "chief" in this verse. This popular identification is based on a faulty etymology, the similarities in sound between Russia and Rosh being purely accidental. "Rosh" never appears as a nation in any biblical text. Furthermore, those who identify Meshech with Moscow and Tubal with Tobolsk likewise operate on faulty assumptions about the etymological evidence.

38:6 Gomer is mentioned as early as Gn 10:2-3. In 1Ch 1:6 he is listed as one of the sons of Japheth. According to Gn 10:3, Togarmah was one of the children of Gomer.

38:8-9 After a long time (lit "in the end of years") is a prophetic phrase that is sometimes applied to the end times (Jr 32:14; Dn 8:26). It alludes to the nearly identical phrase "end of days," which designates the time of the messianic kingdom (Gn 49:1; Is 2:2; Jr 23:20; 30:24; Hs 3:5; Mc 4:1). The attack will be so massive that the invading troops will appear to be like a cloud covering the land. The cloud and the storm are common images in biblical literature announcing prophetic threats (Jr 4:13).

38:11 In Zch 2:4-5 we find that the Lord alone is sufficient protection (Ezk 36:35-36). The phrase living securely describes messianic security after Israel's restoration.

38:12 The phrase center of the world may be translated "navel of the earth." Since the Hebrew word for land can also mean "earth," it could be argued that theologically Jerusalem will be both the center of the land of Israel and indeed of all the earth. The only other occurrence of this expression is in Jdg 9:37, but that text does not refer to Jerusalem.

38:13 Sheba (27:22), Dedan (25:13; 27:20), and Tarshish (27:12) are mentioned in chapter 27 as engaged in trade with Tyre. Sheba, located in the southwestern corner of the Arabian Peninsula (modern Yemen), was known for its trading (Jb 6:19; see Ezk 27:22; 1Kg 10:1-2).

38:16 The phrase so that the nations may know Me refers to an important biblical theme (Ex 15; Pss 46-48; Is 2:1-4; Mc 4:1-5). This invasion will take place in the end times, after the people of Israel have been restored to the promised land and are living securely under the Messiah's rule and protection.

38:20 Such listings of animals are used to allude to the entire created order in the creation story (Gn 1) and elsewhere (Gn 9:2; 1Kg 4:33; Jb 12:7-8).

38:21 God will bring such confusion on those who oppose His people that they will kill one another (Lv 26:37; Dt 28:29). For a similar event in the time of King Jehoshaphat, see 2Ch 20:22-23.

38:22 These judgments against Gog are consistent with the covenant curses of plague (Dt 32:24), bloodshed (Dt 32:42), flood (Gn 6), hail, fire, and brimstone (Jos 10:11). The defeat of Gog by the sword and natural elements highlights God's role as Creator and Governor of nature. The destruction is also reminiscent of the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah (Gn 18-19).

39:4 Ezekiel 39:4-9 is similar to Rv 19:17-18, perhaps referring to the same event.

39:6 The sending of fire (in this case, against Magog) is a common expression for divine judgment (Hs 8:14; Am 1:12).

39:7 God's name will be known among the nations. As a result of His actions against Gog and the coalition, His holy name will be made known among His people Israel. His name will never be profaned again (v. 25; 20:9; 36:20-23; 43:7-9).

39:9 Up to this point in the prophecy about the invasion of Gog, only God has defended His people against this enemy. Now for the first time Israel is called to act, but her role is to conduct a "mopping up" exercise. The carnage left in the aftermath of the defeat of Gog will be so massive that the Israelites will fuel their fires for seven years with the weapons of her slain enemies. Burning the war implements of a defeated foe recalls the burning of boots and blood-stained cloaks elsewhere in Scripture (Is 9:5; see Ps 46:9; 76:3). It also harkens back to when the Israelites burned all that belonged to the Canaanites at the time of the conquest (Dt 7:2; 20:16-18; Jos 6:24). In an ironic reversal, the Israelites will plunder those who had come to plunder them.

39:11 This burial project will be so massive that it will block travel through the land. The name of the valley will be changed to the Valley of Hamon-gog. The only major valley that ran in an east-west direction in Israel was the Jezreel Valley, a vital strategic link on the route from Egypt to Damascus in biblical times. This valley will be the location of the great battle of the tribulation period known as Armageddon (Rv 16:13-16).

39:12 Because corpses were considered unclean (Lv 21:1,11; 22:4; Nm 5:2; 6:6-12; 31:19), the Mosaic law required all humans to be given a proper burial (Dt 21:22-23). Numbers 19:11-22 explains not only the contaminating effects of a corpse but also the process by which a person so defiled could be ceremonially cleansed.

39:17 This sacrificial feast (Is 34:6-8; Zph 1:7) will consist of the flesh and blood of the armies of Gog that had been killed. Birds and beasts will eat fat and drink blood, elements which were reserved exclusively for the Lord when the Hebrews made animal sacrifices (Lv 3:17). Mention of the fat and blood therefore may be a way of highlighting the Lord's participation in the annihilation of Israel's enemies. In standard sacrificial practices, the human worshiper slaughtered an animal before the Lord and partook of the food. For this present feast, the Lord will slaughter humans, and animals will devour their bodies, in contrast to the standard sacrificial procedure and the future banquet meal that Israel will celebrate on Mount Zion (Is 25:6-10). The feasting of wild animals and birds recalls the threatened covenant curse (Lv 26:22; Dt 28:26). Although humans were to have dominion over nature, in their pursuit of evil they become victims of the natural order.

39:18 The mention of the fattened bulls of Bashan is further confirmation that this is the Lord's sacrificial feast because fat and blood were normally reserved for Him (44:15; Lv 3:17). Bashan, east and northeast of the Sea of Galilee, was famous for its fertile land and fat cows (Dt 32:14; Ps 22:12; Am 4:1).

39:24 The image of God hiding His face, turning away from Israel and choosing not to help them, also appears in Dt 31:17-18; Ps 13:1-2.

39:26 The remembrance which leads to shame (they will feel remorse for their disgrace) also occurs in 6:9; 20:43; and 36:31.

39:29 Before the destruction of Jerusalem God had promised to "pour out" (Hb shaphak) His wrath on Israel (7:8; 9:8; 20:13,21; 22:22; 36:18). Now in restoring His people He will pour out (Hb shaphak) His Spirit. This reference to the Spirit of God connects the passage in its entirety to chapters 36-37 with its focus on the Spirit.

40:1 This date (in the twenty-fifth year of our exile) is the thirteenth and final date formula in Ezekiel. The tenth day of the first month marked the beginning of the Passover that was celebrated four days later. Moreover, the twenty-fifth year was the halfway point to the next Jubilee Year when freedom and release would be observed (Lv 25). Jubilee is mentioned in Ezk 46:17 in reference to the return of the prince's inheritance. But the number 25 has another significance in this vision. The dimensions of the temple are dominated by multiples of five, with the number 25 being most prominent. Whereas the opening vision of the heavenly King on His throne had been dated from the exile of the earthly king—Jehoiachin—this vision of the heavenly city is dated from the destruction of the earthly city, Jerusalem.

40:2 This vision provides a literary and conceptual envelope for the entire book. It complements especially the visions of God's departure and the temple's destruction in chapters 9-11. This vision is the longest vision in the Bible apart from the book of Revelation. As Ezekiel received legislation for the new age upon this high mountain, it is natural to compare the experience of Moses receiving the law on Mount Sinai. Indeed, Ezekiel is the only person in the OT except Moses who transmitted legislation that he received directly from God. As Ezekiel's vision was a vision of the city of Jerusalem, it is likely that this "very high mountain" is a reference to Mount Zion, often cited for its great height in the OT (17:22; Is 2:2; Mc 4:1; see Zch 14:10).

40:3 The measuring rod was used for short measurements. It was about 10 feet four inches in length.

40:5 The dimensions of the temple and the city are dominated by multiples of five. The gate structure measured 25 by 50 cubits; the temple house with its adjoining structures, 50 by 100 cubits; the inner court and the quadrangles of the temple area, 100 by 100 cubits; and the entire temple complex, 500 by 500 cubits. The number of steps (7 + 8 + 10) leading to the temple adds up to 25. The length of the measuring rod (six units of 21 inches) followed the more common cubit length. The shorter cubit, 18 inches, was used in later times (2Ch 3:3).

40:7 The alcoves, guardrooms, or recesses inside the gates were one rod long and one rod wide (10 feet long and 10 feet deep; see also v. 10). The projecting walls between the alcoves were five cubits thick. Guardrooms were also a part of the Solomonic temple (2Ch 12:11). This pattern also occurs at Solomon's fortified gates uncovered at the cities of Gezer, Hazor, and Megiddo. Each gate had an initial threshold, three recessed chambers on either side, and an inner vestibule.

40:16 Representations of the palm tree also decorated Solomon's temple (1Kg 6:29,32,35).

40:17-19 A paved surface functioned something like a border around the outside edges of the outer court. Along this pavement were 30 rooms used by the Levites (perhaps for meals) in other Israelite temples (Neh 13:4-14; Jr 35:2-4). The distance from the outer gate to the exterior of the inner court was 100 cubits, or 175 feet. The dimensions of the northern and southern gates as well as the space between these gates to the inner court were identical to the dimensions of the east gate (vv. 17-27).

40:28 There was no western gate for this temple because the temple occupied the western side of the compound.

40:39 A burnt offering is mentioned in early texts such as Gn 8:20; Ex 10:25; and Jb 1:5. Burnt offerings were performed at momentous occasions in Israel's history (Jos 8:31; 1Kg 9:25). The purpose of burnt offerings was to honor God and attract His attention. Times of thankfulness (Gn 8:20) as well as times of crisis (Jdg 20:26) called for such offerings. The burnt offering may be considered the most important sacrifice since it was the most prominent sacrifice in the festivals (Nm 28-29). It was distinctive insomuch as the entire offering (apart from the skin) was offered, leaving none for the priest to eat. But even burnt offerings were inferior to the sacrifice of Jesus Christ, who offered Himself for sin once for all (Heb 10:1-4,10). The entire sacrificial system foreshadowed the death of Christ for the sins of the world.

For inadvertent sins, some were to be purified by the sin offering (Lv 4:1-5:13) while others required a restitution offering (Lv 5:14-6:7). In distinction to the sin offering, the restitution offering was required for offenses that created a debt between humans or between a human and God, as for instance if someone had improperly handled one of God's "holy things," such as the implements in the temple. It is of great Christological significance that the offering of the Suffering Servant in Isaiah 53 is described as a restitution offering (Is 53:10).

This passage was interpreted to be a prophecy of the suffering of the Christ by NT writers (see Mt 8:17; Lk 22:37; Jn 12:38; Rm 10:16; 1Pt 2:22,24-25), and thus Jesus' death is understood as a restitution offering that removed the debt we owe to God.

40:46 According to the book of Ezekiel, the Zadokites will be distinguished from the Levites in the coming age. The Zadokites were sons of Zadok, who traced his Levitical lineage to Aaron through Aaron's son Eleazar (1Ch 6:50-53). Zadok served as a priest under David, along with Abiathar (2Sm 8:17; 15:24-29; 20:25). Zadok was appointed chief priest during Solomon's reign because he supported Solomon as king (1Kg 1:32-35; 2:26-27,35). The Zadokites were elevated and the Levites demoted out of concern for ritual purity, a dominant subject in Ezekiel 40-46.

40:47 In Ezekiel's temple, square shapes (175 feet long and 175 feet wide) are often associated with holy places. The most holy place was a perfect cube (41:4).

41:6 There were three tiers or stories of 30 rooms per tier on the sides of the temple (1Kg 6:5-10), yielding a total of 90 side rooms. The rooms widened as one went upward. They may have been designated for the storage of temple equipment and temple treasures (1Kg 6:5-10; 14:26; 2Kg 14:14).

41:18-19 Cherubim and palm trees were carved on the wall of the outer sanctuary and into the structure of Solomon's temple (1Kg 6:29-30). Cherubim were associated with the appearance of God in the visions of Ezk 1:4-28 and chapter 10. Unlike the cherubim in the earlier visions, the cherubim in the temple had only two faces—a human face and a lion's face—instead of four faces. In the Genesis narrative, the cherubim served as guards of the garden (Gn 3:24). Here in the temple as well as in Ezekiel's earlier visions, the cherubim likewise served as guards over God's dwelling place. Palm trees may represent fruitfulness, but they also remind us of the trees in the garden of Eden.

41:22 This altar stood outside the most holy place. This table was probably for the bread of the Presence (Ex 25:30; Lv 24:5-9; 1Kg 7:48).

42:13 It was customary for Israelite priests to eat a portion of the most holy offerings that the Israelites offered to the Lord (Lv 2:3; 5:13; 6:16,26,29; 7:6,10). The Hebrew word minchah, translated grain offerings, was probably borrowed from the administrative or political arena since the term was used to refer to gifts in the secular world (2Kg 8:8-9; 17:3-4). When used in the religious sphere, it referred to a gift presented by a worshiper to his Lord. The grain offering was usually offered with a burnt offering and often with the fellowship offering as well. The grain offering was a gift to the Lord that honored Him as the source of life and the land's fertility. The NT says that just as OT believers offered grain to God, Jesus Christ as the Bread of Life offered His life to God (Jn 6:32-35).

42:15 After the guide had finished measuring what was inside the temple area, Ezekiel was brought outside to survey the temple from the outside.

42:20 The temple complex had a wall all around it, 875 feet long and 875 feet wide, a complete square. In the tabernacle only the most holy place was square.

43:2 God's glory as seen particularly in the exodus narrative, the Sinai legislation, and the wanderings in the wilderness was the visible manifestation of His presence among His people. In chapter 43 the return of the glory of God to the temple indicates a reversal of the tragedy described in chapters 10-11. God's glory is always described as radiant or very bright (10:4; Lk 2:9; Rv 21:11,23). The glory of the Lord returned through the east gate, the gate from which it had earlier departed (10:18-19; 11:23). The roar of mighty waters often accompanies a vision of God (1:24; Rv 1:15; 14:2; 19:6).

43:4 Chapters 40-42 focused on structures and spaces during temple construction. Now the focus is on filling those spaces. This is similar to the approach in Genesis 1, where spaces (domains such as water, land, and sky) are formed in Days 1-3, whereas Days 4-6 focus on filling those spaces with creatures. Israel's judgment began when God's glory departed from Solomon's temple in Jerusalem (Ezk 8-11). The climax to her restoration as a nation now took place as God's glory reentered the new temple in Jerusalem.

43:7 The filling of the temple with God's glory will begin with the most holy place (vv. 1-9) and end at the corners of the outer court, with the description of the activities in the kitchens (46:24). The place for the soles of My feet is another way to describe the "footstool," the place for a king's feet when seated on a throne (1Ch 28:2; Ps 99:5; 132:7; Is 60:13-14; Lm 2:1). The phrase I will dwell among the Israelites forever indicates God's reason for entering the temple. This renews the promise of 37:26-28 (cp. 43:9; 1Kg 6:13; Zch 2:11). The corpses of their kings refers to the burial of kings near the temple. The proximity of these graves to the temple defiled the temple (1Kg 2:10; 11:43; 2Kg 21:18,26).

43:13 After the return of the glory of the Lord to the temple, the first issue to be addressed is the altar, the place of sacrifice. The altar was mentioned in 40:47, but now becomes the focus of temple activities. Because of the altar's size and height, it was necessary that steps lead up to it on the east side (Ex 20:26).

43:18 On blood . . . sprinkled on it, see Ex 29:16; Lv 4:6; 5:9.

43:20 When material objects were atoned for, they were purified and cleansed from the impurities that had resulted from sin (Lv 8:14-15). The purification of the altar with blood is analogous to the sprinkling of blood on the priests at their ordination (Ex 29:16), on the altar on the Day of Atonement to make atonement for the people (Lv 16:18-19), and on the people to seal the covenant (Ex 24:1-8).

43:21 Some sacrificial animals were taken outside the sanctuary (Ex 29:14; Lv 4:12,21; 8:17; 9:11; 16:27). This action foreshadows one aspect of Christ's sacrifice (Heb 13:11-13).

43:26 The consecration of the altar for seven days was performed at the Festival of Tabernacles (1Kg 8:65-66; Ezr 3:1-7). It resembled the ordination of priests (Ex 29:1-37; Lv 8).

43:27 The fellowship offering was prescribed on three specific occasions: the Feast of Weeks (Lv 23:19-20), the completion of the Nazirite vow (Nm 6:17-20), and the installation of the priests (Lv 9:18,22). This offering appears to have been closely associated with the burnt offering which it followed. Like the burnt offering and often in association with it, the fellowship offering was offered on momentous occasions in Israel's history (Ex 24:5; Lv 23:19; Dt 27:7; 1Sm 11:15; 1Kg 8:63-65). What was distinctive about the fellowship offering was that the offerer could share in the sacrifice. As such it expressed the joy of fellowship around a shared meal. In this regard it resembles the celebration of the Lord's Supper.

44:1-2 After the ceremony for the consecration of the altar had ended, the guide brought Ezekiel back to the outer gate of the sanctuary, the one that faced east. Then the Lord informed the prophet that the gate was to remain closed because the God of Israel had entered through, giving it a special degree of holiness. Today in Jerusalem the east gate, known as the "Golden Gate," is likewise sealed.

44:5 Ezekiel is depicted here as the new Moses. After the entrance of God into the temple (as God descended on Mount Sinai), God revealed statutes and laws to His prophet.

44:6 A rebellious . . . house is a common phrase in the book of Ezekiel (2:5-6,8; 3:9,26-27; 12:3,9,25; 17:12; 24:3).

44:7 This description of the defilement of the temple may refer to the practice of using foreigners as guards in the temple (2Kg 11:14-15; see Jos 9:23,27). Nehemiah carried out this statute when he dismissed Tobiah (Neh 13:8), an Ammonite (Neh 2:10; cp. Dt 23:3).

44:10 This event (Levites who wandered away from Me when Israel went astray) may refer to the rebellion of the Israelites during Israel's wilderness wanderings (Nm 16-18).

44:11 This restriction regarding sacrifices goes beyond the earlier stipulations that allowed laymen to present and sacrifice their offerings (Lv 1:1-5,11).

44:12 The specific violation described in this verse (ministered to the house of Israel before their idols) is not clear. Suggestions include the sins of the priesthood during the incident of the golden calf (Ex 32) and the announced judgment against the house of Eli during the days of Samuel (1Sm 2).

44:15 The priest Zadok traced his Levitical lineage to Aaron through Aaron's son Eleazar (1Ch 6:50-53). He served as priest under David, along with Abiathar (2Sm 8:17; 15:24-29; 20:25). He supported Solomon and thus secured for himself and his descendants the privilege of serving in the Jerusalem temple (1Kg 1). Zadok was appointed chief priest during Solomon's reign (and hence over the first temple) because he supported Solomon as king (1Kg 1:32-35; 2:26-27,35).

44:17 When the Zadokites entered the sanctuary, they had to be appropriately dressed for service to God. Clothes made of wool were forbidden because this material caused the wearer to perspire. Sweat, like other bodily excretions, was considered defiling (Dt 23:11-13).

44:23 On teach . . . the difference between the holy and the common, see a similar purpose for priests in Lv 10:10-11.

44:24 Priests functioned as judges early in Israel's history (1Sm 4:18; see also 2Ch 19:8-11).

44:25 The same requirements for priests (may not come near a dead person) are found in the Mosaic law (Lv 21:1-3).

44:28 The statement that priests were not to own land (I am their inheritance) is identical to the Mosaic legislation (Nm 18:20,23-24; Dt 10:9; Jos 13:14,33; 18:7).

44:31 The priests were not allowed to eat anything that had been torn by a wild animal or was found dead (Lv 22:8; Dt 14:21).

45:1 In Ezekiel the allotments of the land were aligned with the east-west orientation of the temple. This differed from the divisions after the conquest in Joshua's time. These divisions did not follow any pattern. The allotment of the land is outlined in greater detail in 47:13-48:35.

45:5 The designation of the Levite settlements as towns or cities (Hb 'arim) recalls the Levitical cities prescribed in Nm 35:1-8. The centralization of the priests in this new arrangement contrasts with the rest of OT history when priests and Levites were scattered throughout the land.

45:9 Israel's political leaders had disregarded the rights of others throughout their history (19:1-9; 22:6,25; 34:1-10).

45:10 The law warned against cheating people with false weights and measures (Lv 19:35-36; Dt 25:13-16; Mc 6:10-12). Holiness in the temple required just, standardized, honest measures as well (Pr 11:1; 20:10; Am 8:5).

45:22 The fact that the prince will make a sin offering for himself shows that he was not the promised Messiah.

45:23 The offering of seven bulls and seven rams daily conflicts with the offerings for the Passover Festival in Nm 28:19.

46:1 While the east gate of the outer court was permanently closed (44:2), the east gate of the inner court could be opened during special days like the Sabbath and the New Moon festival.

46:2 On the Sabbath and the New Moon festival, the prince was to enter from the outside through the portico of the temple, and the priests were to sacrifice his burnt offerings and his fellowship offerings. In the preexilic period, a king sometimes performed priestly functions (1Kg 8:63; 2Kg 16:12-13).

46:4 The Mosaic law called for two lambs and no ram for the offering on the Sabbath (Nm 28:9).

46:16 The fact that the prince had sons argues against identifying him with the Messiah.

46:17 Unlike the time when Israel was ruled by a king, the land that belonged to the prince was to be carefully regulated. The sons of the prince could inherit lands from him, but if the prince made a gift from his inheritance to one of his servants, the servant must return the property in the Year of Jubilee, or year of freedom (see Lv 25:8-15).

46:18 Because the prince's land will remain in his family, he was prohibited from seizing the property of his fellow Israelites. Adherence to this law would prevent some of the abuses of previous times (34:3-4; 1Kg 21:1-16; Mc 2:1-2).

47:1 By its correlation with the book of Revelation, Ezekiel 47-48 addresses the consummation of all human history. This is perhaps best seen in this river of life flowing from the temple to bring healing to the land (vv. 1-12). In Gn 2:8-10 God provided a river that gave life to the land. When sin entered, the garden and its river were hidden or withdrawn, but when God concludes His redemptive program and brings full salvation to humankind with eternal life through Jesus Christ, the river of eternal life will again flow to provide healing for the earth. Ezekiel's program of restoration is, in part, an attempt to realize the promise of Eden without canceling the importance of Zion and David.

47:7 The abundance of trees in this vision correlates to the fruitfulness of the garden of Eden, suggesting that Ezekiel was shown a new creation for the coming age (Gn 2:9). Here as in the garden account, the surplus is possible because a marvelous stream, the river of life, flows in its midst (Gn 2:10-14). Since the river now comes from the temple and not the garden, the temple is the new center of creation (Ps 46:4).

47:8 The sea of foul water is another way of referring to the Dead Sea. The future blessing on this region is the subject of other prophetic passages (Is 35:1-2,6-7; Jl 3:18). The Dead Sea is approximately six times saltier than the ocean.

47:9 This scene is reminiscent of Gn 1:20-21.

47:12 Like the trees in the garden (Gn 2:15-17), these trees will remain perpetually green and provide an endless supply of food for nourishment. The fruit trees will bear . . . fruit every month (34:27; 36:30) because they draw nourishment from the water that comes from the sanctuary. Thus the trees will resemble those in Eden that remain green and supply a constant source of food (Gn 2:15-17). The fruit of these trees will be for food, but their leaves will be for healing (Zch 13:1; Rv 22:1-2).

47:13 The boundaries of the land will differ from the less-than-ideal borders of the tribes during the days of Joshua. The land will be divided equally among the tribes, fulfilling the promise given to the Israelite forefathers (20:6; 36:28; Gn 12:1-3; 15:9-21; 17:8). Ezekiel's promised new exodus and settlement (20:33-38) will result in a new allotment of the land with boundaries similar to those of the Davidic empire and that of Jeroboam II (2Sm 8:5-12; 2Kg 14:25; cp. Nm 34). Strikingly absent from the land is the territory of Transjordan (Nm 34).

47:14 A sworn promise made under oath (20:5,15,42; 36:7-8; Neh 9:15) was accompanied by the gesture of an uplifted hand. For OT writers, it was inconceivable that anything could happen apart from the will of God. The God who had created the world was seen as directing history, and history was the unfolding of God's eternal plan to fellowship with a people created for Himself. As a result, the prophets spoke with absolute certainty when God revealed to them His future plans.

47:15 Lebo-hamath was the northernmost location in the previous land divisions of Israel (Nm 13:21; 1Kg 8:65).

47:19 The Brook of Egypt, Wadi el-Arish, marked the southernmost extremity of Solomon's kingdom (1Kg 8:65).

47:20 The western boundary of the land would be the Great Sea, also known as the Mediterranean Sea. In the eternal state there will be no sea (Rv 21:1).

47:22 Aliens will be allotted an inheritance among the tribes of Israel. No matter which tribe the foreigner lives in, that will be his inheritance. While God had always instructed the Israelites to care for foreigners (Lv 19:33-34; 24:22; Nm 15:29), they will have even greater status in the coming age (Is 56:3-8). The distinctions between foreigners and Israelites will be eliminated.

48:1 The tribal allotments of Israel in the coming age will begin at the northern frontier with Dan. Since the tribe of Levi was not to receive land (v. 28), Joseph's two sons Manasseh and Ephraim would inherit land just as they had done throughout Israel's history (Gn 48:8-22). The order of the tribes listed here has no conformity to any other such list in Israel's history. The tribes that originated through the handmaids of Jacob's wives' will be placed on the outer extremities. The tribes that originated from Jacob's wives Rachel and Leah will be given land in the center of the nation (cp. Gn 35:23-26). Judah and Benjamin will occupy the privileged positions next to the land's special sacred portion.

48:15 The site of Jerusalem, with the surrounding open land, was exactly 50 times that of the temple (42:20).

48:21 What will belong to the prince includes 25,000 cubits from both the eastern and western borders. This area will lie between the border of Judah and Benjamin. The prince will have a higher rank than the average Israelite, yet his role will be below that of priests and Levites.

48:30 The names of the city gates adhere more to Israel's traditional genealogical traditions.

48:35 The city was square, as is the city in Revelation (specifically, it is a cube; Rv 21:16). They appear to be identical. In many ways the presence of God is the object of the final vision, and perhaps of the book of Ezekiel as a whole. It is the emphatic resolution to the tragic event of God leaving His people in Ezekiel 8-11 (esp. Ezk 10:18-19; see Is 60:14; Jr 23:6). It also fulfills the prophetic promises about the reality of God's presence among His people in Zion (Is 1:26; 62:2; Zch 8:3). The name Yahweh Is There reverses Ezk 10:18-19. This conclusion to chapters 40-48 communicates the truth that the meaning of human existence is found in the knowledge and worship of God.

Word Studies zahar Hebrew Pronunciation [zah HAR]

HCSB Translation warn, instruct Uses in Ezekiel 15
Uses in the OT 21
Focus passage Ezekiel 3:17-21

Other languages do not show this root meaning warn, and debate exists whether zahar, warn, is identical with zahar, shine (Dn 12:3). An Arabic word "be clear" relates to zahar, shine. Warning does make something clear. Zahar occurs mostly in Ezk 3:17-21 and 33:3-9. As watchmen warned cities against attack (2Kg 6:10), so Ezekiel was a prophetic watchman warning about divine judgment against sin. Zahar once means instruct (Ex 18:20), perhaps as "enjoin." Judges warned litigants to avoid guilt before God over the law (2Ch 19:10); so Moses' instruction (Ex 18:20) may have warned about the law's implications. The passive-reflexive of zahar denotes objectively being warned (Ezk 33:6) but also subjectively taking warning (Ezk 33:5), that is, listening to (Ezk 3:21) and paying attention to warnings (Ec 4:13). The negative is ignoring warning (Ezk 33:4). The root in Aramaic involves warning against negligence in obeying orders (Ezr 4:22).

miqdash Hebrew Pronunciation [mik DAHSH]
HCSB Translation sanctuary Uses in Ezekiel 31
Uses in the OT 75
Focus passage Ezekiel 5:11

Miqdash, from qadash (be holy), is a noun designating a thing or place as holy or consecrated. Miqdash generally means sanctuary and refers to Israel's tabernacle (Ex 25:8) or temple (Is 63:18). Sometimes the plural of miqdash connotes the temple's various parts, its sanctuaries (Ezk 21:2), holy places (Jr 51:51), or sacred places (Ezk 7:24). "The sanctuary (miqdash) of the sanctuary (qodesh)" is the most holy place (Lv 16:33), where the ark was. Miqdash can indicate the holy objects carried by Kohathites (Nm 10:21). The Levites presented the consecrated part of Israel's offerings to God, a tenth of the tenth (Nm 18:29). Once miqdash appears as temple (Dn 11:31). Miqdash has modifiers indicating God's ownership of the temple: God's (Ps 73:17), My (Ezk 44:7-9), His (Ps 96:6), Your (Ps 74:7). The temple also belongs to Jerusalem (Lm 1:10) and the Israelites (2Ch 36:17). God Himself is a sanctuary (Is 8:14).

'adam Hebrew Pronunciation [ah DAHM]
HCSB Translation man, mankind, person Uses in Ezekiel 132
Uses in the OT 561
Focus passage Ezekiel 12:2-3,9,18,22,27

'Adam, which never occurs in the plural, broadly signifies man (Gn 1:27), encompassing male and female as mankind (Gn 6:1), humanity (Is 5:15), or mortal man (Ps 39:5). It is a collective indicating individuals (Jb 34:29), men (Ps 22:6), or people (Jr 47:2), often translated as the adjective human (Ex 4:11). But it specifies Adam (Gn 4:1) and a single man in contrast to a woman (Ec 7:28). It denotes one, someone, anyone, or everyone (Neh 2:10,12; Pr 17:18; Zch 11:6) and means person (Lv 6:3). "Son of man" is synonymous with other words for "man" ('iysh: Nm 23:19; 'enosh: Is 51:12; gever: Jb 16:21). "Sons of man" appears as human race (Dt 32:8), men (Ps 45:2), people (Ps 36:7), and descendants of Adam (Ps 90:3). 'Adam often contrasts with animals (Nm 31:26) or God (Is 31:3). "Sons of 'adam" opposes "sons of 'iysh" as low versus high (Ps 49:2).

to'evah Hebrew Pronunciation [toh ay VAH] HCSB Translation detestable thing, abomination, abhorrent Uses in Ezekiel

43
Focus passage Ezekiel 16:2,22,36,43,47,50-51,58

To'evah means abomination (Ezk 16:22) and abhorrent (Dt 7:26) or detestable (Dt 12:31) thing. Context may indicate detestable practices (Ezr 9:1) or acts (Jr 7:10) and abhorrent idols (Jr 16:18). To'evah describes what is culturally (Gn 43:32), ethically, or religiously abhorrent (Gn 43:34), detestable (Ex 8:26), and repulsive (Ps 88:8). The wicked and righteous are detestable to one another (Pr 29:27). God detests idolatry (Dt 27:15), related practices (Dt 18:10-12), prostitution (Dt 23:18), transvestism (Dt 22:5), homosexuality (Lv 18:22), child sacrifice (Dt 12:31), false prophecy (Jr 6:15), empty religious ritual (Is 1:13), and other sins (Pr 6:16-19). Ta'av (22x), apparently from to'evah, means abhor (Dt 7:26), despise (Dt 23:7), or loathe (Ps 107:18). Passive-reflexive verbs denote be detestable (1Ch 21:6), worthless (Is 14:19), or revolting (Jb 15:16). Causative verbs signify commit a detestable act (1Kg 21:26) or what is vile (Ps 14:1) and commit abhorrently (Ezk 16:52).

chemah Hebrew Pronunciation [khay MAH]
HCSB Translation wrath, anger, fury Uses in Ezekiel 33
Uses in the OT 125
Focus passage Ezekiel 20:8,13,21,33-34

The Hebrew meanings for this root match those found in other languages. Chemah seems related to yacham (6x), to be sexually hot and conceive (Ps 51:5) or breed (Gn 30:38), and chamam (23x), to be warm or grow hot (Ex 16:21). Similarly chammah (6x) means heat (Ps 19:7) or sun (Sg 6:10). Chemah is the word most commonly translated wrath (Nm 25:11), over 60 times. It describes God's wrath, six times in the phrase "chemah of the Lord" (Jr 6:11), but also human wrath. Chemah often appears as fury (Dt 29:28), rage (2Kg 5:12), and anger (Gn 27:44). It occurs (38x) alongside nearly synonymous 'ap ("anger"; Ezk 22:20). Chemah signifies heat (Hs 7:5), poison (Jb 6:4), or venom (Dt 32:33). It implies burning (Ezk 36:6), venomous (Dt 32:24), fierce (Dt 9:19), hot-tempered (Pr 15:18), or furious (Lv 26:28). Once it is burning wrath (Jr 7:20).

haras Hebrew Pronunciation [hah RAS]
HCSB Translation tear down, demolish Uses in Ezekiel 8
Uses in the OT 43
Focus passage Ezekiel 26:4,12

The root in other languages denotes "attack," "tear down," "destroy," and “break to pieces.” Haras describes tearing down fortresses (Mc 5:11), altars (Jdg 6:25), or foundations (Ezk 30:4). Sixteen times it indicates demolishing objects: towers (Ezk 26:4), walls, idols, cities, and nations. Ten times it is the antonym of banah (“build, build up”; Pr 11:11). Five times it occurs with synonymous natats (“tear down”; Jr 1:10). God overthrows adversaries (Ex 15:7) and knocks out teeth (Ps 58:6). People destroy cities (2Kg 3:25) and level mounds (Ezk 16:39). Mountains are thrown down (Ezk 38:20). Haras can indicate states rather than actions: graineries are broken down (Jl 1:17), and walls are ruined (Pr 24:31). Haras connotes secondary ideas: someone is ousted from his position (Is 22:19). If Israelites break through to look at God, He will break out against them (Ex 19:21,24). Hariysah (Am 9:11) and hariysuth (Is 49:19) denote ruins.

gavah Hebrew Pronunciation [gah VAH]
HCSB Translation be high, be proud, make tall Uses in Ezekiel 10
Uses in the OT 34
Focus passage Ezekiel 28:2,5,17

Gavah means be high (Ps 103:11). Trees tower, being great in height (Ezk 19:11; 31:5). Comparatively, gavah denotes stand taller (1Sm 10:23) or be higher (Is 55:9). Gavah describes character, negatively signifying be haughty (Is 3:16) or proud (Jr 13:15). People grow arrogant (2Ch 26:16). Gavah positively is rejoice (2Ch 17:6) or be exalted (Is 5:16). The causative is make tall (Ezk 17:24). People build high (Pr 17:19), exalt (Ezk 21:26), heighten (2Ch 33:14), or elevate (Jr 49:16) things. Birds soar (Ob 4). Gavoah (41x) is high (Gn 7:19), tall, lofty, or long. And it is haughty (Is 5:15), proud, or exalted. Govah (17x) is height (Ezk 19:11) or raised platform (Ezk 41:8), appearing as high, tall, or large (Ezk 1:18). It is pride (2Ch 32:26), arrogance (Ps 10:4), or insolence (Jr 48:29), but also majesty (Jb 40:10). Gavhuth is pride (Is 2:11,17).

ra‘ah Hebrew Pronunciation [rah AH]
HCSB Translation shepherd, feed, graze Uses in Ezekiel 32
Uses in the OT 168
Focus passage Ezekiel 34:2-3,5,7-10,12-16

This root in many languages denotes shepherd. Ra‘ah most often, as a participle, indicates a shepherd (Jr 51:23) or herdsman (Gn 13:7). The feminine is shepherdess (Gn 29:9). Ra‘ah denotes tending (Gn 37:2) or pasturing (Gn 37:12) sheep or other animals (Gn 36:24). Animals graze (Gn 41:2) or feed (Sg 4:5). Ra‘ah suggests sustain (Hs 9:2), chase (Hs 12:1), live (Ps 37:3), or take charge of (Jr 22:22). It describes people feeding themselves (Ezk 34:10), eating (Jnh 3:7), and being well fed (Is 14:30). Fire (Jb 20:26), animals (Ps 80:13), and people (Is 44:20) feed on things. Ra'ah metaphorically describes God (Gn 49:24) and political leaders (Ezk 34:2). Ra'ah connotes ruler (Jr 2:8). The related noun re'iy means range (1Kg 4:23). Mir'eh (13x) is pasture (Lm 1:6) or lions' feeding ground (Nah 2:11). Mar'iyth (10x) is pasture (Is 49:9) and once flock (Jr 10:21).

goy Hebrew Pronunciation [GOY]
HCSB Translation nation Uses in Ezekiel 90
Uses in the OT 30
Focus passage Ezekiel 39:7,21,23,27-28

Goy derives from a West Semitic word that means "people," but goy seems closer to the idea of nation (Gn 10:20), describing peoples according to political, territorial, and ethnic considerations. Israel was a nation descended from Abraham (Gn 12:2), existing as a nation before leaving Egypt (Ex 33:13) and after exile (Jr 31:36). Goy most often designates foreign nations outside Israel (Is 11:10,12), sometimes emphasizing their paganism (Dt 9:5). Idolatrous nations (Jr 14:22) are hostile to God and His people (Ps 59:5). Goy appears as people (Is 49:7) and nationhood (Jr 48:2). It mostly occurs in the plural (432x) and can be peoples (Gn 10:5), foreigners (Neh 5:8), or Gentiles (Ezr 6:21). Goy functions adjectivally as foreign (Neh 5:9), Gentile (Hg 2:22), and national (2Ch 32:13). Goy occurs in parallelism with (82x) 'am ("people"), (23x) mamlakah ("kingdom"), (12x) mishpochah ("tribe"), and (7x) le'om ("people").

kalam Hebrew Pronunciation [kah LAM] HCSB Translation be humiliated, ashamed, humiliate Uses in Ezekiel 6
Uses in the OT 38
Focus passage Ezekiel 43:10-11

Kalam means be humiliated (Is 54:4). The root mostly indicates subjective humiliation: prostitutes refused to be ashamed (Jr 3:3). But it can also describe objective humiliation. Kalam in this sense relates to physical need (Jr 14:3), military defeat (Ps 44:9), and death (Is 41:11). People are disgraced (Is 41:11) or embarrassed (Ezr 9:6). They remain in disgrace (Nm 12:14). The participle suggests in shame (Ps 74:21). The causative verb means humiliate (Jb 19:3) or harass (1Sm 25:7). It suggests feel humiliation (Jr 6:15) or behave shamefully (1Sm 20:34). Kalam occurs with bosh ("be ashamed") 17 times (Jr 31:19). Kelimmah (30x) denotes humiliation (Is 45:16) and disgrace (Is 30:3). It connotes scorn (Is 50:6), insults (Ezk 34:29), shame (Mc 2:6), and reproach (Ps 35:26). It occurs 12 times with nasa' ("bear, endure") (Ps 69:7). Cherpah ("reproach") occurs with kelimmah five times (Ezk 36:15). Kelimmuth means humiliation (Jr 23:40).

DANIEL

Daniel's Captivity in Babylon

1 In the third year of the reign of Jehoiakim [a] king of Judah, Nebuchadnezzar [A, b] king of Babylon came to Jerusalem and laid siege to it. 2 The Lord handed Jehoiakim king of Judah over to him, along with some of the vessels from the house of God. [c] Nebuchadnezzar carried them to the land of Babylon, [B, d] to the house of his god, [C] and put the vessels in the treasury of his god.

3 The king ordered Ashpenaz, the chief of his court officials, [D] to bring some of the Israelites from the royal family [e] and from the nobility — 4 young men without any physical defect, good-looking, suitable for instruction in all wisdom, [f] knowledgeable, perceptive, and capable of serving in the king's palace [g] — and to teach them the Chaldean language [h] and literature. 5 The king assigned them daily provisions from the royal food and from the wine that he drank. [i] They were to be trained for three years, and at the end of that time they were to serve in the king's court. [E, j] 6 Among them, from the descendants of Judah, were Daniel, [k] Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah. 7 The chief official gave them other names: he gave the name Belteshazzar to Daniel, Shadrach to Hananiah, Meshach to Mishael, and Abednego to Azariah. [l]

Faithfulness in Babylon 8 Daniel determined that he would not defile himself with the king's food [m] or with the wine he drank. So he asked permission from the chief official not to defile himself. [n] 9 God had granted Daniel favor and compassion from the chief official, [o] 10 yet he said to Daniel, "My lord the king assigned your food and drink. I'm afraid of what would happen if he saw your faces looking thinner than those of the other young men your age. You would endanger my life [F] with the king."

11 So Daniel said to the guard whom the chief official had assigned to Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, 12 "Please test your servants for 10 days. Let us be given vegetables to eat and water to drink. 13 Then examine our appearance and the appearance of the young men who are eating the king's food, and deal with your servants based on what you see." 14 He agreed with them about this and tested them for 10 days. 15 At the end of 10 days they looked better and healthier [G] than all the young men who were eating the king's food. [p] 16 So the guard continued to remove their food and the wine they were to drink and gave them vegetables.

Faithfulness Rewarded

17 God gave these four young men knowledge and understanding [q] in every kind of literature and wisdom. Daniel also understood visions and dreams [r] of every kind. 18 At the end of the time that the king had said to present them, the chief official presented them to Nebuchadnezzar. 19 The king interviewed them, and among all of them, no one was found equal to Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah. [s] So they began to serve in the king's court. 20 In every matter of wisdom and understanding that the king consulted them about, he found them 10 times [H,] [t] better than all the diviner-priests and mediums [u] in his entire kingdom. 21 Daniel remained there until the first year of King Cyrus. [v]

Nebuchadnezzar's Dream

2 In the second year of his reign, Nebuchadnezzar had dreams [a] that troubled him, and sleep deserted him. [b] 2 So the king gave orders to summon the diviner-priests, mediums, sorcerers, and Chaldeans [c, d] to tell the king his dreams. When they came and stood before the king, 3 he said to them, “I have had a dream and am anxious to understand it.”
4 The Chaldeans spoke to the king (Aramaic [e, f] begins here): “May the king live forever. [g] Tell your servants the dream, and we will give the interpretation.”
5 The king replied to the Chaldeans, “My word is final: If you don’t tell me the dream and its interpretation, you will be torn limb from limb, [A] and your houses will be made a garbage dump. [h] 6 But if you make the dream and its interpretation known to me, you’ll receive gifts, a reward, and great honor from me. [i] So make the dream and its interpretation known to me.”
7 They answered a second time, “May the king tell the dream to his servants, and we will give the interpretation.”
8 The king replied, “I know for certain you are trying to gain some time, because you see that my word is final. 9 If you don’t tell me the dream, there is one decree for you. [j] You have conspired to tell me something false or fraudulent until the situation changes. So tell me the dream and I will know you can give me its interpretation.” 10 The Chaldeans answered the king, “No one on earth can make known what the king requests. [k] Consequently, no king, however great and powerful, has ever asked anything like this of any diviner-priest, medium, or Chaldean. 11
What the king is asking is so difficult that no one can make it known to him except the gods, whose dwelling is not with mortals.” [l] 12 Because of this, the king became violently angry [m] and gave orders to destroy all the wise men of Babylon. 13 The decree was issued that the wise men were to be executed, and they searched for Daniel and his friends, to execute them.
14 Then Daniel responded with tact and discretion to Arioch, the commander of the king’s guard, [B, n] who had gone out to execute the wise men of Babylon.
15 He asked Arioch, the king’s officer, “Why is the decree from the king so harsh? ” [C, o] Then Arioch explained the situation to Daniel. 16 So Daniel went and asked the king to give him some time, so that he could give the king the interpretation.
17 Then Daniel went to his house and told his friends Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah about the matter, 18 urging them to ask the God of heaven [p] for mercy [q] concerning this mystery, so Daniel and his friends would not be killed with the rest of Babylon's wise men. [r] 19 The mystery was then revealed to Daniel in a vision [s] at night, and Daniel praised the God of heaven 20 and declared:

May the name of God
be praised forever and ever, [t]
for wisdom [u] and power belong to Him.
21 He changes the times and seasons;
He removes kings and establishes kings. [v]
He gives wisdom to the wise and knowledge to those who have understanding. [w]
22 He reveals the deep and hidden things;
He knows what is in the darkness, [x]
and light dwells with Him. [y]
23 I offer thanks and praise to You, God of my fathers, [z]
because You have given me wisdom and power.
And now You have let me know what we asked of You, for You have let us know [a]
the king's mystery. [D]

24 Therefore Daniel went to Arioch, [b] whom the king had assigned to destroy the wise men of Babylon. He came and said to him, "Don't kill the wise men of Babylon! Bring me before the king, and I will give him the interpretation." [c]

25 Then Arioch quickly brought Daniel before the king and said to him, "I have found a man among the Judean exiles [d] who can let the king know the interpretation."

26 The king said in reply to Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar, [e] "Are you able to tell me the dream I had and its interpretation? " [f]

27 Daniel answered the king: "No wise man, medium, diviner-priest, or astrologer [g] is able to make known to the king the mystery he asked about. 28 But there is a God in heaven who reveals mysteries, and He has let King Nebuchadnezzar know what will happen in the last days. [h] Your dream and the visions that came into your mind as you lay in bed [i] were these: 29 Your Majesty, while you were in your bed, thoughts came to your mind about what will happen in the future. [E, j] The revealer of mysteries [k] has let you know what will happen. 30 As for me, this mystery has been revealed to me, [l] not because I have more wisdom than anyone living, but in order that the interpretation might be made known to the king, and that you may understand the thoughts of your mind. [m]

The Dream's Interpretation

31 "My king, as you were watching, a colossal statue appeared. That statue, tall and dazzling, was standing in front of you, and its appearance was terrifying. 32 The head of the statue was pure gold, its chest and arms were silver, its stomach and thighs were bronze, 33 its legs were iron, and its feet were partly iron and partly fired clay. 34 As you were watching, a stone broke off without a hand touching it, [F, n] struck the statue [o] on its feet of iron and fired clay, and crushed them. [p] 35 Then the iron, the fired clay, the bronze, the silver, and the gold were shattered and became like chaff [q] from the summer threshing floors. The wind carried them away, and not a trace of them could be found. But the stone that struck the statue became a great mountain and filled [r] the whole earth.

36 "This was the dream; now we will tell the king its interpretation. 37 Your Majesty, you are king of kings. [s] The God of heaven has given you sovereignty, power, [t] strength, and glory. 38 Wherever people live — or wild animals, or birds of the air — He has handed them over to you and made you ruler over them all. [u] You are the head of gold.

39 "After you, there will arise another kingdom, inferior to yours, and then another, a third kingdom, of bronze, which will rule the whole earth. [v] 40 A fourth kingdom will be as strong as iron; for iron crushes and shatters everything, and like iron that smashes, it will crush and smash all the others. [G, w] 41 You saw the feet and toes, partly of a potter's fired clay and partly of iron — it will be a divided kingdom, though some of the strength of iron will be in it. You saw the iron mixed with clay, 42 and that the toes of the feet were partly iron and partly fired clay — part of the kingdom will be strong, and part will be brittle. 43 You saw the iron mixed with clay — the peoples will mix with one another [H] but will not hold together, just as iron does not mix with fired clay.

44 "In the days of those kings, the God of heaven will set up a kingdom that will never be destroyed, [x] and this kingdom will not be left to another people. It will crush all these kingdoms [y] and bring them to an end, but will itself endure forever. 45 You saw a stone [z] break off from the mountain without a hand touching it, [I, a] and it crushed the iron, bronze, fired clay, silver, and gold. The great God has told the king what will happen in the future. J, b The dream is true, and its interpretation certain."

Nebuchadnezzar's Response

46 Then King Nebuchadnezzar fell down, paid homage to Daniel, and gave orders to present an offering and incense to him. c 47 The king said to Daniel, "Your God is indeed God of gods, Lord of kings, d and a revealer of mysteries, e since you were able to reveal this mystery." 48 Then the king promoted Daniel and gave him many generous gifts. He made him ruler over the entire province of Babylon and chief governor over all the wise men of Babylon. f 49 At Daniel's request, the king appointed Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego g to manage the province of Babylon. But Daniel remained at the king's court. h

Nebuchadnezzar's Gold Statue

3 King Nebuchadnezzar made a gold statue, [a] 90 feet high and nine feet wide.
[A] He set it up on the plain of Dura in the province of Babylon. [b] 2 King Nebuchadnezzar sent word to assemble the satraps, prefects, governors, advisers, treasurers, judges, magistrates, and all the rulers [c] of the provinces to attend the dedication of the statue King Nebuchadnezzar had set up. 3 So the satraps, prefects, governors, advisers, treasurers, judges, magistrates, and all the rulers of the provinces assembled for the dedication of the statue the king had set up. Then they stood before the statue Nebuchadnezzar had set up.

4 A herald loudly proclaimed, “People of every nation and language, you are commanded: 5 When you hear the sound of the horn, flute, zither, [B] lyre, [C] harp, drum, [D] and every kind of music, you are to fall down and worship [d] the gold statue that King Nebuchadnezzar has set up. 6 But whoever does not fall down and worship will immediately be thrown into a furnace of blazing fire.” [e]

7 Therefore, when all the people heard the sound of the horn, flute, zither, lyre, harp, and every kind of music, people of every nation and language fell down and worshiped the gold statue that King Nebuchadnezzar had set up.

The Furnace of Blazing Fire 8 Some Chaldeans took this occasion to come forward and maliciously accuse [E,] [f] the Jews. 9 They said to King Nebuchadnezzar, “May the king live forever. 10 You as king have issued a decree [g] that everyone who hears the sound of the horn, flute, zither, lyre, harp, drum, and every kind of music must fall down and worship the gold statue.
11 Whoever does not fall down and worship will be thrown into a furnace of blazing fire. 12 There are some Jews you have appointed to manage the province of Babylon: Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego. [h] These men have ignored you, [i] the king; they do not serve your gods or worship the gold statue you have set up.”

13 Then in a furious rage [j] Nebuchadnezzar gave orders to bring in Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego. So these men were brought before the king.
14 Nebuchadnezzar asked them, “Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, is it true that you don’t serve my gods or worship the gold statue [k] I have set up? 15 Now if you’re ready, when you hear the sound of the horn, flute, zither, lyre, harp, drum, and every kind of music, fall down and worship the statue I made. But if you don’t worship it, you will immediately be thrown into a furnace of blazing fire — and who is the god who can rescue you from my power? ” [l]

16 Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego replied to the king, “Nebuchadnezzar, we don’t need to give you an answer to this question. 17 If the God we serve exists, [m] then He can rescue [n] us from the furnace of blazing fire, and He can rescue us from the power of you, the king. 18 But even if He does not rescue us, [F] we want you as king to know that we will not serve [o] your gods [p] or worship the gold statue you set up.”

19 Then Nebuchadnezzar was filled with rage, [q] and the expression on his face changed toward Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego. He gave orders to heat the furnace seven times more than was customary, 20 and he commanded some of the strongest soldiers in his army to tie up Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego and throw them into the furnace of blazing fire. 21 So these men, in their trousers, robes, head coverings, [r] and other clothes, were tied up and thrown into the furnace of blazing fire. 22 Since the king’s command was so urgent [G, s] and the furnace extremely hot, the raging flames [H] killed those men who carried Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego up. 23 And these three men, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego fell, bound, into the furnace of blazing fire.

Delivered from the Fire 24 Then King Nebuchadnezzar jumped up in alarm. [t] He said to his advisers, “Didn’t we throw three men, bound, into the fire? ”

“Yes, of course, Your Majesty,” they replied to the king.

25 He exclaimed, “Look! I see four men, not tied, walking around in the fire unharmed; [u] and the fourth looks like a son of the gods.” [I, v]

26 Nebuchadnezzar then approached the door of the furnace of blazing fire and called: “Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, you servants of the •Most High God — come out! ” So Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego came out of the fire. [w] 27 When the satraps, prefects, governors, and the king’s advisers gathered around, they saw that the fire had no effect [x] on [J] the bodies of these men: not a hair of their heads was singed, their robes were unaffected, and there was no smell of fire on them. 28 Nebuchadnezzar exclaimed, “Praise to the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego! He sent His angel [K, y] and rescued His servants who trusted in Him. [z] They violated the king’s command and risked their lives rather than serve or worship any god except their own God. [a] 29 Therefore I issue a decree [b] that anyone of any people, nation, or language who says anything offensive against the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego will be torn limb from limb and his house made a garbage dump. [c] For there is no other god who is able to deliver like this.” 30 Then the king rewarded Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego in the province of Babylon. [d]

Chapter 4 [a] Nebuchadnezzar's Proclamation

[1]King Nebuchadnezzar,

To those of every people, nation, and language, who live in all the earth: [b]

May your prosperity increase. [c] [2] I am pleased to tell you about the miracles and wonders [d] the •Most High God has done for me.

[3] How great are His miracles, and how mighty His wonders! [e]
His kingdom is an eternal kingdom, [f]
and His dominion is from generation to generation.

The Dream

4 [g] I, Nebuchadnezzar, was at ease in my house and flourishing in my palace.
[h] 5 I had a dream, and it frightened me; while in my bed, the images and visions in my mind alarmed me. [i] 6 So I issued a decree [j] to bring all the wise men of Babylon to me in order that they might make the dream's interpretation known to me. [k] 7 When the diviner-priests, mediums, Chaldeans, and astrologers came in, I told them the dream, but they could not make its interpretation known to
me. [l]

8 Finally Daniel, named Belteshazzar [m] after the name of my god — and the spirit of the holy gods is in him [n] — came before me. I told him the dream:
9 "Belteshazzar, head of the diviners, because I know that you have a spirit of the holy gods [o] and that no mystery puzzles you, [p] explain to me the visions of my dream that I saw, and its interpretation. 10 In the visions of my mind as I was lying in bed, I saw this:

There was a tree in the middle of the earth,
and its height was great.
11 The tree grew large and strong;
its top reached to the sky,
and it was visible to the ends of the [A] earth.
12 Its leaves were beautiful, its fruit was abundant, and on it was food for all.
Wild animals found shelter under it,
the birds of the air [q] lived in its branches,
and every creature was fed from it. [r]

13 "As I was lying in my bed, I also saw in the visions of my mind an observer, a holy one, [s, t] coming down from heaven. 14 He called out loudly:

Cut down the tree and chop off its branches;
strip off its leaves and scatter its fruit.
Let the animals flee from under it,
and the birds from its branches. [u]
15 But leave the stump with its roots in the ground, [v]
and with a band of iron and bronze around it, in the tender grass of the field.
Let him be drenched with dew from the sky and share the plants of the earth [w] with the animals.

16 Let his mind be changed from that of a man, and let him be given the mind of an animal for seven periods of time. [B, x, y] 17 This word is by decree of the observers;
the matter is a command from the holy ones.
This is so the living will know that the Most High is ruler over the kingdom of men.
He gives it to anyone He wants and sets the lowliest of men over it. [z]

18 This is the dream that I, King Nebuchadnezzar, had. Now, Belteshazzar, tell me the interpretation, because none of the wise men of my kingdom can make the interpretation known to me. [a] But you can, because you have the spirit of the holy gods.”

The Dream Interpreted

19 Then Daniel, whose name is Belteshazzar, was stunned for a moment, and his thoughts alarmed him. The king said, “Belteshazzar, don’t let the dream or its interpretation alarm you.”

Belteshazzar answered, “My lord, may the dream apply to those who hate you, and its interpretation to your enemies! [b] 20 The tree you saw, which grew large and strong, whose top reached to the sky and was visible to all the earth, 21 whose leaves were beautiful and its fruit abundant — and on it was food for all, under it the wild animals lived, and in its branches the birds of the air lived — 22 that tree is you, the king. For you have become great and strong: your greatness has grown and even reaches the sky, and your dominion extends to the ends of the earth. [c]

23 “The king saw an observer, a holy one, coming down from heaven and saying, ‘Cut down the tree and destroy it, but leave the stump with its roots in the ground and with a band of iron and bronze around it, in the tender grass of the field. Let him be drenched with dew from the sky, and share food with the wild animals for seven periods of time.’ 24 This is the interpretation, Your Majesty, and this is the sentence of the Most High that has been passed against my lord the king: [d] 25 You will be driven away from people to live with the wild animals. You will feed on grass like cattle [e] and be drenched with dew from the sky for seven periods of time, until you acknowledge that the Most High is ruler over the kingdom of men, and He gives it to anyone He wants. [f] 26 As for the command to leave the tree’s stump with its roots, your kingdom will be restored [C] to you as soon as you acknowledge that Heaven [g] rules. [h] 27 Therefore, may my advice seem good to you my king. Separate yourself from your sins by doing what is right, [i] and from your injustices by showing mercy to the needy. [j] Perhaps there will be an extension of your prosperity.” [k]

The Sentence Executed

28 All this happened to King Nebuchadnezzar. [l] 29 At the end of 12 months, as he was walking on the roof of the royal palace in Babylon, 30 the king exclaimed, “Is this not Babylon the Great that I have built by my vast power to be a royal residence and to display my majestic glory? ” [m]

31 While the words were still in the king’s mouth, a voice came from heaven:
“King Nebuchadnezzar, to you it is declared that the kingdom has departed from you. [n] 32 You will be driven away from people to live with the wild animals, and you will feed on grass like cattle for seven periods of time, until you acknowledge that the Most High is ruler over the kingdom of men, and He gives it to anyone He wants.”

33 At that moment the sentence against Nebuchadnezzar was executed. He was driven away from people. He ate grass like cattle, and his body was drenched with dew from the sky, until his hair grew like eagles’ feathers and his nails like birds’ claws. [o]

Nebuchadnezzar’s Praise

34 But at the end of those days, I, Nebuchadnezzar, looked up to heaven, and my sanity returned to me. Then I praised the Most High and honored and glorified Him who lives forever: [p]

For His dominion is an everlasting dominion, and His kingdom is from generation to generation. [q] 35 All the inhabitants of the earth are counted as nothing, and He does what He wants [r] with the army of heaven and the inhabitants of the earth.
There is no one who can hold back His hand or say to Him, “What have You done? ” [s]

36 At that time my sanity returned to me, and my majesty and splendor returned to me for the glory of my kingdom. My advisers and my nobles sought me out, I was reestablished over my kingdom, and even more greatness came to me. [t] 37
Now I, Nebuchadnezzar, praise, exalt, and glorify the King of heaven, because all His works are true and His ways are just. [u] He is able to humble [v] those who walk in pride. [w]

Belshazzar's Feast

5 King Belshazzar [a] held a great feast for 1,000 of his nobles and drank wine in their presence. [2] Under the influence of [A] the wine, Belshazzar gave orders to bring in the gold and silver vessels [b] that his predecessor [B] Nebuchadnezzar had taken from the temple in Jerusalem, so that the king and his nobles, wives, and concubines could drink from them. [3] So they brought in the gold [c] vessels that had been taken from the temple, the house of God in Jerusalem, and the king and his nobles, wives, and concubines drank from them.
[4] They drank the wine and praised their gods made of gold and silver, bronze, iron, wood, and stone. [d]

The Handwriting on the Wall

5 At that moment the fingers of a man's hand appeared and began writing on the plaster of the king's palace wall next to the lampstand. As the king watched the hand [C] that was writing, 6 his face turned pale, [D] and his thoughts so terrified him that his hip joints shook and his knees knocked together. 7 The king called out to bring in the mediums, Chaldeans, and astrologers. He said to these wise men of Babylon, "Whoever reads this inscription and gives me its interpretation will be clothed in purple, have a gold chain around his neck, [e] and have the third highest position in the kingdom." 8 So all the king's wise men came in, but none could read the inscription or make its interpretation known to him. 9 Then King Belshazzar became even more terrified, his face turned pale, [E] and his nobles were bewildered. [f]

10 Because of the outcry of the king and his nobles, the queen [g] came to the banquet hall. "May the king live forever," she said. "Don't let your thoughts terrify you or your face be pale. [F] 11 There is a man in your kingdom who has the spirit of the holy gods in him. [h] In the days of your predecessor he was found to have insight, intelligence, and wisdom like the wisdom of the gods. Your predecessor, King Nebuchadnezzar, appointed him chief of the diviners, mediums, Chaldeans, and astrologers. Your own predecessor, the king, 12 did this because Daniel, the one the king named Belteshazzar, was found to have an extraordinary spirit, knowledge and perception, and the ability to interpret dreams, explain riddles, and solve problems. [i] Therefore, summon Daniel, and he will give the interpretation."

Daniel before the King

13 Then Daniel was brought before the king. The king said to him, “Are you Daniel, one of the Judean exiles that my predecessor the king brought from Judah? [j] 14 I’ve heard that you have the spirit of the gods in you, and that you have insight, intelligence, and extraordinary wisdom. 15 Now the wise men and mediums were brought before me to read this inscription and make its interpretation known to me, but they could not give its interpretation. 16
However, I have heard about you that you can give interpretations and solve problems. Therefore, if you can read this inscription and give me its interpretation, you will be clothed in purple, have a gold chain around your neck, and have the third highest position in the kingdom.” [k]

17 Then Daniel answered the king, “You may keep your gifts, and give your rewards to someone else; [l] however, I will read the inscription for the king and make the interpretation known to him. 18 Your Majesty, the •Most High God gave sovereignty, [m] greatness, glory, and majesty to your predecessor Nebuchadnezzar. [n] 19 Because of the greatness He gave him, all peoples, nations, and languages [o] were terrified and fearful of him. He killed anyone he wanted and kept alive anyone he wanted; he exalted anyone he wanted and humbled anyone he wanted. 20 But when his heart was exalted and his spirit became arrogant, [p] he was deposed from his royal throne and his glory was taken from him. [q] 21 He was driven away from people, [r] his mind was like an animal’s, he lived with the wild donkeys, [s] he was fed grass like cattle, and his body was drenched with dew from the sky until he acknowledged that the Most High God is ruler over the kingdom of men and sets anyone He wants over it. [t]

22 “But you his successor, Belshazzar, have not humbled your heart, [u] even though you knew all this. 23 Instead, you have exalted yourself against the Lord of heaven. The vessels from His house were brought to you, and as you and your nobles, wives, and concubines drank wine from them, [v] you praised the gods made of silver and gold, bronze, iron, wood, and stone, which do not see or hear or understand. [w] But you have not glorified the God who holds your life-breath in His hand and who controls the whole course of your life. [G] 24 Therefore, He sent the hand, and this writing was inscribed.

The Inscription’s Interpretation 25 “This is the writing that was inscribed:

MENE, MENE, TEKEL, PARSIN.

26 This is the interpretation of the message:

MENE [H] means that God has numbered the days of your kingdom and brought it to an end.
27 TEKEL [I] means that you have been weighed in the balance and found deficient.
28 PERES [J, x] means that your kingdom has been divided and given to the Medes and Persians.”
29 Then Belshazzar gave an order, and they clothed Daniel in purple, placed a gold chain around his neck, [y] and issued a proclamation concerning him that he should be the third ruler in the kingdom.
30 That very night Belshazzar the king of the Chaldeans was killed, 31 [z] and Darius the Mede [a] received the kingdom at the age of 62.

The Plot against Daniel

6 Darius decided [A] to appoint 120 satraps over the kingdom, stationed throughout the realm, 2 and over them three administrators, including Daniel. [a] These satraps would be accountable to them so that the king would not be defrauded. [b] 3 Daniel [B] distinguished himself above the administrators and satraps because he had an extraordinary spirit, [c] so the king planned to set him over the whole realm. [d] 4 The administrators and satraps, therefore, kept trying to find a charge against Daniel [e] regarding the kingdom. But they could find no charge or corruption, [f] for he was trustworthy, and no negligence or corruption was found in him. 5 Then these men said, "We will never find any charge against this Daniel unless we find something against him concerning the law of his God." [g]

6 So the administrators and satraps went together to the king and said to him,
"May King Darius live forever. [h] 7 All the administrators of the kingdom, [i] the prefects, satraps, advisers, and governors have agreed that the king should establish an ordinance and enforce an edict that for 30 days, anyone who petitions any god or man except you, the king, will be thrown into the lions' den. [j] 8 Therefore, Your Majesty, establish the edict [k] and sign the document so that, as a law of the Medes and Persians, it is irrevocable and cannot be changed." [l] 9 So King Darius signed the document. [m]

Daniel in the Lions' Den 10 When Daniel learned that the document had been signed, he went into his house. The windows in its upper room opened toward Jerusalem, [n] and three times a day he got down on his knees, prayed, and gave thanks to his God, [o] just as he had done before. 11 Then these men went as a group and found [p] Daniel petitioning and imploring his God. 12 So they approached the king [q] and asked about his edict: "Didn't you sign an edict that for 30 days any man who petitions any god or man except you, the king, will be thrown into the lions' den? "

The king answered, "As a law of the Medes and Persians, the order stands and is irrevocable." [r]

13 Then they replied to the king, "Daniel, one of the Judean exiles, has ignored you, [s] the king, and the edict you signed, for he prays three times a day." 14 As soon as the king heard this, he was very displeased; he set his mind on rescuing Daniel [t] and made every effort until sundown to deliver him.

15 Then these men went to the king and said to him, "You as king know it is a law of the Medes and Persians that no edict or ordinance the king establishes can be changed." [u]

16 So the king gave the order, and they brought Daniel and threw him into the lions' den. [v] The king said to Daniel, "May your God, whom you serve continually, [w] rescue you! " 17 A stone was brought and placed over the mouth of the den. [x] The king sealed it with his own signet ring and with the signet rings of his nobles, so that nothing in regard to Daniel could be changed. 18 Then the king went to his palace and spent the night fasting. [y] No diversions [C] were brought to him, and he could not sleep. [z]

Daniel Released

19 At the first light of dawn the king got up and hurried to the lions' den.
20 When he reached the den, he cried out in anguish to Daniel. "Daniel, servant of the living God," the king said, D "has your God whom you serve continually been able to rescue you a from the lions? "

21 Then Daniel spoke with the king: "May the king live forever. 22 My God sent His angel b and shut the lions' mouths. They haven't hurt me, for I was found innocent before Him. Also, I have not committed a crime against you my king."

23 The king was overjoyed and gave orders to take Daniel out of the den. So Daniel was taken out of the den, uninjured, for he trusted in his God. c 24 The king then gave the command, and those men who had maliciously accused Daniel E, d were brought and thrown into the lions' den — they, their children, and their wives. e They had not reached the bottom of the den before the lions overpowered them and crushed all their bones.

Darius Honors God

25 Then King Darius wrote to those of every people, nation, and language who live in all the earth: “May your prosperity abound. [f] 26 I issue a decree [g] that in all my royal dominion, people must tremble in fear before the God of Daniel: [h]

For He is the living God,
and He endures forever;
His kingdom will never be destroyed, [i]
and His dominion has no end.
27 He rescues and delivers;
He performs signs and wonders in the heavens and on the earth, [j] for He has rescued Daniel from the power of the lions.”

28 So Daniel prospered [k] during the reign of Darius and [F] the reign of Cyrus the Persian. [l]

Daniel's Vision of the Four Beasts

7 In the first year of Belshazzar king of Babylon, Daniel had a dream with visions in his mind [a] as he was lying in his bed. He wrote down the dream, [b] and here is the summary [A] of his account. 2 Daniel said, “In my vision at night I was watching, and suddenly the four winds of heaven [c] stirred up the great sea.
3 Four huge beasts [d] came up from the sea, [e] each different from the other.

4 “The first was like a lion [f] but had eagle’s wings. I continued watching until its wings were torn off. It was lifted up from the ground, set on its feet like a man, and given a human mind.

5 “Suddenly, another beast appeared, a second one, that looked like a bear. [g] It was raised up on one side, with three ribs in its mouth between its teeth. It was told, ‘Get up! Gorge yourself on flesh.’

6 “While I was watching, another beast appeared. It was like a leopard [h] with four wings of a bird on its back. It had four heads [i] and was given authority to rule.

7 “While I was watching in the night visions, a fourth beast [j] appeared, frightening and dreadful, and incredibly strong, with large iron teeth. It devoured and crushed, and it trampled with its feet whatever was left. It was different from all the beasts before it, and it had 10 horns. [k]

8 “While I was considering the horns, suddenly another horn, [l] a little one, came up among them, and three of the first horns were uprooted before it. There were eyes in this horn like a man’s, and it had a mouth that spoke arrogantly. [m]

The Ancient of Days and the Son of Man

9 “As I kept watching, thrones were set in place, [n]

and the Ancient of Days took His seat.
His clothing was white like snow, [o]
and the hair of His head like whitest wool. [p]
His throne was flaming fire; [q]
its wheels were blazing fire. [r] 10 A river of fire was flowing, coming out from His presence.
Thousands upon thousands [s] served Him;
ten thousand times ten thousand [t] stood before Him.
The court was convened, [u]
and the books were opened. [v]

11 “I watched, then, because of the sound of the arrogant words the horn was speaking. As I continued watching, the beast was killed and its body destroyed and given over to the burning fire. [w] 12 As for the rest of the beasts, their authority to rule was removed, but an extension of life was granted to them for a certain period of time. [x] 13 I continued watching in the night visions, and I saw One like a son of man [y]

coming with the clouds of heaven. [z]
He approached the Ancient of Days and was escorted before Him.
14 He was given authority to rule, [a]
and glory, and a kingdom;
so that those of every people,
nation, and language [b]
should serve [c] Him.
His dominion is an everlasting [d] dominion
that will not pass away, and His kingdom is one that will not be destroyed.

Interpretation of the Vision

15 “As for me, Daniel, my spirit was deeply distressed within me, [B] and the visions in my mind terrified me. [e] 16 I approached one of those who were standing by and asked him [f] the true meaning of all this. So he let me know the interpretation of these things: [g] 17 ‘These huge beasts, four in number, are four kings who will rise from the earth. 18 But the holy ones of the •Most High will receive the kingdom and possess it forever, yes, forever and ever.’ [h]

19 “Then I wanted to know the true meaning of the fourth beast, [i] the one different from all the others, extremely terrifying, with iron teeth and bronze claws, devouring, crushing, and trampling with its feet whatever was left. 20 I also wanted to know about the 10 horns [j] on its head and about the other horn that came up, before which three fell — the horn that had eyes, and a mouth that spoke arrogantly, [k] and that was more visible than the others. 21 As I was watching, this horn waged war [l] against the holy ones and was prevailing over them 22 until the Ancient of Days arrived and a judgment [m] was given in favor of the holy ones of the Most High, for the time had come, and the holy ones took possession of the kingdom.

23 “This is what he said: ‘The fourth beast will be a fourth kingdom on the earth, different from all the other kingdoms. It will devour the whole earth, trample it down, and crush it. 24 The 10 horns [n] are 10 kings who will rise from this kingdom. Another, different from the previous ones, will rise after them and subdue three kings. 25 He will speak words against the Most High [o] and oppress [C] the holy ones [p] of the Most High. He will intend to change religious festivals [D] and laws, [q] and the holy ones will be handed over to him for a time, times, and half a time. [E,] [r] 26 But the court will convene, [s] and his dominion will be taken away, to be completely destroyed forever. [t] 27 The kingdom, dominion, and greatness of the kingdoms under all of heaven will be given to the people, the holy ones of the Most High. His kingdom will be an everlasting kingdom, [u] and all rulers will serve and obey Him.’

28 “This is the end of the interpretation. As for me, Daniel, my thoughts terrified me greatly, [v] and my face turned pale, [F] but I kept the matter to myself.” [w]

The Vision of a Ram and a Goat

8 In the third year of King Belshazzar's [a] reign, a vision appeared to me, Daniel, after the one that had appeared to me earlier. [b] 2 I saw the vision, and as I watched, I was in the fortress city of Susa, [c] in the province of Elam. [d] I saw in the vision that I was beside the Ulai Canal. 3 I looked up, [A] and there was a ram [e] standing beside the canal. He had two horns. The two horns were long, but one was longer than the other, and the longer one came up last. 4 I saw the ram charging to the west, the north, and the south. [f] No animal could stand against him, and there was no rescue from his power. He did whatever he wanted [g] and became great.

5 As I was observing, a male goat appeared, coming from the west across the surface of the entire earth without touching the ground. The goat had a conspicuous horn [B] between his eyes. [h] 6 He came toward the two-horned ram I had seen standing beside the canal and rushed at him with savage fury. 7 I saw him approaching the ram, and infuriated with him, he struck the ram, shattering his two horns, and the ram was not strong enough to stand against him. The goat threw him to the ground and trampled him, and there was no one to rescue the ram from his power. 8 Then the male goat became very great, [i] but when he became powerful, the large horn was shattered. [j] Four conspicuous horns came up in its place, pointing toward the four winds of heaven. [k]

The Little Horn

9 From one of them a little horn [l] emerged and grew extensively toward the south and the east and toward the beautiful land. [m, n] 10 It grew as high as the heavenly •host , made some of the stars and some of the host fall to the earth, [o] and trampled them. [p] 11 It made itself great, [q] even up to the Prince of the host; [r] it removed His daily sacrifice [s] and overthrew the place of His sanctuary.
12 Because of rebellion, a host, together with the daily sacrifice, will be given over. The horn will throw truth to the ground and will be successful [t] in whatever it does.

13 Then I heard a holy one speaking, [u] and another holy one said to the speaker, “How long will the events of this vision last [v] — the daily sacrifice, the rebellion that makes desolate, and the giving over of the sanctuary and of the host to be trampled? ” [w]

14 He said to me, [x] “For 2,300 evenings and mornings; then the sanctuary will be restored.”

Interpretation of the Vision

15 While I, Daniel, was watching the vision and trying to understand it, there stood before me someone who appeared to be a man. [y] 16 I heard a human voice calling from the middle of the Ulai: “Gabriel, [z] explain the vision to this man.”
17 So he approached where I was standing; when he came near, I was terrified and fell facedown. [a] “Son of man,” he said to me, “understand that the vision refers to the time of the end.” [b] 18 While he was speaking to me, I fell into a deep sleep, [c] with my face to the ground. Then he touched me, made me stand up, [d] 19 and said, “I am here to tell you what will happen at the conclusion of the time of wrath, because it refers to the appointed time of the end. [e] 20 The two-horned ram [f] that you saw represents the kings of Media and Persia. 21 The shaggy goat represents the king of Greece, and the large horn between his eyes represents the first king. [g] 22 The four horns that took the place of the shattered horn represent four kingdoms. They will rise from that nation, but without its power.

23 Near the end of their kingdoms, when the rebels have reached the full measure of their sin, [C] an insolent king, skilled in intrigue, [D] will come to the throne.
24 His power will be great,
but it will not be his own.
He will cause terrible destruction [h] and succeed in whatever he does.
He will destroy the powerful along with the holy people. [i] 25 He will cause deceit to prosper through his cunning and by his influence, and in his own mind he will make himself great.
He will destroy many in a time of peace;
he will even stand against the Prince of princes.
Yet he will be shattered — not by human hands. [j]
26 The vision of the evenings and the mornings that has been told is true.
Now you must seal up the vision [k]
because it refers to many days in the future.”

27 I, Daniel, was overcome and lay sick for days. [l] Then I got up and went about the king’s business. [m] I was greatly disturbed by the vision and could not understand it.

Daniel's Prayer

9 In the first year of Darius, [a] the son of Ahasuerus, a Mede by birth, who was ruler over the kingdom of the Chaldeans: 2 In the first year of his reign, I, Daniel, understood from the books according to the word of the LORD to Jeremiah the prophet that the number of years for the desolation of Jerusalem would be 70. [b] 3 So I turned my attention to the Lord God to seek Him by prayer and petitions, with fasting, •sackcloth , and ashes. [c] 4 I prayed to the LORD my God and confessed:
Ah, Lord — the great and awe-inspiring God [d] who keeps His gracious covenant [e] with those who love Him [f] and keep His commands [g] — 5 we have sinned, [h] done wrong, acted wickedly, rebelled, [i] and turned away from Your commands and ordinances. [j] 6 We have not listened to Your servants the prophets, [k] who spoke in Your name to our kings, leaders, fathers, and all the people of the land.
7 Lord, righteousness belongs to You, [l] but this day public shame belongs to us: the men of Judah, the residents of Jerusalem, and all Israel — those who are near and those who are far, in all the countries where You have dispersed them because of the disloyalty they have shown toward You. 8 LORD, public shame [m] belongs to us, our kings, our leaders, and our fathers, because we have sinned against You. [n] 9 Compassion and forgiveness belong to the Lord our God, though we have rebelled against Him 10 and have not obeyed the voice of the LORD our God by following His instructions that He set before us through His servants [o] the prophets.
11 All Israel has broken Your law and turned away, [p] refusing to obey
You. The promised curse [A] written in the law of Moses, [q] the servant of God, has been poured out on us because we have sinned against Him. 12 He has carried out His words [r] that He spoke against us and against our rulers [B, s] by bringing on us so great a disaster that nothing like what has been done to Jerusalem has ever been done [t] under all of heaven. 13 Just as it is written in the law of Moses, [u] all this disaster has come on us, yet we have not appeased [v] the LORD our God by turning from our iniquities and paying attention to Your truth. [w] 14 So the LORD kept the disaster in mind and brought it on us, for the LORD our God is righteous in all He has done. But we have not obeyed Him.
15 Now, Lord our God, who brought Your people out of the land of Egypt with a mighty hand [x] and made Your name renowned [y] as it is this day, we have sinned, we have acted wickedly. 16 Lord, in keeping with all Your righteous acts, may Your anger and wrath [z] turn away from Your city Jerusalem, Your holy mountain; [a] for because of our sins and the iniquities of our fathers, Jerusalem and Your people have become an object of ridicule to all those around us.

17 Therefore, our God, hear the prayer and the petitions of Your servant. Show Your favor [b] to Your desolate sanctuary [c] for the Lord's sake. 18 Listen, [C] my God, and hear. Open Your eyes and see our desolations and the city called by Your name. For we are not presenting our petitions before You based on our righteous acts, but based on Your abundant compassion. 19 Lord, hear! Lord, forgive! Lord, listen and act! My God, for Your own sake, do not delay, [d] because Your city and Your people are called by Your name.

The 70 Weeks of Years

20 While I was speaking, praying, confessing my sin and the sin of my people Israel, [e] and presenting my petition before •Yahweh my God concerning the holy mountain of my God — 21 while I was praying, Gabriel, [f] the man I had seen in the first vision, [g] came to me in my extreme weariness, about the time of the evening offering. [h] 22 He gave me this explanation: "Daniel, I've come now to give you understanding. [i] 23 At the beginning of your petitions an answer went out, and I have come to give it, for you are treasured by God. [j] So consider the message and understand the vision: [k]

24 Seventy weeks [l] are decreed [m] about your people and your holy city — to bring the rebellion to an end,
to put a stop to sin,
to wipe away iniquity,
to bring in everlasting righteousness, [n]
to seal up vision and prophecy, and to anoint the most holy place.
25 Know and understand this:
From the issuing of the decree to restore and rebuild Jerusalem [o] until •Messiah [p] the Prince [D] will be seven weeks and 62 weeks. [q]

It will be rebuilt with a plaza and a moat, but in difficult times.
26 After those 62 weeks [r]
the Messiah will be cut off [s] and will have nothing.
The people of the coming prince will destroy the city [t] and the sanctuary.
The [E] end will come with a flood, [u]
and until the end there will be [F] war;
desolations are decreed.
27 He will make a firm covenant [G] with many for one week, [v]
but in the middle of the week
he will put a stop to sacrifice and offering.
And the abomination of desolation [w] will be on a wing [x] of the temple [y, H] until the decreed destruction [z] is poured out on the desolator.”

Vision of a Glorious One

10 In the third year of Cyrus king of Persia, [a] a message was revealed to Daniel, who was named Belteshazzar. [b] The message was true and was about a great conflict. He understood the message and had understanding of the vision. [c]

2 In those days I, Daniel, was mourning for three full weeks. [d] 3 I didn't eat any rich food, [e] no meat or wine entered my mouth, and I didn't put any oil on my body until the three weeks were over. 4 On the twenty-fourth day of the first month, [f] as I was standing on the bank of the great river, [g] the Tigris, 5 I looked up, and there was a man dressed in linen, [h] with a belt of gold [i] from Uphaz [j, k] around his waist. 6 His body was like topaz, [l] his face like the brilliance of lightning, his eyes like flaming torches, [m] his arms and feet like the gleam of polished bronze, and the sound of his words like the sound of a multitude. [n]

7 Only I, Daniel, saw the vision. [o] The men who were with me did not see it, [p] but a great terror fell on them, [q] and they ran and hid. 8 I was left alone, looking at this great vision. [r] No strength was left in me; my face grew deathly pale, [A, s] and I was powerless. 9 I heard the words he said, and when I heard them I fell into a deep sleep, [B, t] with my face to the ground.

Angelic Conflict

10 Suddenly, a hand touched me and raised me to my hands and knees. 11 He said to me, “Daniel, you are a man treasured by God. [u] Understand the words that I’m saying to you. Stand on your feet, [v] for I have now been sent to you.” [w] After he said this to me, I stood trembling.

12 “Don’t be afraid, [x] Daniel,” he said to me, “for from the first day that you purposed to understand and to humble yourself before your God, [y] your prayers were heard. I have come because of your prayers. [z] 13 But the prince of the kingdom of Persia opposed me for 21 days. Then Michael, [a] one of the chief princes, came to help me after I had been left there with the kings of Persia. [b] 14 Now I have come to help you understand what will happen to your people in the last days, [c] for the vision refers to those days.” [d]

15 While he was saying these words to me, I turned my face toward the ground and was speechless. [e] 16 Suddenly one with human likeness [f] touched my lips. [g] I opened my mouth and said to the one standing in front of me, “My lord, because of the vision, anguish overwhelms me and I am powerless. [h] 17 How can someone like me, [i] your servant, [C] speak with someone like you, my lord? Now I have no strength, and there is no breath in me.”

18 Then the one with human likeness touched me again and strengthened me. [j] 19 He said, “Don’t be afraid, [k] you who are [D] treasured by God. [l] Peace to you; be very strong! ” [m]

As he spoke to me, I was strengthened and said, “Let my lord speak, for you have strengthened me.” [n]

20 He said, “Do you know why I’ve come to you? I must return at once to fight against the prince of Persia, and when I leave, the prince of Greece will come. [o] 21 No one has the courage to support me against them except Michael, [p] your prince. However, I will tell you what is recorded in the book of truth.

11 In the first year of Darius the Mede, [a] I stood up to strengthen and protect him. [2] Now I will tell you the truth. [b]

Prophecies about Persia and Greece

"Three more kings will arise in Persia, and the fourth will be far richer than the others. By the power he gains through his riches, he will stir up everyone against the kingdom of Greece. [c] 3 Then a warrior king will arise; he will rule a vast realm and do whatever he wants. [d] 4 But as soon as he is established, his kingdom will be broken up and divided to the four winds of heaven, [e] but not to his descendants; it will not be the same kingdom that he ruled, because his kingdom will be uprooted and will go to others besides them. [f]

Kings of the South and the North

5 "The king of the South [g] will grow powerful, but one of his commanders will grow more powerful and will rule a kingdom greater than his. 6 After some years they will form an alliance, and the daughter of the king of the South will go to the king of the North [h] to seal the agreement. She will not retain power, and his strength will not endure. She will be given up, together with her entourage, her father, [i] and the one who supported her during those times. 7 In the place of the king of the South, one from her family [A] will rise up, come against the army, and enter the fortress of the king of the North. He will take action against them and triumph. 8 He will take even their gods captive to Egypt, with their metal images and their precious articles of silver and gold. [j] For some years he will stay away from the king of the North, 9 who will enter the kingdom of the king of the South and then return to his own land.

10 "His sons will mobilize for war and assemble a large number of armed forces. They will advance, sweeping through like a flood, [B, k] and will again wage war as far as his fortress. 11 Infuriated, the king of the South will march out to fight with the king of the North who will raise a large army but they will be handed over to his enemy. 12 When the army is carried off, he will become arrogant and cause tens of thousands to fall, but he will not triumph. 13 The king of the North will again raise a multitude larger than the first. After some years [C, l] he will advance with a great army and many supplies.

14 "In those times many will rise up against the king of the South. Violent ones among your own people will assert themselves to fulfill a vision, but they will fail. 15 Then the king of the North will come, build up an assault ramp, [m] and capture a well-fortified city. The forces of the South will not stand; even their select troops will not be able to resist. 16 The king of the North who comes against him will do whatever he wants, [n] and no one can oppose him. He will establish himself in the beautiful land [o, p] with total destruction in his hand.

17 He will resolve [q] to come with the force of his whole kingdom and will reach an agreement with him. [r] He will give him a daughter in marriage [D] to destroy it, [s] but she will not stand with him or support him. 18 Then he will turn his attention to the coasts and islands [t, u] and capture many. But a commander will put an end to his taunting; instead, he will turn his taunts against him. [v] 19 He will turn his attention back to the fortresses of his own land, but he will stumble, fall, [w] and be no more. [x]

20 "In his place one will arise who will send out a tax collector [y] for the glory of the kingdom; but within a few days he will be shattered, though not in anger [E] or in battle.

21 "In his place a despised [z] person will arise; royal honors will not be given to him, but he will come during a time of peace [F, a] and seize the kingdom by intrigue. 22 A flood of forces will be swept away before him; they will be shattered, as well as the covenant prince. 23 After an alliance is made with him, he will act deceitfully. He will rise to power with a small nation. [G] 24 During a time of peace, [H] he will come into the richest parts of the province [b] and do what his fathers and predecessors never did. He will lavish plunder, loot, and wealth on his followers, and he will make plans against fortified cities, but only for a time.

25 "With a large army he will stir up his power and his courage against the king of the South. The king of the South will prepare for battle with an extremely large and powerful army, but he will not succeed, because plots will be made against him. 26 Those who eat his provisions [c] will destroy him; his army will be swept away, and many will fall slain. 27 The two kings, whose hearts are bent on evil, will speak lies [d] at the same table but to no avail, for still the end will come at the appointed time. [e] 28 The king of the North will return to his land with great wealth, but his heart will be set against the holy covenant; [I] he will take action, then return to his own land.

29 "At the appointed time he will come again to the South, but this time [J] will not be like the first. 30 Ships of Kittim [f, g] will come against him, and being intimidated, he will withdraw. Then he will rage against the holy covenant and take action. On his return, he will favor those who abandon the holy covenant. 31 His forces will rise up and desecrate the temple fortress. They will abolish the daily sacrifice [h] and set up the abomination of desolation. [i] 32 With flattery he will corrupt those who act wickedly toward the covenant, but the people who know their God will be strong and take action. [j] 33 Those who are wise among the people [k] will give understanding to many, yet they will die by sword and flame, [l] and be captured and plundered for a time. 34 When defeated, they will be helped by some, but many others will join them insincerely. [m] 35 Some of the wise will fall so that they may be refined, [n] purified, and cleansed [o] until the time of the end, for it will still come at the appointed time.

36 "Then the king will do whatever he wants. [p] He will exalt and magnify himself above every god, [q] and he will say outrageous things against the God of gods. [r] He will be successful until the time of wrath is completed, [s] because what has been decreed will be accomplished. 37 He will not show regard for the gods [K] of his fathers, the god longed for by women, or for any other god, [t] because he will magnify himself above all. 38 Instead, he will honor a god of fortresses — a god his fathers did not know — with gold, silver, precious stones, and riches. 39 He will deal with the strongest fortresses with the help of a foreign
god. He will greatly honor those who acknowledge him, [L] making them rulers over many and distributing land as a reward.

40 "At the time of the end, the king of the South will engage him in battle, but the king of the North will storm against him [u] with chariots, horsemen, and many ships. He will invade countries and sweep through them like a flood. [v] 41 He will also invade the beautiful land, [w] and many will fall. But these will escape from his power: Edom, Moab, and the prominent people [M] of the Ammonites. [x] 42 He will extend his power against the countries, and not even the land of Egypt will escape. 43 He will get control over the hidden treasures of gold and silver and over all the riches of Egypt. The Libyans and •Cushites will also be in submission. [N, y] 44 But reports from the east [z] and the north will terrify him, and he will go out with great fury to annihilate and •completely destroy many. 45 He will pitch his royal tents between the sea and [O] the beautiful holy mountain, [a] but he will meet his end with no one to help him.

12 At that time
Michael [a] the great prince who stands watch over your people will rise up.
There will be a time of distress [b]
such as never has occurred [c]
since nations came into being until that time. [d]
But at that time all your people who are found written in the book [e] will escape. [f]
2 Many of those who sleep in the dust [g]
of the earth will awake,
some to eternal life, [h]
and some to shame and eternal contempt. [i] 3 Those who are wise will shine like the bright expanse of the heavens, [j]
and those who lead many to righteousness, [k]
like the stars forever and ever.

4 “But you, Daniel, keep these words secret [l] and seal the book [m] until the time of the end. [n] Many will roam about, [o] and knowledge will increase.” [p]

5 Then I, Daniel, looked, and two others were standing there, one on this bank of the river and one on the other. 6 One of them said to the man dressed in linen, [q] who was above the waters of the river, [r] “How long until the end [s] of these extraordinary things? ” 7 Then I heard the man dressed in linen, who was above the waters of the river. He raised both his hands [A, t] toward heaven and swore by Him who lives eternally [u] that it would be for a time, times, and half a time. [v] When the power of the holy people is shattered, all these things will be completed.

8 I heard but did not understand. So I asked, “My lord, what will be the outcome of these things? ” [w]

9 He said, “Go on your way, Daniel, for the words are secret [x] and sealed until the time of the end. [y] 10 Many will be purified, [z] cleansed, and refined, [a] but the wicked will act wickedly; [b] none of the wicked will understand, but the wise will understand. [c] 11 From the time the daily sacrifice is abolished and the abomination of desolation [d] is set up, [e] there will be 1,290 days. 12 The one who waits [f] for and reaches 1,335 days is blessed. 13 But as for you, go on your way to the end; [g] you will rest, then rise [h] to your destiny at the end of the days.”

Introduction

A view of the Tigris, "the great river" (10:4), as Daniel referred to it. On the banks of the Tigris a heavenly being appeared to Daniel. The source of the Tigris, several hundred miles north of Babylon, ran within 20 miles of Babylon on its way to the Persian Gulf. Daniel's exact location wasn't specified.

Daniel, whose name means "God Judges" or "God's Judge," was a sixth-century B.C. prophet living in exile in Babylon. Daniel recounts key events firsthand that occurred during the Jewish captivity and also shares visions that were given to him by God.

Circumstances of Writing Author: The critical view of the book of Daniel suggests it was written by a second-century B.C. Jewish author, not the historical Daniel. This view is largely based on a naturalistic perspective that denies the possibility of the authentic foretelling found in Daniel. On the other hand, the traditional view maintains that Daniel the prophet did indeed write this book sometime shortly after the end of the Babylonian captivity (sixth century B.C.). Internal testimony supports this claim. In the text itself, Daniel claimed to have written down visions given by God (8:2; 9:2,20; 12:5). Passages which contain third-person references to Daniel do not disprove his authorship. After all, authors commonly refer to themselves in the third person, as for instance Moses does in the Pentateuch. Moreover, God speaks of Himself in the third person (Ex 20:2,7). The prophet Ezekiel referred to Daniel several times (Ezk 14:14,20; 28:3), a prominence that would befit the writing prophet. Finally, Jesus Christ attributed the book of Daniel to Daniel himself (Mt 24:15; Mk 13:14).

Background: The historical setting of the book of Daniel is the Babylonian captivity. The book opens after King Nebuchadnezzar's first siege of Judah (605 B.C.) when he brought Daniel and his friends to Babylon along with other captives among the Judean nobility. Nebuchadnezzar assaulted Judah again in 597 and brought 10,000 captives back to Babylon. In 586 he once again besieged Jerusalem, this time destroying the city, the holy temple, and exiling the people of Judah to Babylon. Daniel's ministry began in 605 when he arrived at Babylon with the first Jewish captives, extended throughout the Babylonian captivity (which ended in 539), and concluded sometime after the third year of Cyrus the Great, the Medo-Persian king who overthrew Babylonia (see Dn 1:21 and 10:1).

When was the book written? While the critical view maintains a date of 165 B.C. in the Maccabean period primarily because of the precise prophecies related to that time, the traditional view asserts that it was written just after the end of the Babylonian captivity in the late sixth century B.C. The book contains a factual recounting of events from the life of Daniel, supernatural prediction of events that took place during the intertestamental period, and prophecies that are yet to be fulfilled.

Manuscript evidence supports the early date. Fragments from Daniel were found among the Dead Sea Scrolls, a collection that included other books of the Bible that were written well before the second century. Linguistic evidence demonstrates that the use of Aramaic in Daniel fits a fifth-to sixth-century B.C. date because it parallels the Aramaic of Ezra as well as the Elephantine Papyrii and other secular works of that period. Historical evidence also supports the early date. For example, Daniel accurately described Belshazzar as co-regent with another king (Nabonidus), a fact that was not known until modern times. In summary, the late-date view is driven by a presuppositional rejection of supernatural prophecy and not objective evidence.

Message and Purpose The theme of the book of Daniel is the hope of the people of God during the times of the Gentiles. The phrase, "the times of the Gentiles," used by Jesus (Lk 21:24), refers to the time between the Babylonian captivity and Jesus' return. It is a time when God's people live under ungodly world dominion. The book promotes hope by teaching that at all times "the Most High God is ruler over the kingdom of men" (5:21). Daniel's purpose was to exhort Israel to be faithful to the sovereign God of Israel during the times of the Gentiles. He accomplished this by recounting examples of godly trust and prophecies of God's ultimate victory.

Contribution to the Bible Daniel's book establishes the validity of predictive prophecy and lays the foundation for understanding end-times prophecy, especially the book of Revelation in the NT. But most importantly, it emphasizes that the Lord has dominion over all the kingdoms of the earth, even in evil days when wicked empires reign. Two key words in the book are "king" (used 183 times) and "kingdom" (used 55 times). Above all, Daniel teaches that the God of Israel is the Sovereign of the universe, "for His dominion is an everlasting dominion, and His kingdom is from generation to generation" (4:34).

Structure The genre of the book of Daniel is narrative, recounting historical events for the purpose of present and future instruction. The narrative contains history, prophecy, and apocalyptic visions. Apocalyptic literature refers to revelation by God given through visions and symbols with a message of eschatological (end-time) triumph. Although Daniel contains apocalyptic elements, it is not an apocalyptic book. Rather it is a narrative that includes apocalyptic visions.

Noting that the book of Daniel contains both history (chaps. 1-6) and prophecy (chaps. 7-12), some divide the book into two sections. A better way to view the book's structure is based on the two languages it uses: 1:1-2:3 (Hebrew); 2:4-7:28 (Aramaic); and 8:1-12:13 (Hebrew). The Hebrew sections pertain primarily to the people of Israel, which is fitting since Hebrew was Israel's national language. Aramaic was the international language of that time. Fittingly, the Aramaic section of Daniel demonstrates God's dominion over the international Gentile nations.

Timeline

Study Notes 1:1 Although Daniel recorded these events as taking place in the third year of . . . Jehoiakim, Jeremiah wrote that it was in the fourth year (Jr 25:1,9; 46:1). Daniel probably used the Babylonian system which did not count a king’s year of accession, while Jeremiah used the Israelite system of counting, which did include the accession year. The events took place during the accession year of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, probably when he was still co-regent with his father and just after the battle of Carchemish (605 B.C.).

1:2 Although Nebuchadnezzar viewed his defeat of Judah as a victory for his gods, Daniel's perspective was that it was the LORD who handed Jehoiakim over to the Babylonians. The historian Berosus mentioned these events when he wrote that Nebuchadnezzar conquered Hattiland (referring to Syro-Palestine). At that time, Nebuchadnezzar took vessels from the house of God, in fulfillment of Isaiah's prediction when Hezekiah showed them to the Babylonian king a century beforehand (Is 39:2,6).

1:3 Chief of his court officials means literally "chief of the eunuchs," but since "eunuch" had come to mean "royal official," most likely Ashpenaz was not a eunuch, nor did Daniel and his friends become thus.

1:4 The Hebrew word for young men here literally means "children" or "boys" and probably refers to teenagers, a good estimate being around age 15. Chaldean language and literature refers to an ancient university-style education in Sumerian, Akkadian, and Aramaic.

1:7 Daniel and his friends, whose original names honored the God of Israel, were given other names that intended to honor the false gods of Babylon. Daniel ("God is My Judge") became Belteshazzar ("Bel Protect Him"); Hananiah ("God Has Been Gracious") became Shadrach ("The Command of Akku"); Mishael ("Who Is What God Is?") became Meshach ("Who Is What Aku Is?"); Azariah ("The Lord Has Helped") became Abednego ("Servant of Nebo").

1:8 The word determined means literally "set upon his heart," referring to inner resolve. Daniel decided that he would not defile himself with a diet that included non-Kosher meat such as horseflesh and pork, or drink wine that had been offered to Babylonian gods.

1:15 The fact that Daniel and his friends looked better and healthier is not a biblical endorsement of vegetarianism (Gn 9:3). Rather, God in His providence made them healthy and strong.

1:20 Throughout the book of Daniel, there are six different expressions for the king's counselors. The first two, used here, are diviner-priests and mediums. The word "diviner priests" comes from a root that means "engraver." It refers to those who engraved Babylonian religious activities and astrological movements of the stars on clay tablets. The word "mediums" means "conjurers." It refers to those who used spells and incantations to communicate with the spirit world.

1:21 Daniel saw the end of the exile, living until the first year of King Cyrus (539 B.C.) and even beyond that time (see 10:1, where "third year" dates to 536).

2:1 Nebuchadnezzar's dreams took place in the second year of his reign, which might appear to conflict with the claim that Daniel's three-year training program (1:5) began in Nebuchadnezzar's first year (1:1). However, by Babylonian reckoning Daniel's second year of training occurred during what was considered the first year of Nebuchadnezzar's reign (604-603 B.C.; see note at 1:1 about reckoning time). Therefore, the king sought interpretation of his dreams in 602 B.C., shortly after Daniel had completed his three-year education.

2:2 On diviner-priests and mediums, see note at 1:20. The Hebrew word for sorcerers comes from an Akkadian word that can also mean witchcraft. Chaldeans is both a general ethnic term for the Babylonian people and, as used here, a specific term for priests who served as astrologers, soothsayers, and wise men in the king's government.

2:4-7:28 The narrative switches from Hebrew to Aramaic in verse 4 and continues in Aramaic until 7:28. Chapters 2 through 7 pertain to God's revelations about the Gentile nations. The structure is chiastic (ABCCBA).

2:5 Some versions translate the phrase my word is final as "the dream is forgotten." It is better to translate it as referring to the certainty and finality of the king's demand. Nebuchadnezzar withheld the facts of the dream not because he could not remember them but because he wanted to test his wise men.

2:11 This candid confession by the wise men admits that despite all their incantations, magic, and astrology, they were not capable of receiving supernatural revelation.

2:12 Wise men is a general term for all the king's counselors, who gained their knowledge through occult practices.

2:13 Daniel and his friends were subject to execution because they were in the class of wise men; they had not participated in any of the discussions with the king.

2:18 This mystery refers to a secret that can only be known by divine revelation.

2:20-23 Daniel's song of praise includes the two key ideas of the chapter: First, that God is sovereign over the political affairs of humanity because He removes kings and establishes kings. Second, that God alone can give revelation by giving wisdom to the wise and by revealing the deep . . . hidden things, even the king's mystery that had stumped the wise men.

2:27 Daniel asserted that no pagan soothsayer could solve the mystery. Rather, he attributed revelation to God alone. The word translated astrologer expresses the idea of cutting or determining, referring to a person who is able to determine another's fate.

2:28 In the last days indicates that the king's dream would find its complete fulfillment only in the end times.

2:31-45 Daniel interpreted the parts of the colossal statue to represent four empires in historical succession. The head represented the kingdom of Babylon (605-539 B.C.). The chest and arms symbolized the Medo-Persian Empire (539-331 B.C.). The stomach and thighs stood for the Greek Empire (331-146 B.C.). The legs referred to the Roman Empire (146 B.C.- A.D. 1476 in the West and 1453 in the East). The feet were mixed of iron and clay and represented a future continuation or revival of Rome. The material of each section of the statue decreased in value but increased in strength. The decreased value may symbolize the moral decline of each succeeding kingdom. The increased strength refers to the harsher domination each successive kingdom would impose on its subjects. Daniel also described a stone that would shatter the final kingdom and grow into a mountain that filled the whole earth. This "stone" is the kingdom of God.

Primarily because they disbelieve in the possibility of predictive prophecy, critical scholars assume that Daniel was written in 165 B.C. and therefore is looking backward rather than forward at the rise of earthly kingdoms such as the Roman Empire . They divide the four kingdoms into Babylon, Media, Persia, and Greece. On the other hand, most interpreters who accept the reality of predictive prophecy in Scripture believe Daniel was written in the late sixth century and view the fourth kingdom as Rome. They hold different opinions about the meaning of the stone, however. Some view it as a spiritual kingdom, embodied in the church, which gradually conquered the Roman Empire. Others more accurately view it as a future kingdom, when Messiah Jesus will return and establish His physical rule that will govern the whole earth and never be destroyed.

2:47 King Nebuchadnezzar responded to Daniel's remarkable revelation by recognizing the God of Israel as part of the pantheon of gods, though he did not recognize the God of Israel as the one and only true God.

3:1 The events of Daniel 3 probably took place shortly after Daniel explained the king's dream (cp. Dn 2), although some estimate that it could have been 10 or even 20 years later. Babylonian records indicate that there was a revolt against Nebuchadnezzar during the tenth year of his reign, so this may have led to the king's desire for the loyalty test described here. The gold statue was not likely solid gold but was instead overlaid with it. Nebuchadnezzar probably decked the entire thing in gold to negate the message conveyed by the statue of his dream, wherein only the head was gold and signaled that the Babylonian Empire would only be temporary. The location of the the plain of Dura has not been conclusively identified. Daniel was not involved in the events here since he remained in the capital city "at the king's court" (2:49) while other officials—including his three friends Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego—were called to Dura to show their loyalty. Had Daniel been there he too would have refused to bow to the image.

3:2 The exact meaning of these seven positions is unclear other than that they are listed in descending order of rank.

3:4-5 Three of the instruments mentioned—zither . . . harp, and drum—are the only Greek loan words in Daniel. The presence of Greek words does not require that Daniel was written later in the Greek period. Even Assyrian inscriptions that predate the Babylonian period refer to Greek instruments and musicians (Archer, Expositor's: Daniel, VII, p. 21).Although some conjecture that the gold statue was of Nebuchadnezzar himself, this is unlikely because the Babylonians did not believe their king was divine. More likely, the image was of a Babylonian god, perhaps Nebuchadnezzar's patron Nabu or the chief Babylonian god Marduk. Nebuchadnezzar made this demand as some form of loyalty oath to him personally.

3:6 Incineration in a furnace of blazing fire—a punishment that Nebuchadnezzar had also used on two Judean false prophets, Zedekiah and Ahab (Jr 29:22)—was a normal Babylonian penalty as seen in the Code of Hammurabi, Sections 25, 110, and 157. Perhaps this furnace was built to smelt the gold for the image Nebuchadnezzar had made.

3:8 Chaldeans is both a general ethnic term for the Babylonian people and, as used here, a specific term for priests who served as astrologers, soothsayers, and wise men in the king's government. Their motive in denouncing the three faithful Jewish men was not devotion to the king's demand but rather a hatred for the Jewish people. Hatred of the Jewish people is often on display in the Bible, as with Haman (Est 3:5-6). It reflects a hatred of the God of Israel and is expressed through oppression and attempted genocide of His people (Ps 83:2-5).

3:17-18 The king offered Daniel's friends a second chance to worship the idol, but they persistently refused. The Aramaic imperfect verb yeseziv ("He can rescue") in this context indicates possibility and not certainty. They were saying that God might deliver them or He might choose not to do so. Their faith in God did not rest on the belief that He would perform a miracle, but that their sovereign God could be trusted. They asserted that if God chose not to deliver them from this punishment but instead allowed them to become martyrs for Him, they would still refuse to serve the king's gods or worship the gold statue. This is one of the strongest examples of steadfast faith in the Bible.

3:19 The enraged king gave orders to heat the furnace seven times more than was customary, an idiom for "as hot as possible."

3:23 The furnace was built on a small hill or mound with openings at the top and side (Miller, Daniel, p. 122). So the three men fell . . . into the furnace from the top, and the king was able to see four men in the furnace (v. 25) as he looked in through the side opening.

3:25 The king saw in the furnace a fourth figure who looked like a son of the gods. This may have been an angel or even a preincarnate appearance of God the Son.

3:27 When Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego came out of the furnace, Nebuchadnezzar and all his government officials saw that the fire had no effect on the bodies of these men. Not only did the fire fail to burn their hair and clothing, but they did not even have the smell of fire on them. Hebrews 11:34 cites this miracle of faith, referring to those who "quenched the raging of fire."

3:28-29 After Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego were spared, Nebuchadnezzar saw that the God of Israel was greater than all other gods. Even so, he remained a worshiper of many gods, falling short of full devotion of the one and only true God.

4:4-36 The text does not indicate when King Nebuchadnezzar had his dream, nor does it matter for the interpretation of the passage, but it was likely some 10 years before the end of his 43-year reign. Then God in His grace allowed him one year to repent followed by seven years of madness. Once he came to his senses, Nebuchadnezzar lived another two or three years before dying in 562 B.C. No doubt, the king did indeed write the letter. But it was Daniel, as author of the book, who most likely wrote the section that speaks of the king in the third person (vv. 28-33) and records his time of mental illness. The chapter is structured in three sections: (1) A prologue in which the king praises the true God (4:1-3); (2) a narrative body (4:4-34a) that recounts the king's dream,

Daniel's interpretation, the king's illness and repentance; and (3) a concluding epilogue in which the king declares the sovereignty of the true God (4:34b-37). The story covers a period of eight years, beginning with the dream, the year afterwards, and then the king's seven-year period of mental illness.

4:7 Nebuchadnezzar called the four classes of wise men to interpret his dream. Unlike the dream of Daniel 2, the king told them the dream. But similarly they could not make its interpretation known to him.

4:8 The king recognized that the spirit of the holy gods was in Daniel. The HCSB translation reflects the fact that Nebuchadnezzar persisted in believing in a plurality of gods. But since he had recently been chastened (3:24-30) and knew that God alone could reveal what was hidden (2:47), it is possibly correct to translate the phrase alternatively as "the spirit of the Holy God is in him." Beginning in this verse and throughout the chapter, Daniel is most frequently called by his Babylonian name Belteshazzar, seemingly because this section is written from the perspective of the Babylonian king, not a Hebrew exile.

4:10-12 The king's dream was of a tree whose top reached to the sky. A similar expression was used in Gn 11:4 for the tower of the city of Babylon, the top of which was to reach "the sky." The tree provided food and shelter for all the creatures of the earth.

4:13 The observer, a holy one, was an angel.

4:14-17 The fact that the stump with its roots would remain in the ground, indicated the continuation of life. The band of iron and bronze pointed to the protection of the stump. The tree plainly represents a man (the king) because the angel declared that his mind would be changed from that of a man to an animal for seven periods of time or for seven years.

4:19 As a loyal servant of the king, Daniel was alarmed about the dreadful discipline that would befall the king.

4:22-25 The tree represented King Nebuchadnezzar, who would be struck with a mental illness that would cause him to live outdoors with the wild animals (or animals of the field) for seven years until he repented of his pride and acknowledged that the Most High is ruler over the kingdom of men.

4:26 This is the only place in the OT where Heaven is used as a euphemism for God. This usage became commonplace in intertestamental literature, the NT, and rabbinic literature.

4:27 Daniel advised the king to repent (doing what is right) with the hope that this might prevent God's discipline.

4:29-30 Nebuchadnezzar had no less than three palaces in the city of Babylon. He was walking on the roof of one of them when he was overcome with the glory of the city and was consumed with pride. In his exclamation Is this not

Babylon the Great that I (lit "I, myself") have built by my vast power . . . to display my majestic glory, Nebuchadnezzar emphasized himself as the source of majesty. He failed to give God the credit and glory as the ultimate Giver of all good gifts. Many years later, the apostle Paul scolded the Corinthians for their pride by asking, "What do you have that you didn't receive? If, in fact, you did receive it, why do you boast as if you hadn't received it?" (1Co 4:7).

4:31 Having delayed the execution of his sentence against Nebuchadnezzar for a year (v. 28), God disciplined him the instant he became fully consumed with his pride, even while the words were still in the king's mouth.

4:33 Nebuchadnezzar may have suffered from boanthropy, a rare mental illness in which people believe they are actually cattle. One modern case of boanthropy resulted in the patient growing long matted hair and thickened fingernails, much like Nebuchadnezzar, whose hair grew like eagles' feathers and his nails like birds' claws. Critics contend that secular history has no record of Nebuchadnezzar's mental illness. However, it is questionable as to whether an ancient Near Eastern despot would mention his bout with insanity in official court records which were typically devoted to highlighting his accomplishments. Silence about an embarrassing episode is understandable. Moreover, the church historian Eusebius cited Abydenus, a third-century B.C. Greek historian who referred to a time when Nebuchadnezzar was "possessed by a god." Also, the third-century B.C. historian Berosus possibly referred to these events when he spoke of an illness that befell Nebuchadnezzar just before his death.

4:34 Boanthropy does not render its victims entirely unable to reason or understand what has happened to them, so it was possible for the king to realize that his own pride had caused his insanity. Realizing the cause of his state, Nebuchadnezzar repented of his pride and acknowledged the Most High God. His sanity returned to him instantly, a signal that God had lifted his sentence.

4:34-36 As an epilogue to the narrative, Nebuchadnezzar glorified God, using words that describe his realization that God's dominion is an everlasting dominion and also aptly summarize the theme of the book of Daniel.

4:37 The very last sentence of the chapter summarizes the message of the story—that God is able to humble those who walk in pride. Some disbelieve that the pagan King Nebuchadnezzar actually came to a saving knowledge of the true God, but possibly he did.

5:1 The developments in Daniel 5 occurred about 23 years after the events in the previous chapter. Nebuchadnezzar had died in 562 B.C., shortly after his time of madness and subsequent repentance (see note at 4:37). After his death, a series of intrigues and assassinations resulted in several obscure kings ruling Babylon until Nabonidus took the throne (556-539 B.C.). Beginning in A.D. 1914, 37 separate archival texts have been discovered documenting the existence of Belshazzar as crown prince. King Belshazzar held a great feast for 1,000 of his nobles, probably to bolster morale after Nabonidus had experienced a crushing defeat at the hands of the Persians. The Greek historians Herodotus and Xenophon confirm that Babylon fell while a great feast was in progress (v. 30). Excavations have uncovered a throne room that could accommodate 1,000 nobles.

5:2-4 By drinking libations to Babylonian gods with the vessels . . . taken from the temple devoted to the true God of Israel, Belshazzar was acting in an unusually aggressive and blasphemous way. Nebuchadnezzar is called Belshazzar's predecessor (lit "his father"). Most likely, Belshazzar's father, Nabonidus, married Nebuchadnezzar's daughter to establish his own claim to the throne of Babylon, making Nebuchadnezzar the grandfather of Belshazzar. The Aramaic word "father" is flexible, capable of referring to a grandfather, ancestor, or even a predecessor to a king without any lineal tie.

5:5 The appearance of a man's hand beginning to write was not a vision seen by Belshazzar alone, but a miracle seen by everyone present. Afterward, the wise men called to interpret could still see the words written on the plaster wall. According to the archaeologist who excavated it, the throne room (see v. 1) had walls covered with white gypsum or plaster.

5:7 The king called for his wise men to come and offered great honor to anyone who could interpret the words on the wall. He even offered to give the successful wise man the third highest position in the kingdom after Nabonidus and Belshazzar.

5:8 None of the wise men of Babylon were able to interpret the inscription on the wall, showing the futility of their pagan religion. Only Daniel, prophet of the one true God, could discern its meaning (1:17).

5:10 The queen who came to the banquet hall was the queen mother, not the wife of King Belshazzar since all his wives were already present (cp. v. 3).

5:11-12 Daniel was approximately 80 years old at this point and was either retired or forgotten. The queen mother, being the daughter of Nebuchadnezzar, remembered Daniel's extraordinary spirit and ability to interpret dreams during her father's reign.

5:13-29 When Daniel was brought before the king, he did not demonstrate the same level of respect that he had consistently shown Nebuchadnezzar. Instead, he rebuked Belshazzar for his brazen attitude and failure to learn from Nebuchadnezzar.

5:16-17 Daniel refused to accept any reward for interpreting the inscription not because he was rude or arrogant but because he was indignant at the king's disregard for Nebuchadnezzar's experiences with God and the blasphemous use of the temple vessels.

5:18-24 Writers of historical narrative frequently communicate the essential message of a text through dialogue. In this case, Daniel's words served as a rebuke of Belshazzar for his failure to learn from the experience of Nebuchadnezzar (as described in Dn 4). Daniel reprimanded Belshazzar because he had not humbled his heart, even though he knew what had happened to Nebuchadnezzar. According to ancient Babylonian texts, Belshazzar had served in the government of King Neriglissar in 560 B.C. This indicates that he had been old enough to be aware of the events at the end of Nebuchadnezzar's life. Instead of learning to submit to the Almighty, he exalted himself against God by using the temple vessels to blaspheme God. The specific sins Daniel cited were pride, blasphemy, idolatry, and failure to glorify the true God. For this reason, the writing was inscribed on the wall with a message of judgment and doom.

5:25 The three Aramaic words on the wall were: Mene (numbered), Tekel (weighed), and Parsin (divided).

5:28 Although the third word was written in the plural form (parsin), Daniel explained its meaning by using the singular form (Peres). The prediction that Belshazzar's kingdom has been divided does not indicate that the Babylonian Empire would be divided equally by two kingdoms (Medes and Persians) but rather that Babylon would be destroyed or dissolved and taken over by the Medo-Persian Empire. The third word on the wall (Parsin) has the same letters as the Aramaic word for "Persian." It was a play on words, indicating that the kingdom would fall to the Persian army.

5:30 Having lost a brief skirmish outside the walls of Babylon, Belshazzar retreated to the city and made light of the coming Persian siege. The Babylonians had 20 years of provisions, and the city was a seemingly impregnable fortress. Nevertheless, Darius diverted the waters of the Euphrates River so his forces could enter through the channel, passing below the water gates. He took the city that very night without a battle and killed Belshazzar, who was engaged in a drunken feast. The kingdom of Babylon fell just as foretold by Daniel (Dn 2:39). The colossus's head of gold (Babylon) had fallen. It was replaced by the chest and arms of silver, representing Medo-Persia (see 2:40).

5:31 The identity of Darius the Mede, who received the kingdom at the age of 62, is uncertain. Some believe he was Gubaru, the governor of Babylon, called Darius, an honorific title meaning "royal one." Others maintain that "Darius the Mede" was an alternate title for the Persian emperor, Cyrus the Great, also viewing the word “Darius” as a royal title.

6:1 In one of the best-known stories in the book, Daniel was cast into the lions’ den for his faith. Since Daniel was about 15 years old in 605 B.C. when the Babylonians brought him as a captive to Babylon, and since the events in Daniel 6 most likely took place in the second or third year after the Medo-Persian conquest of Babylon in 539 B.C., Daniel would have been approximately 82 years old when he was thrown to the lions, not a teenager as is often pictured in Bible story books. Darius began organizing the newly conquered Babylonian Empire and immediately decided to appoint 120 satraps over the kingdom. These 120 satraps were lower tier officials who helped rule the entire empire or just over the part of the empire that was formerly under Babylonian control.

6:2 The king appointed three administrators over the 120 satraps to assure that taxes would be properly collected without any embezzlement or corruption by the 120 government officials. For these positions, the king needed men with trustworthy reputations. So he chose Daniel as one of these officials. He must have heard of Daniel’s reputation; perhaps he was even aware of Daniel’s interpretation of the writing that had appeared on the wall the night Babylon fell.

6:3 Daniel proved to be a superlative administrator because of his extraordinary spirit, a phrase used previously to describe his character (5:12). Therefore, the king planned to set him over the whole realm as prime minister.

6:4-5 The king’s choice of Daniel created jealousy among the other court officials, and they wished to denounce Daniel. Since Daniel was both diligent and honest in his work, they could find no corruption in him. Therefore, they sought to trap him by creating a law to ban Daniel from worshiping his God.

6:6-7 When these corrupt officials approached the king, they falsely claimed that all government officials supported the proposal that for 30 days, anyone who petitioned any god or man except the king would be thrown into the lions’ den. By agreeing to this law, Darius probably had not claimed deity but rather adopted the role of a priestly mediator (see note at 3:4-5). His goal was to unite the Babylonian realm under the authority of the new Persian Empire.

6:8 The irrevocability of a law of the Medes and Persians is confirmed elsewhere in Scripture (Est 1:19; 8:8) and secular literature (Diodorus of Sicily, XVII:30).

6:10 Even though the law prohibiting prayer had gone into effect, Daniel still prayed with his windows opened toward Jerusalem. Jewish people in exile always pray toward Jerusalem—even today—just as Solomon had instructed in his prayer of dedication for the temple (1Kg 8:44-49). Daniel prayed not out of rebellion toward the king but out of obedience to the greater command of God. As the apostles would later say, “We must obey God rather than men” (Ac 5:29).

So great was Daniel's reputation for spiritual commitment that even his enemies knew he would obey God rather than bow to the king's edict.

6:14 The king was very displeased not because Daniel had defied him but because he came to understand that the true purpose of the law was to trap Daniel, whom he respected.

6:16 The Persians used mutilation by lions as one of several brutal forms of execution. It was Daniel's continual service to God that caused him to be cast into the lions' den; now the king hoped that this devotion would cause God to deliver Daniel. The word for den can also be translated as "pit."

6:17-18 Daniel was cast into a pit over which a stone was placed and sealed with the signet rings of the king and his nobles. King Darius then spent the night fasting and presumably praying for Daniel.

6:22-23 God uses angels to accomplish His purposes, including protection of His people (Ps 34:7; 91:11; Heb 1:14). He had done so for Daniel's three friends in the furnace many years earlier (Dn 3:25). As on that occasion, this may have been an angel or even the angel of the Lord (i.e., a preincarnate appearance of the Messiah). Daniel was not claiming perfection in declaring that he was found innocent before God. Rather, Daniel claimed that his allegiance to God made him guiltless in this matter. It was Daniel's faith in God, not his works, that brought him deliverance from the lions.

6:24 Although executing family members is exceptionally cruel, this was a common Persian practice according to Herodotus (Histories, 3.119).

6:25-27 Just as King Nebuchadnezzar before him, King Darius issued a decree to every people, nation, and language (cp. 4:2), declaring praise to the God of Daniel. Darius recognized the greatness of God: that He is living and eternal, sovereign, all-powerful, and able to deliver His people. Nevertheless, it is unlikely that Darius came to a saving faith here. He instead accepted the God of Israel as just one of many gods.

6:28 Some maintain that this verse draws a distinction between Darius and Cyrus, such that Darius could only be identified with Gubaru and not with Cyrus the Persian (see note at 5:31). But it is also possible to translate this verse as "during the reign of Darius, even Cyrus the Persian."

7:1-28 This chapter of Daniel is one of the most important in the entire OT, an essential guide to biblical prophecy. Moreover, the vision of the Son of Man is the centerpiece of OT revelation concerning the Messiah. The Aramaic section of Daniel begins in chapter 2 with Nebuchadnezzar's dream of the colossus and ends at the end of chapter 7. One reason for repeating the similar information in chapters 2 and 8 is that chapter 2 presents the world kingdoms from a Gentile perspective, while chapter 8 views the Gentile empires from the perspective of the Jewish people. Another reason for the repetition is to confirm the certainty of the predictions. As Joseph said, Pharaoh's dreams were repeated because "the matter has been determined by God, and He will carry it out soon" (Gn 41:32). The vision was included to give hope to Israel in captivity, informing the nation that life in the times of the Gentiles would get worse for God's covenant people, but ultimately the messianic kingdom would be established.

7:1 Belshazzar became co-regent with Nabonidus in 553 B.C. Assuming Daniel was about 15 when he was exiled to Babylon, he would have received this vision when he was approximately 67 years old. The events described in this chapter precede those of Daniel 5.

7:2 The four winds stirring up the great sea refers to the convulsions of the Gentile nations in the times of the Gentiles. The chapter later indicates that the sea represents "the earth" (v. 17) from which the four kingdoms arise. Moreover, "the sea" is frequently symbolic of Gentile humanity in other biblical passages (Is 17:12-13; 57:20; Rv 13:1; 17:1,15).

7:3 The four huge beasts represent the four nations previously identified in the vision of the colossus in Daniel 2 (see note at 2:31-45). These four beasts are increasingly violent, perhaps indicating the growing moral degeneracy of the respective kingdoms they represent.

7:4 The lion with eagle's wings represents the Babylonian Empire. The winged lion was a fitting symbol because some biblical passages represent Nebuchadnezzar as a lion (Jr 4:7; 49:19; 50:17,44) and others as an eagle (Jr 49:22; Lm 4:19; Ezk 17:3; Hab 1:8). The Babylonian Empire used lions to represent itself, and statues with winged lions were common there. Perhaps the wings being torn off represents Nebuchadnezzar's madness, and the lion's being set on its feet like a man indicates his restoration.

7:5 The bear . . . with three ribs in its mouth represents the Medo-Persian Empire and its three main conquests: Babylon (539 B.C.), Lydia (546 B.C.), and Egypt (525 B.C.). Its lopsided nature expresses the Persian dominance in this joint empire.

7:6 The leopard represents the Greek Empire. Its four wings refer to the great speed of Alexander's conquests and its four heads represent the four principle sections of the empire: Greece and Macedonia, Thrace and Asia Minor, Syria and Babylon, and Egypt and Israel.

7:7 The terrifying fourth beast represents the Roman Empire. It was different from the previous three because it was more powerful and had longer dominion. Horns commonly represent kings or kingdoms in Scripture (Ps 132:17; Zch 1:18; Rv 13:1; 17:12), as the angel's later interpretation plainly indicates (Dn 7:24).

7:8 A little . . . horn represents a king who starts small in power but becomes dominant. The little horn's eyes . . . like a man's indicates its shrewdness and its mouth that spoke arrogantly points to its boasting blasphemously against God (cp. v. 25). This little horn is a future world ruler whom Scripture also calls "the coming prince" (9:26); the king who "will do whatever he wants" (11:36); "the man of lawlessness," "the son of destruction," (2Th 2:3); "the beast," (Rv 13:1-10); and the "Antichrist" (1Jn 2:18).

7:9-10 The phrase the Ancient of Days refers to God's eternal nature.

7:11-12 The destruction of the beast by burning fire refers to the end of the fourth kingdom, the revived Roman Empire. The rest of the beasts, meaning the previous three kingdoms, would continue to exist but without their earlier dominance, until the coming of the messianic kingdom.

7:13-14 Although some have maintained that the son of man is the archangel Michael or a collective personification of the "holy ones of the most high" (v. 18), this One is none other than the divine Messiah Himself, who will fulfill the destiny of humanity (Ps 8; Heb 2:5-18). Jesus understood it to be a messianic title (Mk 14:61-62), and He used it to speak of Himself. Later rabbis saw it as one of the names of the Messiah.

7:18 The holy ones of the Most High is most likely a reference to Israel when the nation turns in faith to their Messiah Jesus (Zch 12:10; Rm 11:26). The literal covenant people will receive the kingdom, emphasizing that Messiah's final kingdom will be a literal kingdom on earth.

7:23-24a After a summary of the vision's meaning (vv. 19-22), the angel explains that the fourth kingdom, in its future state, will devour the whole earth, indicating world domination. The 10 kings could be a metaphor for completeness. More likely, it refers to an empire with a literal confederation of 10 kings (cp. Rv 17:12-13).

7:24b-26 Another king, the antichrist (cp. vv. 7-8), described in the vision as the little horn, will arise and take control of this last human empire by subduing three kings. He will be characterized by blasphemy (words against the Most High), anti-Semitism (he will oppress the holy ones of the Most High), religious corruption (he will intend to change religious festivals and laws). He will oppress the Jewish people for time, times, and half a time, meaning three and one-half years, or the second half of the future tribulation (cp. Rv 7:14). Some conclude that this was fulfilled when Antiochus oppressed the Jewish people from 167-164 B.C. This is unlikely since that period was for only three years and not three and one-half years. It is better to view this oppression as yet future. When the heavenly court will convene, the antichrist will be completely destroyed forever.

7:27 The Son of Man will take His throne and rule over His everlasting kingdom. Then the people—the believing remnant of Israel, also called holy ones—will receive this kingdom under the authority of their Messiah, the Son of Man.

8:1-27 Daniel 8:1-12:13 was written in Hebrew, focusing on God's people during the times of the Gentiles. The vision in Daniel 8 predicted events that involved the second and third world empires within a time frame from the sixth to second centuries B.C.

8:1 Belshazzar became co-regent with Nabonidus in 553 B.C. Assuming Daniel was about 15 when he was exiled to Babylon, he would have received this vision in 550 B.C. when he was about 70 years old. Although the events in this chapter precede those described in Daniel 5, they are included here because of the literary focus on Israel in the times of the Gentiles.

8:3 As in the previous chapter, Daniel saw a vision of animals that stood for world empires. First, he saw a ram, representing the Medo-Persian Empire (v. 20). It had two horns, representing the two nations in this confederated empire. One was longer than the other, and the longer one came up last, signifying the dominant status of Persia in the empire, even though it originally was the weaker kingdom.

8:5 Daniel also saw a male goat, representing the Greek Empire. The goat's conspicuous horn represents Alexander the Great (v. 21). The goat crossed the surface of the entire earth so rapidly that it did not touch the ground. This refers to Alexander the Great's speedy conquest of the entire Near East in only three years.

8:7 The goat struck the ram and shattered his two horns, indicating the Greek Empire's crushing defeat of Medo-Persia (331 B.C.).

8:8 Although the male goat became very great, at the height of his power the large horn was shattered. This refers to Alexander's sudden death at the peak of his greatness (323 B.C.). His kingdom was divided by four of his generals (Cassander over Macedon and Greece, Lysimachus over Thrace and Asia Minor, Seleucus over Syria and Babylon, Ptolemy over Egypt), described in the vision as four conspicuous horns that replaced him.

8:9-12 As opposed to the little horn that will come from the fourth kingdom (Rome) described in Dn 7:8, a different little horn emerged out of one of the four kingdoms that divided the Greek Empire. This one was Antiochus IV (175-163 B.C.), ruler of the Seleucid dynasty, who conquered surrounding areas to the south and to the east but especially dominated the beautiful land of Israel. He brutally trampled and persecuted the Jewish people from 170-164 B.C. Antiochus blasphemously presented himself as the Prince of the host, God Himself (called the Prince of princes in 8:25), stopping daily sacrifice and defiling the holy temple (His sanctuary) in Jerusalem (167 B.C.). He will be successful, but only temporarily.

8:13-14 An angel announced that Antiochus's defilement of Israel would last only 2,300 evenings and mornings, until the temple was rededicated by Judas Maccabeus in 164 B.C. This event is still celebrated by Jewish people today during the festival of Chanukah (Eng "Dedication," see Jn 10:22-23).

8:15-16 Daniel received the interpretation of the vision from the angel Gabriel, only one of two angels (along with Michael) who are named in Scripture. Gabriel would also give the message of Daniel's 70 weeks (9:24-27) and announce the birth of John the Baptist to Zechariah (Lk 1:19) and the birth of the Messiah Jesus to Mary (Lk 1:26).

8:17 Gabriel addressed Daniel as son of man, but he did not use the Hebrew equivalent of the Aramaic title given to the Messiah, which points to Messiah's divinity (7:13). The phrase used here emphasizes the human weakness and mortality of Daniel. Gabriel also indicated that the vision referred to the time of the end. This is surprising because all the events predicted took place between the sixth and second centuries B.C. and do not appear to be end-time events. Readers through the ages have identified Antiochus as the little horn of chapter 8 but also have recognized that he typifies the coming end-time antichrist. So, although this chapter does directly refer to Antiochus, it also pertains to the end times. Thus there is a double-fulfillment of this vision.

8:23-25 After his summary explanation of Daniel's vision, Gabriel expanded his description of Antiochus. He would take the throne through deceit against the rightful heir, his nephew Demetrius. His great power would not be his own but would have a satanic source. He would succeed at first, defeating powerful rulers and generals and destroying many of God's holy people Israel and deceive himself, thinking himself great enough to oppose God. Nevertheless, he would ultimately and suddenly be shattered, not through assassination or battle but through some ailment sent by God.

8:26 Gabriel instructed Daniel to seal up the vision not for the purpose of hiding its meaning from faithful readers of Scripture but rather to secure the document for safekeeping into the distant future, meaning the time of Antiochus (some 400 years after the vision was given) and the time of the antichrist which is yet future and is typified by Antiochus.

Antiochus IV as a Type of the Antichrist

Antiochus (8:9) and antichrist (7:8) are symbolized by horns that were “little” or small at the beginning.

Antiochus was “an insolent king” (8:23); antichrist will have an imposing look (7:20).

Antiochus was a master of intrigue (8:23); the brilliance of antichrist is suggested by the “eyes” of the horn (7:8,20).

Antiochus had great power (8:24); antichrist will have even greater power (11:39; 2Th 2:9; Rv 13:7-8).

Antiochus was energized by Satan (8:24), just as antichrist will be empowered by Satan (2Th 2:9; Rv 13:2).

Antiochus destroyed thousands (8:25); antichrist will destroy more (Rv 13:15; 16:13-16).

Antiochus prospered for a short time (8:25); likewise with antichrist (11:36; Rv 13:7).

Antiochus persecuted the Jews (8:24), as will antichrist (7:21,25; Rv 12:13).

Antiochus was a deceiver (8:25); antichrist will be a master deceiver (2Th 2:9; Rv 13:4,14; 19:11).

Antiochus was proud (8:25); antichrist will be a megalomaniac (7:8,11,20,25; Rv 13:5).

Antiochus blasphemed God (8:25); as will antichrist (7:25; 11:36).

Antiochus was not killed by human hands (8:25); the antichrist will not be either (2Th 2:8; Rv 19:19-20).

9:1 If Daniel was approximately 15 when he went into captivity, he would have been about 81 years old at the time of this vision. The name Ahasuerus was probably a Persian royal title rather than a personal name. It refers to an ancestor of Cyrus the Great or Governor Gubaru (see note at 5:31), not Ahasuerus (485-465 B.C.), the king mentioned in the book of Esther (Est 1:1).

9:2 Although the book of Jeremiah was completed only a generation before the events described in Daniel 9, Daniel already recognized it as Scripture. Jeremiah predicted that the desolation of Jerusalem would endure for 70 years (Jr 25:11-13; 29:10). Daniel calculated that since the first captives had been taken to Babylon in 605 B.C., the 70 years were nearly complete.

9:3 Daniel's prayer was with fasting, sackcloth, and ashes, three customary ways to express sorrow and contrition (Ezr 8:23; Neh 9:1; Est 4:1,3,16; Jb 2:12; Jnh 3:5-6).

9:4-19 In this section Daniel prayed to the Lord, using the Hebrew name Yahweh (translated " LORD" in English). Since Daniel's prayer emphasized the faithfulness of God, it was appropriate to use the name Yahweh because it was associated with the covenant-keeping nature of the God of Israel (Ex 6:2-8).

9:4 One who keeps His gracious covenant refers to the Abrahamic covenant in which God promised to preserve the Jewish people and provide them with a land (Gn 12:1-7; 15:18-21).

9:11 Daniel realized that it was Israel's disobedience that resulted in God sending the nation into exile, as the law of Moses had warned (Lv 26:27-33; Dt 29:23-28).

9:17-18 Despite God's justice in sending Israel into exile, Daniel appealed to God not on the basis of Israel's righteous acts but on God's abundant compassion. God's forgiveness was an act of grace.

9:21 The angel Gabriel appears for a second time in Daniel (8:16), here called a man because he appeared in human form. Had the temple still stood, the time of the evening offering would have been between 3:00 and 4:00 p.m.

9:24 Seventy weeks probably refers to 70 periods of seven years, or 490 years, during which six objectives would be accomplished. The first three pertain to bringing rebellion . . . sin, and iniquity to an end. The final three relate to consummating prophetic events by bringing in a kingdom of everlasting righteousness, fulfilling vision and prophecy and setting apart the most holy place (lit "the holy of holies"), referring to a yet future, literal, millennial temple (cp. Ezk 40-48).

9:25 Those who advocate a symbolic interpretation of this verse identify it with Cyrus's decree allowing the captives to return to their homeland (2Ch 36:22-23; Ezr 1:1-3) in 539-538 B.C. Others hold a literal view of this verse and suggest that the starting point is Artaxerxes' first decree in 457 B.C. (Ezr 7:11-26). Since neither of these decrees pertains to the restoration of Jerusalem, it is more likely that the decree that is the beginning point is Artaxerxes' second decree in 444 B.C., authorizing Nehemiah to rebuild the walls of Jerusalem (Neh 2:1-8). There will be a period of seven weeks of years (49 years) followed by 62 weeks of years (434 years), making a total of 69 weeks of years or 483 years from the decree until the coming of Messiah the Prince. The starting point of the prophecy would have begun on Nisan 1 (March 5), 444 B.C., followed by 69 weeks of 360-day biblical/prophetic years or 173,880 days, and culminated on Nisan 10 (March 30), A.D. 33, the date of Jesus the Messiah's triumphal entry into Jerusalem (Lk 19:28-40).

9:26 Several events are said to follow the seven weeks and the 62 weeks (or the 69 weeks). First, the Messiah would be cut off, a prediction of the death of the Messiah Jesus. Thus, the book of Daniel, written in the sixth century B.C., predicted not only the precise date of the Messiah's coming (v. 25) but also that the Messiah would be put to death some time before the destruction of Jerusalem in A.D. 70. This was fulfilled when Jesus was crucified in A.D. 33 (A.D. 30 according to some interpreters). Second, the people of the coming prince would destroy the city of Jerusalem and the second temple. The "coming prince" probably is a reference to the future ruler described as the little horn in Daniel 7, also known as the beast or the antichrist. He is not said to be the one to destroy Jerusalem and the temple; rather it is his people who will do it. Since Daniel 7 clearly viewed this ruler as coming from the fourth major world power, or Rome, this prophecy predicts that the Romans would destroy Jerusalem, as they did in A.D. 70. Third, there appears to be a significant time gap from the end of the sixty-ninth week to the beginning of the seventieth week.

9:27 The final seven-year period, or the seventieth week, will begin when he (the coming prince) will make a firm covenant of peace with many in the leadership of Israel. Although some consider the prince to be Messiah, he is more accurately identified as the antichrist, who will desecrate the future temple and put a stop to worship there. This covenant is yet future and will mark the beginning of a time of oppression of the Jewish people called "a time of trouble for Jacob" (Jr 30:7) or the tribulation period (Mt 24:29; Mk 13:24). In the middle of the week, or after the first three and one-half years, the antichrist will break his covenant with Israel, leading to a time of unprecedented persecution of the Jewish people (Mt 24:21; Mk 13:19) and followers of Jesus (Rv 7:14) that will last for another three and one-half years (Dn 7:25; Rv 11:2-3; 12:14; 13:5). When the antichrist breaks his covenant, he will also put a stop to sacrifice in the rebuilt temple (7:25) and will commit the abomination of desolation (Mt 24:15), desecrating the temple and declaring himself to be God (2Th 2:4; Rv 13:5-7). The antichrist's oppression and abominations will continue until God's decreed destruction is poured out on the desolator (11:45; Rv 19:20).

10:1 Daniel received this vision in 536 B.C. Assuming Daniel was about 15 when taken captive, he was approximately 84 years old at the time. The vision was about a great conflict in the future, recounted in 11:2-12:3. The last three chapters of Daniel are about the same vision.

10:2 Daniel may have been mourning because of the poor conditions of the returned captives. The Samaritans were opposing reconstruction of the temple, and the work had been stopped (Ezr 4:5,24). The Hebrew text contains the words "weeks of days" in describing Daniel's mourning period to distinguish it from the weeks of years in the previous chapter (Dn 9:24-27).

10:3 Daniel engaged in a semi-fast, not because the food had been offered to the gods but to give priority to prayer.

10:4 The Tigris River was some 20 miles from Babylon. At the advanced age of 84, Daniel had not made the difficult and demanding journey to Israel with the other Jewish returnees, but he remained instead in government service in Babylon.

10:5-6 Despite his similarity to Christ's appearance as described in Rv 1:12-16, the angel in the form of a man dressed in linen cannot have been the preincarnate Messiah because Christ would not need help from the angel Michael.

10:7 The Hebrew for only I, Daniel, saw the vision is emphatic: "I saw, I, Daniel, I alone." His companions sensed a powerful and terrifying presence but saw nothing, so they ran and hid (cp. Ac 9:7).

10:12-13 The Persian prince had to be supernatural to oppose this angel and he had to be evil to oppose God's purposes. Therefore, we conclude that he was a demonic spirit seeking to influence the political affairs of Persia and oppose God's purposes. Other Scriptures also teach that there are unseen spiritual forces influencing principalities and world powers (Ezk 28:11-19; 2Co 10:3-4; Eph 6:12). The unnamed angel was able to prevail over the demon associated with Persia only because the angel Michael . . . came to help him. Michael (whose name means "who is like God") is the guardian angel of Israel (cp. v. 21; 12:1; Rv 12:7), and he is designated an archangel in the NT (Jd 9).

10:14 The angel revealed that the first purpose of the vision was to reveal what would happen to Israel in the last days.

10:15-19 The angel not only came to reveal the future but to strengthen Daniel, first by his touch (v. 18) and secondly with his words of encouragement

(v. 19).

10:20-21 The prince of Greece is an allusion to the prediction that Greece would follow Persia as the next major world power (8:4-8,20-22). The angel's final purpose was to reveal what is recorded in the book of truth (lit "the writings of truth"), a reference not to a particular earthly book but to God's heavenly decrees about the future of all nations.

11:1-45 This chapter contains some of the most precise predictions in the entire Bible. These predictions are so precise that many scholars claim this chapter was written as a pseudo-prophecy after the events actually took place. But if God is omniscient, and if He chooses to foretell select future events, there is no problem with predictive prophecy or acceptance that this chapter was written long before the events occurred.

11:1 Although the angel visited Daniel "In the third year of Cyrus king of Persia" (10:1), he revealed to Daniel that he had stood up to strengthen and protect Darius since the first year of his reign (539 B.C.). God is active in the political affairs of the world.

11:2 The three . . . kings in Persia were Cambyses (530-522 B.C.), Pseudo-Smerdis (522 B.C.), and Darius I Hystaspes (522-486 B.C.). Ahasuerus was the fourth king who would be far richer than the others.

11:3-4 The warrior king predicted here was Alexander the Great (336-323 B.C.). As prophesied, his kingdom was divided to the four winds of heaven, referring to the division of his empire among his four generals rather than his descendants (see note at 8:8).

Tomb of Cyrus the Great (10:1), near Pasargadae, oldest capital of the Achaemenid Empire, founded by Cyrus. It bore the inscription: "Mortal! I am Cyrus, son of Cambyses, who founded the Persian Empire and was Lord of Asia."

11:5 The king of the South is Ptolemy I Soter of Egypt (323-285 B.C.), who was outstripped by one of his commanders, Seleucus I Nicator (311-280 B.C.), who had abandoned Ptolemy I to become ruler of Babylonia, Media, and Syria, and establish the Seleucid kingdom that grew to be greater than that of Ptolemy's Egypt.

11:6 The king of the South, Ptolemy II Philadelphus (285-246 B.C.), would make an alliance with the king of the North, Antiochus II Theos (261-246 B.C.), sealing the agreement by giving his daughter, the Ptolemaic princess Berenice, to marry Antiochus. Yet Berenice would not retain power, as Antiochus's former wife Laodice would murder Antiochus, Berenice, and their child.

11:7-8 One from Berenice's family, her brother Ptolemy III Euergetes (246-221 B.C.), would avenge her murder by storming Antioch, the fortress of the king of the North, Seleucus II Callinicus (246-226 B.C.), and killing Laodice. Ptolemy III would even seize Seleucid gods and valuables, bringing them back to Egypt.

11:10 The sons of Seleucus II—Seleucus III Ceraunus (226-223 B.C.) and Antiochus III (223-187 B.C.)—would wage war as far as the Ptolemaic fortress Raphia in southern Israel.

11:11-12 The king of the South, Ptolemy IV Philopator (221-203 B.C.) of Egypt, would counterattack the king of the North, Antiochus III (219-218 B.C.). Although both would command large armies, the result would be a great victory for the Ptolemies. As a result of his success, Ptolemy IV would become arrogant and slaughter tens of thousands of Seleucid troops, yet he would not be able to maintain his dominance over the Seleucid kingdom.

11:13-15 Fifteen years later, the king of the North, Antiochus III, would raise an even greater army and attack the Ptolemies in Phoenicia and Israel. Antiochus III would receive support against the king of the South, Ptolemy V Epiphanes (203-181 B.C.), and the Ptolemies. This support would come from Jewish rebels, here called violent ones among your own people. Antiochus III's forces would win a resounding victory, even capturing the well-fortified city of Sidon (199-198 B.C.).

11:16-17 The king of the North, Antiochus III, would make the beautiful land of Israel a possession of the Seleucid kingdom in 198 B.C. and force a peace agreement on the Ptolemies. Antiochus III would give his daughter Cleopatra to Ptolemy V as a wife, hoping to control the Ptolemaic kingdom through her. This failed because Cleopatra helped her Ptolemaic husband and did not stand with . . . or support her father Antiochus III.

11:18-19 Antiochus III would then turn his attention to the lands around the Mediterranean Sea but would be defeated by the Roman commander Lucius Cornelius Scipio at Thermopylae (191 B.C. ) and then Magnesia (190 B.C.). This would force Antiochus to focus on his own country where he would stumble, fall, and be no more, being killed by a mob defending the temple of Zeus in Elymais as Antiochus tried to pillage it.

11:20 The king who would arise in his place was Seleucus IV Philopator (187-175 B.C.), who would send his tax collector, Heliodorus, to collect money with which to pay the heavy indemnity he owed to Rome. After his short reign, Seleucus IV was killed not in anger or in battle but by poison from his tax collector.

11:21-35 Antiochus IV Epiphanes (175-163 B.C.), the little horn in 8:9-12,23-25 (cp. notes there), is emphasized in this section because he would have a terrible and oppressive effect on the Jewish people in the near term, and his reign is a picture of the future world ruler (the antichrist) who will also oppress the Jewish people.

11:21 Antiochus IV was not of the royal line, but took control by intrigue while the rightful heir, Demetrius, was held in Rome. The prediction called him a despised person because of his hatred of the Jewish people, his attempt to destroy Judaism, his desecration of the temple, and his megalomania displayed in calling himself Epiphanes ("Manifest One, Illustrious One"). People of that time also called him Epimanes ("madman").

11:22 Despite Ptolemy VI Philometor (181-146 B.C.) attacking with a flood of forces, Antiochus IV would be able to defeat them and depose the covenant prince, the Jewish high priest Onias III.

11:23-24 Antiochus IV would increase in power by sharing the wealth of his conquests, lavishing plunder, loot, and wealth on his followers.

11:25-26 These verses refer back to the war with Ptolemy VI (v. 22), predicting that not only would the power of Antiochus IV defeat Ptolemy VI, but also that plots . . . against him would cause his army to be swept away.

11:27-28 After the defeat of Ptolemy VI, Ptolemy VII took control of Egypt. Then the other two kings, Antiochus IV and Ptolemy VI, would meet, speaking lies at the same table, to plot Ptolemy VI's restoration to the throne. After initial limited success, they would eventually fail. Then Antiochus IV (the king of the North), having plundered Egypt, would return to his land, with his heart . . . set against the holy covenant. On the way home, he would attack Israel, kill 80,000 Jewish men, women, and children, and plunder the holy temple (169 B.C.).

11:29-30 Antiochus IV would launch another attack against Egypt, but this time ships of Kittim (cp. Nm 24:24)—the Roman fleet led by Gaius Popilius Laenas—would force him to withdraw in humiliation.

11:31-32 Antiochus IV would once again attack Israel (167 B.C.) while returning to Syria, this time desecrating the temple in Jerusalem. Antiochus would prefigure the future antichrist's actions (9:27; 12:11) by abolishing the daily sacrifice and committing the abomination of desolation. In response, the people who know their God will . . . take action, as expressed in the Maccabean revolt (see note at 8:13-14).

11:33-35 The Maccabees would experience suffering in their battle with Antiochus. In the end, the Maccabees would defeat Antiochus, rededicate the holy temple in Jerusalem, and establish the festival of Chanukah (Eng "Dedication") which the Lord Jesus celebrated (Jn 10:22) and which Jewish people still observe today.

11:36-45 At this point, the predictions shift away from Antiochus IV and focus on the end of days. The king mentioned in this section is the future antichrist, already identified as "the little horn" (7:8,20,24-25) and "the coming prince" (9:26).

11:36-39 These verses provide a clear description of the future antichrist. The god longed for by women (lit "the desire of women") may be a reference to the longing of Jewish women to give birth to the Messiah.

11:40-44 During the great tribulation, the antichrist will be attacked in a pincer movement from both the north and the south. Yet he will be successful, sweeping through like a flood. He will also invade Israel, the beautiful land, ignoring some nations that are in alliance with him but conquering others, including Egypt, Libya, and Sudan (the Cushites). Reports of nations from the east and the north coming to attack will both terrify and infuriate him, leading him to pursue a course of genocidal warfare against his enemies, especially many of the Jewish people (cp. Zch 13:8-9).

11:45 The antichrist will establish his military capital in Israel, pitching his royal tents between the Mediterranean Sea and the city of Jerusalem, situated on the beautiful holy mountain. There the nations of the earth will gather (Zch 14:2) at Mount Megiddo to begin the campaign of Armageddon (Rv 16:13-16). At that time, when the nation of Israel calls on the Messiah Jesus, He will return (Mt 23:37-39) to deliver them, and the antichrist will meet his end with no one to help him.

12:1 At that time refers to the events predicted in the previous paragraph (11:36-45), which details the antichrist's furious attempt to destroy and annihilate the Jewish people (11:44). Then the archangel Michael . . . who stands watch over the Jewish people will rise to their defense to preserve them (see note at 10:12-13; cp. Rv 12:7). This will be necessary because the great tribulation (the second half of Daniel's seventieth week; Dn 9:27) will be a time of unprecedented distress. Despite the horrific nature of the persecution of Israel, the result will be that the surviving remnant of the Jewish nation will turn in faith to their Messiah Jesus (Zch 12:10; Rm 11:25-27) and He will deliver them. The book refers to the heavenly Book of Life in which the names of the elect are listed (Ps 69:28; Php 4:3; Rv 13:8; 17:8; 20:15).

12:2 Following the deliverance of Israel, there will be a resurrection of those who sleep in the dust. This verse does not imply any kind of soul sleep before the resurrection since the faithful go to be with God instantly upon dying (2Co 5:8; Php 1:21-23) and the faithless go to a place of suffering also immediately upon dying (Lk 16:22-23). The word "sleep" is used as a metaphor to emphasize the temporary state of bodily death before being physically raised at the resurrection (cp. Jn 11:11-15). Although telescoped together here (as is common in prophecy), the resurrection of the faithful and the unfaithful are two distinct events separated by the one-thousand-year messianic kingdom (Rv 20:4-6). Daniel 12:2 contains the clearest statement of resurrection in the OT, but by no means is it the only one (cp. Jb 19:25-27; Is 26:19).

12:3 The phrase those who are wise refers to those with the wisdom to turn in faith to the Messiah Jesus. As a result, they will lead many others to faith and righteousness.

12:4 Although it is possible that Daniel was told to keep these words of the vision secret, an alternative rendering of the Hebrew is to "close up the words" and seal the book, a reference to preservation of the text of Daniel until the time of the end. Preserving Daniel's prophecy was necessary because in the end of days, many will roam about seeking answers that will be found in the book of Daniel. Moreover, in that day, knowledge will increase, possibly referring to the understanding of Daniel's prophecies as informed observers recognize the fulfillment of his predictions.

12:5-7 Daniel saw two others, meaning angels, who served as witnesses for the oath of the linen-dressed angel (10:5). Two was the minimum number of witnesses necessary for an oath (Dt 19:15). One of the witnessing angels asked how long until the end of the predicted time of distress. The angel dressed in linen answered that the time of the great tribulation (the second half of Daniel's seventieth week) would be for a time, times, and half a time, or three and one-half years (7:25; Rv 12:7). By the end of the great tribulation, the power of the holy people Israel will be shattered, causing them to turn in faith to their long-rejected Messiah Jesus (Zch 12:10). At that time, He will return and deliver them (Zch 14:1-21) and all these things will be completed.

12:8-10 Daniel's statement that he heard but did not understand does not mean that he did not comprehend that his prophecy was about the end of days but rather that he did not understand precisely how these events would happen. Daniel was told to go on his way, because the words are secret (or "closed") and sealed until the time of the end, meaning they would not be fully recognized until their fulfillment at the end of days. At that time, the wicked will fail to comprehend their situation but the wise will understand the fulfillment of Daniel's words and turn in faith to the God of Israel and His Messiah Jesus.

Courtyard at site purported to be the tomb of Daniel in Susa, Iran 12:11-12 Two periods of time were revealed to Daniel. First, from the middle of the tribulation when the antichrist stops daily sacrifice and commits the abomination of desolation until the end, there will be 1,290 days. The great tribulation is said to be three and one-half years (v. 7) or 1,260 days (Rv 12:6; 13:5). Here it is 30 days longer, probably to include time for the judgment of the nations (Mt 25:31-46). Second, a blessing awaits the one who . . . reaches 1,335 days, a period that includes not only the 30 days for judging the nations but an additional 45 days, perhaps to establish the government of the messianic kingdom. Those who enter that kingdom are said to be blessed because they will be part of the most glorious world, governed by its greatest King, the Lord Jesus Himself.

12:13 The angel told Daniel that he was to continue to the end of his life, at which point he would rest, a euphemism for death. Yet he was given the promise that he too would rise from the dead at the end of the days (v. 2).

Word Studies peshar Hebrew Pronunciation [peh SHAR]

HCSB Translation interpretation Uses in Daniel 32
Uses in the OT 32
Focus passage Daniel 2:4-7,9,16,24

The Aramaic noun peshar, occurring only in Daniel, relates to an Akkadian word for interpreting dreams and omens, one connected with divination and magic and that could describe one's profession. True interpretation of dreams and divine messages requires God's enablement (Dn 2:30). The Aramaic verb peshar (2x) denotes interpret or give interpretations (Dn 5:12,16). These words link with two Hebrew word families. Similar-sounding pesher means interpretation (Ec 8:1) and need not involve divine messages. Ecclesiastes 8:1 is the only OT passage where the root lacks that association. Genesis 40-41 uses the verb patar (9x), which varies in spelling due to standard differences occurring between languages. It suggests Joseph's interpreting (8x) or explaining (Gn 40:8,22) of dreams. The related noun pithron (5x) in that narrative signifies interpretation (Gn 40:8) or meaning (Gn 40:5; 41:11). Commentaries among the Dead Sea Scrolls use this root of interpreting Scripture.

tsalach Hebrew Pronunciation [tsah LAKH]
HCSB Translation succeed, prosper, rush Uses in Daniel 5
Uses in the OT 67
Focus passage Daniel 8:12,24-25

Tsalach has several meanings but probably involves only one root. It means succeed (Is 53:10), be successful (Jr 22:30), or prosper (Jr 12:1). Plants and people flourish (Ezk 17:9,15). Things are useful (Ezk 15:4) or of use (Jr 13:7). Tsalach suggests attain (Ezk 16:13) or avail (Dn 11:27). Modifying another verb, tsalach connotes triumphantly (Ps 45:4). The Spirit controls someone (1Sm 10:6) or takes control of him (Jdg 14:6). God spreads like fire (Am 5:6). People rush somewhere (2Sm 19:17). Causative verbs also mean succeed (1Ch 22:11), be successful (Dt 28:29), or prosper (Ps 1:3). They denote make a success or successful (Gn 24:40,42), cause to prosper (Dn 8:25), or give/grant success (Neh 1:11; 2:20). In narrative, tsalach often indicates political and military success (2Ch 14:7; 18:11). The rushing motion of fire and hastening people might resemble the Spirit's controlling people. People succeeding are "getting somewhere."

charats Hebrew Pronunciation [khah RATZ]
HCSB Translation decide, decree, determine Uses in Daniel 3
Uses in the OT 11
Focus passage Daniel 9:26-27

This root in several languages suggests cutting, and in Akkadian also indicates determining. The former concept appears in the idiom "sharpening the tongue," which suggests dogs snarling (Ex 11:7) or people saying something against others (Jos 10:21). Otherwise charats denotes decide (1Kg 20:40) and determine (Jb 14:5). Once it means act decisively (2Sm 5:24). In Isaiah and Daniel it implies judgments decreed by God against someone in the future (Is 10:22-23). The noun charuts represents threshing board/sledge (4x) (Jb 41:30; Is 28:27), verdict (Jl 3:14), moat (Dn 9:25), and maimed animal (Lv 22:22).

HOSEA

1 The word of the LORD that came to Hosea son of Beeri during the reigns of Uzziah, [a] Jotham, [b] Ahaz, [c] and Hezekiah, [d] kings of Judah, and of Jeroboam [e] son of Jehoash, king of Israel.

Hosea's Marriage and Children

2 When the LORD first spoke to Hosea, He said this to him:
Go and marry a promiscuous wife [f]
and have children of promiscuity, for the land is committing blatant acts of promiscuity
by abandoning the LORD.
3 So he went and married Gomer daughter of Diblaim, and she conceived and bore him a son. [g] 4 Then the LORD said to him:
Name him Jezreel, [h] for in a little while I will bring the bloodshed of Jezreel [i] on the house of Jehu [j]
and put an end to the kingdom of the house of Israel.
5 On that day I will break the bow of Israel [k] in the Valley of Jezreel. [l, m]
6 She conceived again and gave birth to a daughter, and the LORD said to him:
Name her No Compassion, [A] for I will no longer have compassion on the house of Israel.
I will certainly take them away.
7 But I will have compassion on the house of Judah, [n] and I will deliver them by the LORD their God. [o]
I will not deliver them by bow, sword, or war, or by horses and cavalry. [p] 8 After Gomer had weaned No Compassion, she conceived and gave birth to a son. 9 Then the LORD said:

Name him Not My People, [B]
for you are not My people, and I will not be your God. [C, q] 10 [r] Yet the number of the Israelites will be like the sand of the sea, [s] which cannot be measured or counted.
And in the place where they were told:
You are not My people,

they will be called: Sons of the living God. [t] 11 And the Judeans and the Israelites will be gathered together. [u]
They will appoint for themselves a single ruler [v]
and go up from [D] the land.
For the day of Jezreel [w] will be great.

Chapter 2 [a] [1]Call [A] your brothers: My People and your sisters: Compassion.

Israel's Adultery Rebuked

[2] Rebuke your mother; rebuke her. [b]
For she is not My wife and I am not her husband. [c]
Let her remove the promiscuous look from her face [d]
and her adultery from between her breasts.
[3] Otherwise, I will strip her naked [e]
and expose her as she was on the day of her birth.
I will make her like a desert [f]
and like a parched land,
and I will let her die of thirst. [g] [4] I will have no compassion on her children [h]
because they are the children of promiscuity.
[5] Yes, their mother is promiscuous;
she conceived them and acted shamefully. [i]
For she thought, "I will go after my lovers, [j]
the men who give me my food and water,
my wool and flax, my oil and drink." [k]
[6] Therefore, this is what I will do:
I will block her [l] way [m] with thorns; [n]
I will enclose her with a wall,
so that she cannot find her paths. [o]
[7] She will pursue her lovers but not catch them; [p]
she will seek them but not find them.
Then she will think,
"I will go back to my former husband, [q]
for then it was better for me than now." [r] [8] She does not recognize [s] that it is I who gave her the grain, [t]
the new wine, and the oil.
I lavished silver and gold on her,
which they used for •Baal .
[9] Therefore, I will take back My grain in its time [u]
and My new wine in its season;

I will take away My wool and linen,
which were to cover her nakedness.
10 Now I will expose her shame [v]
in the sight of her lovers,
and no one will rescue her from My hands.
11 I will put an end to all her celebrations: [w] her feasts, [x] New Moons, [y] and Sabbaths — all her festivals.
12 I will devastate her vines and fig trees. [z]
She thinks that these are her wages that her lovers have given her.
I will turn them into a thicket, [a]
and the wild animals will eat them. [b] 13 And I will punish her for the days of the Baals [c]
when she burned incense to them, [d] put on her rings and jewelry, [e]
and went after her lovers,
but forgot Me. [f]

This is the LORD's declaration.

Israel's Adultery Forgiven

14 Therefore, I am going to persuade her, lead her to the wilderness, [g]
and speak tenderly to her. [B] 15 There I will give her vineyards back to her [h] and make the Valley of Achor [i, j] into a gateway of hope.
There she will respond as she did in the days of her youth, [k]
as in the day she came out of the land of Egypt.
16 In that day —
you will call Me, "My husband," [l] this is the LORD's declaration — and no longer call Me, "My Baal." [C] 17 For I will remove the names of the Baals from her mouth;
they will no longer be remembered by their names.

18 On that day I will make a covenant for them with the wild animals, the birds of the sky, and the creatures that crawl on the ground. [m]
I will shatter bow, sword, and weapons of war in the land [D, n]
and will enable the people to rest securely. [o]
19 I will take you to be My wife forever. [p]
I will take you to be My wife in righteousness, justice, love, and compassion. [q]
20 I will take you to be My wife in faithfulness, and you will know •Yahweh . [r]
21 On that day I will respond [s] —
I will respond to the sky, this is the LORD's declaration.
and it will respond to the earth.
22 The earth will respond to the grain, [t]
the new wine, and the oil,
and they will respond to Jezreel.
23 I will sow her [u] in the land for Myself, [v]
and I will have compassion [w] on No Compassion;
I will say [x] to Not My People: [y]
You are My people, [z]
and he will say, "You are My God."

Waiting for Restoration

3 Then the LORD said to me, “Go again; show love to a woman who is loved by another man and is an adulteress, [a] just as the LORD loves the Israelites though they turn to other gods and love raisin cakes.” [b]

2 So I bought her for 15 •shekels of silver and five bushels of barley. [c, A], [d] 3 I said to her, “You must live with me many days. Don’t be promiscuous or belong to any man, and I will act the same way toward you.”

4 For the Israelites must live many days without king or prince, [e] without sacrifice [f] or sacred pillar, [g] and without •ephod [h] or household idols. [i] 5 Afterward, the people of Israel will return [j] and seek the LORD their God and David their king. [k] They will come with awe to the LORD [l] and to His goodness in the last days.

God’s Case against Israel

4 Hear the word of the LORD, [a] people of Israel, for the LORD has a case [b] against the inhabitants of the land:
There is no truth, [c] no faithful love, [d]
and no knowledge of God [e] in the land!
2 Cursing, [f] lying, [g] murder, [h] stealing, [i]
and adultery [j] are rampant;
one act of bloodshed follows another. [k]
3 For this reason the land mourns, [l] and everyone who lives in it languishes, along with the wild animals [m] and the birds of the sky;
even the fish of the sea disappear. [n]
4 But let no one dispute; [o] let no one argue, for My case is against you priests. [p, A], [q]
5 You will stumble by day; [r]
the prophet will also stumble with you by night.
And I will destroy your mother. [s]
6 My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge. [t]
Because you have rejected knowledge, [u]
I will reject you [v] from serving as My priest.
Since you have forgotten the law of your God, [w]
I will also forget your sons.

7 The more they multiplied, [x]
the more they sinned against Me.
I [y] will change their honor [z] into disgrace. [a] 8 They feed on the sin [B] of My people; [b]
they have an appetite for their transgressions. [c] 9 The same judgment will happen to both people and priests. [d]
I will punish them for their ways [e]
and repay them for their deeds.
10 They will eat but not be satisfied; [f]
they will be promiscuous [g] but not multiply.
For they have abandoned their devotion to the LORD. [h]
11 Promiscuity, [i] wine, and new wine

take away one’s understanding. [j]

12 My people consult their wooden idols, [k]
and their divining rods inform them.
For a spirit of promiscuity leads them astray; [l]
they act promiscuously [m]
in disobedience to [C] their God.
13 They sacrifice on the mountaintops, [n]
and they burn offerings on the hills, [o]
and under oaks, poplars, and terebinths, [p]
because their shade is pleasant.
And so your daughters act promiscuously
and your daughters-in-law commit adultery.
14 I will not punish your daughters
when they act promiscuously or your daughters-in-law
when they commit adultery,
for the men themselves go off with prostitutes [q]
and make sacrifices with cult prostitutes. [r]
People without discernment are doomed. [s]

Warnings for Israel and Judah

15 Israel, if you act promiscuously, don't let Judah become •guilty !
Do not go to Gilgal [t] or make a pilgrimage to Beth-aven, [u, v] and do not swear an oath: As the LORD lives! [w] 16 For Israel is as obstinate as a stubborn cow. [x]
Can the LORD now shepherd them like a lamb in an open meadow? [y] 17 Ephraim is attached to idols; [z] leave him alone! [a] 18 When their drinking is over,
they turn to promiscuity.
Israel's leaders [D] fervently love disgrace. [E] 19 A wind with its wings will carry them off, [F, b] and they will be ashamed of their sacrifices.

5 Hear this, priests! [a]
Pay attention, house of Israel!
Listen, royal house!
For the judgment applies to you because you have been a snare at Mizpah [b] and a net spread out on Tabor.
2 Rebels [c] are deeply involved in slaughter; [d]
I will be a punishment for all of them. [A] 3 I know Ephraim, [e]
and Israel is not hidden from Me.
For now, Ephraim, [f]
you have acted promiscuously;
Israel is defiled.
4 Their actions do not allow them to return to their God, [g]
for a spirit of promiscuity is among them, [h] and they do not know the LORD. [i] 5 Israel's arrogance testifies against them. [B, j]
Both Israel and Ephraim stumble because of their wickedness; [k]
even Judah will stumble with them. [l] 6 They go with their flocks and herds to seek the LORD [m]
but do not find Him; [n]
He has withdrawn from them. [o]
7 They betrayed the LORD; [p] indeed, they gave birth to illegitimate children. [q]
Now the New Moon [r] will devour them along with their fields. [s]

8 Blow the horn in Gibeah, [t]
the trumpet in Ramah; [u] raise the war cry in Beth-aven: [v]
After you, Benjamin! [w]
9 Ephraim will become a desolation [x]
on the day of punishment; [y]

I announce what is certain among the tribes of Israel. [z] 10 The princes of Judah are like those who move boundary markers; [a]
I will pour out My fury [b] on them like water. [c]
11 Ephraim is oppressed, crushed in judgment, [d] for he is determined to follow what is worthless. C 12 So I am like rot to Ephraim [e]
and like decay to the house of Judah.
13 When Ephraim saw his sickness and Judah his wound, Ephraim went to Assyria [f]
and sent a delegation to the great king. D, [g]
But he cannot cure you or heal your wound. [h]
14 For I am like a lion to Ephraim [i] and like a young lion to the house of Judah.
Yes, I will tear them to pieces and depart. [j]
I will carry them off,
and no one can rescue them. [k]
15 I will depart and return to My place until they recognize their •guilt and seek My face; [l]
they will search for Me in their distress. [m]

A Call to Repentance

6 Come, let us return to the LORD. [a]
For He has torn us, [b] and He will heal us; [c]
He has wounded us,
and He will bind up our wounds. [d] 2 He will revive us after two days, [e] and on the third day He will raise us up so we can live in His presence. [f]
3 Let us strive to know the LORD. [g]
His appearance is as sure as the dawn. [h]
He will come to us like the rain, [i] like the spring showers that water the land.

The LORD's First Lament

4 What am I going to do with you, Ephraim? [j]
What am I going to do with you, Judah?
Your loyalty is like the morning mist [k]
and like the early dew that vanishes.
5 This is why I have used the prophets to cut them down; [A, l]
I have killed them with the words of My mouth.
My judgment strikes like lightning. [m]
6 For I desire loyalty and not sacrifice, the knowledge of God [n] rather than •burnt offerings. [o]

7 But they, like Adam, [B] have violated the covenant; [p] there they have betrayed Me. [q] 8 Gilead is a city of evildoers, [r] tracked with bloody footprints. [s] 9 Like raiders who wait in ambush for someone, [t] a band of priests murders on the road to Shechem. [u]
They commit atrocities. [v]
10 I have seen something horrible [w] in the house of Israel:
Ephraim's promiscuity is there; [x] Israel is defiled.
11 A harvest is also appointed for you, Judah. [y]

When I [C] return My people from captivity, [z]

7 when I heal Israel, [a] the sins of Ephraim [b] and the crimes of Samaria [c] will be exposed.
For they practice fraud; [d]
a thief breaks in;
a raiding party pillages outside. [e]
2 But they never consider that I remember all their evil. [f]
Now their sins are all around them; [g]
they are right in front of My face.

Israel's Corruption

3 They please the king with their evil, [h]
the princes with their lies. [i] 4 All of them commit adultery; [j] they are like an oven heated by a baker who stops stirring the fire from the kneading of the dough until it is leavened.
5 On the day of our king,
the princes are sick with the heat of wine [k] —
there is a conspiracy with traitors. [A] 6 For they — their hearts like an oven — draw him into their oven.
Their anger smolders all night;
in the morning it blazes like a flaming fire.
7 All of them are as hot as an oven, [l] and they consume their rulers. [m]
All their kings fall;
not one of them calls on Me. [B]

8 Ephraim has allowed himself to get mixed up with the nations.
Ephraim is unturned bread baked on a griddle.
9 Foreigners consume his strength, [n]
but he does not notice. [o]
Even his hair is streaked with gray,
but he does not notice.
10 Israel's arrogance testifies against them, [C, p] yet they do not return to •Yahweh their God, [q]

and for all this, they do not seek Him.

11 So Ephraim has become like a silly, senseless dove; [r]
they call to Egypt, [s] and they go to Assyria. [t] 12 As they are going, I will spread My net over them; [u]
I will bring them down like birds of the sky.
I will discipline them in accordance with the news that reaches [D] their assembly.

The LORD's Second Lament

13 Woe to them, [v] for they fled from Me; [w] destruction to them, for they rebelled against Me!
Though I want to redeem them, [x]
they speak lies against Me.
14 They do not cry to Me from their hearts;
rather, they wail on their beds.
They slash themselves [y, z] for grain and new wine; [a]
they turn away from Me.
15 I trained and strengthened their arms, [b]
but they plot evil against Me. [c] 16 They turn, but not to what is above; [d]
they are like a faulty bow. [e]
Their leaders will fall by the sword because of the cursing of their tongue. [f]
They will be ridiculed for this in the land of Egypt. [g]

Israel's False Hopes

8 Put the horn to your mouth! [a]
One like an eagle comes against the house of the LORD, [b] because they transgress My covenant [c] and rebel against My law. [d]
2 Israel cries out to Me, [e]
“My God, we know You!”
3 Israel has rejected what is good; [f] an enemy will pursue him.

4 They have installed kings, [g]
but not through Me.
They have appointed leaders,
but without My approval.
They make their silver and gold [h]
into idols for themselves for their own destruction. [A] 5 Your calf-idol [B, i] is rejected, Samaria. [j]
My anger burns against them.
How long will they be incapable of innocence? [k]
6 For this thing is from Israel — a craftsman made it, [l] and it is not God.
The calf of Samaria will be smashed to bits!

7 Indeed, they sow the wind [m] and reap the whirlwind. [n]
There is no standing grain;
what sprouts fails to yield flour. [o]
Even if they did,
foreigners would swallow it up.
8 Israel is swallowed up! [p]
Now they are among the nations like discarded pottery. [q] 9 For they have gone up to Assyria [r] like a wild donkey going off on its own.
Ephraim has paid for love. [s]
10 Even though they hire lovers among the nations,
I will now round them up,

and they will begin to decrease in number [t]
under the burden of the king and leaders. [u]

11 When Ephraim multiplied his altars for sin, [v]
they became his altars for sinning.
12 Though I were to write out for him ten thousand points of My instruction, [w]
they would be [C] regarded as something strange.
13 Though they offer sacrificial gifts [D], [x]
and eat the flesh, [y]
the LORD does not accept them.
Now He will remember their •guilt [z]
and punish their sins; [a] they will return to Egypt. [b]
14 Israel has forgotten his Maker [c] and built palaces; [d]
Judah has also multiplied fortified cities.
I will send fire on their cities, [e]
and it will consume their citadels.

The Coming Exile

9 Israel, do not rejoice jubilantly as the nations do, [a] for you have acted promiscuously, [b] leaving your God.
You have loved the wages of a prostitute on every grain-threshing floor. [c] 2 Threshing floor and wine vat will not sustain them, [d]
and the new wine will fail them.
3 They will not stay in the land of the LORD.
Instead, Ephraim will return to Egypt, [e]
and they will eat •unclean food [f] in Assyria. [g]

4 They will not pour out their wine offerings to the LORD, [h] and their sacrifices will not please Him.
Their food will be like the bread of mourners;
all who eat it become defiled. [i]
For their bread will be for their appetites alone;
it will not enter the house of the LORD.
5 What will you do on a festival day, [j] on the day of the LORD's feast? [k]
6 For even if they flee from devastation,
Egypt will gather them, and Memphis will bury them. [l]
Thistles will take possession of their precious silver;
thorns will invade their tents. [m]

7 The days of punishment have come; [n]
the days of retribution have come. [o]
Let Israel recognize it!
The prophet is a fool, [p]
and the inspired man is insane, [q]
because of the magnitude of your •guilt and hostility. [r]
8 Ephraim's watchman is with my God.
The prophet encounters a fowler's snare
on all his ways. [s]
Hostility is in the house of his God!
9 They have deeply corrupted themselves [t]
as in the days of Gibeah. [u]

He will remember their guilt;
He will punish their sins. [v]

Ephraim Bereaved of Offspring

10 I discovered Israel like grapes in the wilderness. [w]
I saw your fathers
like the first fruit of the fig tree in its first season. [x]
But they went to Baal-peor, [y] consecrated themselves to Shame, [z, a] and became detestable, [b]
like the thing they loved.
11 Ephraim's glory will fly away like a bird: [c]
no birth, no gestation, no conception. [d]
12 Even if they raise children,
I will bereave them of each one.
Yes, woe to them when I depart from them! [e]
13 I have seen Ephraim like Tyre, [f] planted in a meadow,
so Ephraim will bring out his children
to the executioner.
14 Give them, LORD —
What should You give?
Give them a womb that miscarries
and breasts that are dry! [g]

15 All their evil appears at Gilgal, [h]
for there I came to hate them.
I will drive them from My house because of their evil, wicked actions. [i]
I will no longer love them;
all their leaders are rebellious. [j] 16 Ephraim [k] is struck down;
their roots are withered;
they cannot bear fruit. [l]
Even if they bear children,
I will kill the precious offspring of their wombs. [m]
17 My God will reject them because they have not listened to Him; [n]

they will become wanderers among the nations. [o]

The Vine and the Calf

10 Israel is a lush [A] vine; [a] it yields fruit for itself.
The more his fruit increased,
the more he increased the altars. [b]
The better his land produced, the better they made the sacred pillars. [c] 2 Their hearts are devious; [B, d]
now they must bear their •guilt . [e]
The LORD will break down their altars [f]
and demolish their sacred pillars.
3 In fact, they are now saying,
"We have no king!
For we do not •fear the LORD. [g]
What can a king do for us? "
4 They speak mere words,
taking false oaths while making covenants. [h]
So lawsuits break out like poisonous weeds in the furrows of a field. [i]

5 The residents of Samaria [j] will have anxiety over the calf [k] of Beth-aven. [l]
Indeed, its idolatrous priests rejoiced over it;
the people will mourn over it,
over its glory. [m]
It will certainly depart from them.
6 The calf itself will be taken to Assyria [n]
as an offering to the great king. [C, o]
Ephraim will experience shame; [p]
Israel will be ashamed of its counsel. [q]
7 Samaria's king will disappear [D, r]
like foam [E] on the surface of the water.
8 The •high places [s] of Aven, the sin of Israel, [t]
will be destroyed;
thorns and thistles will grow over their altars. [u]
They will say to the mountains, [v] "Cover us! " and to the hills, "Fall on us! " [w]

Israel's Defeat because of Sin

9 Israel, you have sinned since the days of Gibeah; [x]
they have taken their stand there.
Will not war against the unjust overtake them in Gibeah?
10 I will discipline [y] them at My discretion; [z] nations will be gathered against them to put them in bondage [a] for their two crimes. [b]

11 Ephraim is a well-trained calf [c]
that loves to thresh,
but I will place a yoke on [F] her fine neck. [d]
I will harness Ephraim; [e]
Judah will plow;
Jacob will do the final plowing.
12 Sow righteousness for yourselves [f]
and reap faithful love;
break up your unplowed ground. [g]
It is time to seek the LORD [h] until He comes [i] and sends righteousness on you like the rain. [j]

13 You have plowed wickedness and reaped injustice; [k]
you have eaten the fruit of lies. [l]
Because you have trusted in your own way [m] and in your large number of soldiers, [n] 14 the roar of battle will rise against your people, and all your fortifications will be demolished [o]
in a day of war,
like Shalman's destruction of Beth-arbel.
Mothers will be dashed to pieces along with their children. [p] 15 So it will be done to you, Bethel, [q]
because of your extreme evil.
At dawn the king of Israel will be totally destroyed.

The LORD's Love for Israel

11 When Israel was a child, I loved him, [a] and out of Egypt I called My son. [b] 2 The more they [c] called them, [d, e]
the more they [f] departed from Me. [g]
They kept sacrificing to the •Baals [h] and burning offerings to idols. [i] 3 It was I who taught Ephraim to walk, [j] taking them [k] in My arms, [l]
but they never knew that I healed them. [m] 4 I led them with human cords, with ropes of love. [n]
To them I was like one who eases the yoke from their jaws; [o]
I bent down to give them food. [p]
5 Israel will not return to the land of Egypt and Assyria will be his king, [q]
because they refused to repent. [r] 6 A sword will whirl through his cities; [s] it will destroy and devour the bars of his gates, [A, t]
because of their schemes. [u]
7 My people are bent on turning from Me. [v]
Though they call to Him on high,
He will not exalt them at all.

8 How can I give you up, Ephraim? [w]
How can I surrender you, Israel?
How can I make you like Admah? [x]
How can I treat you like Zeboiim? [y]
I have had a change of heart;
My compassion is stirred!
9 I will not vent the full fury of My anger; [z]
I will not turn back to destroy Ephraim. [a]
For I am God and not man,
the Holy One among you; [b]
I will not come in rage. [B]
10 They will follow the LORD; [c]

He will roar like a lion. [d]
When He roars,
His children will come trembling from the west. [e] 11 They will be roused like birds from Egypt and like doves [f] from the land of Assyria. [g]
Then I will settle them in their homes. [h]

This is the LORD's declaration.

12 [i] Ephraim surrounds me with lies, [j]
the house of Israel, with deceit.
Judah still wanders with God and is faithful to the holy ones. [C, k]

God’s Case against Jacob’s Heirs

12 Ephraim chases [A] the wind [a] and pursues the east wind. [b]
He continually multiplies lies and violence.
He makes a covenant with Assyria, [c]
and olive oil is carried to Egypt. [d]

2 The LORD also has a dispute with Judah.
He is about to punish Jacob according to his ways; [e]
He will repay him based on his actions.
3 In the womb he grasped his brother's heel, [f]
and as an adult he wrestled with God. [g] 4 Jacob struggled with the Angel and prevailed;
he wept and sought His favor. [h]
He found him [B] at Bethel, [i] and there He spoke with him. [j, k]
5 •Yahweh is the God of •Hosts ;
Yahweh is His name. [l]
6 But you must return to your God. [m]
Maintain love and justice, [n] and always put your hope in God. [o]

7 A merchant loves to extort [p] with dishonest scales in his hands. [q] 8 But Ephraim says:
"How rich I have become; [r]
I made it all myself.
In all my earnings,
no one can find any crime in me [s]
that I can be punished for! " [C]

Judgment on Apostate Israel

9 I have been Yahweh your God ever since [t] the land of Egypt. [u] I will make you live in tents again, [v]
as in the festival days.
10 I spoke through the prophets [w]
and granted many visions;
I gave parables through the prophets. [x]
11 Since Gilead is full of evil, [y]
they will certainly come to nothing.
They sacrifice bulls in Gilgal; [z] even their altars will be like heaps of rocks [a] on the furrows of a field.

Further Indictment of Jacob's Heirs

12 Jacob fled to the land of Aram. [b]
Israel worked to earn a wife; [c] he tended flocks for a wife. [d] 13 The LORD brought Israel from Egypt by a prophet, [e]
and Israel was tended by a prophet.

14 Ephraim has provoked bitter anger, [f]
so his Lord will leave his bloodguilt on him [g]
and repay him for his contempt. [h]

13 When Ephraim spoke, [a] there was trembling;
he was exalted in Israel. [b]
But he incurred •guilt through •Baal [c] and died.

2 Now they continue to sin and make themselves a cast image, [d] idols skillfully made from their silver, [e]
all of them the work of craftsmen. [f]
People say about them,
“Let the men who sacrifice [A] kiss the calves.” [g]
3 Therefore, they will be like the morning mist, [h]
like the early dew that vanishes, like chaff blown from a threshing floor, [i] or like smoke from a window. [j]

Death and Resurrection

4 I have been •Yahweh your God [k] ever since [l] the land of Egypt;
you know no God but Me, [m]
and no Savior exists besides Me. [n] 5 I knew [o] you in the wilderness, [p] in the land of drought.
6 When they had pasture,
they became satisfied; [q]
they were satisfied,
and their hearts became proud. [r]
Therefore they forgot Me. [s]
7 So I will be like a lion [t] to them;
I will lurk like a leopard [u] on the path.
8 I will attack them like a bear robbed of her cubs and tear open the rib cage over their hearts.
I will devour them there like a lioness, [v]
like a wild beast that would rip them open.
9 I will destroy you, Israel;
you have no help but Me. [w, x]

10 Where now is your king, [y, z] that he may save you in all your cities, and the [B] rulers [C, a] you demanded, saying, “Give me a king and leaders”?
11 I give you a king in My anger [b] and take away a king in My wrath. [c] 12 Ephraim’s guilt is preserved;
his sin is stored up. [d]
13 Labor pains come on him. [e]
He is not a wise son; [f]
when the time comes,
he will not be born. [D, g]

14 I will ransom them from the power of •Sheol .

I will redeem [E] them from death. [h]
Death, where are your barbs?
Sheol, where is your sting? [i]
Compassion is hidden from My eyes. [j]

The Coming Judgment

15 Although he flourishes among his brothers, [F, k] an east wind will come, [l] a wind from the LORD rising up from the desert.
His water source will fail,
and his spring will run dry. [m]
The wind [n] will plunder the treasury [o]
of every precious item.

16 [p] Samaria [q] will bear her guilt [r]
because she has rebelled against her God. [s]
They will fall by the sword; [t]
their little ones will be dashed to pieces, [u]
and their pregnant women ripped open. [v]

A Plea to Repent

14 Israel, return to •Yahweh your God, [a] for you have stumbled in your sin. [b] 2 Take words of repentance with you [c]
and return to the LORD.
Say to Him: “Forgive all our sin and accept what is good,
so that we may repay You with praise [d] from our [A] lips. [e] 3 Assyria will not save us, [f]
we will not ride on horses, [g]
and we will no longer proclaim, ‘Our gods! ’ [h]
to the work of our hands. [i]
For the fatherless receives compassion in You.” [j]

A Promise of Restoration

4 I will heal their apostasy; [k]
I will freely love them, [l]
for My anger will have turned from him. [m] 5 I will be like the dew to Israel; [n]
he will blossom like the lily [o]
and take root like the cedars of Lebanon. [p] 6 His new branches will spread, and his splendor will be like the olive tree, [q]
his fragrance, like the forest of Lebanon. [r] 7 The people will return and live beneath his shade. [s]
They will grow grain [t]
and blossom like the vine.
His renown will be like the wine of Lebanon.

8 Ephraim, why should I [u] have anything more to do with idols? [v]
It is I who answer and watch over him.
I am like a flourishing pine tree; [w]
your fruit comes from Me. [x]

9 Let whoever is wise [y] understand these things, and whoever is insightful recognize them.
For the ways of the LORD are right, [z]
and the righteous walk in them, [a] but the rebellious stumble in them. [b]

HOSEA

Introduction | Outline | Timeline | Study Notes | Word Studies

Introduction

The growing Assyrian threat to both the northern and southern kingdoms is a historical reality that forms the background against which Hosea prophesied (11:5). Assyrian cruelty is attested in both writing and graphic art. In this relief fragment from Nineveh, Assyrian soldiers are deporting Chaldean women. The artist has captured the pathos of the moment by portraying one woman stopping to give water to an exhausted child while an Assyrian guard threatens to beat stragglers.

Hosea is one of the most autobiographical of the Prophetic Books in that the opening account of Hosea's own marriage and family form a vital part of his unique message. God's word of grace and His call to repent are dramatically portrayed and punctuated by Hosea's scorned but constant love for his wife Gomer and by the odd names of his three children. Apart from this information about his immediate family, hardly anything is known about Hosea. His divinely commissioned marriage to the promiscuous Gomer, which brought Hosea such heartache, seems to have been the beginning of his long career. But rather than ministering in spite of personal sorrow, his troublesome marriage was the foundation stone of his ministry.

Circumstances of Writing Author: According to the first verse, Hosea's prophetic career spanned at least 40 years. It began some time during the reign of Jeroboam II, who ruled Israel, the northern kingdom, as co-regent with his father Jehoash from 793 to 782 B.C., then independently until 753 B.C. Hosea's ministry ended sometime during the reign of Hezekiah, who ruled Judah from 716 to 686 B.C.

Although the southern kingdom of Judah was not neglected in Hosea's prophecy (e.g., 1:7,11; 6:11; 12:2), his messages were directed primarily to the northern kingdom of Israel, often referred to as "Ephraim" (5:3,12-14; 6:4; 7:1), and represented by the royal city, Samaria (7:1; 8:5-6; 10:5,7; 13:16). Hosea apparently lived and worked in or around Samaria, probably moving to Jerusalem at least by the time Samaria fell to the Assyrians in 722 B.C.

Background: The reign of Jeroboam II, the northern kingdom's greatest ruler by worldly standards, was a time of general affluence, military might, and national stability. The economy was strong, the future looked bright, and the mood of the country was optimistic, at least for the upper class (Hs 12:8; Am 3:15; 6:4-6). Syria was a constant problem to Israel, but Adad-nirari III of Assyria had brought Israel relief with an expedition against Damascus, the Syrian capital, in 805 B.C.

Then after Adad-nirari's death in 783 B.C. Israel and Judah expanded during a time of Assyrian weakness (the time of Jonah). But after Jeroboam's death in 753 B.C. Israel sank into near anarchy, going through six kings in about 30 years, four of whom were assassinated (Zechariah, Shallum, Pekahiah, and Pekah). Since Assyria also regained power during this time, Israel was doomed. Of course the real reason Israel crumbled was God's determination to judge the people for their sins, as Hosea and Amos made clear. Most of Hosea's messages were probably delivered during these last 30 years of Israel's nationhood.

Message and Purpose Indictment: According to Hosea, Israel sinned in four ways. First, they were violating basic covenant requirements of faithfulness and kindness, rejecting knowledge of God and His law. They had become self-satisfied and proud and had forgotten God's grace. They even spoke contemptuously against Him. Second, they were engaging in idolatry and harlotry or cult prostitution. Third, they were trusting in human devices (kings, princes, warriors, and foreign covenants) rather than in God. Finally, they were guilty of injustice and violence, including murder, theft, lying, and oppression of the defenseless.

Instruction: Through Hosea the Lord told the people of Israel to stop their promiscuity, idolatry, and iniquity and to return to Him in humility and faithfulness toward the law of the covenant.

Judgment: Hosea informed Israel that their present distress was because the Lord had abandoned them and that further discipline would come. This would include foreign domination, exile, destruction, desolation, and death.

Hope: Hosea reminded Israel of the Lord's grace and love in making them a people, and in blessing them in the past with His attentive and patient care and His abundant provision. He was their only hope, and His ways were right. The Lord also assured them that in response to their repentance and faith He would again have compassion on them and redeem them; He would remove unrighteousness and restore the covenant, bringing righteousness and the knowledge of God; and He would rebuild and beautify Israel.

Structure The first three chapters of the book establish a parallel between the Lord and Hosea. Both were loving husbands of unfaithful wives. Hosea's three children, whose names served as messages to Israel, represent an overture to the second main division of the book, which presents its accusations and the call to repent in groups of three. Just as chapter 1—a third-person account of Hosea's family—is balanced by chapter 3—a first-person account—so the final main division of the book alternates between first-person announcements of God's message and third-person reports from the prophet.

Contribution to the Bible Hosea compared the relationship between God and His people to that of a husband and his wife, drawing a parallel between spiritual and marital unfaithfulness. "The Bible is very clear in its moral code that the sexual act can only legitimately take place within the context of the marriage relationship. Thus the image of marriage and sex, a relationship that is purely exclusive and allows no rivals, is an ideal image of the relationship between God and his people" (Dictionary of Biblical Imagery, p. 778). Yet nothing can quench God's love for His covenant people. Like a marriage partner, God is deeply involved in our lives and is pained when we go our own way. God demands love and loyalty from His own. Often God's people have failed to demonstrate whole-hearted love for Him. But He stands ready to forgive and restore those who turn to Him in repentance. In buying Gomer's freedom, Hosea pointed ahead to God's love perfectly expressed in Christ, who bought the freedom of His bride, the church, with His own life.

Outline I. The Pain and Persistence of Divine Love (1:1-3:5) A. God's message to Israel through Hosea's family (1:1-2:23) B. Hosea's testimony to his restored marriage (3:1-5) II. Threefold Accusation and Call to Repent (4:1-7:16) A. Indictment and warning (4:1-5:15) B. Call to repent and God’s grief at Israel’s refusal (6:1-7:16) III. Alternating Lament of the Lord and Hosea (8:1-14:9) A. Failure of false hopes (8:1-10:15) B. Israel’s punishment for rebellion (11:1-13:16) C. Final call to repent (14:1-9)

Timeline

Study Notes 1:2 Hosea’s initial call to the prophetic ministry began with perplexing instructions to find a wife among the promiscuous women of Israel (of which there were apparently many; 4:14). This was no mere parable or vision but an actual command to enter a literal marriage that would vividly portray God’s perspective on Israel. Promiscuous wife (lit “wife of promiscuity”) describes her behavior and character when Hosea married her. She is not called a prostitute, but she almost certainly used her sexuality for her livelihood (2:5). Hosea, like the Lord, would have a wayward wife and a broken heart. Children of promiscuity indicates that the paternity of Gomer's children would be questioned. They would bear the shame of their mother's behavior and at the same time represent the shameful behavior and divine condemnation of the children of Israel. The reason the prophet had to invite such pain into his life was the flagrancy with which Israel, Yahweh's wife, had been selling herself to other gods and abandoning the LORD. Each idolatrous act had driven them further from Him. The Hebrew verb zanah ("be a harlot, act promiscuously") occurs far more in Hosea (13 times; 60 times in the OT) than in any other book but Ezekiel (17 times). These two books also account for about 50 percent of the uses of the root word in the OT (22 times in Hosea, 28 times in Ezekiel, 115 times in the OT), which includes words for "promiscuity" and "prostitute."

1:4 Jehu had carried out God's judgment (2Kg 9:7) by putting the last of Omri's dynasty to the sword at the city of Jezreel (2Kg 9:24-10:11). God commended him for this (2Kg 10:30). Hosea named his first child Jezreel, symbolizing that Jehu's dynasty, which had proved to be just as wicked as Omri's (2Kg 10:31), would likewise suffer annihilation at Jezreel. Jehu's dynasty began in violence and would end in the same, but as the recipient rather than the instrument of divine judgment. Zechariah, Jehu's last royal descendant, was assassinated by Shallum in 752 B.C., probably at Ibleam in Jezreel (2Kg 15:10).

1:6 Hosea's second child, a daughter, was given the pathetic Hebrew name Lo-ruhamah, meaning No Compassion, symbolic of the fact that by her continual unfaithfulness Israel had forfeited God's love. Take them away could also be rendered "forgive them," although the context favors the present translation.

1:9 The Hebrew name of Hosea's third child, Lo-ammi, meaning Not My People, was a symbolic proclamation that Israel had broken covenant with God (Ex 6:7; Lv 26:12). I will not be your God is literally "and I will not be to you." This could also be rendered "and I am not 'I AM' to you" (Ex 3:14-15). God's statement amounted to a decree of divorce.

1:10-11 Allusion to the Abrahamic covenant in the phrase like the sand of the sea (cp. Gn 22:17) indicates that God's "divorce" of Israel was not final but applied only to that generation—the nation or leadership of that time. Eternal promise is placed profoundly beside final judgment, reconcilable only because the living God could bring life out of death. This is affirmed by the name Jezreel, which symbolized not only judgment but also life insomuch as the name meant "God plants" (cp. Ezk 36:9-11). The division between Israel and Judah was temporary, a theme to be repeated later (Ezk 37:18-25; Hs 3:5).

2:1-23 These verses elaborate on the "Not My People" oracle in 1:9-11. They open with the divorce formula in verse 2 that begins the rebuke in verses 1-13: "She is not My wife and I am not her husband." The forgiveness section in verses 14-23 announces the restoration of Israel. The Lord again becomes "My husband" (v. 16), and Israel becomes "My wife" (v. 19); "No Compassion" also receives compassion, and "Not My People" becomes "My people" (v. 23).

2:2 Here is the first command to repent in the book (4:15; 6:1; 10:12; 12:6; 14:1-2,9), followed by alternating verses of judgment (2:3-4,6-7,9-11) and indictment (vv. 5,8,12-13). The children, representing the common people of Israel, are urged to rebuke their mother, representing Israel's leadership. So Israel's divorce is not the end of hope and her punishment is not the last word (vv. 3,19-20).

2:3 Israel is portrayed in utter humiliation and deprivation. Captured exiles are often depicted in antiquity as being led away naked (Is 20:1-6).

2:4 The people would suffer individually because of the nation's idolatry. Therefore they must do what they could to "rebuke" their nation (v. 2).

2:5 The nation's lovers were other gods (idols), which she thought (lit "said"; cp. vv. 7,12) could meet her needs.

2:7 The purpose of God's punishment of Israel for abandoning Him (1:2) was to restore them.

2:8 The leaders had led the people to trust and seek Baal (6 times in Hs; 74 times in the OT) rather than Yahweh, the true God. Yahweh had not only created Israel and delivered them from Egyptian bondage but had also blessed them with the necessities of grain . . . new wine, and oil and even the luxuries of silver and gold. The verb translated recognize (lit "know") is used 16 times in Hosea, more than any of the Minor Prophets (v. 20; 5:4; 6:3; 8:2; 9:7; 11:3; 14:9). The Hebrew verb ba'al can mean "marry, rule over, possess" and is related to the noun "husband, lord, owner" and the name of the Canaanite god "Baal" as well as places such as Baal-peor where he was worshiped. These various terms occur 229 times in the OT. The name occurs 7 times in Hosea, all but one for the Canaanite god.

2:9 The word for I will take back is essentially the same Hebrew word as "I will go back" in verse 7. If Israel did not return to her husband, the Lord, He would take back His blessings.

2:10 On expose her shame, compare verse 3; Is 47:1-3; Jr 13:22; Ezk 16:36-37; 23:29; Nah 3:5. The noun translated "shame" refers literally to a woman's private parts. Israel's punishment would include the disgrace of having her sins exposed for everyone to see.

2:11 In spite of Israel's idolatry, they had continued the hypocrisy of "worship" in Yahweh's name. Outward religious activity can outlive the death of true faith.

2:12 This verse echoes verse 5 in exposing the lie Israel believed—that their blessings from Yahweh (v. 8) were just payment earned from their service to idols.

2:13 The words of rebuke (vv. 1-13) conclude with the common prophetic refrain This is the LORD's declaration, then God's promised eventual redemption and restoration in verses 14-23 follow.

2:14-15 The word therefore commonly begins an announcement of judgment following an indictment for sin in the writings of the prophets. It is so used in verses 6 and 9. But here, following the indictment in verses 12-13, begins an announcement of salvation. Israel's sin will not only result in judgment, but because of God's covenant promises it will also result in salvation. The Hebrew word midbar can mean "desert" (v. 3) or wilderness. The place of judgment, "the desert," will also be the place of salvation. Speak tenderly is literally "speak to her heart." It occurs elsewhere of Joseph's comforting assurance of favor and forgiveness to his brothers, who had done evil to him (Gn 50:21; cp. Gn 34:3; Jdg 19:3; Is 40:2). Although Israel had forgotten Yahweh, He would carry her back to the wilderness where He would renew and restore her faith as it had been in her youth (cp. 13:5). Achor means "trouble" and alludes to the trouble that Achan caused Israel (Jos 7:24-26; see Is 65:10).

2:16-20 These verses are parallel to verse 2. Although Yahweh declared that Hosea's generation was no longer His wife and He was no longer her husband, a time would come when He would renew the covenant. A converted Israel would again declare Yahweh to be her husband, and He would assure her of His permanent commitment to her as His wife.

2:16-17 The phrase the LORD's declaration is repeated in verses 16 and 21 to echo its use in verse 13 and highlight Israel's radical change from Baal's mistress to Yahweh's restored wife. The Hebrew noun ba'al could mean "husband" as well as the name of the Canaanite deity (see note at v. 8; Dt 24:4). Israel's popular religion often merged concepts and practices of Baal worship with Yahweh worship, an idolatrous practice that angered God because it defiled His name (Lv 18:21; 20:3; Ezk 20:39). In the future day of Israel's final conversion, God would remove Israel's promiscuity (v. 2) when He removed any reference to the Baals (the plural indicates that Baal worship occurred at various locations) from her vocabulary (Zch 13:2).

2:18 Wild animals . . . birds, and creatures alludes to Gn 1:20-25; 8:17-19 as well as Hs 2:12. The covenant refers figuratively to the peace God will bring between man and beast (Jb 5:23; Is 11:6-9; Ezk 34:25).

2:21-23 These verses are parallel to 1:3-2:1 in that they refer back to Hosea's three children. God will respond to Israel's cries for help and the earth's need for rain. Jezreel generally meant bloodshed, but here it means "God plants" (cp. 1:10) and refers to Israel.

3:1 Even though Gomer, like Israel, had joined herself to another man (lit "a neighbor"; cp. Dt 5:21; Jr 3:1,20) and so committed adultery, Hosea was told to take her back. She is called a woman rather than "your wife" because she had broken the covenant and had no claim on him. Like Hosea, God would show love to Israel even though she had forfeited her right to His love. Raisin cakes were apparently used in Canaanite religious rites, possibly as an aphrodisiac. With its four uses of the word "love," this verse graphically depicts the foolishness of Israel's attitude toward God. Their relationship was best portrayed by "a marriage that is to all appearances senseless and grotesque" (A.

Richardson). Gomer rejected Hosea's genuine love of her for the selfish "love" of another man. In the same way, Israel preferred ("loved") raisin cakes to the faithful love Yahweh had for her.

3:2-3 Why Hosea had to buy Gomer is not stated. Perhaps she had sold herself to someone as a personal slave. Hosea's instructions to Gomer probably mean they would refrain from conjugal relations for a time after she returned to him. Verses 4-5 compare this to Israel's coming time of exile when they would be without ruler or worship. During this time the Lord would be expecting Israel to seek Him (5:15). The time would end "in the last days" when Israel would seek their messianic king (descended from David, 3:5) in repentance and faith (Is 11:1-10; Jr 23:5-6; 33:15-16; Mt 1:1; 21:9; Rm 11:23). It is apparently the same time that believing Israel will be reunited (Hs 1:11).

4:1-5:15 This section is centered on the commands in 4:15. Three repetitions of indictment plus judgment both precede and follow these commands.

4:1-3 The prophetic call to hear the word of the LORD is found 29 times in the OT (13 times in Jeremiah, 6 times in Ezekiel, 4 times in Isaiah, 3 times in 1 and 2 Kings), but only twice in the Minor Prophets—here and in Am 7:16. This central indictment section begins with a summary of the Lord's charges and a call to the true people (lit "sons") of Israel to recognize the moral and spiritual corruption of the rest of their countrymen who have abandoned their God and forfeited their right to be called His people. These adulterous inhabitants have abandoned (1) truth or integrity, the quality of being reliable and genuine; (2) faithful love or kindness and mercy to friends and associates; and (3) the knowledge of God. They had ceased to care about knowing Him or the truth about Him (Rm 1:18-32). As a result they were violating the Ten Commandments (Hs 4:2) and suffering the consequences (v. 3).

4:4-7 The common people are identified as guilty, but especially guilty were the priests who were responsible for teaching the people. Leaders of God's people who shirk or violate that responsibility invite special punishment (Mal 2:1-9; Mt 18:6; Jms 3:1).

4:8 The term for sin can also mean "sin offering," which the priests were to eat (Lv 6:25-26). The priests were using Israel's sin and the sacrificial system for their own advantage.

4:10 The fertility religion that had infected apostate Israel, even the priesthood, was about prosperity, but Yahweh would see to it that the opposite results occurred. They would not multiply. More references to promiscuity occur in verses 10-15 and 18 than anywhere else in the book (10 of the 22 times in Hosea).

4:14 God's statement that He would not punish your daughters must be understood as a rhetorical way of saying that God placed heavier blame on the men who supported the vile practice of cult prostitution. All would suffer when God brought judgment against Israel.

4:15 This verse contains the first of three exhortations (cp. 5:1,8) that divide this section into three warnings. Although the warnings are mainly directed against Israel, Judah was also in danger of following Israel in apostasy and punishment (5:5,10,12-14). Although there was a Benjaminite city Beth-aven (Jos 18:12), Hosea used it as a derogatory term for Bethel, which meant "house of God" (Hs 5:8; 10:5; cp. "Aven" in 10:8; Am 1:5). Beth-aven meant "house of disaster, wickedness, nothingness, or idolatry." Another Hebrew word with the same consonants as 'aven but different vowels meant "wealth, strength" (12:3,8). Gilgal and Bethel had become centers of Israelite apostate religion (Am 5:5). The name of God continued to be used, but its attachment to idolatry made its utterance not only hypocritical but blasphemous. The Hebrew verb 'asham ("be guilty") occurs here for the first of five times in the book (Hs 5:15; 10:2; 13:1,16), more than in any other book except Leviticus (11 times). The related noun usually meaning "restitution offering" occurs an additional 46 times in the OT, mostly in Leviticus. "Guilty" is the legal condition of unpunished lawbreakers regardless of their emotional state, although shame was the appropriate emotional response (Ezr 9:6).

4:17 This verse has the first of 37 references to Ephraim in Hosea, more than in any other book (185 times in the OT). The name was given to Joseph's second son, then to the tribe he fathered, then to the northern hill country where they lived. It was popularly derived from the Hebrew word parah , "be fruitful" (Gn 41:52), a verb used ironically in Hs 13:15. "Fruitful" Ephraim would no longer be fruitful because of their foolish pursuit of fruitless pagan fertility rites.

4:19 Because of Israel's adulterous idolatry, arrogance, and stubbornness, they were warned that God would blow them away as with a whirlwind, the first of three metaphors used in this section to make vivid the coming judgment. He would also eat away at them like rot or a moth (5:12) and tear them to pieces like a lion (5:14).

5:1-2 Verses 1-7 contain a second exhortation directed against the corrupt leaders. House of Israel probably refers to unofficial leaders of society (Jr 2:26). Mizpah and Mount Tabor are described as a snare and a net respectively because of the unauthorized sanctuary at Mizpah (Jr 41:4-6) and a high place on Mount Tabor, where false religion was practiced. The words translated rebels are deeply involved in slaughter stem from unusual Hebrew words. D. Garrett suggests that the text should perhaps be emended to read, "and a pit they have dug at Shittim" (see textual footnote at Jos 2:1).

5:3-4 Although God knew all about Ephraim, they did not know Him (4:1). Israel's many evil actions (cp. Hs 7:2; 9:15; Dt 28:20; Jdg 2:19; Neh 9:35; Jr 4:18) had so enslaved them to sin that they were unable to repent (Rm 6:16-20).

5:6 Although unable to repent (v. 4), Israel sought God's favor with flocks and herds (1Sm 15:14-15; 2Ch 18:2; Ps 50:7-15). Some people seek the LORD and do not find Him because they come with gifts and labor rather than a "broken and humbled heart" (Ps 51:17; see Is 1:10-15; Am 5:21-24).

5:7 Israel's leaders had produced a generation of illegitimate children who did not know God and were therefore "not My people." The New Moon refers to the monthly festival held when the moon first appeared. This signaled the beginning of each month, thus establishing the chronology for all the festivals according to the lunar calendar. It was accompanied by trumpets and special offerings of animals, grain, and wine (Nm 28:11-15; Ps 81:3). Rather than grateful celebrations of Yahweh's blessings, Israel had turned all the festivals into hypocritical, idolatrous drains on the economy (Is 1:13-14; Hs 2:11). In return, God would end the feasts with destruction (Am 8:10). The sense may be that with every "new moon" God would send another wave of judgments.

5:8 These cities were in Benjamin between Ephraim (the northern kingdom of Israel) and Judah. The battle alarm would be sounded because a battle would be fought there. The outcome would be desolation for Israel (v. 9) and divine fury for Judah (v. 10).

5:10 On the imagery of God's fury like water, see Is 8:6-10.

5:12-13 Rot and decay are striking similes for God to use of Himself. The term for "rot" can also mean "maggot" or "pus." It pictures a man whose festering wounds were divinely inflicted. Israel's efforts to heal these wounds through human means would be futile. This is the first of nine references to Assyria in Hosea.

5:15 My place continues the imagery of God as a lion carrying its prey to its den. This picture of God's departure is parallel to the message of verse 6.

6:1-3 This exhortation to repent is accompanied by the assurance that all God's punishments—even death—would be reversed. After a short time in exile, Israel would be resurrected. Hosea 6:2 may be the verse Paul had in mind in 1Co 15:4. The NT viewed as messianic fulfillment certain events in Israel's history which Jesus paralleled or completed (Hs 11:1).

6:4 The Lord was to Israel like a father whose heart was broken by a rebellious child (11:3).

6:6 Quoted by Jesus in Mt 9:13 and 12:7, this verse does not reject sacrifice but rather ritualism and worship that is not accompanied by faithfulness and love and is not based on the knowledge of God (4:1). This section describes a nation full of violence and immorality. The king and national leadership neglected the nation and devoted themselves to debauchery and striving for power. As a result, the nation was decaying around them and being assimilated and swallowed up by surrounding nations. A remedy for the crisis was sought everywhere but in the Lord.

6:7 A place called Adam is known from Jos 3:16, but no sin or covenant violation is known to have occurred there. The reference is probably to the first man. Although the term "covenant" is not used in Genesis 1-3, the relation between God and the first man is often described as covenantal. The covenant is sometimes called the "covenant of works," in which Adam's divinely bestowed life would be maintained in return for obedience. The significance of Adam's sin for the human race is clarified in Rm 5:15-17. The word there is either a wordplay alluding to idolatry being practiced at or near Adam or is a vague reference to places where such betrayal was occurring.

6:11 Judgment approaching Judah is here described as a coming harvest because the people were growing ripe with wickedness (Jr 51:33; Jl 3:13; Rv 14:14-16).

7:3-7 Several parallels unite these verses with a chiastic (a-b-b-a) structure. The king cared nothing for God but loved to hear of evil, deceptive schemes, for which reason he would fall. All of them in the government burned with passions like a baker's oven. The king's conspiratorial counselors lured him into drunkenness, passion, and death. Their anger smolders may also be rendered "their baker sleeps." The baker may be an image of the king whose debauchery allowed evil to flourish.

7:8-10 Ephraim's leaders were negligent in allowing the people to become like the other nations. They were like careless cooks who failed to turn the bread, allowing it to burn on one side. Yet they did not even notice what was happening. For similar uses of return or "turn" and seek, see 3:5; 5:15; 2Ch 7:14; Is 9:13; Dn 9:3; Zph 1:6.

7:11-12 Israel was like a bird that had forgotten its way home. The news that reaches their assembly was probably news that their efforts to find security in foreign governments had failed.

7:13 The section that begins in 6:1 with a call to return to Yahweh and be healed ends here with a lament that Israel had done just the opposite. Woe to them is a declaration of coming judgment (9:12; Is 3:9; Jr 50:27; Jd 11). The term for fled is often used of birds (Is 16:2; Jr 4:25) and can also refer to restless wandering (Pr 27:8). Israel could flee from God in rebellion, but they could not escape destruction. The phrase I want to redeem can also be translated "I redeemed," referring to the exodus (Dt 7:8; 9:26; Mc 6:4). God's deliverance should cause His people to declare the truth about Him.

7:14 Israel's wailing and slashing probably involved pagan rituals (1Kg 18:28; Ezk 8:14).

7:15 Here is the second of two contrasts between "I" and "they" in the passage (cp. v. 13). God had trained Israel to be a mighty nation, but they had turned their might against Him.

7:16 Israel's leaders were as helpful as a faulty bow that could not send arrows to hit the mark (Ps 78:57). Israel's cursing may be their bitter words against God or the prophets (2Ch 36:16). The consequent ridicule may be what they would experience when they sought help from Egypt (Hs 7:11) or when they were destroyed (v. 13).

8:1-3 God speaks in verses 1-14. An alarm was to sound because God was sending an army to swoop down on Israel like an eagle on its prey (Dt 28:49; Lm 4:19; Hab 1:8). Israel was treating their covenant with God (we know You) as if it were a blank check for sin. House of the LORD may refer to Israel (9:8) rather than the temple.

8:4-6 Samaria, Israel's capital, refers here to the entire northern kingdom (Is 10:10-11). Israel had arrogantly sought success and security through idolatry, military might, and political power ("two crimes" in the summary passage in Hs 10:10 probably refers to the military and politics). All their efforts would produce just the opposite of what they desired.

8:7 Idols were worshiped because they were thought to grant fertility. But the "planting" of idolatry would be like planting wind, and the harvest would be nothing but a whirlwind—a storm representing divine judgment (Pr 1:27; 10:25; Is 17:13; 29:6; 66:15; Nah 1:3). Whatever sprouted would be blown away. Foreigners would take everything the people produced. Israel's idols, temples, and fortresses would be destroyed, and military alliances would drain them dry, enslave them, and carry them away. For their wickedness and rebellion in trusting in the fertility cult of Baal, Yahweh would reject them and make the land barren.

8:11-12 Israel built altars to cleanse them from sin (Lv 4:35), but the altars only increased Israel's sinning, perhaps by giving them a false sense of security. Their hypocritical sacrifices only added to their sin (Is 1:14; Jr 7:11; Am 5:21; Mk 11:17). Having God's written instruction likewise did them no good because they disregarded it as something strange and adopted Baal worship as their native religion.

8:13 The first line of this verse is difficult. The literal rendering is something like "as for My sacrifices of havhav , they sacrifice flesh." The Hebrew word havhav occurs only here and seems to refer to a type of offering, perhaps "roasted" or "choice." Return to Egypt is probably not literal but indicates the people would have to start over in foreign slavery (9:3). The northern kingdom fell to Assyria in 722 B.C. (2Kg 18:9-12), but Hosea did not neglect Judah, which was to suffer invasion by the Assyrians in 701 B.C. (2Kg 18:13).

9:1-3 Hosea speaks in verses 1-9. Israel was seeking prosperity by serving pagan fertility gods as the nations did, just as a woman would seek the wages of a prostitute. They could not rejoice jubilantly at "the Lord's feast" (v. 5), however, because Yahweh had withheld the harvest, causing deprivation that would increase during Israel's exile (v. 3).

9:4-6 Israel's failed harvest would leave the people with barely enough to eat, with nothing for offerings and sacrifices. The bread of mourners was food defiled by association with death. It could not be offered to God. Israel would seek refuge from devastation in Egypt, but they would die there outside their land.

9:7-9 God had sent prophets to warn the people, but their guilt and hostility were such that they considered God's inspired messengers to be insane fools. Nevertheless, God was with them. Watchman is a common biblical image for prophets (Jr 6:17; Ezk 3:17; 33:2). The fowler's snare may be what the prophet was to the ways of foolish Israel (Is 8:14; 2Co 2:16). On the days of Gibeah, see note at 10:9.

9:10 God speaks in verses 10-17. Israel initially brought God as much pleasure as grapes found in the wilderness or the first fruit of the fig tree, but that changed with the incident of pagan sexuality at Baal-peor (Nm 25:1-9; Ps 106:28-30) where the people tried to ensure fertility by worshiping Baal, here referred to as Shame. The point is that Israel was now repeating its foolish behavior.

9:11-12 Ephraim's glory was the Lord, whose departure would end their fertility and cause them woe.

9:13 God had placed both Ephraim and Tyre in surroundings in which they should have flourished (meadow is figurative; Ezk 17:5-8), but both had turned to Baal worship and practiced child sacrifice. Both Tyre and Samaria were besieged by the Assyrian king Shalmaneser V. Both cities fell to Sargon II of Assyria in 722 B.C.

9:15-17 Just as verses 10-14 begin with an allusion to Baal-peor, these verses begin with an allusion to Gilgal (cp. 4:15; 12:11), a town so full of evil that God had rejected them (hate in v. 15 = reject in v. 17).

Canaanite altar (10:2) at Tel Hazor in Galilee 10:1-4 Hosea speaks in verses 1-8. Although once a lush vine (cp. Is 5; Jn 15), Israel only yielded fruit for itself*. They had turned the Lord's blessings into gifts for the calf idols of Baal. The word rendered "lush" more often means "ravaging" (Nah 2:2), which it may mean here. Rather than producing fruit for harvest, they were* devious and acted like poisonous weeds *(cp. Dt 32:32; 2Kg 4:39; Jr 2:21). They recognized no external authority (no king), but pretended to worship Yahweh with* false oaths*.* Lawsuits can also be rendered "justice," the fruit God was looking for.

10:5 Will have anxiety indicates that the residents of Samaria feared the calf of Beth-aven. This refers to the calf god worshiped at Bethel (see note at 4:15). The mourning (possibly over the mythological "death" of the god in the dry season) and rejoicing (possibly over his rising again) were likely part of the fertility worship. Depart could also be "go into exile" and is explained by verse 6.

10:6 For an account of Israel's troubles with Assyria, see 2Kg 15:19-20,29; 17:3-6.

10:8 When the high places were destroyed, the people would cry out to be buried by the very places of their idolatry (Dt 12:2; Lk 23:30).

10:9 God speaks in verses 9-15. Allusions to Gibeah in 9:9 and 10:9 (see also 5:8) recall the civil war occasioned by a Levite's concubine being raped, murdered, and cut into pieces (Jdg 19-21). Like Samaria, Gibeah was a hill with a fortress; it served as Saul's capital during his kingship but was later deserted.

So it represents both depravity and militarism and may have figuratively referred to Samaria.

10:10 On the two crimes, see note at 8:4-6.

10:11 Calves were sometimes allowed to walk atop fresh grain stalks that had been laid out on the ground in order to separate the husks from the kernels (Mc 4:13). Little effort was involved, and the calves could eat some of the grain (Dt 25:4; 1Co 9:9; 1Tm 5:18). Israel would cease to be like the calf and would have to plow with the yoke of discipline.

10:12-13 The exhortations to sow . . . reap, and seek are essentially identical in meaning. Israel was to seek righteousness . . . faithful love, and the LORD. This recalls the threefold charge against Israel in 4:1 and is the summary of a life that pleases God (2:19; Ps 33:5; 36:10; 89:14; 103:17; Pr 21:21; Jr 9:24). But Israel had sought wickedness . . . injustice, and the fruit of lies. The latter is probably the "false fruit" of idolatry and military power, which looks good (Gn 3:6) but is unsatisfying and poisonous (Hs 10:4). Sends . . . like the rain renders the Hebrew verb yarah ("to rain, water") also found in 6:3 and related to the noun for the "early rains" that fell in Palestine in the fall.

10:14-15 The identities of Shalman and Beth-arbel are uncertain, but Shalman may refer to the Assyrian king Shalmaneser. Hosea's hearers were apparently familiar with the incident. At dawn would be when the battle started.

11:1-4 In these verses the Lord alternates between "I did this" and "but Israel did that."

11:1 A. Richardson notes that Hosea 11 comes close to saying that God is love, just as the NT says (1Jn 4:7-8). I loved him speaks of Yahweh's drawing Israel into His affectionate heart and of His faithfulness to His covenant with the patriarchs in redeeming Israel and choosing them for a covenant relationship (Dt 7:7-8). As a loving Father (Ex 4:22; Mal 2:10) God had brought (where "brought" is a strong use of the word "call"; cp. Ex 2:7; Is 41:4; Am 5:8) Israel to Himself and to a destiny. But now He grieved as a father abandoned by his son (Hs 6:4). Like 6:2, 11:1 is understood in the NT to have messianic significance in that Jesus, God's Son like Israel, was also brought out of Egypt in the context of hatred (Mt 2:15; cp. Ex 4:22). Jesus came as Israel's representative to fulfill the righteousness that the people lacked (Mt 3:15). Whereas Israel was freed from Egypt but became slaves to sin, Jesus followed through in righteousness so that He could die as their substitutionary atoning sacrifice.

11:2-3 The expression the more . . . the more occurs also in 4:7 and 10:1, speaking of Israel's sin increasing as God's blessing increased. The Hebrew of 11:2 begins literally "They called to them; thus they went from them." The first

"they" may refer to God's prophets, but this seems doubtful since the prophets have not previously been introduced in the current context. The LXX reading may be original, and it seems to make sense: "As I called to them, so they went from My presence." The second line of verse 3 may be Hosea's parenthetic comment: "He took them in His arms." Israel's not knowing their own God, not recognizing Him at work in their lives, and not praising His faithfulness but instead attributing the effects of His grace to other causes, is a major theme in Hosea, where the Hebrew verb yada' ("know") occurs 16 times. Reference to God healing Israel is also found in 5:13; 6:1; 7:1; 14:4.

11:5-7 In these verses the Lord announces the penalty for Israel's ingratitude. Israel would be delivered to Assyria, who would oppress them as Egypt had done (7:16; 10:6). Returning to Egypt is mentioned in 8:13; 9:3,6, so the first line here should probably be understood as a rhetorical question, "Will he not return?"

11:8-11 Yahweh refused to annihilate Israel but promised a new exodus for a believing remnant. T. McComiskey declared, "The drastic change of emotion" between verses 5-7 and verses 8-11 "is one of the most significant aspects of Hosea's prophetic message . . . We see the grace of God here as we have not yet seen it in the whole prophecy."

11:8-9 I have had a change of heart is literally "My heart has turned upon Me" (Ex 14:5). Unlike man, God's anger and compassion may not be manipulated but are subject only to His infinite wisdom, His holy intentions, and His perfect will. The point of God's manner of speaking here is that nothing stands in the way of the deserved abandonment and destruction of Israel but God's gracious compassion. Rather than a change of heart, what may be in view here is a broken heart, as the verb is used in Lm 1:20.

11:10 Whereas the Lord is like a lion as Israel's fierce predator in 5:14 and 13:7, here the comparison is a positive one as the divine Lion is Israel's champion restoring them to the land. The trembling signifies submissive excitement at hearing the Lord's voice (Jb 37:1-4).

11:11 The phrase this is the LORD's declaration concludes the promise of restoration in verses 8-11 and echoes its use in a similar blessing passage in 2:16,21.

11:12 The section ends by declaring that both Ephraim or Israel and Judah were grieving the Lord. The last two lines of this verse are difficult. The Hebrew term for God is not the usual Elohim but El, which can refer to God but also to the Canaanite god of that name. The term for wanders is rare but suggests rebellion (Gn 27:40; Jr 2:31). Holy ones elsewhere refers to godly people or to angels (Ps 16:3; 89:5; Dn 7:18; 8:13), but it could refer in this context to Canaanite deities or cult prostitutes.

12:1-8 Dependence on foreign alliances meant trusting in deceit and violence. In doing so, Israel was playing with fire (2Kg 18:21; Is 30:12-13).

12:3-5 Hosea rebuked Israel by pointing out that although their namesake Jacob (whose name God changed to Israel) had once been a faithless, self-centered conniver, he met God first at Bethel and was later changed in the encounter at the Jabbok River. The people of Israel, on the other hand, met Baal at Bethel (Beth-aven) and, in effect, died (13:1).

12:6 Again Hosea exhorted a threefold repentance (cp. 6:1; 10:12; 14:2-3).

12:10-11 The second line of verse 10 can be rendered "and I am the one who caused visions to abound." But Israel disposed of God's revelation and pursued pagan sacrifices at Gilead and Gilgal, for which they would receive nothing but heaps of rocks.

12:12-13 The prophet took up here where he left off in verse 4 and compared Israel's experience in Egypt to that of Jacob in Aram. Both man and nation went seeking for refuge in a foreign land but ended up being enslaved instead. But whereas Jacob came out shepherding flocks (Gn 31:17-18), the nation was led like a flock by a shepherd (Moses; see Ex 13ff).

12:14-13:1 Ephraim had preeminence among the northern tribes but threw it away through their contempt of God's law. Their worship of Baal is called bloodguilt or murder because that was a capital offense.

13:2 This verse echoes God's judgment in 12:11 to bring the people "to nothing."

13:7-9 Those who are lulled into believing God is indulgent of our sins are shocked into reality by this picture of God being like a lion (cp. 11:10), a leopard, or a bear, tearing, ripping, and devouring. Israel had no help but God, and God Himself had come to destroy. Thus was the fate of a people who continually turned their backs on God.

13:14 As in 6:1-2, although Israel was doomed, the Lord is able to bring life out of death. As Paul declared in 1Co 15:55, God's power makes personal, bodily resurrection possible, as well as national renewal.

13:15 On the punishment of Ephraim, see note at 4:17.

14:2-3 This final invitation to repent (6:1-3) even gives a "sinner's prayer."

Allat, the moon goddess of Syria and later of Northern Arabia 14:4 A believing remnant will experience restoration and blessing. God's promise to heal their apostasy, as Garrett noted, "implies that apostasy is more than an act of the will, but is also a kind of mental derangement . . . that God himself must cure."

14:6-7 The first three lines of verse 7 are literally "those who live in his shade will return/they will sustain like grain/and blossom like the vine." God promised to restore life and beauty to Israel as to a dead, abandoned garden. Israel would again be a blessing to the nations as they were originally intended to be (Gn 12:1-3; Is 2:2-4), signified by the fragrant olive tree furnishing not only food, fuel, and medicine but also shade (Lk 13:18-19). His renown is literally "his memory," probably referring to God's remembrance of Israel that will prompt Him to restore them by His grace (Gn 8:21). Lebanon is referred to three times in verses 5-7 but nowhere else in the book. The reason may be that flourishing Lebanon had been the origin of Israel's Baal cult (1Kg 16:31-33).

14:9 Hosea concluded by exhorting readers to persevere in the study of his prophecy, so as to understand and recognize the things he had communicated.

Word Studies racham Hebrew Pronunciation

[rah KHAM]

HCSB Translation love, have compassion, pity Uses in Hosea 7
Uses in the OT 47
Focus passage Hosea 2:1,4,23

Racham derives from rechem (26x: womb), and related languages associate "womb" and "compassion." Racham means love (Ps 18:1). Intensive verbs signify have/show compassion (Ex 33:19; Dt 13:17), pity (Hs 2:23), have pity on (Hs 1:6), or show mercy (Is 60:10). Their participle denotes compassionate (Ps 116:5), and their infinitive indicates mercy (Hab 3:2). Their passive conveys receive compassion (Hs 2:23) or find mercy (Pr 28:13). Rachamiym (40x) indicates mercy (Dt 13:17) or compassion (Is 54:7). It is merciful acts (Pr 12:10), mercies (Lm 3:22), and merciful (Gn 43:14). It suggests emotion (Gn 43:30), pity (Ps 106:46), and, in a prepositional phrase, graciously (Zch 1:16). The same words imply abundant compassion (Neh 9:31) or great . . . mercies (1Ch 21:13). Rachum (13x) means compassionate (Dt 4:31) or merciful (2Ch 30:9). Eleven times rachum occurs alongside "gracious" (chanun) (Ex 34:6). Rachamaniy is compassionate woman (Lm 4:10).

kachash Hebrew Pronunciation [kah KHASH]
HCSB Translation deceive, deny Uses in Hosea 2
Uses in the OT 22
Focus passage Hosea 4:2

This root may first appear in Hebrew. Debate exists whether two or more homonyms exist. Kachash means deny (Gn 18:15) or contradict (Jr 5:12). It involves speech contrary to the truth, entails denying God (Jb 31:28), and was a practice of false prophets (Zch 13:4). Kachash denotes deceive, lie, and act deceptively (Lv 6:2-3; 19:11). Infinitives imply deception (Is 59:13) or lying (Hs 4:2). Synonyms include shaqar ("betray, lie") and kazav ("lie"). Used of enemies surrendering, kachash connotes cringe (Dt 33:29), submit grudgingly (2Sm 22:45), or pretend submission (Ps 81:15). An element of deception seems present. A homonym implying leanness may be used of crops like olives (Hab 3:17) and new wine (Hs 9:2) failing. People are emaciated (Ps 109:24). The noun kachash (6x) signifies lie (Hs 7:3), lies (Ps 59:12), and deceitful (Nah 3:1) but once indicates frailty (Jb 16:8). The noun kechash appears as deceptive (Is 30:9).

'ashaq Hebrew Pronunciation [ah SHACK]
HCSB Translation oppress, defraud, extort Uses in Hosea 2

Uses in the OT 38
Focus passage Hosea 5:11

Similar languages indicate the root involves acting with violence. ʻAshaq means oppress (Lv 19:13). It appears seven times with gazal ("rob"; Dt 28:29) and five with ratsats ("crush"; Dt 28:33). Monetarily oriented meanings are defraud (Lv 6:2), extort (Hs 12:7), exploit (Ezk 22:29), and deprive (Mc 2:2). People wrong others (1Sm 12:3). Rivers rage (Jb 40:23). Women are ravished (Is 23:12) and consciences burdened (Pr 28:17). Similar ʻasaq ("contend"; Gn 26:20) may be related. ʻAshaq occurs three times with related ʻosheq (15x) as practice fraud/extortion (Ezk 18:18; 22:29) and what . . . he defrauded (Lv 6:4). ʻOsheq denotes oppression (Is 30:12) but can imply extortion (Jr 22:17) or exploitation (Ezk 22:7). Nominal ʻoshqah and ʻashoq appear respectively as oppressed (Is 38:14) and oppressor (Jr 22:3). ʻAshuqiym (2x) signifies (acts of) oppression (Jb 35:9; Am 3:9). Maʻashaqqoth (2x) suggests extortion (Is 33:15) and oppressive (Pr 28:16).

pashat Hebrew word [pah SHAT]
HCSB Translation strip, raid, pillage, rush Uses in Hosea 2
Uses in the OT 43
Focus passage Hosea 7:1

This root in cognate languages usually means "spread/stretch out" but in Akkadian denotes "extirpate, eradicate." Pashat involves taking off (Ezk 44:19), removing (1Sm 19:24), or stripping off (Ezk 26:16) one's own clothes. One strips oneself (Is 32:11). Pashat also means raid (1Sm 23:27) or make a raid (Jb 1:17). It indicates the action of charging or rushing (forward) that is involved in a raid (Jdg 9:33,44). Locusts strip the land or shed their skin (Nah 3:16). Gangs pillage (Hs 7:1). Intensive verbs denote stripping or plundering the dead (1Sm 31:8; 2Sm 23:10). Causative verbs concern stripping off (Gn 37:23) or removing (Nm 20:26) the clothes from another person. Somebody strips another (Hs 2:3) or strips him of honor (Jb 19:9). People strip skin from people (Mc 3:3) and skin animals (Lv 1:6). The reflexive-passive also describes removing one's own clothes (1Sm 18:4)

JOEL

1 The word of the LORD that came [a] to Joel son of Pethuel:

A Plague of Locusts

2 Hear this, [b] you elders;
listen, all you inhabitants of the land.
Has anything like this ever happened in your days [c] or in the days of your ancestors?
3 Tell your children about it, [d]
and let your children tell their children, and their children the next generation.
4 What the devouring locust [e] has left,
the swarming locust has eaten;
what the swarming locust has left,
the young locust [f] has eaten;
and what the young locust has left,
the destroying locust [g] has eaten.

5 Wake up, you drunkards, [h] and weep;
wail, all you wine drinkers,
because of the sweet wine,
for it has been taken from your mouth.
6 For a nation has invaded My land, [i] powerful and without number;
its teeth are the teeth of a lion,
and it has the fangs of a lioness. [j] 7 It has devastated My grapevine and splintered My fig tree.
It has stripped off its bark and thrown it away;
its branches have turned white.
8 Grieve like a young woman dressed in •sackcloth , [k] mourning for the husband of her youth.
9 •Grain and •drink offerings have been cut off [l]
from the house of the LORD;
the priests, who are ministers of the LORD, mourn. [m] 10 The fields are destroyed; [n]
the land grieves;
indeed, the grain is destroyed;
the new wine is dried up; [o]
and the olive oil fails. [p]

11 Be ashamed, you farmers, [q] wail, you vinedressers, [A] over the wheat and the barley, because the harvest of the field has perished. [r] 12 The grapevine is dried up, [s] and the fig tree is withered;
the pomegranate, [t] the date palm, [u] and the apple [v] —
all the trees of the orchard — have withered.
Indeed, human joy has dried up. [w]

13 Dress in sackcloth and lament, [x] you priests; [y] wail, [z] you ministers of the altar.
Come and spend the night in sackcloth, [a]
you ministers of my God, because grain and drink offerings are withheld from the house of your God.
14 Announce a sacred fast; [b]
proclaim an assembly!
Gather the elders [c]
and all the residents of the land at the house of the LORD your God, [d] and cry out to the LORD. [e]

The Day of the LORD

15 Woe because of that day! [f]
For the Day of the LORD is near and will come as devastation from the •Almighty . [g] 16 Hasn't the food been cut off before our eyes, [h]
joy and gladness [i]
from the house of our God?
17 The seeds lie shriveled in their casings. [B, j]
The storehouses are in ruin,
and the granaries are broken down,
because the grain has withered away.
18 How the animals groan! [k]
The herds of cattle wander in confusion since they have no pasture.

Even the flocks of sheep suffer punishment.
19 I call to You, LORD, [l]
for fire has consumed
the pastures of the wilderness, [m]
and flames have devoured
all the trees of the countryside.
20 Even the wild animals cry out to [C] You, [n] for the river beds are dried up, [o]
and fire has consumed
the pastures of the wilderness.

2 Blow the horn in •Zion ; [a] sound the alarm on My holy mountain!
Let all the residents of the land tremble, for the Day of the LORD is coming; [b] in fact, it is near — 2 a day of darkness and gloom, [c] a day of clouds and dense overcast, [d]
like the dawn spreading over the mountains;
a great and strong people [e] appears,
such as never existed in ages past [f]
and never will again
in all the generations to come. [g]

3 A fire destroys [A] in front of them, [h] and behind them a flame devours.
The land in front of them is like the Garden of Eden, [i]
but behind them,
it is like a desert wasteland; [j]
there is no escape from them.
4 Their appearance is like that of horses, [k]
and they gallop like war horses.
5 They bound on the tops of the mountains.
Their sound is like the sound of chariots, [l]
like the sound of fiery flames consuming stubble, [m] like a mighty army deployed for war.

6 Nations writhe in horror before them; [n]
all faces turn pale.
7 They attack as warriors attack;
they scale walls as men of war do.
Each goes on his own path, [o]
and they do not change their course.
8 They do not push each other;
each man proceeds on his own path.
They dodge the arrows, never stopping.
9 They storm the city;
they run on the wall;

they climb into the houses; [p]
they enter through the windows like thieves. [q]

10 The earth quakes before them; [r]
the sky shakes.
The sun and moon grow dark, [s] and the stars cease their shining. [t]
11 The LORD raises His voice [u]
in the presence of His army. [v]
His camp is very large;
Those who carry out His command are powerful. [w]
Indeed, the Day of the LORD is terrible and dreadful [x] — who can endure it? [y]

God's Call for Repentance

12 Even now —
turn to Me with all your heart, [z] this is the LORD's declaration — with fasting, weeping, and mourning. [a] 13 Tear your hearts, [b] not just your clothes, [c]
and return to the LORD your God.
For He is gracious and compassionate,
slow to anger, rich in faithful love,
and He relents from sending disaster. [d] 14 Who knows? He may turn and relent [e] and leave a blessing behind Him, [f] so you can offer grain and wine to the LORD your God. [g]

15 Blow the horn in Zion! [h] Announce a sacred fast; [i] proclaim an assembly.
16 Gather the people;
sanctify the congregation; [j] assemble the aged; [B, k] gather the children,
even those nursing at the breast.
Let the groom leave his bedroom, [l] and the bride her honeymoon chamber.

17 Let the priests, [m] the LORD's ministers, weep between the portico and the altar. [n]
Let them say:
"Have pity on Your people, LORD, [o]
and do not make Your inheritance a disgrace, [p] an object of scorn among the nations.
Why should it be said among the peoples,
'Where is their God?' " [q]

God's Response to His People

18 Then the LORD became jealous for His land [r] and spared His people. [s]
19 The LORD answered His people:
Look, I am about to send you grain, new wine, and olive oil. [t]
You will be satiated with them, and I will no longer make you a disgrace among the nations. [u]

20 I will drive the northerner far from you [v]
and banish him to a dry and desolate land, his front ranks into the Dead Sea, [w]
and his rear guard into the Mediterranean Sea. [x]
His stench will rise;
yes, his rotten smell will rise, [y]
for he has done catastrophic things.

21 Don't be afraid, land; [z] rejoice and be glad,
for the LORD has done great things. [a] 22 Don't be afraid, wild animals, for the wilderness pastures have turned green, [b]
the trees bear their fruit,
and the fig tree and grapevine yield their riches.
23 Children of Zion, [c] rejoice and be glad in the LORD your God, [d] because He gives you the autumn rain for your vindication. [C, e]

He sends showers for you,
both autumn and spring rain [f] as before.
24 The threshing floors will be full of grain, [g]
and the vats will overflow with new wine and olive oil.

25 I will repay you for the years that the swarming locust ate, [h]
the young locust, the destroying locust, and the devouring locust —
My great army that I sent against you.
26 You will have plenty to eat and be satisfied. [i]
You will praise the name of •Yahweh your God, [j] who has dealt wondrously with you. [k]
My people will never again be put to shame. [l]
27 You will know that I am present in Israel [m] and that I am Yahweh your God,
and there is no other. [n]
My people will never again be put to shame. [o]

God's Promise of His Spirit

28 [p] After this [q]
I will pour out My Spirit [r] on all humanity; [s]
then your sons and your daughters will prophesy, your old men will have dreams,
and your young men will see visions.
29 I will even pour out My Spirit on the male and female slaves in those days. [t] 30 I will display wonders in the heavens and on the earth: [u] blood, fire, and columns of smoke.
31 The sun will be turned to darkness and the moon to blood [v]
before the great and awe-inspiring Day of the LORD comes. [w] 32 Then everyone who calls on the name of Yahweh will be saved, [x] for there will be an escape

for those on Mount Zion and in Jerusalem, as the LORD promised, [y]
among the survivors the LORD calls.

Chapter 3 a

Judgment of the Nations

[1]Yes, in those days and at that time, when I restore the fortunes of Judah and Jerusalem, [b] [2] I will gather all the nations [c] and take them to the Valley of Jehoshaphat. [d, e]
I will enter into judgment with them there [f]
because of My people, My inheritance Israel.
The nations have scattered the Israelites in foreign countries [g]
and divided up My land. [h] [3] They cast lots for My people; [i] they bartered a boy for a prostitute and sold a girl for wine to drink. [j]

[4] And also: Tyre, [k] Sidon, and all the territories of Philistia [l] — what are you to Me? Are you paying Me back or trying to get even with Me? I will quickly bring retribution on your heads. [m] [5] For you took My silver and gold and carried My finest treasures [n] to your temples. [6] You sold the people of Judah and Jerusalem to the Greeks [o] to remove them far from their own territory. [7] Look, I am about to rouse them up from the place where you sold them; [p] I will bring retribution on your heads. [8] I will sell your sons and daughters into the hands of the people of Judah, [q] and they will sell them to the Sabeans, [r, s] to a distant nation, for the LORD has spoken.

[9] Proclaim this among the nations: [t]
Prepare for holy war; [u] rouse the warriors; [v]
let all the men of war advance and attack!
[10] Beat your plows into swords and your pruning knives into spears. [w]
Let even the weakling say, “I am a warrior.”
[11] Come quickly, [x] all you surrounding nations;
gather yourselves. [y]
Bring down Your warriors there, LORD. [z]

[12] Let the nations be roused and come to the Valley of Jehoshaphat,

for there I will sit down to judge all the surrounding nations. [a] 13 Swing the sickle
because the harvest is ripe. [b]
Come and trample the grapes because the winepress is full; [c]
the wine vats overflow
because the wickedness of the nations is great. [d]

14 Multitudes, multitudes [e] in the valley of decision!
For the Day of the LORD is near [f]
in the valley of decision.
15 The sun and moon will grow dark,
and the stars will cease their shining. [g]
16 The LORD will roar from •Zion [h] and raise His voice from Jerusalem; [i] heaven and earth will shake. [j]
But the LORD will be a refuge for His people, [k]
a stronghold for the Israelites. [l]

Israel Blessed

17 Then you will know that I am •Yahweh your God, [m] who dwells in Zion, My holy mountain. [n] Jerusalem will be holy, [o]
and foreigners will never overrun it again. [p] 18 In that day
the mountains will drip with sweet wine, [q]
and the hills will flow with milk. [r]
All the streams of Judah will flow with water, [s] and a spring will issue from the LORD's house, [t] watering the Valley of Acacias. [A, u] 19 Egypt will become desolate, and Edom a desert wasteland, because of the violence done to the people of Judah [v]
in whose land they shed innocent blood.
20 But Judah will be inhabited forever, [w]
and Jerusalem from generation to generation.
21 I will pardon their bloodguilt, [x, y]
which I have not pardoned, for the LORD dwells in Zion.

JOEL

Introduction | Outline | Timeline | Study Notes | Word Studies

Introduction

"What the devouring locust has left, the swarming locust has eaten; what the swarming locust has left, the young locust has eaten; and what the young locust has left, the destroying locust has eaten (1:4).

The book of Joel is one of the shortest in the Old Testament. The first part (1:1-2:17) describes a terrible locust plague concluding with a plea for confession of sins. The second part (2:18-3:21) proclaims hope for the repentant people coupled with judgment upon their enemies.

Circumstances of Writing Author: Joel ("Yahweh is God") is identified as the son of Pethuel. He is not easily identified with the other Joels of Scripture (1Sm 8:2; 1Ch 4:35; 6:33; 11:38; 15:7; Ezr 10:43; Neh 11:9), leaving us only his book to know him, his calling from God, and his work. The book itself gives no biographical information other than his father's name.

Background: Dating the book of Joel has always been difficult and mainly conjecture, with suggestions ranging as widely as premonarchial Israel to the postexilic period, sometimes well into the Hellenistic period.

Message and Purpose What is striking about the book of Joel is that it has no indictment section listing the offenses of the people. The only clue as to what sins called forth the prophet's message is found in the instruction of 2:12-13 to repent, that is, to "turn to Me with all your heart" and "tear your hearts, not just your clothes." All the other prophets (except Jonah, who does not use the prophetic genre) have at least some explicit indication of what behavior needed to be changed. Joel was concerned mainly with motivation, with messages of judgment and hope.

There are many exhortations in the book, but they are almost all formal rather than ethical or moral. Joel calls readers to hear (1:2-3), to war (2:1; 3:9-13), to lamentation (1:5,8,11,13-14; 2:15-16; though some interpreters understand these as indirect calls for repentance), and to celebration (2:21-23). The only true instruction message in Joel occurs in 2:12-13, the call to repentance.

Joel's message was concerned primarily with motivating repentance by proclaiming the Day of the Lord, which is "at the same time one event and many events" and "refers to a decisive action of Yahweh to bring His plans for Israel to completion" (D. A. Garrett). The locust plague is understood as judgment from God and a harbinger of the Day of the Lord (1:2-20, especially v. 15). Then Joel announced that a worse judgment was coming through a human army (2:1-11). This is also called the Day of the Lord (2:1,11).

Joel insisted that the only hope for God's people was through repentance (2:12-17). He assured Judah that repentance would be rewarded with physical (2:18-27) and spiritual (2:28-32) restoration associated with the Day of the Lord (2:31). He concluded by promising a Day of the Lord that would bring judgment against the nations opposing the Lord and His people (3:14).

Locusts: The book of Joel contains four specific words translated "locusts" in English. In both 1:4 and 2:25 "locust" is modified by four different adjectives: "devouring," "swarming," "young," and "destroying."

Interpreters have long asked what relationship exists between the locusts and the army that is mentioned later in Joel. Are they distinct from each other? Is one a metaphor for the other? Or are they two aspects of God's judgment against Israel and the nations? Are the locusts actual, metaphorical, or typological?

It is important to note that both the army of invading locusts and the foreign army came as judgments of God. Also, locusts can be described as an invading army, and an army of men could aptly be called a plague of destructive locusts.

The Day of the Lord: The phrase "Day of the LORD" figures prominently in the book of Joel. This describes the judgment day of God. That judgment could be directed both against the nation of Israel and against the "nations." The specific phrase occurs in the OT in Is 13:6,9; Ezk 13:5; Jl 1:15; 2:1,11; 3:14; Am 5:18,20; Ob 15; Zph 1:7,14; and Mal 3:2. The concept itself may also be found in Jr 46:10 and several other passages.

The "Day of the LORD" has several adjectives attached to it: "darkness and not light" (Am 5:18,20), "great and awesome" (Mal 4:5), "great and remarkable" (Ac 2:20). Associated with it are cosmic calamities; the sun will be turned to darkness and the moon to blood (Ac 2:20; Rv 6:12).

Extended descriptions of the Day of the Lord are found in Isaiah 13; 34; Ezekiel 7; and Joel 2. In Ezekiel 7 we find that the Lord will send His anger against the land of Israel and judge it according to its ways. He will punish it for all its abominations. Disasters are coming, one after another. The judgment theme is prominent in Joel, as is the idea that the day is near when God will make Himself known through His judgments. In a move that shocked the Hebrews, God brought the most evil of nations to take possession of Judah and Israel.

Contribution to the Bible The book of Joel shows us the Creator and Redeemer God of all the universe in complete control of nature. Joel made it clear that the God of judgment also is a God of mercy who stands ready to redeem and restore when His people come before Him in repentance. Joel points to a time when the Spirit of God would be present upon all people. On the day of Pentecost, Peter proclaimed that the new day of Spirit-filled discipleship, foretold by Joel, had arrived (Ac 2:17-21).

Structure Joel's use of repetition gives the book the appearance of a series of folding doors, in some cases doors within doors. As Garrett has shown, the overall structure balances the section on God's judgment through the locust plague (1:1-20) with a section on the land's physical restoration (2:21-27). The prophecy of an invading army (2:1-11) is balanced by a prophecy on the destruction of this army (2:20). In the center is the highly prominent call to repent and the promise of renewal (2:12-19). But this balanced structure overlaps with another. The prophecy of the destruction of the invading army (2:20) is also balanced with the final prophecy of the Lord's vengeance against all the nations (3:1-21). Finally, the assurance of the land's physical restoration through rain (2:21-27) is balanced by the promise of the people's spiritual restoration through the outpouring of God's Spirit (2:28-32).

Study Notes 1:2-3 Joel addressed both the elders and the inhabitants of the land with a question designed to arrest their attention. A unique locust plague had come to the land. It was so unusual that it served as a warning of two future events: a coming war and the Day of the Lord.

1:4 The use of four different Hebrew words for “locusts” in this verse emphasizes the totality of their destruction.

1:5 Joel addressed a third group—the drunkards. Their wine-induced stupor kept them from realizing what was happening around them. Now out of wine, they sobered up and faced the devastation.

1:6-7 Grapevines and figs were two of the principle crops of the land. They were damaged during wars or plague, impacting the food supply and the economy.

1:8 The proper response to this catastrophe was grief, symbolized by donning sackcloth, a rough, uncomfortable fabric that chaffed and irritated the skin.

1:9 The priests lamented the fact that offerings were cut off not just because the temple would lack its sacrifices, but also because they would lack the food portion they took from these offerings. Empty altars also meant empty stomachs.

1:10-12 The farm workers were to mourn and wail because the agricultural economy had been ruined. The crops that sustained both humans and animals were gone. Even the fruit trees were destroyed. Starvation was imminent.

1:13-14 The priests were to take the lead in mourning rituals by dressing in sackcloth and spending the night at the temple. The whole assembly was to gather together and cry out to the Lord, an expression of their corporate guilt before God.

1:15-20 The people gathered at the temple for a communal lament. These verses give the content of their prayer. The major theme of the book is the Day of the Lord, and the people were terrified as they considered that coming day. It would be a time when Yahweh punished sin and judged the nations. The people knew they were sinners. They were out of food and could not offer fellowship offerings to commune with God. The storehouses for grain were empty. The plague appears to be compounded with a drought and perhaps with a fire, so the pastures were ruined. Even sheep that could survive in barren lands were suffering. The speaker in verse 19 expressed the community's complaint and petition for mercy. The animals, domestic and wild, also joined in crying out to Yahweh, who controlled the elements. Without water, death would soon come to man and beast.

2:1 Commentators are divided over the identity of the invading northern army (see note at v. 20) described in chapter 2. (1) Some see it as a figurative description of the locust invasion of chapter 1. (2) Some see literal enemy troops coming from the north, described as invading locusts. (3) Revelation 9:3-11 compares demonic forces to locusts. Whether this army was man or insect, it represented the judgment force of Yahweh. Joel as a spiritual watchman sounded the alarm, just as other prophets did. Yahweh warned the people through His spokesman Joel on My holy mountain. This and the reference to Zion are the first geographical indicators in Joel. The prophet was called to sound the alarm to the nation from Jerusalem, from the place where the temple stood.

2:2 The people of God have often longed for the coming of Yahweh. Isaiah declared, "If only You would tear the heavens open and come down, so that the mountains would quake at Your presence" (Is 64:1). But Joel insisted that this day would be a day of darkness . . . gloom, blackness, and destruction (Zph 1:14-17).

2:3 The coming destructive army would be like a forest fire or a locust invasion. Paradise would be turned into a desert.

2:4-5 An attack of war horses and chariots was the ancient equivalent to blitzkrieg—the lightning war. As Germany overran entire countries in World War II, so this army of locusts would gallop like war horses. The deafening sound of their charge and the roaring of a forest fire are compared to the sounds heard on the coming Day of the Lord.

2:6 As in Ps 96:9 and 97:4, all the peoples or nations will be terrorized by the appearance of the Lord.

2:7-8 In many biblical passages (e.g., Jdg 6:5; Is 33:4; Jr 51:14) armies are compared to locusts and sometimes locusts are compared to armies (Pr 30:27).

2:9-11 Joel continued the interplay of soldiers with the imagery and actions of a locust plague. The swarming locusts ate everything in the fields and then came into the city and finally into the houses. So also invading armies breached the city walls and then plundered the houses. Joel used end-time language and moved beyond what happens in normal locust or military invasions. The very heavens were now engaged; Yahweh and His heavenly armies were ready to wreak havoc. Judgment day had come.

2:12-13 The tone of the prophet changes from this verse to the end of his message. The phrase even now—this is the Lord's declaration announces a wonderful possibility. Yahweh is a God of mercy and compassion to repentant sinners. Even the worst king of Judah, Manasseh, who sinned more heinously than all the rest, repented and received forgiveness (2Ch 33:10-13). "The LORD's declaration" is a solemn promise. This is the only place where this phrase appears in Joel. Solomon's prayer was answered by Yahweh, who promised that He would forgive and heal the land from a locust plague (2Ch 7:12-16), but Yahweh required genuine and sincere repentance from the people for this to happen.

2:14 The question who knows? expresses hope based on the fact that God is free to choose pardon or punishment. There is always hope for repentant persons, for God knows our hearts (Jnh 3:9).

2:15-17 The trumpet call summoned the people to a solemn assembly for worship and petition. This contrasts with the trumpet call of verse 1, which heralded war. This time everyone was to come, even those who normally were exempt from such gatherings. The priests were given special instructions because they were to lead the expression of the national lament and petition. Some take verse 17 to mean "why should the nations rule over us?" This view fits the interpretation of a northern army invasion better than a literal locust invasion.

2:18-19 Joel announced the Lord's decision to turn away His judgment and spare the nation. Starting in verse 19 Yahweh speaks directly to the people. His covenant blessings will be restored, and the people will be protected from their enemies.

2:20 Who was this northern army? Though some interpreters say it was an army of locusts, the language of the passage makes this view difficult. Almost every military invasion of Israel came from the north, so it would be hard to identify a specific army. The best approach is to interpret the enemy from the north as a reference to the end-time attack of the nations against God's people (Is 34:1-7; Ezk 38; Dn 11:36-45).

The Dead Sea (2:20) 2:21-22 The destruction caused by the locust invasion (or the invading army) is now reversed. Both land and animals will participate in the salvation of God's people (Rm 8:19-23; Rv 21). Covenant blessings will be restored to the land (Dt 11:13-15).

2:23-24 Israel was dependent on autumn and spring rains for the prosperity of the land. Egypt could irrigate their crops from the Nile River, but Israel needed the Lord's special provision. They must depend on Him. The phrase autumn rain for your vindication can also be translated as "teacher of or for righteousness." Some scholars link this phrase to the "teacher of righteousness" at the Qumran community. This could be a veiled allusion to a coming Davidic leader-teacher who would bring righteousness to the believing remnant (Dt 18:15; Jr 33:14-17).

2:25-27 The locusts served as symbols of all the invading armies that had attacked Israel and decimated the land. Several ancient interpreters listed the nation's enemies; any one of them could be in view in the book of Joel. That God would say My great army of a pagan military force reminded Israel that Yahweh is the sovereign Lord of history. He is in control of all nations and they ultimately serve His purposes no matter their intentions (Is 45:1-7). Our food comes from the Lord who is Lord of all nature. Thus when we have plenty to eat, we should praise God. As important as food is, the greatest blessing of all is the presence of the Lord and our knowledge of Him (Is 45:4-7).

2:28-29 The OT prophets looked forward to the day when Yahweh would enable His people to keep the covenant and His laws by giving them a new heart and mind (Is 32:15-20; Jr 31:33; Ezk 36:26-30). The giving of His Spirit would take place at the time of the forgiveness of their sins. Peter on the day of Pentecost announced the gift of the Spirit and the forgiveness of sins by calling on God's name (Ac 2:21,38-40). If the people accepted Jesus as Messiah and Savior, they would receive this gift of the Holy Spirit. Yahweh's promise of the Spirit in Joel was not reserved for a few but for anyone who would believe from all humanity. Peter saw that this gift was not limited to Israel, but was for "all who are far off, as many as the Lord our God will call" (Ac 2:39). This prophecy from Joel was partly fulfilled in the days of Pentecost as well as in the "Gentile Pentecost" (Ac 10), and the fulfillment has continued throughout the church age (Rm 10:13). The final fulfillment will take place at the conversion of the Jewish people (Rm 11:26-27). Moses was glad when Joshua told him that others gave evidence of having God's Spirit by prophesying. Said Moses, "If only all the Lord's people were prophets, and the Lord would place His Spirit on them" (Nm 11:29).

2:30-31 The cosmic signs that are part of the Day of the Lord inspire awe for believers and terror for unbelievers. This day is one of salvation as well as judgment (Rv 6:12-17).

2:32 This verse shows the human obligation (calls on the name of Yahweh) and the divine role in salvation (among the survivors the Lord calls). Both "calls" are necessary for salvation. God does not save those who do not call on Him, and none call whom He has not called.

3:1-2 Moses predicted that the Jewish people would be scattered among the nations, and that when they came to their senses and returned to God, He would restore them to their land and cause them to prosper (Dt 30:1-10). Sometime after this the Lord will gather and judge the nations (Is 66:18; Zph 3:8; Rv 16:14-16; 19:11-16). The Valley of Jehoshaphat is literally "the valley where Yahweh judged," but no valley by this name is known. Most likely this is the valley of Jezreel near Megiddo where the battle of Armageddon will take place (Rv 16:16).

3:3-4 When Israel lost wars, their children would be sold by their enemies as slaves. Tyre and Sidon were trading hubs for slaves. The Lord is the defender of widows and orphans and will bring retribution on the guilty.

3:5-6 The crimes of these enemies were not only against Israel but against Yahweh. It was God's silver and gold that they took. The slaves were sent as far away as Greece.

3:7-8 The (Lat) lex talionis (Dt 19:21) will be applied, where punishment for wrongdoing is meted out "life for life, eye for eye," etc. The Jews were sent in exile to the northwest, and so those who exiled them would be sent to the southeast. The Sabeans dominated the trade routes to the south.

3:9-12 The nations are summoned to battle (in Rv 16:14 demonic spirits are used to motivate the nations for the final battle). The nations are to mobilize for war (cp. the opposite in Is 2:4; Mc 4:3).

3:13 The Lord will trample His enemies like grapes in a winepress (Is 63:1-6; Rv 14:14-20).

3:14-17 Multitudes, multitudes are hordes of people in the valley of judgment. The decision is the verdict that Yahweh is pronouncing on an unbelieving world, not a decision that people are making to follow God. It is too late because it is judgment day for Israel's enemies but salvation day for the people of God—a refuge . . . a stronghold. This will be a time of revelation to Israel and the nations because Yahweh will be known as He is.

3:18-21 Joel summarized the result of the Day of the Lord. The land of Israel will have miraculous fertility and fruitfulness. Traditional enemies will be punished. Yahweh will dwell with His people, and they will receive pardon for their sins.

HCSB Translation locust Uses in Joel 3
Uses in the OT 24
Focus passage Joel 1:4

'Arbeh is the common term for locust, used of Moses' plague against Egypt (Ex 10:4). It is the mature swarming locust (Nah 3:15). Human armies are compared to the 'arbeh (Jdg 7:12). 'Arbeh stands in figures about people shaken off like locusts (Ps 109:23) or horses leaping like them (Jb 39:20). Joel 1:4

mentions either varieties of locust or stages of locust life. Chasiyl (6x) may indicate the caterpillar stage (Jl 1:4). It is also translated locust (Is 33:4) and grasshopper (2Ch 6:28). Yeleq (9x) is young locust (Jl 2:25) or locust (Jr 51:14). These could hop but not yet fly. Gazam (3x) is the devouring locust (Jl 1:4) or locust (Am 4:9); this was a particularly destructive stage. Govai (2x) means swarm of locusts (Am 7:1). Gov (Nah 3:17), translated cloud, seems a synonym. Sol'am may indicate katydid, and chargol suggests cricket (Lv 11:22).

Amos

1 The words of Amos, who was one of the sheep breeders [A, a] from Tekoa [b] — what he saw regarding Israel in the days of Uzziah, [c] king of Judah, and Jeroboam [d] son of Jehoash, king of Israel, two years before the earthquake. [e]

2 He said:

The LORD roars [f] from •Zion
and raises His voice from Jerusalem;
the pastures of the shepherds mourn, [B, g]
and the summit of Carmel [h] withers.

Judgment on Israel's Neighbors

3 The LORD says:

I will not relent from punishing Damascus [i] for three crimes, even four, [j]
because they threshed Gilead with iron sledges.
4 Therefore, I will send fire against Hazael's palace, and it will consume Ben-hadad's [k] citadels.
5 I will break down the gates [C, l] of Damascus.
I will cut off the ruler from the Valley of Aven,
and the one who wields the scepter from Beth-eden.
The people of Aram will be exiled to Kir. [m]
The LORD has spoken.

6 The LORD says:

I will not relent from punishing Gaza [n]
for three crimes, even four,
because they exiled a whole community,
handing them over to Edom.
7 Therefore, I will send fire against the walls of Gaza,
and it will consume its citadels.
8 I will cut off the ruler from Ashdod, [o]
and the one who wields the scepter from Ashkelon. [p]
I will also turn My hand against Ekron, and the remainder of the Philistines [q] will perish.
The Lord GOD has spoken.

9 The LORD says:

I will not relent from punishing Tyre [r]
for three crimes, even four,
because they handed over a whole community of exiles to Edom and broke [D] a treaty of brotherhood. [s] 10 Therefore, I will send fire [t] against the walls of Tyre,
and it will consume its citadels.

11 The LORD says:

I will not relent from punishing Edom [u]
for three crimes, even four,
because he pursued his brother with the sword. [v]
He stifled his compassion,
his anger tore at them [w] continually,
and he harbored his rage incessantly.
12 Therefore, I will send fire against Teman, [x]
and it will consume the citadels of Bozrah.

13 The LORD says:

I will not relent from punishing the Ammonites [y]
for three crimes, even four,
because they ripped open the pregnant women of Gilead [z]
in order to enlarge their territory. [a] 14 Therefore, I will set fire to the walls of Rabbah, [b]
and it will consume its citadels.
There will be shouting on the day of battle [c] and a violent wind on the day of the storm. [d] 15 Their king and his princes will go into exile together. [e]
The LORD has spoken.

2 The LORD says:

I will not relent from punishing Moab [a]
for three crimes, even four,
because he burned the bones
of the king of Edom to lime. [b] 2 Therefore, I will send fire against Moab, and it will consume the citadels of Kerioth. [c] Moab will die with a tumult, [d]
with shouting and the sound of the ram’s horn.
3 I will cut off the judge [e] from the land and kill all its officials [f] with him.
The LORD has spoken.

Judgment on Judah

4 The LORD says:

I will not relent from punishing Judah [g]
for three crimes, even four,
because they have rejected the instruction of the LORD [h] and have not kept His statutes. [i]
The lies [j] that their ancestors followed [k]
have led them astray.
5 Therefore, I will send fire [l] against Judah,
and it will consume the citadels of Jerusalem.

Judgment on Israel

6 The LORD says:

I will not relent from punishing Israel [m]
for three crimes, even four,
because they sell a righteous person for silver and a needy person for a pair of sandals. [n] 7 They trample the heads of the poor [o]
on the dust of the ground and block the path of the needy. [p]
A man and his father have sexual relations with the same girl, [q]
profaning My holy name. [r]
8 They stretch out beside every altar [s] on garments taken as collateral, [t]
and in the house of their God,
they drink wine obtained through fines. [u]

9 Yet I destroyed the Amorite [v] as Israel advanced;
his height [w] was like the cedars,
and he was as sturdy as the oaks;
I destroyed his fruit [x] above and his roots beneath.
10 And I brought you from the land of Egypt [y] and led you 40 years in the wilderness [z]
in order to possess the land of the Amorite. [a] 11 I raised up some of your sons as prophets [b] and some of your young men as Nazirites. [c]
Is this not the case, Israelites?

This is the LORD's declaration.

12 But you made the Nazirites drink wine and commanded the prophets,
"Do not prophesy." [d]
13 Look, I am about to crush [A] you in your place [e] as a wagon full of sheaves crushes grain.
14 Escape will fail the swift, [f]
the strong one will not prevail by his strength, [g]

and the brave will not save his life.
15 The archer will not stand his ground, [h]
the one who is swift of foot will not save himself, and the one riding a horse will not save his life. [i] 16 Even the most courageous of the warriors will flee naked on that day [j] —

this is the LORD's declaration.

God's Reasons for Punishing Israel

3 Listen to this message that the LORD has spoken against you, Israelites, against the entire clan that I brought from the land of Egypt: [a]

2 I have known only you [b] out of all the clans of the earth;
therefore, I will punish you for all your iniquities. [c] 3 Can two walk together [d]
without agreeing to meet? [e] 4 Does a lion roar [f] in the forest
when it has no prey?
Does a young lion growl from its lair
unless it has captured something?
5 Does a bird land in a trap on the ground
if there is no bait for it?
Does a trap spring from the ground
when it has caught nothing?
6 If a ram's horn [g] is blown in a city, aren't people afraid? [h]
If a disaster [i] occurs in a city, hasn't the LORD done it? [j] 7 Indeed, the Lord GOD does nothing without revealing His counsel to His servants the prophets. [k] 8 A lion has roared; [l]
who will not fear?
The Lord GOD has spoken; [m]
who will not prophesy? [n]

9 Proclaim on the citadels in Ashdod [o]
and on the citadels in the land of Egypt:
Assemble on the mountains of Samaria [p]
and see the great turmoil in the city and the acts of oppression within it. [q] 10 The people are incapable of doing right [r] — those who store up violence and destruction [s] this is the LORD's declaration — in their citadels.

11 Therefore, the Lord GOD says:

An enemy [t] will surround the land;
he will destroy [u] your strongholds and plunder your citadels. [v]
12 The LORD says:

As the shepherd snatches two legs or a piece of an ear
from the lion's mouth, [w]
so the Israelites who live in Samaria will be rescued
with only the corner of a bed [x] or the [A] cushion [B] of a couch. [y, z]

13 Listen and testify [a] against the house of Jacob — 14 I will punish the the God of •Hosts .this is the declaration of the Lord GOD, altars of Bethel [b]
on the day I punish Israel for its crimes;
the horns of the altar [c] will be cut off and fall to the ground. [d] 15 I will demolish the winter house [e]
and the summer house; [f]
the houses inlaid with ivory [g] will be destroyed, and the great houses [h] will come to an end.

This is the LORD's declaration.

Social and Spiritual Corruption

4 Listen to this message, you cows of Bashan [a] who are on the hill of Samaria, women who oppress the poor and crush the needy, [b]
who say to their husbands,
“Bring us something to drink.” [c]

2 The Lord God has sworn [d] by His holiness: [e]

Look, the days are coming [A] when you will be taken away with hooks, [f]
every last one of you with fishhooks. [g] 3 You will go through breaches in the wall, [h]
each woman straight ahead,
and you will be driven along toward Harmon.

This is the Lord’s declaration.

4 Come to Bethel and rebel;
rebel even more at Gilgal! [i] Bring your sacrifices every morning, [j]
your tenths every three days.
5 Offer leavened bread as a thank offering, [k]
and loudly proclaim your freewill offerings, [l]
for that is what you Israelites love to do! [m]

This is the Lord’s declaration.

God’s Discipline and Israel’s Apostasy

6 I gave you absolutely nothing to eat [B, n]
in all your cities,
a shortage of food in all your communities,
yet you did not return to Me. [o]

This is the Lord’s declaration.

7 I also withheld the rain from you [p]
while there were still three months until harvest.
I sent rain on one city
but no rain on another. [q]
One field received rain

while a field with no rain withered. [r] 8 Two or three cities staggered to another city to drink water [s] but were not satisfied, [t]
yet you did not return [u] to Me.

This is the LORD's declaration.

9 I struck you with blight and mildew; [v]
the locust devoured [w]
your many gardens and vineyards, your fig trees and olive trees, [x]
yet you did not return to Me. [y]

This is the LORD's declaration.

10 I sent plagues like those of Egypt; [z]
I killed your young men with the sword, [a] along with your captured horses. [b]
I caused the stench of your camp to fill your nostrils, [c]
yet you did not return to Me. [d]

This is the LORD's declaration.

11 I overthrew some of you as I [C] overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah, [e] and you were like a burning stick snatched from a fire, [f]
yet you did not return to Me [g] —

this is the LORD's declaration.

12 Therefore, Israel, that is what I will do to you, and since I will do that to you,
Israel, prepare to meet your God! [h] 13 He is here:
the One who forms the mountains, [i] creates the wind, [j]
and reveals His [D] thoughts to man, [k]
the One who makes the dawn out of darkness and strides on the heights of the earth. [l] •Yahweh , the God of •Hosts , is His name. [m]

Lamentation for Israel

5 Listen to this message that I am singing for you, a lament, [a] house of Israel:

2 She has fallen;
Virgin Israel [b] will never rise again. [c]
She lies abandoned on her land, with no one to raise her up. [d]

3 For the Lord God says:
The city that marches out a thousand strong will have only a hundred left, [e]
and the one that marches out a hundred strong will have only ten left [f] in the house of Israel.

Seek God and Live

4 For the LORD says to the house of Israel:
Seek Me and live! [g]
5 Do not seek Bethel [h] or go to Gilgal [i] or journey to Beer-sheba, [j]
for Gilgal will certainly go into exile, and Bethel will come to nothing.
6 Seek •Yahweh [k] and live, or He will spread like fire [l]
throughout the house of Joseph;
it will consume everything,
with no one at Bethel to extinguish it. [m] 7 Those who turn justice into •wormwood [n] throw righteousness to the ground.

8 The One who made the Pleiades and Orion, [o] who turns darkness [A] into dawn [p]
and darkens day into night, [q]
who summons the waters of the sea [r] and pours them out over the face of the earth [s] — Yahweh is His name. [t]
9 He brings destruction [B] on the strong, [C, u]
and it falls on the stronghold. [v]

10 They hate the one who convicts the •guilty [w] at the city •gate
and despise [x] the one who speaks with integrity.
11 Therefore, because you trample on the poor [y]
and exact a grain tax from him, you will never live in the houses of cut stone [z]
you have built;
you will never drink the wine
from the lush vineyards
you have planted. [a] 12 For I know your crimes are many and your sins innumerable.

They oppress the righteous, [b] take a bribe,
and deprive the poor of justice [c] at the gates.
13 Therefore, the wise person will keep silent [D, d] at such a time,
for the days are evil.

14 Seek good and not evil
so that you may live, and the LORD, the God of •Hosts ,
will be with you,
as you have claimed. [e]
15 Hate evil and love good; [f] establish justice in the gate. [g]
Perhaps the LORD, the God of Hosts, will be gracious [h]
to the remnant of Joseph. [i]

16 Therefore Yahweh, the God of Hosts, the Lord, says:
There will be wailing in all the public squares; [j]
they will cry out in anguish [E] in all the streets.
The farmer will be called on to mourn, [k]
and professional mourners [F, l] to wail.
17 There will be wailing in all the vineyards, [m]
for I will pass among you. [n]
The LORD has spoken.

The Day of the LORD

18 Woe to you who long for the Day of the LORD! [o]
What will the Day of the LORD be for you?
It will be darkness and not light. [p]
19 It will be like a man who flees from a lion [q]
only to have a bear confront him.
He goes home and rests his hand against the wall
only to have a snake bite him.
20 Won't the Day of the LORD be darkness rather than light, [r]
even gloom without any brightness in it? [s]
21 I hate, I despise your feasts! [t]
I can't stand the stench

of your solemn assemblies. [u] [22] Even if you offer Me your •burnt offerings and •grain offerings, [v]
I will not accept them; [w]
I will have no regard for your •fellowship offerings of fattened cattle. [x] [23] Take away from Me the noise of your songs!
I will not listen to the music of your harps. [y]
[24] But let justice flow like water,
and righteousness, like an unfailing stream. [z]
[25] "House of Israel, was it sacrifices and grain offerings that you presented to Me during the 40 years in the wilderness? [a] [26] But you have taken up [G] Sakkuth [b, c] your king [d] and Kaiwan [e] your star god, images you have made for yourselves. [f] [27] So I will send you into exile beyond Damascus." [g] Yahweh, the God of Hosts, is His name. [h] He has spoken.

Woe to the Complacent

6 Woe to those who are at ease in •Zion [a] and to those who feel secure on the hill of Samaria —
the notable people in this first of the nations, those the house of Israel comes to.
2 Cross over to Calneh [b] and see;
go from there to great Hamath; [c]
then go down to Gath [d] of the Philistines.
Are you better than these kingdoms?
Is their territory larger than yours?
3 You dismiss any thought of the evil day [e]
and bring in a reign of violence. [f]

4 They lie on beds inlaid with ivory, [g] sprawled out on their couches, [h] and dine on lambs from the flock [i]
and calves from the stall.
5 They improvise songs [A] to the sound of the harp [j] and invent [B] their own musical instruments like David. [k] 6 They drink wine by the bowlful [l] and anoint themselves with the finest oils
but do not grieve over the ruin of Joseph. [m] 7 Therefore, they will now go into exile as the first of the captives, [n]
and the feasting [o] of those who sprawl out will come to an end.

Israel's Pride Judged

8 The Lord GOD has sworn by Himself [p] — this is the declaration of •Yahweh , the God of •Hosts :

I loathe Jacob's pride [q]
and hate his citadels, [r]
so I will hand over the city [s] and everything in it.

9 And if there are 10 men left in one house, they will die. [t] 10 A close relative [C] and burner [u, v] will remove his corpse [D] from the house. He will call to someone in the inner recesses of the house, "Any more with you? "
That person will reply, "None."

Then he will say, “Silence, because Yahweh’s name must not be invoked.” [w] [11] For the LORD commands:
The large house will be smashed to pieces,
and the small house to rubble. [x]

[12] Do horses gallop on the cliffs;
does anyone plow there with oxen? [y]
Yet you have turned justice into poison [z] and the fruit of righteousness into •wormwood [a] — [13] you who rejoice over Lo-debar [b] and say, “Didn’t we capture Karnaim for ourselves by our own strength? ” [c] [14] But look, I am raising up a nation against you, house of Israel [d] — and they will oppressthe GOD of Hosts —this is the declaration of the Lord, you from the entrance of Hamath [E, e] to the Brook of the •Arabah . [f]

First Vision: Locusts

7 The Lord God showed me this: He was forming a swarm of locusts [a] at the time the spring crop first began to sprout — after the cutting of the king's hay. 2 When the locusts finished eating the vegetation of the land, [b] I said, "Lord God, please forgive! [c] How will Jacob survive since he is so small? " [d]
3 The Lord relented concerning this. [e] "It will not happen," He said.

Second Vision: Fire

4 The Lord God showed me this: The Lord God was calling for a judgment by fire. [f] It consumed the great deep and devoured the land. 5 Then I said, "Lord God, please stop! [g] How will Jacob survive since he is so small? " 6 The Lord relented concerning this. [h] "This will not happen either," said the Lord God.

Third Vision: A Plumb Line

7 He showed me this: The Lord was standing there by a vertical wall with a plumb line in His hand. 8 The Lord asked me, "What do you see, Amos? " [i] I replied, "A plumb line."
Then the Lord said, "I am setting a plumb line among My people Israel; [j] I will no longer spare them: [k]

9 Isaac's •high places [l] will be deserted, and Israel's sanctuaries will be in ruins; [m]
I will rise up against the house of Jeroboam with a sword."

Amaziah's Opposition

10 Amaziah the priest [n] of Bethel sent word to Jeroboam king of Israel, saying, "Amos has conspired against you [o] right here in the house of Israel. The land cannot endure all his words, 11 for Amos has said this: 'Jeroboam will die by the sword, and Israel will certainly go into exile from its homeland.' " [p] 12 Then Amaziah said to Amos, "Go away, you seer! [q] Flee to the land of Judah. Earn your living [A] and give your prophecies there, 13 but don't ever prophesy [r] at Bethel again, for it is the king's sanctuary [s] and a royal temple." 14 So Amos answered Amaziah, "I was [B] not a prophet or the son of a prophet; [t, u] rather, I was [C] a herdsman, [v] and I took care of sycamore figs.
15 But the Lord took me from following the flock [w] and said to me, 'Go, prophesy to My people Israel.' " [x] 16 Now hear the word of the Lord. You say:

Do not prophesy [y] against Israel;
do not preach [z] against the house of Isaac.
17 Therefore, this is what the LORD says:
Your wife will be a prostitute in the city, [a] your sons and daughters will fall by the sword, [b] and your land will be divided up with a measuring line.
You yourself will die on pagan [D] soil, [c]
and Israel will certainly go into exile [d]
from its homeland.

Fourth Vision: A Basket of Summer Fruit

8 The Lord God showed me this: A basket of summer fruit. 2 He asked me,
"What do you see, Amos? " [a]
I replied, "A basket of summer fruit." [b]
The Lord said to me, "The end has come for My people Israel; [c] I will no longer spare them. [d] 3 In that day the temple [A] songs [e] will become wailing" [f]
— this is the Lord God's declaration. "Many dead bodies, thrown everywhere!
[g] Silence! " [h]

4 Hear this, you who trample on the needy [i] and do away with the poor of the land, [j] 5 asking, "When will the New Moon be over so we may sell grain, [k]
and the Sabbath,
so we may market wheat? [l]
We can reduce the measure
while increasing the price [B] and cheat with dishonest scales. [m] 6 We can buy the poor with silver and the needy for a pair of sandals [n]
and even sell the chaff! "

7 The Lord has sworn [o] by the Pride of Jacob: [p, q]

I will never forget all their deeds. [r]
8 Because of this, won't the land quake [s] and all who dwell in it mourn? [t]
All of it will rise like the Nile; [u] it will surge and then subside like the Nile in Egypt. [v]

9 And in that day —
I will make the sun go down atthis is the declaration of the Lord God — noon; [w]
I will darken the land in the daytime. [x]
10 I will turn your feasts into mourning [y] and all your songs into lamentation; [z]
I will cause everyone [C] to wear •sackcloth [a] and every head to be shaved. [b]

I will make that grief
like mourning for an only son [c]
and its outcome like a bitter day.

11 Hear this! The days are coming — when I will send a famine throughthis is the declaration of the Lord God — the land:
not a famine of bread or a thirst for water,
but of hearing the words of the Lord. [d] 12 People will stagger from sea to sea and roam from north to east, seeking the word of the Lord, [e]
but they will not find it.
13 In that day the beautiful young women, [f]
the young men also, will faint from thirst. [g] 14 Those who swear by the •guilt of Samaria [h] and say, “As your god lives, Dan,” [i] or “As the way [j, D] of Beer-sheba lives” [k] —
they will fall, never to rise again. [l]

Fifth Vision: The LORD beside the Altar

9 I saw the Lord standing beside the altar, [a] and He said:

Strike the capitals of the pillars [b]
so that the thresholds shake;
knock them down on the heads of all the people.
Then I will kill the rest of them with the sword. [c]
None of those who flee will get away; [d]
none of the fugitives will escape.
2 If they dig down to •Sheol , [e]
from there My hand will take them;
if they climb up to heaven, [f]
from there I will bring them down.
3 If they hide themselves on the top of Carmel, from there I will track them down [g]
and seize them;
if they conceal themselves from My sight on the sea floor, [h]
from there I will command
the sea serpent to bite them. [i] 4 And if they are driven by their enemies into captivity, [j]
from there I will command
the sword to kill them. [k]
I will fix My eyes on them for harm and not for good. [l]

5 The Lord, the God of •Hosts —
He touches the earth; [m] it melts, and all who dwell in it mourn;
all of it rises like the Nile
and subsides like the Nile of Egypt. [n] 6 He builds His upper chambers in the heavens [o]
and lays the foundation of His vault
on the earth. [p]
He summons the waters of the sea and pours them out on the face of the earth. [q] •Yahweh is His name. [r]

Announcement of Judgment

7 Israelites, are you not like the •Cushites to Me? [s] Didn't I bring Israel from the land of Egypt, This is the LORD's declaration.
the Philistines from Caphtor, [t, u]
and the Arameans from Kir? [v] 8 Look, the eyes of the Lord GOD are on the sinful kingdom, [w]
and I will destroy it from the face of the earth. [x]
However, I will not totally destroy the house of Jacob [y] —
9 for I am about to give the command, this is the LORD's declaration — and I will shake the house of Israel [z] among all the nations,
as one shakes a sieve,
but not a pebble will fall to the ground.
10 All the sinners among My people [a] who say: "Disaster will never overtake [A] or confront us," [b]
will die by the sword.

Announcement of Restoration

11 In that day
I will restore the fallen booth [c] of David: [d]
I will repair its gaps, restore its ruins, [e]
and rebuild it as in the days of old, [f] 12 so that they may possess
the remnant of Edom [g]
and all the nations that are called by My name [h, i] —

this is the LORD's declaration — He will do this.

13 Hear this! The days are coming — when the plowman will overtake the reaper [j] this is the LORD's declaration — and the one who treads grapes,
the sower of seed.
The mountains will drip with sweet wine,
and all the hills will flow with it. [k]
14 I will restore the fortunes of My people Israel. [B, l]
They will rebuild and occupy ruined cities, [m] plant vineyards and drink their wine, make gardens and eat their produce. [n] 15 I will plant them on their land, and they will never again be uprooted from the land I have given them. [o]
Yahweh your God has spoken.

AMOS

Introduction

"The Lord GOD showed me this: The Lord GOD was calling for a judgment by fire. It consumed the great deep and devoured the land" (7:4).

Amos is the first of the four eighth-century b.c. prophets, which also included Hosea, Isaiah, and Micah. Along with Hosea, Amos's ministry was to Israel even though he was from Judah. He was a layman who did not consider himself a professional prophet (7:14-15). Through words and visions, Amos spoke against the superficial religious institutions of his day.

Circumstances of Writing Author: Amos was a shepherd from Tekoa, a village about 10 miles south of Jerusalem. He received a call from God to go north and prophesy against Samaria and the kingdom of Israel probably around 760 B.C. We do not know how long he actually was in the north; it appears to have been a fairly short time. He provoked a great deal of opposition and anger, as illustrated by his encounter with Amaziah, the priest of Bethel (7:10-17). Apparently he wrote his book, a summary of his prophecies, after his return to Judah. He probably wrote it with the aid of a scribe.

Background: Amos prophesied during the reigns of Uzziah of Judah (792-740 B.C.) and Jeroboam II of Israel (793-753 B.C.). This was a time of great prosperity and military success for both nations, as all their traditional enemies were in a weakened condition. Samaria, the capital city of Israel, enjoyed enormous wealth, and luxuries flowed into the city.

At the same time, decades of struggle with Damascus had left the population exhausted. Many farmers were reduced to poverty. Their more affluent neighbors, and especially the aristocracy, swooped in with loans that the poor could not repay and then reduced the debtors to slavery and seized their lands. The leaders of society believed they had no reason to fear for the future. Their city had high walls and fortified citadels, and their army was everywhere victorious. They were the chosen people of God, and they considered themselves immune from judgment.

Message and Purpose Several key teachings make up the message of Amos.

1. God is impartial and fair, judging each nation appropriately. Neither Jew nor Gentile is exempted from divine judgment. The Gentiles are punished for moral outrages that we would now call "crimes against humanity," while the Jews are judged by the demands of the Mosaic law (see 1:3-2:3; cp. with 2:4-5).
2. God despises human pride, especially when it is demonstrated through confidence in military power, wealth, and indifference toward other people (6:1-8).
3. God is especially harsh against anyone who abuses or cheats the poor (8:4-6).
4. God is not impressed by worship services with music and celebration if the people have unrepentant hearts (4:4-5; 5:21-24).
5. Religious leaders who oppose a genuine work of God are subject to special judgment (7:10-17).
6. People who are blinded by their confidence in their special status before God assume that they have no reason to fear divine judgment, but they are totally misguided (5:18-20).
7. When troubles begin to mount up against a nation, the people should see this as a warning from God and repent before it is too late (4:6-12).
8. Even after judgment, when it seems that all hope is lost (9:1-4), God is able to bring about redemption and salvation (9:13-15).
9. Israel's hope (and humanity's hope) is in the line of David, which God will raise up to establish His kingdom (9:11-12). We now know that this hope is fulfilled in David's descendant, Jesus Christ.

Contribution to the Bible Amos reminds us of the sovereignty of God in His involvement with His people. God will bring His judgment, a reality that certainly came to pass. Amos's emphasis on the Day of the Lord had implications for Amos's contemporaries, but it also reminds the modern reader of a coming day referred to repeatedly in the NT—the day of Christ's return.

Structure After the superscript (1:1), the book of Amos is divided into seven parts. The first part, the introduction, is a single verse (1:2). This is followed by six major divisions: 1:3-2:16; 3:1-15; 4:1-13; 5:1-6:14; 7:1-8:3; 8:4-9:15. Remarkably, formulas of divine speech (statements such as, "the LORD says," "the LORD has spoken," and "the LORD's declaration") are evenly distributed in these sections. Amos 1:3-2:16 has 14 such formulas, and each of the following sections have seven each, for a total of 49. The basic structure and content of each section is described in the notes.

Outline I. Prophecies Against the Nations (1:1-2:16) A. Superscription and proclamation (1:1-2) B. Indictment of neighboring nations (1:3-2:3) C. Indictment of Judah (2:4-5) D. Indictment of Israel (2:6-16) II. Three Discourses Against Israel (3:1-6:14) A. A declaration of judgment (3:1-15) B. The depravity of Israel (4:1-13) C. A lamentation for Israel's sin and doom (5:1-6:14) III. Five Symbolic Visions of Israel's Condition (7:1-9:10) A. Devouring locusts (7:1-3) B. A flaming fire (7:4-6) C. A plumb line (7:7-17) D. A basket of ripe fruit (8:1-14) E. The Lord at the altar inflicting discipline (9:1-10) IV. Promises of Israel's Restoration (9:11-15) Timeline

Study Notes 1:1 Some believe that Amos was a very poor man, being no more than a day laborer who tended livestock and worked in orchards (7:14), but sheep breeders may imply that Amos owned sheep and cattle and that he was in the middle or upper-middle class. The book does not tell us anything about his economic status. Although Amos was from Judah, his message was primarily designated for Israel, the northern kingdom. The earthquake was evidently of such severity that other events were dated relative to it. Lacking a single fixed point for their calendar (as our calendar has, being fixed relative to the birth of Christ), the Israelites dated events relative to the reigns of kings or to other significant events. In addition, the earthquake, coming two years after Amos's ministry, symbolically confirmed his message (9:5). The fact that the book is precisely dated to two years before the earthquake suggests that Amos's preaching career was fairly short.

1:2 This verse sets the theme of the book: God is like a roaring lion. This symbolically portrays His giving a message to His prophets and His readiness to pounce and attack (3:4-8).

1:3-2:16 The first section of Amos is a series of oracles against the nations: Damascus (or Syria; 1:3-5), Gaza (or Philistia; 1:6-8), Tyre (or Phoenicia; 1:9-10), Edom (1:11-12), Ammon (1:13-15), Moab (2:1-3), Judah (2:4-5), and Israel (2:6-16). The focus is on Israel, which is last and is given by far the longest oracle. There are six Gentile nations followed by Judah, the seventh. One would think that this creates a complete list, with seven oracles in all, but Israel comes as the eighth, and thus the tally of her sin is in effect greater than the number seven, which symbolized completion. That is, Israel is the quintessentially wicked nation. Also, the order of the nations slowly tightens around Israel. First is Damascus, to the northeast; then Gaza, to the southwest; then Tyre, to the northwest; then Edom, to the southeast; and next come Ammon and Moab, across the Jordan River to the east; and finally before Israel comes Judah, located immediately south of Israel.

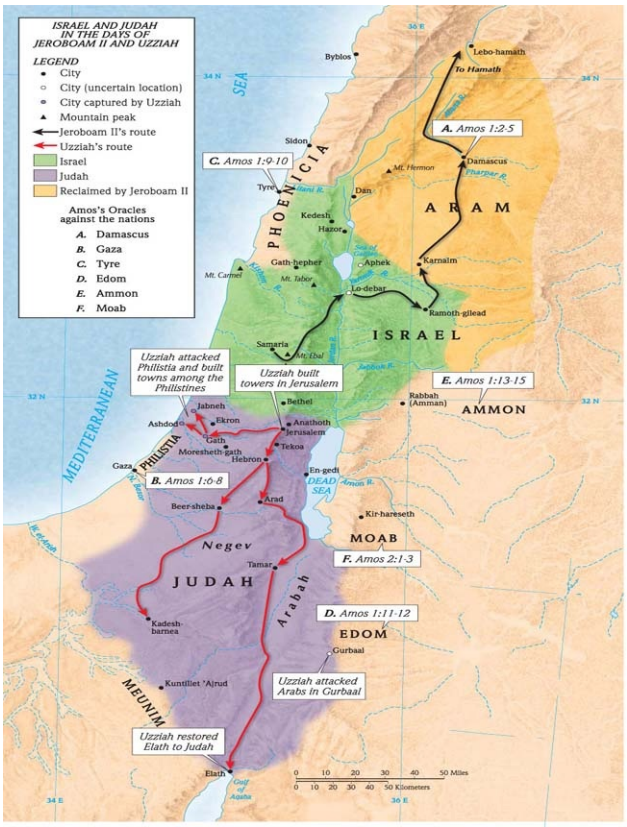
1:3 The significance of the expression for three crimes, even four is debated. But it could be translated as "for three crimes, and for [another] four," implying that the number of offenses had reached seven and was therefore complete, requiring judgment. Damascus regularly struggled with Israel for control of Gilead, east of the Sea of Galilee. It used brutal military tactics there, symbolically described as going over the countryside with iron sledges.

1:4 Hazael and Ben-hadad were throne names used by all the kings of Damascus.

1:6 The Philistines captured villages in order to sell the entire populace into slavery.

1:7-8 All the major cities of the Philistines (Gaza . . . Ekron . . . Ashkelon, and Ashdod) are mentioned except Gath, which by the time of Amos had already been substantially wiped out.

1:9 Tyre also raided towns to sell the people into slavery, and it did so in violation of treaty obligations.



1:11 Edom committed border raids (probably against Judah) in which they exterminated entire populations.

1:13 The Ammonites sought to exterminate the population of Gilead by slaughtering the pregnant women.

2:1 Interpreters puzzle over the charge that Moab burned the bones of the king of Edom to lime. Some say the act displayed simple disrespect for a human body, and others that it was motivated by a belief that burning the bones would prevent the victim from participating in the resurrection (but there is no evidence for such a belief). Lime was used for plastering walls, and an ancient Jewish interpretation says that the king of Moab used the lime to plaster his palace walls. Assyrian kings often decorated their walls with scenes depicting their atrocities against their enemies.

2:4 All the Gentile nations are accused of crimes against humanity, but Judah is charged with unfaithfulness to its covenant with God as described in the law. The lies mentioned here are idols.

2:6 Selling a needy person for a pair of sandals probably refers to selling a debtor into slavery over a trifling sum of money.

2:7-8 This text describes outrages committed at the religious shrines. Men had sexual relations with shrine prostitutes, even going to the point of a man and his father sharing the same woman; they did this while lying on garments that they had taken from poor people as collateral for loans; they did this at pagan altars all over the countryside; and they combined this with drinking bouts at the shrines, using wine they had taken from powerless people.

2:9-12 In this section God gives a historical retrospective, comparing His favors toward Israel with Israel's impudent rejection of Him.

2:9-10 Disregarding historical sequence, the conquest of Canaan (v. 9) is mentioned before the exodus and wilderness wandering (v. 10). This is probably because the focus here is on how Israel occupied the land by virtue of God's grace, thus implying that God could just as easily expel them from the land.

2:11-12 The prophets, as exponents of God's will, and the Nazirites, as examples of great devotion to God, came to the Israelites as representatives sent by God to turn the people to righteousness. The Israelite rejection of both groups represents their rejection of God Himself.

2:13 The Hebrew of this verse is difficult. An alternative translation is, "Behold I am weighed down beneath you, just as a cart that is filled with sheaves is weighed down." If this is correct, it expresses God's frustration with Israel's stubborn attitude.

2:14-16 The Israelite army will be routed in battle. Soldiers are described in terms of their prowess and their military specialization. In verse 14, swift refers to any soldier who runs fast and therefore would normally escape defeat, and strong refers to anyone who would normally prevail in battle. At the end of verse 14 and in verse 15, we have four military specializations: the brave (lit the "warrior," referring to the heavy infantry in the main line of battle), the archer, the swift of foot (light infantry), and the one riding a horse (the cavalry). Finally, in verse 16, the most courageous of the warriors (who would be expected to stand fast in the face of an onslaught) will flee naked (cast away their armor, shields, and weapons).

3:1-15 In this chapter Amos answered those who claimed that he had no right to prophesy against Israel because they were the chosen people of God. Against this charge, Amos made three claims: (1) their election guaranteed that they will be judged rather than escape judgment (vv. 1-3); (2) God has spoken, therefore His prophet must speak (vv. 4-8); (3) Israel was so wicked that even pagan nations could sit in judgment against them (vv. 9-11). This passage concludes with a portrait of Israel's destruction (vv. 12-15).

3:2 The Israelites thought their election as God's special people made them immune from judgment, but it actually made their liability to judgment all the more severe.

3:3 The phrase without agreeing to meet means "without coming to terms." The idea is that two people cannot walk together (that is, be closely associated with each other) unless they have come to terms and are in substantial agreement. In marriage, for example, two people must agree to certain commitments and have mutual values. Errant Israel could not walk with God because the two parties had substantial differences regarding their values and expectations.

3:4-8 These verses include a short epigram, a series of poetic verses that teach some kind of lesson and may contain a riddle (vv. 4-6). After this there is a short commentary on the epigram (vv. 7-8). The epigram makes the point that when one thing is true (for example, that a lion roars), it is reasonable that something else is also true (he has prey). The commentary in verses 7-8 tells us that because God has roared, disaster must come and His prophets must prophesy. Notice that all the examples in the epigram are violent in nature.

3:9-10 Ashdod (the Philistines) and Egypt were two traditional oppressors of Israel, but even they did not oppress the Israelites as cruelly as the Israelites oppressed themselves through their rebellion against God. Thus these pagans could sit in judgment on Israel.

3:11-15 Israel's punishment is described in this section.

3:12 Behind this verse one can detect a common viewpoint among the people of Israel: that if an enemy should attack, the Israelites would be rescued by God. Amos responded sarcastically by saying that they would be "rescued" like a piece of an ear from the lion's mouth. When only pieces of an ear or legs are snatched from a lion's mouth, obviously the lamb is dead. The main point is that Israel will be completely destroyed, not that a remnant will survive. Even so, there may be a remnant theology in the idea that God can raise the dead nation back to life.

3:14-15 The phrase altars of Bethel refers to Israel's religious sins, and the winter house and the summer house refer to the destruction of the oppressive upper classes.

4:1-13 This chapter has two major parts, and each is an accusation followed by a religious statement used in an ironic and threatening manner. The first part (vv. 1-5) includes an accusation against the aristocratic women of Samaria (vv. 1-3) followed by an ironic benediction (actually a malediction) upon the pilgrims going to the religious shrines (vv. 4-5). The second part (vv. 6-13) accuses Israel of having disregarded all preliminary judgments sent against them, and it asserts that they must be ready for final judgment (vv. 6-12). After this, Amos gives a doxology that is threatening rather than encouraging, describing the power of God (v. 13).

4:1 The expression cows of Bashan derisively refers to the upper-class women of Samaria. Bashan, located east of the Sea of Galilee, was famous for its lush pasture and fine livestock (Dt 32:14; Ezk 39:18). Like the cattle of that region, these aristocratic women were well-fed and pampered. The word "cows" is not necessarily an insult in every case. Being a pastoral people, the Israelites often described beauty using imagery related to things that were valued in their culture. For instance, Sg 4:1 compares a beautiful woman's hair to a flock of goats. But the women spoken of by Amos were cruel and unfeeling, as shown by their indifference to the suffering of the poor. Their arrogance was apparent in how they treated even their husbands as household slaves.

4:2-3 The Hebrew of this verse is difficult. The word translated as taken away literally means to "lift up," and the words translated as hooks and fishhooks are obscure and may not refer to hooks at all. But if "hooks" is correct, the metaphor may describe the bodies of the "cows" being hoisted on meat hooks. Also, the location of Harmon is unknown, and it may be that a scribal error has garbled the text. Still, the main point is clear: many people will be slaughtered, and those who survive will file out of the ruined walls of the city into exile.

4:4-5 A priest or prophet would normally pronounce a benediction on pilgrims going to a shrine, encouraging them to go to God with their offerings. Amos asserted sarcastically that when the Israelites went to their shrines, it only increased their guilt.

4:6-12 Behind this passage stand the warnings of Dt 28:15-68, which told the Israelites that if they refused to obey the laws of the covenant, they would be beset with diseases, droughts, crop failures, and military defeats. Should they refuse to repent, they would suffer national destruction and exile. Amos's point is that they did not repent and thus now must get ready for the judgment of God (Am 4:12). The partial drought that Amos described (vv. 7-8) was evidently of recent occurrence and was fresh in the people's minds. The plagues on Egypt in the exodus and the destruction of Sodom were prototypical acts of divine judgment; the comparison implied that Israel was as evil in God's eyes as those nations were.

4:13 This doxology may be an example of the kind of hymns the Israelites sung at their shrines and on their pilgrimages. Here, however, the lofty power of God is turned against them. This is also a fitting conclusion to the previous passage. Amos had told the Israelites to be ready to meet their God, and this is the kind of God they will meet.

5:1-6:14 This lengthy and complex passage presents the core of the accusation against Israel. The passage begins with the lament in 5:2 that there was no one to raise . . . up fallen Israel, and it ends in 6:14 with God raising up an enemy against Israel. The idea of lamentation dominates the passage, appearing as a lament over Israel's doom (5:1-3), in the predicted laments of 5:16-17, and in the funerary situation at 6:9-10. The main accusations are given in 5:4-6:7 in two sets of verses (5:4-15 and 5:18-6:7), and these two sets are similar to each other. In the first set, Israel presumptuously assumed that its pilgrimages satisfied God (5:4-7), even while they were oppressing the poor (5:10-15). In the second set, Israel again assumed its worship and festivals satisfied God, presumptuously certain that the Day of the Lord would bring them no trouble (5:18-24) even while they lived in arrogant luxury in Samaria (6:1-7). In both sets, therefore, their religious arrogance is placed alongside their arrogant indifference toward the poor. Also, in the first set, God is praised as Maker of the heavens (5:8-9), while in the second set, ironically, Israel worships the sky gods (5:25-27). Amos 6:8-11 pictures the judgment that is coming to Israel. Finally, 6:12-14 summarizes the whole with a proverb (v. 12), an accusation (v. 13), and a judgment (v. 14).

5:2 Israel is lamented as a virgin because the land should have been kept secure but now had been raped by invading armies.

5:5 Bethel . . . Gilgal, and Beer-sheba were three pilgrimage shrines. Bethel was where Jacob had his vision of the stairway into heaven (Gn 28:12-19), but it was also one of the places where King Jeroboam I of Israel set up calf idols (1Kg 12:28-29). Gilgal was the embarkation point for the crossing of the Jordan River and the invasion of Canaan, and Joshua set up a memorial there (Jos 4:19-20). Beer-sheba, far to the south, is closely associated with the sojourns of Abraham (Gn 21:14), and we know from archaeology that there was a shrine there.

5:8 The focus here is on God's power over the skies; this is important in light of the accusation in verse 26.

5:13 Because the people with power were so hostile to anyone who told the truth in the courts of law (v. 10), honest and decent people were being silenced.

5:16-17 The focus on the farmer and the vineyards in these verses suggests that the lamentation came about because of crop failure.

5:18-19 The Israelites assumed that because they were the chosen people, they would be exempt from judgment on the Day of the Lord.

5:25-26 This text is the source of great confusion because it appears to teach that the Israelites made no sacrifices during the wilderness period, contrary to what is recorded in the Pentateuch (Ex 24:5). Probably Am 5:25 should be joined to verse 26, as follows: "Did you offer sacrifices and grain offerings to Me 40 years in the wilderness, House of Israel, while you were taking up Sakkuth your king?" Read this way, Israel did make sacrifices to God while in the wilderness, but the people also carried images of the Sakkuth and other gods. During Amos's time, however, they were more brazenly combining the worship of the Lord with the worship of these pagan gods. Sakkuth and Kaiwan were names of the sky deity of the planet Saturn.

6:2 Calneh (Calno, Is 10:9) was in Syria. It had been destroyed by the Assyrians in the mid-ninth century. Hamath, another Syrian city, was conquered by Jeroboam II, the king of Israel during the ministry of Amos (2Kg 14:28; it may be that Calneh also was subdued by Jeroboam II). Gath, a Philistine city, was destroyed by another contemporary of Amos, King Uzziah of Judah (2Ch 26:6). These fallen cities served as warnings to the people of Samaria, who assumed their city was indestructible.

6:4-6 The Israelite aristocracy enjoyed what the Greeks would call a "symposium" (lit "drinking together"), in which participants lounged on couches, drank wine, and listened to music.

6:8 The pride of Israel is described in this verse as its citadels, the walls and towers that seemed to make the city of Samaria impregnable.

An eighth-century B.C. Hebrew house (3:15; 6:11). Archaeological excavations in the area bear out the society of Samaria and the Northern Kingdom in the eighth century. Houses in the tenth-century strata are uniform. The eighth-century strata shows great contrast between large houses of the affluent and small structures in which the poor lived.

6:9-10 The meaning of this difficult text seems to be as follows. Casualties in the city will be so numerous that a household containing 10 men will be wiped out. A relative will be designated to retrieve the bodies and conduct funeral rites, and he and his party will look for any survivors. Informed that there are none, he will declare that Yahweh's name must not be invoked. That is, instead of giving the normal funeral dirges and laments—which may have included invocations of Israel's God (Lm 1:20)—God's name will not be mentioned at all (probably because God's name should not be mentioned in the midst of so much carnage, and also because the dead were evidently under God's curse). Thus, where there ought to be a lament (Am 5:1-2), the situation will be so bad that even this will be denied to the people.

6:12-13 Verse 12 is a proverb concerning absurd, irrational behavior. The point is that the boasting of verse 13 is equally absurd. Lo-debar was a city east of the Sea of Galilee that the Israelites boasted about capturing, but the name "Lo-debar" sounds like the Hebrew for the word, "nothing." Karnaim, another town in Transjordan, means "two horns." In other words, the people boasted of having conquered "nothing" and "two horns."

6:14 The entrance of Hamath (also called Lebo-hamath) was the northern limit of Israel's domain. The Brook of the Arabah is only mentioned here, but it may be the same as the Brook of Egypt, the traditional southern border of Israel (Jos 15:4). The point is that the Israelites will be driven from all the lands that had been allotted to them by the Lord.

7:1-8:3 This section contains four visions (locusts, 7:1-3; fire, 7:4-6; plumb line, 7:7-9; basket of summer fruit, 8:1-3). Between the third and fourth vision is a biographical unit describing a confrontation between Amos and Amaziah, the chief priest of the Bethel shrine.

7:1-3 In the Bible locusts are a common image of God's wrath. Locusts were one of the plagues of Egypt (Ex 10:1-19). A locust plague struck Judah and became emblematic for the Day of the Lord in Joel 1. In this case, however, Israel was not actually struck with a locust plague; Amos merely saw it in a vision and, in response to his pleas, God relented and no actual locust plague came.

7:3 The phrase, The Lord relented, here and in verse 6 distresses and confuses some readers because it implies that God changed His mind. The same expression is used in Ex 32:14, where God relented in response to the intercession of Moses after He had announced His intention to wipe out Israel and make a new nation from Moses' descendants. Readers wonder how an omniscient God could change His mind. Two errors must be avoided. First, the conclusion that God is not fully omniscient and that there are things in the future that He cannot know. Second, the conclusion that God's relenting (or changing His mind) is only a pretense and that Amos's and Moses' acts of intercession did not really change anything God was planning to do. God is fully omniscient, and our prayers do matter. These two truths are certain even if they seem mysterious. Additionally, the "change" of God's mind would of course be something He foreknew He would do in response to intercession by prayerful men such as Moses and Amos.

7:4 The vision of fire is probably symbolic of a ferocious, all-consuming drought. Amos tells us that the land had endured a partial drought (4:7-8), but this was evidently a drought so severe that the whole land would become like a desert. But in response to Amos's intercession, it did not happen.

7:7 The Hebrew text does not contain a word meaning vertical, and the word translated as plumb line is an enigma; no one really knows what this Hebrew word means. Medieval interpreters proposed the translation "plumb line"; the Greek Septuagint translated it as "adamant" around 200 B.C. and the Latin Vulgate, around A.D. 400, translated it as "plaster." Many scholars today, on the basis of an Akkadian parallel, argue that it means "tin," but it is difficult to see why God would hold tin in His hand. Our confusion about the meaning of this key word makes verses 7-8 difficult to interpret.

7:10-17 The account of Amos's confrontation with Amaziah in this section interrupts the sequence of visions. Amaziah represented the Israelite hierarchy, who considered Amos to be either a charlatan or a conspirator against King Jeroboam. Ironically, Amaziah called Amos a seer (someone who had visions; v. 12), and the context shows that Amos did in fact have visions from God and that he was a genuine seer. In addition, Amaziah accused Amos of plotting against Israel and the king (v. 10), but in fact Amos was interceding for Israel (vv. 2,5).

7:14 The Hebrew for I was not a prophet is ambiguous; it could be past tense, as here in the HCSB, or it could be present tense, "I am not a prophet." Both the past and present tenses are appropriate. On the one hand, Amos was not a prophet until God called him and gave him a message (v. 15). On the other hand, Amos is not a prophet in the sense that Amaziah meant it: a hireling who peddles his messages for gain (v. 12). Amos earned his bread as a herdsman, not by his prophesying. A son of a prophet refers not to a prophet's biological son but to a member of a prophetic guild.

Sycamore figs had to be scraped or split in order to ripen properly. Apparently one part of Amos's occupation was cutting such figs, but we do not know if he did it as a day laborer and was therefore poor or if he actually owned a grove of fig trees.

8:1-3 The Hebrew word for summer fruit (qayits) sounds almost identical to the word translated as end (qets) in verse 2. Just as the fruit in the basket had ripened, so also Israel was ripe for judgment.

8:4-9:15 This, the last major segment of Amos, is in four sections. First, God accused the merchants and the wealthy class of cheating people in the sale of grain and of enslaving people for the sake of trifling debts (8:4-6). Next, there is a judgment in which God swears an oath, the land heaves like the Nile River, people mourn, and there is a famine for the Word of God (8:7-14). For the third section, another judgment passage follows: God stands by the altar (in effect swearing another oath), the Israelites are hunted down, and the land again heaves like the Nile River (9:1-6). In the final section, Israel is compared to the nations to which it must go in exile, but abruptly the judgment is reversed, and Israel becomes predominant among all the nations and very prosperous (9:7-15). Other parallels also bind this passage together. There is, for example, a focus on food and crops. In 8:5 the merchants deceitfully sell grain, in 8:11-14 there is a famine, and finally in 9:13 there is a great harvest. Also, in 9:1-4 God hunts down and kills every last Israelite, but in 9:14-15 there is an abundant population. Finally, 8:9 and 9:6 both refer to God's power over the heavens.

8:5-6 Three accusations are combined here: contempt for the Sabbath, cheating customers when selling them food, and enslaving people who could not pay even the smallest of debts.

8:7 It is odd that God swears in this verse by the Pride of Jacob. In 6:8, He said that He hated "Jacob's pride," and in that case the pride of Jacob was the citadels and wealth of Israel. It is not likely that God would swear by something He hated. In 4:2 God swore by His "holiness," and in 6:8 He swore by "Himself." In this verse, therefore, the "Pride of Jacob" is probably again God Himself. The implication, comparing 6:8 to 8:7, is that the Israelites ought to boast in their God, but instead they were boasting in their military and economic power.

8:8 The Nile River flooded every year. The upheaval, overflow, and subsidence of the river are metaphorical for an earthquake.

8:9 The darkening of the sun implies the coming of the Day of the Lord.

8:11-12 The famine for hearing the words of the Lord suggests the time of Israel's exile and Diaspora, when Jewish people would wander through the nations, alienated from their God and Messiah.

8:14 The guilt of Samaria is the shrines the people made throughout the land, but especially at Dan and Bethel. The way of Beer-sheba probably refers to the pilgrimage devotees made to Beer-sheba and by extension to the pagan god they worshiped there.

9:1 The phrase knock them down on the heads of all the people could be translated as "sever them at the head—all of them!" The shrines, fortresses, and palaces will come down. Also, the leaders of the people are described here metaphorically as the pillars that will be cut down. The common people are called the rest of them. The point is that no one, whether of high or low status, will escape God's judgment.

9:2-4 None of the Israelites will be able to hide from God (v. 3). The language here is hyperbole (exaggeration for rhetorical effect). Obviously no one can literally climb into heaven or hide at the bottom of the sea.

9:7 The Cushites were people from Nubia, directly south of Egypt. Caphtor was either Crete or Cyprus, and it represented the Aegean Sea area from which the Philistines came. Kir was probably east of Mesopotamia, in the area of Elam. The point is that God had moved many nations, not just Israel, to their homelands. But it is astonishing that God would compare the exodus of Israel, the mighty act by which He claimed Israel for Himself, to the movements of other nations. This seems to be a terrible demotion of Israel, implying that it was no different than any other nation (rather than being a "holy nation"; Ex 19:6). Yet there is a positive side; if Israel is demoted to the level of the Gentiles, the Gentiles will be promoted to equality with Israel, and they will be included among God's people (Am 9:12; see also Eph 2:11-16).

9:8-10 The text moves abruptly from God's destruction of Israel to His restoration of the nation. Although He will scatter His people among the nations, not one person will be lost to Him, and one day He will bring them back.

9:11-12 The fallen booth of David refers to the dynasty and empire of David (normally called the "house" of David but here a "booth," symbolic of the pathetic condition of this once-mighty line of kings). The restoration will take place first at the resurrection of Christ but after that in the eternal kingdom of the new heaven and new earth (Rv 21:1). Edom is representative of the Gentiles that hated and persecuted Israel. The point is that some day all nations, however hostile they have been, will submit either willingly or unwillingly. Paul likewise declared that some day every knee will bow to Jesus (Php 2:10). But clearly Amos did not envision simple domination of the Gentiles. Many will be called by My name, implying that they will belong to God. This promise is fulfilled now, as Gentiles all over the world worship Israel's God and Messiah. James understood the passage in this way and cited it as being fulfilled in the mission to the Gentiles (Ac 15:14-18). James's citation of Am 9:12 in Ac 15:17 differs somewhat from the Hebrew because he seems to be loosely quoting from the Greek Septuagint translation of Amos. Also, the Hebrew word for "Edom" is similar to the word for "humanity" (adam), which explains why Amos has "Edom" but James has "humanity."

9:13-15 Just as God had promised to bring famine to Israel and nearly to exterminate the nation, He promises in these verses to give them abundant crops and a large population. The statement that the plowman will overtake the reaper is hyperbole for fruitfulness and served to assure the people that they would enjoy eternal well-being.

Word Studies pesha‘

Hebrew Pronunciation [PEH shah]
HCSB Translation rebellion, transgression, crime Uses in Amos 10
Uses in the OT 93
Focus passage Amos 1:3,6,9,11,13

Pesha‘ occurs alongside (23x) chatta’th (“sin”) and (19x) ‘awon (“iniquity”) as a synonym stressing rebellion (Ex 34:7) against authority in a breach of relationships. Pesha‘ is wrongdoing that violates law (Ex 22:9), so also transgression (Gn 50:17) and crime (Am 1:3). It is sin (Pr 10:19), often provoking outrage as offense (Pr 10:12). Pesha‘ appears as rebellious (Is 57:4). The plural denotes acts of rebellion (Ps 25:7). The verb pasha‘ (41x) has similar meanings and accompanies the noun as commit (Ezk 18:31). Pasha‘ denotes rebel (Is 1:2) or be in rebellion (1Kg 12:19). Marah (“rebel”; Lm 3:42) is a synonym. Pasha‘ means transgress (Ezk 2:3) and sin (Pr 28:21). Participles imply rebels (Is 1:28), transgressors (Is 46:8), or the rebellious (Hs 14:9). The infinitive indicates transgression (Is 59:13). Pasha‘ occurs with prepositions meaning “against” (be; ‘al; Hs 7:13; 8:1). The passive-reflexive participle signifies offended (Pr 18:19).

shamad Hebrew Pronunciation [shah MAD]
HCSB Translation destroy, annihilate, exterminate Uses in Amos 5
Uses in the OT 90
Focus passage Amos 9:8

This root appears in Aramaic (Dn 11:44) outside of Hebrew. Shamad means destroy (Am 2:9). It describes objects (Lv 26:30) and individuals (2Sm 14:11) but usually groups of people. Shamad suggests demolish (Nm 33:52) and devastate (Dt 9:3). It is annihilate (Dt 7:24), exterminate (1Kg 16:12), or eliminate (Ps 37:38). It connotes wipe off (Dt 6:15), wipe out (1Sm 24:21), and remove (Jos 7:12). Occurring 29 times in Deuteronomy, shamad describes God’s destruction of earlier peoples (Dt 2:21-23) and intended destruction of Canaanites (Dt 7:23). Shamad often warns Israel of potential destruction (Dt 6:15), seven times in Deuteronomy 28 (Dt 28:51). Shamad appears 14 times with ’avad (“perish, destroy”; Dt 28:20), 10 with yarash (“drive out, take possession”; Dt 2:12), six with karath (“cut off”; Is 10:7), five with nachah (“strike down”; Jos 11:14), four with harag (“kill”; Est 3:13), and three with charam (“annihilate”; Dn 11:44).

Edom's Certain Judgment

This is what the Lord GOD has said about Edom: [a]

We have heard a message from the LORD; [b] a messenger has been sent [c] among the nations:
"Rise up, [d] and let us go to war against her." [e] 2 Look, I will make you insignificant [f]
among the nations;
you will be deeply despised.
3 Your presumptuous heart has deceived you, [g] you who live in clefts of the rock [A, h], [i] in your home on the heights,
who say to yourself,
"Who can bring me down to the ground?" [j] 4 Though you seem to soar [B] like an eagle [k]
and make your nest among the stars, [l]
even from there I will bring you down.

This is the LORD's declaration.

5 If thieves came to you, [m]
if marauders by night —
how ravaged you would be! — wouldn't they steal only what they wanted?
If grape pickers came to you,
wouldn't they leave some grapes? [n]
6 How Esau will be pillaged, [o]
his hidden treasures searched out! [p] 7 Everyone who has a treaty with you [q] will drive you to the border;
everyone at peace with you will deceive and conquer you.
Those who eat your bread [r]
will set [s] a trap for you.
He will be unaware of it. [t]
8 In that day —
will I not eliminate the wise ones of Edom [u] this is the LORD's declaration —

and those who understand from the hill country of Esau?
9 Teman, [v, w] your warriors [x] will be terrified
so that everyone from the hill country of Esau will be destroyed by slaughter. [y]

Edom's Sins against Judah

10 You will be covered with shame and destroyed forever
because of violence done to your brother Jacob. [z] 11 On the day you stood aloof, [a] on the day strangers captured his wealth, [C] while foreigners entered his •gate and cast lots for Jerusalem, [b]
you were just like one of them. [c] 12 Do not [D] gloat over your brother [d] in the day of his calamity; do not rejoice over the people of Judah [e] in the day of their destruction;
do not boastfully mock [E, f]
in the day of distress. [g] 13 Do not enter the gate of My people in the day of their disaster. [h]
Yes, you — do not gloat over their misery
in the day of their disaster and do not appropriate their possessions [i]
in the day of their disaster.
14 Do not stand at the crossroads [F, j]
to cut off their fugitives, and do not hand over their survivors
in the day of distress.

Judgment of the Nations

15 For the Day of the LORD [k] is near, against all the nations. [l]
As you have done, [m] so it will be done to you;
what you deserve will return on your own head. [n] 16 As you have drunk on My holy mountain, [o]
so all the nations will drink continually. [p]
They will drink and gulp down and be as though they had never been.
17 But there will be a deliverance on Mount •Zion , [q]
and it will be holy; [r]
the house of Jacob will dispossess [s]
those who dispossessed them. [t, u] 18 Then the house of Jacob will be a blazing fire, [v]
and the house of Joseph, a burning flame, but the house of Esau will be stubble;
Jacob [G] will set them on fire and consume Edom. [H]
Therefore no survivor will remain [w]
of the house of Esau,
for the LORD has spoken.

Future Blessing for Israel

19 People from the •Negev will possess [x]
the hill country of Esau; [y]
those from the Judean foothills will possess
the land of the Philistines. [z]
They [a] will possess
the territories of Ephraim and Samaria, [b]
while Benjamin will possess Gilead.
20 The exiles of the Israelites who are in Halah [I] and who are among the Canaanites as far as Zarephath [c] as well as the exiles of Jerusalem who are in Sepharad will possess the cities of the Negev. [d] 21 Saviors [J] will ascend Mount Zion [e] to rule over the hill country of Esau, but the kingdom will be the LORD's. [f]

Introduction

"This is what the Lord God has said about Edom: . . . Your presumptuous heart has deceived you, you who live in clefts of the rock in your home on the heights, who say to yourself, 'Who can bring me down to the ground?' Though you seem to soar like an eagle and make your nest among the stars, even from there I will bring you down." (vv. 1,3,4) Many Prophetic Books contain prophecies against several nations, but the book of Obadiah focuses exclusively on the nation of Edom. Obadiah's short message centers on the approaching Day of the Lord and the promise that Israel will possess the land of Edom.

Circumstances of Writing Author: Presumably Obadiah (v. 1) was the author of this book, but nothing else is known about him. His common Hebrew name, denoting "servant of the Lord," is shared by at least a dozen persons in the Old Testament.

Background: The time of writing of Obadiah is disputed, with a wide variety of proposed dates from the tenth to the fifth centuries B.C., depending on when the invasion and plunder of Jerusalem (vv. 11-14) occurred. The two most popular views are during the reign of King Jehoram of Judah (ca 848-841 B.C.) and shortly after the final destruction of Jerusalem by the Babylonians (587/586 B.C.).

The former date (ca 845 B.C.) was when the Philistines and Arabs plundered Judah (2Ch 21:16-17) and the Edomites revolted (2Kg 8:20), presumably then becoming allies of the invaders. Since the text does not explicitly indicate the cooperation of the Edomites with the Philistines and Arabs, the latter date (mid-sixth or even fifth century B.C.) fits the biblical data better, including Ob 20 (the dispersed exiles of the Israelites and of Jerusalem to be restored), as opposed to dates before the dispersion of Israel (by 722 B.C.) or of Judah (605-586 B.C.). This postexilic view is also supported by the mention of Edomite involvement in Jerusalem's downfall (Ob 10-14, gloating over the fall of Jerusalem, as in other sixth-century B.C. texts—Lm 4:21a; Ezk 35:15; cp. Lm 2:15-17—and participating in the plunder) which would result in the Lord's promised justice ("As you have done, so it will be done to you" on their heads, Ob 15).

Message and Purpose Judgment on Edom's arrogant presumption: Yahweh's judgment was predicted for Edom because of her arrogance in trusting geographical security (vv. 3-5), diplomatic treaties (v. 7), and the counsel of her famed wise men (v. 8; Jr 49:7) instead of the true God of Israel. Edom was doubly deceived, depending on their own human understanding (Ob 3,8) and believing in the loyalty of their human allies (v. 7). Thus God would bring them down from the lofty cliffs and caves of their mountains. He would cover the Edomites with shame because of their arrogant gloating and gleeful participation in the downfall of their brother Jacob, the nation of Judah (vv. 10-14).

The Day of the Lord: Obadiah spoke of the nearness of the Day of the Lord (Is 13:6; Jl 1:15; 2:1; Zph 1:7,14), focusing on the darkness and gloom of Yahweh's wrath (Is 13:6-13; Jl 1:15; 2:1-3,10-11,31; Zph 1:7-18; 2:2; Mal 4:1-3,5). He emphasized the dual nature of the Day of the Lord in bringing retributive judgment on the historical nation Edom and "Edom" as symbolic of Israel's archenemies (payback on their heads; Ob 15) while, at the same time, bringing salvation (or restoration) for the nation of Israel (Jl 2:30-32; Zph 2:1-10; 3:8-16). In the OT, Edom was a historical entity whose people may have been completely wiped out by A.D. 70 (see notes at Ob 3,10,18). This historical entity blends with "Edom," a symbol for Israel's end-time enemies (cp. vv. 15-16; Is 63:1-6; Ezk 35; 36:2,5—the context of the Day of Lord against all the nations).

Israel's repossession of the land (vv. 17-21): In a second conquest motif, the Hebrew word meaning "possess by dispossessing" is used five times: four times of Israel (both north and south) dispossessing (v. 17) the inhabitants of the promised land (vv. 19-20) and once the same root (v. 17) describes those enemies (including "Esau") who had dispossessed them. Reminiscent of the conquest of Canaan, this Hebrew word was often used in Deuteronomy of God's instructions for conquering the promised land (Dt 1:8,21,39; 4:5,14,26) and also in Joshua (Jos 24:8). Thus as in Jr 49:2 (expected second conquest of Ammon in the last days), a second conquest motif (see usage of “Canaanites” in Ob 20) appears in Israel’s possession of the hill country of “Edom” and the territories of other enemies (vv. 17-20).

Contribution to the Bible Like the book of Revelation, which proclaims the downfall of the persecuting Roman Empire, the book of Obadiah sustains faith in God’s moral government and hope in the eventual triumph of His just will. It brings a pastoral message to aching hearts that God is on His throne and He cares for His own.

Structure The text declares the book of Obadiah is a prophetic “vision” from the Lord (v. 1) which also appears to be a war oracle (v. 1) communicating Yahweh’s imminent judgment upon Edom (vv. 2-9). As a subtype of the prophetic “oracle against foreign nations” (Is 13-23; Jr 46-51; Ezk 25-32; Am 1-2; Zph 2:4-15), it is typical in announcing judgment on a foreign power (specifically Edom; see also Lm 4:21-22) to bring deliverance for Judah (Ob 17-20; see Jr 46:25-28; Nah 1:1-15; Zph 3:14-20). Yet it, like Nahum and Jonah, is atypical in focusing solely on judgment for a foreign nation, rather than specifying judgment for Israel as well.

This shortest OT book consists of several parts. A war oracle from the Lord announces certain judgment on Edom for their arrogant presumption and self-deception (v. 3) that they were immune from divine intervention (vv. 1-9). Next is an explanation of the further cause for coming judgment on Edom (vv. 10-14) —a lack of brotherly commitment (vv. 10-11) in gloating over the day of disaster for God’s people Judah (vv. 12-13) and cooperating with Judah’s enemies in her destruction (vv. 10-11,13-14). Then the text focuses on the Day of the Lord (vv. 15-21) in which imminent judgment on the historical nation of Edom (vv. 15-16), followed by ultimate judgment on “Edom” as representative of Israel’s end-time enemies (v. 16), would result in the deliverance of both Judah and Israel (vv. 17-21).

Timeline

Study Notes vv. 1 The parallel passage in Jr 49:14 more clearly indicates that God is calling the nations together to go to war against Edom.

vv. 3 Clefts of the rock may also be translated as "clefts of Sela" (or Petra). The Nabateans, who built the famed rock-hewn temples at Petra, drove out the Edomites, who settled in southern Judah (Idumea in NT times). The Edomites may have been completely destroyed by about A.D. 70 (with "no survivor," v. 18), possibly suffering the same fate as many Jews when Jerusalem fell to the Romans.

vv. 5 Thieves . . . grape pickers is a twofold illustration of the thoroughness of the impending judgment (Jr 49:9). Even more completely than thieves pillaging from their victims' houses (cp. Ob 11, Edomites' ravaging of Israel's wealth) or farmers harvesting crops, this destruction would leave no remnant behind (v. 5; Jr 49:10). The mention of grapes (lit "gleanings of grapes or olives") alludes to the practice of leaving leftovers from the harvest in the corners of the field for widows, orphans, and aliens to gather (Lv 23:22; Ru 2). Whereas gleaning in the OT often entails a remnant (Is 17:6; Jr 6:9), Obadiah left no room for hope. No remnant would be left for Edom (cp. Ob 18).

vv. 6 Esau, the brother of Jacob (vv. 10,12), was the father of the Edomites. Thus his descendants the Edomites would be pillaged and destroyed like stubble (v. 18). In verses 9,21, everyone from the hill country of Esau would be destroyed so that it would become the possession of Jacob's descendants (vv. 17-18).

vv. 10 To harmonize the phrase destroyed forever with the seemingly contradictory statement in Am 9:12, see note at Ob 18.

vv. 11 Conquering soldiers who cast lots (Jl 3:2-3; Nah 3:10) probably did so by shaking a container of marked pebbles until one fell out. He whose stone fell out first picked the choice portions of Jerusalem.

vv. 12-14 The repetition of the day of their disaster emphasizes the calamity and suffering of Judah at the time of Edom's mistreatment. Ironically this preoccupation with distress and disaster prepared the way for the Day of the Lord (v. 15) when God would pay back Edom accordingly (cp. v. 8, "in that day").

vv. 15 The Day of the LORD was a time of retribution for the Edomites because of their cooperation with the conquering Babylonians in the day of Judah's distress (see note at vv. 12-14). What you deserve is literally "your payback or retribution." Retribution would come upon Babylon the ally of Edom (Ps 137:8) and all who had insulted Judah (Lm 3:61-64). The promise of "retribution on your heads" to all Israel's enemies will be fulfilled in the last days (Jl 3:4,7).

vv. 16 The initial occasion for the drinking bout (as you have drunk on My holy mountain) may have been the Edomite celebration over the recent demise of Judah (ca 586 B.C.). However, the reference to future drinking (so all the nations will drink continually) does not picture celebration but rather judgment against Edom. Drunken, they would stagger and "fall down and never get up again" as the sword swept through the land (Jr 25:27-29). "Edom" represents not just the Edomites, but ultimately all the nations who oppose Israel in the end times. They will all fall under God's judgment.

vv. 17 This deliverance (lit "escape; escaped ones") for God's people in the last days is also prophesied in Jl 2:32 and Is 4:2-4. The surviving righteous remnant of Jerusalem will be holy.

vv. 18 God's burning anger will consume His enemies like grass or chaff. He will use Israel as a blazing fire consumes grass to destroy their enemies (Zch 12:6). The phrase no survivor (cp. Ob 10, "destroyed forever") is in tension with Am 9:12, which states that Israel will possess "the remnant of Edom." Will there or won't there be a remnant? The most likely solution is that "remnant of Edom" in Am 9:12 broadly represents Israel's remaining enemies in the end-times, not the Edomites specifically (see note at Ob 16).

vv. 19-21 The land of Edom will be given to the Israelites living in the Negev, or the southern section of the land. God's people, who were once exiles, will once again possess the land that they had taken originally from the Canaanites. Saviors, or deliverers, will rule the hill country of Esau, and the Lord will rule over the entire kingdom.

Hebrew Pronunciation [SEH lah]
HCSB Translation rock, cliff Uses in Obadiah 1
Uses in the OT 63

Focus passage Obadiah 3

Sela‘ occurs alongside tsur (76x), which encompasses various kinds of rock (4x; Ps 71:3). Sela‘ often involves rock faces, particularly cliffs (Is 2:21), where eagles (Jb 39:28) and hyraxes (Pr 30:26) live. People are thrown off them (Ps 141:6). Mountain goats is literally “goats of the sela’ ” (Jb 39:1). Sela‘ identifies named rocks (Jdg 15:8) and rock columns (1Sm 14:4). Some think that Obadiah 3 specifies Sela, an Edomite fortress city, rather than rock. The Septuagint sometimes translates sela‘ (Is 42:11) as Petra, perhaps corresponding to Petra in Jordan. Sela‘ is associated with crevices and clefts (Jr 13:4; 49:16), also with fortresses (Is 33:16). God is our sela‘ (Ps 18:2). Tyre scraped of civilization is sela‘ (Ezk 26:14). Crypts were carved in sela‘ (Is 22:16). Sela‘ implies stone (Jdg 6:20); the plural suggests rocks (1Sm 13:6).

Jonah's Flight

1 The word of the LORD came to Jonah son of Amittai: [a] 2 “Get up! [b] Go to the great city [c] of Nineveh [d] and preach against it, [e] because their wickedness [f] has confronted [A] Me.” [g] 3 However, Jonah got up to flee to Tarshish [h] from the LORD’s presence. [i] He went down [j] to Joppa [k] and found a ship going to Tarshish. He paid the fare and went down into it to go with them to Tarshish, from the LORD’s presence.

4 Then the LORD hurled [l] a violent wind on the sea, [m] and such a violent storm arose on the sea that the ship threatened to break apart. 5 The sailors were afraid, and each cried out to his god. [n] They threw the ship’s cargo into the sea to lighten the load. [o] Meanwhile, Jonah had gone down to the lowest part of the vessel and had stretched out and fallen into a deep sleep. [p]

6 The captain approached him and said, “What are you doing sound asleep?
Get up! Call to your god. [B,] [q] Maybe this god will consider us, [r] and we won’t perish.”

7 “Come on! ” the sailors said to each other. “Let’s cast lots. [s] Then we’ll know who is to blame for this trouble we’re in.” So they cast lots, and the lot singled out Jonah. [t] 8 Then they said to him, “Tell us who is to blame for this trouble we’re in. [u] What is your business [v] and where are you from? What is your country and what people are you from? ”

9 He answered them, “I’m a Hebrew. [w] I worship [C] •Yahweh , [x] the God of the heavens, [y] who made the sea [z] and the dry land.”

10 Then the men were even more afraid and said to him, “What is this you’ve done? ” The men knew he was fleeing from the LORD’s presence, [a] because he had told them. 11 So they said to him, “What should we do to you to calm this sea that’s against us? ” For the sea was getting worse and worse.

12 He answered them, “Pick me up and throw me into the sea [D] so it may quiet down for you, for I know that I’m to blame [b] for this violent storm that is against you.” 13 Nevertheless, the men rowed hard to get back to dry land, but they couldn’t because the sea was raging against them more and more.

14 So they called out to the LORD: [c] “Please, Yahweh, don’t let us perish because of this man’s life, and don’t charge us with innocent blood! For You, Yahweh, have done just as You pleased.” [d] 15 Then they picked up Jonah and threw him into the sea, and the sea stopped its raging. [e] 16 The men •feared the LORD [f] even more, and they offered a sacrifice to the LORD and made vows. [g]

17 [h] Now the LORD had appointed a huge fish [i] to swallow Jonah, and Jonah was in [E] the fish three days and three nights. [j]

Jonah's Prayer

2 Jonah prayed to the LORD his God from inside [A] the fish: [a]

[2] I called to the LORD in my distress, [b] and He answered me.
I cried out for help in the belly of •Sheol ; [c]
You heard my voice. [d]
[3] You threw me into the depths, [e] into the heart of the seas, [f]
and the current [B] overcame me.
All Your breakers and Your billows swept over me. [g] [4] But I said: I have been banished [h] from Your sight, [i] yet I will look once more [j] toward Your holy temple. [k] [5] The waters engulfed me up to the neck; [C, l]
the watery depths overcame me;
seaweed was wrapped around my head. [m]
[6] I sank to the foundations of the mountains; [n]
the earth with its prison bars closed behind me forever! [o]
But You raised my life [p] from the •Pit , LORD my God! [q]
[7] As my life was fading away, [r]
I remembered •Yahweh . [s]
My prayer came to You, [t]
to Your holy temple. [u]
[8] Those who cling to worthless idols [v] forsake faithful love, [w] [9] but as for me, I will sacrifice [x] to You with a voice of thanksgiving. [y]
I will fulfill [z] what I have vowed.
Salvation [D] is from the LORD! [a]

[10] Then the LORD commanded the fish, [b] and it vomited Jonah onto dry land.

Jonah's Preaching

3 Then the word of the LORD came to Jonah a second time: [a] 2 “Get up! Go to the great city of Nineveh [b] and preach [c] the message that I tell you.” 3 So Jonah got up and went to Nineveh according to the LORD’s command.

Now Nineveh was an extremely large city, [A,] [d] a three-day walk. [e] 4 Jonah set out on the first day of his walk in the city and proclaimed, [f] “In 40 days Nineveh will be demolished! ” 5 The men of Nineveh believed in God. [B] They proclaimed a fast [g] and dressed in •sackcloth — from the greatest of them to the least.

6 When word reached the king of Nineveh, he got up from his throne, took off his royal robe, put on sackcloth, [h] and sat in ashes. 7 Then he issued a decree [i] in Nineveh:

> By order of the king and his nobles: No man or beast, herd or flock, is > to taste anything at all. They must not eat or drink water.
> 8 Furthermore, both man and beast must be covered with sackcloth, > and everyone must call out earnestly to God. [j] Each must turn from his > evil ways [k] and from the violence [C] he is doing. [D] 9 Who knows? [l] > God may turn and relent; He may turn from His burning anger so that > we will not perish. [m]

10 Then God saw their actions — that they had turned from their evil ways [n] — so God relented from the disaster [o] He had threatened to do to them. And He did not do it.

Jonah's Anger

4 But Jonah was greatly displeased and became furious. [a] 2 He prayed to the LORD: [b] “Please, LORD, isn’t this what I said while I was still in my own country? That’s why I fled toward Tarshish in the first place. [c] I knew that You are a merciful and compassionate God, [d] slow to become angry, rich in faithful love, and One who relents from sending disaster. [e] 3 And now, LORD, please take my life from me, [f] for it is better for me to die than to live.” [g]

4 The LORD asked, “Is it right for you to be angry? ”

5 Jonah left the city and sat down east of it. [h] He made himself a shelter there and sat in its shade to see what would happen to the city. 6 Then the LORD God appointed a plant, [i] and it grew up to provide shade over Jonah’s head to ease his discomfort. [A] Jonah was greatly pleased with the plant. 7 When dawn came the next day, God appointed a worm that attacked the plant, and it withered. [j]

8 As the sun was rising, God appointed a scorching east wind. [k] The sun beat down so much on Jonah’s head [l] that he almost fainted, and he wanted to die. He said, “It’s better for me to die than to live.” [m]

9 Then God asked Jonah, “Is it right for you to be angry about the plant? ”

“Yes,” he replied. “It is right. I’m angry enough to die! ”

10 So the LORD said, “You cared about the plant, which you did not labor over and did not grow. It appeared in a night and perished in a night. 11 Should I not care about the great city of Nineveh, [n] which has more than 120,000 people [B] who cannot distinguish between their right and their left, [o] as well as many animals? ” [p]

Introduction

Restored gate at the site of the ancient city of Nineveh, located today on the left bank of the Tigris River. Nahum prophesied the fall of this city of unparalleled wealth and power that was designed to withstand a siege of 20 years. Nineveh's fall began when the Tigris overflowed its banks. The resulting flood destroyed part of the city's wall. The Babylonians entered the breach in the wall, invaded the city, and destroyed it by fire. From 612 B.C. to the A.D. 1800s, Nineveh was lost in accumulating layers of dust.

The book of Jonah, the fifth of the Minor Prophets, is more like the stories of the prophets found in the Historical Books in both form and content. The book gives us a brief glimpse into the life of Jonah, the "wrong-way prophet," who ran from God and was swallowed by a fish. Throughout the book, we see evidence of God's grace and His love for all people.

Circumstances of Writing Author: The book is an anonymous narrative about Jonah.

Background: Jonah appears in 2Kg 14:25 as a prophet from Gath-hepher in the territory of Zebulun in northern Israel. He was active around the first half of the eighth century B.C. Jonah predicted the restoration of the northern kingdom's boundaries. This occurred during the reign of Jeroboam II (ca 793-753 B.C.). This book about Jonah could have been composed at any time from the eighth century to the end of the OT period.

Jonah preached to the city of Nineveh. Nineveh was a major city of the Assyrians, a cruel and warlike people who were longtime enemies of Israel. Assyrian artwork emphasizes war, including scenes of execution, impalement, flaying the skin off prisoners, and beheadings. This explains Jonah's reluctance to preach to the infamous city of Nineveh.

The key debate about the book of Jonah is the question of its genre. Is Jonah history or parable? The parable view argues that Jonah is a fictional story or fable made up to convey a theological point about God's attitude toward Gentiles. Proponents of the parable view argue that the ironic and fantastic events described by the book (e.g., Jonah living and praying in the stomach of a fish) is the author's way of tipping the reader off that this is not literal history. There are also historical difficulties that the fictional view would resolve: the exaggerated size of Nineveh (3:3) and the lack of extrabiblical, Assyrian evidence to confirm that the city ever repented.

Five considerations suggest taking the book of Jonah as genuine history. First, Jonah was a real historical figure, said to be a prophet in 2Kg 14:25. The book of Jonah portrays Jonah as a flawed character. Were the book of Jonah a piece of fiction, it would be guilty of slander, saying something derogatory and untrue about a real person who is elsewhere presented positively.

Second, Jonah is part of the collection of 12 Minor Prophets. All the other books of this collection convey prophecies by genuine, historical prophets. By placing Jonah in this collection, the compiler of the Minor Prophets signaled that he considered Jonah to be an historical account.

Third, the miracles in Jonah are not impossible for the God of the Bible. Presuming otherwise, some interpreters allow their antisupernaturalism to drive them to the parable view of Jonah.

Fourth, Jesus in Mt 12:39-41 and Lk 11:29-32 spoke of Jonah being in the fish and preaching in Nineveh as if these were real events. In particular, Jesus' statement that "the men of Nineveh will stand up at the judgment with this generation and condemn it, because they repented at Jonah's proclamation" (Mt 12:41; Lk 11:32) makes little sense if the people of Nineveh never actually repented due to Jonah's preaching. Unless one is willing to affirm that Jesus was wrong, it is best to say that the book of Jonah is historical.

Finally, the historical difficulties in Jonah can largely be resolved (see note at 3:1-3).

Message and Purpose God's positive attitude toward Gentiles: In chapter 1, Gentile sailors learn to revere and worship Israel's God. Their reluctance to throw Jonah overboard shows that they were concerned to follow God's ethical demands by not taking innocent human life. In chapter 3, Nineveh's repentance shows that Gentiles can be saved too. God is interested in all people, a concern that anticipates the missionary mandate of the NT.

God's grace: God was "merciful and compassionate" (4:2) toward Nineveh, thus showing that the God of the OT is a God of grace.

God's sovereignty over nature: The book of Jonah portrays the sovereign power of God over the natural world. God can hurl a storm at people (1:4), raise up a plant miraculously and as well as a worm to kill it (4:6-7), and use a great fish to swallow and save Jonah (1:17). All this shows God's control over nature.

The futility of running from God: The trouble that Jonah got into when he tried to run from God's calling is a warning to readers that running from God is futile and only invites unnecessary hardship.

Contribution to the Bible The book of Jonah shows God's gracious concern for the whole world, His power over nature, and the futility of running from Him. In addition, it foreshadows Jesus' burial and resurrection. Matthew 12:38-45 and Lk 11:24-32 compare the ministry of Jesus with that of Jonah, Jesus being the greater. Both texts see Jonah's great fish as a foreshadowing of Jesus' burial in the tomb, making Jonah a "type" of Christ. If Jonah actually died in the fish (see note at Jnh 2:2), then his resurrection further parallels the resurrection of Jesus.

Structure The book of Jonah exhibits a high degree of Hebrew literary excellence. Its style is rich and varied. It is considered by many as a masterpiece of rhetoric. There is symmetry and balance in the book, and it can be divided into two sections of two chapters each. The peak of the first discourse is marked by its poetic form, which has a higher prominence in narrative than prose. The peak in the second discourse is marked by the dialogue exchange between Jonah and God. The Lord and Jonah are indicated as the two main characters of the story by being the only ones who are named; the other characters are anonymous.

Phenomena of nature also serve in each half as props: wind, storm, sea, dry land, and fish in the first half; herd and flock, plant, worm, sun, and wind in the second half. When placed side by side, chapters 1 and 3 and chapters 2 and 4 can be seen as parallel. Finally, both chapters 1 and 3 begin with Jonah receiving a word from the Lord consisting of a call to go to Nineveh.

Timeline

Study Notes 1:1 Jonah in Hebrew means "dove." His father's name Amittai means "faithful [is Yahweh?]."

1:2 Nineveh on the east bank of the Tigris River became the Assyrian capital after 705 B.C., well after Jonah's day. Its ruins are found in the northern part of modern Iraq, opposite the city of Mosul 220 miles northwest of Baghdad. For Jonah, Nineveh was an arduous journey of over 500 miles to the northeast of Samaria. His probable route—first traveling north and then east—would have made the trip closer to 600 miles. God's holiness is offended by sin. He showed Himself judge of the world by holding these distant pagans accountable for their wickedness, though He also showed His mercy by commanding His prophet to warn them.

1:3 To flee . . . from the L ORD 's presence is to attempt the impossible since God is everywhere, though people still try. (See 4:2 for why he fled.) Joppa on the Mediterranean coast just south of modern Tel Aviv was one of Israel's few natural seaports. The location of Tarshish is uncertain. Its association with ships (1Kg 10:22) suggests it was near the sea. The "ships of Tarshish" used by King Jehoshaphat on the Red Sea were probably merchant ships of design similar to those used by sailors from Tarshish on the Mediterranean Sea. Tarshish has sometimes been identified with Paul's home of Tarsus in Cilicia or the city of Tharros on the island of Sardinia west of Italy. But the most probable identification of Tarshish is the Phoenician colony of Tartessus, located on the Guadalquivir River on the southwestern coast of Spain about 2,000 miles west of Palestine. This is about as far in the opposite direction from Nineveh that Jonah could have gone.

1:5-6 Jonah's spiritual decline is depicted in parallel with the descriptions of his response to God's call. He was told to "get up" (v. 2) to go to Nineveh, but instead he "went down to Joppa" (v. 3), "went down" to the ship (v. 3) and finally went down to the lowest part of the vessel. Eventually he will be swallowed by a fish and sink down to the foundations of the mountains at the bottom of the sea (2:6). Only then did he hit bottom and begin to go back up. His deep sleep in the midst of a storm also symbolizes his spiritual condition. It may have been a symptom of depression stemming from his willful disobedience.

1:9 Worship is literally "fear." Fear of God in the OT is the respect that a person has for God, causing him to turn from evil and obey God's commandments (Gn 22:12; Jb 1:8; 28:28; Pr 8:13). Ironically God's prophet Jonah showed no such fear by his disobedience. It is also ironic that Jonah fled to avoid preaching to Gentiles in Nineveh, but now found himself preaching to Gentiles in the ship. Yahweh means "He is [present]" and is God's personal name in the OT, ordinarily rendered in translation as Lord in small caps (as in vv. 1,3,4,10,16,17). The substitution in translation of the title Lord for the personal name Yahweh goes back to postexilic Jewish reluctance to pronounce the divine name. Neither Jonah nor these sailors had any qualms about using the term Yahweh at this time.

1:12-15 Rather than submitting to God, Jonah asked these men to kill him by throwing him overboard. Yet despite Jonah's confession of guilt, these pagan Gentiles had moral scruples about sending a man to his death and tried to row ashore instead. Only after they saw no other option and had prayed that Yahweh would not hold them accountable for taking a human life did they throw Jonah into the sea. The integrity and spiritual sensitivity of these Gentiles would have shocked Israelite readers of this book, confronting their belief that non-Hebrews were unworthy of God's mercy. Certainly this is a lesson Jonah himself needed.

1:16 When the sea calmed, these Gentile sailors then feared the LORD in the sense of revering and worshiping Him (see note at 1:9). Jonah, who was fleeing from a mission to preach to Gentiles, had unintentionally converted an entire crew of Gentile sailors.

1:17 The huge fish that swallowed Jonah was not necessarily a whale. Yarns of a sailor surviving Jonah-like in a whale have been widely repeated in recent centuries, but no account has ever been authenticated. Three days and three nights parallels Christ's resurrection on the third day (Mt 12:40).

2:2 Sheol is the realm of the dead, often the grave. The fish's stomach is metaphorically like a tomb. Jonah thought he was dead, and perhaps he literally was at some point. If so, the parallel with Christ's resurrection (Mt 12:40) is even stronger. But God was present in Sheol (You heard my voice) to receive Jonah's prayer. Indeed, God is everywhere we go (Ps 139:8).

2:3-5 Verses 3 and 5 depict Jonah's dire circumstances. He sees both the breakers and the billows as judgment tools of God. But verse 4 sounds a note of faith and hope. Though he had been banished from God's sight, he expected to look once more toward His holy temple, which means he expected he would live to pray again and perhaps even worship in the Jerusalem temple. Textual variations among Greek translations (LXX; Theodotion) make verse 4b into a question rather than a statement. For instance: "How will I look once more toward your holy temple?" The variations may have arisen because translators thought the optimism of verse 4 mixed poorly with the doom of verses 3,5. However, the contrast is a literary feature and is likely original. Neck (Hb nephesh) in verse 5 can also be rendered "life," but originally it meant "throat." The image of water up to the prophet's throat fits this context well.

2:6 Imagery for foundations of the mountains was provided by Israel's own Mount Carmel, whose base extends into the Mediterranean Sea, ending in unseen depths below. As the earth (or the Pit) permanently imprisons the dead, so Jonah thought the fish's body would trap him, but unexpectedly God was rescuing him. Both "earth" (Hb 'erets) and "pit" could refer here to the underworld as the HCSB renders 'erets in Ezk 26:20; 32:18.

2:7 Reminiscent of thanksgiving songs in the Psalms (Pss 18; 30), Jonah tells the story of answered prayer (see also Jnh 2:2).

2:8-9 Yahweh's miraculous deliverance shows that He exists, unlike pagan idols. What I have vowed refers to a promised gift to God if He should answer prayer (Nm 21:2; 1Sm 1:11). Jonah promised praise and animal sacrifice. A fellowship offering was used to worship God at the completion of a vow (Nm 6:21; 2Sm 15:7-8; Pr 7:14).

2:10 Vomited, an ignoble means of exiting the fish, perhaps symbolizes God's disgust at Jonah's prior disobedience or even his continued bad attitude, which the subsequent narrative unfolds.

3:1-3 Jonah went to Nineveh as God had commanded. Extremely large city (lit "a great city to God"; see textual footnote) may have a double meaning: great in size (where "God," Hb elohim, is used as a superlative for "extremely") and a city "important to God" even though inhabited by Gentiles. Three-day walk could refer to greater Nineveh that included the region around Nineveh proper, including modern Kuyunjik, Khorsabad, and Nimrud with a 60-mile perimeter. More likely, however, it refers to how long it took for Jonah to preach thoroughly throughout Nineveh itself, street corner by street corner. Forty often refers to a period of testing or judgment in the Bible (Lk 4:2; Heb 3:9), serving here to give Nineveh time to repent.

3:4 Jonah preached only on the first day of his three-day task (see note at 3:1-3), showing his half-hearted obedience. Demolished (Hb haphak) has a secondary meaning of "changed" which is not the sense Jonah meant, but ironically that is how the word of prophecy was actually fulfilled. Nineveh was not destroyed, but was instead changed.

3:5-8 After recounting that Nineveh repented and believed the deity whom Jonah represented (v. 5 uses the impersonal term God, not the personal name Yahweh/Lord), the text then explains that this overwhelming response was a result of a royal decree. The king led by example. Sackcloth was worn during times of mourning and repentance, usually while sitting atop ashes (Gn 37:34; 1Kg 21:27; Mt 11:21). Man or beast means even the animals fasted, bellowing miserably to heaven along with the people.

3:9 Who knows indicates that Jonah had not explicitly stated that judgment against the city could be averted by repentance. The king of Nineveh took a shot in the dark.

3:10 Prophecies of doom are often conditional warnings that can be averted through repentance (Jr 18:8-10).

4:1-2 The unexpected and overwhelming success of Jonah's preaching resulted in Nineveh's escape from calamity. However, this brought emotional calamity to the angry and self-pitying prophet, who wished he were dead. Jonah had initially fled from preaching to Nineveh because he feared that God, being excessively merciful and compassionate (see Ex 34:6-7), would find some lame excuse to forgive these pagan, warlike Gentiles. Now his fears had come true.

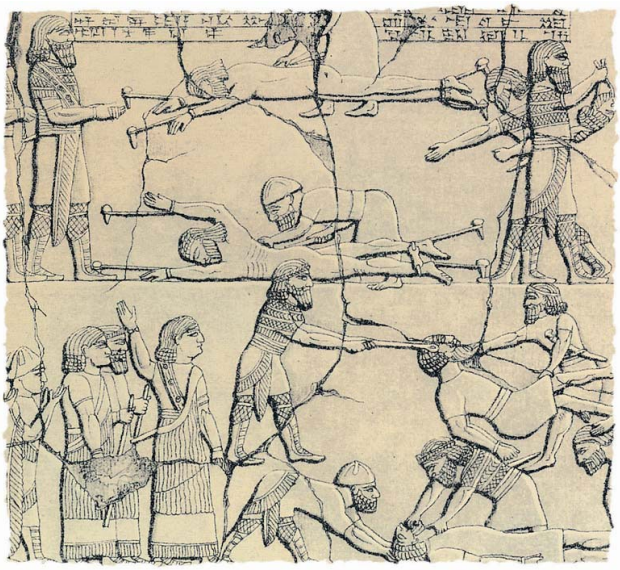
4:3-4 Take my life echoes the words of the prophet Elijah (1Kg 19:4), who despaired over the failure of his mission, just as Jonah despaired over the success of his.

4:5-8 Another factor behind Jonah's death wish was the blisteringly hot weather and the dry east wind, making him extremely uncomfortable as he sat watching to see what God would do to Nineveh. He was also upset over the withering of a plant (Hb qiqayon; perhaps a castor-oil plant or a climbing gourd) that had sprung up to give him temporary relief from the sun.

4:9-11 God used Jonah's emotional reaction to the death of the plant as an object lesson to rebuke him for being more concerned about a plant than the destruction of 120,000 people who could not distinguish between their right and their left. This probably does not mean there were 120,000 small children in Nineveh, but rather that the people themselves were immature and uninformed morally and spiritually. God took their immaturity into consideration in His judgment. As well as many animals was a final rebuke. If Jonah could not feel compassion for Gentile people, he should at least feel sorry for the hungry livestock that were bellowing their misery (see 3:7-8). The book ends without telling us whether Jonah responded positively to the Lord's closing reprimand.



A relief from the palace of Ashurbanipal at Nineveh shows Assyrian soldiers subjecting captives to a series of tortures. In spite of the ruthlessness of the Assyrians, God sent His servant Jonah to offer them mercy (4:11).

Barach usually means flee, occurring four times with malat (“escape”; 1Sm 19:12) and once, translated escape (Jdg 9:21), with synonymous nus (160x; “flee”). Barach often portrays stealthy flight, while nus regularly depicts open flight. Barach describes slaves running away (1Kg 2:39). It suggests go home (Nm 24:11) or go back (Neh 13:10) when people flee homeward. As hurry (Sg 8:14), it connotes urgent speed rather than flight.

saq Hebrew Pronunciation [SACK]
HCSB Translation sack, sackcloth Uses in Jonah 3
Uses in the OT 48
Focus passage Jonah 3:5-6,8

Saq denotes sack (6x; Gn 42:27), entering English through Greek and Latin. Saq was sackcloth (Is 15:3). The thick, rough, dark-colored material was goat hair (Is 50:3; Rv 6:12) or camel hair (Mt 3:4). It might provide blankets (2Sm 21:10). Akkadian, the Ninevite language, used the root similarly. Ninevites wore sackcloth to express repentance (Jnh 3:8), as did Israelites (Neh 9:1). Sackcloth was worn on the skin (2Kg 6:30; Jb 16:15) and involved self-humbling (1Kg 21:27-29). Mourning was the chief reason for wearing sackcloth (Gn 37:34; Jl 1:8). Ammonites (Jr 49:3) and Arameans (1Kg 20:32) wore sackcloth. Prophets called for it communally in the face of judgment (Jr 4:8). People might tear regular clothes and fast (Est 4:1,3), covering themselves with dust (4x; Jr 6:26) or ashes (7x; Jnh 3:6), perhaps shaving or cutting themselves (Jr 48:37). Sackcloth could signal protest (Est 4:1).

ra‘ah Hebrew Pronunciation [rah AH]
HCSB Translation evil, disaster, trouble Uses in Jonah 9
Uses in the OT 354
Focus passage Jonah 4:1-2,6

Feminine ra‘ah, related to ra‘a‘ (be evil), signifies evil (Jr 2:13), disaster (Dt 31:29), or trouble (Neh 2:17). Masculine ra‘, either as noun or adjective (299x), has similar meanings. Feminine forms of adjectival ra‘ match ra‘ah, so it is hard to differentiate them. Ra‘ah more often means disaster; ra‘ more frequently concerns physical maladies. These words involve negatives, with the sense clarified by context.

Micah

1 The word of the LORD that came [a] to Micah [b] the Moreshite [c] — what he saw regarding Samaria and Jerusalem in the days of Jotham, [d] Ahaz, [e] and Hezekiah, [f] kings of Judah.

Coming Judgment on Israel

2 Listen, all you peoples; [g] pay attention, earth [A] and everyone in it! [h]
The Lord GOD will be a witness against you, [i] the Lord, from His holy temple. [j] 3 Look, the LORD is leaving His place [k]
and coming down to trample
the heights [B] of the earth. [l] 4 The mountains will melt beneath Him, and the valleys will split apart,
like wax near a fire, [m]
like water cascading down a mountainside.
5 All this will happen because of Jacob's rebellion and the sins of the house of Israel.
What is the rebellion of Jacob?
Isn't it Samaria? [n]
And what is the •high place of Judah? [o]
Isn't it Jerusalem?
6 Therefore, I will make Samaria
a heap of ruins [p] in the countryside,
a planting area [q] for a vineyard.
I will roll her stones [r] into the valley and expose her foundations. [s] 7 All her carved images will be smashed [t] to pieces;
all her wages [u] will be burned in the fire,
and I will destroy all her idols.
Since she collected the wages of a prostitute, [v]
they will be used again for a prostitute.

Micah's Lament

8 Because of this I will lament and wail;
I will walk barefoot and naked. [w]
I will howl like the jackals [x]
and mourn like ostriches. [C] 9 For her wound is incurable [y]

and has reached even Judah; [z]
it has approached the gate of my people, [a] as far as Jerusalem.

10 Don’t announce it in Gath, [b]
don’t weep at all.
Roll in the dust in Beth-leaphrah.
11 Depart in shameful nakedness, [c]
you residents of Shaphir;
the residents of Zaanan [d] will not come out.
Beth-ezel is lamenting;
its support [D] is taken from you.
12 Though the residents of Maroth anxiously wait for something good, [e] disaster has come from the LORD [f]
to the gate of Jerusalem.
13 Harness the horses to the chariot,
you residents of Lachish. [g]
This was the beginning of sin for Daughter •Zion , because Israel’s acts of rebellion [h] can be traced to you.
14 Therefore, send farewell gifts [i] to Moresheth-gath;
the houses of Achzib [j] are a deception [k]
to the kings of Israel.
15 I will again bring a conqueror against you who live in Mareshah. [l]
The nobility [E] of Israel will come to Adullam. [m] 16 Shave yourselves bald and cut off your hair [n]
in sorrow for your precious children;
make yourselves as bald as an eagle,
for they have been taken from you into exile. [o]

Oppressors Judged

2 Woe to those who dream up wickedness and prepare evil plans [a] on their beds!
At morning light [b] they accomplish it because the power is in their hands. [c] 2 They covet fields [d] and seize them; [e]
they also take houses.
They deprive a man of his home, [f]
a person of his inheritance. [g]

3 Therefore, the LORD says:
I am now planning [h] a disaster against this nation; [i]
you cannot free your necks from it. [j]
Then you will not walk so proudly [k]
because it will be an evil time. [l]
4 In that day one will take up [m] a taunt against you, and lament mournfully, [n] saying,
"We are totally ruined! [o]
He measures out the allotted land of my people.
How He removes it from me!
He allots our fields [p] to traitors."
5 Therefore, there will be no one in the assembly of the LORD to divide the land by casting lots. [A, q]

God's Word Rejected

6 "Quit your preaching," [r] they [s] preach.
"They should not preach these things; [t] shame will not overtake us." [u, v] 7 House of Jacob, should it be asked,
"Is the Spirit of the LORD impatient? [w] Are these the things He does? "
Don't My words bring good [x]
to the one who walks uprightly? [y] 8 But recently My people have risen up like an enemy: [z]

You strip off the splendid robe [a] from those who are passing through confidently, [b]
like those returning from war.
9 You force [c] the women of My people out of their comfortable homes, and you take My blessing [d, e]
from their children forever.
10 Get up and leave,
for this is not your place of rest, [f]
because defilement [g] brings destruction —
a grievous destruction! [h] 11 If a man of wind [B] comes and invents lies: [i] “I will preach to you about wine and beer,” [j]
he would be just the preacher for this people! [k]

The Remnant Regathered

12 I will indeed gather [l] all of you, Jacob;
I will collect the remnant of Israel. [m]
I will bring them together like sheep in a pen, like a flock in the middle of its fold.
It will be noisy with people. [n]
13 One who breaks open the way will advance before them;
they will break out, pass through the gate,
and leave by it.
Their King will pass through before them,
the LORD as their leader.

Unjust Leaders Judged

3 Then I said, “Now listen, [a] leaders of Jacob,
you rulers of the house of Israel.
Aren’t you supposed to know what is just? [b]
2 You hate good and love evil.
You tear off people’s skin [c]
and strip their flesh from their bones.
3 You eat the flesh [d] of my people after you strip their skin from them and break their bones.
You chop them up [e]
like flesh for the cooking pot,
like meat in a cauldron.”
4 Then they will cry out [f] to the LORD,
but He will not answer them.
He will hide His face from them at that time [g] because of the crimes they have committed.

False Prophets Judged

5 This is what the LORD says
concerning the prophets who lead my people astray, [h]
who proclaim [i] peace
when they have food to sink their teeth into but declare war against the one who puts nothing in their mouths.
6 Therefore, it will be night [j] for you — without visions;
it will grow dark for you —
without •divination . [k]
The sun will set [l] on these prophets, and the daylight will turn black over them.
7 Then the seers will be ashamed [m] and the diviners disappointed. [n]
They will all cover their mouths [A, o]
because there will be no answer from God. [p]

8 As for me, however, I am filled with power [q]
by the Spirit of the LORD,
with justice and courage, to proclaim to Jacob his rebellion and to Israel his sin. [r]

Zion's Destruction

9 Listen to this, leaders of the house of Jacob, [s]
you rulers of the house of Israel,
who abhor justice [t]
and pervert everything that is right, 10 who build •Zion with bloodshed [u]
and Jerusalem with injustice.
11 Her leaders issue rulings for a bribe, [v]
her priests teach for payment, [w]
and her prophets practice divination for money.
Yet they lean on the LORD, saying,

“Isn’t the LORD [x] among us?
No disaster will overtake us.”
12 Therefore, because of you,
Zion will be plowed like a field,
Jerusalem will become ruins, [y]
and the hill of the temple mount [z] will be a thicket. [a]

The LORD's Rule from Restored Zion

4 In the last days [a]
the mountain of the LORD*'s house* [b] will be established at the top of the mountains and will be raised above the hills.
Peoples will stream to it, [c]
2 and many nations will come and say, [d]
"Come, let us go up to the mountain of the LORD*,* [e]
to the house of the God of Jacob.
He will teach us about His ways [f]
so we may walk in His paths."
For instruction will go out of •Zion [g]
and the word of the LORD from Jerusalem.
3 He will settle disputes among many peoples [h] and provide arbitration for strong nations that are far away.
They will beat their swords into plows,
and their spears into pruning knives.
Nation will not take up the sword against nation,
and they will never again train for war.
4 But each man will sit under his grapevine [i]
and under his fig tree with no one to frighten him. [j]
For the mouth of the LORD [k] of •Hosts has promised this.
5 Though all the peoples each walk in the name of their gods, [l]
we will walk [m] in the name of •Yahweh our God
forever and ever. [n]

6 On that day —
I will assemble the lame this is the LORD's declaration — and gather the scattered, [o]
those I have injured.
7 I will make the lame into a remnant, [p]
those far removed into a strong nation.
Then the LORD will rule over them [q] in Mount Zion

from this time on and forever.
8 And you, watchtower for the flock, [r] fortified hill [A] of Daughter Zion,
the former rule [s] will come to you,
sovereignty will come to Daughter Jerusalem.

From Exile to Victory

9 Now, why are you shouting loudly? [t]
Is there no king with you?
Has your counselor perished [u]
so that anguish grips you like a woman in labor?
10 Writhe and cry out, [B, v] Daughter Zion,
like a woman in labor,
for now you will leave the city [w]
and camp in the open fields.
You will go to Babylon;
there you will be rescued; [x]
there the LORD will redeem you [y]
from the power of your enemies!
11 Many nations have now assembled against you; [z]
they say, “Let her be defiled, and let us feast our eyes on Zion.”
12 But they do not know the LORD’s intentions [a] or understand His plan, that He has gathered them
like sheaves to the threshing floor.
13 Rise and thresh, [b] Daughter Zion, for I will make your horns iron and your hooves bronze,
so you can crush many peoples. [c]
Then you [d] will •set apart their plunder [e]
to the LORD for destruction, their wealth to the Lord of all the earth.

Chapter 5 [a] From Defeated Ruler to Conquering King

[1]Now, daughter who is under attack, you slash yourself in grief;
a siege is set against us!
They are striking the judge [b] of Israel
on the cheek with a rod.
[2] [c] Bethlehem Ephrathah, [d]
you are small among the clans of Judah;
One will come from you [e]
to be ruler over Israel for Me. [f]
His origin [A] is from antiquity, [g]
from eternity. [B]
[3] Therefore, He will abandon them [h] until the time when she who is in labor [i] has given birth;
then the rest of His brothers [j] will return to the people of Israel. [k] [4] He will stand and shepherd them [l] in the strength of •Yahweh ,
in the majestic name of Yahweh His God.
They will live securely,
for then His greatness will extend to the ends of the earth. [m]
[5] He will be their peace. [n]
When Assyria invades our land, [o]
when it marches against our fortresses, we will raise against it seven shepherds,
even eight leaders of men.
[6] They will shepherd [p] the land of Assyria with the sword, the land of Nimrod [q] with a drawn blade. [r]
So He will rescue us [s] from Assyria
when it invades our land,
when it marches against our territory.

The Glorious and Purified Remnant

7 Then the remnant of Jacob [t]
will be among many peoples like dew from the LORD, [u] like showers on the grass, [v]
which do not wait for anyone or linger for •mankind .
8 Then the remnant of Jacob will be among the nations, among many peoples, like a lion among animals of the forest, [w]
like a young lion among flocks of sheep, which tramples [x] and tears [y] as it passes through,
and there is no one to rescue them. [z]
9 Your hand will be lifted up against your adversaries, [a] and all your enemies will be destroyed.

10 In that day —
I will remove your horses from you [b] this is the LORD's declaration — and wreck your chariots.
11 I will remove the cities of your land [c]
and tear down all your fortresses. [d] 12 I will remove sorceries from your hands, [e]
and you will not have any more fortune-tellers.
13 I will remove your carved images [f]
and sacred pillars from you so that you will not bow down again to the work of your hands.
14 I will pull up the •Asherah poles [g] from among you [h] and demolish your cities. C 15 I will take vengeance in anger and wrath [i] against the nations that have not obeyed Me.

God’s Lawsuit against Judah

6 Now listen to what the LORD is saying:
Rise, plead your case before the mountains,
and let the hills hear your voice.
2 Listen to the LORD's lawsuit, [a] you mountains and enduring foundations of the earth, [b] because the LORD has a case against His people, [c] and He will argue it against Israel.
3 My people, [d] what have I done to you, [e] or how have I wearied you? [f] Testify against Me!
4 Indeed, I brought you up [g] from the land of Egypt and redeemed you [h] from that place of slavery. [i]
I sent Moses, [j] Aaron, and Miriam [k] ahead of you.
5 My people,
remember what Balak king of Moab [l] proposed,
what Balaam son of Beor answered him, [m] and what happened from the Acacia Grove [A, n] to Gilgal [o] so that you may acknowledge the LORD's righteous acts. [p]

6 What should I bring before the LORD [q]
when I come to bow before God on high?
Should I come before Him with •burnt offerings, [r]
with year-old calves?
7 Would the LORD be pleased with thousands of rams [s] or with ten thousand streams of oil?
Should I give my firstborn for my transgression, [t]
the child of my body for my own sin?

8 Mankind, He has told you what is good [u]
and what it is the LORD requires of you: [v] to act justly, [w]
to love faithfulness, [x]
and to walk humbly with your God. [y]

Verdict of Judgment

9 The voice of •Yahweh calls out to the city [z]
(and it is wise to •fear Your name):
“Pay attention to the rod and the One who ordained it. [B] 10 Are there still [C] the treasures of wickedness [a] and the accursed short measure [b] in the house of the wicked?
11 Can I excuse wicked scales or bags of deceptive weights? [c] 12 For the wealthy of the city are full of violence, [d] and its residents speak lies; [e]
the tongues in their mouths are deceitful. [f]

13 “As a result, I have begun to strike you severely, [g, h] bringing desolation because of your sins. [i] 14 You will eat but not be satisfied, [j] for there will be hunger within you.
What you acquire, you cannot save, [k]
and what you do save,
I will give to the sword. [D]
15 You will sow but not reap; [l]
you will press olives
but not anoint yourself with oil;
and you will tread grapes
but not drink the wine. [m] 16 The statutes of Omri and all the practices of Ahab’s house have been observed;
you have followed their policies. [n]
Therefore, I will make you a desolate place [o]
and the city’s [E] residents an object of contempt; [F, p]
you will bear the scorn of My people.” [q, r]

Israel's Moral Decline

7 How sad for me!
For I am like one who — when the summer fruit has been gathered after the gleaning of the grape harvest [a] — finds no grape cluster to eat,
no early fig, which I crave. [b] 2 Godly people have vanished from the land; [c]
there is no one upright among the people. [d]
All of them wait in ambush to shed blood; [e]
they hunt each other with a net. [f]
3 Both hands are good [g] at accomplishing evil:
the official and the judge demand a bribe; [h]
when the powerful man communicates his evil desire,
they plot it together.
4 The best of them is like a brier; [i] the most upright is worse than a hedge of thorns. [j]
The day of your watchmen,
the day of your punishment, is coming; [k]
at this time their panic is here. [l]
5 Do not rely on a friend; [m]
don't trust in a close companion.
Seal your mouth
from the woman who lies in your arms.
6 Surely a son considers his father a fool, [n]
a daughter opposes her mother, and a daughter-in-law is against her mother-in-law;
a man's enemies are the men of his own household.
7 But I will look to the LORD; [o]
I will wait for the God of my salvation. [p]
My God will hear me. [q]

Zion's Vindication

8 Do not rejoice over me, [r] my enemy!
Though I have fallen, I will stand up; [s]
though I sit in darkness,
the LORD will be my light. [t]

9 Because I have sinned against Him,
I must endure the LORD's rage until He argues my case [u]
and establishes justice for me. [v]
He will bring me into the light; [w]
I will see His salvation. [A, x]
10 Then my enemy will see,
and she will be covered with shame,
the one who said to me,
"Where is the LORD your God? " [y]
My eyes will look at her in triumph;
at that time she will be trampled like mud in the streets. [z]

11 A day will come for rebuilding your walls; [a] on that day your boundary will be extended. [b] 12 On that day people will come to you [c]
from Assyria and the cities of Egypt, even from Egypt to the Euphrates River and from sea to sea
and mountain to mountain.
13 Then the earth will become a wasteland [d]
because of its inhabitants and as a result of their actions. [e]

Micah's Prayer Answered

14 Shepherd Your people [f] with Your staff, [g]
the flock that is Your possession.
They live alone [h] in a woodland surrounded by pastures.
Let them graze in Bashan and Gilead [i]
as in ancient times. [j]

15 I will perform miracles for them [k] as in the days of your exodus from the land of Egypt. [l] 16 Nations will see and be ashamed of [B] all their power.

They will put their hands over their mouths, [m]
and their ears will become deaf.
17 They will lick the dust like a snake; [n]
they will come trembling out of their hiding places [o]
like reptiles slithering on the ground. [p]
They will tremble in the presence of •Yahweh our God; [q]
they will stand in awe of You.

18 Who is a God like You, [r] removing iniquity and passing over rebellion [s]
for the remnant of His inheritance? [t] He does not hold on to His anger forever, [u]
because He delights in faithful love. [v] 19 He will again have compassion on us;
He will vanquish our iniquities. [w]
You will cast all our [x] sins into the depths of the sea. [y] 20 You will show loyalty to Jacob [z]
and faithful love to Abraham, as You swore to our fathers [a]
from days long ago.

Introduction

"Because of this I will lament and wail; I will walk barefoot and naked. I will howl like the jackals and mourn like ostriches. For her wound is incurable and has reached even Judah" (1:8-9).

Micah's name "Who is like Yahweh?" found at the beginning of the book (1:1; an abbreviation of Micaiah, cp. Jr 26:18) and the question Micah asked at the book's end, "Who is a God like You?" (Mc 7:18), sum up the book's overall message: People should ponder the person, acts, and character of the incomparable "Lord of all the earth" (4:13). He is incomparable in His holiness, power, and love. All people answer to this sovereign God for their worship and the kind of lives they lead. The rebellious and sinful will meet His judgment (1:5), but those who earnestly watch and wait for Him will find His listening ear (7:7).

Circumstances of Writing Author: Micah's hometown of Moresheth-gath (1:1,14) in the lowlands of Judah was about 25 miles southwest of Jerusalem. The fact that his hometown is mentioned probably means that Micah ministered elsewhere, including Jerusalem, and since no genealogy is given we can probably assume that his family was not prominent. Though from the country, Micah was no bumpkin. He was a skilled orator, a master of metaphors with a genius for wordplay and blunt, vivid imagery. Few prophets saw the future more clearly. Micah prophesied the fall of Samaria (1:5-9), Jerusalem's destruction

(1:1-16; 3:12), the Babylonian captivity and return from exile (4:6-10), as well as the birth of God's future Davidic ruler in Bethlehem (5:2).

Micah's ministry probably began late in Jotham's reign and ended early in Hezekiah's, dating between 730 and 690 B.C. His reference to the future judgment of Samaria (1:6) shows that his ministry began some time before 722 B.C. As such, Micah's ministry overlapped Isaiah's. The elders in Jeremiah's day remembered Micah's prophecy as having spurred Hezekiah's religious reform (Jr 26:17-19).

Background: Both Israel and Judah experienced affluence and material prosperity in the late eighth century B.C. In the south, King Uzziah's military victories brought wealth for some. A wealthy merchant class developed, and many poorer farmers found themselves at the mercy of government-supported businessmen. As business dealings became more corrupt, God's prophets spoke to the nation, confronting the ill-gotten wealth and accompanying godlessness. Amos and Hosea prophesied in the northern kingdom of Israel, and Isaiah and Micah prophesied in Judah to the south.

Judah's commercial and secular culture replaced God's covenant ideal. The rich became wealthy at the expense of the poor. Micah saw this as an indication of a rotten social fabric and crumbling national foundations. God's people were to be different socially and economically. They were stewards of God's land (Lv 25:23) that He had allotted to each family (Jos 13-19). God's law protected family property rights (Lv 25:1-55) and provided for the poor and less fortunate (Dt 14:28-29; 15:7-11). But growing affluence in Micah's day led to increasing callousness toward the weak (Mc 2:1-2) and a blatant disregard for God's foundational laws (6:10-12). Judges and lawmakers became involved in conspiracy, bribery, and other corruption (3:1-3,9-11; 7:3). Religious leaders were concerned more about making money than teaching God's Word (3:11). The wealthy learned to separate their worship from everyday practice.

At this time the ancient Near East experienced an international power shift. Assyria was ascending, becoming one of the most evil, bloodthirsty, manipulative, and arrogant empires of the ancient world. Four Assyrian kings made military inroads into Palestine during Micah's ministry, taking Samaria in 722 B.C. and making Israel an Assyrian province. In 701 B.C. Sennacherib took 46 Judean towns and villages and besieged Jerusalem. King Hezekiah had allied with Egypt and Babylon against Assyria, for which both Micah and Isaiah urged him to repent. God miraculously spared Jerusalem (2Kg 19:35-36; 2Ch 32:22-23; Is 37:36-37), and according to Micah the Jerusalem siege was both an act of God's judgment and an occasion for God's deliverance.

Judah never learned its lesson. The people wavered between faith and apostasy and suffered many crises. Micah preached to people who had long since abandoned covenant loyalty, including the king, the royal court, judges, and religious leaders. As the rulers proved increasingly unfaithful, Micah prophesied Judah's destruction and exile by the Babylonians (586 B.C.). Beyond that, however, he saw a future restoration for a remnant of the people (539 B.C.).

Message and Purpose Micah sought "to proclaim to Jacob his rebellion and to Israel his sin" (3:8). He pronounced God's judgment to call His people to repentance. Injustice was rampant (2:1-2; 3:1-3,9-11; 6:10-11), thus they would suffer destruction and exile (1:10-16), silence from God (3:6-7), and frustration (6:13-16). But Micah balanced his prophecy with hope of a remnant spared through God's judgment and a glorious future restoration (2:12-13; 4:1-5; 5:5-9; 7:8-20).

Contribution to the Bible Micah's holy and just God demands holiness and justice from all people. This is the "good" He requires (6:8). The people had grown content with going through the religious motions while practicing very little genuine spiritual devotion. Even the religious leaders chose to speak popular messages in order to support their standard of living. Micah preached that true religion comes from a heart tuned to God, resulting in godly living. As such, religion and ethics are inseparable. People who refuse to repent will face His judgment, but the faithful will find His salvation and be led by God's King, who would usher in His peace and prosperity.

Structure Structured thematically as a balanced chiasm, the book highlights the central and final sections. Each matching section reflects on the other. This literary structure emphasizes Micah's main themes of Judah's social sins, the moral failure of its leadership, and the establishment of God's kingship over the land.

Outline I. Coming Defeat and Destruction (1:1-16) A. God's condemnation of His people (1:1-7) B. Micah's lament (1:8-16) II. Corruption of the People (2:1-13) A. Judgment on greedy oppressors (2:1-5) B. Rejection of God's word

(2:6-11) C. Hope after the judgment (2:12-13) III. Corruption of the Leaders (3:1-12) A. Unjust rulers and judges (3:1-4) B. False prophets and the true prophet (3:5-8) C. Corrupt leaders and Jerusalem's fall (3:9-12) IV. Hope for a Gl orious Future Restoration (4:1-5:15) A. The Lord's rule over the nations (4:1-5) B. The remnant and the Lord's rule (4:6-10) C. The Lord's reversal of the present situation (4:11-5:1) D. The remnant and the Lord's ruler (5:2-9) E. The Lord's rule over the nations (5:10-15) V. Corruption of the City and Its Leaders (6:1-16) A. God's lawsuit against His people (6:1-8) B. Accusations against Jerusalem (6:9-12) C. God's verdict of judgment (6:13-16) VI. Corruption of the People (7:1-7) A. Lament over a decadent society (7:1-6) B. Waiting in hope (7:7) VII. Future Reversal of Defeat and Destruction (7:8-20) A. God's anger over sin and His salvation (7:8-10) B. An exodus from exile (7:11-17) C. God's forgiveness of sin and His salvation (7:18-20)

Timeline

Study Notes 1:1 Samaria and Jerusalem, the capitals of the northern and southern kingdoms, are representative of the entire nations of Israel and Judah respectively.

1:2-5 The Lord was coming down to judge the wickedness of Israel and Judah. Rebellion or "revolt" (Hb pesha') denotes a willful, criminal breaking of a covenant (1Kg 12:19; Jr 2:29). Sins (Hb chattoth) are literally deviations from a target (Jdg 20:16; Pr 19:2), God's holiness in this case. Samaria's idolatry and immorality were so deep that God marked her for destruction (Mc 1:6-7). Micah compared worship in Jerusalem with pagan worship in the north. Hezekiah repented through Micah's preaching (Jr 26:19) and removed every high place, stone altar, and pagan Asherah pole (2Kg 18:1-6).

1:6-7 Assyria captured Samaria in 722 B.C. (2Kg 17:3-6). Israel's apostasy included participating in pagan cultic prostitution, which involved paying wages to prostitutes; Assyrian troops would pillage Samaria, steal these wages, and use the money yet again on prostitutes. Israel's sins were so bad that even the pagan armies that conquered her would do with her monies nothing worse than she herself had done.

1:8-16 This section declares that sinful Judah will also face God's wrath. Micah grieved over the towns of Judah facing destruction, even his hometown (v. 14). Sennacherib of Assyria marched through Judah to Jerusalem in 701 B.C. (Is 10:28-32). He captured at least 46 Judean towns in this campaign but failed to take Jerusalem. Using vivid wordplay to evoke dread, Micah mentioned towns near his home to arouse the people from complacency and bring them to repent of their sin, perhaps preventing the upcoming judgment. Most astounding was the fact that behind this destruction would be the Lord Himself (Mc 1:12).

1:10-15 David lamented Don't announce it in Gath when Saul and Jonathan died in battle; for otherwise he knew the Philistines would gloat (2Sm 1:20). In the same spirit, Micah did not want the Assyrians to gloat in their success. Beth-leaphrah (lit "house of dust") would roll in the dust as a sign of humiliating defeat (Gn 3:14; Ps 44:25). Those living in Shaphir (lit "pleasant") would have the unpleasant experience of being stripped naked and led into exile. Neighboring Zaanan (wordplay with Hb yatsa'; "to go out") would not go out to help, and Beth-ezel (lit "house of taking away") would remove its support.

Maroth (sounds like Hb mara'; meaning "bitter") wanted something sweet but would instead face the Lord's disaster. This trouble would approach the gate of Jerusalem but would not enter it. Lachish, a major fortification and military garrison (2Ch 11:9), would need riding steeds (Hb rekesh; Est 8:10; cp. Is 2:7; Mc 5:10) to power chariots in a fast getaway. Reliance on military might was the beginning of sin leading to acts of rebellion among God's people (Is 30:15-17). Like a father giving away his betrothed daughter, Judah would have to give away Moresheth-gath (sounds like Hb meorashah; meaning "betrothed") to Assyria. Though it promised help, Achzib (lit "deception") would not come through. Mareshah (sounds like Hb hayyoresh; meaning "the conqueror") would be conquered. Israel's leaders would flee to Adullam to hide like David had done (1Sm 22:1; 2Sm 23:13).

2:1-13 Rich and powerful landlords had destroyed the Israelite community through their greed. According to Micah's declaration in this section, they believed that God's land (Lv 25:23) belonged to anyone with the power to take it.

2:1-5 Micah pronounced a "woe oracle" against wealthy men who devised wicked schemes to seize houses and lands from the weak. Their own lands would be seized by the Assyrians. Their covetousness led them to seize . . . take, and deprive people of their rightful inheritance (Gn 31:14; Lv 25:23-34; 1Kg 21:4). God's law prohibited such acts, even in cases where it was deemed legal (Lv 19:13). Thus the Lord was planning a disaster against this corrupt nation. With the exile God would distribute their land to other wicked people, and no one would be left to divide the land by casting lots, as in the time of Joshua (Jos 14:2; 18:8,10).

2:6-7 Popular false prophets rejected Micah's message of God's judgment. They told him to quit your preaching, because shame will not overtake us. Focusing only on God's love and patience, they lost sight of God's holiness and judgment (Ex 34:6-7). God responded that His word brings blessing to the one who walks uprightly, but not to those who are complacent in their sin.

2:8-11 Greedy oppressors were an enemy of the people, attacking innocent passersby, evicting women from their homes, and taking from them God's material blessing. God ordered these oppressors to get up and leave, a reference to the exile. With intense sarcasm Micah said the people deserved the false prophecy they received—lies of an easy life of wine and beer from God. They wanted a religion that satisfied their self-indulgence, not one that demanded righteousness and holiness.

2:12-13 False prophets preached that God's judgment would not fall, but Micah promised salvation beyond the judgment for a righteous remnant. God would gather them like a good shepherd (Is 40:11). Their King . . . the LORD Himself would lead them from exile and take them home (Ex 14:29-31; Dt 1:30-33; Is 63:9).

3:1-12 In this chapter Micah declared that corrupt rulers, prophets, and priests plagued God's people. Political and judicial leaders perverted justice, and the spiritual leaders perverted God's word.

3:1-4 Leaders should be just, putting things into a rightful state and restoring (Hb) shalom, or "wholeness." Instead, Micah saw rulers who hated good and loved evil. He described their sin in cannibalistic terms (You eat the flesh of my people), for such is the impact of false teaching about God. Because they offered no justice to others, they would find no solace in the Lord, who would hide His face from them (see Dt 31:17).

3:5-7 False prophets preached peace to those who supported them and war to those who did not (Jr 23:9-32; 28:1-17; Ezk 13:1-9; Zph 3:4). God would no longer speak to them in visions or otherwise. Having no word from the Lord, they would lose their position of honor and be ashamed.

3:8 But God had left a faithful witness distinctly different from the false prophets. Empowered by the Spirit of the LORD, Micah had a powerful voice of justice (see Is 58:1-2). He preached about rebellion and sin (cp. 1:5,13), dealing with issues that would not be resolved until God's people confessed and abandoned their sin.

3:9-11 The corrupt leaders were known to abhor justice and pervert everything that is right. They were guilty of bloodshed and injustice, influenced by a bribe . . . payment, and money. Still they trusted in God's constant presence and blessing. Such false faith misinterpreted God's patience and grace as His approval of their actions. They saw Jerusalem and the temple as signs of an irreversible right standing with God, overlooking their responsibility for holiness (1Kg 6:12-13; 9:6-8; see note at Jr 7:4).

3:12 The Lord cannot look with favor upon sin (Hab 1:13), so the people faced God's judgment. Jerusalem would fall and the temple mount would be destroyed much like Samaria (1:5-7). Micah's sermon spurred King Hezekiah's reform (Jr 26:17-19; cp. 2Kg 18:1-6; 2Ch 29:1-31:21) and helped save Jeremiah's life a century later (Jr 26:7-19).

4:1-5:15 This central section portrays God establishing Himself as the true ruler over His people and all nations. He would replace Israel's wicked rulers with His own ruler, who would bring God's reign and peace to the world (5:4-5a).

4:1-4 This oracle (also in Is 2:1-4) refers to the last days when God's kingdom will be established. The temple mount, representing God's dwelling on earth, though previously destroyed (Mc 3:12), would be established at the top of the mountains and God would exalt Himself among the nations (Ps 46:10). Many peoples will be drawn to Him saying, Come, let us go up to the mountain of the LORD. They will want to learn His ways, and they will be changed by the truth of His instruction (Hb torah). God Himself will bring peace between peoples and nations, causing bloodshed to end (3:10) and instruments of death to be remade into implements promoting life. Nations will never again train for war. Peace and security are certain because the mouth of the LORD of Hosts has promised this.

4:5 Though outnumbered by unbelievers, faithful worshipers promised to walk in the name of Yahweh our God forever. Looking in hope, they would always follow His leadership, trusting Him to work out His plan in history.

4:6-8 Though injured by God's judgment, God would also gather His lame and scattered people once more (see note at 2:12-13). From this godly remnant He would build a strong nation. Thus God's people could expect to suffer before being redeemed. He will rule over them . . . forever. The greatness of the Davidic empire in the past would return once more to Migdal-eder (watchtower for the flock), a location near Bethlehem (Gn 35:19-21).

4:9-10 But first (now) the people must face God's judgment. Zion's inhabitants were shouting loudly and in anguish much like a woman in labor before their enemies. They had forgotten the Lord, their king and counselor who would not abandon His people in their time of need. They would leave the city of Jerusalem, camp in the open fields on their way to exile, and go to Babylon. But God would not forget them, for they would be rescued and the Lord's power would redeem them.

4:11-5:1 Judah's oppressors did not know God's ultimate wisdom or understand the purpose of His plan. The Lord had actually gathered these oppressors to be threshed like sheaves of grain. His sovereign power will make His weak and frail people into a mighty army who will rise and thresh God's enemies and glorify the Lord of all the earth. But until that glorious day of deliverance, Jerusalem would suffer attack and siege and her ruler would be utterly humiliated. God always has a purpose for the seemingly random, difficult events of life (Gn 50:20; Rm 8:28). The Lord of all the earth never loses control and can always bring good from evil.

5:2-5a God would raise up another ruler from David's hometown of Bethlehem Ephrathah (Ru 4:11) who would be His servant (for Me; cp. 1Sm 16:1). He would originate from antiquity (lit "from days long ago") and "ancient times," probably a reference to David's time (Neh 12:46; Am 9:11). God had not forgotten His promise of granting an eternal kingship to David (2Sm 7:4-17). This coming Davidic ruler would appear when she who is in labor has given birth. Varying interpretations of this woman include: (1) the mother of Messiah (i.e., Mary), (2) Bethlehem, the birthplace of Messiah, (3) a righteous remnant bringing forth salvation, and (4) a historical reference to the upcoming exile (4:10). The exiles would go forth as from the womb into captivity and return once more (v. 3). The ruler will shepherd His people like His ancestor David (2Sm 5:2; 7:7), serving with the authority and strength of Yahweh. His people will live securely in His kingdom that will extend to the ends of the earth (see Ps 2:8; 72:8). He would bring God's "wholeness" or peace (Hb shalom) with His righteous reign (Is 9:6).

5:5b-9 People confident in their own strength believed that they could raise up for themselves numerous leaders against their enemies, even ruling over Assyria and Nimrod, or Babylon. Micah asserted that only He (God's ruler) will rescue us from Assyria, not any human leaders. God would make the faithful remnant . . . like dew and rain showers, which are God-caused phenomena that humans cannot control (Jdg 6:36-40; Jb 38:28). People must not rely on human strength and initiative for their future but must instead trust in God's power and wait for Him to act. He can make a feeble remnant become like a young lion to execute judgment on their enemies.

5:10-15 God revealed how He would bring about eschatological peace. He would purge His people of anything that hindered their relationship with Him, such as reliance on military might (vv. 10-11), divination (v. 12), and idolatry (vv. 13-14), judging any nation that refused to submit to His rule (v. 15). Objects of military strength hampered their faith. God would remove these hindrances, causing His people to rely on Him alone (Ps 20:7). Sorceries . . . fortune-tellers, and idolatrous worship were spiritual hindrances (Is 8:19-20). The people needed purification by God. All people (including Israel) must submit to Him or face His anger and wrath as the holy and sovereign ruler.

6:1-16 In this chapter Micah sealed God's indictment with a covenant lawsuit. He announced the case (vv. 1-2), defended God's benevolent actions (vv. 3-5), heard a response from the people (vv. 6-7), reported the basis for God's judgment (v. 8), brought specific accusations (vv. 9-12), and pronounced God's verdict and punishment (vv. 13-16).

6:1-5 Micah was to plead God's case, calling the mountains and hills as witnesses as he brought serious charges of covenant unfaithfulness against the people (v. 1). God reminded them of His righteous acts toward them in the past. He rescued them from Egypt, gave them trustworthy leaders such as Moses and Joshua, foiled the schemes of the enemy, and miraculously led them across the Jordan River. The people were to remember and acknowledge His righteous acts.

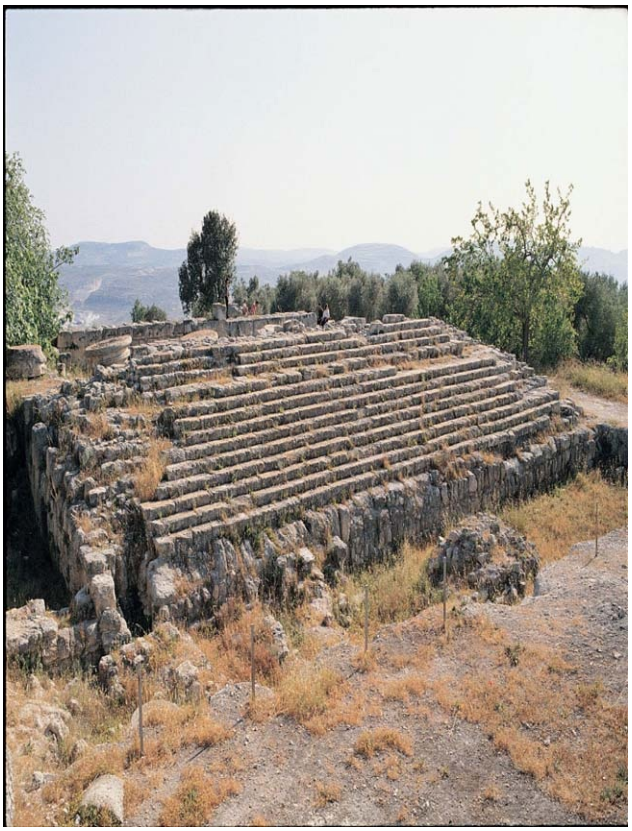
6:6-7 The people complained that God's demands were unreasonable. Even to bring offerings, sacrifices, or their firstborn son would not satisfy God's requirements.

6:8 The people already knew the good things that God required (see Ps 14:1,3; 37:3). God's interest was not in the offering but the offerer. A person's character and behavior mattered more to God than any gift they might bring. People were to act justly under God's standards. They were to love faithfulness, treating one another with love and mercy. They were to walk humbly with God as their constant companion (Gn 6:9), conforming their lives to His will.

6:9-12 The leaders of Jerusalem practiced violence and social injustice. They cheated people in their trade (Am 8:4-5). The wealthy and powerful abused the weak through violence and practiced treachery through lies and deceit.

6:13-16 God's verdict of judgment for sins is certain. The Lord Himself would frustrate all of their best efforts. Because they had followed the example of the wicked and idolatrous kings Omri and Ahab (see 1Kg 16:25-33), God would make Jerusalem a desolate place and its inhabitants an object of contempt. Ahab had killed the Lord's prophets (1Kg 18:4) and stolen Naboth's family inheritance through greed, lying, and murder (1Kg 21:1-16).



Stairs up to Ahab's palace at Samaria (6:16) 7:1-6 As Micah's society disintegrated he responded with tears. Like a field already harvested, Micah found no fruit left in his ministry. No godly or upright people were left in the land, and the moral fabric of society was decayed. He saw bloodshed, evil, bribes, and wicked plots. It was a time of crisis and panic. Homes and family relationships had disintegrated to the point that no man could trust a friend or even his wife. Children dishonored and rebelled against their parents, making family members their enemies.

7:7 Micah cried out to God, asking Him to transform his nation. Demonstrating personal intimacy with God, Micah declared that he would look to the LORD and wait for the God of his salvation, stating confidently that my God will hear me.

7:8-20 In these verses Micah's message looked past the coming defeat and destruction (1:1-16) to the future day when the Lord would reverse that judgment. Repentant people would be raised again (7:8-9). Enemies would be defeated and Israel would be rebuilt (vv. 10-11). The exiles would be gathered (v. 12), and a new exodus would take place (v. 15). Because of His promise to Abraham (v. 20), God would forgive sinners who deserved no mercy (vv. 18-19). God always keeps His promises.

7:8-10 As a representative of his people, Micah declared his faith and hope. The LORD's rage and judgment of sin would be temporary. God's anger was deserved and His punishment was just because the people had sinned against Him. One day the prophet would stand up and experience the Lord as his light.

The Lord would defend him and establish justice for him. On that day the prophet would see His salvation, and enemies would see it and be covered with shame.

7:11-13 Judah would be rebuilt, and people would come from lands such as Assyria and Egypt. The earth would be made a wasteland because of the evil deeds of her inhabitants.

7:14-17 Using covenant language, Micah prayed for God to shepherd Your people and lead Your possession (cp. Ex 19:6) to the fertile lands that once belonged to Israel, much like God did in the first exodus from the land of Egypt. When this happened the nations would see God's power in salvation and be ashamed of their own puny strength. They would cover their mouths in amazement, tremble in fear, and stand in awe in the presence of the Lord.

7:18-20 Hope is based on God's unchanging character. Who is a God like You is a question everyone should ponder. Only God can solve our greatest problem —sin. Micah described God's forgiveness as removing iniquity from His sight and passing over rebellion as no longer relevant. God would vanquish their iniquities like a conqueror, and cast their sins into the depths of the sea. God will deal with people's sins completely. The Lord is incomparable, gracious and merciful, compassionate, loyal, faithful, and loving (Ex 34:6-7). He covenanted with their forefathers Jacob and Abraham (Gn 22:17; 28:14) and would forever show loyalty and faithful love to the people of His covenant. Anyone in covenant relationship with Him may rest securely in hope because of His unchanging character.

1 The •oracle concerning Nineveh. [a] The book of the vision of Nahum the Elkoshite.

God's Vengeance

2 The LORD is a jealous and avenging God;
the LORD takes vengeance
and is fierce in [A] wrath.
The LORD takes vengeance against His foes;
He is furious with His enemies. [b]
3 The LORD is slow to anger but great in power;
the LORD will never leave the •guilty unpunished. [c]
His path is in the whirlwind and storm, and clouds are the dust beneath His feet.
4 He rebukes the sea so that it dries up,
and He makes all the rivers run dry. [d] Bashan and Carmel wither; [e]
even the flower of Lebanon withers.
5 The mountains quake before Him,
and the hills melt;
the earth trembles [f, B] at His presence —
the world and all who live in it. [g]
6 Who can withstand His indignation?
Who can endure His burning anger? [h]
His wrath is poured out like fire, even rocks are shattered before Him.

Destruction of Nineveh

7 The LORD is good,
a stronghold in a day of distress;
He cares for those who take refuge [i] in Him.
8 But He will completely destroy Nineveh [C] with an overwhelming flood, [j]
and He will chase His enemies into darkness.

9 Whatever you [k] plot against the LORD,
He will bring it to complete destruction; [l] oppression will not rise up a second time.
10 For they will be consumed like entangled thorns, [m]
like the drink of a drunkard and like straw that is fully dry. [D] 11 One has gone out from you, [n] who plots evil against •Yahweh , and is a wicked counselor.

Promise of Judah's Deliverance

12 This is what the LORD says:
Though they are strong [E] and numerous,
they will still be mowed down,
and he [o] will pass away.
Though I have afflicted you, [p, q]
I will afflict you no longer. [r] 13 For I will now break off his yoke from you and tear off your shackles.

The Assyrian King's Demise

14 The LORD has issued an order concerning you:
There will be no offspring to carry on your name. [F, s]
I will eliminate the carved idol and cast image from the house of your gods; [t]
I will prepare your grave,
for you are contemptible.

15 [u] Look to the mountains —
the feet of one bringing good news [v]
and proclaiming peace!
Celebrate your festivals, Judah;
fulfill your vows.
For the wicked one will never again
march through you;
he will be entirely wiped out.

Attack against Nineveh

2 One who scatters is coming up against you.
Man the fortifications!
Watch the road!
Brace [A] yourself!
Summon all your strength! [a]

2 For the LORD will restore the majesty of Jacob, yes, [B] the majesty of Israel,
though ravagers have ravaged them and ruined their vine branches. [b]

3 The shields of his [c] warriors are dyed red;
the valiant men are dressed in scarlet. [d]
The fittings of the chariot flash like fire on the day of its battle preparations, and the spears are brandished.
4 The chariots dash madly through the streets;
they rush around in the plazas.
They look like torches;
they dart back and forth like lightning.
5 He gives orders to his officers;
they stumble as they advance.
They race to its wall;
the protective shield is set in place.
6 The river gates are opened,
and the palace erodes away. [e]

7 Beauty [f] is stripped, [C]
she is carried away;
her ladies-in-waiting moan
like the sound of doves, [g]
and beat their breasts.
8 Nineveh has been like a pool of water from her first days, [D]
but they are fleeing.
"Stop! Stop! " they cry,
but no one turns back.
9 "Plunder the silver! Plunder the gold! "
There is no end to the treasure,

an abundance of every precious thing. [h]
10 Desolation, decimation, devastation!
Hearts melt, [i]
knees tremble,
loins shake,
every face grows pale! [j]

11 Where is the lions' lair, [k] or the feeding ground of the young lions,
where the lion and lioness prowled,
and the lion's cub,
with nothing to frighten them away? [l] 12 The lion mauled whatever its cubs needed and strangled prey for its lionesses.
It filled up its dens with the kill,
and its lairs with mauled prey. [m]
13 Beware, I am against you. [n]
I will make your chariots go upThis is the declaration of the LORD of •Hosts .
in smoke [E]
and the sword will devour your young lions.
I will cut off your prey from the earth, and the sound of your messengers will never be heard again.

Nineveh's Downfall

3 Woe to the city of blood, [a] totally deceitful,
full of plunder,
never without prey. [b] 2 The crack of the whip
and rumble of the wheel, galloping horse
and jolting chariot! [c] 3 Charging horseman,

shining spear;
heaps of slain,
mounds of corpses,
dead bodies without end [d] —
they stumble over their dead.
4 Because of the continual prostitution of the prostitute,
the attractive mistress of sorcery,
who betrays nations by her prostitution and clans by her witchcraft, [e]
5 I am against you. [f]
I will lift your skirts over yourThis is the declaration of the LORD of •Hosts .
face
and display your nakedness to nations, your shame to kingdoms. [g] 6 I will throw filth on you and treat you with contempt;
I will make a spectacle of you.
7 Then all who see you will recoil from you, saying, “Nineveh is devastated;
who will show sympathy to her? ”
Where can I find anyone to comfort you?

8 Are you better than Thebes [A, h] that sat along the Nile with water surrounding her,
whose rampart was the sea,
the river [i, B] her wall?

9 •Cush and Egypt were her endless source of strength;
Put and Libya were among her [C] allies.
10 Yet she became an exile;
she went into captivity.
Her children were also dashed to pieces [j]
at the head of every street.
They cast lots for her dignitaries, [k]
and all her nobles were bound in chains.
11 You [l] also will become drunk;
you will hide yourself. [D]
You also will seek refuge from the enemy.

12 All your fortresses are fig trees with figs that ripened first;
when shaken, they fall —
right into the mouth of the eater!

13 Look, your troops are like women among you;
the gates of your land
are wide open to your enemies.
Fire will devour the bars of your gates.

14 Draw water for the siege;
strengthen your fortresses.
Step into the clay and tread the mortar;
take hold of the brick-mold!
15 The fire will devour you there;
the sword will cut you down.
It will devour you like the young locust. [m]
Multiply yourselves like the young locust, multiply like the swarming locust!
16 You have made your merchants [n]
more numerous than the stars of the sky.
The young locust strips [E] the land and flies away.
17 Your court officials are like the swarming locust,
and your scribes like clouds of locusts,
which settle on the walls on a cold day;
when the sun rises, they take off,

and no one knows where they are.

18 King of Assyria, your shepherds slumber;
your officers sleep.
Your people are scattered across the mountains with no one to gather them together. [o] 19 There is no remedy for your injury;
your wound is severe. [p]
All who hear the news about you will clap their hands because of you, for who has not experienced your constant cruelty?

Introduction

Relief (ca 728 B.C.) depicting Assyrian archers attacking a besieged city, most likely in Mesopotamia. An Assyrian soldier holds a large shield to protect two archers as they take aim. From the Central Palace in Nimrud and now in the British Museum, London. The Assyrian Empire brought down Israel (Samaria) in 722 B.C. In the next century, when Assyria was the dominant power in the ancient Near East, Nahum prophesied that, contrary to appearances, God would completely destroy Nineveh, the beautiful capital of Assyria (1:7-8).

The book of Nahum dramatically portrays God overwhelming Assyria to relieve His oppressed people. It was certainly a harsh message for Israel's enemies, but for the people of Judah it was a message of hope.

Circumstances of Writing Author: The presumed author Nahum (1:1) is the only person with that name in the OT. Like Jonah in the previous century, Nahum prophesied judgment upon Nineveh. The Ninevites in Jonah's time had repented (Jnh 3). But now that Nineveh's leaders had resumed their wicked actions, the Lord called Nahum to reaffirm His coming judgment. Ironically Nahum's Hebrew name means "comfort"—comfort for Judah (1:12-15) because its cruel overlord Assyria would be punished without any "comforters" (3:7). Except for the name of his hometown Elkosh (1:1), nothing certain is known about Nahum.

Two events circumscribe the earliest and latest possible dates for the composition of the book of Nahum: the capture and downfall of Thebes in about 663 B.C. and the announcements of Nineveh's certain destruction (1:1; 2:8; 3:7) which would happen in 612 B.C. The book's emphasis on the fall of Thebes, seemingly a recent event, would favor a date shortly after 663 B.C., during the reign of the notoriously wicked King Manasseh (ca 686-642 B.C.) and/or his evil son Amon (642-640 B.C.). Certainly Nah 1:12 (Assyria was still "strong [or at full strength] and numerous") suggests a time before the decline of that empire. This fits the reign of cruel Ashurbanipal (ca 668-627 B.C.) when Assyria was at the pinnacle of its power.

Background: The Assyrian capital Nineveh was located about 220 miles north of the modern Iraqi capital of Baghdad. By Nahum's time, Israel and Judah had experienced long and distressing affliction by the Assyrians. As early as Shalmaneser III (858-824 B.C.), King Jehu paid tribute to the Assyrians. The Lord often used Assyria as "the rod of My anger" (Is 10:5) to punish His people. Shalmaneser V (727-722 B.C.) and his successor Sargon II (722-705 B.C.) besieged and destroyed Samaria, taking the northern kingdom of Israel into captivity (2Kg 17:3-6). Similarly Sennacherib captured and devastated Judah, besieging Jerusalem by 701 B.C. (2Kg 18-19; Is 36-37). By Ashurbanipal's reign (ca 669-627 B.C.) Assyrian rulers were infamous for their cruelty (see notes at 3:10 and 3:19).

Message and Purpose Judgment: The main theme of the book is the impending judgment of Nineveh by the Lord (1:1,8; 2:8-13; 3:7-19) by which he would deliver His people (1:12-15; cp. vv. 7-8). Yahweh would pay back Nineveh and the Assyrians in the same way they had mistreated their enemies. Since they were known for scattering their captives in brutal death marches, the Lord would send a scatterer (2:1) to disperse the Assyrians in retaliation for their cruelty (3:18-19; cp. 3:10). Since the Assyrians delighted in shedding blood and piling up the corpses of their foes, He would transform Nineveh into a city of blood with piles of its own corpses (3:1-3).

As the Assyrians had plucked the capital city Samaria like a first-ripe fig to devour her (fulfilling Is 28:4), so too the Lord would cause their capital Nineveh and other fortresses to fall into their enemies' hungry mouths (Nah 3:12). Though Nineveh (like Thebes) was seemingly impregnable because of its military strength (3:8) and its allies (3:9), the Assyrians would be exiled as they had exiled the Egyptians (3:10).

God, the caring warrior: The character of God, portrayed as a powerful but caring warrior (1:2-7), was the propelling force behind Nineveh's judgment. The Lord's jealousy for His people and His wrath toward His enemies (1:2-3), balanced by His compassion and longsuffering nature (1:3; Ex 34:6-7), seem to pivot on His great power (Nah 1:3) and goodness (1:7). Yahweh the warrior will take vengeance on His enemies (1:2,3-6). The portrait of a God of wrath is consistent with His promise to avenge the blood of His servants (Dt 32:35-36,42-43). Furthermore, God's goodness and compassion was not the doting love of a permissive or impotent grandparent (2Pt 3:9-10,12). He was "good" (or kind) to those who took refuge in Him (Nah 1:7) while bringing destruction on His unrepentant enemies, including Nineveh (1:8).

Contribution to the Bible The book of Nahum provides a great view of a powerful, just God who maintains His absolute moral standards and offers hope to those who are despised and downtrodden. Nahum teaches us to trust God. Even when we despair of any help, we can know that God will stand with those who belong to Him.

Structure Nahum interweaved typical prophetic strands such as judgment songs against God's enemies (1:9-11,14; cp. 2:13; 3:5-7), a woe oracle or mock lament (3:1-7), salvation oracles for His people Judah (1:12-15), a victory hymn to Yahweh the divine warrior (1:2-8; cp. Ex 15; Ps 98), and a sarcastic "word vision" of imminent enemy invasion (Nah 2:1-10; cp. 3:2-3). He colored this literary tapestry with satirical "taunt songs" mocking Nineveh's soon-coming role reversal (2:11-12; 3:8-19; cp. 2:1-2; 3:4-5). He ridiculed Nineveh's practice of scattering of peoples to other nations by announcing that God's "scatterer" (2:1-2; 3:18-19) would pay her back in like manner. He taunted that her lion's lair of military booty would soon be looted (2:11-13). He also mocked her as a witch prostitute condemned to appropriate punishment: nakedness exposed with shame (3:4-7).

Using psychological warfare (as the Assyrians had used against Judah), Nahum taunted Nineveh's dependence on allies and other supposed defenses (3:8-10; cp. Is 36:4-20). Esar-haddon, father of Ashurbanipal, had threatened King Manasseh of Judah in 672 B.C. with treaty curses from the gods if they rebelled. As G. Johnston has argued, Yahweh converted borrowed treaty terminology to reverse this curse on Judah. It would not be Judah but Assyria's military men who would become defenseless like women (Nah 3:13). The Assyrians' ravaging of the land like a swarming army of locusts (cp. Jl 1:4-12; 2:4-9) was evoked and modified in order to mock Nineveh's merchants and military personnel, comparing them to harmless locusts on a wall, easily frightened and scattered (Nah 3:15-18). The incurable disease threatened from their gods would boomerang and inflict Assyria instead (3:19).

Yahweh as the caring warrior who would bring vengeance on His enemies, especially Nineveh, in order to save Judah, forms the backbone not only of Nahum's purpose statement but also of the book's literary structure.

Study Notes 1:2-8 On this victory hymn to Yahweh, see Introduction.

1:2 Like a jealous (or zealous) husband, Yahweh would tolerate no rivals for Israel's affection, whether other so-called gods (Ex 34:14-16) or foreign nations and their kings.

1:3 That God was slow to anger but great in power indicates His wrath was not that of a hot-tempered tyrant. Neither was His compassion based on His inability to defeat those who oppressed His people. By no means would He leave the guilty unpunished, whether of His own people or their enemies (Ex 34:7).

1:4 Bashan and Carmel wither (and even the flower of Lebanon) because of a severe drought, parching the most fertile lands in Palestine (Is 33:9)—from the east, Bashan in Transjordan, to the northwest borders of the storm god Baal's home territory near Mount Carmel and the Lebanon mountains. Actually Yahweh alone controlled the storm, rain, and fertility (drying up the sea and all the rivers). Bashan was famous for its lush pasturelands (Jr 50:19), fine cattle (Dt 32:14), and rich forests (Is 2:13; Ezk 27:6), and Carmel (lit "garden-land") was known for its verdant vegetation (Jr 50:19; Am 1:2). Both were withered by God's judgment.

1:11 The one who plots evil against Yahweh, and is a wicked counselor may be any Assyrian ruler (cp. v. 15, same Hb word "wicked") or even the demonic spirit that energizes him (Dn 10:13,20-21; contrast Messiah as Wonderful Counselor, Is 9:6). Sennacherib had plotted evil, but his objective to destroy Jerusalem (ca 701 B.C.) was thwarted (2Kg 19:20-28,32-34).

2:1 "Watchman" Nahum (man the fortifications) mockingly begins to cheer the Assyrians on as they prepared for siege warfare (3:14).

2:3-10 To heighten the suspense and surprise, shields of his warriors . . . dyed red and valiant men . . . dressed in scarlet initiate an intentionally ambiguous description of the battle's outcome. Were these uniforms dyed red or were they spattered with blood? Normally Nineveh's weapons would be stained with the blood of their enemies, but here it is unclear whether Nineveh or its attackers are so portrayed. Not until verse 8 is it clear that Nineveh is the defeated party, whose hearts would melt with fear.

2:11-13 The lions' lair with lion and lioness plays on two lion motifs commonly employed by Assyrian kings (G. Johnston). The kings described themselves as "lions" crushing their enemies. Ashurbanipal often portrayed himself killing literal lions single-handedly, with a weapon or even bare-handed. Ironically reversing this imagery, Yahweh mocked Nineveh, the once-mighty lion who preyed on its enemies. Now Nineveh was being hunted and made prey. Its young lions (warriors) would be killed in battle.

3:1-3 Again, the author is initially vague (cp. note at 2:3-10) about the identity of the bloody city with its mounds of corpses, but the attentive reader knows that it is Nineveh, the once-formidable city, which God will now devastate (see note at v. 10; see also Introduction).

3:4-6 On a prostitute's punishment, see Introduction.

3:10 The Egyptian children were dashed to pieces by the Assyrians, just as Assyria had recently done to Israel in fulfillment of Hs 13:16 (cp. Ps 137:9; Hs 10:14-15). The atrocities included ripping pregnant women open. Such cruelty was not unique to the Assyrians (see note at Nah 3:19); other invading armies did similar things (see 2Kg 8:12; Is 13:16).

3:19 Assyrian rulers were infamous for their cruelty (see note at 3:10). Ashur-nasirpal II (858-824 B.C.) flayed captive kings alive and papered city walls with their skin. Impaling some on stakes, he gouged out their eyes and severed their hands, feet, and other body parts. Nahum's contemporary Ashurbanipal boasted of similar atrocities against the Egyptians. He also tore out the tongues of rebels who were uttering blasphemies against his god. He pulled a rope through an Arab king's jaw and chained him like a watchdog at a city gate.

HABAKKUK

1 The •oracle that Habakkuk the prophet saw. [a]

Habakkuk's First Prayer

2 How long, [b] LORD, must I call for help [c] and You do not listen or cry out to You about violence and You do not save?
3 Why do You force me to look at injustice? [d]
Why do You tolerate [A] wrongdoing?
Oppression and violence are right in front of me.
Strife is ongoing, and conflict escalates.
4 This is why the law is ineffective and justice never emerges.
For the wicked restrict [e] the righteous;
therefore, justice [f] comes out perverted.

God's First Answer

5 Look at the nations [g, h] and observe [i] — be utterly astounded! [j]
For something is taking place in your days that you will not believe [k]
when you hear about it. [l]
6 Look! I am raising up [m] the Chaldeans, [n] that bitter, [o] impetuous nation that marches across the earth's open spaces to seize territories not its own.
7 They are fierce [p] and terrifying;
their views of justice and sovereignty stem from themselves.
8 Their horses are swifter [q] than leopards [r] and more fierce [B] than wolves of the night.
Their horsemen charge ahead;
their horsemen come from distant lands.
They fly like an eagle, swooping to devour. [s]
9 All of them come to do violence;
their faces [t] are set in determination. [C]
They gather [u] prisoners like sand. [v]

10 They mock [w] kings,
and rulers are a joke to them.
They laugh [x] at every fortress and build siege ramps to capture [y] it.
11 Then they sweep [z] by like the wind and pass through.
They are •guilty ; [D] their strength is their god.

Habakkuk's Second Prayer

12 Are You not from eternity, •Yahweh my God?
My Holy One, [a] You [b] will not die.
LORD, You appointed them to execute judgment;
my Rock, [c] You destined them to punish us.
13 Your eyes [d] are too pure [e] to look on evil,
and You cannot tolerate wrongdoing.
So why do You tolerate those who are treacherous? [f]
Why are You silent
while one [g] who is wicked swallows up one [h] who is more righteous than himself?
14 You have made mankind like the fish of the sea, [i] like marine creatures that have no ruler.
15 The Chaldeans pull them all up with a hook, catch them in their dragnet, [j]
and gather them in their fishing net;
that is why they are glad and rejoice.
16 That is why they sacrifice to their dragnet and burn incense to their fishing net, for by these things their portion is rich and their food plentiful. [k] 17 Will they therefore empty their net [l] and continually slaughter nations without mercy?

Habakkuk Waits for God's Response

2 I will stand at my guard post and station myself on the lookout tower. [a]
I will watch to see what He will say to me [b] and what I should [c] reply about my complaint.

God's Second Answer

2 The LORD answered me:
Write down this vision; [d]
clearly inscribe it on tablets
so one may easily read it. [A] 3 For the vision is yet for the appointed time;
it testifies about the end and will not lie.
Though it delays, wait for it,
since it will certainly come and not be late. [e] 4 Look, his ego is inflated; [B]
he is without integrity.
But the righteous one will live by his faith. [C, f]
5 Moreover, wine [g] betrays;
an arrogant man is never at rest. [D]
He enlarges his appetite like •Sheol , and like Death he is never satisfied. [h]
He gathers all the nations to himself;
he collects all the peoples for himself.

The Five Woe Oracles

6 Won’t all of these take up a taunt against him, with mockery and riddles about him?
They will say:

Woe to him who amasses what is not his —
how much longer? —
and loads himself with goods taken in pledge. [i] 7 Won’t your creditors suddenly arise, and those who disturb you wake up?
Then you will become spoil for them. [j]
8 Since you have plundered many nations, all the peoples who remain will plunder you — because of human bloodshed and violence against lands, cities, and all who live in them. [k]

9 Woe to him who dishonestly makes wealth for his house [E]
to place his nest on high,
to escape from the reach of disaster! [l] 10 You have planned shame for your house by wiping out many peoples and sinning against your own self.
11 For the stones will cry out [m] from the wall, and the rafters will answer them from the woodwork.

12 Woe to him who builds a city with bloodshed and founds a town with injustice! [n] 13 Is it not from the LORD of •Hosts that the peoples labor only to fuel the fire and countries exhaust themselves for nothing? [o] 14 For the earth will be filled with the knowledge of the LORD’s glory, as the waters cover the sea. [p]

15 Woe to him who gives his neighbors drink, pouring out your wrath [F]

and even making them drunk,
in order to look at their nakedness!
16 You will be filled with disgrace instead of glory.
You also — drink,
and expose your uncircumcision! [q]
The cup in the LORD's right hand will come around to you,
and utter disgrace will cover your glory. [r] 17 For your violence against Lebanon will overwhelm you;
the destruction of animals will terrify you [s]
because of your human bloodshed and violence against lands, cities, and all who live in them.

18 What use is a carved idol
after its craftsman carves it?
It is only a cast image, a teacher of lies.
For the one who crafts its shape trusts in it and makes idols that cannot speak.
19 Woe to him who says to wood: Wake up!
or to mute stone: Come alive!
Can it teach?
Look! It may be plated with gold and silver, yet there is no breath in it at all.

20 But the LORD is in His holy temple;
let everyone on earth
be silent in His presence. [t]

Habakkuk's Third Prayer

3 A prayer of Habakkuk the prophet. According to Shigionoth. [a, b]

2 LORD, I have heard the report about You;
LORD, I stand in awe of Your deeds.
Revive Your work in these years;
make it known in these years.
In Your wrath remember mercy!

3 God comes from Teman,
the Holy One from Mount Paran. [c]

• Selah

His splendor covers the heavens, and the earth is full of His praise. [d] 4 His brilliance is like light;
rays are flashing from His hand.
This is where His power is hidden.
5 Plague goes before Him,
and pestilence follows in His steps.
6 He stands and shakes [A] the earth;
He looks and startles the nations.
The age-old mountains break apart;
the ancient hills sink down.
His pathways are ancient.
7 I see the tents of Cushan [e] in distress;
the tent curtains of the land of Midian tremble.
8 Are You angry at the rivers, LORD?
Is Your wrath against the rivers?
Or is Your rage against the sea
when You ride on Your horses,
Your victorious chariot?
9 You took the sheath from Your bow;
the arrows are ready [B] to be used with an oath. [C, f]

Selah

You split the earth with rivers.
10 The mountains see You and shudder; [g] a downpour of water sweeps by.
The deep roars with its voice [h] and lifts its waves [D] high.

11 Sun and moon stand still in their lofty residence, [i] at the flash of Your flying arrows,
at the brightness of Your shining spear.
12 You march across the earth with indignation;
You trample down the nations in wrath.
13 You come out to save Your people, to save Your anointed. [j]
You crush the leader of the house of the wicked and strip him from foot [E] to neck.

Selah

14 You pierce his head
with his own spears;
his warriors storm out to scatter us,
gloating as if ready to secretly devour the weak.
15 You tread the sea with Your horses, stirring up the great waters. [k]

Habakkuk's Confidence in God Expressed

16 I heard, and I trembled within; [l]
my lips quivered at the sound.
Rottenness entered my bones;
I trembled where I stood.
Now I must quietly wait for the day of distress to come against the people invading us.
17 Though the fig tree does not bud and there is no fruit on the vines, though the olive crop fails
and the fields produce no food, though there are no sheep in the pen
and no cattle in the stalls, 18 yet I will triumph in •Yahweh ;
I will rejoice in the God of my salvation! [m]
19 Yahweh my Lord is my strength;
He makes my feet like those of a deer [n]
and enables me to walk on mountain heights! [o]

Introduction

"Look! I am raising up the Chaldeans, that bitter, impetuous nation that marches across the earth's open spaces to seize territories not its own. They are fierce and terrifying; their views of justice and sovereignty stem from themselves . . . They fly like an eagle, swooping to devour" (1:6-8b).

One of the Minor Prophets, the book of Habakkuk is unique in its style. Rather than speaking to the people on God's behalf, Habakkuk spoke to God on behalf of the people. Habakkuk struggled with how to understand God's actions in history, especially His use of an unrighteous nation as the instrument of His justice. God's answer to Habakkuk's objection was that "the righteous one will live by his faith" (2:4).

Circumstances of Writing Author: Habakkuk is not mentioned anywhere else in the Bible. His name is thought to derive from the Hebrew word chabaq, "to embrace," but its form appears non-Hebraic. More likely the name is related to habbaququ, a word found in the related Semitic language of Akkadian. It denotes a species of garden plant or fruit tree.

Background: Habakkuk predicted the invasion of Judah by the Chaldeans (1:6). The term Chaldean (Hb kasdim; Akk kaldu) was originally used of an ethnic group that appeared in southern Babylonia in the ninth century B.C. In the eighth century B.C., Chaldeans began to rise to power in Babylon. Among the early Chaldean kings was Merodach-baladan II (2Kg 20:12; Is 39:1), who twice in the late eighth century took (and lost) Babylon's throne. The Chaldean Nabopolassar (626-605 B.C.) began to dismantle the Assyrian Empire with help from the Medes and founded the NeoBabylonian Empire. By the time of Habakkuk "Chaldean" had come to be a synonym for "Babylonian."

These world events came to affect Judah. Pharaoh Neco of Egypt passed through Palestine in an attempt to support the remnant of the Assyrians in northern Syria against Babylon. The godly King Josiah confronted him at Megiddo but was killed by Neco in 609 B.C. Judah then fell into the hands of Egypt from 609-605 B.C.

Judah's fortunes changed again when Nabopolassar's son Nebuchadnezzar II defeated Neco at the battle of Carchemish (May/June 605 B.C.) on the Euphrates River northeast of Aleppo and succeeded his father on the throne of Babylon in September of that year. The Babylonian army pursued Neco back to Egypt. This led to Judah falling under control of the Babylonians by 604 B.C.

Habakkuk predicted the Chaldean devastation of Judah (1:5-11), but that does not seem to have been fulfilled by the relatively bloodless Babylonian occupation in 604 B.C. But when Jehoiakim, whom Neco had placed on Judah's throne in 609 B.C., rebelled against Babylon in roughly 600 B.C., Nebuchadnezzar eventually invaded the land and besieged Jerusalem from 598 to 597 B.C. This led to Jehoiakim being deposed and killed in 598 B.C. and his son Jehoiachin going into Babylonian exile in 597 B.C. The last king of Judah, Zedekiah, brought even more devastation upon Judah by rebelling against Babylon in 588 B.C. When Judah fell to the Babylonians in August of either 587 or 586 B.C., Nebuchadnezzar devastated Jerusalem and destroyed the temple. And yet as Habakkuk predicted (2:6-20), Babylon had its own day of reckoning in 539 B.C. when Cyrus of Persia conquered it.

These historical events help us to attach a date to the book of Habakkuk. Habakkuk probably wrote his prophecy during the time of trouble after the death of King Josiah of Judah in 609 B.C. but before the devastations of Judah in 598/597 B.C. and 587/586 B.C. by the Chaldeans. That places the prophecy during the reign of Jehoiakim (ca 609-599 B.C.), probably in the period of Egyptian domination before Babylon invaded Judah (609-605 B.C.).

Message and Purpose Like the book of Job, Habakkuk deals with the problem of understanding God's ways: Why does God allow injustice to prevail (1:3)? How can God use the more wicked Babylonians to punish the less wicked Judeans (1:13)? How long will God allow evildoers to dominate the world (1:17)?

God did not give clear answers to the questions Habakkuk raised. Instead He called on the godly to have faith (2:4). When Habakkuk declared he would rejoice in God no matter what (3:17-19), he showed that he had accepted and appropriated this message to his own life.

God's sovereign greatness: Habakkuk shows the greatness of God. He is eternally alive (1:12), unlike dead idols of wood or stone (2:18-19). His prophecies come true (2:3). He can raise up nations to accomplish His purposes (1:6), and He shakes the world through pestilence and war (3:2-15).

God's hidden justice: Habakkuk's God is holy (1:12). The prophet expected Him to oppose injustice (1:2-4,13a), though sometimes it is hard to see the justice of God working through the events of human history (1:13b). But though God may use the wicked acts of men for His good purposes and allow evil to prevail for a time, ultimately the wicked will pay for their crimes (2:6-14) and God will come to save His people and crush the wicked (3:13-15).

Faith: The key verse of Habakkuk is 2:4b: "The righteous one will live by his faith." Though we find it difficult to fathom the ways of God with man, we can learn, as Habakkuk did, to trust and exult in God's goodness despite our imperfect understanding (3:16-19).

Contribution to the Bible The book of Habakkuk looks at an issue that often confronts people: trying to discern God's purposes in the midst of this world. There is a realization of the will of God for this world. This truth is seen throughout the Scripture: God's promises to Abraham; God's desire for us to have life abundantly; and God's will for a human community of joy, security, and righteousness. We ultimately triumph in the world and live abundantly only through faith. Habakkuk's message that the righteous will live by faith prepared the way for the greater understanding of this truth in the NT, which emphasizes salvation through faith in Christ (Rm 1:17; Gl 3:11; Heb 10:38-39).

Structure The first two chapters consist of a dialogue between the prophet and God. Habakkuk first complained of injustice in Judah (1:2-4). God responded by announcing that He was sending the Chaldeans to punish Judah (1:5-11). Habakkuk then complained about God's answer, arguing that it seemed unfair for God to use the more wicked Babylonians to punish the less wicked Judeans (1:12-2:1). God responded that the Babylonians were indeed arrogant and would ultimately be punished; nonetheless, God would use the Babylonians just as He had determined (2:2-20). The final chapter consists of a psalm in which Habakkuk reflected on this dialogue with God.

Outline I. Dialogue Between God and Habakkuk (1:1-2:20) A. Habakkuk's first complaint: injustice (1:1-4) B. God's first response: Chaldeans will invade (1:5-11) C. Habakkuk's second complaint: God seems unfair (1:12-2:1) D. God's second response: have faith, justice will prevail (2:2-20) II. Habakkuk's Psalm (3:1-19) A. Habakkuk's fear (3:1) B. God's theophany (3:2-15) C. Habakkuk's faith (3:16-19)

Timeline

Study Notes 1:1 Oracle (Hb massa') is a prophetic proclamation, literally a "lifting up [of voice]." "Burden" (KJV) is another meaning of massa' , though it does not fit the present context well (see note at Jr 23:33-38).

1:2-4 Habakkuk lamented to God (how long?) about overt violence . . . injustice, and oppression during Jehoiakim's reign. King Josiah (640-609 B.C.) promoted God's law (2Kg 23:24), but his son and successor Jehoiakim (609-598 B.C.) based his reign on injustice (Jr 22:13) so that God's law (Hb torah) ceased to be honored.

1:5-6 God responded that He would punish the sins of Judah through an invasion by the Chaldeans (the Babylonians).

1:7 The so-called justice of these invaders was human (from themselves) rather than divine.

1:8 Comparisons with predatory animals (leopards . . . wolves, and an eagle) illustrate the speed, brutality, and efficiency of the Babylonian military machine.

1:9 Violence (Hb chamas; see word study at Hab 2:8,17) is the punishment Judah will receive for its own violence (vv. 2-3).

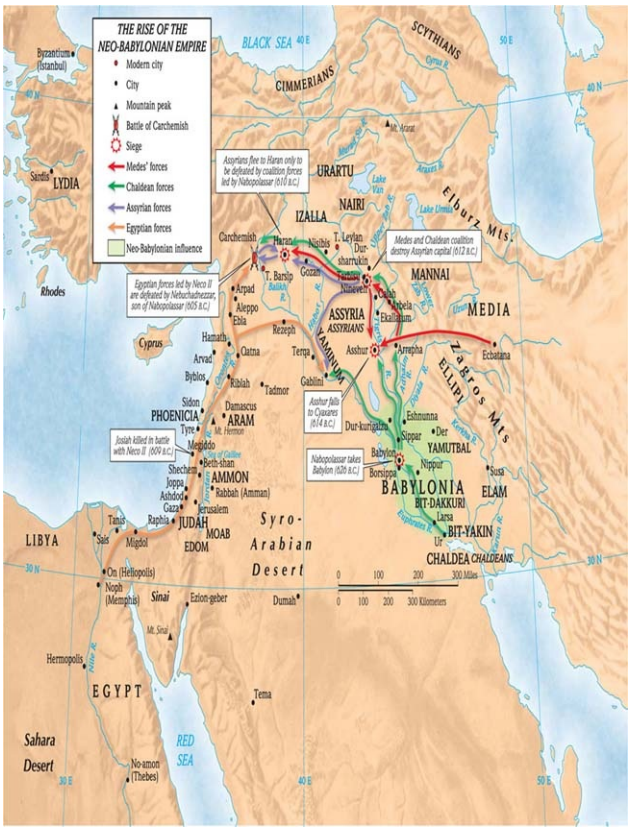
1:10-11 The mighty Babylonian army scoffed at all opposition. The phrase their strength is their god suggests they worshiped their own military power (v. 16), though the verse possibly means that they attributed their strength to their national god Marduk (see note at 2:18-20).

1:12 Habakkuk reasoned that since God is holy, He must be using Babylon as an implement of his judgment on Judah. All manuscripts literally read "we will not die" (see textual footnote) rather than You will not die, but HCSB follows a Jewish tradition that says "You" was original and that this verse is one of 18 places where the Hebrew Bible was deliberately changed by scribes. If so, the change the scribes made here aimed to avoid any hint of the unthinkable notion that God ("You") could die.

1:13 Habakkuk complained that rewarding the more wicked in order to punish the less wicked seemed inconsistent with God's pure goodness. As bad as the Jews were (see note at vv. 2-4), they were more righteous than the wicked Babylonian invaders.

1:14-16 Like fishermen who pull in a huge catch of fish from the sea and as a result begin worshiping their net, so Babylon captured hordes of people and thus worshiped its own military strength (cp. v. 11).

1:17 How could a just God allow Babylon's merciless slaughter of the nations, much less their triumph against His people Judah?



2:1 Habakkuk braced himself for God's response. Hebrew tokachath ("reproof, reprimand") is probably stronger than the word complaint suggests: The prophet had presumed to correct God. Alternatively, it may refer to God's reproof of Habakkuk: "[His] reproof of me." The Syriac translation (see textual footnote) preserves another text for 2:1b that is possibly the original reading: "What He will reply about my reproof [of Him]."

2:2-3 God replied that the vision must be written down clearly for—in spite of Habakkuk's objections—the vision of the Babylonian invasion would come true.

2:4-5 The arrogant Babylonians were just as wicked as Habakkuk supposed. Yet verse 4b says righteous people such as Habakkuk must exercise faith in God's goodness despite His use of evil Babylon. This is similar to the answer Job received from God (Jb 38-41). God does not have to explain Himself to humans. We must let God be God and trust in His goodness even when we find His ways difficult to understand. This verse conveys the central message of the book. The NT cites it to show how the Christian life from beginning to end is based on faith (Rm 1:17; Gl 3:11; Heb 10:38).

2:6-8 Even though God used Babylon to punish Judah, Babylon would not go unpunished. Five woes in conjunction with taunt (or "proverb") are pronounced upon them. Babylon's plunder from the nations is like a debt from creditors that they must eventually repay.

2:9-14 Babylon built its house (empire; v. 9) with stolen stones and its rafters from stolen lumber. This involved the bloodshed and injustice of slave labor. God in His glory would make it all fuel for the fire when Persia toppled Babylon in 539 B.C.

2:15-17 Babylon's shameless perversity foisted upon its neighbors such as Lebanon (whose famous forests provided much of the stolen lumber of v. 11) would come back in the form of violence against itself. By degrading and humiliating conquered peoples, the invaders sought to break their will and render them incapable of further resistance.

2:18-20 Though the Babylonians attributed their strength to their god Marduk (see note at 1:10-11), their god was only a lifeless idol, a piece of wood or stone, but Yahweh lives and will have the last word. There is an allusion here (Wake up! . . . Come alive!) to Egyptian and Mesopotamian rituals that were used to consecrate new idols. Called the "opening of the mouth," these rituals were supposed to prepare the idol for habitation by the god.

3:1 The prayer of Habakkuk 3 is a psalm to be sung to musical instruments and presented to a music director (v. 19). This psalm represents the prophet's response to God's message to him. The Hebrew word shigionoth refers to a type of song. Like many musical terms in the Psalms, its precise meaning is unknown; "dirge" and "song of irregular beat" are educated guesses (see note at Ps 7 title). The meaning of Hebrew selah (in vv. 3,9,13 and 71 times in Psalms) is also obscure (see word study at Ps 46:3,7,11).

3:2 The report about You (or "what You have reported") perhaps alludes to the revelation that God was punishing Judah through Babylon (1:5-11). God's coming deeds made Habakkuk stand in awe (lit "fear") and beg for mercy.

3:3-7 This vision portrays God marching north in power and wrath from the direction of Mount Sinai (Teman was in Edom to the south; Paran was in the wilderness of Sinai; Dt 33:2). God was casting lightning bolts (Hab 3:4), and was accompanied front and back by personified plague and pestilence. Earthquakes associated with God's presence terrorized Bedouin peoples such as the Cushan and Midian.

3:8-15 Sea (Hb yam; vv. 8,15) is the name of the pagan god Yam, who was a symbol of chaos subdued by Baal in Canaanite mythology; similarly the watery deep (Hb tehom; v. 10) was the goddess Tiamat subdued by Marduk in Babylonian mythology. The purpose of God's march was to subdue His people's enemies, who were symbolized by elements of nature. He will punish the wicked Babylonians and save his people and their anointed Davidic lineage, thus preserving the promise of the coming Messiah.

3:16 The Hebrew of verse 16b is ambiguous. Did the prophet await the day of distress to come against the people invading us (HCSB) or "for the day of distress, for a people to come and attack us" (NJPS)? With the first rendering the prophet awaited a double distress: invasion of Judah and judgment on Babylon (vv. 13-15; 2:6-20). With the second rendering the focus is on the predicted Babylonian invasion (1:5-11). In either case, Habakkuk's feeling of dread (my lips quivered . . . I trembled) best relates to the invasion of Judah that must come first.

3:17-19 But come what may, the prophet will trust in God, finding his strength and sure footing through faith. Yahweh is God's personal name in the OT. It is usually rendered Lord, though that rendering would be awkward here where Yahweh is also called my Lord. The prophet applied to his own life the message of 2:4: "The righteous one will live by his faith."

Word Studies navat Hebrew Pronunciation [nah VAT]

HCSB Translation look Uses in Habakkuk 5
Uses in the OT 70
Focus passage Habakkuk 1:3,5,13

The root may basically mean "appear" or "come to light." Hebrew uses intensive (1x; Is 5:30) and causative verbs to denote looking in a direction. People look at the bronze snake (Nm 21:9). They see (Nm 12:8) and perceive (Is 5:12). Navat occurs 26 times with ra'ah ("see"). This may involve just physical vision (Gn 15:5) or include internal processes like approval (1Sm 16:7), trust (Is 22:8), or remembrance (Is 51:1). One looks down at defeated enemies (Ps 92:11) or looks in hope (Ps 34:5). Lot's wife looks back at Sodom (Gn 19:26). Navat implies consider (Ps 74:20), think about (Ps 119:15), tolerate (Hab 1:3), or have regard (Am 5:22). It suggests prolonged looking. Israelites watched Moses meet God (Ex 33:8). Eagles' eyes penetrate distances (Jb 39:29). God gazes earthward from heaven (Ps 102:19) and observes nations (Hab 1:5). Mabbat (3x) indicates hope or reliance (Is 20:5-6).

chamas Hebrew Pronunciation [chah MAHS]
HCSB Translation violence Uses in Habakkuk 6
Uses in the OT 60
Focus passage Habakkuk 2:8,17

This root is slightly attested outside Hebrew. The noun usually denotes physical violence (Ezk 7:23). It suggests crimes (Jdg 9:24) or violent wrong (1Ch 12:17). Chamas provoked the Flood (Gn 6:13). It describes suffering that involves elements of violence (Gn 16:5). It appears (7x) with shod (“destruction”; Am 3:10). Chamas functions adjectivally as violent (Is 59:6), vicious (Gn 49:5), or malicious (Ex 23:1), and adverbially as violently (Ps 25:19). A malicious witness falsely accuses another (Dt 19:16). The verb chamas (8x) means do violence. Priests did violence to the law by disregarding and failing to teach it (Ezk 22:26). God did violence to the temple by destroying it (Lm 2:6). One harms himself (Pr 8:36) and wrongs (Jb 21:27) or brutalizes others (Jr 22:3). Vines drop unripe grapes (Jb 15:33). The passive phrase body ravished is literally “heels having endured violence”; it indicates physical abuse (Jr 13:22).

ZEPHANIAH

1 The word of the LORD that came to Zephaniah son of Cushi, son of Gedaliah, son of Amariah, son of Hezekiah, in the days of Josiah [a] son of Amon, king of Judah.

The Great Day of the LORD

2 I will completely sweep away everything from the face of the earth [b] — 3 I will sweep away man and animal; [c] this is the LORD's declaration.
I will sweep away the birds of the sky
and the fish of the sea,
and the ruins [d] along with the wicked. [e]
I will cut off mankind
from the face of the earth.
This is the LORD's declaration.

4 I will stretch out My hand [f] against Judah and against all the residents of Jerusalem.
I will cut off every vestige of •Baal [g]
from this place,
the names of the pagan priests [h]
along with the priests;
5 those who bow in worship on the rooftops [i]
to the heavenly host;
those who bow and pledge loyalty to the LORD [j]
but also pledge loyalty to •Milcom ; [k, l] 6 and those who turn back from following the LORD, who do not seek the LORD or inquire of Him.
7 Be silent in the presence of the Lord GOD, [m] for the Day of the LORD is near. [n]
Indeed, the LORD has prepared a sacrifice; [o]
He has consecrated His guests. [p]

8 On the day of the LORD's sacrifice
I will punish the officials, the king's sons, and all who are dressed in foreign clothing.
9 On that day [q] I will punish all who skip over the threshold, [A, r] who fill their master's house with violence and deceit.

10 On that day —
there will be an outcry from the Fish Gate, [s] this is the LORD's declaration —
a wailing from the Second District, [t]
and a loud crashing from the hills.
11 Wail, you residents of the Hollow, [B]
for all the merchants [C] will be silenced;
all those loaded with silver will be cut off.

12 And at that time I will search Jerusalem with lamps and punish the men who settle down comfortably, [D, u] who say to themselves:
The LORD will not do good or evil.
13 Their wealth will become plunder and their houses a ruin.
They will build houses but never live in them,
plant vineyards but never drink their wine. [v]

14 The great Day of the LORD is near, [w] near and rapidly approaching.
Listen, the Day of the LORD —
then the warrior's cry is bitter.
15 That day is a day of wrath,
a day of trouble and distress,
a day of destruction and desolation,
a day of darkness [x] and gloom,
a day of clouds and blackness, [y] 16 a day of trumpet blast and battle cry against the fortified cities,
and against the high corner towers.
17 I will bring distress on mankind, and they will walk like the blind [z]
because they have sinned against the LORD.
Their blood will be poured out like dust
and their flesh like dung.
18 Their silver and their gold will not be able to rescue them on the day of the LORD's wrath. [a]

The whole earth will be consumed by the fire of His jealousy. [b]
For He will make a complete, yes, a horrifying end
of all the inhabitants of the earth.

A Call to Repentance

2 Gather yourselves together;
gather together, undesirable [A] nation,
2 before the decree [a] takes effect and the day passes like chaff,
before the burning of the LORD's anger overtakes you,
before the day of the LORD's anger overtakes you.
3 Seek the LORD, [b] all you humble [c] of the earth, who carry out what He commands.
Seek righteousness, seek humility;
perhaps you will be concealed [d]
on the day of the LORD's anger.

Judgment against the Nations

4 For Gaza will be abandoned, and Ashkelon will become a ruin.
Ashdod will be driven out at noon,
and Ekron will be uprooted. [e] 5 Woe, inhabitants of the seacoast, nation of the Cherethites! [f, g]
The word of the LORD is against you,
Canaan, land of the Philistines:
I will destroy you until there is no one left.
6 The seacoast will become pasturelands with caves for shepherds and folds for sheep.
7 The coastland will belong to the remnant of the house of Judah;
they will find pasture there.
They will lie down in the evening
among the houses of Ashkelon, for the LORD their God will return to them and restore their fortunes.

8 I have heard the taunting of Moab and the insults of the Ammonites, [h] who have taunted My people and threatened their territory.
9 Therefore, as I live —
Moab will bethe God of Israel —this is the declaration of the LORD of •Hosts , like Sodom
and the Ammonites like Gomorrah [i] — a place overgrown with weeds,
a salt pit, and a perpetual wasteland.
The remnant of My people will plunder them;
the remainder of My nation will dispossess them.
10 This is what they get for their pride, because they have taunted and acted arrogantly [j] against the people of the LORD of Hosts.
11 The LORD will be terrifying to them
when He starves all the gods of the earth.

Then all the distant coastlands of the nations will bow in worship to Him,
each in its own place.

12 You •Cushites will also be slain by My sword. [k]

13 He will also stretch out His hand against the north and destroy Assyria;
He will make Nineveh a desolate ruin, [l]
dry as the desert.
14 Herds will lie down in the middle of it, every kind of wild animal. [B]
Both the desert owl [C] and the screech owl [D] will roost in the capitals of its pillars.
Their calls will sound [E] from the window,
but devastation [m] will be on the threshold,
for He will expose the cedar work. [F] 15 This is the self-assured [n] city that lives in security,
that thinks to herself:
I exist, and there is no one else.
What a desolation she has become,
a place for wild animals to lie down!
Everyone who passes by her jeers [G] and shakes his fist.

Woe to Oppressive Jerusalem

3 Woe to the city that is rebellious [A,] [a] and defiled, [b]
the oppressive city!
2 She has not obeyed; [c]
she has not accepted discipline. [d]
She has not trusted [e] in •Yahweh ;
she has not drawn near to her God.
3 The [B] princes within her are roaring lions; [f]
her judges are wolves of the night, [g]
which leave nothing for [C] the morning.
4 Her prophets are reckless [h] — treacherous men.
Her priests profane the sanctuary;
they do violence to instruction. [i]
5 The righteous LORD is in her; [j]
He does no wrong. [k]
He applies His justice morning by morning;
He does not fail at dawn,
yet the one who does wrong knows no shame. [l]

6 I have cut off nations;
their corner towers [m] are destroyed.
I have laid waste their streets,
with no one to pass through.
Their cities lie devastated,
without a person, without an inhabitant. [n]
7 I thought: You will certainly •fear Me and accept correction.
Then her dwelling place [o]
would not be cut off
based on all that I had allocated to her.
However, they became more corrupt in all their actions.
8 Therefore, wait for Me [p] — until the day I rise up for plunder. [q] this is the LORD's declaration — For My decision is to gather nations, to assemble kingdoms,
in order to pour out My indignation [r] on them,

all My burning anger;
for the whole earth will be consumed
by the fire of My jealousy. [s]

Final Restoration Promised

9 For I will then restore pure [t] speech to the peoples so that all of them may call on the name of Yahweh
and serve Him with a single purpose. [D]
10 From beyond the rivers of •Cush [u]
My supplicants, My dispersed people, will bring an offering to Me.
11 On that day you [v] will not be put to shame [w] because of everything you have done in rebelling [x] against Me.
For then I will remove your proud, [y] arrogant people from among you, and you will never again be haughty
on My holy mountain. [z] 12 I will leave
a meek and humble people [a] among you,
and they will take refuge in the name of Yahweh.
13 The remnant [b] of Israel will no longer
do wrong or tell lies;
a deceitful tongue will not be found in their mouths.
But they will pasture and lie down,
with nothing to make them afraid. [c]

14 Sing for joy, Daughter •Zion ;
shout loudly, Israel!
Be glad and rejoice with all your heart,
Daughter Jerusalem!
15 The LORD has removed your punishment;
He has turned back your enemy.
The King of Israel, Yahweh, is among you;
you need no longer fear harm.
16 On that day it will be said to Jerusalem:
“Do not fear;
Zion, do not let your hands grow weak. [d]

17 Yahweh your God is among you,
a warrior [e] who saves.
He will rejoice over you [f] with gladness.
He will bring you quietness [g] with His love.
He will delight in you with shouts of joy.” [h]

18 I will gather those who have been driven [i] from the appointed festivals;
they will be a tribute from you [j]
and a reproach on her. [E] 19 Yes, at that time
I will deal with all who afflict you.
I will save the lame [k] and gather the scattered; [l]
I will make those who were disgraced throughout the earth receive praise and fame.
20 At that time I will bring you [m] back,
yes, at the time I will gather you.
I will give you fame and praise
among all the peoples of the earth,
when I restore your fortunes [n] before your eyes.
Yahweh has spoken.

Introduction

"Be silent in the presence of the Lord GOD, for the Day of the LORD is near. Indeed, the LORD has prepared a sacrifice; He has consecrated His guests . . . And at that time I will search Jerusalem with lamps and punish the men who settle down comfortably, who say to themselves: The LORD will not do good or evil" (1:7,12).

One of the Minor Prophets, Zephaniah focuses on the need to live in righteousness before God. Of all the prophets, Zephaniah probably gave the most forceful description of judgment, but he also lifted up the possibility of restoration for those who repented and turned to righteousness.

Circumstances of Writing Author: Zephaniah's lengthy genealogy (1:1, four generations back to Hezekiah) suggests he was of royal lineage. Why list four generations (other prophets, at most, listed two generations; see Zch 1:1) unless this final name was significant? Perhaps because his father's name was "Cushi," people tended to suspect that Zephaniah was of mixed ancestry, including Cushite bloodlines. In fact Zephaniah twice mentions the Cushites/Cush ("Ethiopians") in his short prophecy (2:12; 3:10), possibly suggesting his Cushite roots.

Internal evidence indicates the book of Zephaniah was written sometime between 640 and 612 B.C. Zephaniah 1:1 refers to King Josiah's reign (ca 640-609 B.C.), and 2:13-15 prophesies Nineveh's fall. Since Nineveh fell in 612 B.C., Zephaniah's prophecy would have been given prior to that time. Furthermore, existing idolatrous practices in Judah (1:4-6) imply Zephaniah's ministry began before Josiah's reforms in roughly 621 B.C. (2Kg 23).

Background: King Josiah's father, King Amon (1:1), was a wicked man, as was his father before him, King Manasseh (2Kg 21:1-7,11,16,20-22). This heritage of wickedness helps explain the rampant idolatry in the land when Josiah inherited the throne in 640 B.C. Josiah struggled to squelch idolatry in Judah (Zph 1:4-9). Together pagan and "orthodox priests" led worship of Yahweh while also bowing before Baal, Molech, and other pagan gods (1:4-6). The public reading of the book of the law (ca 621 B.C.) helped spawn the reforms of Josiah as people repented and tore down the numerous altars (cp. Jr 11:13) and other idolatrous paraphernalia of Baal and Molech (2Kg 23:1-14; cp. Zph 1:3-4). This included abolishing the false priests (2Kg 23:5).

Message and Purpose In view of the impending destruction of the "Day of the LORD" (1:7-18; 2:2-3), Zephaniah's primary purpose was to extend an urgent invitation. He urged the people of Judah to seek Yahweh alone in righteousness and humility (2:1-3). The immediate purpose was to warn idolatrous Judah of the Lord's imminent judgment (1:4-13). The ultimate purpose was to call out a "remnant" from all nations (Judah, 2:7-9; Israel, 3:12-13; all nations, 3:9-10) to trust in Yahweh because of the coming day of His judgment upon the earth (1:2-3,17-18).

The Day of the Lord: In biblical times, capturing a city through siege warfare took months or even years; only a truly mighty warrior king (see Yahweh's titles, 3:15,17) would claim to win a battle or even a war in a single day. The Day of the Lord was any time He "visited" earth, whether to punish His enemies (1:7-9,12) or save His people (2:7; cp. 3:17). This would result in the salvation of His people from immediate hardships in some cases (2:7,9), but the ultimate Day of the Lord will come in the end times (3:11-20; cp. Jl 3:14-21; Zch 14:1-14).

The Remnant: Zephaniah emphasized that God's seemingly all-inclusive judgment (1:2-3,17-18; cp. 3:6; Am 9:1-4) was not inconsistent with preserving a few survivors, called the "remnant" or "remainder" of His people (see note at Zph 2:9). Although God would destroy the wicked of Judah and their foreign neighbors (2:4-9), He promised to preserve a remnant—including even foreign peoples—to worship Yahweh (3:9; cp. 2:11b).

God's titles: Yahweh is both God of Israel (2:9a) and LORD (lit "Yahweh") of Hosts (2:9a-10), sovereign ruler over all armies of heaven and earth. Yahweh, King of Israel (3:15), is both "warrior" and "Yahweh your God" who saves His people (3:17; cp. Ex 15:2-3,13-18). Second, "the Lord G OD" (Hb 'adonai Yahweh), universal Master of the earth, pours out His wrath (overflowing anger) in the Day of the Lord (Zph 1:7,14-18) upon both idolatrous and complacent worshipers (1:4-13). Also " LORD of Hosts" focused on His punishment of nations that mistreated His people (2:8-10) and His "starving" of their false gods (2:11). Thus Yahweh's jealous anger is released (1:18; cp. Dt 4:23-27) not only against Judah (Zph 2:2-3) but upon all earthly kingdoms (3:8). Yahweh is a righteous God who executes justice (3:5) in the midst of rebellious Judah (3:1-4) by purging out haughty rebels (3:11). Yet because of His love (3:17), this warrior King (3:15,17) will thwart enemy oppressors to remove deserved punishment from His remnant and save them from harm (3:15-17,19).

Contribution to the Bible The promise of a remnant illustrates God's amazing grace counterbalancing His jealous wrath and blazing fury against the wicked (Nah 1:2-8). He would judge the proud nations (Zph 2:8-11,13-15) and purge the haughty braggarts from His people (3:11) to preserve the humble. Thus Zephaniah invited everyone who humbly obeyed the Lord to seek Him for possible deliverance (2:2-3). The NT highlights the wonderful truth that all of us can find salvation through faith in Christ. Paul underscored the idea of the Jewish remnant and reminded us that the remnant is "chosen by grace," not by works (Rm 11:5-6).

Structure "The word of the LORD (lit Yahweh)" (1:1a) and "Yahweh has spoken" (3:20b) frame the whole book of Zephaniah to emphasize crucial complementary messages: imminent, universal judgment (1:1-3:8) but eventual blessing for the remnant (3:9-20). The chiastic first section, interlaced by the reinforcing refrain "this is the LORD's declaration" (see 1:2-3,10a; 2:9a; 3:8a; cp. 2:5, "word of the LORD"), highlights an all-inclusive judgment.

Zephaniah 3:8 is a transitional exhortation that looks both backward ("therefore," v. 8a) and forward (wait patiently for God to consummate judgment which will yield salvation for the remnant; vv. 9-13, introduced by Hebrew ki, "for/because" vv. 9,11). To offer hope during judgment in 3:8-13 may synthesize two exhortations: 1:7 (hush/wait for the Day of the Lord's "cutting off " the wicked) and 2:1-3 (pivotal invitation to seek Him for possible salvation).

Timeline

Study Notes 1:2 The prophetic declaration, God will completely sweep away everything on earth, is hyperbole. Though no one deserved to be spared, God would preserve a small remnant of Judah and of other peoples (2:7,9b; 3:9-10,12-13).

1:3 The judgment language—sweep away man and animal (lit "cattle, wild beasts") even the birds of the sky and the fish of the sea—is more comprehensive than Noah's flood (Gn 6:7, no fish mentioned). To underscore the gravity of their sins and the intensity of their deserved punishment, Zephaniah used prophetic hyperbole (Jr 4:23-29; 9:9-11) in which creation itself is reversed; here the creatures are listed in reverse order from Gn 1:20-28 (sea creatures, birds, beasts, and man). In the phrase the ruins along with the wicked, "ruins" (Hb maksheloth; lit "stumbling blocks") were apparently idol paraphernalia, including animals worshiped by depraved people such as in Egypt or Judah (see Ezk 8:10-12 for detestable animal images in the Jerusalem temple). The Lord would destroy those idols and their worshipers.

1:5 To pledge loyalty to Milcom involved religious syncretism, combining pseudo-worship of Yahweh with worship of a false god. Here and in Jr 49:1,3, "Milcom" is spelled "Milcam" (lit "their king") in the Masoretic Text, which some interpret as a reference to Baal worship (see Zph 1:4; cp. Jr 32; 35). Yet Milcom/Milcam was more likely the Ammonite god (Jr 49:1-3), interchangeable with "Molech" (1Kg 11:7; Jr 32:35). No consensus exists about the exact nature and spelling of this Ammonite deity; if equivalent to the Canaanite god of the underworld Molech, worship of this god apparently included child sacrifice (as in worship of Molech/Milcom; Lv 18:21; 20:2-5; 2Kg 23:10; Jr 32:35). This worship continued Manasseh's pagan practices which Josiah would disrupt (2Kg 23:10-13).

1:9 Since their leaders imitated foreign customs (v. 8), to skip over the threshold probably reflected a foreign, fearful superstition (similar to a Philistine custom; 1Sm 5:4-5).

1:14 The Day of the LORD was imminent (near, v. 7; cp. Is 13:6; Ezk 30:3; Jl 2:1; 3:14; Ob 15) and rapidly approaching. On this day God would judge Judah for its rampant idolatry (vv. 4-7). On an impending day of wrath (vv. 15,18), God's rage would overflow to those who, by sinning against Him (v. 17), had become His enemies. He would unleash a storm of destruction (v. 15), primarily by enemy invaders (Ezk 38:9; cp. Jl 2:1-11). The Lord's destruction of Judah by the Babylonians in 586 B.C. (Lm 2:1-3,22; 4:11) partially fulfilled this day of His burning anger (Zph 1:18; 2:2-3) as He punished them for abominable idolatries (1:4-11; cp. Ezk 7:8-11,14-21; 8:5-18). Ultimately all earthly inhabitants would be judged (Jl 3:1-2,12-16; Zph 1:2-3) and consumed by His fiery anger (vv. 17-18; 3:8; cp. 2Pt 3:10-12).

2:3 The triple occurrence of seek prescribes an antidote for idolatry and self-sufficiency—humbly seek the LORD and righteousness (1:6b; cp. Am 5:14-15), while waiting on Him to respond (Zph 3:8). For God's people who have sinned, seeking is essential to finding Him (Dt 4:28-30; Hs 3:5; 10:12; cp. Zch 8:21-22).

2:4 In the Hebrew of this verse, similar sounding words (Gaza and abandoned) and puns (Ekron and uprooted) eloquently expressed judgment upon four of the five Philistine cities (Am 1:6-9; cp. Zph 2:5). An English approximation would be, "Gaza is a gazing stock; Ashkelon and Ashdod will be reduced to ashes."

2:7 Restore their fortunes is an OT technical formula (lit "restore the captivity") for total restoration, whether physical (cp. Jr 33:10-13) or spiritual (Ps 85:1-4; Jr 32:44; cp. Zph 3:20).

2:9 God's universal judgment (1:2-3,17-18) allowed for godly survivors—the remnant of My people or My nation (cp. Am 5:14-15; 9:8b). This remnant was primarily of Judah (Zph 2:7) and ultimately of all Israel (3:12-13). Remarkably, the two primary characteristics of this human remnant that was allowed to plunder enemies were meekness and humility (3:12). The Lord would give the godly remnant the territory of other nations (2:7,9), reversing the curse of Dt 28:62-66. He also promised to bless the eschatological remnant (Zph 3:14-17), including the lame and other outcasts (3:18-19; cp. Mc 4:6-7).

2:11 The phrase starves all the gods may indicate that Yahweh will literally cut off sacrifices (food and drink) to the "gods" (cult statues) by destroying (cp. 1:4; Jr 50:2-3; 51:43-44,52-53) or converting their worshipers (Zph 3:9).

2:15 God will judge each self-assured city (Assyria, v. 15; Babylon, Is 47:8-10) that makes God-like claims such as I exist, and there is no one else (cp. Is 45:5,6,19,21).

3:5 On in her (or "in her midst") cp. verses 15,17.

3:7 You will certainly fear Me and accept correction follows up verse 2, where Jerusalem neither "accepted discipline" nor "trusted in the Lord" (Pr 1:7; 3:5,7).

3:8 The fire of My jealousy may incorporate two OT themes: (1) Yahweh's fierce, jealous judgment of Israel by covenant curses (Dt 29:20-21) because they ignored warnings against idol worship (Dt 29:16-18); and (2) His zeal or jealousy for His people (cp. Zch 8:2), resulting in fire upon His enemies (Is 26:11) during earth's universal judgment (Is 24) to bring salvation to the remnant (Zch 8:6-8).

3:9 The phrase restore pure speech to the peoples may reflect a reversal of the Babel motif (cp. Is 2:2-4; 19:18-25) or international worship without language barriers. But its meaning apparently also involves genuine worship of Yahweh without deceit (Zph 3:13-14; cp. Rv 14:5).

Word Studies ‘evrah Hebrew Pronunciation [ev

RAH]

HCSB Translation rage, wrath, fury Uses in Zephaniah 2
Uses in the OT 34
Focus passage Zephaniah 1:15,18

‘Evrah suggests extreme anger and sometimes human arrogance (Is 14:6; 16:6). The fury of brothers destroys an entire tribe for someone’s rape of their sister (Gn 49:7). ‘Evrah is wrath and rage (Is 9:19; 10:6), perhaps in outbursts (Jr 48:30). Fury is poured out (Hs 5:10). Adjectivally, ‘evrah suggests excessive (Pr 21:24) and raging (Jb 40:11). ‘Evrah occurs with synonyms ’aph (“wrath”) (12x) and za‘am (“indignation”; Ps 78:49). Ezekiel mentions “fire of My ‘evrah” (4x). “Rod of his ‘evrah” (Lm 3:1) occurs twice. Day is modified by wrath five times (Jb 21:30), and wrath by Lord four times (Ezk 7:19). Related reflexive ‘avar (8x), different from ‘avar (“pass”), means be angry (Dt 3:26), furious, enraged (Ps 78:21,62), or easily angered (Pr 14:16). One provokes another (Pr 20:2) or meddles in quarrels (Pr 20:2; 26:17). Both noun and verb describe God more than twice as often as men.

HCSB Translation desolation, wasteland, ruin Uses in Zephaniah 4
Uses in the OT 56
Focus passage Zephaniah 2:4,9,13

Shemamah, from shamam (be desolate) , denotes desolation or desolate (Jr 34:22). It means ruin (Jr 25:12) or wasteland (Mc 7:13). Shemamah connotes in grief (Ezk 7:27). It occurs with “make” (siym : Jr 12:11; nathan : Jr 34:22; ‘asah : Ezk 35:14): make desolate / a desolation , or destroy (Mc 1:7). Shemamah with shamam implies desolate waste (Ezk 33:28). Related shammah (39x) means devastation (Ezk 23:33) alongside shemamah . Shammah denotes desolate or desolation (Is 5:9). It suggests horrible thing , horror , or object of scorn (Jr 5:30; 42:18). With “make” (siym : Jr 4:7; shiyth : Jr 50:3; or nathan : Mc 6:16), shammah is lay waste or make desolate (Jr 2:15). Both nouns with chorbah (“ruin”) imply desolate ruin . Related meshammah and shimmah (Ezk 33:29; 35:7) with shemamah indicate desolate waste . Meshammah (7x) elsewhere means desolate (Is 15:6) or horror (Ezk 5:15). Shamem (2x) means desolate (Jr 12:11). Shimmamon (2x) signifies dread (Ezk 4:16).

HAGGAI

Command to Rebuild the Temple

1 In the second year of King Darius, [a, b] on the first day of the sixth month, the word of the LORD came through Haggai [c] the prophet to Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, [d] the governor of Judah, and to Joshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest: [e]

2 "The LORD of •Hosts says this: These people say: The time has not come for the house of the LORD to be rebuilt." [f]

3 The word of the LORD came through Haggai the prophet: 4 "Is it a time for you yourselves to live in your paneled houses, [g] while this house [h] lies in ruins? " 5 Now, the LORD of Hosts says this: "Think carefully [i] about [A] your ways:

6 You have planted much but harvested little.
You eat
but never have enough to be satisfied.
You drink
but never have enough to become drunk.
You put on clothes
but never have enough to get warm.
The wage earner puts his wages
into a bag with a hole in it." [j]

7 The LORD of Hosts says this: "Think carefully about [B] your ways. 8 Go up into the hills, bring down lumber, and build the house. Then I will be pleased with it and be glorified," says the LORD. 9 "You expected much, but then it amounted to little. When you brought the harvest to your house, I ruined [C] it.
Why? " This is the declaration of the LORD of Hosts. "Because My house still lies in ruins, while each of you is busy with his own house.

10 So on your account, [D]
the skies have withheld the dew and the land its crops. [k] 11 I have summoned a drought on the fields and the hills,
on the grain, new wine, olive oil,
and whatever the ground yields,
on man and beast,
and on all that your hands produce."

The People's Response

12 Then Zerubbabel [l] son of Shealtiel, the high priest Joshua son of Jehozadak, and the entire remnant of the people [m] obeyed the voice of the LORD their God and the words of the prophet Haggai, because the LORD their God had sent him. So the people •feared the LORD. [n]

13 Haggai, the LORD's messenger, delivered the LORD's message to the people, "I am with you" [o] — this is the LORD's declaration.

14 The LORD stirred up the spirit [p] of Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, the spirit of the high priest Joshua son of Jehozadak, and the spirit of all the remnant of the people. They began work on the house of •Yahweh of Hosts, their God, 15 on the twenty-fourth day of the sixth month, in the second year of King Darius.

Encouragement and Promise

2 On the twenty-first day of the seventh month, [a] the word of the LORD came through Haggai the prophet: [2] “Speak to Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, to the high priest Joshua son of Jehozadak, and to the remnant of the people: [3] Who is left among you who saw this house in its former glory? How does it look to you now? Doesn’t it seem like nothing to you? [A, b 4]
Even so, be strong, Zerubbabel” — this is the LORD*’s declaration.* [c] “Be strong, Joshua son of Jehozadak, high priest. Be strong, all you people of the land” — this is the LORD*’s declaration. “Work! For I am with you”* [d] — the declaration of the LORD of •Hosts . [5] “This is the promise I made to you when you came out of Egypt, [e] and My Spirit is present among you; don’t be afraid.”

[6] For the LORD of Hosts says this: “Once more, in a little while, I am going to shake the heavens and the earth, [f] the sea and the dry land. [g 7] I will shake all the nations so that the treasures of all the nations will come, and I will fill this house with glory,” [h] says the LORD of Hosts. [8] “The silver and gold belong to Me” — this is the declaration of the LORD of Hosts. [9] “The final glory of this house [B] will be greater than the first,” [i] says the LORD of Hosts. “I will provide peace in this place” [j] — this is the declaration of the LORD of Hosts.

From Deprivation to Blessing [10] On the twenty-fourth day of the ninth month, in the second year of Darius, the word of the LORD came to Haggai the prophet:
[11] “This is what the LORD of Hosts says: Ask the priests for a ruling. [k 12] If a man is carrying consecrated meat in the fold of his garment, and it touches bread, stew, wine, oil, or any other food, does it become holy?” [l]

The priests answered, “No.”

[13] Then Haggai asked, “If someone defiled by contact with a corpse touches any of these, does it become defiled?” [m]

The priests answered, “It becomes defiled.”

[14] Then Haggai replied, “So is this people, and so is this nation before Me” — this is the LORD’s declaration. “And so is every work of their hands; even what they offer there is defiled.

[15] “Now, reflect back from this day: Before one stone was placed on another in the LORD’s temple, [16] what state were you in? [C] When someone came to a grain heap of 20 measures, it only amounted to 10; when one came to the winepress to dip 50 measures from the vat, it only amounted to 20. [17] I struck you — all the work of your hands — with blight, mildew, [n] and hail, [o] but you didn’t turn to Me” — this is the LORD’s declaration. [18] “Consider carefully [p]

from this day forward; from the twenty-fourth day of the ninth month, from the day the foundation of the LORD's temple was laid; consider it carefully. 19 Is there still seed left in the granary? The vine, the fig, the pomegranate, and the olive tree have not yet produced. But from this day on I will bless you." [q]

Promise to Zerubbabel 20 The word of the LORD came to Haggai a second time on the twenty-fourth day of the month: 21 "Speak to Zerubbabel, governor of Judah: I am going to shake the heavens and the earth. [r] 22 I will overturn royal thrones and destroy the power of the Gentile kingdoms. [s] I will overturn chariots and their riders. Horses and their riders will fall, each by his brother's sword. 23 On that day" — this is the declaration of the LORD of Hosts — "I will take you, Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, My servant" — this is the LORD's declaration — "and make you like My signet ring, [t] for I have chosen you." [u] This is the declaration of the LORD of Hosts.

Introduction

"So on your account, the skies have withheld the dew and the land its crops. I have summoned a drought on the fields and the hills, on the grain, new wine, olive oil, and whatever the ground yields" (1:10-11a).

Haggai challenged the discouraged people in Jerusalem to examine the way they were living and to set new priorities that would please God. They must remember that God was with them; He controls their future and wants His people to be holy.

Circumstances of Writing Author: There is no statement that strictly identifies who wrote this book, but the words recorded are repeatedly connected to what God spoke to the prophet Haggai (1:1,3,13; 2:1,10,14,20).

Background: In 587 B.C. Nebuchadnezzar came to Jerusalem for the third time, this time destroying the walls, the temple, and the city (2Kg 25:8-21; Jr 39-40). Most of the people were taken into Babylonian captivity for 70 years (Jr 25:11-12; 29:10), although Jeremiah and a few survivors stayed in Jerusalem (Jr 41-43). God predicted through Isaiah that the strong king named Cyrus (Is 44:24-45:2) would defeat Babylon and her gods (Is 46-47). After the Persian king Cyrus defeated Babylon, he issued a decree in 538 B.C. that allowed the exiled nations in Babylon to return to their homelands (Ezr 1:1-4; Cyrus Cylinder). Sheshbazzar (Ezr 1:8-11) led about 43,000 Jewish pilgrims back to the state of Yehud (Judah) to rebuild the temple in Jerusalem (Ezr 2:64-65). In the seventh month the governor Zerubbabel and the high priest Joshua led the people in building an altar to worship God (Ezr 3:1-7), then in their second year the people laid the foundation of the new temple (Ezr 3:8-10). But this effort was stopped for the next sixteen years because the Samaritan people who lived north of Jerusalem frustrated these rebuilding efforts, plus they hired lawyers to cause the Persian authorities to stop supporting the work on this temple (Ezr 4:1-5). This led to a period of great discouragement. Apathy set in because many of the hopes of the Jewish people were unfulfilled. The walls of the city were not repaired, the temple was not rebuilt, there was a famine in the land (Hag 2:9-11), and the people were still under Persian control. They could do nothing without the approval of Tattenai, the governor of the "region west of the Euphrates River," and his officials (Ezr 5:3-5). There seemed to be no way to move forward and rebuild the temple.

After the death of Cyrus, his son Cambyses became king (530-522 B.C.). He marched through Judah and conquered most of Egypt, but on his way home he died (possibly an assassination). A high army official named Darius took control of the Persian army, marched back to Babylon, defeated a rebel force led by Gaumata, and became king in 522 B.C. Darius put down several revolts and then reformed the satrapy administrative system, with the result that by 520 B.C. the Persian Empire was at peace.

In the second year of Darius (520 B.C.; Hag 1:1; Ezr 4:24-5:2) when the conflict over political control of the empire was over, God directed Haggai to encourage the leaders in Jerusalem to rebuild the temple. When governor Tattenai heard about this rebuilding, he questioned the plan's legitimacy and wrote to Darius to find out whether the government was sanctioning this project (Ezr 5:3-17). Darius approved the rebuilding campaign and even supported it through the royal treasury, as was confirmed by the discovery of Cyrus's original decree in a palace at Ecbatana (Ezr 6:1-12). Consequently, the temple rebuilding was completed in four years (Ezr 6:15).

Message and Purpose Through his messages Haggai tried to persuade his audience to glorify God by rebuilding the temple. He argues that one should not: a) focus on one's own needs (1:4); b) be discouraged because the temple was not as glorious as Solomon's (2:3); c) be unclean and unholy (2:10-14); nor d) feel useless and powerless (2:20-23).

Contribution to the Bible Throughout the Bible, there is a call and a reminder to place God first. The period following the return from exile was no exception.

Haggai's challenge was to call the postexilic community of Jews living in Jerusalem not simply to focus on their own creature comforts but to honor God. This commitment would be reflected in their work on the temple. Haggai's call was later reflected in the words of Jesus: "Seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things will be provided for you" (Mt 6:33).

Haggai's call for the people to get their priorities in order and place God first by rebuilding His temple was of great importance. For the people to return to this task was a sign of their priorities. It also showed that God was with the remnant and that His promises of restoration had begun to be fulfilled. Their obedience in this matter declared God's glory and thus brought Him pleasure. It served to vindicate the Lord since the temple's destruction had disgraced the Lord's name. Finally, their obedience to Haggai's words served as a pledge of the new covenant and the messianic age. The restoration of the temple was a sign that God had not revoked His covenant with Levi or His covenant with David. He would provide cleansing and restoration through a glorious temple and a messianic ruler.

Structure The book of Haggai contains four short confrontational speeches in chronological order that identify ways the leaders and people in Jerusalem should change their theological thinking and behavior. There is a logical progression in the structure. People must glorify God (1:1-15), stay committed to God's plans (2:1-9), please God by living holy lives (2:10-19), and serve Him faithfully (2:20-23).

Outline I. Reprimand and Call to Rebuild the House of God (1:1-15) II. Reminder of the Lord's Presence and Future Gl ory of the Temple (2:1-9) III. Religious Principles About Holiness and Uncleanness (2:10-19) IV. Restoration of Davidic Line Promised (2:20-23)

Timeline

Study Notes 1:1 The king named Darius is Darius I Hystaspes (522-486 B.C.), not the earlier Darius the Mede (Dn 5:31; 6:1,6,9) or the later Darius II Nothus (Neh 12:12). Zerubbabel is listed as the governor because under Persian control Judah (Hb Yehud) had no Hebrew king. His father Shealtiel was the son of the Davidic king Jehoiachin (1Ch 3:17). As leaders, Zerubbabel and Joshua. . . the high priest (1Ch 6:14-15; Ezr 3:2) carried the responsibility of guiding the people, so the word of the LORD was directed specifically to them.

1:2 A common name for God in Haggai is the LORD of Hosts (used 14 times). This title views God as the Divine Warrior in charge of the armies of heaven, thus He is all-powerful and directs the fiery forces of the armies of heaven (2Kg 6:16-17). Because He is sovereign, He can help the discouraged people of Jerusalem rebuild the temple. The people were saying to each other the time has not come to finish the work of building God's temple. Times were tough, and there was opposition, but God wanted His people to get on with the work.

1:4 Your paneled houses refers to the upper-income homes of Zerubbabel and Joshua. Their homes had expensive wood interior paneling to cover the ugly and uneven stones (similar to Solomon's palace in 1Kg 7:3,7). Why were these leaders spending lavishly on their own homes and giving no priority to building God's house?

1:5 Think carefully about your ways (lit "set your heart on your ways") is a call for serious thinking on the decisions the people were making and what these choices say about their priorities. Will they take the easy way out or will they follow God's ways?

1:6 You have planted much but harvested little indicates that God was not blessing the work of their hands. There must be a theological reason why these people were not receiving what they needed.

1:8 God's desire was that the people build the house and give priority to worshiping God. Whatever one does, God should always be pleased with it and be glorified by it. These are two practical theological criteria that people can use to evaluate their life and set new priorities. Jesus set the example, for everything He did was aimed to please God (Jn 8:29). The reason He came to earth was to glorify the Father (Jn 12:27-28; 17:1,4).

1:9 I ruined it (lit "I blew on it") explains why the people never had enough in verse 6. God purposely frustrated their efforts by not blessing and multiplying their produce; instead, the fiery breath of His wrath consumed almost everything. Some might ask: Why would God be so judgmental? But a more appropriate question might be: Why would God not more quickly judge those who do not glorify Him? God's house was in ruins because each man was busy with his own house.

1:10 The covenant curses in Dt 28:38-39 indicate that when God's covenant people do not love and serve Him, He will neither bless their crops nor send rain (Dt 28:23-24). Thus these problems were on your account; you caused this to happen to yourselves.

1:11 I have summoned a drought indicates that God was personally responsible for this drought (cp. v. 9).

1:12 In response the entire remnant of the people obeyed the voice of the LORD and feared the LORD . When the leaders "obeyed" God, the people followed their example. One obeys God when one fears or reverences Him; that is the time when a person puts God first and determines to glorify Him.

1:13 Above all other responsibilities, a prophet is fundamentally God's spokesman, God's messenger who communicates the theological truth that God has revealed. I am with you is a foundational promise that God gives to His people (cp. 2:4). Things may be tough at times, but God is always there to care for the people He loves.

1:14 The LORD stirred up the spirit of the leaders and the people so that they would respond. Spiritual transformation happens when God stirs up the winds of change in people's hearts, convicts them of sin, and emboldens them to act in faith.

1:15 In the second year of King Darius is sometimes connected with the date in 2:1 (the dating system in 1:1 and 2:9 includes the month and year). On the other hand, since 2:20 and 2:1 do not give the year, a shortened formula is an acceptable way of identifying a date.

2:1 The twenty-first day of the seventh month was the last day of the Feast of Tabernacles/Shelters in which the people celebrated the blessings of a good harvest and commemorated the time when their ancestors lived in tents during their wilderness wanderings (Lv 23:33-43; Nm 29:12-40; Dt 16:13-17). There was a large crowd gathered for this feast, so it was a good time to address many people.

2:3 Saw this house in its former glory . . . Doesn't it seem like nothing to you? The prophet heard what people were saying about the temple rebuilding program during the feast. Many had a negative attitude, saying this temple would be greatly inferior to Solomon's gold-covered temple (1Kg 6:2-35).

2:4 Be strong (mentioned three times) is an encouragement for the leaders Zerubbabel and Joshua, as well as the rest of the people, to be bold and firmly committed. They should not question the worthiness of building a temple to glorify God.

2:5 My Spirit is present among you promises that the power that enabled the people to escape Egypt (cp. Ex 33:14-17) was still actively present to help in this crisis situation.

2:6 I am going to shake all parts of the earth describes God's sovereignty over what will happen.

2:7 The treasures of all the nations will come is not a messianic hope, but a promise that God will provide all the gold and silver that is needed (v. 8 says they belong to Me) to make the unimpressive temple glorious. Ezra 6:8 marks the fulfillment of this prophecy, for the Persians paid the full cost of reconstruction.

2:9 The final glory of this house will be greater may be an eschatological promise (cp. Is 60:1-9; Ezk 40:1-44:8).

2:12 Does it become holy asks if touching something holy can transfer holiness. The answer is no.

2:13 Does it become defiled inquires about the transfer of uncleanness. The answer is yes (cp. Nm 19:11).

2:14 So is this people indicates that these people in Jerusalem will not become holy simply by touching the holy temple while rebuilding it. God wants people to have holy hearts; He is less concerned with the construction of holy buildings.

2:17 I struck you . . . but you didn't turn to Me describes past failures to repent and God's past discipline of them when He gave them poor crops (cp. 1:6,9-11).

2:18-19 Consider carefully from this day forward . . . I will bless you implies acts of confession and spiritual revival took place at this time. Because of this change God could richly bless their future crops and fill their empty granaries.

2:21-22 I will overturn royal thrones. Although Zerubbabel was discouraged with little power and few military resources, God promised to work on his behalf to determine who would win the wars at that time.

2:23 My servant identifies Zerubbabel not as an insignificant governor, but as a key obedient person who followed God's directions. Make you like My signet ring indicates that Zerubbabel will carry the authority to act as God's legitimate Davidic ruler, a right that God removed from the evil king Jehoiakim in Jr 22:24. This no doubt gave some hope about a future Davidic ruler who would some day rule on David's throne (Is 9:6-7; Jr 23:5-6).

Word Studies ra'ash Hebrew Pronunciation [rah ASH]

HCSB Translation quake, tremble, shake Uses in Haggai 3
Uses in the OT 30
Focus passage Haggai 2:6-7,21

Ra'ash usually describes the earth quaking (Ps 18:7), shaking (Is 13:13), or trembling (Ps 68:8), perhaps at locust swarms (Jl 2:10) or kingdoms falling (Jr 10:10). Mountains (Ps 46:3), coasts, and islands (Ezk 26:15) quake; the skies (Jl 3:16), countryside (Ezk 27:28), and earth's foundations (Is 24:18) shake. Thresholds (Am 9:1) and walls (Ezk 26:10) shake. Every creature will tremble before God (Ezk 38:20). Grain waves (Ps 72:16). The causative shows God shaking kingdoms (Is 14:16), even heaven and earth (Hg 2:6). He makes nations quake (Ezk 31:16) and horses leap (Jb 39:20). The noun ra'ash (17x) signifies earthquake (Ezk 38:19), military commotion (Jr 10:22), or the battle (Is 9:5). It is rumbling of chariots (Jr 47:3), including God's chariot with angel wings and wheels (Ezk 3:12-13). Ra'ash indicates rattling of bones (Ezk 37:7) and whirring of javelins (Jb 41:29). It is people's trembling as they eat (Ezk 12:18).

ZECHARIAH

A Plea for Repentance

1 In the eighth month, in the second year of Darius, [a] the word of the LORD came to the prophet Zechariah [b] son of Berechiah, son of Iddo: 2 “The LORD was extremely angry with your ancestors. 3 So tell the people: This is what the LORD of •Hosts says: Return to Me” — this is the declaration of the LORD of Hosts — “and I will return to you, says the LORD of Hosts. 4 Do not be like your ancestors; the earlier prophets proclaimed to them: This is what the LORD of Hosts says: Turn from your evil ways and your evil deeds. [c] But they did not listen or pay attention to Me” — this is the LORD’s declaration. 5 “Where are your ancestors now? And do the prophets live forever? 6 But didn’t My words and My statutes that I commanded My servants the prophets overtake your ancestors? They repented and said: As the LORD of Hosts purposed to deal with us for our ways and deeds, so He has dealt with us.” [d]

THE NIGHT VISIONS

7 On the twenty-fourth day of the eleventh month, which is the month of Shebat, in the second year of Darius, the word of the LORD came to the prophet
Zechariah son of Berechiah, son of Iddo: First Vision: Horsemen 8 I looked out in the night and saw a man riding on a red horse. He was standing among the myrtle trees in the valley. Behind him were red, sorrel, and white horses. 9 I asked, “What are these, my lord? ”
The angel who was talking to me replied, “I will show you what they are.”
10 Then the man standing among the myrtle trees explained, “They are the ones the LORD has sent to patrol the earth.”
11 They reported to the Angel of the LORD standing among the myrtle trees,
“We have patrolled the earth, and right now the whole earth is calm and quiet.” [e]
12 Then the Angel of the LORD responded, “How long, LORD of Hosts, will You withhold mercy from Jerusalem and the cities of Judah that You have been angry with these 70 years? ” [f] 13 The LORD replied with kind and comforting words to the angel who was speaking with me.
14 So the angel who was speaking with me said, “Proclaim: The LORD of Hosts says: I am extremely jealous [g] for Jerusalem and •Zion . 15 I am fiercely angry with the nations that are at ease, for I was a little angry, but they made it worse. 16 Therefore, this is what the LORD says: In mercy, I have returned to Jerusalem; My house will be rebuilt within it” — this is the declaration of the LORD of Hosts — “and a measuring line will be stretched out over Jerusalem.
17 “Proclaim further: This is what the LORD of Hosts says: My cities will again overflow with prosperity; the LORD will once more comfort Zion and again choose Jerusalem.” [h]

Second Vision: Four Horns and Craftsmen 18 [i] Then I looked up and saw four •horns . 19 So I asked the angel who was speaking with me, “What are these? ”
And he said to me, “These are the horns that scattered Judah, Israel, and Jerusalem.” 20 Then the LORD showed me four craftsmen. 21 I asked, “What are they coming to do? ”
He replied, “These are the horns that scattered Judah so no one could raise his head. These craftsmen have come to terrify them, to cut off the horns of the nations that raised their horns against the land of Judah to scatter it.”

Chapter 2 [a] Third Vision: Surveyor

[1] I looked up and saw a man with a measuring line in his hand. [2] I asked, “Where are you going? ”

He answered me, “To measure Jerusalem to determine its width and length.”

[3] Then the angel who was speaking with me went out, and another angel went out to meet him. [4] He said to him, “Run and tell this young man: Jerusalem will be inhabited without walls because of the number of people and livestock in it.” [b] [5] The declaration of the LORD: “I will be a wall [c] of fire around it, and I will be the glory within it.”

[6] “Get up! Leave the land of the north” [d] — this is the LORD’s declaration — “for I have scattered you like the four winds of heaven” — this is the LORD’s declaration. [7] “Go, •Zion ! Escape, you who are living with Daughter Babylon.” [8] For the LORD of •Hosts says this: “He has sent Me [A] for His glory against the nations who are plundering you, for anyone who touches you touches the pupil [B] of His [e] eye. [9] I will move against them with My [C] power, and they will become plunder for their own servants. [f] Then you will know that the LORD of Hosts has sent Me. [D]

[10] “Daughter Zion, shout for joy and be glad, for I am coming to dwell among you” — this is the LORD’s declaration. [11] “Many nations will join themselves to the LORD on that day and become My [g] people. [h] I will dwell among you, and you will know that the LORD of Hosts has sent Me [E] to you. [12] The LORD will take possession of Judah as His portion in the Holy Land, and He will once again choose Jerusalem. [i] [13] Let all people be silent [j] before the LORD, for He is coming from His holy dwelling.”

Fourth Vision: High Priest and Branch

3 Then he showed me Joshua [a] the high priest standing before the Angel of the LORD, [b] with Satan [A, c] standing at his right side to accuse him. 2 The LORD [d] said to Satan: "The LORD rebuke you, Satan! May the LORD who has chosen Jerusalem rebuke you! Isn't this man a burning stick snatched from the fire? " [e]

3 Now Joshua was dressed with filthy [f] clothes [g] as he stood before the Angel. [h] 4 So the Angel of the LORD [B] spoke to those [i] standing before Him, "Take off his filthy clothes! " Then He said to him, "See, I have removed your •guilt from you, [j] and I will clothe you with splendid robes."

5 Then I said, "Let them put a •clean turban [k] on his head." So a clean turban was placed on his head, and they clothed him in garments while the Angel of the LORD was standing nearby.

6 Then the Angel of the LORD charged Joshua: 7 "This is what the LORD of •Hosts says: If you walk in My ways and keep My instructions, you will both rule My house and take care of My courts; I will also grant you access among these who are standing here.

8 "Listen, Joshua the high priest, you and your colleagues sitting before you;
indeed, these men are a sign that I am about to bring My servant, the Branch. [l]
9 Notice the stone [m] I have set before Joshua; on that one stone are seven eyes. [n]
I will engrave an inscription on it" — this is the declaration of the LORD of Hosts — "and I will take away the guilt of this land in a single day. 10 On that day, each of you will invite his neighbor to sit under his vine and fig tree." [o]
This is the declaration of the LORD of Hosts.

Fifth Vision: Gold Lampstand

4 The angel who was speaking with me then returned and roused me as one awakened out of sleep. 2 He asked me, “What do you see? ”

I replied, “I see a solid gold lampstand there with a bowl on its top. It has seven lamps on it and seven channels for each of [A] the lamps on its top. 3 There are also two olive trees beside it, one on the right of the bowl and the other on its left.”

4 Then I asked the angel who was speaking with me, “What are these, my lord? ”

5 “Don’t you know what they are? ” replied the angel who was speaking with me.

I said, “No, my lord.”

6 So he answered me, “This is the word of the LORD to Zerubbabel: ‘Not by strength or by might, but by My Spirit,’ [a] says the LORD of •Hosts . 7 ‘What are you, great mountain? [b] Before Zerubbabel you will become a plain. [c] And he will bring out the capstone accompanied by shouts of: Grace, grace to it! ’ ”

8 Then the word of the LORD came to me: [d] 9 “Zerubbabel’s hands have laid the foundation of this house, [e] and his hands will complete it. Then you will know that the LORD of Hosts has sent me to you. 10 For who scorns the day of small things? [f] These seven eyes of the LORD, which scan throughout the whole earth, will rejoice when they see the plumb line [B] in Zerubbabel’s hand.” [g]

11 I asked him, “What are the two olive trees on the right and left of the lampstand? ” 12 And I questioned him further, “What are the two olive branches beside the two gold conduits, from which golden oil pours out? ”

13 Then he inquired of me, “Don’t you know what these are? ”

“No, my lord,” I replied.

14 “These are the two anointed ones,” [h, i] he said, “who stand by the Lord of the whole earth.” [j]

Sixth Vision: Flying Scroll

5 I looked up again and saw a flying scroll. [a] 2 “What do you see? ” he asked me.

“I see a flying scroll,” I replied, “30 feet [A] long and 15 feet [B] wide.” [b]

3 Then he said to me, “This is the curse [c] that is going out over the whole land, for every thief will be removed according to what is written on one side, and everyone who swears falsely will be removed according to what is written on the other side. 4 I will send it out,” [d] — this is the declaration of the LORD of •Hosts — “and it will enter the house of the thief and the house of the one who swears falsely by My name. It will stay inside his house and destroy it along with its timbers and stones.” [e]

Seventh Vision: Woman in the Basket 5 Then the angel who was speaking with me came forward and told me, “Look up and see what this is that is approaching.”

6 So I asked, “What is it? ”

He responded, “It’s a measuring basket [C] that is approaching.” And he continued, “This is their iniquity [f] in all the land.” 7 Then a lead cover was lifted, and there was a woman [g] sitting inside the basket. [h] 8 “This is Wickedness,” he said. He shoved her down into the basket and pushed the lead weight over its opening. 9 Then I looked up and saw two women approaching with the wind in their wings. Their wings were like those of a stork, [i] and they lifted up the basket between earth and sky.

10 So I asked the angel who was speaking with me, “Where are they taking the basket? ”

11 “To build a shrine for it in the land of •Shinar ,” [j] he told me. “When that is ready, the basket will be placed there on its pedestal.”

Eighth Vision: Four Chariots

6 Then I looked up again and saw four chariots coming from between two mountains. And the mountains were made of bronze. 2 The first chariot had red horses, [a] the second chariot black horses, [b] 3 the third chariot white horses, [c] and the fourth chariot dappled [d] horses — all strong horses. 4 So I inquired of the angel who was speaking with me, "What are these, my lord? "

5 The angel told me, "These are the four spirits [A, e] of heaven going out after presenting themselves to the Lord of the whole earth. 6 The one with the black horses is going to the land of the north, the white horses are going after them, but the dappled horses are going to the land of the south." 7 As the strong horses went out, they wanted to go patrol the earth, and the LORD said, "Go, patrol the earth." So they patrolled the earth. 8 Then He summoned me saying, "See, those going to the land of the north have pacified My Spirit in the northern land."

Crowning of the Branch 9 The word of the LORD came to me: [f] 10 "Take an offering from the exiles, from Heldai, Tobijah, and Jedaiah, who have arrived from Babylon, and go that same day to the house of Josiah son of Zephaniah.
11 Take silver and gold, make crowns and place them on the head of Joshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest. 12 You are to tell him: This is what the LORD of •Hosts says: Here is a man whose name is Branch; [g] He will branch out from His place and build the LORD's temple. 13 Yes, He will build the LORD's temple;
He will be clothed in splendor [h] and will sit on His throne and rule. There will also be a priest on His throne, and there will be peaceful counsel between the two of them. [i] 14 The crown will reside in the LORD's temple as a memorial to Heldai, Tobijah, Jedaiah, and Hen [j] son of Zephaniah. 15 People who are far off will come and build the LORD's temple, and you will know that the LORD of Hosts has sent Me to you. This will happen when you fully obey the LORD your God." [k]

Disobedience and Fasting

7 In the fourth year of King Darius, [a] the word of the LORD came to Zechariah on the fourth day of the ninth month, which is Chislev. [2] Now the people of Bethel had sent Sharezer, Regem-melech, and their men to plead for the LORD*'s* favor [b] [3] by asking the priests who were at the house of the LORD of •Hosts as well as the prophets, "Should we mourn and fast in the fifth month as we have done these many years?"

[4] Then the word of the LORD of Hosts came to me: [5] "Ask all the people of the land and the priests: When you fasted and lamented in the fifth and in the seventh months for these 70 years, did you really fast for Me? [c] [6] When you eat and drink, don't you eat and drink simply for yourselves? [d] [7] Aren't these the words that the LORD proclaimed through the earlier prophets when Jerusalem was inhabited and secure, [A] along with its surrounding cities, and when the southern region and the Judean foothills were inhabited?"

[8] The word of the LORD came to Zechariah: [9] "The LORD of Hosts says this: Make fair decisions. [e] Show faithful love and compassion [f] to one another. [10] Do not oppress the widow or the fatherless, the foreigner or the poor, [g] and do not plot evil in your hearts against one another. [h] [11] But they refused to pay attention [i] and turned a stubborn shoulder; they closed their ears so they could not hear. [j] [12] They made their hearts like a rock so as not to obey the law or the words that the LORD of Hosts had sent by His Spirit through the earlier prophets. [k] Therefore great anger came from the LORD of Hosts. [13] Just as He had called, and they would not listen, so when they called, I would not listen," says the LORD of Hosts. [14] "I scattered them with a windstorm over all the nations that had not known them, and the land was left desolate behind them, with no one coming or going. They turned a pleasant land into a desolation."

Obedience and Feasting

8 The word of the LORD of •Hosts came: 2 “The LORD of Hosts says this: I am extremely jealous [a] for •Zion ; I am jealous for her with great wrath.” 3 The LORD says this: “I will return to Zion and live in Jerusalem. Then Jerusalem will be called the Faithful City, [b] the mountain of the LORD of Hosts, and the Holy Mountain.” 4 The LORD of Hosts says this: “Old men and women will again sit along the streets of Jerusalem, each with a staff in hand because of advanced age. 5 The streets of the city will be filled with boys and girls playing in them.” 6
The LORD of Hosts says this: “Though it may seem incredible to the remnant of this people in those days, should it also seem incredible to Me? ” — this is the declaration of the LORD of Hosts. 7 The LORD of Hosts says this: “I will save My people from the land of the east and the land of the west. 8 I will bring them back [c] to live in Jerusalem. They will be My people, and I will be their faithful and righteous God.” [d]

9 The LORD of Hosts says this: “Let your hands be strong, you who now hear these words that the prophets spoke when the foundations were laid for the rebuilding of the temple, the house of the LORD of Hosts. 10 For prior to those days neither man nor beast had wages. There was no safety from the enemy for anyone who came or went, for I turned everyone against his neighbor. 11 But now, I will not treat the remnant of this people as in the former days” — this is the declaration of the LORD of Hosts. 12 “For they will sow in peace: the vine will yield its fruit, the land will yield its produce, and the skies will yield their
dew. I will give the remnant of this people all these things as an inheritance. [e] 13 As you have been a curse among the nations, [f] house of Judah and house of Israel, so I will save you, and you will be a blessing. [g] Don’t be afraid; let your hands be strong.” 14 For the LORD of Hosts says this: “As I resolved to treat you badly when your fathers provoked Me to anger, and I did not relent,” says the LORD of Hosts, 15 “so I have resolved again in these days to do what is good to Jerusalem and the house of Judah. [h] Don’t be afraid. 16 These are the things you must do: Speak truth to one another; make true and sound decisions within your •gates . 17 Do not plot evil [i] in your hearts against your neighbor, [j] and do not love perjury, [k] for I hate all this” — this is the LORD’s declaration.

18 Then the word of the LORD of Hosts came to me: 19 “The LORD of Hosts says this: The fast of the fourth month, [l] the fast of the fifth, the fast of the seventh, and the fast of the tenth [m] will become times of joy, gladness, and cheerful festivals for the house of Judah. Therefore, love truth and peace.” 20
The LORD of Hosts says this: “Peoples will yet come, the residents of many cities; 21 the residents of one city will go to another, saying: Let's go at once to plead for the LORD's favor and to seek the LORD of Hosts. I am also going.

22 Many peoples and strong nations will come to seek the LORD of Hosts in Jerusalem and to plead for the LORD's favor." n 23 The LORD of Hosts says this:
"In those days, 10 men from nations of every language will grab the robe of a Jewish man tightly, urging: Let us go with you, o for we have heard that God is with you."

Judgment of Zion's Enemies

An •Oracle

9 The word of the LORD is against the land of Hadrach, and Damascus [a] is its resting place — for the eyes of men and all the tribes of Israel are on the LORD [A] — 2 and also against Hamath, [b] which borders it, as well as Tyre [c] and Sidon, [d]
though they are very shrewd.
3 Tyre has built herself a fortress;
she has heaped up silver like dust
and gold like the dirt of the streets.
4 Listen! The Lord will impoverish her and cast her wealth into the sea;
she herself will be consumed by fire. [e]
5 Ashkelon will see it and be afraid;
Gaza too, and will writhe in great pain,
as will Ekron, for her hope will fail.
There will cease to be a king in Gaza,
and Ashkelon will become uninhabited.
6 A mongrel people will live in Ashdod, and I will destroy the pride of the Philistines. [f] 7 I will remove the blood from their mouths and the detestable things [g]
from between their teeth.
Then they too will become a remnant for our God;
they will become like a clan in Judah and Ekron like the Jebusites. [h] 8 I will set up camp at My house against an army, [B] against those who march back and forth, and no oppressor will march against them again,
for now I have seen with My own eyes.

The Coming of Zion's King

9 Rejoice greatly, Daughter •Zion !
Shout in triumph, Daughter Jerusalem!

Look, your King is coming to you;
He is righteous and victorious, [C] humble and riding on a donkey, on a colt, the foal of a donkey. [i] 10 I will cut off the chariot from Ephraim and the horse from Jerusalem.
The bow of war will be removed,
and He will proclaim peace to the nations.
His dominion will extend from sea to sea,
from the Euphrates River to the ends of the earth. [j] 11 As for you,
because of the blood of your covenant, [k]
I will release your prisoners from the waterless cistern. [l] 12 Return to a stronghold, you prisoners who have hope;
today I declare that I will restore double to you. [m] 13 For I will bend Judah as My bow;
I will fill that bow with Ephraim.
I will rouse your sons, Zion, against your sons, Greece. [D, n]
I will make you like a warrior's sword.
14 Then the LORD will appear over them,
and His arrow will fly like lightning.
The Lord GOD will sound the trumpet and advance with the southern storms. [o] 15 The LORD of •Hosts will defend them.
They will consume and conquer with slingstones;
they will drink and be rowdy as if with wine. [p]
They will be as full as the sprinkling basin, [q]
like those at the corners of the altar. [r] 16 The LORD their God will save them on that day as the flock of His people; [s] for they are like jewels in a crown, [t] sparkling over His land.
17 How lovely and beautiful they will be!

Grain will make the young men flourish,
and new wine, the young women.

The LORD Restores His People

10 Ask the LORD for rain
in the season of spring rain.
The LORD makes the rain clouds, and He will give them showers of rain and crops in the field for everyone. [a] 2 For the idols speak falsehood, and the diviners [b] see illusions;
they relate empty dreams
and offer empty comfort.
Therefore the people wander like sheep;
they suffer affliction because there is no shepherd.
3 My anger burns against the shepherds, so I will punish the leaders. [A]
For the LORD of •Hosts has tended His flock,
the house of Judah;
He will make them like His majestic steed in battle.
4 The cornerstone [c] will come from Judah. [B]
The tent peg [d] will come from them and also the battle bow [e] and every [C] ruler.
Together [5] they will be like warriors in battle
trampling down the mud of the streets.
They will fight because the LORD is with them,
and they will put horsemen to shame.
6 I will strengthen the house of Judah and deliver the house of Joseph. [f]
I will restore [g] them because I have compassion on them, and they will be as though I had never rejected them. [h]
For I am •Yahweh their God,
and I will answer them.
7 Ephraim [i] will be like a warrior,
and their hearts will be glad as if with wine.
Their children will see it and be glad; [j]
their hearts will rejoice in Yahweh.

8 I will whistle [k] and gather them because I have redeemed [l] them;

they will be as numerous as they once were.
9 Though I sow [m] them among the nations,
they will remember [n] Me in the distant lands;
they and their children will live and return.
10 I will bring them back from the land of Egypt and gather them from Assyria.
I will bring them to the land of Gilead [o]
and to Lebanon,
but it will not be enough for them.
11 Yahweh [D] will pass through the sea of distress and strike the waves of the sea;
all the depths of the Nile will dry up. [p]
The pride of Assyria will be brought down, and the scepter of Egypt will come to an end.
12 I will strengthen [q] them in Yahweh, and they will march [r] in His name —

this is Yahweh’s declaration.

Israel's Shepherds: Good and Bad

11 Open your gates, Lebanon, and fire will consume your cedars. [a] 2 Wail, cypress, [b] for the cedar has fallen;
the glorious trees are destroyed!
Wail, oaks of Bashan, [c]
for the stately forest has fallen!
3 Listen to the wail [d] of the shepherds,
for their glory is destroyed.
Listen to the roar of young lions, [e]
for the thickets of the Jordan [f] are [A] destroyed.
4 •Yahweh my God says this: “Shepherd the flock intended for slaughter.
5 Those who buy them slaughter them but are not punished. [g] Those who sell them say: Praise the LORD because I have become rich! Even their own shepherds have no compassion for them. 6 Indeed, I will no longer have compassion on the inhabitants of the land” — this is the LORD’s declaration.
“Instead, I will turn everyone over to his neighbor and his king. They will devastate the land, and I will not deliver it from them.” [h]
7 So I shepherded the flock intended for slaughter, the afflicted of the flock. [i]
I took two staffs, calling one Favor [j] and the other Union, and I shepherded the flock. 8 In one month I got rid of three shepherds. I became impatient with them, and they also detested me. 9 Then I said, “I will no longer shepherd you. Let what is dying die, and let what is going astray go astray; let the rest devour each other’s flesh.” 10 Next I took my staff called Favor and cut it in two, annulling the covenant I had made with all the peoples. 11 It was annulled on that day, and so the afflicted of the flock [k] who were watching me knew that it was the word of the LORD. 12 Then I said to them, “If it seems right to you, give me my wages; but if not, keep them.” So they weighed my wages, 30 pieces of silver. [l] 13 “Throw it to the potter,” [m] the LORD said to me — this magnificent price I was valued by them. So I took the 30 pieces of silver and threw it into the house of the LORD, to the potter. [n, o] 14 Then I cut in two my second staff, Union, annulling the brotherhood between Judah and Israel.
15 The LORD also said to me: “Take the equipment of a foolish shepherd. 16 I am about to raise up a shepherd in the land who will not care for those who are going astray, and he will not seek the lost [B] or heal the broken. He will not sustain the healthy, [C] but he will devour the flesh of the fat sheep [p] and tear off their hooves.

17 Woe to the worthless shepherd who deserts the flock! ק
May a sword strike D his arm and his right eye!
May his arm wither away
and his right eye go completely blind! ”

Judah’s Security

An •Oracle

12 The word of the LORD concerning Israel.
A declaration of the LORD, who stretched out the heavens, [a] laid the foundation of the earth, [b] and formed the spirit of man within him.

2 “Look, I will make Jerusalem a cup that causes staggering [c] for the peoples who surround the city. The siege against Jerusalem will also involve Judah. 3 On that day I will make Jerusalem a heavy stone for all the peoples; all who try to lift it will injure themselves severely when all the nations of the earth gather against her. [d] 4 On that day” — this is the LORD’s declaration — “I will strike every horse with panic and its rider with madness. [e] I will keep a watchful eye on [f] the house of Judah but strike all the horses of the nations with blindness.
5 Then each of the leaders of Judah will think to himself: The residents of Jerusalem are my strength through the LORD of •Hosts , their God. 6 On that day
I will make the leaders of Judah like a firepot in a woodpile, like a flaming torch among sheaves; they will consume all the peoples around them on the right and the left, while Jerusalem continues to be inhabited on its site, in Jerusalem. 7 The LORD will save the tents of Judah first, so that the glory of David’s house and the glory of Jerusalem’s residents may not be greater than that of Judah. 8 On that day the LORD will defend the inhabitants of Jerusalem, so that on that day the one who is weakest among them will be like David on that day, and the house of David will be like God, like the Angel of the LORD, before them. 9 On that day I will set out to destroy all the nations that come against Jerusalem.

Mourning for the Pierced One

10 “Then I will pour out a spirit [A, g] of grace and prayer on the house of David and the residents of Jerusalem, and they will look at [B] Me whom they pierced. They will mourn for Him as one mourns for an only child and weep bitterly for Him as one weeps for a firstborn. [h] 11 On that day the mourning in Jerusalem will be as great as the mourning of Hadad-rimmon in the plain of Megiddo. 12 The land will mourn, every family by itself: the family of David’s house by itself and their women by themselves; the family of Nathan’s [i, j] house by itself and their women by themselves; 13 the family of Levi’s house by itself and their women by themselves; the family of Shimei [k, l] by itself and their women by themselves; 14 all the remaining families, every family by itself, and their women by themselves.

God’s People Cleansed

13 “On that day a fountain will be opened for the house of David and for the residents of Jerusalem, to wash away sin and impurity. [a] 2 On that day” — this is the declaration of the LORD of •Hosts — “I will erase the names of the idols from the land, and they will no longer be remembered. I will remove the prophets [b] and the •unclean spirit from the land. 3 If a man still prophesies, his father and his mother who bore him will say to him: You cannot remain alive because you have spoken falsely in the name of •Yahweh . When he prophesies, his father and his mother who bore him will pierce him through. [c] 4 On that day every prophet will be ashamed of his vision when he prophesies; they will not put on a hairy cloak [d] in order to deceive. 5 He will say: I am not a prophet; I work the land, for a man purchased [A] me as a servant since my youth. [e] 6 If someone asks him: What are these wounds [f] on your chest? [B] — then he will answer: I received the wounds in the house of my friends.

7 Sword, awake against My shepherd, against the man who is My associate — Strike the shepherd, and the sheepthis is the declaration of the LORD of Hosts.
will be scattered; [g]
I will also turn My hand against the little ones.
8 In the whole land —
two-thirds [C] will be cut off and die, this is the LORD’s declaration — but a third will be left in it.
9 I will put this third through the fire;
I will refine them as silver is refined and test them as gold is tested.
They will call on My name,
and I will answer them.
I will say: They are My people, and they will say: Yahweh is our God.”

The LORD's Triumph and Reign

14 A day of the LORD is coming when your plunder will be divided in your presence. 2 I will gather all the nations against Jerusalem for battle. [a] The city will be captured, the houses looted, and the women raped. Half the city will go into exile, but the rest of the people will not be removed from the city.

3 Then the LORD will go out to fight against those nations as He fights on a day of battle. [b] 4 On that day His feet will stand on the •Mount of Olives, [c] which faces Jerusalem on the east. The Mount of Olives will be split in half from east to west, forming a huge valley, so that half the mountain will move to the north and half to the south. 5 You will flee by My mountain valley, [d] for the valley of the mountains will extend to Azal. You will flee as you fled [e] from the earthquake in the days of Uzziah king of Judah. [f] Then the LORD my God will come and all the holy ones with Him. [g, h]

6 On that day there will be no light; the sunlight and moonlight [A] will diminish. [i, j] 7 It will be a day known only to •Yahweh , [k] without day or night, but there will be light at evening.

8 On that day living water will flow out from Jerusalem, [l] half of it toward the eastern sea [m] and the other half toward the western sea, [n] in summer and winter alike. 9 On that day Yahweh will become King over all the earth [o] — Yahweh alone, and His name alone. [p] 10 All the land from Geba [q] to Rimmon [r] south of Jerusalem will be changed into a plain. But Jerusalem will be raised up and will remain [B] on its site from the Benjamin Gate [s] to the place of the First Gate, [C] to the Corner Gate, and from the Tower of Hananel to the royal winepresses. [t] 11 People will live there, and never again will there be a curse of •complete destruction. So Jerusalem will dwell in security.

12 This will be the plague the LORD strikes all the peoples with, who have warred against Jerusalem: their flesh will rot while they stand on their feet, their eyes will rot in their sockets, and their tongues will rot in their mouths. 13 On that day a great panic from the LORD will be among them, so that each will seize the hand of another, and the hand of one will rise against the other. 14 Judah will also fight at Jerusalem, and the wealth of all the surrounding nations will be collected: gold, silver, and clothing in great abundance. [u] 15 The same plague as the previous one will strike [D] the horses, mules, camels, donkeys, and all the animals that are in those camps.

16 Then all the survivors from the nations that came against Jerusalem will go up year after year to worship the King, the LORD of •Hosts , and to celebrate the Festival of Booths. [v] 17 Should any of the families of the earth not go up to Jerusalem to worship the King, the LORD of Hosts, rain will not fall on them.

18 And if the people [E] of Egypt will not go up and enter, then rain will not fall on them; this will be the plague the LORD inflicts on the nations who do not go up to celebrate the Festival of Booths. 19 This will be the punishment of Egypt and all the nations that do not go up to celebrate the Festival of Booths.
20 On that day, the words

HOLY TO THE LORD

will be on the bells of the horses. [w] The pots in the house of the LORD will be like the sprinkling basins before the altar. 21 Every pot in Jerusalem and in Judah will be holy to the LORD of Hosts. Everyone who sacrifices will come and take some of the pots to cook in. And on that day there will no longer be a Canaanite [F] in the house of the LORD of Hosts.

ZECHARIAH

Introduction

"Then the LORD will go out to fight against those nations as He fights on a day of battle. On that day His feet will stand on the Mount of Olives, which faces Jerusalem on the east. The Mount of Olives will be split in half from east to west, forming a huge valley, so that half the mountain will move to the north and half to the south" (14:3-4).

Zechariah prophesied to a group of discouraged Israelites, announcing that it was a new day for God's chosen people. He sought to inspire those who had returned from captivity to rebuild the temple and rededicate their lives to the Lord. The message of encouragement involved surrealistic visions and vivid poetic images, focused on a reversal of God's judgment, and called for a reversal of the people's behavior.

Circumstances of Writing Author: Zechariah returned to Judah with the former exiles and was apparently a priest (Neh 12:16). He was a contemporary of Haggai. Though nothing is known of cooperation between the two prophets, they had similar missions and are credited with the successful reconstruction of the temple (Ezr 5:1-2; 6:14). Zechariah gave dates for two periods of his prophetic ministry (520 and 518 B.C.; Zch 1:1,7; 7:1). Whether he was the author of the entire book is debatable. Many scholars, impressed with the differences between chapters 1-8 and 9-14, conclude that Zechariah did not write the last six chapters. It is not a major issue. The concept of authorship at the time of the Bible was different from modern standards. In the OT, there is evidence of portions of books under a single author's name that were not written by that author (Nm 12:3; Dt 34:5-12; Jr 51:64c).

Background: A key moment in the history of the Israelites came after King Cyrus of Persia granted the captives permission to return to Palestine (538 B.C.). The chosen people had just come through one of the worst experiences possible in the ancient world. Their homeland was devastated by invading armies, their capital city and temple were plundered and flattened, many of their people and leaders were killed, and most of the rest were carried off into pagan lands. The returnees who made the long trek back to Judah were faced with the challenge of reestablishing Jerusalem and the temple. Based on the account in the book of Ezra, work began immediately. But after the altar was rebuilt and the foundation stones were laid, problems arose and the work stopped (Ezr 3:1-4:24). Though sacrifices were offered on the altar, the temple continued to lie in ruins for almost two more decades.

Message and Purpose Covenant relationship: The message of Zechariah was both encouraging and challenging. With God empowering the chosen people, nothing would be impossible, not even rebuilding the temple. But Zechariah was concerned with more than bricks and mortar. The fundamental issue was the covenant between the Lord and the Israelites. God would not be satisfied with just a rebuilt temple and city. He wanted a restored relationship. Because their ancestors had failed miserably in obeying the law—by not worshiping Him in spirit and in truth and by not acting justly toward one another—God called on the surrounding nations to punish His people. Now the question was whether the returnees had learned the hard lesson and would do any better at complying with the terms of the covenant.

Criticizing and energizing: Zechariah's message carried high stakes. The remnant that came out of the captivity was the only hope for the future of Israel. Based on the track record of previous generations, strong language would be necessary to penetrate the stubborn shoulders, closed ears, and rock-hard hearts of God's people (7:11-12). The method Zechariah adopted was to criticize the worldview that was dominant in the thinking of the Israelites and to energize them with the possibility of a completely new reality. Poetry served this purpose well because it allowed for language with the volume turned up.

Contribution to the Bible The book of Zechariah is full of the language of judgment, but it is also full of God's promises. The Lord challenged His people to undertake an overwhelmingly difficult task, and He assured them of their success through His power. But the nature of these promises extended beyond rebuilding the temple. From beginning to end, the Bible tells the story of God's redemptive plan, culminating in God's triumph over evil and salvation for sinners. Zechariah's prophecies anticipate this grand culmination of history, describing a coming glorious king, a God who triumphs over all, and a world with all wrongs corrected. These promises set the stage for God's future kingdom, as evidenced by the quotes and allusions to Zechariah in the NT.

Structure The book of Zechariah is complex, sometimes with seemingly disjointed units, like a series of snapshots that need to be put in order. The apparent lack of organization may reflect the oral origin of the book, a collection of sermons that were patched together in written form. But it may also have been intentional. With the goal of shocking the hearers and bringing them to their senses, rapid-fire movement from one thought to another may have been part of Zechariah's technique. Chapters 1-8 contain carefully dated visions and sermons, while chapters 9-14 consist of undated poetic oracles and narrative descriptions of judgment and blessing.

Zechariah used a mix of genres. His sermons, poetry, and oracles of judgment and salvation were typical of the prophetic genre. But his visions had similarities with apocalyptic literature, best represented in the OT by the book of Daniel. The content of some of his oracles, describing divine intervention and a radically different world, are also typical of apocalyptic literature. Thus, Zechariah may represent a stage of development between a prophetic form and an apocalyptic form.

Timeline

Study Notes 1:1 Zechariah and Haggai began their ministries only two months apart (Hg 1:1) in the fall of 520 B.C., 19 years after Cyrus, king of Persia, issued an edict giving the Israelites permission to return from exile to their homeland. Both prophets were instrumental in the temple being rebuilt, completed in 516/515 (Ezr 5:1-2; 6:14).

1:2 The Assyrians destroyed Samaria and the northern 10 tribes, and the Babylonians demolished Jerusalem and the southern two tribes (2Kg 17:5-23; 25:8-21; 2Ch 36:17-20). The pain and suffering, the loss of homes, lives, and cities, the deportation to foreign lands, and especially the destruction of the temple in Jerusalem raised troubling questions about God's covenant promises and justice. But the prophets were united in their assessment of the Lord's extreme anger. The blast of God's judgment was completely deserved.

1:3 Return (or "turn, repent"; Hb shuv) is a key motif throughout Zechariah (cp. v. 4, "turn"; v. 6, "repent"; v. 16, "return"; 8:3, "return"; 13:7, "turn"). It applied to the Israelites in two senses: a return from captivity (a spatial return) and a return to the Lord (a spiritual return). It applied to God in two senses. After withdrawing His presence and blessing from Jerusalem for a time, "return" referred to showing favor again. God's "turn" could also denote the change from judging the people to blessing them. God's offer to return was contingent on the people returning to Him, a consistent feature of the covenant (Gn 17:1-2,9; Jr 18:7-10).

1:4 They did not listen or pay attention to Me are some of the saddest words in the Bible. For more than 200 years the prophets described disobedience in all its ugliness (3:3-4; cp. Is 57:3-9). They pictured the blessings of faithfulness in fantastic images of a perfect world, though expressed more simply in Zch 1:3 as "I will return to you" (but see the expansion in vv. 16-17; 3:8-10). But nothing worked to penetrate the cold hearts of sinners (7:11-12; 2Kg 17:14-23; 2Ch 36:15-16; Jr 5:11-13; Mal 3:7).

1:5-6 By recalling the earlier prophets and their role, Zechariah placed himself on the same stage preaching the same sermon. It was a message with enduring significance because the chosen people had an ongoing challenge—living a life of faith. Shockingly he asked, Where are your ancestors now? The futility of disobedience could hardly be clearer. The wasted effort of heroes must not be repeated.

1:7 In a society that was reinventing itself—after its leaders, cities, and Jerusalem temple were destroyed, and after being in exile for many years—the need for vision and hope ran deep. A means to penetrate the very core of the human spirit and transform deepest feelings was necessary. The solution was pictures and visions. The string of visions that came to the prophet Zechariah brought to life the answer for people on the brink of despair: God is in control and is on your side.

1:8 I looked out in the night apparently introduces all eight of the prophet's visions. They offer a mix of the ordinary and the surreal—a world somewhere between heaven and earth. Like the apocalyptic visions of Daniel or Revelation, symbolism is commonplace, often requiring an interpreter.

1:8-11 The scene unfolds gradually, with clues appearing along the way and with the angel (or "messenger") interpreting certain details. The man riding on a red horse is the one standing among the myrtle trees, and he is the Angel of the LORD. Horses may suggest speed, but the Hebrew construction translated patrol (also "walk") suggests control (cp. 10:3). Finding the world calm and quiet underscored the contrast with the turbulence that the people of Israel faced. Some details of the vision (myrtle trees in the valley and red, sorrel, and white horses) may have been included to enhance the sensory vividness of the scene rather than to convey symbolic meaning.

1:12-13 When Jerusalem was destroyed, God's glory departed (Ezk 10:1-19), and for nearly 70 years (likely a round number) God's people had no temple to rally around or a central place of worship. Though the prophets had predicted that Jerusalem would become a wasteland (Is 32:14; Jr 9:11), they also painted images of restoration (Is 2:2-5; Ezk 40-48). Thus, the angel's question of how long the mercy of the Lord would be withheld was one that God's people were eager to have answered.

1:14-17 God being extremely jealous for Jerusalem suggests the intensity of His love as well as His high expectations for His people (Ex 20:5). News that the Lord's anger was turning against the nations, who had unjustly abused the chosen few, and that God was returning to Jerusalem, denoting the end of judgment and the resumption of blessing, would have been very encouraging to Zechariah's audience. The declaration that My house will be rebuilt suggests that the function of this vision and the ones to follow was to energize the people to unite in rebuilding God's temple. On a measuring line, see note at 2:1-5.

1:18-21 This scene continues the theme of reversal (v. 15). Whereas God had used the nations to judge Israel, now he turns against those nations (cp. Hab 2). The imagery of four horns that scattered the people so that no one could raise his head suggests the terrifying power and merciless ruin enacted by Israel's enemies. The craftsmen designate skilled artisans (blacksmiths, if the horns were iron) who could cut off or carve up horns for various purposes. With the horns in the vision removed, the chosen people could return to the promised land.

2:1-5 The third vision revisits the promise of Jerusalem being rebuilt but enlarges the scope dramatically. With measuring line (1:16)—a common tool of the building trade but in regard to sacred sites signifying divine commissioning—in hand, a surveyor set out to determine its width and length, apparently intending to measure from wall to wall (probably an allusion to Ezk 40:3-42:20). But an angelic messenger spoke with urgency: Tell this young man that the city could not be measured because there were no walls (for an opposite image, see note at Is 60:10). A wall-less city symbolized three ideas. (1) The city would be so vast that walls could not contain it, because of the number of people and livestock. An ingathering of people in Jerusalem was a common motif in the prophets' language of blessing (Is 2:2-5). (2) The city would be at peace, and the only protection needed would be provided by God Himself. (3) A wall of fire around it, recalling God's fiery appearances associated with the miracle of deliverance from Egyptian captivity (Ex 3:2; 13:21-22; 19:18; Dt 4:24), makes clear that a physical wall would be unnecessary. His glory within it need not be an eschatological reference, but is more likely a reference to God's glory returning to the tabernacle or temple (Ex 40:34-35; Lv 9:23-24).

2:6-13 The extent of the divine declarations in these verses suggests that they are not a continuation of the vision in verses 1-5 but are a pause in the action. The progression of thought moves quickly. Instead of dwelling in Babylon, God called for a return to the land of promise where He would once again dwell with His people.

2:6 Continuing the theme of reversal (cp. 1:18-21), God appealed to exiles to return from the land of the north, the very people whom He had scattered like the four winds of heaven. The initial return in 537 B.C. preceded Zechariah's prophecies (Ezr 2:64-67; Neh 7:66-69). At least two more groups made the long journey (458 and 445 B.C.), while many remained behind in the dispersion.

2:7 Daughter Babylon may be a hint of tenderness toward this pagan nation, even with judgment impending (vv. 8-9). It anticipates "Daughter Zion" (v. 10) and suggests that God's love for the nation of Israel, though special, does not mean He does not love the other nations.

2:8 In contrast to judging His people, God reiterated judgment on the perpetrators of judgment (cp. 1:15,18-21). Pupil of His eye refers to the most valuable yet vulnerable part of the body and more accurately translates "gate of the eye" rather than the traditional "apple of the eye," though the poetic nature of the latter communicates more effectively. The metaphor functions to express God's deepest feelings for His chosen people (cp. Dt 32:10; Ps 17:8; Pr 7:2).

2:11 Many nations will . . . become My people underscores a paradox of unexpected double reversal. The nations that God had used to enact judgment—which in an act of reversal came under His judgment—have now come into His blessing, yet another act of reversal. This does not suggest indecision on God's part but the complexity of His mercy, shown to various people at different times, all of them sinners and none deserving. It is the miracle of grace.

3:1-10 The fourth vision signaled even more encouragement for the returnees to rebuild the temple. The priesthood, which did not operate during the exile, would be restored, and God would grant the chosen people the blessings of forgiveness, service, and peace. As the scene unfolds, the reader gradually discovers that the high priest is representative of the nation of Israel, an example of the literary device known as synecdoche, where one thing is singled out to represent the whole. The vision ends with God removing the guilt of this land and everyone inviting friends to fellowship under his vine and fig tree.

3:1-2 Joshua is the name of four different people mentioned in the OT (in the NT the equivalent name was "Jesus"). Joshua was the first high priest after the exile. He is mentioned numerous times in Ezra, Nehemiah, and Haggai. As in Jb 1:6-12; 2:1-6, Satan (or "the adversary") had access to God's courtroom and functioned as prosecutor. A burning stick snatched from the fire is the first clue that Joshua is symbolic for the chosen people, based on the prophet Amos using this same image for Israel (Am 4:11).

3:3-5 Patterned after the consecration of a high priest (Ex 29:1-9; cp. Lv 16:3-5), the forgiveness of sin is vividly portrayed by a change of apparel. The filthy clothes (lit "defiled by excrement") underscores the gruesome guilt of the people, which had resulted in the severity of God's judgment. In an unexpected reversal, which could only happen by divine decree, Joshua is vindicated and given clean clothes.

3:6-7 Lest the people become presumptuous on God's gift of forgiveness, the Angel of the LORD charged (or "admonished solemnly") Joshua that obedience was a prerequisite if he were to enjoy God's favor and perform his duties as high priest, including having access to God's presence.

3:8-10 Not only was the priesthood restored and forgiveness granted, but a descendant of David would become their ruler, as indicated by My servant, the Branch, probably a reference to Zerubbabel (Hg 2:23; see notes at Zch 4:11-14; 6:12-13; cp. Jr 33:15). The same is true for the stone of Zch 3:9 (see Is 8:14; 28:16). Seven eyes probably evoked an image of a foundation stone for a sacred site.

4:1-10 Faced with rebuilding their temple and city, the chosen people felt small, powerless, and overwhelmed. Opposition came from within and without —from the Samaritans accusing them of treason (Ezr 4:6-24), to some of their own people thinking the odds against the project were insurmountable (Ezr 3:12; Hg 2:3). But Zechariah saw things differently. God would empower the people and their leader Zerubbabel. The vision was particularly evocative: “For who scorns the day of small things?” (Zch 4:10).

4:2-3 Though the cumulative impact is evident, the vision is marked by complex imagery. Oil pressed from olives, with a wick to soak up the oil, provided the primary source of light in the ancient world. But the lampstand described here is surrealistic, with an inexplicable arrangement of containers of oil—a bowl . . . seven lamps . . . seven channels, and two olive trees—perhaps signifying an abundance of oil. On the lampstand in the tabernacle, see Ex 25:31-37.

4:4-6 The angel’s question don’t you know what they are heightens the anticipation of what the answer will be and underscores the necessity of supernatural insight. What the angel said to Zerubbabel about the Spirit provides insight into the interpretation of the lampstand. Oil was symbolic of God’s Spirit (1Sm 16:13). Thus, while Zerubbabel would be instrumental in accomplishing God’s purposes, it could only happen through the plentiful supply of God’s Spirit. This understanding of the significance of the lampstand is supported by the angel’s explanation at the end of the vision (Zch 4:14).

4:6-7 While Zerubbabel was a legitimate heir to David’s throne, his role was apparently limited to governor, even though he is spoken of in elevated terms (Hg 2:21-23). In hyperbolic language, he would be able to move mountains. But since God deserved all the credit, shouts of grace, grace to the temple were very appropriate. Though God empowers human instruments, His intent is to negate any human claim to strength or might.

4:10 Typical of other visionary texts in the Bible, these seven eyes of the LORD involve symbolism that is left unexplained (cp. 3:9). Though it is often suggested that multiple eyes may signify wisdom or knowledge, uncertainty about such details reminds readers that God is transcendent and His ways are beyond human understanding.

4:11-14 Here the image of the lampstand (see note at vv. 2-3) becomes even more otherworldly. Given the placement of this vision next to the preceding one, it is likely that the two anointed ones (Hb “two men of oil”; v. 14) are Joshua and Zerubbabel.

5:1-4 The sixth vision focuses on the Torah (the five books of the Law), which is a departure from the focus on Jerusalem and the temple in the preceding visions. The change involves a significant shift from encouragement to expectation, from revealing what God will do, to disclosing what He expects His people to do. Throughout the OT God’s covenant with Israel was presented as a reciprocal relationship—blessings were dependent on compliance (Gn 17:1-2,9; Jr 18:7-10)—and that was no less true for the returnees. Though that point had already been made (Zch 1:3; 3:7), Zechariah developed it in this vision and the next.

5:2 The dimensions of the scroll are unusual, though the proportions suggest a partly unrolled scroll, as if it were waiting to be read.

5:3 The curse for disobedience is not unexpected (Dt 27:15-26; 28:15-68). The selection of two commandments (Ex 20:7,15) is probably representative of all 10 (for different selections, see Zch 7:4-14).

5:4 Everyone is held accountable to what the flying scroll says, with the consequences of disobedience expressed in vivid terms.

5:5-11 Idolatry was characteristic of Israel's disobedience, with memorable acts of idol worship recorded throughout their history (Ex 32:1-8; 1Kg 11:1-11). Yet God sent the Israelites into captivity in a land known for pagan deities. The seventh vision with "Wickedness" being transported in a basket back to Babylon signifies that idolatry belonged there, not in the promised land. But the basket held a woman, which may be an allusion to the Israelites. Hence, the imagery may also suggest that if the chosen people succumbed again to idolatry, they would be sent back into the captivity they had just escaped (see the same consequences announced for those who had come out of the captivity in Egypt; Dt 28:68).

5:7-8 God's chosen people are represented by a bride, or else by a prostitute when behaving in an idolatrous fashion (Ezk 16:8-19; Hs 1:2-3; 2:2-13). This is Wickedness, referring to the woman in a basket, was a shocking image, not intended to demean women but to symbolize anyone who was impure. The Hebrew word for "wickedness" is feminine in gender and may be connected with the Canaanite goddess Asherah.

5:11 Shinar is an older word for Babylon (Gn 11:1-2). If the chosen people were going to be idolatrous, they might as well do it in style back in Babylon, with a shrine in their honor.

6:1-8 The first and eighth visions functioned as bookends for the intervening visions and convey the same message: God is sovereign and is in control of the whole earth. However, there is a change of outcome between the two visions. While both picture four horses patrolling the earth, when the report came in the first vision that there was peace on earth, the angel asked a troubling question about the lack of peace in Jerusalem. Visions two through seven address this question. This eighth vision (vv. 1-8) provides the final resolution. God's Spirit is pacified.

6:1-3 The mountains . . . made of bronze may represent heaven or its gates since the chariots seem to originate there (v. 5).

6:5 The chariots are identified as the four spirits of heaven. The Hebrew term ruach can refer to spirit, breath, or wind (see note at 2:6). Combining both meanings—with the four winds denoting the four directions of the compass—the point is that God's Spirit is present over the whole earth.

6:6-7 The horses going to the land of the north designate the nations that had destroyed Israel. The other direction in and out of Palestine was to the south. Thus the whole earth was patrolled.

6:8 Pacified My Spirit (or "My Spirit at rest") may be an allusion to the seventh day of creation.

6:9-15 This passage concludes the first section of Zechariah, presenting three prerequisites for rebuilding the temple. (1) There will need to be harmony between the civil and priestly leadership. (2) Israelites who have not returned from captivity should lend their support. (3) Everyone will need to be obedient to God's law.

6:10-11 The naming of specific individuals suggests that these are envoys representing Israelites still in exile in Babylon. Dedicating a memorial to them (v. 14) functioned as encouragement to those who had not returned. It was important to remain loyal to the homeland and to see themselves as part of God's chosen people.

6:12-13 On Zerubbabel as the Branch, see the fourth vision (see note at 3:8-10; cp. Hg 2:23). Joshua the high priest and Zerubbabel were previously identified as the key leaders in the building of the temple (see note at Zch 4:11-14; cp. Hg 2:2). Some see a reference to a messianic figure in this passage (see note at Zch 3:8-10).

6:15 People who are far off refers to exiles who had not returned but should have done so. Strengthening the call to return, God's authority will be validated if they come back. When you fully obey the L ORD your God is nearly an exact quote from Dt 28:1, which emphasizes contingency in the covenant. It also recalls Zechariah's introduction (Zch 1:3-6).

7:1-14 This second section of Zechariah begins in similar fashion to the first, looking back on the disobedient ancestors, their stubbornness, and the display of God's anger (1:4-6). The question still begged for an answer: Had the returnees learned the lesson of exile? Another issue under consideration was whether the temple in Jerusalem had regained its religious authority.

7:1 The second section of Zechariah is marked by a date two years later (cp. 1:1,7). Prophecies were commonly delivered first orally and written down later, sometimes many years later (Jr 36:2). In contrast to the first section of the book, which consists primarily of visions, this section is a sermon that develops themes introduced in the visions.

7:2-3 Bethel had been a center of worship for the northern 10 tribes (1Kg

12:29). Some Israelites who remained in the land during the exile worshiped there, but they were willing to defer to the authority of the religious leaders in Jerusalem as long as they found evidence of God's blessing being restored.

7:4-7 The answer to the question posed in verse 3 involved a series of convicting questions from the Lord of Hosts (v. 8), designed to accomplish three purposes: (1) to validate Zechariah as a true prophet of the Lord, for God was speaking through him as He did through the earlier prophets; (2) to demonstrate —by taking up the same concerns as the prophets of the past (Jr 14:12; Am 5:21-23)—that God was endowing the returned community with the same authority it had before the exile; and (3) to underscore what God required in order to have His blessing.

7:8-10 The prophets typically took on the role of prosecutor, generally singling out three forms of disobedience: idolatry, empty worship, and social injustice. The latter is the focus here (cp. Is 1:17; 10:1-4; Mc 3:1-4; 6:8). Taking advantage of the poor earned the most severe punishment (Jr 5:28-29; Am 5:11-17).

7:11-12 Stubborn shoulder . . . closed . . . ears, and hearts like a rock are billboard-like metaphors for the insensitivity of the chosen people. They repeatedly refused to make Yahweh their God (see notes at 1:3; 1:4).

7:13-14 With the parade of sinfulness summarized in verses 4-12, God was justified in stirring up a windstorm that scattered the participants in all directions. Typical of prophetic language, judgment is expressed in hyperbole.

8:1-8 The sermon now turns dramatically from judgment to blessing, from complete dispersion to total restoration. Spectacular blessings from God had already been proclaimed in the visions (1:16-17; 2:4-5,11-12; 3:9-10), but here they are enlarged to hyperbolic proportions, seeking to change the hearers' perception of themselves. With the returnees barely existing in the land, Zechariah sought to energize them with the potential of becoming something magnificent, but it would occur only by an act of God (8:15).

8:2 The connection between a jealous God and a God of wrath is evident elsewhere in the Prophets (Ezk 16:38,42; Nah 1:2), suggesting that His deep desire for relationship was matched by decisive judgment against anything that would interfere—whether from within or without (Zch 1:18-21; 2:9; 5:4; 7:12-14; cp. Heb 12:4-11).

8:3 In a remarkable reversal, God announced restoration instead of the dispersion just announced (7:14). Language of reversal is common in the Prophets (Ezk 16:59-60; Am 9:1-4,8-9,11-14). Whether announcing judgment or blessing, the object was the same—to enforce the covenant and encourage obedience. In the Prophets, Jerusalem was generally the centerpiece of God's blessing, with special emphasis on the Holy Mountain (Is 2:2-3; Mc 4:1-5). Calling Jerusalem the Faithful City was another reversal; it had previously been referred to as a harlot (Is 1:21; Jr 3:1-2; Lm 1:8-9).

8:4-5 In times of hostility a city's population could be decimated and the streets made unsafe, with the young and old being the first to suffer. The scene here offers an idyllic alternative.

8:6 Though the incredible blessings described may stagger the imagination, since God was the designer they were not too much to hope for (Jr 32:17,27). Several Hebrew terms suggest an allusion to Sarah's equally incredible experience—a miraculous pregnancy after years of barrenness (Gn 18:13-14). The reference to the remnant identifies the returnees as the true community of restoration, as promised in the Prophets (Is 10:21-22; 11:11,16; Jr 23:3).

8:7-8 They will be My people and I will be their . . . God indicates full restoration of the covenant relationship, in contrast to God's stunning declaration, "You are not My people and I will not be your God" (Hs 1:9).

8:9 Zechariah's sermon was presented approximately halfway between laying the foundation and the completion of the temple. Let your hands be strong (cp. v. 13; Hg 2:4) suggests that the sermon included encouragement for persistence in the work of rebuilding.

8:12 Everything the returnees could have hoped for was addressed in this sermon which was rich with blessings (cp. Ezk 34:25-29). The peace . . . fruit . . . produce, and dew were the opposite of their experience in the land during the previous two decades (Hg 1:6-11; 2:15-19).

8:16-17 The terms of the covenant made it clear that people determine their own destiny, while God responds accordingly (Jr 18:7-10). These are things you must do reveals that the function of the sermon was more than simply rebuilding the walls (v. 9). In order for the returnees to enjoy the incredible blessings that God offered, they would need to obey the covenant's standard of social justice (7:8-10).

8:19 In response to the question that initiated the sermon—whether it was necessary to continue fasting and mourning the destruction of Jerusalem (7:3,5)—the Lord announced a reversal. Fasts of lamentation were to be transformed into times of joy, gladness, and cheerful festivals.

8:20-22 The idea that residents of many cities of the world would come to Jerusalem is well attested in the OT (2:11; 14:16-19; 2Sm 22:45-46; 1Kg 10:23-25; 2Ch 9:22-24; Is 2:2-3; 27:13; 45:20; 60:3). As with Solomon, such an ingathering was a sign of greatness, both of Jerusalem and of God's presence. The image was a fitting conclusion to Zechariah's sermon. The seemingly insignificant city of Jerusalem was now seen as the most important city in the world.

8:23 In the ancient Near East, grabbing the hem of a garment was an act of submission and supplication. Since the Israelites spent years under foreign domination, to have Gentiles show submission to them would be an astonishing reversal (Gn 27:29).

9:1-17 The third section of Zechariah is different in many ways from the first and second sections, leading many commentators to conclude that it was written by a different person (see Introduction). It is an extended poem, beginning with a description of God as victorious Conqueror and King, which follows the pattern of oracles against the nations (see note at Am 1:3-2:16). Since poetry is often characterized by piling on images to emphasize a point, it is not surprising to find God's overpowering strength expressed in numerous ways and against many different enemies. The poet included obscure cities and regions not mentioned elsewhere in the Bible (Zch 9:1-2), with little archaeological or literary data preserved about them. The intent was to underscore the contrast between the enemies who would be consumed by God's power and the new king ruling from Jerusalem.

9:1 Oracle denotes a message from God, often language of judgment, here marking the beginning of a new section. For the eyes of men and all the tribes of Israel to be on the Lord would be a remarkable reversal, suggesting the reuniting of the 12 tribes (Judah and Israel, cp. 8:13) and the inclusion of Gentiles.

9:3-4 Tyre was well known as a naval and commercial power with an impregnable fortified island one-half mile off the Mediterranean coast. Alexander the Great and his army spent seven months dismantling the city on the mainland and building a causeway to the island. Tyre came under frequent prophetic judgment in the Prophets (Is 23; Jr 25:17-22; Ezk 26-28; Am 1:9-10).

9:5-7 The cities of Philistia represented the archenemy of the Israelites in the days of the monarchy. Removing blood from their mouths suggests judgment that was also an act of cleansing, bringing the people into conformity with God's law (Lv 17:11-12). Announcing that they too will become a remnant is a striking reversal, an extraordinary measure of divine compassion granted to enemies (cp. 2:11; 8:20-23).

9:8 The preceding verses denote the conqueror's movement through Palestine, from north to south, eventually arriving in Jerusalem—the path followed by Alexander the Great (332 B.C.). Some see the statement that no oppressor will march against them again as fulfilled when Alexander spared Jerusalem, but the city's subsequent destruction by the Romans in A.D. 70 suggests that it is better to understand the statement as poetic language for God's general protection (Is 45:17; Jr 17:25).

9:9 Since the days of David and Solomon the chosen people had longed for a king of similar stature, but none had come forth until the announcement of this King who is righteous. Instead of riding a mule, which was common for kings (see note at 2Sm 13:29), he would ride a donkey—signifying unexpected humility. This prophecy was recognized by early Christians as applying to Jesus' triumphal entry into Jerusalem (Mt 21:5; Jn 12:15).

9:10-15 The image of God as Divine Warrior is common in the OT (Ex 15:3-12; Jos 5:13-15; Hab 3:9-15). In this passage His actions are typical of a victorious conqueror, cutting down chariot . . . horse, and bow, extending the kingdom's dominion, releasing prisoners, and taking on distant enemies (Greece).

10:1-2 With a lack of leadership (referred to as shepherds, probably designating the leaders of the community), the Israelites had been turning to false sources of blessings. Zechariah rebuked them, instructing them to ask the LORD for rain (see Jr 14:22; Jl 2:23) instead of appealing to household deities (idols) and false prophets (diviners), which was forbidden in the Law (Dt 18:9-14).

10:3-5 The phrase My anger burns against the shepherds reflects a common concern of the prophets about inept and misguided leadership (Ezk 34:1-10; Mc 3:1-4). Conversely, when God tended His flock, they became like a majestic steed, a cornerstone, a tent peg, a battle bow, or as "jewels in a crown, sparkling over His land" (9:16). They will even put horsemen to shame. Such poetic images are designed to evoke desire among readers to be empowered in similar ways. "Cornerstone" can be a metaphor for leader (Is 19:13). It is used as a metaphor for Jesus in the NT (Ac 4:11; 1Pt 2:6-8).

10:6-9 Judah refers to the southern two tribes, while the northern 10 tribes can be denoted by Joseph, his son Ephraim, or Israel. When the chosen people were marched hundreds of miles into exile (Israel into Assyria and Judah into Babylonia), it seemed impossible that they could ever return (see note at 1:2). Once some exiles from Judah had returned, the lingering question concerned Israel. After almost 200 years in Assyria, was restoration to their land even possible? The answer was yes. God would whistle and gather them and reverse His rejection of them (Ezk 37:15-28; Hs 1:10-11). However, there is no biblical evidence that this was fulfilled. Today, after thousands of years and with the people now completely absorbed by intermarriage into other cultures, a return seems improbable (Zch 11:14). Interpreters are divided on how the ultimate fulfillment will come about and what it will look like.

10:10-12 Egypt and Assyria were representative of various nations where the chosen people went into captivity. Even though the promised land is expanded to include outlying regions (Gilead and Lebanon), even that will not be enough for the number of returnees.

11:1-11 The rich symbolism in this scene recalls the visions in the first section of the book, though here the form is more like a parable. Given the failure of the shepherds to lead the people in the right paths (see note at 10:3-5), God appointed the prophet as an imaginary shepherd. When the people failed to follow him, the Lord canceled His relationship with them and turned them over to worthless leaders.

11:1-3 Some commentators think this poem—an imaginary portrayal of the humbling of the stately forest of Lebanon—belongs with the preceding chapter, as a continuation of judgment on Israel's enemies, but it more likely introduces the judgment and humbling of Israel's leaders in chapter 11. Open your gates, Lebanon may be a symbolic reference to the temple and its gates (timbers from Lebanon were used in the building of the temple), which suggests that the leadership in view is that of the religious authorities. Thus, the emphasis on the temple in earlier chapters continues.

11:4-6 The temple precinct was full of sheep intended for slaughter, which was their proper purpose in the sacrificial system. But they had become objects for personal gain, and with their own shepherds having no compassion for them, God withdrew and turned neighboring kingdoms loose on the chosen people and their land. As is often true, sin can overturn God's stated purposes and intended blessings (Gn 3:14-24).

11:7-9 The shepherd named one of his staffs Favor (or Grace) and the other Union (or Unity), the former symbolizing the covenant (v. 10) and the latter representing reunited Israel (v. 14). But the failure of the shepherds to be good leaders resulted in letting the people self-destruct. The phrase three shepherds probably does not refer to anyone in particular.

11:12-13 The 30 pieces of silver may be an allusion to the value of a slave (Ex 21:32). Throwing the magnificent price (probably sarcastic) to the potter in the temple was an act of desecration. Matthew used some of this wording in reference to Judas (Mt 27:9-10), though stating that it was Jeremiah's prophecy that was fulfilled (Jr 32:6-9).

11:14 The hoped-for reunification of Israel and Judah was canceled (see note at 10:6-9).

11:15-16 If the people were not going to follow a good shepherd, they might as well follow a bad one, so God responded in satire and appointed the prophet as a foolish shepherd.

12:1 Oracle marks the beginning of the fourth section of Zechariah (see note at 9:1), which recapitulates themes treated earlier in the book. God's great power —highlighted by reference to creation—is now focused on Jerusalem, which God promised to protect and exalt so it would be bigger and more significant than all other nations.

12:2-8 A cup that causes staggering recalls other prophets' descriptions of the cup of God's wrath (Jr 25:15-17,27-29; cp. Is 51:17; Ezk 23:32-34). What may taste good at first—when the nations attack Jerusalem—will leave them staggering around helplessly. Jerusalem's destruction would involve moving heavy stones, but in this case the stones would be too big, resulting in severe injury to anyone who attempted it. Placing a firepot in a woodpile or a flaming torch among sheaves would result in a quick conflagration, signaling the ease with which Jerusalem's enemies would be defeated. An especially vivid picture is seeing the one who is weakest transformed into a superior fighter like David. To declare that Jerusalem would become the house of David and that it would be like God is the highest exaltation possible—an amazing reversal from God forsaking His people (11:9-10).

12:3 On that day may be translated "in the future." When all the nations of the earth gather against her may be a hyperbolic statement and not necessarily a reference to a final epic battle, even as it would be possible to refer to the many nations that had attacked Jerusalem in the past as "all the nations of the world." However, some commentators think this language refers to a specific battle in the end times (Armageddon). In either case, Zechariah's intent was to energize the current inhabitants of Jerusalem by looking ahead to God's blessings.

12:10-14 The announcement of God's blessing on Jerusalem shifts to spiritual reconciliation, which is dependent on divine grace and human contrition. The interpretive crux is the identity of Me whom they pierced, especially when the prophet declared, They will mourn for Him. The best explanation is that God's true followers will recognize that by their disobedience and rejection of the divine Shepherd, they in effect pierced God's soul. In their remorse, family after family will weep with the deepest bitterness imaginable. This verse also anticipates Jesus' crucifixion, as indicated by the quotation in Jn 19:37.

13:1-6 Continuing the theme of reconciliation begun in 12:10 (cp. 5:5-11), the oracle turns to two of the most heinous sins that needed to be washed away—worshiping other gods and prophesying falsely in God's name. False prophecy is so detestable that a counterfeit prophet's own parents would kill him.

13:2 Sin as defilement of the land (see Ezk 36:17-19; Hs 1:2) signifies the cancellation of the covenant relationship since the land was an integral element in the covenant promises (Gn 13:15-17; 15:18; 17:8).

13:4-6 A hairy cloak is an allusion to Elijah's clothes (2Kg 1:8), not necessarily an indication that all prophets dressed this way. The attempt of false prophets to hide their identity involved displaying wounds that were probably self-inflicted (1Kg 18:28). Claiming that the "wounds" were routine from a scuffle with friends would lead to more suspicion because the Hebrew word translated "friends" may denote illicit lovers.

13:7-9 Though the identity of the shepherd is ambiguous, the overall point of the passage is clear: to purge and refine, separating the true from the false. God desires followers worthy of the affirmation that they are My people (see note at 8:7-8). God scattered them and cut off two-thirds in order to gain a remnant that would sincerely say, Yahweh is our God. Possibilities for the meaning of "My shepherd" being struck include a flashback to striking the arm of the worthless shepherd (11:17). Alternatively, Jesus' quote of the lines with regard to His death and His disciples falling away (Mt 26:31) suggests that "shepherd" may have anticipated the messianic king. However, it is possible that Jesus was using the verse proverbially rather than declaring the fulfillment of Zechariah's prediction.

14:1-21 The book of Zechariah ends in classic prophetic fashion. The nations attack Jerusalem, God intervenes and blesses Jerusalem miraculously, God announces curses for Jerusalem's enemies, and the peoples of the world go up to Jerusalem to worship. Everything from cooking pots to horses' bells is set apart as holy to the lord, a privilege previously extended only to the temple and priests (Ex 28:36-38) but actually intended for the entire nation of Israel (Ex 19:6). For the prophet's audience, this would have been unimaginable, yet invigorating.

14:3-5 The venue for God's great triumph is the city of Jerusalem under severe duress, not only being plundered but with the enemy dividing up belongings in the presence of the inhabitants (vv. 1-2). Yet the victory involved a huge valley providing a miraculous way of escape. On God as Divine Warrior, see note at 9:10-15. Holy ones refers to angelic forces from heaven (Ps 89:5,7; Jd 14).

14:6-7 The otherworldliness of these events is underscored by the absence of ways to keep track of time.

14:8 Since water was a premium in Palestine, and Jerusalem was not near a river, the picture of a year-round source of living water flowing from the city with sufficient quantity to reach the Dead Sea and the Mediterranean Sea was inspiring. It would require supernatural redesign of the geography of the region. "Living water" refers to fresh spring water as opposed to water stored in cisterns.

14:9 Yahweh alone, and His name alone is the starting point for true faith, the opposite of idolatry (Dt 6:4).

14:10 Isaiah envisioned Jerusalem to be the highest mountain on the world, with people streaming to it from all over the earth (Is 2:2-3; cp. Mc 4:1-2). Here the picture is of people coming to Jerusalem for the Feast of Tabernacles (Dt 16:13-15).

14:11 Never again is likely standard hyperbolic language for God's protection (see note at 9:8).

14:17-19 Along with the promises of God's blessings comes a reminder that humans may choose a path that will lead them away from what God offers. Rain will not fall on them is stock language of judgment.

14:21 Canaanite was a pejorative term since the Israelites considered the Canaanites vile and morally reprehensible. But the Israelites had become "Canaanites" by their disobedience. The announcement that there would be no Canaanite in the temple signified the purity of God's chosen people.

HCSB Translation great, large, old Uses in Zechariah 10
Uses in the OT 527
Focus passage Zechariah 1:15

Gadol means great but has broader applications. Gadol is old (Gn 19:11), large (Neh 5:7), and loud (Gn 27:34). It is high (Ps 57:10), particularly regarding the high priest (Hg 1:14). Gadol connotes wealthy (2Sm 19:32), famous (Est 10:3), and prominent (2Kg 4:8), as well as remarkable (Ex 3:3), significant (Ec 9:13), and important (Ex 18:22). But it is monstrous (2Kg 8:13), terrible (1Sm 6:9), or violent (Jnh 1:4). Nominally, gadol signifies the rich (Lv 19:15), noble (Jr 52:13), and powerful (Jr 5:5). Speaking "great things" implies boastfully (Ps 12:3). Gadol suggests fiercely with respect to the literal phrase "angry with great anger" (Zch 1:15). A "thing small or great" is anything (1Sm 25:36). Like other adjectives, gadol can mean greater and greatest or larger and largest. According to context it denotes severe (Gn 12:17), widespread (Neh 5:1), heavy (Dt 25:13), or broad (Gn 29:7).

Focus passage Zechariah 8:14

Qatsaph means be angry (Gn 40:2). People are furious (Nm 31:14), enraged (Is 8:21), or infuriated (Est 2:21). God grows angry (Dt 1:34), directs fierce anger (Dt 9:19), or vents wrath (Nm 16:22). The causative verb denotes provoke (Dt 9:7), provoke to anger (Zch 8:14), or anger (Ps 106:32). Qetseph (28x) signifies divine wrath (21x: Nm 18:5) or anger (Is 54:8) and twice indicates human anger (Ec 5:17) or fury (Est 1:18). Qatsaph with qetseph implies being extremely angry (Zch 1:2). While Zch 1:15 mentions being a little angry, this root seems one of the strongest words for anger. Qetseph is synonymous with chemah ("wrath, fury"), but in a pair or series qetseph appears last, sometimes modified by "great," as the most intense word: God uprooted people in His anger, fury, and great wrath (Dt 29:28). Aramaic counterparts of the verb (Dn 2:12) and noun (Ezr 7:23) occur.

Focus passage Zechariah 9:6

Ga'on, part of a large word family, denotes good (Is 4:2) or bad (Lv 26:19) pride. It is majesty (Ex 15:7) or splendor (Is 14:11) but also arrogance (Hs 5:5). Ga'on means thicket (Jr 12:5). Adjectivally, it is proud (Jb 38:11) or majestic (Mc 5:4). The verb ga'ah (7x) signifies be exalted (Ex 15:1) or proud (Jb 10:16), rise (Ezk 47:5), and grow (Jb 8:11). Ga'awah (19x) is good (Jb 41:15) and bad (Is 9:9) pride. It is majesty (Dt 33:26), positive boasting (Dt 33:29), and triumph (Is 13:3) but also haughtiness (Is 16:6), arrogance (Ps 10:2), and turmoil (Ps 46:3). The adjective ge'eh (8x), proud (Is 2:12), functions nominally as pride (Jr 48:29) or proud person (Jb 40:11). Ge'wah (3x) and ge'ah (Pr 8:13) denote pride (Jb 33:17). Once ge'wah imperatively requests lifting up (Jb 22:29). Ga'ayon (Ps 123:4) and ge' (Is 16:6) signify proud.

MALACHI

The LORD's Love for Israel

1 An •oracle : [a] The word of the LORD [b] to Israel through [c] Malachi. [d]

2 "I have loved you," [e] says the LORD.

But you ask: "How have You loved us? "

"Wasn't Esau Jacob's brother? " [f] This is the LORD's declaration. "Even so, I loved Jacob, 3 but I hated Esau. [g] I turned his mountains into a wasteland, and gave his inheritance to the desert jackals." [h]

4 Though Edom says: "We have been devastated, but we will rebuild [A] the ruins," the LORD of •Hosts says this: "They may build, but I will demolish. They will be called a wicked country [i] and the people the LORD has cursed [B] forever. [j]

5 Your own eyes will see this, and you yourselves will say, 'The LORD is great, even beyond [C] the borders of Israel.' [k]

Disobedience of the Priests 6 "A son honors his father, and a servant his master. But if I am a father, where is My honor? And if I am a master, where is your •fear of Me? [l] says •Yahweh of Hosts to you priests, who despise My name."

Yet you ask: "How have we despised Your name? "

7 "By presenting defiled food on My altar."

You ask: "How have we defiled You? " [m]

When you say: "The LORD's table is contemptible." [n]

8 "When you present a blind animal for sacrifice, is it not wrong? And when you present a lame or sick animal, is it not wrong? [o] Bring it to your governor! Would he be pleased with you or show you favor? " asks the LORD of Hosts.

9 "And now ask for God's favor. Will He be gracious to us? [p] Since this has come from your hands, will He show any of you favor? " [q] asks the LORD of Hosts. 10 "I wish one of you would shut the temple doors, [r] so you would no longer kindle a useless fire on My altar! [s] I am not pleased with you," says the LORD of Hosts, "and I will accept [t] no offering from your hands. [u]

11 "For My name will be great among the nations, [v] from the rising of the sun to its setting. Incense [D] and pure offerings will be presented in My name in every place because My name will be great among the nations," [E] says Yahweh of Hosts.

12 But you are profaning it [w] when you say: "The Lord's table is defiled, and its product, its food, is contemptible." 13 You also say: "Look, what a nuisance! " "And you scorn [F] it," [x, y] says the LORD of Hosts. "You bring stolen, [G, z] lame, or sick animals. You bring this as an offering! Am I to accept that from your hands? " asks the LORD.

14 “The deceiver is cursed who has an acceptable male in his flock and makes a vow but sacrifices a defective animal to the Lord. [a] For I am a great King,” says Yahweh of Hosts, “and My name [H] will be feared among the nations.

Warning to the Priests

2 “Therefore, this decree [a] is for you priests: [2] If you don’t listen, and if you don’t take it to heart [b] to honor My name,” says •Yahweh of •Hosts , “I will send a curse among you, and I will curse your blessings. [c] In fact, I have already begun to curse them because you are not taking it to heart.
[3] “Look, I am going to rebuke your descendants, [d] and I will spread animal waste [e] over your faces, the waste from your festival sacrifices, [f] and you will be taken away with it. [4] Then you will know that I sent you this decree so My covenant with Levi [g] may continue,” says the LORD of Hosts. [5] “My covenant with him was one of life and peace, [h] and I gave these to him; it called for reverence, and he revered Me and stood in awe of My name. [i] [6] True instruction was in his mouth, and nothing wrong was found on his lips. He walked with Me [j] in peace and fairness and turned many from sin. [k] [7] For the lips of a priest should guard knowledge, and people should seek instruction from his mouth, because he is the messenger of the LORD of Hosts. [l] [8] “You, on the other hand, have turned from the way. [m] You have caused many to stumble [n] by your instruction. You have violated [A] the covenant of Levi,” says the LORD of Hosts. [9] “So I in turn have made you despised [o] and humiliated before all the people because you are not keeping My ways but are showing partiality in your instruction.” [p]

Judah’s Marital Unfaithfulness [10] Don’t all of us have one Father? [q] Didn’t one God create us? [r] Why then do we act treacherously against one another, [s] profaning [t] the covenant of our fathers? [u] [11] Judah has acted treacherously, and a detestable [v] thing has been done in Israel and in Jerusalem. For Judah has profaned [w] the LORD’s sanctuary, [B, x] which He loves, [y] and has married the daughter of a foreign god. [z, a] [12] To the man who does this, may the LORD cut off [b] any descendants [c, C] , [d] from the tents of Jacob, even if they present an offering to the LORD of Hosts.
[13] And this is another thing you do: you cover the LORD’s altar with tears, with weeping and groaning, [e] because He no longer respects your offerings or receives them gladly from your hands. [f] [14] Yet you ask, “For what reason? ” Because the LORD has been a witness [g] between you and the wife of your youth. [h] You have acted treacherously against her, though she was your marriage partner [i] and your wife by covenant. [j] [15] Didn’t the one God make us with a remnant of His life-breath? And what does the One seek? [D] A godly •offspring . So watch yourselves carefully, [E, k] and do not act treacherously against the wife of your youth.

16 “If he hates [l] and divorces his wife, [m] ” says the LORD God of Israel, “he [F] covers his garment with injustice,” [n] says the LORD of Hosts. Therefore, watch yourselves carefully, [G] and do not act treacherously.

Judgment at the LORD’s Coming 17 You have wearied the LORD [o] with your words.

Yet you ask, “How have we wearied Him? ”

When you say, “Everyone who does what is evil is good in the LORD’s sight, and He is pleased with them,” [p] or “Where is the God of justice? ” [q]

3 “See, I am going to send My messenger, [a] and he will clear the way before Me. [b] Then the Lord you seek [c] will suddenly come to His temple, [d] the Messenger of the covenant you desire — see, He is coming,” says the LORD of •Hosts . 2 But who can endure the day of His coming? And who will be able to stand when He appears? [e] For He will be like a refiner’s fire [f] and like cleansing
lye. [g] 3 He will be like a refiner and purifier of silver; He will purify the sons of Levi and refine them like gold and silver. [h] Then they will present offerings to the LORD in righteousness. 4 And the offerings of Judah and Jerusalem will please the LORD as in days of old [i] and years gone by.

5 “I will come to you in judgment, and I will be ready to witness against sorcerers and adulterers; against those who swear falsely; against those who oppress the widow and the fatherless, and cheat the wage earner; and against those who deny justice to the foreigner. [j] They do not •fear Me,” [k] says the LORD of Hosts. 6 “Because I, •Yahweh , have not changed, [l] you descendants of Jacob have not been destroyed. [m]

Robbing God

7 “Since the days of your fathers, you have turned from My statutes; you have not kept them. [n] Return to Me, [o] and I will return to you,” [p] says the Lord of Hosts.

But you ask: “How can we return? ”

8 “Will a man rob [q] God? Yet you are robbing Me! ”

You ask: “How do we rob You? ”

“By not making the payments of the tenth and the contributions. [r] 9 You are suffering under a curse, yet you — the whole nation — are still robbing Me.
10 Bring the full tenth into the storehouse [s] so that there may be food in My house. [t] Test Me in this way,” [u] says the Lord of Hosts. “See if I will not open the floodgates of heaven [v] and pour out a blessing for you without measure. [w] 11 I will rebuke the devourer [x, y] for you, so that it will not ruin the produce of your land and your vine in your field will not fail to produce fruit,” says the Lord of Hosts. 12 “Then all the nations will consider you fortunate, for you will be a delightful land,” says the Lord of Hosts.

The Righteous and the Wicked 13 “Your words against Me are harsh,” [z] says
the Lord.

Yet you ask: “What have we spoken against You? ”

14 You have said: “It is useless to serve God. What have we gained by keeping His requirements [a] and walking mournfully [b] before the Lord of Hosts? 15 So now we consider the arrogant [c] to be fortunate. [d] Not only do those who commit wickedness prosper, they even test God [e] and escape.” [f]

16 At that time those who feared the Lord spoke to one another. The Lord took notice and listened. So a book of remembrance [g] was written before Him for those who feared Yahweh and had high regard for His name. 17 “They will be Mine,” says the Lord of Hosts, [h] “a special possession on the day I am preparing. I will have compassion on them as a man has compassion on his son who serves him. [i] 18 So you will again see the difference between the righteous and the wicked, between one who serves God and one who does not serve Him.

The Day of the LORD Chapter 4 [a]

[1]"For indeed, the day is coming, burning like a furnace, when all the arrogant and everyone who commits wickedness will become stubble. The coming day will consume them," says the LORD of •Hosts , "not leaving them root or branches. [2] But for you who •fear My name, the sun of righteousness will rise with healing in its wings, [b] and you will go out and playfully jump like calves from the stall. [A 3] You will trample the wicked, for they will be ashes under the soles of your feet on the day I am preparing," says the LORD of Hosts.

A Final Warning

4 “Remember the instruction of Moses My servant, the statutes and ordinances
I commanded him at Horeb [c] for all Israel. 5 Look, I am going to send you Elijah the prophet [d] before the great and awesome Day of the LORD comes. [e] 6 [f] And he will turn the hearts of fathers to their children and the hearts of children to their fathers. [g] Otherwise, I will come and strike the land [B] with a curse.”

Introduction

"For My name will be great among the nations, from the rising of the sun to its setting" (1:11).

Malachi is the last prophetic message from God before the close of the Old Testament period (although non-prophetic books such as Ezra-Nehemiah and Chronicles may have been written later). This small book captures the essential message of the Old Testament and shows the reader the nature of God and our relationship and responsibility to Him and to others in the covenant community.

Circumstances of Writing Author: Nothing is known about the author except his name. The book emphasizes the message rather than the messenger; God is the speaker in about 47 of the 55 verses. The one prophesied in 3:1 to "clear the way" for God to come to His temple is identified as (Hb) malakiy, "My messenger," a word identical to the name of the book's author.

Background: Although the book is not dated by a reference to a ruler or a specific event, internal evidence, as well as its position in the canon, favors a postexilic date. Reference to a governor in 1:8 favors the Persian period when Judah was a province or sub-province of the Persian satrapy Abar Nahara, which included Palestine, Syria, Phoenicia, Cyprus, and, until 485 B.C., Babylon. The temple had been rebuilt (515 B.C.) and worship reestablished there (1:6-11; 2:1-3; 3:1,10). But the excitement and enthusiasm for which the prophets Haggai and

Zechariah were the catalysts had waned. The social and religious problems that Malachi addressed reflect the situation portrayed in Ezra 9 and 10 and Nehemiah 5 and 13, suggesting dates not long before Ezra's return to Judah (ca 460 B.C.) or Nehemiah's second term as governor of Judah (Neh 13:6-7; ca 435 B.C.). Linguistic data favors the earlier date.

Message and Purpose Like Nahum (Nah 1:1) and Habakkuk (Hab 1:1), this book is called an "oracle" (Mal 1:1). This Hebrew word massa is found 20 times in the OT (e.g., 2Kg 9:25; Is 13:1; Zch 9:1; 12:1). Once thought to mean "burden," it is now understood to refer to a divine pronouncement through God's prophet.

Indictment: Malachi presented Judah's sins largely by quoting their own words, repeating their own thoughts, and describing their own attitudes (1:2,6-7,12-13; 2:14,17; 3:7-8,13-15). Malachi was faced with the failure of the priests to fear God and to serve the people conscientiously during difficult times. This had contributed to Judah's indifference toward God. Blaming their economic and social troubles on His supposed unfaithfulness, the people were treating one another faithlessly (especially their wives) and were profaning the temple by marrying pagan women. They were also withholding their tithes.

Instruction: God commanded sincere worship with genuine faith and humility. This included honoring Him with pure offerings, being faithful to human covenants, especially marriage covenants, and renewing the tithe of all they acquired to signify their recognition of Yahweh as their God and King.

Judgment: If the priests would not change their behavior, God would curse them and remove them from service. Malachi also announced a coming day when the "God of justice" would come to judge the wicked and refine His people (Mt 3:12; 13:24-30).

Hope: As other incentives to obedience, Malachi pointed to (1) God's demonstrations of love for Israel (1:2); (2) their spiritual and covenant unity with God and with one another (2:10); and (3) a coming day of salvation and blessing for those who fear Him (3:1-6; 3:16-4:3).

Contribution to the Bible Malachi was the last prophetic message from God before the close of the OT period. This book is a fitting conclusion to the OT and a transition for understanding the kingdom proclamation in the NT. Malachi spoke to the hearts of a troubled people whose circumstances of financial insecurity, religious skepticism, and personal disappointments were similar to those often experienced by God's people today. The book contains a message that must not be overlooked by those who wish to encounter God and His kingdom and to lead others to a similar encounter. We have a great, loving, and holy God, who has unchanging and glorious purposes for His people. Our God calls us to genuine worship, fidelity to Himself and to one another, and to expectant faith in what He is doing and says He will do in this world and for His people.

God's love is paramount. It is expressed in Malachi in terms of God's election and protection of Israel above all the nations of the world. Since God had served the interests of Judah out of His unchanging love, He required Judah to live up to its obligations by obedience, loyalty, and sincere worship. This love relationship between God and Judah is the model for how people were expected to treat other members of the redeemed community. They were required to be faithful in all their dealings with one another.

As a community devoted to God, His people enjoy His protection and provision. But failure to live right before God and one another will bring God's judgment. Thus, God's people could not expect the joy of His blessings if they continued to fail in their duties to Him and to one another. Before God would hold Judah in the balance of judgment, He would grant one last call for repentance. A forerunner would precede the fearsome Day of the Lord and herald the coming of God's kingdom on earth.

Structure Malachi's message is communicated in three interrelated addresses. Each address contains five sections arranged in a mirror-like repetitive structure surrounding a central section (a-b-c-b-a). The first two addresses begin with positive motivation or hope (1:2-5; 2:10a) and end with negative motivation or judgment (2:1-9; 3:1-6). In between is God's indictment (1:6-9 and 1:11-14; 2:10b-15a and 2:17) surrounding His commands (1:10; 2:15b-16). The final climactic address begins and ends with commands to repent (3:7-10a; 4:4-6). In between are sections of motivation (3:10b-12; 3:16-4:3) surrounding the indictment (3:13-15).

Outline I. Priests Exhorted to Honor Yahweh (1:1-2:9) A. Positive motivation: the Lord's love (1:2-5) B. Situation: failure to honor the Lord (1:6-9) C. Command: stop the vain offerings (1:10) D. Situation: priests profane the Lord's name (1:11-14) E. Negative motivation: results of disobedience (2:1-9) II. Judah Exhorted to Faithfulness (2:10-3:6) A. Positive motivation: spiritual kinship among Israel (2:10a) B. Situation: faithlessness against a covenant member (2:10b-15a) C. Command: stop acting faithlessly (2:15b-16) D. Situation: complaints of the Lord's injustice (2:17) E. Negative motivation: coming messenger of judgment (3:1-6) III. Judah Exhorted to Return to the Lord (3:7-4:6) A. Command: return to the Lord with tithes (3:7-10a) B. Positive motivation: future blessing (3:10b-12) C. Situation: complacency in serving the Lord (3:13-15) D. Motivation: the coming Day of the Lord (3:16-4:3) E. Command: remember the law (4:4-6) Timeline

Study Notes 1:2 To motivate God's demand for proper worship (vv. 6-14), for marital faithfulness (2:10b-17), and for wholehearted commitment to God signified by acknowledging His ownership of all they had (3:7-4:6), the Lord reminded the people in 1:2-5 of His faithful love throughout their history (Jr 31:3). But Judah disputed God's love, showing they had allowed life's trials to blind them to His faithfulness and loving presence. Such spiritual depletion was at the root of not only Israel's insulting religious rites (Mal 1:6-14), but also the moral decay and spiritual indifference that Malachi described.

1:3-5 God's love had been abundantly demonstrated in recent history, in contrast to His dealings with the nation of Edom (descended from Jacob's twin brother; Gn 25). Someday Israel would no longer doubt His love (Mal 1:5; cp. Jr 31:33-34; 33:8-11; Zch 12:10). God had demonstrated His love by choosing Israel out of all the nations for an intimate relationship (Ex 19:4; Dt 7:6) and by His subsequent faithfulness. "I loved Jacob" refers to God's choosing him over Esau as recipient and instrument of His blessing (Gn 25:23; Rm 9:10-13) as well as to God's enduring love for Jacob's descendants. God hated Esau insomuch as He did not choose to make a covenant of blessing with him and his descendants (the Edomites) but instead destroyed them for their rebellion. That nation was noted for its pride, treachery, greed, and violence (Jr 49:7-22; Am 1:9-12; Obadiah). Although God disciplined Israel severely, He did not destroy them completely (Neh 9:31; Jr 31:3) as He had done with Edom.

1:6 The only appropriate response to God's holiness is fear, which is essential to wisdom (Pr 1:7; Mc 6:9) and true faith (Is 33:6; 50:10), as well as wholehearted devotion and obedience.

1:7 The temple altar is compared to a divinely hosted dinner table, a symbol of hospitality and relationship (Ezk 44:16). Their casual attitude toward the altar betrayed how little the people valued their relationship with God.

1:10 King Ahaz in earlier years had shut the temple doors to pursue the worship of idols (2Ch 28:24). Religious activity not rooted in humble adoration of God as the source of all goodness and authority is not only useless "fig-leaf religion" but is repulsive to Him because it slanders His character (Pr 15:8; Is 1:10-17; Am 5:21-23; Rm 14:23; Heb 11:6).

1:11-14 A time is coming when even Gentiles everywhere will recognize Yahweh's greatness and worship Him (Is 59:19; Ezk 36:20-36; 39:7; Mt 8:11-12; Rm 11:11-12). But God's own children, His kingdom of priests who were to mediate His grace to the nations, were profaning His name. God's "name" is His nature, character, and worth as He reveals it in His words and acts (Gn 16:13; 17:5; 22:14; Ex 33:19; 1Kg 8:43). Those who claim to belong to Him ("are called by [His] name"; Dt 28:10; 2Ch 7:14; Is 43:7) proclaim His character in both their worship (the phrase "call on the name of Yahweh" [Gn 4:26; 21:33] refers to praise or worship [Gn 12:8; Dt 32:3] as well as petition) and their behavior. If their worship or behavior misrepresents God's holy character, it "profanes" His name. This desecrates Him, damages His reputation, brings Him disgrace, and will not be tolerated (Lv 22). This is what Israel had done before the exile and was doing again.

2:1-3 In addition to the positive motivation of 1:2-5, God decreed that if the priests' attitude and behavior did not change, He would treat them with contempt (as they had treated Him) and would remove them from service (Lv 10:1-3; 1Sm 2:29-36; Ezk 44:6-14; Hs 4:6-8). The waste consisted of the dung and unclean sacrificial remains after a temple festival that were disposed of "outside the camp" (Ex 29:14; Lv 16:27-28). God had entrusted the priests with the spiritual well-being of Israel (Nm 25:11-13; Dt 33:8-11). By the time of Jesus the Jerusalem priesthood was under God's curse (Mt 16:21; 21:23-46). But the promise of a lasting Levitical priesthood was still in effect (Jr 33:17-22; Mal 3:3-4).

2:4-9 The covenant with or of Levi in verses 4 and 8 refers not to a covenant with the son of Jacob but to the "covenant of peace" that God made with the Levite Phinehas, Aaron's grandson. God promised Phinehas and his descendants a "perpetual priesthood" in return for his zeal in protecting Israel from the corruption of idolatry (Nm 25:1-13). The entire tribe of Levi had earlier been set apart by God after a similar act of faithfulness at Mount Sinai (Ex 32:26-29). They were assigned responsibility for the sanctuary and worship (Dt 10:8-9; Neh 13:29). The tribe's function was to teach the law to Israel (and in that sense to be God's messenger and to officiate at the altar (Lv 10:8-11; Dt 33:8-11). The Levitical covenant was renewed in Jr 33:14-22 in connection with the Davidic covenant, though it was narrowed in Ezk 44:10-16 to the descendants of Zadok (1Sm 2:35; 1Kg 2:27). Although the priests had violated the covenant, 3:3-4 shows it would remain in effect. That teachers of God's Word could be described as "messengers" implies the ongoing relevance of God's past instructions and shows the continuing importance of the role of biblical teachers among God's people.

2:10 The people were failing to honor their covenant relationships with one another. The word act treacherously (Hb bagad) that occurs in verses 10,11,14,15,16 designates failure to fulfill one's promised obligations—i.e., to betray another. A person who does this is a traitor (Is 21:2). The covenant of our fathers is the Mosaic covenant (Jdg 2:20; 1Kg 8:21). To "profane" it meant to treat it with contempt (Mal 1:12; 2:11) by violating it.

2:11-12 The most obvious way Judah was violating the covenant was by intermarriage with women who worshiped foreign gods, thus introducing a spiritually destructive element into the covenant community (Ex 34:11-16; Dt 7:3-4; Ezr 9:1-2; Neh 13:26; 2Co 6:14-17). A detestable act was one that caused such serious defilement that destruction or death was required (Lv 18:29; Dt 7:25; 13:15; Jr 44:22-23). Anyone who did this was cursed (Mal 2:12). Descendants is a reasonable rendering of a difficult phrase on the basis of parallels in 1Kg 14:10; Is 14:22; Jr 44:7. The last clause (lit "and presenting an offering to Yahweh of hosts") probably explains more precisely why their sin profaned the sanctuary: they were continuing to sacrifice to God despite their sin.

2:13-14 To marry pagan women, some men were divorcing their Jewish wives to whom they had sworn faithfulness before God. Another thing you do is not the weeping of verse 13, but introduces the issue of divorce in verse 14 (you cover could be rendered "while covering"). Divorce was the second detestable act of treachery that was profaning the sanctuary (v. 11). The verb forms in verses 13-14 are different from those in verses 11-12. This may suggest that Malachi was even more concerned with divorce than with intermarriage. Divorce profaned the sanctuary because the people continued to offer their sacrifices (v. 13) despite their marital betrayals. God's refusal to respond favorably to their offerings (hence their tears; see Gn 4:4-5; Ps 6:6-9) was probably linked to their continuing economic and social troubles (Neh 9:32-37; Hg 1:6,9-11; 2:16-19). Persistent sin renders worship meaningless. Marriage partner renders a word for someone with whom one is bound by friendship, common goals and commitments, kinship, or covenant, the latter being the case here. On marriage as covenantal, see Pr 2:17; Ezk 16:8,59-62; Hs 2:16-20.

2:15 The translation and point of verse 15a is unclear, but it seems to indicate that the marriage bond is not only earthly and easily dissolved, but that it is the product of God's Spirit, whose purpose is to produce godly offspring.

2:16 This verse ends by repeating verse 15b with one significant change. After speaking to "you" in verses 13-15a, verse 15b switches back to third person "he" as in verses 11-12, ending literally, "and with the wife of your youth let him not act treacherously." Then after a conjunction opening verse 16 (meaning "because," "if," "when," "that," or "indeed") is a verb that clearly means "he hates," although most translations change it to "I hate." But the subject apparently is the one who "acts treacherously," and who also covers his garment with injustice. The one speaking is the LORD God of Israel, and contrary to KJV, NKJV, etc., there is no indication of indirect discourse ("says that"), so God cannot be the subject of "he hates." This verse specifies how wives were being betrayed. Their husbands were "hating" so as to "divorce" (a Hb infinitive) them for no legitimate reason (Dt 24:3), which was a heinous injustice. Such a cold-blooded and unscrupulous traitor to his marital responsibilities, who would deny his wife the very things he had pledged to provide—devotion, care, companionship, protection, intimacy, peace, justice (Gn 2:24; Ex 21:10; Dt 22:13-19; Pr 5:15-20)—stood condemned by God, and he wore the stain of his crime like a garment for all to see (Ps 73:6).

2:17 The people's treachery against one another (v. 10) was a form of injustice (failing to give someone his due), but they accused God of injustice for not coming to their aid and punishing people they considered "evil" (1:2; 3:15). God's ironic reply was to announce in 3:1-6 a coming messenger of "judgment" (3:5; the same Hb word as "justice") who would purge and purify God's people, including the priests.

3:1-5 God's messenger here is the "voice . . . in the wilderness" of Is 40:3, which the NT interprets as the "Elijah" of Mal 4:5, fulfilled (conditionally) by John the Baptist (Mt 3:3; 11:14; 17:10-13). His goal would be to exhort the people to repent and prepare for God's other Messenger (see Jn 1:14-17). This "Messenger" is distinguished from God by referring to Him as He, and yet also identified with God by calling Him the Lord in verse 1 and I in verse 5. The divine-human nature of this messianic bearer of a new covenant (Heb 9:15) may also be seen in other passages such as Zch 12:10-13:9.

3:6 In reply to charges that He had been unfaithful, God declared that if He were not the immutable God who did not lie, was not capricious, and whose purposes and promises were irrevocable (Nm 23:19; Ps 89:33-34; Is 46:3-4; Rm 11:26-29; Heb 6:17-18), Israel's rebellion would have destroyed them long ago (like Edom's in Mal 1:2-5; cp. Ps 124; Hs 11:9).

3:7 - 10a The final, climactic address begins with a command to return (Jr 3:22-4:4; 24:7; Hs 14:1-2; Zch 1:3) to Yahweh, and it ends with a command to "remember" His instructions (Mal 4:4). Evidence of the people's return to God would be to resume bringing tithes and other contributions to support the priests, Levites, and landless poor (Lv 27:30-33; Nm 18:8-32; Dt 12:5-19; 14:22-29; 26:12-15; Neh 10:38; 13:10). Such offerings would demonstrate a proper attitude toward their possessions as God's gifts (Dt 6:10-12; 8:17-18).

3:10b-12 Although testing God with complaining, rebellion, and unbelief is wrong (v. 15; Ex 17:2-7; Ps 95:8-9), testing His faithfulness with our obedience is not. The phrase rendered without measure may also mean "only what you need" (Pr 25:16). The Mosaic covenant promised material blessings or curses (Dt 28) to the nation as a whole, not necessarily to the individual. The book of Job and later Jesus (Mt 19:23-25; Jn 9:3) spoke against such an individual application.

3:13-15 On the harsh words, see Jd 14-15. Judah's current difficulties, in light of their perverse understanding of God's demands and of having a relationship with Him, had led them to conclude there was no advantage in serving God (Is 5:20; Mal 2:17). The word for gained refers to dishonest gain (see Is 56:11).

3:16-18 The book of remembrance was the royal archives where the most significant events of a king's reign were recorded (Ezr 4:15; 5:17). As Mordecai was rewarded on the basis of the royal archives (Est 2:23; 6:1-3), so it will be for all who fear God and treasure His name. Whether such heavenly records exist literally, the many biblical references to them show that God knows and will reward those who belong to Him (1Kg 19:18; Ps 56:8; Is 34:16; Dn 7:10; 2Co 5:10; Rv 20:12). God has already marked a day on His calendar when He will come with compassion to retrieve His special possession (see Ex 19:5; Dt 7:6; 14:1-2; 26:18; Ps 135:4), all who serve Him in faith (Ezk 34:11-31; Gl 1:4; Eph 1:14).

4:1 The fiery element of the coming day echoes similar images in eschatological passages such as Jl 2:3-5 (see Ps 21:9; Is 31:9). The wicked may seem powerful, but they will be removed, both root and branches, from the earth like dry stubble thrown into a furnace.

4:2-3 Darkness in the Bible often symbolizes earthly life full of evil, ignorance, pain, and death (Gn 1:4; 1Sm 2:9; Is 8:22-9:2). God promises to invade this world with righteousness as the sun invades the night, driving the darkness away (Dt 33:2; 2Sm 23:3-4; Is 60:1-3,19-21). Other texts clarify that this image represents the Messiah, whose coming will be celebrated like the dawn (Lk 1:76-79), often pictured as the wings of the sun (Ps 139:9). As a bird's wings offer protection (Dt 32:11), God's "wings" will bring healing to His children (Ps 91:4; Is 53:5; 57:18-19), who will never again fear the wicked.

4:4-6 The people of Israel wore tassels as constant reminders of God's instructions (Nm 15:38-40). Malachi called them to remember—not to be guided by human wisdom, ambition, or societal expectations, but by the application of God's instruction through Moses (see Ps 119:16). On the great and awesome Day of the LORD, see Jl 2:31 (the only other place where this phrase occurs). This will be a day of blessing for God's people as well as a time of judgment on His enemies. Elijah, mentioned 28 times in the NT, was viewed as the preeminent prophet of repentance. He appeared with Moses on the mountain of Jesus' transfiguration to testify that Jesus is the Messiah (Lk 9:29-31). Both Moses and Elijah were connected with Horeb, God's mountain (Ex 3:1; 1Kg 19:8). Although this prophecy was provisionally fulfilled by John the Baptist (Mal 3:1-5), it will be further fulfilled at Jesus' return (Mt 11:14; 17:11; Rv 11:3) and it will be accompanied by a great revival of faith in Israel (Dt 30:1-2). Malachi 4:6, quoted in Lk 1:16-17, describes a time of reconciliation when "the disobedient" will accept the wisdom of "the righteous" and when fathers and their children will no longer live self-serving lives but will regard one another with compassion and respect (2:15; Ezk 5:10; Rm 1:30).

Word Studies nagash Hebrew Pronunciation [nah GASH]

HCSB Translation approach, bring Uses in Malachi 6
Uses in the OT 125
Focus passage Malachi 1:7-8,11

Nagash denotes approach (Jr 30:21) and in that sense come near (Gn 45:4), come (2Kg 4:27), or go (Ex 24:14). One steps forward (Gn 18:23) and comes up or closer (Gn 19:9; 27:21). Priests come near God and approach the altar; Levites come near holy objects (Nm 4:19). People advance or draw near for battle (2Sm 10:13). They go to judges (Ex 24:14) and to court (Dt 25:1). "Approaching women" involves having sexual relations (Ex 19:15). Nagash suggests making room (Is 49:20). "Draw near there" implies get out of the way (Gn 19:9). The causative is bring (Gn 27:25) or bring near (Lv 8:14). One presents sacrifices (Am 5:25), arguments (Is 41:21), or cases (Is 45:21). People serve (1Sm 28:25) or offer (Jdg 6:19) food, and offer tribute (1Kg 4:21). The passive describes being placed in shackles (2Sm 3:34) or being presented (Mal 1:11).

shicheth Hebrew Pronunciation [shih KHAYT]
HCSB Translation destroy, act corruptly, ruin Uses in Malachi 3
Uses in the OT 152
Focus passage Malachi 3:11

Shicheth in passive-reflexive forms means be corrupt (Gn 6:11), ruined, or flawed (Jr 18:4). The participle involves corrupt acts (Ezk 20:44). Intensive and causative verbs share the meanings destroy (Gn 6:13), ruin, and act corruptly (Ex 32:7). Intensive verbs also connote ravage (Jos 22:33), bring loss, waste (Jdg 6:5), corrupt (Ezk 28:17), and corrupt oneself (Hs 9:9). One violates covenants (Mal 2:8), stifles compassion (Am 1:11), and wastefully releases semen (Gn 38:9). Causative verbs also suggest annihilate (Dt 9:26), slaughter, devastate (Jr 51:25), mar, and batter (2Sm 20:15). People are depraved or become corrupt in actions (Zph 3:7). Participles denote destroyer, destructive, corrupt, depraved, ravaging, raiding parties (1Sm 13:17), and trap (Jr 5:26). Passive participles signify polluted (Pr 25:26) and a defective animal (Mal 1:14). Mashchiyth (10x; Ezk 5:16) means destruction, and mashcheth conveys destructive (Ezk 9:1). Mashchath suggests deformity (Lv 22:25), and mishchath, disfigurement (Is 52:14).

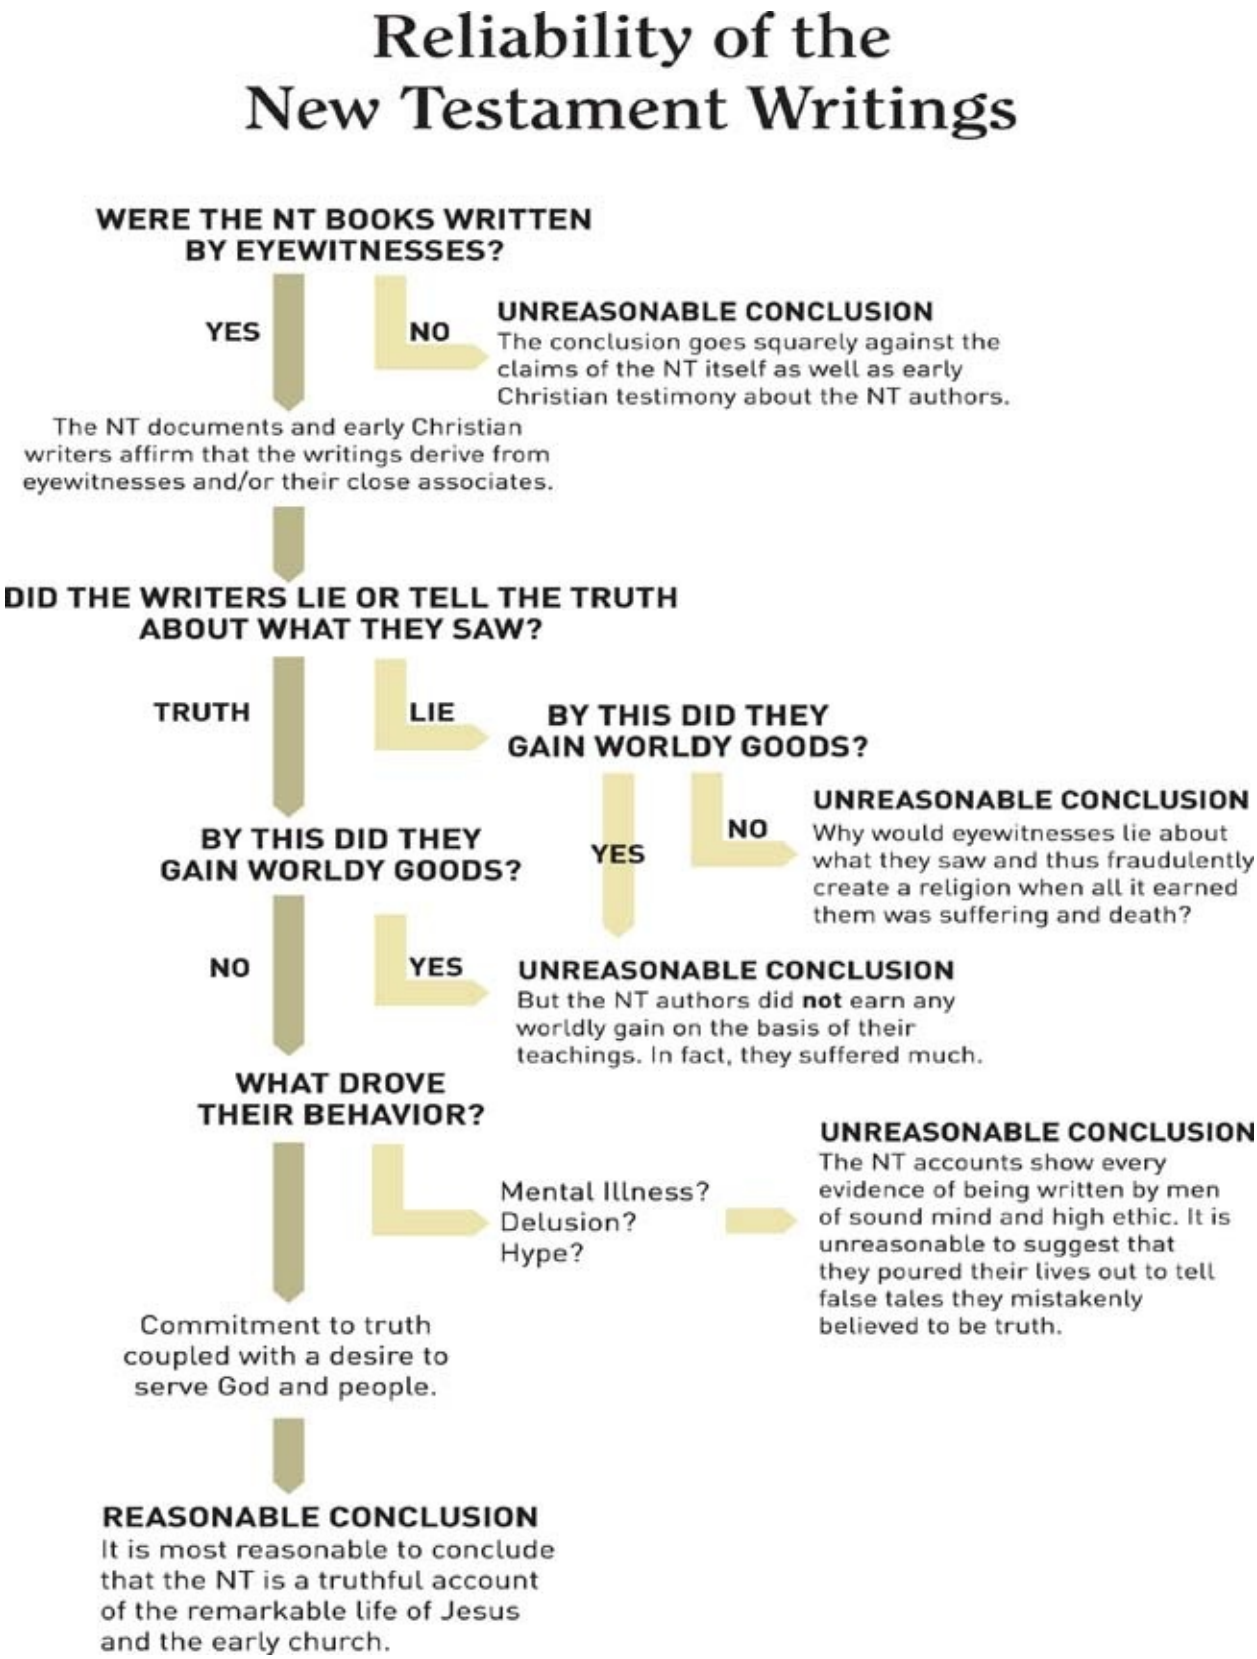
The Origin, Transmission, and Canonization of the New Testament Books

Jeremy Royal Howard

The term canon is the term used to describe the list of books approved for inclusion in the Bible. It stems from a Greek word meaning “rod,” as in a straight stick that serves as a standard for measuring. Hence, to speak of the biblical canon is to speak of authoritative books, given by God, the teachings of which define correct belief and practice. Obviously, only books inspired by God should be received as canonical. The Bible before you includes 27 books in the New Testament (NT). Are these the right books? Do they reliably convey truth about Jesus Christ? This essay argues that the 27 books of the NT canon are the correct books and are fully reliable in recounting truth about Jesus and His earliest followers.



Origin and Reliability of the New Testament Writings The reliability of the NT books rests on questions about their origin: Were they written by eyewitnesses and men closely linked to them? Were the authors inspired by God as they wrote? Historic Christianity has answered yes to these questions. While skeptics maintain that the books were written by men who were inheritors of a legend that had slipped the bonds of reality, Christian confidence in the NT is well founded. Following are some lines of evidence supporting the reliability of the NT.

(1) Jesus personally groomed twelve disciples. At the outset of His ministry, Jesus did what many gifted teachers of the ancient world did: He chose a small group of men to be His official students. For approximately three years they listened closely to Jesus' teachings and witnessed His actions. Jesus was intentional in His efforts to teach them; He used effective teaching tools such as parables, repetition, and visual aids. He also taught them how to spread His message (Mk 6:7-11) and then commanded them to give their lives to this task after His resurrection (Mt 28:18-20).

Despite many halts and hitches on the path to understanding, the disciples were dedicated to the tasks of comprehending Jesus' teachings and remembering them with precision. But how much could they remember decades later when they and their associates wrote the four Gospels? Three considerations suggest the disciples would have had no trouble remembering Jesus' teachings.

First, note that from the time they last walked with Jesus to the time the Gospels were written, the disciples gave unbroken attention to spreading the word about Jesus. This became their purpose in life. Hence, Jesus' teachings stayed fresh in their minds through the years as they preached in city after city and were continually challenged to defend their claims.

Second, most of us today have lost touch with the potential powers of the human memory. We store reams of data not in our minds, but in books and computers. Lack of such tools forced the ancients to make better use of the brain's storage capacities. The Jews in particular were impressive in this regard. As a people to whom God had revealed His will in spoken and written words, Jewish students of religion were motivated to achieve herculean feats of memorization. It was said that advanced students were like baskets full of books; they kept everything in their heads. Though Jesus' disciples lacked this level of training, it is certain that from the moment they were called to be Jesus' students they knew that they were expected to comprehend and remember His teachings. To do anything less would be to disrespect their teacher, especially since they believed He was the Messiah.

Third, it is likely that the disciples wrote down key portions of Jesus' teachings many years before the full Gospels were written. These deposits would have been available to refresh the memory, and they possibly served as handy source material for the writing of the Gospels (see Lk 1:1-4).

(2) The Holy Spirit helped the disciples understand and remember. Jesus sent the Spirit to help His disciples comprehend and remember His teachings (Jn 14:26). Thus they were not left to their own efforts when speaking and writing about Jesus. Internal testimony in the NT shows that the disciples became aware of the Spirit's role in each other's writings. The Jews stressed the difference between inspired Scripture and ordinary writing. Rabbis even said the Scriptures "defiled the hands," a surprising phrase that encouraged Jews to consider carefully their intentions before handling Scripture and to decide if these justified the trouble of becoming ceremonially unclean. This teaching discouraged flippant handling of the Scriptures. To claim that a document is from God would be blasphemous if untrue, and yet this is the very claim made by the NT itself. In 1 Timothy 5:18 Paul quotes Luke 10:7 as Scripture. Similarly, Peter affirms that Paul's writings are Scripture in 2 Peter 3:15-16. Peter's writings were in turn received as Scripture on the basis of his apostleship. While it is doubtful that NT authors were conscious at the time of writing that what they wrote was inspired Scripture (for example, see Luke's purpose statement in Lk 1:1-4), they were aware that they bore God-given authority as chosen messengers, and the church swiftly received their writings as authoritative, inspired words from God.

(3) The NT writings stress the importance of eyewitnesses and hard facts. The NT authors emphasize the role of eyewitnesses and hang their truth claims on the reality of the events they describe. For instance, when Luke discloses his methods and purposes at the beginning of his Gospel (Lk 1:1-4), he says his book is about "the events that have been fulfilled among us" as recounted by "the original eyewitnesses and servants" of Christ. He also says he researched these matters carefully before writing and that his reason for doing this was so his reader could "know the certainty" on which the Christian faith is based. Here is a man who has no place for legends, half-truths, or shots in the dark. His focus is on the real Jesus and on world-altering events that cannot be doubted. John similarly emphasizes the importance of fact. He is sure of what he has written and says he has included only a small fraction of Jesus' doings (Jn 20:30 and 21:24-25). And like Luke, John wants his readers to know Jesus as Lord and thus gain eternal life (Jn 20:31 and 1Jn 5:13). Far from passing on shady legends, his goal is to convey assured truth.

Luke and John impress us with their insistence on truth, but the most striking assertion that the NT witness is truthful comes from the apostle Paul. Paul bitterly opposed the young church as it spread from Jerusalem like wildfire. As a zealot for Pharisaic doctrines and all the old ways, he wanted to eradicate Christianity. This all changed when the risen Lord appeared to him on the road to Damascus. In a stunning reversal, Paul then poured the rest of his life into spreading truth about Jesus. The foundation of Paul's preaching was Jesus' resurrection. More than just a snappy preaching point, Paul understood that the literal resurrection of Christ was the absolute basis of Christianity. For this reason, in 1 Corinthians 15:12-19 Paul said that if Christ's resurrection was not a real historical event, Christianity is a myth and Christians are liars. How could Paul dare lay his faith and personal integrity on the line like this? The answer is obvious. Like John, Luke, and every other NT author, Paul knew that Christianity is fixed on the sure foundation of historical reality. Be assured, reader of the NT, that God the Son came in flesh, dwelt among humans, trained disciples for His service, died for us on the cross, rose on the third day and then ascended to heaven, from which He will someday return in power.

Summing up, the NT is to be received as reliable on the basis of the following facts: Jesus trained a group of disciples to comprehend and spread His teachings. Following the established pattern among Jewish students of religion, they would have taken this task with great seriousness, including the memorization of Jesus' key teachings. For a decade or so after Christ's resurrection, these men kept His teachings alive by preaching incessantly and by grooming avid disciples such as Luke and Mark. They also accepted Paul as a bona fide apostle after his miraculous conversion (Ac 9). Then, starting in the mid 40s, the apostles and their approved associates began writing authoritative, Spirit-inspired letters, which they circulated among the churches. Paul's writings came first, and later the Gospels. These writings were received as Scripture by the earliest churches and became the standards by which doctrine and practice were judged.

Factors in the Formation of the New Testament Canon If one asks when and how the canon formed, the first thing to note is that the canon, being a list of books and not the books themselves, necessarily came into existence after the books were written. Thus the authoritative books were inspired Scripture prior to a list identifying them as such. Second, the canon formed as a matter of widespread consensus, not executive pronouncement. Third, in keeping with the first two points, it was several centuries before the canon emerged as a widely acknowledged fact. Critics take this relatively late emergence as proof that the books were not initially received as Scripture and that they came to be regarded as holy books only because later Christians lost sight of how they originated. In reality, however, the piecemeal development of canon consensus was a natural reflection of four conditions: (1) The gradual creation and dissemination of the NT books. The books of the canonical NT were written over a span of approximately fifty years (A.D. 45-95). Before winning universal acceptance, each newly written book had to be circulated, copied, examined, and discussed among the churches. This was not a quick process. Books that were written relatively late underwent the sort of treatment that is common for newcomers: they were vetted with especially great care before being granted a seat among the old guard. Also, the Christian faith multiplied rapidly in the early centuries, with new churches cropping up in far-flung regions at a pace that outstripped the dissemination of the Scriptures. Thus, many early churches had access to only a few NT books. Naturally, when new books came to their attention they were cautious about embracing them as biblical, and they accepted them only after careful consideration and consultation with churches that had been founded by the apostles.

(2) Apostolic authority and the NT canon. All the earliest churches were founded by the apostles and their associates as they fanned out from Jerusalem in the years after Jesus' resurrection. Naturally, the churches depended on these men to teach them about Jesus and the Christian life. At first these teachings were strictly oral, but over time the apostles began writing letters and Gospels for the churches, thus providing early Christians with authoritative "books" to guide them in their beliefs and practices. These apostolic churches were among the first to receive the Scriptures as they were written, and so they were in a good position to help guide newer churches into the correct identification of a NT canon.

(3) The relative independence of each local church. Apostolic authority was honored by all true churches at the advent of Christianity, and yet each local church was relatively independent from any centralized ecclesiastical authority. One practical result of this was that no central office pronounced the identities of the NT books or forced their use in worship abroad. Understandably, it took several centuries for churches sprawled all over the map to forge communicative ties and common consensus on the canon.

(4) The rise of heresy. When someone came into the churches pushing ideas contrary to what had been received from the apostles, their teachings were recognized as unauthorized innovation. This is the very thing that happened in the second century with the advent of so-called Gnostic Christianity. Gnosticism was a popular dualistic Greek philosophy which held that the material world was created by an evil God. Hence, Gnostics stressed meditation on the secrets of a pure invisible realm, and they denied that God could take on material flesh as Christ did. A man named Marcion wedded Gnosticism with Christian elements and petitioned the church in Rome to adopt his views. Among other perversions, Marcion tried to convince Christians to reject the Old Testament Scriptures and adhere only to the writings of Paul plus a heavily edited version of Luke's Gospel that did not mention Christ's birth. As inheritors of the apostolic teachings, Christians in Rome and elsewhere knew that Marcion's teachings did not square with genuine Christian doctrines. As churches marked the distinction between authorized apostolic writings and the heretical innovations of men such as Marcion, and as Christians all across the Roman Empire endured periodic persecutions that threatened death to anyone harboring Christian Scriptures, the NT began to emerge as a defined and defended body of books. So-called "alternative Christianities," represented in second-and third-century works such as The Gospel of Thomas and The Gospel of Judas, were never considered for adoption into the NT canon because they were written long after the apostles, and their teachings did not match the Old Testament or the apostolic traditions.

Authoritative Witnesses to the Canon in the Early Church Though it took several centuries for the canon to emerge as a definite collection of books that were agreed upon by the majority of churches, it is certain that many of the books were widely recognized as Scripture from early on. For example, in A.D. 96 Clement of Rome quoted from Jesus' Sermon on the Mount (Mt 5-7) and treated it as Scripture. As a member of a church founded by an apostle, Clement probably had access to all or nearly all 27 canonical books at this time. In A.D. 110 Ignatius of Antioch, who was a disciple of John, claimed the Gospel materials were Scripture. By A.D. 180, the famed apologist Irenaeus defended Christianity by appealing to the authority of many NT writings. In total, scholars who have examined Irenaeus's surviving works believe he used 22 of our 27 NT books, including all four Gospels. A short time after Irenaeus an apologist named Tertullian charged Gnostic Christians with misusing "the instrument," by which he meant the collection of authoritative NT books. That he would refer to the collection of NT books in this way proves that by this time the leading churches had identified a well-defined set of books as canonical. Only James, 2 Peter, and 2 and 3 John go unnamed by Tertullian. A few decades later the church father Origen named all 27 books and noted that six of them (Hebrews, James, 2 Peter, 2 and 3 John, and Jude) were disputed by some. These disputed books went on to be the subject of debate for many centuries more, though their revered position among most churches was never shaken.

It was in the fourth century that the NT canon clearly emerged as a widely accepted set of holy books. First, Eusebius of Caesarea, known as the father of church history since he was the first to write a comprehensive history of Christianity, named 27 books that were commonly accepted as NT Scripture by the churches. He had reservations about the Book of Revelation, but all in all he names the same canon as we use today. In A.D. 367 the Bishop of Alexandria, a stalwart man named Athanasius, wrote a festal letter in which he listed all 27 NT books as Scripture. He made no note about disputed books—an indication that the disputes mentioned by Origen and Eusebius had diminished in importance by this time. A little more than a decade later the renowned scholar Jerome translated all 27 NT books into Latin and included them in his Bible, which is commonly called the Vulgate. As for the disputed books, he was convinced that their long-standing acceptance in the churches proved that they were indeed Scripture. Augustine, Bishop of Hippo, agreed that the 27 were all canonical. Of the disputed books he said they are to be accepted because the majority of churches, especially those accorded great authority due to their apostolic origins, have long accepted them. Finally, in 393 and 397 the Councils of Hippo and Carthage concluded that the NT canon properly includes 27 books, no more and no less.

The Canon from the Reformation to the Present The Reformation era was a time in which many beliefs and practices were reexamined in the light of Scripture. Men such as Luther and Calvin desired to peel away the traditions of men and take their cues only from God's authoritative Word. This emphasis highlighted the need to be certain about which books were from God and which were not. When Luther published a German translation of the NT in 1522, he included all 27 books of the traditional canon even though he sounded a few notes of disapproval over the disputed books. In the table of contents he listed them separately from the undisputed books. For Luther, it seems, the books of the NT were divided into first-class and second-class canons. All 27 books were from God, but he did not believe Hebrews, James, Jude, and Revelation measured up to the others. Despite Luther's reservations, Christianity's long-standing acceptance of a 27-book NT canon was not seriously questioned. In 1546 the Roman Catholic Church affirmed all 27 books at the Council of Trent, and a hundred years later the Protestants did the same in the Westminster Confession of Faith. No sustained challenge to the canon has arisen in the churches since that era.

Preservation of the Manuscripts through the Centuries It has become popular in recent decades for skeptics to claim that the NT books have evolved beyond all recognition since the days when they were written. Amateur copyists, hapless monks, rogue theologians, sly politicians—folk from many quarters are said to have had a turn at corrupting the text by adding, deleting, and modifying at will.

One popular critic famously says that the total number of variations found in the existing manuscripts exceeds the number of words in the entire NT! Technically his claim is true, but the conclusions to be drawn from it are far less drastic than he would have us believe. The fact is the vast majority of all changes are easily detected, and they amount to nothing more than simple misspellings and other minor alterations that have no impact whatsoever on the meaning of the NT. In the few places where the changes potentially have theological importance, scholars are often able to trace the text back to its original reading with confidence. In cases where the original reading is in greater dispute, textual scholars have rightly said that you could eliminate all such verses from the NT and not detract from a single vital doctrine of Christianity. In other words, none of the corrupted verses serve as the sole basis for any NT doctrine. So even if we dropped such verses from the Bible, we could always point to undisputed verses elsewhere in the NT as support for the doctrine in question. In this light we see that the variants are not very important. A fair assessment of the evidence reveals that the NT manuscripts have been preserved remarkably well through centuries of transmission. Aside from inconsequential alterations, the NT manuscripts on which our translation is based are very close replications of the original writings.

Conclusion The churches that initially received the letters and Gospels written by the apostles and their commissioned associates understood that the writings were Scripture, for they came from men who were recognized as the authorized exponents of Jesus' life and message. These writings were copied with care and circulated to other churches. Awareness of the approved books among Christians increased as the decades clicked away, for slowly the copies reached churches that sprang up far from the point of Christian origins in Israel. It is nevertheless true that many sincere Christian devotees in the early centuries would have been unaware of several or even many of the inspired works since many newer churches had little or no access to Scripture. Hence, the fact that the canon was not widely described until the fourth century does not mean the canon itself was an open question among those who were in a good position to judge the matter. After all, we find clear references to most of the canonical books in the writings of the early church fathers, and certainly Christians who worshiped at churches founded by the apostles had an early grasp of the NT canon since their churches were among those that received the original writings in the first century. It is no exaggeration to say that once the practical obstacles to travel, communication, and dissemination of the manuscripts were alleviated, the 27-book NT canon quickly became the consensus position in Christendom.

Looking back, it is apparent that all the books that were admitted into the canon met the following criteria: (a) they were written either by an apostle or a sanctioned associate of the apostles; (b) they had enjoyed wide and long-standing usage in the churches, especially churches that were founded by the apostles; (c) they reflected high praise for Jesus, were true to the apostolic tradition that had been handed down to the churches, and fit with the overall theology of the other biblical books in both testaments.

In summary, church history shows that great care was taken when candidate books were assessed; the fact that a number of the books in our canon were repeatedly quizzed for their merits proves this beyond all doubt. Our NT canon is a well-proven, carefully protected heritage in which Christians can rejoice and place their full confidence.

MATTHEW

The Genealogy of Jesus Christ

1 The [a] historical record [A,] [b] of Jesus Christ, the Son of David, [c] the Son of Abraham: [d]

From Abraham to David

2 Abraham fathered [e] Isaac,
Isaac fathered Jacob,
Jacob fathered Judah and his brothers, [f]
3 Judah fathered Perez and Zerah by Tamar, Perez fathered Hezron,
Hezron fathered Aram, [g]
4 Aram fathered Amminadab, Amminadab fathered Nahshon, Nahshon fathered Salmon,
5 Salmon fathered Boaz by Rahab, Boaz fathered Obed by Ruth,
Obed fathered Jesse, [h]
6 and Jesse fathered King David.

From David to the Babylonian Exile

Then [i] David fathered Solomon by Uriah's wife, [j]
7 Solomon fathered Rehoboam, Rehoboam fathered Abijah,
Abijah fathered Asa, [k]
8 Asa [l] fathered Jehoshaphat,
Jehoshaphat fathered Joram, [m]
Joram fathered Uzziah, [n]
9 Uzziah fathered Jotham, Jotham fathered Ahaz, Ahaz fathered Hezekiah,
10 Hezekiah fathered Manasseh,
Manasseh fathered Amon, [o]
Amon fathered Josiah, [p]
11 and Josiah fathered Jechoniah and his brothers at the time of the exile to Babylon. [q]

From the Exile to the Messiah

12 Then after the exile to Babylon
Jechoniah fathered Shealtiel, Shealtiel fathered Zerubbabel,
13 Zerubbabel fathered Abiud, Abiud fathered Eliakim,
Eliakim fathered Azor, [r]
14 Azor fathered Zadok, Zadok fathered Achim,
Achim fathered Eliud,
15 Eliud fathered Eleazar,
Eleazar fathered Matthan, Matthan fathered Jacob,
16 and Jacob fathered Joseph the husband of Mary, who gave birth to [B] Jesus who is called the •Messiah . [s]

17 So all the generations from Abraham to David were 14 generations; and from David until the exile to Babylon, 14 generations; and from the exile to Babylon until the Messiah, 14 generations. [t]

The Nativity of the Messiah

18 The birth of Jesus Christ came about this way: After His mother Mary had been •engaged to Joseph, it was discovered before they came together that she was pregnant by the Holy Spirit. [u] 19 So her husband Joseph, being a righteous man, [v] and not wanting to disgrace her publicly, decided to divorce her secretly. [w]

20 But after he had considered these things, an angel of the Lord suddenly appeared to him in a dream, saying, “Joseph, son of David, don’t be afraid to take Mary as your wife, because what has been conceived in her is by the Holy Spirit. [x] 21 She will give birth to a son, and you are to name Him Jesus, [C, y] because He will save His people from their sins.” [z]

22 Now all this took place to fulfill what was spoken by the Lord through the prophet:

23 See, the virgin will become pregnant
and give birth to a son, and they will name Him Immanuel, [a]

which is translated “God is with us.” [b]

24 When Joseph got up from sleeping, he did as the Lord’s angel had commanded him. He married her [c] 25 but did not know her intimately until she gave birth to a son. [d] And he named Him Jesus. [e]

Wise Men Seek the King

2 After Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea in the days of King •Herod , •wise men from the east arrived unexpectedly in Jerusalem, [a] [2] saying, “Where is He who has been born King of the Jews? [b] For we saw His star in the east [A, c] and have come to worship Him.” [B]

[3] When King Herod heard this, he was deeply disturbed, and all Jerusalem with him. [4] So he assembled all the •chief priests and •scribes [d] of the people and asked them where the •Messiah would be born.

[5] “In Bethlehem of Judea,” they told him, “because this is what was written by the prophet:

[6] And you, Bethlehem, in the land of Judah, are by no means least among the leaders of Judah:
because out of you will come a leader who will shepherd My people Israel.” [e, f]

[7] Then Herod secretly summoned the wise men and asked them the exact time the star appeared. [8] He sent them to Bethlehem and said, “Go and search carefully for the child. When you find Him, report back to me so that I too can go and worship Him.” [C, g]

[9] After hearing the king, they went on their way. And there it was — the star they had seen in the east! [D] It led them until it came and stopped above the place where the child was. [10] When they saw the star, they were overjoyed beyond measure. [11] Entering the house, they saw the child with Mary His mother, and falling to their knees, they worshiped Him. [E] Then they opened their treasures and presented Him with gifts: gold, frankincense, and myrrh. [h] [12] And being warned [i] in a dream not to go back to Herod, they returned to their own country by another route.

The Flight into Egypt

13 After they were gone, an angel of the Lord suddenly appeared to Joseph in a dream, saying, “Get up! Take the child and His mother, flee to Egypt, and stay there until I tell you. For Herod is about to search for the child to destroy Him.”
j 14 So he got up, took the child and His mother during the night, and escaped to Egypt. 15 He stayed there until Herod’s death, so that what was spoken by the Lord through the prophet might be fulfilled: Out of Egypt I called My Son. k, l

The Massacre of the Innocents

16 Then Herod, when he saw that he had been outwitted by the wise men, flew into a rage. He gave orders to massacre all the male children in and around Bethlehem who were two years [F] old and under, in keeping with the time he had learned from the wise men. [m] 17 Then what was spoken through Jeremiah the prophet was fulfilled:

18 A voice was heard in Ramah,
weeping, [n] and great mourning,
Rachel weeping for her children;
and she refused to be consoled,
because they were no more. [o, p]

The Holy Family in Nazareth

19 After Herod died, an angel of the Lord suddenly appeared in a dream to Joseph in Egypt, [q] 20 saying, “Get up! Take the child and His mother and go to the land of Israel, because those who sought the child’s life are dead.” 21 So he got up, took the child and His mother, and entered the land of Israel. 22 But when he heard that Archelaus [r] was ruling over Judea in place of his father Herod, he was afraid to go there. And being warned in a dream, he withdrew to the region of Galilee. [s] 23 Then he went and settled in a town called Nazareth to fulfill what was spoken through the prophets, that He will be called a •Nazarene
. [t]

The Messiah's Herald

3 In those days John the Baptist came, [a] preaching in the Wilderness of Judea [b] 2 and saying, “Repent, because the kingdom of heaven has come near! ” [c] 3 For he is the one spoken of through the prophet Isaiah, who said:

A voice of one crying out in the wilderness:
Prepare the way for the Lord;
make His paths straight! [d, e]

4 John himself had a camel-hair garment with a leather belt around his waist, and his food was locusts and wild honey. 5 Then people from Jerusalem, all Judea, and all the vicinity of the Jordan were flocking to him, 6 and they were baptized by him in the Jordan River as they confessed their sins. [f]

7 When he saw many of the •Pharisees and •Sadducees [g] coming to the place of his baptism, [A] he said to them, “Brood of vipers! Who warned you to flee from the coming wrath? [h] 8 Therefore produce fruit [i] consistent with [B] repentance. 9 And don’t presume to say to yourselves, ‘We have Abraham as our father.’ [j] For I tell you that God is able to raise up children for Abraham from these stones! 10 Even now the ax is ready to strike the root of the trees! Therefore, every tree that doesn’t produce good fruit will be cut down and thrown into the fire. [k]

11 “I baptize you with [C] water for repentance, [l, m] but the One who is coming after me is more powerful than I. I am not worthy to remove [D] His sandals. He Himself will baptize you with [E] the Holy Spirit and fire. [n] 12 His winnowing shovel [o] is in His hand, and He will clear His threshing floor and gather His wheat into the barn. But the chaff He will burn up with fire that never goes out.” [p]

The Baptism of Jesus

13 Then Jesus came from Galilee to John at the Jordan, to be baptized by him.
q 14 But John tried to stop Him, saying, “I need to be baptized by You, and yet
You come to me? ”

15 Jesus answered him, “Allow it for now, because this is the way for us to fulfill all righteousness.” Then he allowed Him to be baptized.

16 After Jesus was baptized, He went up immediately from the water. The heavens r suddenly opened for Him, s and He saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove and coming down on Him. t 17 And there came a voice from heaven:

This is My beloved Son.
I take delight in Him! u

The Temptation of Jesus

4 Then [a] Jesus was led up by the Spirit into the wilderness to be tempted by the Devil. [b] 2 After He had fasted 40 days and 40 nights, [c] He was hungry. 3
Then the tempter approached Him and said, “If You are the Son of God, tell these stones to become bread.” [d]

4 But He answered, “It is written:

Man must not live on bread alone but on every word that comes from the mouth of God.” [e, f]

5 Then the Devil took Him to the holy city, [g] had Him stand on the pinnacle of the temple, [h] 6 and said to Him, “If You are the Son of God, throw Yourself down. For it is written:

He will give His angels [i] orders concerning you,
and they will support you with their hands
so that you will not strike your foot against a stone.” [j, k]

7 Jesus told him, “It is also written: Do not test the Lord your God.” [l, m]

8 Again, the Devil took Him to a very high mountain and showed Him all the kingdoms of the world and their splendor. 9 And he said to Him, “I will give You all these things if You will fall down and worship me.” [A] 10 Then Jesus told him, “Go away, [n] Satan! For it is written:

Worship the Lord your God,
and serve only [o] Him.” [p]

11 Then the Devil left Him, and immediately angels came and began to serve Him. [q]

Ministry in Galilee

12 When He heard that John had been arrested, [r] He withdrew into Galilee. [s] 13 He left Nazareth behind and went to live in Capernaum [t] by the sea, in the region of Zebulun and Naphtali. 14 This was to fulfill what was spoken through the prophet Isaiah:

15 Land of Zebulun and land of Naphtali,
along the sea road, beyond the Jordan,
Galilee of the Gentiles!
16 The people who live in darkness
have seen a great light,
and for those living in the shadowland of death,
light has dawned. [B, u, v]

17 From then on Jesus began to preach, “Repent, because the kingdom of heaven [w] has come near! ”

The First Disciples

18 As [x] He was walking along the Sea of Galilee, [y] He saw two brothers, Simon, who was called Peter, and his brother Andrew. They were casting a net into the sea, since they were fishermen. 19 “Follow Me,” He told them, “and I will make you fish for [z] people! ” 20 Immediately they left their nets and followed Him.

21 Going on from there, He saw two other brothers, James the son of Zebedee, and his brother John. They were in a boat with Zebedee their father, mending their nets, and He called them. 22 Immediately they left the boat and their father and followed Him.

Teaching, Preaching, and Healing

23 Jesus was going all over Galilee, [a] teaching in their •synagogues , preaching the good news of the kingdom, and healing every [C] disease and sickness among the people. [b] 24 Then the news about Him spread throughout Syria. [c] So they brought to Him all those who were afflicted, those suffering from various diseases and intense pains, the demon-possessed, the epileptics, and the paralytics. [d] And He healed them. 25 Large crowds followed Him from Galilee, •Decapolis , Jerusalem, Judea, and beyond the Jordan. [e]

THE SERMON ON THE MOUNT

5 When He saw the crowds, He went up on the mountain, [a] and after He sat down, His disciples came to Him. [2] Then [A] He began to teach them, saying:
[b]

The Beatitudes

3 “The poor in spirit are blessed, [c]
for the kingdom of heaven [d] is theirs.
4 Those who mourn are blessed, [e]
for they will be comforted.
5 The gentle are blessed, [f]
for they will inherit the earth.
6 Those who hunger and thirst for righteousness are blessed, [g] for they will be filled.
7 The merciful are blessed,
for they will be shown mercy. [h] 8 The pure in heart are blessed, for they will see God. [i] 9 The peacemakers are blessed, for they will be called sons of God. [j] 10 Those who are persecuted for righteousness are blessed, for the kingdom of heaven [k] is theirs.

11 “You are blessed when they insult and persecute you and falsely say every kind of evil against you because of Me. 12 Be glad and rejoice, because your reward is great in heaven. For that is how they persecuted [l] the prophets who were before you. [m]

Believers Are Salt and Light

13 “You are the salt of the earth. But if the salt should lose its taste, how can it be made salty? It’s no longer good for anything but to be thrown out and trampled on by men. [n]

14 “You are the light of the world. A city situated on a hill cannot be hidden. [o]
15 No one lights a lamp [p] and puts it under a basket, [q] but rather on a lampstand, and it gives light for all who are in the house. [r] 16 In the same way, let your light shine [s] before men, so that they may see your good works and give glory to your Father in heaven. [t]

Christ Fulfills the Law

17 “Don’t assume that I came to destroy the Law or the Prophets. I did not come to destroy but to fulfill. [u] 18 For •I assure you: Until heaven and earth pass away, not the smallest letter [v] or one stroke of a letter will pass from the law until all things are accomplished. 19 Therefore, whoever breaks one of the least of these commands and teaches people to do so will be called least in the kingdom of heaven. But whoever practices and teaches these commands will be called great in the kingdom of heaven. [w] 20 For I tell you, unless your righteousness surpasses that of the •scribes and •Pharisees , you will never enter the kingdom of heaven.

Murder Begins in the Heart

21 “You have heard that it was said to our ancestors, [x] Do not murder, [y, z] and whoever murders will be subject to judgment. [a] 22 But I tell you, everyone who is angry with his brother [b] will be subject to judgment. And whoever says to his brother, ‘Fool! ’ [c] will be subject to the •Sanhedrin . But whoever says, ‘You moron! ’ will be subject to •hellfire . [d, e] 23 So if you are offering your gift on the altar, and there you remember that your brother has something against you, 24 leave your gift there in front of the altar. First go and be reconciled with your brother, and then come and offer your gift. 25 Reach a settlement quickly with your adversary while you’re on the way with him, or your adversary will hand you over to the judge, the judge to [f] the officer, and you will be thrown into prison. [g] 26 I assure you: You will never get out of there until you have paid the last penny! [h]

Adultery in the Heart

27 “You have heard that it was said, Do not commit adultery. [i, j] 28 But I tell you, everyone who looks at a woman to lust for her has already committed adultery with her in his heart. [k] 29 If your right eye •causes you to sin, [l] gouge it out and throw it away. For it is better that you lose one of the parts of your body than for your whole body to be thrown into hell. [m] 30 And if your right hand causes you to sin, cut it off and throw it away. For it is better that you lose one of the parts of your body than for your whole body to go into hell!

Divorce Practices Censured

31 “It was also said, Whoever divorces [n] his wife must give her a written notice of divorce. [o, p] 32 But I tell you, everyone who divorces his wife, except in a case of sexual immorality, [q] causes her to commit adultery. And whoever marries a divorced woman commits adultery. [r]

Tell the Truth

33 “Again, you have heard that it was said to our ancestors, [s] You must not break your oath, but you must keep your oaths to the Lord. [t, u] 34 But I tell you, don’t take an oath at all: either by heaven, because it is God’s throne; 35 or by the earth, because it is His footstool; or by Jerusalem, because it is the city of the great King. [v] 36 Neither should you swear by your head, because you cannot make a single hair white or black. 37 But let your word ‘yes’ be ‘yes,’ and your ‘no’ be ‘no.’ [w] Anything more than this is from the evil one. [x]

Go the Second Mile

38 “You have heard that it was said, An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth. [y, z] 39 But I tell you, don’t resist [a] an evildoer. On the contrary, if anyone slaps you on your right cheek, turn the other to him also. [b] 40 As for the one who wants to sue you and take away your shirt, [c] let him have your coat [d] as well. 41 And if anyone forces [e] you to go one mile, go with him two. 42 Give to the one who asks you, and don’t turn away from the one who wants to borrow from you. [f]

Love Your Enemies

43 “You have heard that it was said, Love your neighbor [g, h] and hate your enemy. 44 But I tell you, love your enemies [i] and pray for those who [j] persecute you, [k] 45 so that you may be [l] sons of your Father in heaven. For He causes His sun to rise on the evil and the good, and sends rain on the righteous and the unrighteous. [m] 46 For if you love those who love you, what reward will you have? Don’t even the tax collectors do the same? 47 And if you greet only your brothers, what are you doing out of the ordinary? [n, o] Don’t even the Gentiles [p] do the same? 48 Be perfect, [q] therefore, as your heavenly Father is perfect.

How to Give

6 “Be careful not to practice your righteousness [a] in front of people, to be seen by them. Otherwise, you will have no reward from your Father in heaven. [2]
So whenever you give to the poor, don’t sound a trumpet before you, as the hypocrites do in the •synagogues and on the streets, to be applauded by people.
•I assure you: They’ve got their reward! [b] [3] But when you give to the poor, don’t let your left hand know what your right hand is doing, [4] so that your giving may be in secret. And your Father who sees in secret will reward you. [c, d]

How to Pray

5 “Whenever you pray, you must not be like the hypocrites, because they love to pray standing in the synagogues and on the street corners to be seen by people. I assure you: They’ve got their reward! [e] 6 But when you pray, go into your private room, shut your door, and pray to your Father who is in secret. And your Father who sees in secret will reward you. [f, g] 7 When you pray, don’t babble like the idolaters, [h] since they imagine they’ll be heard for their many words. [i] 8 Don’t be like them, because your Father knows the things you need before you ask Him. [j]

The Model Prayer

9 “Therefore, you should pray like this: [k]

Our Father in heaven,
Your name be honored as holy. [l]
10 Your kingdom come.
Your will be done
on earth as it is in heaven. [m] 11 Give us today our daily bread. [n]
12 And forgive us our debts, as we also have forgiven our debtors. [o] 13 And do not bring us into [p] temptation, [q]
but deliver us from the evil one. [r, s] [For Yours is the kingdom and the power and the glory forever. •Amen .] [t]

14 “For if you forgive people their wrongdoing, [u] your heavenly Father will forgive you as well. [v] 15 But if you don’t forgive people, [w] your Father will not forgive your wrongdoing. [x]

How to Fast

16 “Whenever you fast, don’t be sad-faced like the hypocrites. For they make their faces unattractive [y, z] so their fasting is obvious to people. I assure you:
They’ve got their reward! 17 But when you fast, put oil on your head, and wash your face, [a] 18 so that you don’t show your fasting to people but to your Father who is in secret. And your Father who sees in secret will reward you. [b]

God and Possessions

19 “Don’t collect for yourselves treasures [c] on earth, where moth and rust destroy and where thieves break in and steal. [d] 20 But collect for yourselves treasures in heaven, [e] where neither moth nor rust destroys, and where thieves don’t break in and steal. 21 For where your treasure is, there your heart will be also.

22 “The eye is the lamp of the body. If your eye is good, your whole body will be full of light. 23 But if your eye is bad, your whole body will be full of darkness. So if the light within you is darkness — how deep is that darkness! [f]

24 “No one can be a •slave of two masters, since either he will hate one and love the other, or be devoted to one and despise the other. You cannot be slaves of God and of money. [g]

The Cure for Anxiety

25 “This is why I tell you: [h] Don’t worry about your life, what you will eat or what you will drink; or about your body, what you will wear. Isn’t life more than food and the body more than clothing? [i] 26 Look at the birds of the sky: They don’t sow or reap or gather into barns, yet your heavenly Father feeds them.
Aren’t you worth more than they? [j] 27 Can any of you add a single •cubit to his height [k] by worrying? 28 And why do you worry about clothes? Learn how the wildflowers of the field grow: they don’t labor or spin thread. 29 Yet I tell you that not even Solomon in all his splendor was adorned like one of these! 30 If that’s how God clothes the grass of the field, which is here today and thrown into the furnace tomorrow, won’t He do much more for you — you of little faith? [l] 31 So don’t worry, saying, ‘What will we eat? ’ or ‘What will we drink? ’ or ‘What will we wear? ’ 32 For the idolaters [m] eagerly seek all these things, and your heavenly Father knows that you need them. 33 But seek first the kingdom of God [n, o] and His righteousness, [p] and all these things will be provided for you. [q] 34 Therefore don’t worry about tomorrow, because tomorrow will worry about itself. Each day has enough trouble [r] of its own.

Do Not Judge

7 “Do not judge, so that you won’t be judged. [a] 2 For with the judgment you use, [b] you will be judged, and with the measure you use, [c] it will be measured to you. [d] 3 Why do you look at the speck in your brother’s eye but don’t notice the log in your own eye? [e] 4 Or how can you say to your brother, ‘Let me take the speck out of your eye,’ and look, there’s a log in your eye? 5 Hypocrite! First take the log out of your eye, and then you will see clearly to take the speck out of your brother’s eye. 6 Don’t give what is holy to dogs or toss your pearls before pigs, [f] or they will trample them with their feet, turn, and tear you to pieces.

Keep Asking, Searching, Knocking

7 “Keep asking, [g, h] and it will be given to you. [i] Keep searching, [j] and you will find. Keep knocking, [k] and the door [l] will be opened to you. 8 For everyone who asks receives, and the one who searches finds, [m] and to the one who knocks, the door [n] will be opened. 9 What man among you, if his son asks him for bread, will give him a stone? 10 Or if he asks for a fish, will give him a snake? 11 If you then, who are evil, [o] know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your Father in heaven give good things to those who ask Him! 12 Therefore, whatever you want others to do for you, do also the same for them — this is the Law and the Prophets. [p, q]

Entering the Kingdom

13 “Enter through the narrow gate. [r] For the gate is wide and the road is broad that leads to destruction, [s] and there are many who go through it. 14 How narrow is the gate and difficult the road that leads to life, and few find it.

15 “Beware of false prophets [t] who come to you in sheep’s [u] clothing [v] but inwardly are ravaging wolves. [w] 16 You’ll recognize them by their fruit. [x] Are grapes gathered from thornbushes or figs from thistles? [y] 17 In the same way, every good tree produces good fruit, but a bad tree produces bad fruit. 18 A good tree can’t produce bad fruit; neither can a bad tree produce good fruit. 19 Every tree that doesn’t produce good fruit is cut down and thrown into the fire. [z] 20 So you’ll recognize them by their fruit. [a]

21 “Not everyone who says to Me, ‘Lord, Lord! ’ will enter the kingdom of heaven, [b] but only the one who does the will [c] of My Father in heaven. [d] 22 On that day many will say to Me, ‘Lord, Lord, didn’t we prophesy in Your name, drive out demons [e] in Your name, and do many miracles in Your name? ’ [f] 23 Then I will announce to them, ‘I never knew you! Depart from Me, you lawbreakers!’ [g, h, i]

The Two Foundations

24 “Therefore, [j] everyone who hears these words [k] of Mine and acts on them will be like a sensible man who built his house on the rock. 25 The rain fell, the rivers rose, and the winds blew and pounded that house. Yet it didn’t collapse, because its foundation was on the rock. 26 But everyone who hears these words of Mine and doesn’t act on them will be like a foolish man who built his house on the sand. 27 The rain fell, the rivers rose, the winds blew and pounded that house, and it collapsed. And its collapse was great! ”

28 When Jesus had finished this sermon, [A, l] the crowds were astonished at His teaching, [m] 29 because He was teaching them like one who had authority, and not like their •scribes .

A Man Cleansed

8 When He came down from the mountain, large crowds [a] followed Him. [2] Right away [b] a man with a serious skin disease came up and knelt before Him, [c] saying, “Lord, if You are willing, You can make me •clean .”

[3] Reaching out His hand He touched him, saying, “I am willing; be made clean.” Immediately his disease was healed. [A] [4] Then Jesus told him, “See that you don’t tell anyone; [d] but go, show yourself to the priest, and offer the gift that Moses prescribed, as a testimony to them.” [e]

A Centurion’s Faith

[5] When He entered Capernaum, [f] a •centurion came to Him, pleading with Him, [6] “Lord, my servant is lying at home paralyzed, in terrible agony! ”

[7] “I will come and heal him,” He told him.

[8] “Lord,” the centurion replied, “I am not worthy to have You come under my roof. But only say the word, and my servant will be cured. [g] [9] For I too am a man under authority, having soldiers under my command. [B] I say to this one, ‘Go! ’ and he goes; and to another, ‘Come! ’ and he comes; and to my •slave , ‘Do this! ’ and he does it.”

[10] Hearing this, Jesus was amazed and said to those following Him, “•I assure you: I have not found anyone in Israel with so great a faith! [11] I tell you that many will come from east and west, and recline at the table with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven. [h] [12] But the sons of the kingdom will be thrown into the outer darkness. In that place there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.” [i] [13] Then Jesus told the centurion, “Go. As you have believed, [j] let it be done for you.” And his servant was cured that very moment. [C]

Healings at Capernaum

14 When Jesus went into Peter's house, [k] He saw his mother-in-law lying in bed with a fever. 15 So He touched her hand, and the fever left her. Then she got up and began to serve Him. 16 When evening came, they brought to Him many who were demon-possessed. He drove out the spirits [l] with a word and healed all who were sick, [m] 17 so that what was spoken through the prophet Isaiah might be fulfilled:

He Himself took our weaknesses and carried our diseases. [n, o]

Following Jesus

18 When Jesus saw large crowds [p, q] around Him, He gave the order to go to the other side of the sea. [r] 19 A •scribe approached Him and said, [s] "Teacher, I will follow You wherever You go! " 20 Jesus told him, "Foxes have dens and birds of the sky have nests, but the Son of Man [t] has no place to lay His head."
21 "Lord," another of His disciples said, "first let me go bury my father." [u]
22 But Jesus told him, "Follow Me, and let the dead bury their own dead."

Wind and Wave Obey the Master

23 As He got into the [v] boat, [w] His disciples [x] followed Him. 24 Suddenly, a violent storm arose on the sea, so that the boat was being swamped by the waves. But He was sleeping. 25 So the disciples came and woke Him up, saying,
"Lord, save us! We're going to die! " 26 But He said to them, "Why are you fearful, you of little faith? " Then He got up and rebuked the winds and the sea. [y] And there was a great calm.
27 The men were amazed and asked, "What kind of man is this? — even the winds and the sea obey [z] Him! "

Demons Driven Out by the Master

28 When He had come to the other side, [a] to the region of the Gadarenes, [b] two demon-possessed men met Him as they came out of the tombs. They were so violent that no one could pass that way. 29 Suddenly they shouted, "What do You have to do with us, [c, D] Son of God? Have You come here to torment us before the time? " [d] 30 Now a long way off from them, a large herd of pigs was feeding. 31 "If You drive us out," the demons begged Him, "send us into the herd of pigs."
32 "Go! " He told them. So when they had come out, they entered the pigs.
And suddenly the whole herd rushed down the steep bank into the sea and perished in the water. 33 Then the men who tended them fled. They went into the city and reported everything — especially what had happened to those who were demon-possessed. 34 At that, the whole town went out to meet Jesus. When they saw Him, they begged Him to leave their region. [e]

The Son of Man Forgives and Heals

9 So He got into a boat, crossed over, and came to His own town. [a] 2 Just then [b] some men [A] brought to Him a paralytic lying on a mat. Seeing their faith, Jesus told the paralytic, "Have courage, son, your sins are forgiven." [c] 3 At this, some of the •scribes said among themselves, "He's blaspheming! " [d]
4 But perceiving their thoughts, [e] Jesus said, "Why are you thinking evil things in your hearts? [f] 5 For which is easier: to say, 'Your sins are forgiven,' or to say, 'Get up and walk'? 6 But so you may know that the •Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins" — then He told the paralytic, "Get up, pick up your mat, and go home." 7 And he got up and went home. 8 When the crowds saw this, they were awestruck [g] [B] and gave glory [h] to God who had given such authority to men.

The Call of Matthew

9 As Jesus went on from there, [i] He saw a man named Matthew sitting at the tax office, and He said to him, “Follow Me! ” So he got up and followed Him. [j]

10 While He was reclining at the table in the house, many tax collectors and sinners came as guests to eat [C] with Jesus and His disciples. [k] 11 When the •Pharisees saw this, they asked His disciples, “Why does your Teacher eat with tax collectors and sinners? ” [l]

12 But when He heard this, He said, “Those who are well don’t need a doctor, but the sick do. [m] 13 Go and learn what this means: I desire mercy and not sacrifice. [n, o] For I didn’t come to call the righteous, but sinners.” [p]

A Question about Fasting

14 Then John's disciples came to Him, saying, "Why do we and the Pharisees fast often, but Your disciples do not fast? " [q]

15 Jesus said to them, "Can the wedding guests [r] be sad while the groom is with them? The time [s] will come when the groom will be taken away from them, and then they will fast. 16 No one patches an old garment with unshrunk cloth, because the patch pulls away from the garment and makes the tear worse. 17 And no one puts [t] new wine into old wineskins. Otherwise, the skins burst, the wine spills out, and the skins are ruined. But they put new wine into fresh wineskins, and both are preserved."

A Girl Restored and a Woman Healed 18 As He was telling them these things, [u] suddenly one of the leaders [v] came and knelt down before Him, saying, "My daughter is near death, [D] but come and lay Your hand on her, and she will live." [w] 19 So Jesus and His disciples got up and followed [x] him.

20 Just then, a woman who had suffered from bleeding for 12 years approached from behind and touched the •tassel on His robe, [y] 21 for she said to herself, "If I can just touch His robe, I'll be made well! " [E, z]

22 But Jesus turned and saw her. "Have courage, daughter," He said. "Your faith has made you well." [a, b] And the woman was made well from that moment. [F]

23 When Jesus came to the leader's house, He saw the flute players and a crowd lamenting loudly. [c] 24 "Leave," He said, "because the girl isn't dead, but sleeping." [d] And they started laughing at Him. 25 But when the crowd had been put outside, He went in and took her by the hand, and the girl got up. [e] 26 And this news spread throughout that whole area. [f]

Healing the Blind

27 As Jesus went on from there, two blind men followed Him, shouting, “Have mercy on us, Son of David! ” [g]

28 When He entered the house, the blind men approached Him, and Jesus said to them, “Do you believe [h] that I can do this? ”

“Yes, Lord,” they answered Him.

29 Then He touched their eyes, saying, “Let it be done for you according to your faith! ” 30 And their eyes were opened. Then Jesus warned them sternly, “Be sure that no one finds out! ” [i, j] 31 But they went out and spread the news about Him throughout that whole area.

Driving Out a Demon

32 Just as they were going out, a demon-possessed man who was unable to speak was brought to Him. [k] 33 When the demon had been driven out, the man [G] spoke. And the crowds were amazed, saying, “Nothing like this has ever been seen in Israel! ”

34 But the Pharisees said, “He drives out demons by the ruler of the demons! ” [l]

The Lord of the Harvest

35 Then Jesus went to all the towns and villages, teaching in their •synagogues
, preaching the good news of the kingdom, [m] and healing every [H] disease and every sickness. [n] 36 When He saw the crowds, He felt compassion for them, because they were weary and worn out, [o] like sheep without a shepherd. [p] 37 Then He said to His disciples, [q] "The harvest is abundant, but the workers are few. 38 Therefore, pray to the Lord of the harvest to send out workers into His harvest."

Commissioning the Twelve

10 Summoning His 12 disciples, [a] He gave them authority over •unclean spirits, to drive them out and to heal every [A] disease and sickness. [b] 2 These are the names of the 12 apostles: [c]

First, Simon, who is called Peter, and Andrew his brother;
James the son of Zebedee,
and John his brother;
3 Philip and Bartholomew; [d]
Thomas and Matthew the tax collector;
James the son of Alphaeus, and Thaddaeus; [e]
4 Simon the Zealot, [B] and Judas Iscariot, [C] who also betrayed Him. [f]

5 Jesus sent out these 12 after giving them instructions: “Don’t take the road leading to other nations, and don’t enter any •Samaritan [g] town. 6 Instead, go to the lost sheep [h] of the house of Israel. [i] 7 As you go, announce this: ‘The kingdom of heaven has come near.’ [j] 8 Heal the sick, raise the dead, cleanse those with skin diseases, drive out demons. [k] You have received free of charge; give free of charge. 9 Don’t take along gold, silver, or copper for your money-belts. [l] 10 Don’t take a traveling bag for the road, or an extra shirt, sandals, or a walking stick, for the worker [m] is worthy of his food.

11 “When you enter any town or village, find out who is worthy, and stay there until you leave. 12 Greet a household when you enter it, [n] 13 and if the household is worthy, let your peace be on it. But if it is unworthy, let your peace return to you. [o] 14 If anyone will not welcome you or listen to your words, shake the dust off your feet [p] when you leave that house or town. 15 •I assure you: It will be more tolerable on the day of judgment [q] for the land of Sodom and Gomorrah than for that town. [r]

Persecutions Predicted

16 “Look, I’m sending you out like sheep among wolves. Therefore be as shrewd as serpents and as harmless as doves. [s] 17 Because people will hand you over to sanhedrins [t] and flog you in their •synagogues , [u] beware of them.
18 You will even be brought before governors and kings because of Me, to bear witness to them and to the nations. [v] 19 But when they hand you over, don’t worry about how or what you should speak. [w] For you will be given what to say at that hour, 20 because you are not speaking, but the Spirit [x] of your Father is speaking through you. [y]

21 “Brother will betray brother to death, and a father his child. Children will even rise up against their parents and have them put to death. [z] 22 You will be hated by everyone because of My name. [a] But the one who endures to the end will be delivered. [b,] [c] 23 When they persecute you in one town, escape to another. [d] For I assure you: You will not have covered the towns of Israel before the •Son of Man comes. 24 A disciple [e] is not above his teacher, or a •slave above his master. [f] 25 It is enough for a disciple to become like his teacher and a slave like his master. If they called the head of the house ‘•Beelzebul ,’ how much more the members of his household! [g]

Fear God

26 “Therefore, [h] don’t be afraid of them, since there is nothing covered that won’t be uncovered and nothing hidden that won’t be made known. [i] 27 What I tell you in the dark, speak in the light. What you hear in a whisper, [j] proclaim on the housetops. [k] 28 Don’t fear those who kill the body but are not able to kill the soul; [l] rather, fear Him who is able to destroy both soul and body in •hell . [m] 29 Aren’t two sparrows sold for a penny? [n] Yet not one of them falls to the ground without your Father’s [o] consent. [p] 30 But even the hairs of your head have all been counted. [q] 31 So don’t be afraid therefore; you are worth more than many sparrows. [r]

Acknowledging Christ

32 “Therefore, everyone who will acknowledge Me before men, I will also acknowledge him before My Father in heaven. [s] 33 But whoever denies Me before men, [t] I will also deny him before My Father in heaven. 34 Don’t assume that I came to bring peace on the earth. I did not come to bring peace, but a sword. [u] 35 For I came to turn a man against his father,

a daughter against her mother,
a daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law; 36 and a man’s enemies will be the members of his household. [v, w]

37 The person who loves father or mother more than Me is not worthy of Me; [x] the person who loves son or daughter more than Me is not worthy of Me. 38 And whoever doesn’t take up his cross and follow [y] Me is not worthy of Me.
39 Anyone finding [z] his life will lose it, [a] and anyone losing [b] his life because of Me will find it. [c]

A Cup of Cold Water

40 “The one who welcomes you welcomes Me, [d] and the one who welcomes Me welcomes Him who sent Me. [e] 41 Anyone who [f] welcomes a prophet [g] because he is a prophet [h] will receive a prophet’s reward. And anyone who [i] welcomes a righteous person because he’s righteous [j] will receive a righteous person’s reward. 42 And whoever gives [k] just a cup of cold water to one of these little ones because he is a disciple [l, m] — I assure you: He will never lose his reward! ”

In Praise of John the Baptist

11 When Jesus had finished giving orders to His 12 disciples, He moved on from there to teach and preach in their towns. [a] 2 When John heard in prison what the •Messiah was doing, he sent a message by his disciples [b] 3 and asked Him, “Are You the One who is to come, or should we expect someone else? ” [c]

4 Jesus replied to them, “Go and report to John what you hear and see: 5 the blind see, the lame walk, those with skin diseases are healed, [d] the deaf hear, the dead are raised, and the poor are told the good news. [e] 6 And if anyone is not •offended because of Me, he is blessed.” [f]

7 As these men went away, Jesus began to speak to the crowds about John:
“What did you go out into the wilderness to see? A reed swaying in the wind? [g] 8 What then did you go out to see? A man dressed in soft clothes? Look, those who wear soft clothes are in kings’ palaces. 9 But what did you go out to see? A prophet? Yes, I tell you, and far more than a prophet. [h] 10 This is the one it is written about:

Look, I am sending My messenger ahead of You; [i]
he will prepare Your way before You. [j, k]

11 “•I assure you: Among those born of women no one greater than John the Baptist has appeared, [l] but the least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he.
12 From the days of John the Baptist until now, the kingdom of heaven has been suffering violence, [m] and the violent have been seizing it by force. 13 For all the prophets and the Law prophesied until John; 14 if you’re willing to accept it, he is the Elijah who is to come. [n] 15 Anyone who has ears [o] should listen! [p]

An Unresponsive Generation

16 “To what should I compare this generation? It’s like children sitting in the marketplaces who call out to each other:

17 We played the flute for you,
but you didn’t dance;
we sang a lament,
but you didn’t mourn! [q]

18 For John did not come eating or drinking, and they say, ‘He has a demon! ’ [r] 19 The •Son of Man came eating and drinking, and they say, ‘Look, a glutton and a drunkard, [s] a friend of tax collectors and sinners! ’ [t] Yet wisdom is vindicated [u] by her deeds.” [v]

20 Then He proceeded to denounce the towns where most of His miracles were done, because they did not repent: 21 “Woe to you, Chorazin! [w] Woe to you, Bethsaida! [x] For if the miracles that were done in you had been done in Tyre and Sidon, [y] they would have repented in •sackcloth and ashes long ago!
22 But I tell you, it will be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon on the day of judgment [z] than for you. 23 And you, Capernaum, will you be exalted to heaven?
You will go down to •Hades . [a] For if the miracles that were done in you had been done in Sodom, it would have remained until today. 24 But I tell you, it will be more tolerable for the land of Sodom on the day of judgment than for you.”

The Son Gives Knowledge and Rest

25 At that time Jesus said, [b] “I praise [c] You, Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because You have hidden these things from the wise and learned and revealed them to infants. [d] 26 Yes, Father, because this was Your good pleasure. [e] 27 All things have been entrusted to Me by My Father. No one knows [f] the Son except the Father, and no one knows the Father except the Son and anyone to whom the Son desires [g] to reveal Him. [h]

28 “Come to Me, all of you who are weary and burdened, and I will give you rest. [i] 29 All of you, take up My yoke and learn from Me, [j] because I am gentle and humble in heart, and you will find rest for yourselves. [k] 30 For My yoke is easy and My burden is light.”

Lord of the Sabbath

12 At that time Jesus passed through the grainfields on the Sabbath. [a] His disciples [b] were hungry and began to pick and eat some heads of grain.
2 But when the •Pharisees saw it, they said to Him, “Look, Your disciples are doing what is not lawful [c] to do on the Sabbath! ”

3 He said to them, “Haven’t you read what David did when he and those who were with him were hungry — 4 how he entered the house of God, and they ate [d] the •sacred bread, which is not lawful for him or for those with him to eat, but only for the priests? [e] 5 Or haven’t you read in the Law [f] that on Sabbath days the priests in the temple violate the Sabbath and are innocent? [g] 6 But I tell you that something greater than the temple is here! [h] 7 If you had known what this means: I desire mercy and not sacrifice, [i, j] you would not have condemned the innocent. 8 For the •Son of Man is Lord of the Sabbath.” [k]

The Man with the Paralyzed Hand

9 Moving on from there, He entered their •synagogue . [l] 10 There He saw a man who had a paralyzed hand. And in order to accuse Him they asked Him, “Is it lawful to heal on the Sabbath? ” [m]

11 But He said to them, “What man among you, if he had a sheep [n] that fell into a pit on the Sabbath, wouldn’t take hold of it and lift it out? [o] 12 A man is worth far more than a sheep, [p] so it is lawful to do what is good on the Sabbath.”

13 Then He told the man, “Stretch out your hand.” So he stretched it out, and it was restored, [q] as good as the other. 14 But the Pharisees went out and plotted against Him, how they might destroy Him. [r]

The Servant of the Lord

15 When Jesus became aware of this, He withdrew from there. Huge crowds [s] followed Him, and He healed them all. [t] 16 He warned them not to make Him known, [u] 17 so that what was spoken through the prophet Isaiah might be fulfilled:

18 Here is My Servant whom I have chosen,
My beloved in whom My soul delights;
I will put My Spirit on Him, and He will proclaim justice to the nations. [v] 19 He will not argue or shout,
and no one will hear His voice in the streets.
20 He will not break a bruised reed,
and He will not put out a smoldering wick, until He has led justice to victory. [A] 21 The nations will put their hope in His name. [w, x]

A House Divided

22 Then a demon-possessed man [y] who was blind and unable to speak was brought to Him. He healed him, so that the man [B] could both speak and see. [z] 23 And all the crowds were astounded and said, “Perhaps this is the Son of David! ” [a]

24 When the Pharisees heard this, they said, “The man drives out demons only by •Beelzebul , the ruler of the demons.” [b]

25 Knowing their thoughts, [c] He told them: “Every kingdom divided against itself is headed for destruction, and no city or house divided against itself will stand. 26 If Satan [d] drives out Satan, he is divided against himself. How then will his kingdom stand? 27 And if I drive out demons by Beelzebul, who is it your sons drive them out by? For this reason they will be your judges. [e] 28 If I drive out demons by the Spirit of God, then the kingdom of God has come to you. [f] 29 How can someone enter a strong man’s house and steal his possessions unless he first ties up [g] the strong man? Then he can rob his house. 30 Anyone who is not with Me is against Me, [h] and anyone who does not gather with Me scatters. 31 Because of this, [i] I tell you, people will be forgiven every sin and blasphemy, [j] but the blasphemy against [k] the Spirit will not be forgiven. [l] 32 Whoever speaks a word against the Son of Man, [m] it will be forgiven him. But whoever speaks against the Holy Spirit, it will not be forgiven him, either in this age or in the one to come. [n]

A Tree and Its Fruit

33 “Either make the tree good and its fruit good, or make the tree bad [o] and its fruit bad; for a tree is known by its fruit. [p] 34 Brood of vipers! How can you speak good things when you are evil? For the mouth speaks from the overflow [q] of the heart. 35 A good man produces good things from his storeroom of good, [r] and an evil man produces evil things from his storeroom of evil. [s] 36 I tell you that on the day of judgment [t] people will have to account [u] for every careless word they speak. [v] 37 For by your words you will be acquitted, and by your words you will be condemned.”

The Sign of Jonah

38 Then some of the •scribes and Pharisees said to Him, “Teacher, we want to see a sign from You.” [w] 39 But He answered them, [x] “An evil and adulterous generation demands a sign, but no sign will be given to it except the sign of the prophet Jonah. [y] 40 For as Jonah was in the belly of the huge fish three days and three nights, [z] so the Son of Man will be in the heart of the earth three days and three nights. 41 The men of Nineveh will stand up at the judgment with this generation and condemn it, [a] because they repented at Jonah’s proclamation; and look — something greater than Jonah is here! [b] 42 The queen of the south [c] will rise up at the judgment with this generation and condemn it, because she came from the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon; and look — something greater than Solomon is here!

An Unclean Spirit’s Return

43 “When an •unclean spirit comes out of a man, it roams through waterless places looking for rest but doesn’t find any. [d] 44 Then it says, ‘I’ll go back to my house that I came from.’ And returning, it finds the house vacant, swept, and put in order. 45 Then off it goes and brings with it seven other spirits more evil than itself, and they enter and settle down there. As a result, that man’s last condition is worse than the first. [e] That’s how it will also be with this evil generation.”

True Relationships

46 He [f] was still speaking to the crowds when suddenly His mother and brothers were standing outside wanting to speak to Him. [g] 47 Someone told Him, “Look, Your mother and Your brothers are standing outside, wanting to speak to You.” [h]

48 But He replied to the one who told Him, “Who is My mother and who are My brothers? ” 49 And stretching out His hand toward His disciples, [i] He said, “Here are My mother and My brothers! 50 For whoever does the will of My Father in heaven, that person is My brother and sister and mother.” [j]

The Parable of the Sower

13 On that day Jesus went out of the house and was sitting by the sea. [a]
2 Such large crowds gathered around Him that He got into a boat and sat down, while the whole crowd stood on the shore. [b] 3 Then He told them many things in parables, [c] saying: “Consider the sower who went out to sow. 4 As he was sowing, some seed fell along the path, and the birds came and ate them up. 5 Others fell on rocky ground, where there wasn’t much soil, and they sprang up quickly since the soil wasn’t deep. 6 But when the sun came up they were scorched, and since they had no root, they withered.
7 Others fell among thorns, and the thorns came up and choked them. 8 Still others fell on good ground and produced a crop: some 100, some 60, and some 30 times what was sown. [d] 9 Anyone who has ears [e] should listen! ” [f]

Why Jesus Used Parables

10 Then the disciples [g] came up and asked Him, “Why do You speak to them in parables? ” [h]

11 He answered them, “Because the •secrets of the kingdom of heaven have been given for you to know, [i] but it has not been given to them. 12 For whoever has, more will be given to him, and he will have more than enough. But whoever does not have, even what he has will be taken away from him. [j] 13 For this reason I speak to them in parables, because looking they do not see, [k] and hearing they do not listen or understand. [l] 14 Isaiah’s prophecy is fulfilled in them, which says:

You will listen and listen,
yet never understand;
and you will look and look,
yet never perceive. [m]
15 For this people’s heart has grown callous;
their ears are hard of hearing,
and they have shut their eyes;
otherwise they might see with their eyes
and hear with their ears, understand with their hearts and turn back —
and I would cure them. [n, o]

16 “But your eyes are blessed [p] because they do see, and your ears because they do hear! [q] 17 For •I assure you: Many prophets and righteous people longed to see the things you see yet didn’t see them; to hear the things you hear yet didn’t hear them. [r]

The Parable of the Sower Explained

18 “You, then, listen to the parable of the sower: [s] 19 When anyone hears the word [t] about the kingdom and doesn’t understand it, the evil one comes and snatches away what was sown in his heart. This is the one sown along the path. [u] 20 And the one sown on rocky ground — this is one who hears the word and immediately receives it with joy. [v] 21 Yet he has no root in himself, but is short-lived. When pressure or persecution [w] comes because of the word, immediately he stumbles. 22 Now the one sown among the thorns — this is one who hears the word, but the worries of this age [x] and the seduction [y] of wealth [z] choke the word, and it becomes unfruitful. 23 But the one sown on the good ground — this is one who hears and understands the word, who does bear fruit and yields: some 100, some 60, some 30 times what was sown.”

The Parable of the Wheat and the Weeds

24 He presented another parable to them: “The kingdom of heaven may be compared to a man who sowed good seed in his field. [a] 25 But while people were sleeping, his enemy came, sowed weeds [b] among the wheat, and left. 26 When the plants sprouted and produced grain, then the weeds also appeared. 27 The landowner’s •slaves [c] came to him and said, ‘Master, didn’t you sow good seed in your field? Then where did the weeds come from? ’

28 “ ‘An enemy did this! ’ he told them.

“ ‘So, do you want us to go and gather them up? ’ the slaves asked him.

29 “ ‘No,’ he said. ‘When you gather up the weeds, you might also uproot the wheat with them. 30 Let both grow together until the harvest. At harvest time I’ll tell the reapers: Gather the weeds first and tie them in bundles to burn them, but store the wheat in my barn.’ ”

The Parables of the Mustard Seed and of the Yeast 31 He [d] presented another parable to them: “The kingdom of heaven [e] is like a mustard seed that a man took and sowed in his field. 32 It’s the smallest of all the seeds, but when grown, it’s taller than the vegetables and becomes a tree, so that the birds of the sky come and nest in its branches.” [f]

33 He told them another parable: “The kingdom of heaven is like yeast that a woman took and mixed into 50 pounds [g] of flour until it spread through all of it.” [h, i]

Using Parables Fulfills Prophecy

34 Jesus told the crowds all these things in parables, and He would not speak anything to them without a parable, [j] 35 so that what was spoken through the prophet might be fulfilled:

I will open My mouth in parables;
I will declare things kept secret
from the foundation of the world. [k, l]

Jesus Interprets the Wheat and the Weeds

36 Then He dismissed the crowds and went into the house. His disciples approached Him and said, “Explain the parable of the weeds in the field to us.”
[m]

37 He replied: “The One who sows the good seed is the •Son of Man; 38 the field is the world; and the good seed — these are the sons of the kingdom. The weeds are the sons of the evil one, [n] 39 and the enemy who sowed them is the Devil. The harvest is the end of the age, and the harvesters are angels. [o] 40 Therefore, just as the weeds are gathered and burned in the fire, so it will be at the end of the age. [p] 41 The Son of Man will send out His angels, and they will gather from His kingdom everything that causes sin [q] and those •guilty of lawlessness. [r, s] 42 They will throw them into the blazing furnace [t] where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth. [u] 43 Then the righteous will shine like the sun in their Father’s kingdom. Anyone who has ears [v] should listen! [w]

The Parables of the Hidden Treasure and of the Priceless Pearl [44] “The kingdom of heaven is like treasure, buried in a field, that a man found and reburied. Then in his joy he goes and sells everything he has and buys that field. [x]

45 “Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a merchant in search of fine pearls.
46 When he found one priceless [y] pearl, he went and sold everything he had, and bought it. [z]

The Parable of the Net

47 “Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a large net thrown into the sea. It collected every kind of fish, [a] 48 and when it was full, they dragged it ashore, sat down, and gathered the good fish into containers, but threw out the worthless ones. 49 So it will be at the end of the age. The angels will go out, separate the evil people from the righteous, [b] 50 and throw them into the blazing furnace. In that place there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth. [c]

The Storehouse of Truth

51 “Have you understood all these things? ” [d]

“Yes,” they told Him.

52 “Therefore,” He said to them, “every student of Scripture [e] instructed in the kingdom of heaven is like a landowner who brings out of his storeroom what is new and what is old.” [f] 53 When Jesus had finished these parables, He left there.

Rejection at Nazareth

54 He went to His hometown [g] and began to teach them in their •synagogue , so that they were astonished and said, “How did this wisdom and these miracles come to Him? [h] 55 Isn’t this the carpenter’s son? [i] Isn’t His mother called Mary, and His brothers James, [j] Joseph, [k] Simon, and Judas? [l] 56 And His sisters, aren’t they all with us? So where does He get all these things? ” 57 And they were •offended by Him.

But Jesus said to them, “A prophet is not without honor except in his hometown and in his household.” [m] 58 And He did not do many miracles there because of their unbelief.

John the Baptist Beheaded

14 At that time [a] •Herod the tetrarch [b] heard the report about Jesus. 2 “This is John the Baptist! ” he told his servants. “He has been raised from the dead, and that’s why supernatural powers are at work in him.” [c] 3 For Herod had arrested John, chained [A] him, and put him in prison on account of Herodias, his brother Philip’s wife, [d] 4 since John had been telling him, “It’s not lawful [e] for you to have her! ” 5 Though he wanted to kill him, he feared the crowd, since they regarded him as a prophet. [f] 6 But when Herod’s birthday celebration came, Herodias’s daughter danced before them [B] and pleased Herod. 7 So he promised with an oath to give her whatever she might ask. 8 And prompted by her mother, she answered, “Give me John the Baptist’s head here on a platter! ” 9 Although the king regretted it, he commanded that it be granted because of his oaths and his guests. 10 So he sent orders and had John beheaded in the prison. 11 His head was brought on a platter and given to the girl, who carried it to her mother. 12 Then his disciples came, removed the corpse, [g] buried it, and went and reported to Jesus.

Feeding 5,000

13 When Jesus heard about it, [h] He withdrew from there by boat to a remote place to be alone. When the crowds heard this, they followed Him on foot from the towns. 14 As He stepped ashore, [C] He saw a huge crowd, felt compassion for them, and healed their sick. [i] 15 When evening came, the disciples [j] approached Him and said, “This place is a wilderness, and it is already late. [D] Send the crowds away so they can go into the villages and buy food for themselves.” 16 “They don’t need to go away,” Jesus told them. “You give them something to eat.”
17 “But we only have five loaves and two fish here,” they said to Him.
18 “Bring them here to Me,” He said. 19 Then He commanded the crowds to sit down [E] on the grass. He took the five loaves and the two fish, and looking up to heaven, He blessed them. He broke the loaves and gave them to the disciples, and the disciples gave them to the crowds. [k] 20 Everyone ate and was filled.
Then they picked up 12 baskets full of leftover pieces! [l] 21 Now those who ate were about 5,000 men, besides women and children.

Walking on the Water

22 Immediately [m] He [n] made the disciples get into the boat and go ahead of Him to the other side, while He dismissed the crowds. 23 After dismissing the crowds, He went up on the mountain by Himself to pray. When evening came,
He was there alone. [o] 24 But the boat was already over a mile [F] from land, [p] battered by the waves, because the wind was against them. 25 Around three in the morning, [G] He came toward them walking on the sea. [q] 26 When the disciples saw Him walking on the sea, they were terrified. “It’s a ghost! ” they said, and cried out in fear.

27 Immediately Jesus spoke to them. “Have courage! It is I. Don’t be afraid.”
[r]

28 “Lord, if it’s You,” Peter answered Him, “command me to come to You on the water.”

29 “Come! ” He said.

And climbing out of the boat, Peter started walking on the water and came toward Jesus. 30 But when he saw the strength of the wind, [s] he was afraid. And beginning to sink he cried out, “Lord, save me! ”

31 Immediately Jesus reached out His hand, caught hold of him, and said to him, “You of little faith, why did you doubt? ” [t] 32 When they got into the boat, the wind ceased. 33 Then those in the boat worshiped Him and said, “Truly You are the Son of God! ” [u]

Miraculous Healings

34 Once they crossed over, [v] they came to land at Gennesaret. [w] 35 When the men of that place recognized Him, they alerted [H] the whole vicinity and brought to Him all who were sick. 36 They were begging Him that they might only touch the •tassel on His robe. And as many as touched it were made perfectly well. [x]

The Tradition of the Elders

15 Then [a] •Pharisees and •scribes came from Jerusalem to Jesus and asked, [b] 2 “Why do Your disciples [c] break the tradition of the elders? For they don’t wash their hands when they eat! ” [A, d] 3 He answered them, “And why do you break God’s commandment because of your tradition? 4 For God said: [e]

Honor your father and your mother; [f, g] and,
The one who speaks evil of father or mother must be put to death. [h, i]

5 But you say, ‘Whoever tells his father or mother, “Whatever benefit you might have received from me is a gift committed to the temple” — 6 he does not have to honor his father.’ [j] In this way, you have revoked God’s word [k] because of your tradition. 7 Hypocrites! Isaiah prophesied correctly about you when he said:
8 These people [l] honor Me with their lips,
but their heart is far from Me.
9 They worship Me in vain,
teaching as doctrines the commands of men.” [m, n]

Defilement Is from Within

10 Summoning the crowd, He told them, “Listen and understand: 11 It’s not what goes into the mouth that defiles [o] a man, but what comes out of the mouth, this defiles a man.” [p]

12 Then the disciples came up and told Him, “Do You know that the Pharisees took offense when they heard this statement? ”

13 He replied, “Every plant that My heavenly Father didn’t plant will be uprooted. [q] 14 Leave them alone! They are blind guides. [r] And if the blind guide the blind, both will fall into a pit.” [s]

15 Then Peter replied to Him, “Explain this parable to us.” [t]

16 “Are even you still lacking in understanding? ” He [u] asked. 17 “Don’t you realize [v] that whatever goes into the mouth passes into the stomach and is eliminated? [w] 18 But what comes out of the mouth comes from the heart, and this defiles a man. [x] 19 For from the heart come evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, sexual immoralities, thefts, false testimonies, [y] blasphemies. [z] 20 These are the things that defile a man, but eating with unwashed hands does not defile a man.” [a]

A Gentile Mother’s Faith

21 When Jesus left there, [b] He withdrew to the area of Tyre and Sidon. [c] 22
Just then a Canaanite woman from that region came and kept crying out, [d] “Have mercy on me, Lord, Son of David! My daughter is cruelly tormented by a demon.” [e]

23 Yet He did not say a word to her. So His disciples [f] approached Him and urged Him, “Send her away because she cries out after us.” [B]

24 He replied, “I was sent only to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.” [g]

25 But she came, knelt before Him, and said, “Lord, help me! ”

26 He answered, “It isn’t right to take the children’s bread and throw it to their dogs.” [h]

27 “Yes, Lord,” she said, “yet even the dogs eat the crumbs that fall from their masters’ table! ”

28 Then Jesus replied to her, “•Woman , your faith is great. Let it be done for you as you want.” And from that moment [C] her daughter was cured. [i]

Healing Many People

29 Moving on from there, [j] Jesus passed along the Sea of Galilee. [k] He went up on a mountain and sat there, 30 and large crowds came to Him, having with them the lame, the blind, the deformed, those unable to speak, and many others.
They put them at His feet, and He healed them. 31 So the crowd was amazed when they saw those unable to speak talking, the deformed restored, the lame walking, and the blind seeing. [l] And they gave glory to the God of Israel.

Feeding 4,000

32 Now Jesus summoned His disciples and said, [m] "I have compassion on the crowd, because they've already stayed with Me three days and have nothing to eat. I don't want to send them away hungry; otherwise they might collapse on the way."

33 The disciples said to Him, "Where could we get enough bread in this desolate place [n] to fill such a crowd? "

34 "How many loaves do you have? " Jesus asked them.

"Seven," they said, "and a few small fish."

35 After commanding the crowd to sit down on the ground, 36 He took the seven loaves and the fish, and He gave thanks, broke them, and kept on giving them to the disciples, and the disciples gave them to the crowds. [o] 37 They all ate and were filled. Then they collected the leftover pieces — seven large baskets full. 38 Now those who ate were 4,000 men, besides women and children. 39
After dismissing the crowds, He got into the boat and went to the region of Magadan. [p], [q]

The Yeast of the Pharisees and the Sadducees

16 The •Pharisees and •Sadducees approached, [a] and as a test, asked Him to show them a sign from heaven. [b]

2 He answered them: “When evening comes you say, ‘It will be good weather because the sky is red.’ 3 And in the morning, ‘Today will be stormy because the sky is red and threatening.’ You [c] know how to read the appearance of the sky, but you can’t read the signs of the times. [d] 4 An evil and adulterous generation demands a sign, but no sign will be given to it except the sign of [e] Jonah.” [f] Then He left them and went away.

5 The disciples reached the other shore, [A] and they had forgotten to take bread.

6 Then Jesus told them, “Watch out and beware of the yeast [g] of the Pharisees and Sadducees.” [h]

7 And they discussed among themselves, “We didn’t bring any bread.”

8 Aware of this, Jesus said, “You of little faith! [i] Why are you discussing among yourselves that you do not have bread? 9 Don’t you understand yet? Don’t you remember the five loaves for the 5,000 and how many baskets you collected? 10 Or the seven loaves for the 4,000 and how many large baskets you collected? [j] 11 Why is it you don’t understand that when I told you, ‘Beware of the yeast of the Pharisees and Sadducees,’ it wasn’t about bread? ” [k] 12 Then they understood that He did not tell them to beware of the yeast in bread, but of the teaching of the Pharisees and Sadducees. [l]

Peter’s Confession of the Messiah 13 When Jesus came to the region of Caesarea Philippi, [m, n] He asked His disciples, “Who do people say that the •Son of Man is? ” [o]

14 And they said, “Some say John the Baptist; others, Elijah; still others, Jeremiah or one of the prophets.” [p]

15 “But you,” He asked them, “who do you say that I am? ”

16 Simon Peter answered, “You are the •Messiah , the Son of the living God! ” [q]

17 And Jesus responded, “Simon son of Jonah, [r, s] you are blessed because flesh and blood did not reveal this to you, but My Father in heaven. [t] 18 And I also say to you that you are Peter, [u] and on this rock [v] I will build My church, [w] and the forces [x] of •Hades will not overpower it. 19 I will give you the keys of the kingdom of heaven, [y] and whatever you bind on earth is already bound [z] in heaven, and whatever you loose on earth is already loosed [a] in heaven.”

20 And He gave the disciples orders to tell no one that He was [b] the Messiah. [c]

His Death and Resurrection Predicted 21 From [d] then on Jesus began to point out to His disciples that He must go to Jerusalem and suffer many things from the elders, •chief priests, and •scribes , be killed, and be raised the third day. [e] 22 Then Peter took Him aside and began to rebuke Him, "Oh no, [B] Lord! This will never happen to You! "

23 But He turned and told Peter, "Get behind Me, Satan! You are an offense to Me because you're not thinking about God's concerns, [f] but man's." [g]

Take Up Your Cross

24 Then Jesus said to His disciples, “If anyone wants to come with Me, he must deny himself, take up his cross, and follow Me. [h] 25 For whoever wants to save his •life will lose it, but whoever loses his life because of Me will find it. [i] 26 What will it benefit a man if he gains the whole world yet loses his life? Or what will a man give in exchange for his life? [j] 27 For the Son of Man is going to come with His angels in the glory of His Father, [k] and then He will reward each according to what he has done. 28 •I assure you: There are some standing here who will not taste death until they see the Son of Man coming in His kingdom.” [l]

The Transfiguration

17 After six days [a] Jesus took Peter, James, and his brother John and led them up on a high mountain by themselves. [b] 2 He was transformed [A] in front of them, and His face shone like the sun. Even His clothes became as white as the light. [c] 3 Suddenly, Moses and Elijah appeared to them, talking with Him.

4 Then Peter said to Jesus, “Lord, it’s good for us to be here! If You want, I will make [d] three •tabernacles here: one for You, one for Moses, and one for Elijah.” [e]

5 While he was still speaking, suddenly a bright cloud covered [B] them, and a voice from the cloud said:

This is My beloved Son.
I take delight in Him.
Listen to Him! [f]

6 When the disciples [g] heard it, they fell facedown and were terrified.

7 Then Jesus came up, touched them, and said, “Get up; don’t be afraid.” [h]
8 When they looked up they saw no one except Him [i] — Jesus alone. 9 As they were coming down from the mountain, Jesus commanded them, [j] “Don’t tell anyone about the vision until the •Son of Man is raised [k] from the dead.”

10 So the disciples questioned Him, “Why then do the •scribes say that Elijah must come first? ” [l]

11 “Elijah is coming [m] and will restore everything,” He replied. [n, o] 12 “But I tell you: Elijah has already come, and they didn’t recognize him. On the contrary, they did whatever they pleased to him. In the same way the Son of Man is going to suffer at their hands.” [p, q] 13 Then the disciples understood that
He spoke to them about John the Baptist.

The Power of Faith over a Demon

14 When they reached the crowd, [r] a man approached and knelt down before Him. 15 “Lord,” he said, “have mercy on my son, because he has seizures [C] and suffers severely. He often falls into the fire and often into the water. 16 I brought him to Your disciples, but they couldn’t heal him.” [s] 17 Jesus replied, “You unbelieving and rebellious [t] generation! How long will I be with you? How long must I put up with you? Bring him here to Me.” [u] 18 Then Jesus rebuked the demon, [D] and it [E] came out of him, [v] and from that moment [F] the boy was healed.

19 Then the disciples approached Jesus privately and said, “Why couldn’t we drive it out? ”

20 “Because of your little faith,” He [w] told them. “For •I assure you: If you have faith the size of [x] a mustard seed, you will tell this mountain, ‘Move from here to there,’ and it will move. [y] Nothing will be impossible for you. [z] [ 21 However, this kind does not come out except by prayer and fasting.] ” [a]

The Second Prediction of His Death 22 As [b] they were meeting [c] in Galilee, Jesus told them, “The Son of Man is about to be betrayed into the hands of men.
23 They will kill Him, and on the third day He will be raised up.” And they were deeply distressed.

Paying the Temple Tax

24 When they came to Capernaum, those who collected the double-drachma tax [d] approached Peter and said, “Doesn’t your Teacher pay the double-drachma tax? ” [e]

25 “Yes,” he said.

When he went into the house, Jesus spoke to him first, [G] “What do you think, Simon? Who do earthly kings collect tariffs or taxes from? From their sons or from strangers? ” [f, g]

26 “From strangers,” he said. [h]

“Then the sons are free,” Jesus told him. 27 “But, so we won’t •offend them, go to the sea, cast in a fishhook, and take the first fish that you catch. When you open its mouth you’ll find a coin. [i] Take it and give it to them for Me and you.” [j]

Who Is the Greatest?

18 At that time A, a the disciples b came to Jesus and said, “Who is greatest in the kingdom of heaven? ” c 2 Then He called a child to Him and had him stand among them. 3 “•I assure you,” He said, “unless you are converted d and become like children, e you will never enter the kingdom of heaven. f 4 Therefore, whoever humbles himself like this child — this one is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven. 5 And whoever welcomes g one child like this in My name welcomes Me.
6 “But whoever •causes the downfall of one of these little ones who believe in Me — it would be better for him if a heavy millstone h were hung around his neck and he were drowned in the depths of the sea! i 7 Woe to the world because of •offenses . For offenses must come, but woe to that man by whom the offense comes. j 8 If your hand or your foot causes your downfall, cut it off and throw it away. It is better for you to enter life maimed or lame, than to have two hands or two feet and be thrown into the eternal fire. k 9 And if your eye causes your downfall, gouge it out and throw it away. It is better for you to enter life with one eye, rather than to have two eyes and be thrown into •hellfire ! l, m

The Parable of the Lost Sheep

10 “See that you don’t look down on one of these little ones, n because I tell you that in heaven their angels o continually view the face of My Father in heaven. p [11 For the •Son of Man q has come to save the lost.] r 12 What do you think? s If a man has 100 sheep, and one of them goes astray, won’t he leave the 99 on the hillside and go and search for the stray? t 13 And if he finds it, I assure you: He rejoices over that sheep u more than over the 99 that did not go astray. 14 In the same way, it is not the will of your Father in heaven that one of these little ones perish.

Restoring a Brother

15 “If your brother sins against you, [v] go and rebuke him in private. [w] If he listens to you, you have won your brother. [x] 16 But if he won’t listen, take one or two more with you, so that by the testimony [y] of two or three witnesses every fact may be established. [z, a] 17 If he pays no attention to them, tell the church.
[b, c] But if he doesn’t pay attention even to the church, let him be like an unbeliever [d] and a tax collector to you. [e] 18 I assure you: Whatever you bind on earth is already bound [f] in heaven, and whatever you loose on earth is already loosed [g] in heaven. [h] 19 Again, I assure you: If two of you on earth agree about any matter that you [i] pray for, it will be done for you [j] by My Father in heaven.
20 For where two or three are gathered together in My name, I am there among them.”

The Parable of the Unforgiving Slave [21] Then Peter came to Him and said, “Lord, how many times could my brother sin against me and I forgive him? As many as seven times? ” [k]

22 “I tell you, not as many as seven,” Jesus said to him, “but 70 times seven. [l] 23 For this reason, the kingdom of heaven can be compared to a king who wanted to settle accounts with his •slaves . 24 When he began to settle accounts, one who owed 10,000 talents [m] was brought before him. 25 Since he had no way to pay it back, his master commanded that he, his wife, his children, and everything he had be sold to pay the debt. [n]

26 “At this, the slave fell facedown before him and said, ‘Be patient with me, and I will pay you everything! ’ 27 Then the master of that slave had compassion, released him, and forgave him the loan.

28 “But that slave went out and found one of his fellow slaves who owed him
100 •denarii . [o, p] He grabbed him, started choking him, and said, ‘Pay what you owe! ’

29 “At this, his fellow slave fell down [q] and began begging him, ‘Be patient with me, and I will pay you back.’ 30 But he wasn’t willing. On the contrary, he went and threw him into prison until he could pay what was owed. 31 When the other slaves saw what had taken place, they were deeply distressed and went and reported to their master everything that had happened.

32 “Then, after he had summoned him, his master said to him, ‘You wicked slave! I forgave you all that debt because you begged me. 33 Shouldn’t you also have had mercy on your fellow slave, as I had mercy on you? ’ [r] 34 And his master got angry and handed him over to the jailers to be tortured until he could pay everything that was owed. 35 So My heavenly Father will also do to you if each of you does not forgive his brother [s] from his [t] heart.” [u]

The Question of Divorce

19 When Jesus had finished this instruction, [a] He departed from Galilee and went to the region of Judea across the Jordan. [b] 2 Large crowds followed Him, and He healed them there. [c] 3 Some •Pharisees approached Him to test
Him. They asked, “Is it lawful for a man to divorce his wife on any grounds? ” [d] 4 “Haven’t you read,” He replied, “that He who created [e] them in the beginning made them male and female,” [f, g] 5 and He also said:

> “For this reason a man will leave
> his father and mother
> and be joined to his wife, > and the two will become one flesh? [h, i]

6 So they are no longer two, but one flesh. Therefore, what God has joined together, man must not separate.”
7 “Why then,” they asked Him, “did Moses command us to give divorce papers [j] and to send her away? ” 8 He told them, “Moses permitted you to divorce your wives because of the hardness of your hearts. But it was not like that from the beginning. 9 And I tell you, whoever divorces his wife, except for sexual immorality, and marries another, commits adultery.” [k, l] 10 His disciples [m] said to Him, “If the relationship of a man with his wife is like this, it’s better not to marry! ” 11 But He told them, “Not everyone can accept this saying, but only those it has been given [n] to. 12 For there are eunuchs who were born that way from their mother’s womb, there are eunuchs who were made by men, and there are eunuchs who have made themselves that way because of the kingdom of heaven.
Let anyone accept this who can.”

Blessing the Children

13 Then children were brought to Him so He might put His hands on them and pray. But the disciples rebuked them. o 14 Then Jesus said, “Leave the children alone, and don’t try to keep them from coming to Me, because the kingdom of heaven is made up of people like this.” p, q 15 After putting His hands on them,
He went on from there.

The Rich Young Ruler

16 Just then someone came up and asked Him, [r] “Teacher, what good must I do to have eternal life? ” [s] 17 “Why do you ask Me about what is good? ” [t] He said to him. “There is only One who is good. [u] If you want to enter into life, keep the commandments.” [v] 18 “Which ones? ” he asked Him. Jesus answered:

Do not murder;
do not commit adultery;
do not steal;
do not bear false witness; [w] 19 honor your father and your mother;
and love your neighbor as yourself. [x, y]

20 “I have kept all these,” [z] the young man told Him. “What do I still lack? ”
21 “If you want to be perfect,” [a] Jesus said to him, “go, sell your belongings and give to the poor, [b] and you will have treasure in heaven. Then come, follow Me.”
22 When the young man heard that command, he went away grieving, because he had many possessions.

Possessions and the Kingdom

23 Then Jesus said to His disciples, "•I assure you: It will be hard for a rich person to enter the kingdom of heaven! [c] 24 Again I tell you, it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich person to enter the kingdom of God." [d]

25 When the disciples heard this, they were utterly astonished and asked,
"Then who can be saved? "

26 But Jesus looked at them and said, "With men this is impossible, but with God all things are possible." [e]

27 Then Peter responded to Him, "Look, we have left everything and followed
You. So what will there be for us? "

28 Jesus said to them, "I assure you: In the Messianic Age, [f, g] when the •Son of Man sits on His glorious throne, [h] you who have followed Me will also sit on 12 thrones, judging the 12 tribes of Israel. 29 And everyone who has left houses, brothers or sisters, father or mother, [i] children, or fields because of My name will receive 100 times more and will inherit eternal life. [j] 30 But many who are first will be last, and the last first. [k]

The Parable of the Vineyard Workers

20 “For the kingdom of heaven is like a landowner who went out early in the morning to hire workers for his vineyard. [a] [2] After agreeing with the workers on one •denarius for the day, he sent them into his vineyard. [3] When he went out about nine in the morning, [b] he saw others standing in the marketplace doing nothing. [4] To those men he said, ‘You also go to my vineyard, and I’ll give you whatever is right.’ So off they went. [5] About noon and at three, [c] he went out again and did the same thing. [6] Then about five [d] he went and found others standing around, [e] and said to them, ‘Why have you been standing here all day doing nothing? ’

[7] “ ‘Because no one hired us,’ they said to him.

“ ‘You also go to my vineyard,’ he told them. [f] [8] When evening came, the owner of the vineyard told his foreman, ‘Call the workers and give them their pay, [g] starting with the last and ending with the first.’ [h]

[9] “When those who were hired about five [i] came, they each received one denarius. [10] So when the first ones came, they assumed they would get more, but they also received a denarius each. [11] When they received it, they began to complain to the landowner: [12] ‘These last men put in one hour, and you made them equal to us who bore the burden of the day and the burning heat! ’ [j]

[13] “He replied to one of them, ‘Friend, I’m doing you no wrong. Didn’t you agree with me on a denarius? [k] [14] Take what’s yours and go. I want to give this last man the same as I gave you. [15] Don’t I have the right to do what I want with my business? [l] Are you jealous [m] because I’m generous? ’ [n, o]

[16] “So the last will be first, and the first last.” [p, q]

The Third Prediction of His Death [17] While going up to Jerusalem, [r] Jesus took the 12 disciples aside privately and said to them on the way: [18] “Listen! We are going up to Jerusalem. The •Son of Man will be handed over to the •chief priests and •scribes , and they will condemn Him to death. [s] [19] Then they will hand Him over to the Gentiles [t] to be mocked, flogged, [u] and crucified, and He will be resurrected [v] on the third day.”

Suffering and Service

20 Then the mother of Zebedee's sons approached Him with her sons. [w] She knelt down to ask Him for something. [x] 21 "What do you want? " He asked her.

"Promise," [A] she said to Him, "that these two sons of mine may sit, one on Your right and the other on Your left, in Your kingdom." [y]

22 But Jesus answered, "You don't know what you're asking. Are you able to drink the cup [z] that I am about to drink?" [a, b]

"We are able," they said to Him.

23 He told them, "You will indeed drink My cup. [c] But to sit at My right and left is not Mine to give; instead, it belongs to those for whom it has been prepared by My Father." [d] 24 When the 10 disciples heard this, they became indignant with the two brothers. 25 But Jesus called them over and said, "You know that the rulers of the Gentiles dominate them, and the men of high position exercise power over them. 26 It must not be like that among you. On the contrary, whoever wants to become great among you must be your servant, [e] 27 and whoever wants to be first among you must be your •slave ; 28 just as the Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve, [f] and to give His life — a ransom for many." [g]

Two Blind Men Healed

29 As they were leaving Jericho, a large crowd followed Him. [h] 30 There were two blind men sitting by the road. When they heard that Jesus was passing by, they cried out, “Lord, have mercy on us, Son of David! ” 31 The crowd told them to keep quiet, but they cried out all the more, “Lord, have mercy on us, Son of David! ” [i]

32 Jesus stopped, called them, and said, “What do you want Me to do for you? ”

33 “Lord,” they said to Him, “open our eyes! ” 34 Moved with compassion, Jesus touched their eyes. Immediately they could see, and they followed Him.

The Triumphal Entry

21 When they approached Jerusalem [a] and came to Bethphage at the •Mount of Olives, [b] Jesus then sent two disciples, [2] telling them, “Go into the village ahead of you. At once you will find a donkey tied there, and a colt with her. Untie them and bring them to Me. [3] If anyone says anything to you, you should say that the Lord needs them, and immediately he will send them.”

[4] This took place so that what was spoken through the prophet might be fulfilled:

[5] Tell Daughter •Zion ,
“Look, your King is coming to you,
gentle, and mounted on a donkey,
even on a colt,
the foal of a beast of burden.” [c, d]

[6] The disciples went and did just as Jesus directed them. [7] They brought the donkey and the colt; then they laid their robes on them, and He sat on them. [8] A very large crowd spread their robes on the road; others were cutting branches from the trees and spreading them on the road. [9] Then the crowds who went ahead of Him and those who followed kept shouting:

• Hosanna to the Son of David!
He who comes in the name of the Lord is the blessed One! [e]
Hosanna in the highest heaven! [f]

[10] When He entered Jerusalem, the whole city was shaken, saying, “Who is this? ” [11] And the crowds kept saying, “This is the prophet Jesus [g] from Nazareth in Galilee! ”

Cleansing the Temple Complex

12 Jesus went into the •temple complex [h, i] and drove out all those buying and selling in the temple. He overturned the money changers' tables and the chairs of those selling doves. [j] 13 And He said to them, "It is written, My house will be called a house of prayer. [k] But you are making it a den of thieves!" [l, m]

Children Praise Jesus

14 The blind and the lame came to Him in the temple complex, and He healed them. 15 When the •chief priests and the •scribes saw the wonders that He did and the children shouting in the temple complex, "Hosanna to the Son of David! " they were indignant 16 and said to Him, "Do You hear what these children are saying? "

"Yes," Jesus told them. "Have you never read:

You have prepared [n] praise [o]
from the mouths of children and nursing infants? " [p]

17 Then He left them, went out of the city to Bethany, [q] and spent the night there.

The Barren Fig Tree

18 Early in the morning, [r] as He was returning to the city, He was hungry.
19 Seeing a lone fig tree by the road, He went up to it and found nothing on it except leaves. And He said to it, “May no fruit ever come from you again! ” At once the fig tree withered.

20 When the disciples saw it, they were amazed and said, “How did the fig tree wither so quickly? ”

21 Jesus answered them, “•I assure you: If you have faith and do not doubt, you will not only do what was done to the fig tree, but even if you tell this mountain, ‘Be lifted up and thrown into the sea,’ it will be done. [s] 22 And if you believe, you will receive [t] whatever you ask for in prayer.”

Messiah’s Authority Challenged

23 When He entered the temple complex, [u] the chief priests and the elders of the people came up to Him as He was teaching and said, “By what authority are You doing these things? Who gave You this authority? ” [v]

24 Jesus answered them, “I will also ask you one question, and if you answer it for Me, then I will tell you by what authority I do these things. 25 Where did John’s baptism come from? From heaven or from men? ”

They began to argue among themselves, “If we say, ‘From heaven,’ He will say to us, ‘Then why didn’t you believe him? ’ [w] 26 But if we say, ‘From men,’ we’re afraid of the crowd, [x] because everyone thought John was a prophet.” [y] 27 So they answered Jesus, “We don’t know.”

And He said to them, “Neither will I tell you by what authority I do these things.

The Parable of the Two Sons

28 “But what do you think? A man had two sons. He went to the first and said,
‘My son, go, work in the vineyard today.’ [z]

29 “He answered, ‘I don’t want to! ’ Yet later he changed his mind and went.
30 Then the man went to the other and said the same thing.

“ ‘I will, sir,’ he answered. But he didn’t go.

31 “Which of the two did his father’s will? ”

“The first,” they said.

Jesus said to them, “I assure you: Tax collectors and prostitutes are entering the kingdom of God before you! 32 For John came to you in the way of righteousness, [a] and you didn’t believe him. Tax collectors and prostitutes did believe him, but you, when you saw it, didn't even change your minds then and believe him.

The Parable of the Vineyard Owner

33 "Listen [b] to another parable: [c] There was a man, a landowner, who planted a vineyard, put a fence around it, dug a winepress in it, and built a watchtower. [d] He leased it to tenant farmers and went away. [e] 34 When the grape harvest [f] drew near, he sent his •slaves to the farmers to collect his fruit. 35 But the farmers took his slaves, beat one, killed another, and stoned a third. [g] 36 Again, he sent other slaves, more than the first group, and they did the same to them. 37 Finally, he sent his son to them. 'They will respect my son,' he said.

38 "But when the tenant farmers saw the son, they said among themselves, 'This is the heir. Come, let's kill him and take his inheritance! ' [h] 39 So they seized him, threw him out of the vineyard, and killed him. 40 Therefore, when the owner of the vineyard comes, what will he do to those farmers? "

41 "He will completely destroy those terrible men," they told Him, "and lease his vineyard to other farmers who will give him his produce at the harvest." [A, i]

42 Jesus said to them, "Have you never read in the Scriptures:

The stone that the builders rejected has become the cornerstone. [j]
This came from the Lord and is wonderful in our eyes? [k, l]

43 Therefore I tell you, the kingdom of God will be taken away from you and given to a nation producing its [m] fruit. [44 Whoever falls on this stone will be broken to pieces; [n] but on whoever it falls, it will grind him to powder!]" [o]

45 When the chief priests and the •Pharisees heard His parables, [p] they knew He was speaking about them. 46 Although they were looking for a way to arrest Him, they feared the crowds, because they [q] regarded Him as a prophet. [r]

The Parable of the Wedding Banquet

22 Once more Jesus spoke to them in parables: 2 “The kingdom of heaven [a] may be compared to a king who gave a wedding banquet for his son. [b] 3 He sent out his •slaves to summon those invited to the banquet, [c] but they didn’t want to come. 4 Again, he sent out other slaves, and said, ‘Tell those who are invited: Look, I’ve prepared my dinner; my oxen and fattened cattle have been slaughtered, and everything is ready. Come to the wedding banquet.’ [d]

5 “But they paid no attention and went away, one to his own farm, another to his business. 6 And the others seized his slaves, treated them outrageously and killed them. 7 The king [e] was enraged, so he sent out his troops, destroyed those murderers, and burned down their city.

8 “Then he told his slaves, ‘The banquet is ready, but those who were invited were not worthy. [f] 9 Therefore go to where the roads exit the city and invite everyone you find to the banquet.’ [g] 10 So those slaves went out on the roads and gathered everyone they found, both evil and good. The wedding banquet was filled with guests. [h] 11 But when the king came in to view the guests, he saw a man there who was not dressed for a wedding. [i] 12 So he said to him, ‘Friend, [j] how did you get in here without wedding clothes? ’ The man was speechless.

13 “Then the king told the attendants, ‘Tie him up hand and foot, [k] and throw him into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.’

14 “For many are invited, but few are chosen.” [l]

God and Caesar

15 Then the •Pharisees went and plotted how to trap Him by what He said. A, m 16 They sent their disciples to Him, with the •Herodians . n "Teacher," they said, "we know that You are truthful and teach truthfully the way of God. You defer to no one, for You don't show partiality. B, o 17 Tell us, therefore, what You think. Is it lawful to pay taxes to Caesar p or not? "

18 But perceiving their malice, Jesus said, "Why are you testing Me, hypocrites? 19 Show Me the coin used for the tax." So they brought Him a •denarius . 20 "Whose image and inscription is this? " He asked them.

21 "Caesar's," they said to Him.

Then He said to them, "Therefore give back to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's." q 22 When they heard this, they were amazed. So they left Him and went away.

The Sadducees and the Resurrection

23 The same day some •Sadducees , [r] who say there is no resurrection, came up to Him and questioned Him: [s] 24 "Teacher, Moses said, if a man dies, having no children, his brother is to marry his wife and raise up offspring for his brother. [t, u] 25 Now there were seven brothers among us. The first got married and died. Having no offspring, he left his wife to his brother. 26 The same happened to the second also, and the third, and so to all seven. [C] 27 Then last of all the woman died. 28 In the resurrection, therefore, whose wife will she be of the seven? For they all had married her." [D]

29 Jesus answered them, "You are deceived, because you don't know the Scriptures or the power of God. 30 For in the resurrection they neither marry nor are given in marriage but are like [v] angels in heaven. [w] 31 Now concerning the resurrection of the dead, haven't you read what was spoken to you by God: 32 I am the God of Abraham and the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob? [x, y]
He [z] is not the God of the dead, but of the living."

33 And when the crowds heard this, they were astonished at His teaching.

The Primary Commandments

34 When [a] the Pharisees heard that He had silenced the Sadducees, they came together. 35 And one of them, an expert in the law, asked a question to test Him:
[b] 36 “Teacher, which command in the law is the greatest? ” [E]

37 He said to him, “Love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, and with all your mind. [c, d] 38 This is the greatest and most important [e] command. 39 The second is like it: Love your neighbor as yourself.
[f, g] 40 All the Law and the Prophets depend [h] on these two commands.” [i]

The Question about the Messiah

41 While the Pharisees were together, Jesus questioned them, [j] 42 "What do you think about the •Messiah ? Whose Son is He? "

"David's," they told Him.

43 He asked them, "How is it then that David, inspired by the Spirit, [k] calls Him 'Lord' [l]:

44 The Lord declared to my Lord,
'Sit at My right hand
until I put Your enemies under Your feet'? [m, n, o]

45 "If David calls Him 'Lord,' how then can the Messiah be his Son? " 46 No one was able to answer Him at all, [F] and from that day no one dared to question Him anymore. [p]

Religious Hypocrites Denounced

23 Then [a] Jesus spoke to the crowds and to His disciples: [b] 2 [c] "The •scribes and the •Pharisees are seated in the chair of Moses. [c, d] 3 Therefore do whatever they tell you, and observe it. But don't do what they do, [e] because they don't practice what they teach. [f] 4 They tie up heavy loads that are hard to carry [g] and put them on people's shoulders, but they themselves aren't willing to lift a finger [h] to move them. [i] 5 They do everything [j] to be observed by others: They enlarge their phylacteries [k, l] and lengthen their •tassels . [m, n] 6 They love the place of honor at banquets, the front seats in the •synagogues , [o] 7 greetings in the marketplaces, and to be called '•Rabbi ' by people.

8 "But as for you, do not be called 'Rabbi,' because you have one Teacher, [p] and you are all brothers. [q] 9 Do not call anyone on earth your father, because you have one Father, who is in heaven. [r] 10 And do not be called masters either, because you have one Master, [s] the •Messiah . 11 The greatest among you will be your servant. [t] 12 Whoever exalts himself will be humbled, and whoever humbles himself will be exalted. [u]

13 "But woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! You lock up the kingdom of heaven from people. For you don't go in, and you don't allow those entering to go in. [v]

[14 "Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! You devour widows' houses and make long prayers just for show. [w] This is why you will receive a harsher punishment.] [x]

15 "Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! You travel over land and sea to make one •proselyte , [y] and when he becomes one, you make him twice as fit for •hell [z] as you are!

16 "Woe to you, blind guides, [a] who say, 'Whoever takes an oath by the sanctuary, it means nothing. But whoever takes an oath [b] by the gold of the sanctuary is bound by his oath.' [c] 17 Blind fools! [d] For which is greater, the gold or the sanctuary that sanctified the gold? 18 Also, 'Whoever takes an oath by the altar, it means nothing. But whoever takes an oath by the gift that is on it is bound by his oath.' [e] 19 Blind people! [f] For which is greater, the gift or the altar that sanctifies the gift? [g] 20 Therefore, the one who takes an oath by the altar takes an oath by it and by everything on it. 21 The one who takes an oath by the sanctuary takes an oath by it and by Him who dwells [h] in it. 22 And the one who takes an oath by heaven takes an oath by God's throne [i] and by Him who sits on
it. [j]

23 "Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! You pay a tenth of [k] mint, dill, and cumin, [l] yet you have neglected the more important matters of the law — justice, [m] mercy, and faith. These things should have been done without neglecting the others. 24 Blind guides! [n] You strain out a gnat, yet gulp down a camel!

25 "Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! You •clean the outside of the cup and dish, but inside they are full of greed [o] and self-indulgence! [p] 26 Blind Pharisee! First clean the inside of the cup, [q] so the outside of it [r] may also become clean.

27 "Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! You are like whitewashed tombs, [s] which appear beautiful on the outside, but inside are full of dead men's bones and every impurity. 28 In the same way, on the outside you seem righteous to people, but inside you are full of hypocrisy and lawlessness.

29 "Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! You build the tombs of the prophets and decorate the monuments of the righteous, 30 and you say, 'If we had lived in the days of our fathers, we wouldn't have taken part with them in shedding the prophets' blood.' [t] 31 You, therefore, testify against yourselves that you are sons of those who murdered the prophets. 32 Fill up, then, the measure of your fathers' sins! [u, v]

33 "Snakes! Brood of vipers! How can you escape being condemned to hell? [w, x] 34 This is why I am sending you prophets, [y] sages, and scribes. Some of them you will kill and crucify, and some of them you will flog in your synagogues [z] and hound from town to town. 35 So all the righteous blood shed on the earth will be charged to you, [a] from the blood of righteous Abel to the blood of Zechariah, [b] son of Berechiah, whom you murdered between the sanctuary and the altar. [c] 36 •I assure you: All these things will come on this generation! [d]

Jesus' Lamentation over Jerusalem

37 "Jerusalem, Jerusalem! [e] She who kills the prophets and stones those who are sent to her. How often I wanted to gather your children together, as a hen gathers her chicks [f] under her wings, yet you were not willing! [g] 38 See, your house is left to you desolate. [h] 39 For I tell you, you will never see Me again until you say, 'He who comes in the name of the Lord is the blessed One'! " [i, j]

Destruction of the Temple Predicted

24 As Jesus left and was going out of the •temple complex, [a] His disciples [b] came up and called His attention to the temple buildings. 2 Then He replied to them, “Don’t you see all these things? •I assure you: Not one stone will be left here on another that will not be thrown down! ”

Signs of the End of the Age

3 While He was sitting on the •Mount of Olives, the disciples approached Him privately and said, “Tell us, when will these things happen? And what is the sign of Your coming and of the end of the age? ” [c]

4 Then Jesus replied to them: “Watch out that no one deceives [d] you. 5 For many will come in My name, saying, ‘I am the •Messiah ,’ and they will deceive many. [e] 6 You are going to hear of wars and rumors of wars. See that you are not alarmed, because these things must take place, but the end is not yet. 7 For nation will rise up against nation, and kingdom against kingdom. There will be famines [f, g] and earthquakes in various places. [h] 8 All these events are the beginning of birth pains. [i]

Persecutions Predicted

9 “Then they will hand you over for persecution, [j] and they will kill you. You will be hated by all nations because of My name. [k] 10 Then many will •take offense, betray one another and hate one another. 11 Many false prophets [l] will rise up and deceive many. 12 Because lawlessness [m] will multiply, the love of many will grow cold. 13 But the one who endures to the end will be delivered. [n] 14 This good news of the kingdom will be proclaimed in all the world [o] as a testimony to all nations. [p] And then the end will come. [q]

The Great Tribulation

15 “So when you see the abomination that causes desolation, [r, s] spoken of by the prophet Daniel, [t] standing in the holy place” [u] (let the reader understand [v]
), 16 “then those in Judea must flee to the mountains! 17 A man on the housetop
[w] must not come down to get things out of his house. [x] 18 And a man in the field must not go back to get his clothes. 19 Woe to pregnant women and nursing mothers in those days! 20 Pray that your escape may not be in winter or on a Sabbath. 21 For at that time there will be great tribulation, [y] the kind that hasn’t taken place from the beginning of the world until now and never will again!
22 Unless those days were limited, no one would [z] survive. [a] But those days will be limited because of the elect. [b]

23 “If anyone tells you then, ‘Look, here is the Messiah! ’ [c] or, ‘Over here! ’ do not believe it! [d] 24 False messiahs [e] and false prophets will arise and perform great signs and wonders to lead astray, [f] if possible, even the elect. 25 Take note:
I have told you in advance. 26 So if they tell you, ‘Look, He’s in the wilderness! ’ don’t go out; ‘Look, He’s in the inner rooms! ’ do not believe it. 27
For as the lightning comes from the east and flashes as far as the west, so will be the coming of the •Son of Man. [g] 28 Wherever the carcass is, there the vultures [h] will gather. [i]

The Coming of the Son of Man

29 “Immediately after the tribulation [j] of those days:

The sun will be darkened,
and the moon will not shed its light;
the stars will fall from the sky,
and the celestial powers will be shaken.

30 “Then the sign of the Son of Man will appear in the sky, and then all the peoples of the earth [k] will mourn; [l] and they will see the Son of Man coming on the clouds of heaven with power and great glory. [m] 31 He will send out His angels with a loud trumpet, [n] and they will gather His elect from the four winds, [o] from one end of the sky to the other.

The Parable of the Fig Tree

32 “Now learn this parable [p] from the fig tree: As soon as its branch becomes tender and sprouts leaves, you know that summer is near. 33 In the same way, when you see all these things, recognize [q] that He [r] is near — at the door! [s] 34 I assure you: This generation will certainly not pass away until all these things take place. [t] [35] Heaven and earth will pass away, [u] but My words will never pass away. [v]

No One Knows the Day or Hour

[36] "Now concerning that day and hour no one knows — neither the angels in heaven, nor the Son [w] — except the Father only. [x] [37] As the days of Noah were, so the coming of the Son of Man will be. [38] For in those days before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day Noah boarded the ark. [y] [39] They didn't know [z] until the flood came and swept them all away. So this is the way the coming of the Son of Man will be: [40] Then two men will be in the field: one will be taken and one left. [41] Two women will be grinding at the mill: one will be taken and one left. [a] [42] Therefore be alert, since you don't know what day [b] your Lord is coming. [c] [43] But know this: If the homeowner had known what time [d] the thief was coming, he would have stayed alert and not let his house be broken into. [e] [44] This is why you also must be ready, because the Son of Man is coming at an hour you do not expect. [f]

Faithful Service to the Messiah

45 “Who then is a faithful and sensible •slave , [g] whom his master has put in charge of his household, to give them food at the proper time? [h] 46 That slave whose master finds him working [i] when he comes will be rewarded. 47 I assure you: He will put him in charge of all his possessions. 48 But if that wicked slave says in his heart, ‘My master is delayed,’ 49 and starts to beat his fellow slaves, and eats and drinks with drunkards, [j] 50 that slave’s master will come on a day he does not expect and at an hour he does not know. 51 He will cut him to pieces [k] and assign him a place with the hypocrites. In that place there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

The Parable of the 10 Virgins

25 “Then the kingdom of heaven will be like 10 virgins [a] who took their lamps and went out to meet the groom. [b] 2 Five of them were foolish and five were sensible. [c] 3 When the foolish took their lamps, they didn’t take olive oil with them. 4 But the sensible ones took oil in their flasks with their lamps.
5 Since the groom was delayed, they all became drowsy and fell asleep.

6 “In the middle of the night there was a shout: ‘Here’s the groom! Come out to meet him.’

7 “Then all those virgins got up and trimmed their lamps. 8 But the foolish ones said to the sensible ones, ‘Give us some of your oil, because our lamps are going out.’

9 “The sensible ones answered, ‘No, there won’t be enough for us and for you.
Go instead to those who sell, and buy oil for yourselves.’

10 “When they had gone to buy some, the groom arrived. Then those who were ready went in with him to the wedding banquet, and the door was shut. [d]

11 “Later the rest of the virgins also came and said, ‘Master, master, open up for us! ’

12 “But he replied, ‘•I assure you: I do not know you! ’

13 “Therefore be alert, because you don’t know either the day or the hour. [e]

The Parable of the Talents

14 “For it is just like a man going on a journey. [f] He called his own •slaves and turned over his possessions to them. 15 To one he gave five talents; [g] to another, two; and to another, one — to each according to his own ability. Then he went on a journey. [h] Immediately 16 the man who had received five talents went, put them to work, and earned five more. 17 In the same way the man with two earned two more. 18 But the man who had received one talent went off, dug a hole in the ground, and hid his master’s money.

19 “After a long time the master of those slaves came and settled accounts with them. 20 The man who had received five talents approached, presented five more talents, and said, ‘Master, you gave me five talents. Look, I’ve earned five more talents.’

21 “His master said to him, ‘Well done, good and faithful slave! You were faithful over a few things; I will put you in charge of many things. Share your master’s joy! ’ [i]

22 “Then the man with two talents also approached. He said, ‘Master, you gave me two talents. Look, I’ve earned two more talents.’

23 “His master said to him, ‘Well done, good and faithful slave! You were faithful over a few things; I will put you in charge of many things. Share your master’s joy! ’

24 “Then the man who had received one talent also approached and said, ‘Master, I know you. You’re a difficult man, reaping where you haven’t sown and gathering where you haven’t scattered seed. [j] 25 So I was afraid and went off and hid your talent in the ground. Look, you have what is yours.’

26 “But his master replied to him, ‘You evil, lazy slave! [k] If you knew that I reap where I haven’t sown and gather where I haven’t scattered, 27 then [l] you should have deposited my money with the bankers. And when I returned I would have received my money [m] back with interest.

28 “ ‘So take the talent from him and give it to the one who has 10 talents.
29 For to everyone who has, more will be given, and he will have more than enough. But from the one who does not have, even what he has will be taken away from him. [n] 30 And throw this good-for-nothing slave into the outer darkness. [o] In that place there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.’

The Sheep and the Goats

31 “When the •Son of Man comes in His glory, and all the angels [p, q] with Him, then He will sit on the throne of His glory. [r] 32 All the nations [s, t] will be gathered before Him, and He will separate them one from another, just as a shepherd separates the sheep from the goats. [u] 33 He will put the sheep on His right and the goats on the left. 34 Then the King will say to those on His right, ‘Come, you who are blessed by My Father, inherit the kingdom [v] prepared for you from the foundation of the world. [w]

35 For I was hungry
and you gave Me something to eat;
I was thirsty
and you gave Me something to drink;
I was a stranger and you took Me in;
36 I was naked and you clothed Me;
I was sick and you took care of Me;
I was in prison and you visited Me.’ [x]

37 “Then the righteous will answer Him, ‘Lord, when did we see You hungry and feed You, or thirsty and give You something to drink? 38 When did we see You a stranger and take You in, or without clothes and clothe You? 39 When did we see You sick, or in prison, and visit You? ’

40 “And the King will answer them, ‘I assure you: Whatever you did for one of the least of these brothers of Mine, you did for Me.’ [y] 41 Then He will also say to those on the left, ‘Depart from Me, you who are cursed, into the eternal fire prepared for the Devil and his angels! [z]

42 For I was hungry
and you gave Me nothing to eat;
I was thirsty
and you gave Me nothing to drink; 43 I was a stranger
and you didn’t take Me in;
I was naked
and you didn’t clothe Me, sick and in prison
and you didn’t take care of Me.’

44 “Then they too will answer, ‘Lord, when did we see You hungry, or thirsty, or a stranger, or without clothes, or sick, or in prison, and not help You? ’

45 “Then He will answer them, ‘I assure you: Whatever you did not do for one of the least of these, you did not do for Me either.’ [a]

46 “And they will go away into eternal punishment, but the righteous into eternal life.” [b]

The Plot to Kill Jesus

26 When Jesus had finished saying all this, [a] He told His disciples, [2] “You know [b] that the •Passover takes place after two days, and the •Son of Man will be handed over to be crucified.” [c] [3] Then the •chief priests [d] and the elders of the people assembled in the palace of the high priest, who was called Caiaphas, [e] [4] and they conspired to arrest Jesus in a treacherous way and kill Him. [f] [5] “Not during the festival,” they said, “so there won’t be rioting among the people.”

The Anointing at Bethany

6 While Jesus was in Bethany at the house of Simon, [g] a man who had a serious skin disease, 7 a woman approached Him with an alabaster jar of very expensive fragrant oil. She poured it on His head as He was reclining at the table. 8 When the disciples [h] saw it, they were indignant. “Why this waste? ” they asked. 9 “This might have been sold for a great deal and given to the poor.”

10 But Jesus, aware of this, said to them, “Why are you bothering this woman?
She has done a noble thing for Me. 11 You always have the poor with you, but you do not always have Me. [i] 12 By pouring this fragrant oil on My body, she has prepared Me for burial. 13 •I assure you: Wherever this gospel [j] is proclaimed in the whole world, what this woman has done will also be told in memory of her.”

14 Then [k] one of the Twelve — the man called Judas Iscariot — went to the chief priests [l] 15 and said, “What are you willing to give me if I hand Him over to you? ” So they weighed out 30 pieces of silver for him. [m] 16 And from that time he started looking for a good opportunity to betray Him.

Betrayal at the Passover

17 On the first day of •Unleavened Bread [n] the disciples came to Jesus and asked, “Where do You want us to prepare the Passover so You may eat it? ”

18 “Go into the city to a certain man,” He said, “and tell him, ‘The Teacher says: My time is near; I am celebrating the Passover at your place [o] with My disciples.’ ” [p] 19 So the disciples did as Jesus had directed them and prepared the Passover. 20 When evening came, He was reclining at the table with the Twelve. 21 While they were eating, He said, “I assure you: One of you will betray Me.” [q]

22 Deeply distressed, each one began to say to Him, “Surely not I, Lord? ”

23 He replied, “The one who dipped his hand with Me in the bowl — he will betray Me. 24 The Son of Man will go just as it is written about Him, [r] but woe to that man by whom the Son of Man is betrayed! It would have been better for that man if he had not been born.”

25 Then Judas, His betrayer, replied, “Surely not I, •Rabbi ? ” [s]

“You have said it,” He told him.

The First Lord’s Supper

26 As they were eating, [t] Jesus took bread, blessed and broke it, gave it to the disciples, [u] and said, “Take and eat it; this is My body.” [v] 27 Then He took a cup, and after giving thanks, He gave it to them and said, “Drink from it, all of you. 28 For this is My blood that establishes the covenant; [w] it is shed for many for the forgiveness of sins. [x] 29 But I tell you, from this moment I will not drink of this fruit of the vine until that day when I drink it in a new way [y] in My Father’s kingdom [z] with you.” 30 After singing psalms, [a] they went out to the •Mount of Olives. [b]

Peter’s Denial Predicted

31 Then Jesus said to them, “Tonight all of you will run away [c] because of Me, for it is written:

I will strike the shepherd,
and the sheep of the flock will be scattered. [d, e]

32 But after I have been resurrected, I will go ahead of you to Galilee.” [f]

33 Peter told Him, “Even if everyone runs away because of You, I will never run away! ”

34 “I assure you,” Jesus said to him, “tonight, before the rooster crows, you will deny Me three times! ” [g]

35 “Even if I have to die with You,” Peter told Him, “I will never deny You! ”
And all the disciples said the same thing.

The Prayer in the Garden

36 Then Jesus came with them to a place called Gethsemane, [h, i] and He told the disciples, “Sit here while I go over there and pray.” 37 Taking along Peter and the two sons of Zebedee, He began to be sorrowful and deeply distressed. [j] 38 Then He said to them, “My soul is swallowed up in sorrow [k] — to the point of death. [l] Remain here and stay awake with Me.” [m] 39 Going a little farther, [n]
He fell facedown and prayed, “My Father! If it is possible, let this cup pass from Me. Yet not as I will, but as You will.” [o]

40 Then He came to the disciples and found them sleeping. He asked Peter,
“So, couldn’t you [p] stay awake with Me one hour? 41 Stay awake and pray, so that you won’t enter into temptation. The spirit is willing, but the flesh is weak.”

42 Again, a second time, He went away and prayed, “My Father, if this [q] cannot pass [r] unless I drink it, Your will be done.” [s] 43 And He came again and found them sleeping, because they could not keep their eyes open. [A]

44 After leaving them, He went away again and prayed a third time, saying the same thing once more. 45 Then He came to the disciples and said to them, “Are you still sleeping and resting? [t] Look, the time is near. The Son of Man is being betrayed into the hands of sinners. [u] 46 Get up; let’s go! See, My betrayer is near.”

The Judas Kiss

47 While He was still speaking, Judas, one of the Twelve, suddenly arrived. [v]
A large mob, with swords and clubs, was with him from the chief priests and elders of the people. 48 His betrayer had given them a sign: “The One I kiss, He’s the One; arrest Him! ” 49 So he went right up to Jesus and said, “Greetings, Rabbi! ” and kissed Him.

50 “Friend,” [w] Jesus asked him, “why have you come? ” [x]

Then they came up, took hold of Jesus, and arrested Him. 51 At that moment one of those with Jesus reached out his hand and drew his sword. He struck the high priest’s •slave and cut off his ear. [y]

52 Then Jesus told him, “Put your sword back in its place because all who take up a sword will perish by a sword. [z] 53 Or do you think that I cannot call on My Father, and He will provide Me at once with more than 12 legions [a] of angels? [b] 54 How, then, would the Scriptures be fulfilled [c] that say it must happen this way? ”

55 At that time Jesus said to the crowds, “Have you come out with swords and clubs, as if I were a criminal, [d] to capture Me? Every day I used to sit, teaching in the •temple complex, and you didn’t arrest Me. [e] 56 But all this has happened so that the prophetic Scriptures [f, g] would be fulfilled.” Then all the disciples [h] deserted Him and ran away.

Jesus Faces the Sanhedrin

57 Those [i] who had arrested Jesus led Him away to Caiaphas [j] the high priest, where the •scribes and the elders had convened. 58 Meanwhile, Peter was following Him at a distance right to the high priest's courtyard. [B] He went in and was sitting with the temple police [C] to see the outcome. [D, k]

59 The chief priests and the whole •Sanhedrin were looking for false testimony against Jesus so they could put Him to death. [l] 60 But they could not find any, even though many false witnesses [m] came forward. [n] Finally, two [o] who came forward 61 stated, "This man said, 'I can demolish God's sanctuary [p] and rebuild it in three days.' "

62 The high priest then stood up and said to Him, "Don't You have an answer to what these men are testifying against You? " 63 But [q] Jesus kept silent. [r] Then the high priest said to Him, "By the living God I place You under oath: [s] tell us if You are the •Messiah , the Son of God! " [t]

64 "You have said it," [u] Jesus told him. "But I tell you, in the future [v] you will see the Son of Man seated at the right hand of the Power and coming on the clouds of heaven." [w, x]

65 Then the high priest tore his robes and said, "He has blasphemed! [y] Why do we still need witnesses? Look, now you've heard the blasphemy! [z] 66 What is your decision? " [E]

They answered, "He deserves death! " [a] 67 Then they spit in His face [b] and beat Him; others slapped Him 68 and said, "Prophesy to us, Messiah! Who hit You? " [c]

Peter Denies His Lord

69 Now Peter was sitting outside in the courtyard. [d] A servant approached him and she said, “You were with Jesus the Galilean too.” 70 But he denied it in front of everyone: “I don’t know what you’re talking about! ”
71 When he had gone out to the gateway, another woman saw him and told those who were there, “This man was with Jesus the •Nazarene ! ” [e] 72 And again he denied it with an oath, [f] “I don’t know the man! ”
73 After a little while those standing there approached and said to Peter, “You certainly are one of them, since even your accent [F] gives you away.” 74 Then he started to curse [g] and to swear with an oath, “I do not know the man! ” Immediately a rooster crowed, 75 and Peter remembered the words Jesus had spoken, “Before the rooster crows, you will deny Me three times.” [h] And he went outside and wept bitterly.

Jesus Handed Over to Pilate

27 When daybreak came, all the •chief priests and the elders of the people plotted against Jesus to put Him to death. [a] 2 After tying Him up, they led Him away and handed Him over to •Pilate , [b] the governor. [c]

Judas Hangs Himself

3 Then Judas, His betrayer, seeing that He had been condemned, was full of remorse and returned the 30 pieces of silver to the chief priests and elders. [d] 4 "I have sinned by betraying innocent blood," he said.

"What's that to us? " they said. "See to it yourself! "

5 So he threw the silver into the sanctuary [e] and departed. Then he went and hanged himself.

6 The chief priests took the silver and said, "It's not lawful [f] to put it into the temple treasury, [g] since it is blood money." [A] 7 So they conferred together and bought the potter's field with it as a burial place for foreigners. 8 Therefore that field has been called "Blood Field" to this day. 9 Then what was spoken through the prophet Jeremiah was fulfilled:

They took the 30 pieces of silver, the price of Him whose price was set by the Israelites, 10 and they gave them for the potter's field, as the Lord directed me. [h, i]

Jesus Faces the Governor

11 Now Jesus stood before the governor. [j] “Are You the King of the Jews? ”
the governor asked Him.

Jesus answered, “You have said it.” [k, l] 12 And while He was being accused by the chief priests and elders, He didn’t answer. [m]

13 Then Pilate said to Him, “Don’t You hear how much they are testifying against You? ” 14 But He didn’t answer him on even one charge, so that the governor was greatly amazed. [n]

Jesus or Barabbas

15 At the festival [o] the governor's custom was to release to the crowd a prisoner they wanted. 16 At that time they had a notorious prisoner called Barabbas. [p] 17 So when they had gathered together, Pilate said to them, "Who is it you want me to release for you — Barabbas, [q] or Jesus who is called •Messiah
? " [r] 18 For he knew they had handed Him over because of envy.

19 While he was sitting on the judge's bench, his wife sent word to him, "Have nothing to do with that righteous man, for today I've suffered terribly in a dream because of Him! " [s]

20 The chief priests and the elders, however, persuaded the crowds to ask for Barabbas and to execute Jesus. 21 The governor asked them, "Which of the two do you want me to release for you? "

"Barabbas! " they answered.

22 Pilate asked them, "What should I do then with Jesus, who is called Messiah? "

They all answered, "Crucify Him! " [B, t]

23 Then he said, "Why? What has He done wrong? "

But they kept shouting, "Crucify Him! " all the more. [u]

24 When Pilate saw that he was getting nowhere, [C] but that a riot was starting instead, he took some water, washed his hands in front of the crowd, and said, "I am innocent of this man's blood. [v] See to it yourselves! " [w]

25 All the people answered, "His blood be on us [x] and on our children! " 26
Then he released Barabbas to them. But after having Jesus flogged, [y] he handed Him over to be crucified. [z]

Mocked by the Military

27 Then [a] the governor's soldiers took Jesus into •headquarters and gathered the whole •company around Him. [b] 28 They stripped Him and dressed Him in a scarlet military robe. [c] 29 They twisted together a crown of thorns, put it on His head, and placed a reed in His right hand. And they knelt down before Him and mocked Him: "Hail, King of the Jews! " 30 Then they spit on Him, took the reed, and kept hitting Him on the head. 31 When they had mocked Him, they stripped Him of the robe, put His clothes on Him, and led Him away to crucify Him. [d]

Crucified Between Two Criminals

32 As they were going out, they found a Cyrenian man named Simon. They forced this man to carry His cross. [e] 33 When they came to a place called Golgotha [f] (which means Skull Place), 34 they gave Him wine [g] mixed with gall to drink. But when He tasted it, He would not drink it. 35 After crucifying Him they divided His clothes by casting lots. [h, i] 36 Then they sat down and were guarding Him there. 37 Above His head they put up the charge against Him in writing:

THIS IS JESUS
THE KING OF THE JEWS.

38 Then two criminals [D] were crucified with Him, one on the right and one on the left. [j] 39 Those who passed by were yelling insults at [E] Him, shaking their heads [k] 40 and saying, "The One who would demolish the sanctuary and rebuild it in three days, save Yourself! If You are the Son of God, come down from the cross! " [l] 41 In the same way the chief priests, with the •scribes and elders, [m] mocked Him and said, 42 "He saved others, but He cannot save Himself! He is the King of Israel! [n] Let Him [o] come down now from the cross, and we will believe in Him. 43 He has put His trust in God; let God rescue Him now — if He wants Him! [F] For He said, 'I am God's Son.' " 44 In the same way even the criminals who were crucified with Him kept taunting Him. [p]

The Death of Jesus

45 From noon until three in the afternoon [G] darkness came over the whole land. [H, q] 46 About three in the afternoon Jesus cried out with a loud voice, "Elí, Elí, lemá [r] sabachtháni?" that is, "My God, My God, why have You forsaken [s] Me?" [t, u]

47 When some of those standing there heard this, they said, "He's calling for Elijah! "

48 Immediately one of them ran and got a sponge, filled it with sour wine, fixed it on a reed, and offered Him a drink. [v] 49 But the rest said, "Let's see if Elijah comes to save Him! "

50 Jesus shouted again with a loud voice and gave up His spirit. [w] 51
Suddenly, the curtain of the sanctuary [x, y] was split in two from top to bottom; the earth quaked and the rocks were split. 52 The tombs were also opened [z] and many bodies of the •saints who had fallen •asleep were raised. 53 And they came out of the tombs after His resurrection, entered the holy city, and appeared to many.

54 When the •centurion and those with him, who were guarding Jesus, saw the earthquake and the things that had happened, they were terrified and said, "This man really was God's Son! " [I, a]

55 Many women who had followed Jesus from Galilee and ministered to Him were there, looking on from a distance. [b] 56 Among them were •Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James and Joseph, and the mother of Zebedee's sons. [c]

The Burial of Jesus

57 When it was evening, [d] a rich man from Arimathea named Joseph came, who himself had also become a disciple [e] of Jesus. 58 He approached Pilate and asked for Jesus' body. Then Pilate ordered that it [f] be released. 59 So Joseph took the body, wrapped it in •clean , fine linen, 60 and placed it in his new tomb, which he had cut into the rock. He left after rolling a great stone against the entrance of the tomb. [g] 61 Mary Magdalene and the other Mary were seated there, facing the tomb.

The Closely Guarded Tomb

62 The next day, which followed the preparation day, the chief priests and the •Pharisees gathered before Pilate [h] 63 and said, “Sir, we remember that while this deceiver was still alive He said, ‘After three days I will rise again.’ [i] 64 Therefore give orders that the tomb be made secure until the third day. Otherwise, His disciples [j] may come, steal Him, and tell the people, ‘He has been raised from the dead.’ Then the last deception will be worse than the first.”

65 “You have [J] a guard of soldiers,” [k] Pilate told them. “Go and make it as secure as you know how.” 66 Then they went and made the tomb secure by sealing the stone and setting the guard. [K, l]

Resurrection Morning

28 After the Sabbath, [a] as the first day of the week was dawning, •Mary Magdalene and the other Mary went to view the tomb. 2 Suddenly there was a violent earthquake, because an angel of the Lord descended from heaven and approached the tomb. He rolled back the stone and was sitting on it. [b] 3 His appearance was like lightning, and his robe was as white as snow. [c] 4 The guards were so shaken from fear of him that they became like dead men.
5 But the angel told the women, “Don’t be afraid, because I know you are looking for Jesus who was crucified. [d] 6 He is not here! For He has been resurrected, just as He said. Come and see the place where He lay. [e] 7 Then go quickly and tell His disciples, [f] ‘He has been raised from the dead. In fact, He is going ahead of you to Galilee; you will see Him there.’ Listen, I have told you.”
[g]
8 So, departing quickly from the tomb with fear and great joy, they ran to tell His disciples the news. 9 Just then [h] Jesus met them and said, “Good morning! ”
They came up, took hold of His feet, and worshiped Him. [i] 10 Then Jesus told them, “Do not be afraid. Go and tell My brothers to leave for Galilee, and they will see Me there.” [j]

The Soldiers Are Bribed to Lie 11 As they were on their way, some of the guards came into the city and reported to the •chief priests everything that had happened. 12 After the priests [A] had assembled with the elders and agreed on a plan, they gave the soldiers a large sum of money 13 and told them, “Say this,
‘His disciples came during the night and stole Him while we were sleeping.’ 14 If this reaches the governor’s ears, [B] we will deal with [C] him and keep you out of trouble.” [k] 15 So they took the money and did as they were instructed. And this

The Great Commission

16 The 11 disciples traveled to Galilee, to the mountain where Jesus had directed them. [m] 17 When they saw Him, they worshiped, [n] but some doubted. 18 Then Jesus came near and said to them, “All authority has been given to Me in heaven and on earth. [o] 19 Go, therefore, and make disciples [p] of [q] all nations, [r] baptizing [s] them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, 20 teaching them to observe everything I have commanded you. And remember, [t] I am with you always, [u] to the end of the age.” [v]

Introduction

"After they were gone, an angel of the Lord suddenly appeared to Joseph in a dream, saying, 'Get up! Take the child and His mother, flee to Egypt, and stay there until I tell you. For Herod is about to search for the child to destroy Him' . . . He stayed there until Herod's death, so that what was spoken by the Lord through the prophet might be fulfilled: Out of Egypt I called My Son" (2:13,15).

It seems fitting that the first book of the New Testament— the Gospel of Matthew—begins with these words: "the historical record of Jesus Christ." This Gospel was written from a strong Jewish perspective to show that Jesus truly is the Messiah promised in the Old Testament.

Circumstances of Writing Author: The author did not identify himself in the text. However, the title that ascribes this Gospel to Matthew appears in the earliest manuscripts and is possibly original. Titles became necessary to distinguish one Gospel from another when the four Gospels began to circulate as a single collection. Many early church fathers (Papias, Irenaeus, Pantaenus, and Origen) acknowledged Matthew as the author. Papias also contended that Matthew first wrote in Hebrew, implying that this Gospel was later translated into Greek.

Many modern scholars dispute these traditional claims. For instance, against Papias they argue that this Gospel was not originally written in Hebrew since the Greek of Matthew does not appear to be translation Greek. They further argue that if the early church, following Papias's opinion, was wrong about the original language, they were likely incorrect about the author as well. However, the excellent Greek of Matthew could have been produced by a skilled translator of an original Hebrew text. Furthermore, there are many hints of Hebraic influence in this Gospel (see notes at 1:17, 1:21, and 2:22-23). Finally, since Hebrew quickly ceased to be the dominant language of early Christians as the church expanded into Gentile territories, requiring the Gospel to circulate in a Greek translation, the absence of ancient Hebrew texts of Matthew is not surprising.

Even if Papias was wrong about the original language of the Gospel of Matthew, this does not imply that he and other early church leaders were wrong to identify Matthew as the author of this Gospel. In fact the early church unanimously affirmed that the Gospel of Matthew was authored by the apostle Matthew. It would require impressive evidence to overturn this early consensus.

Clues from the Gospel itself support its ascription to Matthew. First, both Mark 2:14 and Luke 5:27 identify the tax collector whom Jesus called to be His disciple as "Levi." This Gospel, however, identifies Levi as "Matthew." Matthew, a Hebrew name meaning "Gift of God," appears to be the apostolic name that Jesus gave to Levi after he chose to follow Christ, much like Simon was named "Peter" by Jesus after his confession of faith (16:18). The use of "Matthew" in this Gospel may be Matthew's personal touch, a self-reference that gives us a clue about authorship.

Background: Determining the date of composition of Matthew's Gospel depends largely on the relationship of the Gospels to one another. Most scholars believe that Matthew utilized Mark's Gospel in writing his own gospel. If this is correct, Matthew's Gospel must postdate Mark's. However, the date of Mark's Gospel is also shrouded in mystery. Irenaeus (ca A.D. 180) seems to claim that Mark wrote his Gospel after Peter's death in the mid-60s. However, Clement of Alexandria, who wrote only 20 years after Irenaeus, claimed that Mark wrote his Gospel while Peter was still alive. Given the ambiguity of the historical evidence, a decision must be based on other factors.

The date of composition for Mark is best inferred from the date of Luke and Acts. The abrupt ending of Acts which left Paul under house arrest in Rome implies that Acts was written before Paul's release. Since one of the major themes of Acts is the legality of Christianity in the Roman Empire, one would have expected Luke to mention Paul's release by the emperor if it had already occurred. This evidence dates Acts to the early 60s. Luke and Acts were two volumes of a single work, as the prologues to these books demonstrate. Luke was written before Acts. Given the amount of research that Luke invested in the book and the travel that eyewitness interviews probably required, a date in the late 50s is reasonable. If Luke used Mark in writing his own Gospel, as seems likely, by implication Mark was written some time before the late 50s, perhaps the early to mid-50s. Thus, despite Matthew's dependence on Mark, Matthew may have been written any time beginning in the mid-50s once Mark was completed. The earliest historical evidence is consistent with this opinion, since Irenaeus (ca A.D. 180) claimed that Matthew wrote his Gospel while Peter and Paul were preaching in Rome (early 60s).

Message and Purpose Matthew probably wrote his Gospel in order to preserve written eyewitness testimony about the ministry of Jesus. Matthew's Gospel emphasizes certain theological truths. First, Jesus is the Messiah, the long-awaited King of God's people. Second, Jesus is the new Abraham, the founder of a new spiritual Israel consisting of all people who choose to follow Him. This new Israel will consist of both Jews and Gentiles. Third, Jesus is the new Moses, the deliverer and instructor of God's people. Fourth, Jesus is the Immanuel, the virgin-born Son of God who fulfills the promises of the OT.

Contribution to the Bible As the first book in the NT, the Gospel of Matthew serves as a gateway between the two testaments. Of the NT books, and certainly of the four Gospels, Matthew has the strongest connections to the OT. Matthew gave us God's entire plan from Genesis to Revelation. Matthew looked back and referred to Hebrew prophecies about 60 times ("was fulfilled" and "so that what was spoken . . . might be fulfilled"). He also looked forward by dealing not only with Messiah's coming and His ministry, but also His future plan for His church and kingdom.

Structure Matthew divided his Gospel into three major sections. He introduced new major sections with the words "from then on Jesus began to" (4:17; 16:21). These transitional statements divide the Gospel into the introduction (1:1-4:16), body (4:17-16:20), and conclusion (16:21-28:20). Matthew also divided his Gospel into five major blocks of teaching, each of which concludes with a summary statement (8:1; 11:1; 13:53; 19:1; 26:1). Some scholars believe these five major discourses were meant to correspond to the five books of Moses and to confirm Jesus' identity as the new Moses.

Study Notes 1:1 The title of this genealogy introduces several important themes in Matthew. Jesus is identified as the Christ, Messiah, the King anointed by God to rule over His people. This is reiterated by identifying Jesus as Son of David (v. 20; 2:2; 9:27; 12:3,23; 15:22; 20:30-31; 21:9,15). OT prophecies like 2Sm 7:16 and Is 9:2-7 foretold that Messiah (the "anointed one") would be a descendant of King David. Jesus' Davidic lineage shows that He meets this qualification. Though the genealogy is otherwise arranged in chronological order, Matthew shifted “Son of David” ahead of Son of Abraham to lay emphasis on the royal title.

The title “Son of Abraham” implies that just as Abraham was the father of national Israel, Jesus will be the founder of a new spiritual Israel. The phrase the historical record of Jesus is unusual. OT genealogies are consistently named after the earliest ancestor in the lineage because the Jews considered that person to be most significant since everyone else derived from them. That Matthew names his genealogy after Jesus, the final descendant in the lineage, implies that Jesus is more important than anyone who preceded Him.

1:2-6 Matthew mentioned four women in his genealogy, all of them Gentiles. Tamar was a Canaanite. Rahab was from Jericho. Ruth was a Moabitess. Uriah’s wife Bathsheba was probably a Hittite. The mention of these women signals God’s intention to include Gentiles and women in His redemptive plan. Several kings are named also, but only David is explicitly given the title King. This highlights that the Son of David (Jesus) will likewise be a kingly figure.

1:7-16 Matthew’s genealogy agrees with the genealogies of 1Ch 1-3 and Lk 3:23-38 from the generation of Abraham down to David. After David, Matthew’s genealogy agrees with that of 1 Chronicles except for a few intentional gaps, but departs significantly from Luke’s. Some interpreters argue from this, that one or both of the NT genealogies is inaccurate. However, Jews in David’s line carefully preserved their genealogies because they knew from the OT prophecies that one of their descendants would be Messiah. David’s descendants also had the privilege of providing firewood for the altar in Jerusalem (m. Ta‘an. 4:5). Naturally, they kept careful records to demonstrate their Davidic descent and preserve their privileges. Evidence in Josephus (Life 1) and rabbinic texts suggests that genealogical archives were kept in public registers.

Scholars suggest several ways in which the genealogies of Matthew and Luke may be harmonized. First, one may preserve the genealogy of Jesus through Mary and the other through Joseph. Second, the custom of levirate marriage resulted in a child having different biological and legal fathers. Perhaps one genealogy follows the biological line while the other follows the legal. Third, one genealogy may trace David’s legal descendants who would have reigned if the Davidic kingdom had continued while the other lists descendants in Joseph’s specific line. A combination of these approaches is also possible.

In English, it is difficult to identify the antecedent of the first occurrence of the pronoun who in verse 16. However, in Matthew’s Greek, the pronoun is feminine. Thus, although the rest of the genealogy focuses on fathers and only rarely mentions mothers, Matthew identified a human mother but not a human father of Jesus, thus implying Jesus' virginal conception.

1:17 Matthew's arrangement of Jesus' genealogy into three sets of 14 generations is probably an example of gematria, a system that assigns numerical value to letters of the alphabet (e.g. A = 1, B = 2, etc.) in order to communicate a subtle message. In Hebrew, the numerical value of the letters composing the name "David" is 14. Thus Matthew's artistic arrangement probably highlights Jesus' Davidic lineage. If Matthew did intentionally use gematria, this supports the view that he originally wrote his Gospel in Hebrew, for the gematria functions in the Hebrew version of the genealogy but not the Greek.

1:18 The words of Jesus Christ are in an emphatic position in the Greek text, implying that the circumstances of Jesus' birth differed from those of everyone else in the genealogy. Although several of those people were conceived by miracles, they all had a human father. Only Jesus was born of a virgin. Before they came together means that Joseph and Mary had not yet had intercourse. Joseph thus assumed that Mary had been unfaithful. Pregnant by the Holy Spirit means that Mary's pregnancy was a miracle performed by the Spirit, not that God assumed material form and physically impregnated her. This makes Jesus' conception dramatically different from Greek myths that speak of children born to gods who lay with women.

1:19 Joseph did not want to humiliate Mary publicly because he was a righteous man. His peers most likely expected him to expose her apparent sin, but true righteousness is characterized by compassion and mercy, an important theme for Matthew (5:6-7,21-26,38-48).

1:20 God spoke to Joseph through dreams, just as He did to his OT namesake (Gn 37:1-11). The title son of David reminded Joseph of his royal lineage and prepared him for the announcement of Messiah's birth. On conceived . . . by the Holy Spirit, see note at verse 18.

1:21 Jesus is the Greek form of the Hebrew name Joshua which means "Yahweh saves." The angel explained that Jesus' name revealed His purpose: He would rescue sinners from the punishment they deserve. This salvation would be experienced by His people, identified as those who follow Jesus.

1:22 Spoken by the Lord through the prophet implies that God was the ultimate author of the messages spoken and written by the prophets. The grammar that Matthew uses to introduce the quote from Is 7:14 (see Mt 1:23) suggests that the angel quoted this verse to Joseph during his announcement. Some interpreters argue that Matthew mishandled Isaiah 7:14, but he seems to have handled it just as the angel did, which means his usage is backed by angelic authority.

1:23 The name Immanuel (God with us) implies Jesus' deity. Mary's virgin-born Son would be God Himself living among His people. The Immanuel of Is 7:14 is to be identified with the person described in Is 9:2-7 and 11:1-9.

1:24-25 These verses emphasize Joseph's absolute obedience to the angel's instructions, a prevalent theme in these early chapters (2:13-15,19-21). Joseph is a model of the obedience that should characterize Jesus' disciples (5:19-20). Did not know her intimately confirms again that Jesus was the product of a virginal conception.

2:1 The wise men were magi. Eastern magi mixed Zoroastrianism with astrology and black magic. They are described in Dn 2:2,4-5,10, where they are associated with diviner-priests, mediums, and sorcerers. The term "magus" (sg of "magi") appears only once in the NT. It describes the sorcerer whom Paul portrayed as a "son of the Devil, full of all deceit and all fraud, enemy of all righteousness" (Ac 13:6-10). The magus of whom Paul spoke would have held beliefs that were similar to those of the wise men. Thus, the summons of the magi to visit Jesus demonstrates God's intention to save Gentiles from their futile religions. As an adult, Jesus cast out demons and broke Satan's grip on beleaguered people. Here we see that even in His infancy, Christ plundered Satan's kingdom and set captives free. The east may refer to Babylonia or Persia.

2:2 The question posed by the wise men was an unintentional challenge to Herod's reign. Jesus was born King in the sense that He was from David's line and thus King by birthright. Herod, however, was neither a full Jew nor a descendant of David and thus was not genuinely qualified to reign as king. The word translated star can indicate many different astronomical phenomena, including comets, meteors, or planetary conjunctions. Matthew later (2:9) described the star as moving through the sky in order to point the magi to Jesus' precise location. This indicates that it was no ordinary star. In the east probably means "at its rising," indicating that the star mysteriously appeared in the eastern sky to signal Messiah's birth. The interest of the magi in astrology, a practice condemned in the Bible (Is 47:13-15), probably first directed their attention to Messiah's star. In another profound display of grace, God condescended to use the magi's pagan superstitions to draw them to Jesus.

2:3 Herod was disturbed by reports of the birth of a legitimate claimant to his throne. The people of Jerusalem were equally disturbed because they feared Herod's paranoid and delusional rages. In the past he had killed even his favorite wife and sons in order to protect his rule.

2:4 Herod summoned expert scribes to learn where the OT said Messiah would be born. To this point the star had guided the wise men near to Jesus, but now the witness of the Scriptures was necessary before God caused the star to reappear and pinpoint Messiah's exact location. Thus the value of biblical revelation was upheld even as new revelations unfolded.

2:5-6 The chief priests and scribes (v. 3) knew Scripture well enough to identify Bethlehem as Messiah's birthplace (Mc 5:2; Jn 7:42), but nevertheless they later opposed His teachings. Knowledge of Scripture does not guarantee that your heart is right with God. The priestly opposition to Jesus is foreshadowed here by the fact that they made no effort to go visit Him even as the magi undertook the last leg of a long journey to do so. Micah 5:2 foretold that Bethlehem would be the birthplace of a king, a ruler who would shepherd . . . Israel. Although Micah said that the promised prince would "rule" over Israel, Matthew's translation says that Messiah will "shepherd" Israel. Matthew likely chose this word to reflect Micah's use in 5:4 and thus show that the entirety of Mc 5 applies to Jesus. This indicates that Jesus is eternal since Micah says "His origin is from antiquity, from eternity." Micah's prophecy also said that the shepherd's "greatness will extend to the ends of the earth."

2:7-8 Herod questioned the magi about the exact time of the star's appearance under the assumption that the star first appeared at the time of the child's birth. On the basis of this date, he ordered the execution of all male children in Bethlehem two years of age and under (2:16). This implies that the magi's journey was lengthy and involved great sacrifice. Herod's pretended desire to worship Messiah highlights his deceitfulness.

2:11 In contrast to the stable in which Jesus was born (Lk 2), Jesus' family now lived in a house. This shows that the magi visited Jesus after the visit of the shepherds described by Luke. The magi worshiped Jesus openly, as did many other people during His lifetime (8:2; 9:18; 14:33; 15:25; 20:20; 28:9,17). Jesus' reception of worship reinforces His identity as Immanuel, "God with us" (1:23).

2:13-14 The angel called Jesus the child rather than "your child" when speaking to Joseph because Joseph was not Jesus' biological father. Similarly, he described Mary as His mother rather than "your wife" because he wished to identify her in relation to the greater (Jesus) rather than the lesser (Joseph). Joseph promptly obeyed when he was told to flee to Egypt. See note at 1:24-25.

2:15 That what was spoken had to be fulfilled indicates that the Bible is inspired by God and authoritative over history. In its original context, the calling of the son out of Egypt in Hs 11 is a reference to Israel's exodus from Egypt, not young Messiah's trip back home. Matthew understood this, but under the Spirit's direction he recognized Jesus as the new Moses who will lead a new and climactic exodus. Just as Moses delivered his people from slavery to Pharaoh, Jesus will deliver people from slavery to Satan. Thus Matthew rightly regarded Hs 11:1 and other portions of the OT as foreshadows of Jesus and events in His life.

2:16-17 Skeptics deny that Herod ever slaughtered the boys of Bethlehem since no extrabiblical source documents this horrific event. However, the murders are consistent with his documented dealings, such as his murdering his own family. The Jewish historian Josephus reported that Herod arranged for many Jewish nobles to be murdered upon his death in order to ensure that the land mourned his passing (Ant. 17:167-69). Herod's behavior is reminiscent of Pharaoh's around the time of Moses' birth (Ex 1:15-22). This and other striking similarities to Moses' birth narrative strengthen Matthew's presentation of Jesus as the new Moses whom God promised in Dt 18:15-19. Ancient Jews thought of Moses as a deliverer (Ac 7:25,35). By highlighting parallels between Moses and Jesus, Matthew shows that Jesus was the promised Deliverer who would save His people from their sins (see notes at Mt 1:7-16 and 2:20-21). Herod killed all boys two years old and under in Bethlehem because the star had appeared to the magi two years previously, presumably at the moment of Jesus' birth.

2:17-18 Once again Matthew introduces a quotation in a way that implies that the OT author (Jeremiah in this case) was used by God to proclaim His message. This was the unquestioned view among religious Jews from the day of the prophets down to Jesus' day. In verse 18 Matthew quotes Jr 31:15 which originally expressed the lament of mothers who grieved over sons who were sent into exile. Matthew's application here implies that Israel was again in exile, estranged from God, and in need of redemption. Since Jr 31 includes the weeping and then climaxes with the joyous promise that God would establish a new covenant with His people, one in which He would forgive their sins and write His law on their hearts, Matthew likely intends to call this to mind and apply it to the Bethlehem massacre and the coming of Jesus. Just as the weeping of mothers preceded the promise of the new covenant in Jr 31, so now the weeping of mothers preceded the establishment of the new covenant through Jesus (see note at 26:28).

2:19 Since Herod died in 4 B.C., and since Jesus was born roughly two years before Herod ordered the massacre of the Bethlehem boys, it seems that Jesus was born in 5 or 6 B.C. It also seems likely that the shameless Bethlehem massacre was one of Herod's final acts. A fitting close to a life of infamous violence.

2:20-21 The angel's words are almost identical to the words Yahweh spoke to Moses from the burning bush (Ex 4:19, LXX). This allusion to the Moses narrative again identifies Jesus as the new Moses (see notes at 2:15 and 2:16-17).

Jesus, now perhaps three years old, returns from Egypt with his family.

2:22-23 Archelaus, son of Herod the Great, inherited his father's violent traits. His rule over Judea signaled that the holy family should settle elsewhere, and so Joseph led his family to resettle in the obscure Gl ilean village of Nazareth, where Joseph and Mary had previously lived (Lk 1:26). Matthew states that the decision was a fulfillment of an OT prophecy that Messiah will be called a Nazarene. No specific OT text explicitly prophesies this, and so Matthew was appealing to a prominent OT theme rather than a particular text. Specifically, he was probably alluding to the "Branch prophecies" since the Hebrew consonants nzr (which make up the word "branch") are shared by the words "Nazareth" and "Nazarene." These prophecies (Is 4:2; 11:1; Jr 23:5; 33:15) told of a righteous descendant of David whose wise and just rule would be empowered by the Spirit and who would bring salvation to Judah. Matthew thus saw Jesus' hometown as a subtle clue to His identity as Messiah.

3:1 In those days means "during the time of Jesus' residence in Nazareth" rather than "during the reign of Archelaus." After all, Archelaus reigned from 4 B. C . to A.D. 6, too early for John the Baptist to have begun his ministry since he would have been under age 12. In OT usage, "in those days" often referred to a time of prophetic fulfillment (Is 10:20; Am 9:11; Zph 1:15; Zch 12:3-4). Matthew probably used the phrase in conjunction with his references to fulfilled prophecy to emphasize that God's promises were being fulfilled through Jesus and John the Baptist, herald and predecessor of Messiah. The location of John's ministry (Wilderness of Judea) is reminiscent of the ministry of the prophet Elijah (1Kg 17:3; 19:3-18; 2Kg 2:1-12), whom many Jews believed would appear again to prepare the way for Messiah (Mt 17:10-13). Josephus described John's ministry in a way that closely matches the Gospel accounts (Ant. 18.114-119).

3:2 John's message focused on repentance and the coming kingdom of heaven. Jesus emphasized the same thing from the outset of His ministry (see note at 4:17). The kingdom is defined as the rule which God exercises through the person, work, and teachings of Jesus. The call to repent means we must abandon sinful lifestyles and express sorrow for sins.

3:3 Matthew's application of Is 40:3 to John the Baptist tells us as much about Jesus as it does about John. After all, in its original context the prophecy spoke of one who prepared the way for the coming of Yahweh, God Himself. By using a text about the coming of Yahweh to describe the coming of Jesus, Matthew proclaimed that Jesus is divine.

3:4 John's garment was similar to Elijah's (2Kg 1:8) and his ministry and lifestyle paralleled Elijah's also, including his residence in the Judean wilderness, his austere diet, his call for Israel to repent, and his confrontation with an evil king and his wife. Jesus explained the significance of these parallels in Mt 11:14; 17:12-13.

3:6 Although Jews required Gentiles to immerse themselves in water in order to convert from paganism to Judaism, John demanded that repentant Jews be baptized as well. This bold move implied that Jews did not belong to God merely by virtue of their descent from Abraham (see note at vv. 7-9). Like anyone else, ethnic Jews needed to repent in order to enter the coming kingdom. Unlike the repetitive ritual washings of other religious groups, John's baptism appears to have been a one-time event associated with a permanent repentance and a transformed life.

3:7-9 In Mt 2:4 the chief priests and scribes identified the place of Messiah's birth but made no effort to visit Him. Their attention was on worldly power instead. That negative portrayal is now followed by John's charge that the leading priests of the Jews were a brood of vipers (see 12:34; 23:33) fleeing from God's coming wrath. John stressed that the coming kingdom would be accompanied by blessing for God's people and by punishment for the unrepentant. John knew that the Pharisees and Sadducees had no intention of confessing their sins because they presumed that descent from Abraham guaranteed that they would escape God's wrath. This belief was reflected in the Mishnah, which stated: "All Israel will have a share in the world to come." John's statement about raising up children for Abraham from these stones involves a wordplay in Aramaic. The word child (ben) sounds similar to the word stone (eben). A stone has no intrinsic value, yet Almighty God can transform worthless rock into a person and include him in His covenant people if He so chooses (Is 51:1-2). Consequently, descent from Abraham gave the Jews no grounds for boasting. John's warning foreshadows the incorporation of believing Gentiles into the people of God, an important theme in Matthew's Gospel.

3:10 Just as the owner of an orchard laid the ax to barren trees, so too God will punish those who fail to produce "fruit consistent with repentance" (v. 8). In the teachings of John and Jesus, fruit represents good works that result from a miraculous inner transformation (7:15-20; 12:33; 13:23). Later, the cursing of the fig tree and the parable of the wicked tenants illustrated the consequences of failing to produce good fruits (21:18-22,33-43).

3:11 Removing the master's sandals was a task so menial that Hebrew slave owners could not require it of Hebrew slaves. John, however, saw himself as unworthy to perform for Jesus the very task that slaves were spared from performing. John expressed this deep humility because Jesus was more powerful than he, and this greater power expressed itself through a new baptism that was vastly superior to John's. John's baptism was a public expression of repentance, but his baptism could not change a person's heart. Jesus, however, baptized the repentant with the Holy Spirit, making them holy through inner transformation. Matthew's quotation from Jr 31:15 in Mt 2:18 was probably intended to remind his readers of the promise of the new covenant (Jr 31:31-34). The reference to baptism with the Spirit recalls the related promise in Ezk 36:24-27 in which God declared, "I will place My Spirit within you and cause you to follow My statutes and carefully observe My ordinances." This work of the Spirit was highlighted again at Jesus' baptism (3:16). Jesus would have the power to transform human character in a way that John could not. Jesus would also baptize people with fire, a reference to divine judgment against unrepentant sinners.

3:12 A winnowing shovel was used to toss grain into the air. The wind would blow the useless husks (called chaff) aside while the heavier grain kernels fell to the threshing floor. The chaff would then be gathered up and burned. John's parable thus described a coming divine judgment in which all people are sifted, with the result that Messiah's followers will be preserved by God while the unrepentant are gathered for punishment. Though chaff is highly flammable and burns away quickly, possibly giving the impression that divine judgment is only temporary, John made clear that the fire which awaits the unrepentant will never go out. God's punishment against unrepentant sinners is eternal.

3:13 Apparently Jesus and His family still lived in Nazareth (in Galilee) at this time.

3:14 John tried to stop Him because he recognized Jesus' superiority. By his protest John further identified Jesus as the holy One who would come after him (v. 11). John knew that he needed Jesus' baptism, the baptism of the Spirit, but he also understood that sinless Jesus did not seek water baptism as an expression of repentance.

3:15 Jesus explained that baptism was essential to His perfection. Jesus wished to please His Father by obeying the commands of the prophets (John was the greatest of the prophets; 11:9-13) and by identifying with God's righteous cause among the people. If He had refused to participate in John's baptism, Jesus would have seemed like a rebel rather than One who came to fulfill all righteousness.

3:16 The opening of the heavens demonstrates that both the voice and the descending Spirit came from heaven and were divine. First-century Jews associated the dove with the Spirit since Gn 1:2 describes the Spirit as hovering over the primeval waters. The Hebrew verb translated "hover" is the same word used to describe a bird rapidly fluttering its wings. Consequently, both the Qumran Scrolls and the Talmud associated God's Spirit in Gn 1:2 with the dove. The descent of the Spirit thus alludes to Gn 1 and identifies Jesus not only as One empowered by the Spirit but also as One who brings new creation (2Co 5:17; Gl 6:15).

3:17 The Father speaks directly only twice in Matthew—here at Jesus' baptism and later at the transfiguration. On both occasions He identified Jesus as His Son and expressed approval of Him (see 17:5). The Father's words at Jesus' baptism blend together two important OT texts: Ps 2:7 and Is 42:1. Psalm 2 was a song sung at the crowning of Israel's kings. The Father's application of this text to Jesus identified Him as a divinely appointed King who would rule with divine authority and whose kingdom would extend to the ends of the earth (Ps 2:1-12). The allusion to Is 42 identified Jesus as the Servant, the messianic figure whom Is 53:5 promised would be "pierced because of our transgressions, crushed because of our iniquities." Matthew 12:18-21 explicitly applies Is 42 to Jesus, and Mt 8:17 explicitly applies Is 53 to Jesus. With this OT background in mind, we see that the Father's words identify Jesus as King and Savior.

4:1-2 The temptation of Christ highlights numerous parallels between Jesus and OT Israel. Deuteronomy 8:2-3 says that the Lord led Israel into the wilderness to be tested for 40 years. Similarly, Jesus was led up by the Spirit into the wilderness to be tested for 40 days. The three temptations Jesus faced parallel the tests Israel faced in the wilderness, and every Scripture that Jesus quoted in response to His temptations were drawn from God's message to the Israelites about their wilderness test (Dt 6-8). Israel failed its tests, but Jesus passed His and in doing so "fulfilled all righteousness" (Mt 3:15). Thus He is qualified to create a new spiritual Israel. Several features of Matthew confirm Jesus' intention to gather a new people for God. He chose 12 disciples to parallel Israel's 12 tribes. This was a conscious effort to identify His followers as the new Israel. The fact that Jesus was hungry shows that He was truly human as well as divine.

4:3 The stones that littered the wilderness floor resembled small round loaves of bread in shape, size, and color. Interpreters disagree as to why it would have been wrong for Jesus to transform and eat the stones. Most suggest that He was tempted to exercise supernatural power rather than depend on God's provision. Clues in the text suggest that the Spirit, who led Jesus into the wilderness, commanded this fast. Thus, breaking the fast prematurely would have been an act of disobedience, preventing Jesus from fulfilling every act of righteousness (3:15). Jesus aimed to end His fast when the test was over and no sooner. God would signal the end by providing food. Matthew 4:11 shows that at fast's end, angels came and “began to serve” Jesus. The verb “serve” means “to serve as a table-waiter” and implies that the angels fed Jesus. During their wilderness wanderings, Israel failed to trust God to provide food and water. Jesus, the embodiment of the new Israel, had unwavering trust in God’s care. On Son of God, see note at 3:17.

4:4 Jesus is quoting Dt 8:3. His reference to every word that comes from the mouth of God recalls the OT theme that God’s words are not idle, but are to be received as commands. Deuteronomy 8:1,6 emphasize the need to obey God’s commands, and Dt 8:1 teaches that man lives by following God’s commandments just as 8:3 says that man lives by what comes from God’s mouth (Dt 6:24). Thus the OT text which Jesus quoted teaches that obeying God is more important than being well-fed. Israel struggled to learn this truth (Ex 16:3; Nm 11:4-5). In contrast, Jesus hungered for righteousness more than bread and thirsted for obedience more than water. He urged His disciples to have the same priority (Mt 5:6).

4:5-7 Satan quoted Ps 91:11-12 out of context, trying to convince Jesus that the Father would supernaturally protect Him even if He gambled with His life. Jesus responded by quoting Dt 6:16 which refers to the time when Israel, angry and thirsty, questioned God’s presence until He miraculously produced a stream of water from a rock: “They tested the LORD saying, ‘Is the LORD among us or not?’” (Ex 17:7). Had Jesus succumbed to Satan’s temptation, it would indicate that His faith was frail and depended on God’s miraculous action. Jumping from the pinnacle of the temple would test God by attempting to force Him to perform a miracle.

Satan implied that God is trustworthy only when He rescues us from suffering and danger. Jesus knew better. God is trustworthy even when He allows us or even causes us to suffer. True faith recognizes this and perseveres through hard times. When Jesus suffered on the cross (27:41-44), those who tormented Him used arguments similar to that of the Devil: “If You are the Son of God, come down from the cross.” They even quoted Ps 22:8 to argue that Jesus would be rescued if God really loved Him, much as Satan quoted Ps 91:11-12 to argue that God would rescue Jesus from a deadly fall if He were really God’s Son. Again, Jesus knew better. He trusted God even through a brutal scourging, even when nails were driven through His limbs, and even when God let Him suffer a horrible death.

4:8-9 Although Satan exercises some authority over the world (Lk 4:6; Jn 12:31), the kingdoms of the world belong to God, and He promised to give them to Messiah (Ps 2:8).

4:10-11 Jesus responded to Satan by quoting from Dt 6:14 and 10:20. If Jesus had worshiped Satan in order to gain worldly power, it would have indicated that He valued creation more than the Creator and the kingdoms of the earth more than the kingdom of God. Jesus insisted that only God is worthy of worship. After citing Dt 6:13, Jesus' reception of worship later in this Gospel (8:2; 9:18; 14:33; 15:25; 20:20; 28:9,17) without rebuking the worshiper (cp. Ac 10:25-26; 14:11-15) strongly implies His deity. That the angels came to serve Jesus further implies His superior status.

4:12 John the Baptist had been arrested because he dared to say that Herod Antipas's marriage to his brother's wife was immoral. As tetrarch of Galilee and Perea (Lk 3:1), Herod did not have jurisdiction over Judea, the locale of Jesus' baptism and wilderness temptation. Thus Jesus fearlessly marched into the heart of Herod's territory when He heard of John's arrest. In Lk 13:31-33, the Pharisees urged Jesus to leave Galilee in order to escape arrest by Herod. Jesus replied by calling Herod "that fox" and insisted that He would travel to Jerusalem only because it was necessary for Him to die there, not to flee Herod. Jesus caused kings to tremble (2:3; 14:1-2), but He Himself feared no man.

4:13 At this point Jesus made an important strategic move by shifting his headquarters from Nazareth to Capernaum. Nazareth was an obscure village, but Capernaum was a much larger fishing center on the shores of Lake Galilee. It boasted a tax collection station and a Roman garrison of at least 100 soldiers. By the sea alludes to Isaiah's prophecies, which describe the area as "the Way of the Sea," an ancient trade route stretching from Damascus down to Caesarea Maritima on the coast of the Mediterranean Sea. By the time of Christ, the Romans had built a stone road along the route, allowing caravans to travel from Syria and pass through Capernaum on the way to Caesarea. Since Capernaum was on the coast of the Sea of Galilee, it also provided easy access to every other city along the Gl ilean coast. Thus by choosing high-traffic Capernaum as His headquarters, Jesus was able to reach many Jews and Gentiles.

4:14-16 Matthew's quotation of Is 9:1-2 highlights the international focus of Jesus' ministry by describing Galilee as Galilee of the Gentiles. Second Kings 15:29 and 17:24-27 show that after the Jews were deported from the northern kingdom of Israel, foreigners flooded into Galilee. For instance, reports from the geographer Strabo and first-century Jewish historian Josephus show that Egyptians, Arabians, Phoenicians, and Greeks lived in Galilee. The Apocrypha (1 Maccabees 5) says Galilee's population was largely Gentile and heathen. Jesus' move to Galilee and the strategically located city of Capernaum shows His intention to save Gentiles as well as Jews. Matthew's application of Is 9 also shows that Jesus was the great King called "Mighty God" who would reign from David's throne over a universal and eternal kingdom, liberate God's people from spiritual slavery, and bring peace and joy to the world (Is 9:3-7).

4:17 On the significance of the words from then on Jesus began to, see "Structure" in the Introduction to Matthew. Jesus' message was identical to the message proclaimed by John the Baptist before his arrest. This identifies Jesus as the One who came after John (3:11) whom John had identified from Is 40:3 as the Lord God Himself (see note at Mt 3:2).

4:18-22 Jesus' command, Follow Me, urged the disciples not just to accompany Him on His travels but to follow His example and emulate His character. Following Jesus involved significant sacrifice for Simon . . . Andrew . . . James, and John. They abandoned their careers as fishermen. The words they left . . . their father indicate that following Jesus also required the disciples to place commitment to Jesus above commitment to their own families (10:37; 19:29).

4:23 Jesus' ministry in the synagogues shows that He initially focused His ministry on the Jewish population of Galilee, but this focus then widened to include Gentiles from there and beyond. The good news of the kingdom, the primary topic of Jesus' preaching, was that the long-awaited Messiah, the human ruler through whom God would establish His reign on earth, had come at last. This was the message proclaimed by John the Baptist (3:2), preached by Jesus (4:17), and emphasized by Matthew through his mention of Jesus' Davidic lineage, the account of His miraculous birth, and his record of the visit of the magi. Jesus healed every disease and sickness among the people. The adjective "every" shows that no type of ailment was beyond Jesus' power to heal. In the Greek text, the adjective "every" is repeated, placing emphasis on Jesus' unlimited power to heal (9:35).

4:24 Syria was located just north of Galilee. Not surprisingly, word of Jesus' healings quickly spread to that region, crossing geographical and language barriers. Soon Syrians began bringing their sick for Jesus to heal. By consenting to this, Jesus distinguished Himself from some later Jewish interpreters who urged Jews to give no aid to a drowning Gentile or a Gentile woman giving birth (Maimonides). Matthew says Jesus healed demon-possessed people, but some scholars argue that these people were just epileptics. However, this verse distinguishes epilepsy from demon possession, which proves that the ancients differentiated between the two conditions.

4:25 Jesus' earliest followers hailed from Jewish and Gentile regions. Jerusalem and Judea were Jewish regions, Galilee had a mixture of Jews and Gentiles, and Decapolis was a group of predominantly Gentile cities. These geographical references and the diverse peoples entailed by them demonstrate Jesus' desire to serve, heal, teach, and save all the nations of the earth (28:18-20). He came as the world's Messiah.

5:1 Jesus ascended a mountain when He saw the crowds because He deemed the mountainside to be a better setting for teaching a large group. As the new Moses, His delivery of God's message from a mountaintop provides yet another parallel with the ancient Moses. The Greek words translated He went up on the mountain are used three times in the Greek OT (Ex 19:3; 24:18; 34:4), and all three fall in the section describing Moses' ascent of Mount Sinai. This fits with Matthew's repeated theme of drawing out parallels between Moses and Jesus. For instance, Jesus' birth paralleled several events surrounding Moses' birth. Herod attempted to kill the infant Christ by ordering the slaughter of Bethlehem's boys (Mt 2:16-18) much as Pharaoh ordered the execution of newborn male Israelites (Ex 1:15-18,22). Furthermore, the angel's pronouncement that danger had passed ("Those who sought the child's life are dead," Mt 2:20) is a clear echo of Ex 4:19, "All the men who wanted to kill you are dead" (see note at Mt 2:15).

5:3 Since Matthew introduces the Sermon on the Mount by highlighting the connection between Jesus and Moses, the Beatitudes (Mt 5:3-12) should probably be read against the backdrop of Moses' teachings. The only time the adjective "Blessed" (Gk makarios) was used by Moses was in his blessing on Israel (Dt 33:29): "How happy you are, Israel! Who is like you, a people saved by the LORD? He is the shield that protects you, the sword you boast in. Your enemies will cringe before you, and you will tread on their backs." Israel's blessing had both a historical and future focus. "Saved by the LORD" referred to Israel's exodus from Egypt. The remainder of the blessing assured the Israelites of success in their conquest of the promised land. Against this backdrop, the blessings of the new Moses identify Jesus' disciples as the new Israel who will enjoy a new exodus and conquest. The new Moses is a spiritual deliverer rather than a political one, and His promises must be understood in that light. In the Beatitudes, the new Moses pronounces spiritual salvation (exodus from slavery to sin) and promises spiritual victory (conquest and inheritance of a new promised land) to the new Israel. This background is confirmed by the allusion to Israel's exodus and conquest in the promise that the meek will "inherit the earth" (5:5).

In the OT, the poor were those who cried out for God's help, depended entirely on Him for their needs, had a humble and contrite spirit, experienced His deliverance, and enjoyed His undeserved favor (Ps 86:1-5). In light of this background, Jesus was describing His disciples as unworthy sinners who depend on God's grace for salvation. Although the promises in Mt 5:4-9 are expressed in the future tense, the affirmation the kingdom of heaven is theirs is in the present tense (5:3,10). This suggests that the kingdom had already arrived through the coming of Jesus but that the fulfillment of many kingdom promises will occur only in the future. This future fulfillment awaits Christ's second coming. The statement "the kingdom of heaven is theirs" appears at the beginning and end of the main body of the Beatitudes (5:3,10). This bracketing device suggests that the Beatitudes constitute promises only to those who belong to the kingdom. Isaiah 61:1 promised that Messiah would bring good news to the poor. This beatitude serves as a fulfillment of that prophecy (Lk 4:16-21).

5:4 This beatitude is also dependent on Is 61: "He has sent Me to heal the brokenhearted . . . to comfort all who mourn, to provide for those who mourn in Zion; to give them a crown of beauty instead of ashes, festive oil instead of mourning, and splendid clothes instead of despair" (vv. 1-3). The context of Is 61 portrays mourning as expressive of Israel's sorrow over the exile which their sins had caused. In this light, Mt 5:4 expresses the grief of those suffering the consequences of sin. Theirs is an attitude of repentance.

5:5 Like the preceding Beatitudes, this one parallels Is 61. Isaiah 61:7 (LXX) uses the words "they will inherit the land," an exact parallel to Mt 5:5b. The first three Beatitudes thus confirm Jesus' identity as the Servant of Is 61. This identification is important for understanding the sacrificial nature of Jesus' death since Is 52:14-53:12 describes the Servant as suffering the punishment that sinners deserved (see Mt 8:17 and 12:17-21 which appeal to Is 53:4 and 42:1-4). The beatitude also echoes Ps 37:11 in the which the gentle are those who stubbornly trust God and surrender to His authority even when they cannot make sense of their circumstances. Inherit the earth (land) in the OT refers to inheriting the promised land of Canaan. Thus most of Jesus' hearers recognized that His disciples were a new Israel that would inherit the land promised to Abraham. In the context of the Sermon on the Mount and the Gospel of Matthew as a whole, "inheriting the earth" involves more than the promise of living in Palestine. It refers to living in a recreated earth over which Christ rules eternally. Matthew 19:28 anticipates the renewal of earth and assures Jesus' disciples that they will enjoy great reward in the eternal kingdom.

5:6 Hunger and thirst are metaphors for a disciple's fervent desire for righteousness. The words they will be filled are in the passive voice, indicating that righteousness is not something that disciples can achieve by their own efforts. The verb here, like those in the promises of Mt 5:4,6-7 (and possibly 9), is a "divine passive" that describes an act of God. He alone imparts the righteousness for which disciples hunger and thirst. This is crucial to understanding the theology of the Sermon on the Mount, where Jesus required His disciples to keep the least of the commandments (5:19), surpass the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees (5:20), and to "be perfect . . . as your heavenly Father is perfect" (5:48). Such demands can be twisted into a false theology in which righteousness is achieved by works, but the righteousness Jesus demands of us is actually a divine gift given to His followers.

5:7 The merciful are those who relate to others with a forgiving and compassionate spirit (6:2-4; 18:21-35). God will show mercy to the merciful.

5:8 The words pure in heart refer to someone who is authentically righteous in their inner person. Righteousness can be faked, as was the case with the Pharisees (23:25-28). Jesus said true purity is attained when God grants it to the person who hungers and thirsts for it. Complete fulfillment of this divine promise will occur at Jesus' return, but the identification of His disciples as those who are pure shows that dramatic transformation occurs even in this lifetime. The promise that Jesus' disciples will see God looks forward to the time when they will literally behold God in all His glory. The words are not to be interpreted figuratively as if they refer merely to special insight into God's nature or to a visionary experience. The new Moses promises His followers access to God that not even the ancient Moses was allowed to experience (Ex 33:12-23).

5:9 The ministry of peacemaking involves resolving conflict by making prompt apologies and acts of restitution, refusing to seek revenge, and humbly serving and loving one's enemies (5:21-26,38-41,43-48). The promise that peacemakers . . . will be called sons of God probably means that Jesus' authentic disciples emulate God by undertaking the ministry of reconciliation. Thus at the final judgment they shall be accepted as the sons (and daughters) of God.

5:10 The purest form of righteousness is pursued by disciples who know that their good deeds will demand great sacrifice and will result in pain rather than immediate reward. This is the epitome of the kingdom righteousness demanded by the Sermon on the Mount. Jesus pronounced that the kingdom of heaven belongs to those who suffer for righteousness. In the Greek text, theirs is shifted from its normal position at the end of the clause to the beginning instead. This gives the pronoun a special emphasis indicating that the kingdom belongs to righteous sufferers and to them alone. Those who always endeavor to evade persecution are not true disciples and will not have a share in the kingdom because true disciples follow Jesus even at the cost of their lives (16:24-27). The kingdom of heaven is the reign of God in the person of Jesus the Messiah. Righteous sufferers are subjects of God's rule through their submission to Jesus' authority. Jesus inaugurated this kingdom during His ministry, but it will be consummated in the end times.

5:11-12 Jesus' words show that persecution is typically either verbal or violent. Verbal forms include insult and slander. The word persecute includes acts of physical violence like the slap of Mt 5:39. Jesus promised that the cost of discipleship will be offset by the enormity of the reward the disciple enjoys in heaven. Jewish leaders rejected and vehemently persecuted the OT prophets, and Jesus repeatedly denounced this persecution (21:34-36; 23:29-37). By treating Jesus' followers in the same way they had treated the prophets, Jewish persecutors unwittingly bestowed on them a prophet's honor.

5:13 Salt has many uses, but in the OT it is most often a purifying agent (Ex 30:35; Lv 2:13; 2Kg 2:21; Ezk 16:4). As the salt of the earth, Jesus' disciples are to purify a corrupt world through their example of righteous living and their proclamation of the gospel. However, contaminated salt does not promote purity. The verb translated lose its taste indicates foolish and immoral behavior. It refers to a professing disciple whose unrighteous lifestyle promotes destruction rather than purification. Such salt is only good for spreading over ground where you want to kill vegetation. Such is the fatal effect of an unrighteous disciple's lifestyle. Nothing grows where they go. The verb thrown out describes the disposal of something worthless, and the verb trampled alludes to the treatment an immoral disciple receives from the world.

5:14-16 You are the light of the world is an allusion to Is 9:1-2; 42:6; 49:6—texts that describe the ministry of Messiah, Servant of the Lord. This indicates that Jesus' disciples are to be extensions of His ministry, carrying salvation to the ends of the earth. Such ministry is intrinsic to true discipleship. A disciple should no more conceal his righteousness or the gospel message than a glowing city should douse its light at night. The reference to giving light for all combines with the reference to the world to show that Christ's ministry is intended for all people. This anticipates the Great Commission of Mt 28:18-20.

Jesus' words make clear that the disciple is not the ultimate author of his good works. If the disciple were the author of his good works, he would justly receive praise. However, Jesus taught that only the Father in heaven is to be praised for a disciple's good works, for He is the true source of such works (see note at v. 6). This must not be overlooked. The righteousness demanded by the Sermon on the Mount is a divine gift that God imparts to Jesus' followers.

5:17-20 Jesus defended Himself against charges that He defied the law (9:3,11,14; 12:2,10; 15:1-2; 17:24; 19:3; 22:34-36) by insisting that He came to fulfill both the Law and the Prophets, which together amount to the entire OT. The word "fulfill" may refer to fulfillment of OT prophecies (1:22; 2:15,17,23; 4:14; 8:17; 12:17; 13:35; 21:4; 26:54,56; 27:9). This is suggested by the words all things are accomplished. However, it can also refer to obedience to God's commands (3:15). This additional meaning is implied by the reference to practicing these commands. Consequently, Jesus' words imply that He would fulfill all of the OT promises and obey all its commandments. The smallest letter of the Hebrew alphabet is the yod, which resembles an English apostrophe. The stroke of a letter is a slight pen stroke that distinguishes similar letters. Jesus' statement shows that He regarded the OT as accurate and reliable down to the smallest detail. In keeping with this conviction, Jesus taught that fidelity to the OT witness determines a disciple's stature in His kingdom. True fidelity to God's commands is made possible by God's miraculous work in a disciple's heart (see note at v. 6).

5:21-22 Matthew 5:21 begins a section of the Sermon on the Mount generally known as the "Six Antitheses." The title may seem to imply that Jesus opposed the OT in some way, but in reality He always upheld its authority. Rather than contradicting or overturning OT teachings, Jesus opposed the misguided interpretations of the scribes and Pharisees. These men were concerned only with superficial matters, but Jesus went deeper. He argued that the law prohibits not just actual murder but murderous attitudes as well. Similarly, violent temperaments are condemned just as surely as violent deeds.

5:23-24 Disciples must attempt at their earliest opportunity to reconcile with a brother or sister who has something against them, even if doing so interrupts important business. Speaking to the context of His day, Jesus said disciples should seek reconciliation even if it meant halting in the middle of offering sacrifices at the Jerusalem temple. This interruption was significant since Jesus' original audience (located away from Jerusalem) would have to abandon their gift at the altar, travel for days to reach Galilee and seek reconciliation, and then return to Judea to complete the sacrifice. Such is the priority of reconciliation.

5:25-26 A person can typically pay a smaller penalty for their offense by seeking an out-of-court settlement rather than waiting for the issue to be settled in court. This illustrates that reconciliation is urgent because the longer it is postponed, the more severe the consequences.

5:27-28 Jesus said that gazing on a member of the opposite sex for the purpose of arousing illicit sexual desire is adultery of the heart. True righteousness therefore seeks to avoid not only adulterous acts but also adulterous thoughts.

5:29-30 Self-mutilation and amputation are not effective ways to overcome sin. After all, sin arises from a corrupt heart rather than flesh and bone (15:19). Jesus here uses hyperbole (intentional exaggeration for the sake of making a point) and allegory (in which the eye represents a lustful perspective and the hand represents an immoral deed) in order to convey a vital requirement of discipleship. Disciples should put a stop to thoughts and behaviors that contribute to immorality.

5:31-32 Jesus challenged a loose rabbinic paraphrase of Dt 24:1 that distorted the original meaning of the text. In the hands of the rabbis, Dt 24:1 greatly multiplied the number of offenses that could justify divorce. For instance, rabbinic commentaries on Dt 24 cited minor complaints such as a wife's fading beauty or her tendency to burn food as legitimate grounds for divorce. However, Jesus kept true to Dt 24:1 and insisted that sexual immorality is the legitimate grounds for divorce. People who divorce for frivolous reasons and remarry are guilty of adultery since their original marriage covenant has not been genuinely dissolved.

5:33-37 Oaths to the Lord (i.e., "I swear to God") were considered binding, but since Jews avoided use of God's personal name and instead used reverent substitutions, clever liars could take an oath that seemed to appeal to God without technically doing so (23:16-22). Jesus taught that swearing oaths is wrong since oaths call for the destruction of an object or person if the oath is broken. Thus, swearing by heaven . . . earth . . . Jerusalem, or even one's own head is inappropriate because it implies that we have the authority to destroy things over which God alone has authority. Swearing against God or His belongings aligns us with the evil one who attempted to assume God's position as Ruler of the universe.

5:38-39 Jesus explained that eye for an eye (Ex 21:24; Lv 24:20; Dt 19:21) was given not as a mandate for personal vengeance but as a principle to guide courts in determining appropriate punishments. The slap on your right cheek was a back-handed slap that was both insulting and injurious. For this act Jewish law imposed a fine that was double the one for an open-palmed blow on the left cheek. Thus we see that Jesus urged His disciples not to seek vengeance even against the most offensive kind of blow. The words don't resist an evildoer do not indicate, however, that we should not seek justice or defend ourselves when threatened with serious bodily harm.

5:40 Frivolous lawsuits were rare in first-century Israel, and so the suit described here was probably a legitimate one which the plaintiff was likely to win. Ordinarily, defendants are upset if the judgment goes against them, but Jesus commanded His disciples to seek reconciliation with their opponents by going above and beyond the legal requirements in order to make amends. Jewish law permitted an opponent to sue for possession of an offender's inner garment, the shirt. Typically it was a sleeved tunic that extended to the ankles and was made of wool or linen. These could be valuable and were frequently used for bartering or making payments. The coat was an outer robe or wrap. It was the more essential piece of clothing since it provided warmth and could double as a blanket for the poor. Based on OT texts such as Ex 22:26-27 and Dt 24:12-13,

Jewish law insisted that the coat was exempt from seizure by the courts (m. B. Qam . 8:6). Taking the coat was too severe a punishment. Jesus thus commanded His disciples to do even more than the courts allowed when seeking reconciliation with an opponent.

5:41 Jesus likely had in mind the much-resented practice of compulsion, in which Roman officials could force their subjects to perform menial tasks such as hauling a load on their backs (27:32). It is often said that soldiers could legally compel a subject to carry a load for only one mile before letting them go, but no surviving text establishes this as law. Most likely compulsion was usually limited to a mile simply out of common sense: people are tired after hauling a load for a mile, and soldiers who pressed for more than this risked fostering dangerous resentment among subjugated peoples. In contrast to this, Jesus said His disciples should carry their oppressor's pack out of obligation for the first mile, but then exceed all expectations by going a second mile as an act of love and service.

5:42 Since this entire paragraph is devoted to Jesus' teaching against retaliation, this verse probably prohibits disciples from seeking vengeance against opponents by refusing to help them in a time of need. By giving the necessities of life to an enemy, disciples may restore broken relationships (Rm 12:19-21).

5:43 The words love your neighbor appear in Lv 19:18. However, the command hate your enemy does not appear anywhere in the OT. Evidently some of Jesus' contemporaries argued that the command to love your neighbor also implied the opposite—that a person was to hate everyone who was not his neighbor.

5:44-45 Loving enemies and praying for one's persecutors does not make a person God's child. Only rebirth does that. However, the sort of forgiving love Jesus mentions displays your family resemblance to the heavenly Father, and thus serves as a sign to your true identity. God blesses both the evil and the good with sun and rain.

5:46-47 Tax collectors were despised because they often collected more than the legal tax and served Rome at the expense of their downtrodden fellow Jews. Jesus taught that selfish behavior and loving only those who love you resembles the behavior of tax collectors and pagan Gentiles, not the character of the heavenly Father.

5:48 Much as a child resembles his biological parents, spiritual children bear close resemblance to their heavenly Father. Consequently, Jesus' disciples are commanded to exhibit moral perfection. The close connection between this verse and Jesus' teaching about love (vv. 43-47) suggests that unconditional love is the most crucial expression of God's character in the life of His followers.

6:1 Jesus did not prohibit public acts of righteousness (see note at 5:16), but He warned that the motivation for such acts is more important than the bare fact of performing them. All such deeds must be done for God's glory, not human reputation. Those who seek human acclaim when performing good works will receive no heavenly reward. In Mt 6:2-18, Jesus supplies general principles for performing righteous acts.

6:2-4 The words whenever you give assume that disciples will regularly assist needy people. The prohibition don't sound a trumpet stems from the fact that the offering chests in the temple (shofar chests or trumpet chests) were trumpet-shaped with a wide opening where coins were deposited and a winding, ever-narrower funnel that, at its narrowest point, exits into the chest. This arrangement prevented thieves from sticking their hands into the chest (m. Shek. 2:1; 6:1,5). Thus, "sounding the trumpet" is likely a reference to tossing coins noisily into the trumpet-shaped coffer and thereby calling attention to one's generosity. Jesus described such conduct as hypocritical. The word hypocrites (Gk hupocrites) originally referred to actors who performed in Greek or Roman theaters. The hypocrites to whom Jesus referred are spiritual actors who pretend to have piety in order to win human approval. The instructions about the left hand and the right hand prohibit a person from celebrating their own acts of righteousness. Give liberally, but never dwell on the fact that you do so.

6:5 Standing in the synagogues (gathering places for Jewish worship) or on the street corners when praying ensures that many people saw the hypocrites praying, but Jesus taught that God has no regard for such actions.

6:6 A private room (Gk tameion) was a room that did not have doors or windows to the building's exterior. Closing the door granted total privacy. Since the true disciple prays for a heavenly rather than a human audience, privacy is ideal for genuine prayer. Jesus described the Father as the One who is in secret. God is ever-present. The disciple can encounter Him in the most obscure locations.

6:7 The babbling of idolaters may refer to the meaningless gibberish that appears in Greek magical papyri. Like the familiar "abracadabra," these formulas were nonsensical combinations of sounds that were believed to have special power. Ancient texts show that Jews sometimes embraced these practices.

6:9 By commanding His disciples to pray like this rather than simply "pray this," Jesus demonstrated that this prayer was offered as a model rather than a mantra to be recited. The first person plural pronoun Our implies that Jesus intended this prayer to be a model for corporate prayer, i.e., a prayer for when disciples gather as a group. This confirms that Mt 6:5 was not intended to prohibit disciples from praying together publicly in the synagogue or other gatherings but instead prohibited prayers that were motivated by religious showmanship. Your name be honored as holy suggests that Jesus expected His disciples to live righteous lives that honor rather than profane God's name (5:16; Lv 22:31-32). This is an important precondition for successful prayer.

6:10 In light of parallels with contemporary Jewish prayers and Jesus' teaching that the kingdom of God is a present reality but also awaits a fuller future consummation, the petition Your kingdom come has a present and a future focus. The petition asks that disciples submit more fully to God's will as subjects of His reign through Jesus. We should daily pray for the future consummation of God's rule in which He will reign fully and completely over the world.

6:11 Daily bread was the amount of bread necessary to survive for a day. The request is reminiscent of Pr 30:8-9. Jesus wanted His disciples to live in a state of constant dependence on God and His provision.

6:12 The Greek grammar indicates that the disciple prays for forgiveness from God only after having first expressed forgiveness to others.

6:14-15 God forgives those who are truly repentant. True repentance results in a willingness to forgive others.

6:16 They make their faces unattractive refers to the Jewish practice of smearing ashes on the face and wearing grim expressions during times of fasting. Although these acts originally expressed true repentance, hypocrites adopted them as a mask of false piety.

6:19-20 Jesus emphasized the fleeting value of worldly wealth. The larvae of the moth could quickly destroy valuable fabrics that were treasured by the ancients. The word rust is literally "eating." It can refer to the pitting of metal coins or to vermin that ruin valuable food stores.

6:21 Jesus taught that a person's heart truly belongs to what it most treasures. Since a disciple is to love God with all his heart (22:37; Dt 6:4), love for material possessions and riches is a subtle form of idolatry (Col 3:5).

6:22-23 In Jewish writings, a good eye represented a generous attitude and a bad eye a stingy, miserly attitude. The bad eye (an improper perspective on wealth) results in a deep internal darkness, a moral blindness that diminishes the ability to see and pursue what is good.

6:25 Isn't life more than food is a rabbinic style of argument. It reasons that if God does a greater thing for us, He will also do lesser things. Specifically, if God created you (the greater accomplishment), He is certainly capable of feeding you (a lesser accomplishment).

6:26 Jesus here reversed His previous argument and reasoned that if God bothers to do a lesser thing (feed the birds), He will assuredly accomplish the greater thing of feeding humans.

6:27 The words translated as add a single cubit to his height probably refer to longevity (see textual note, “add one moment to his life-span”). Worry is futile and cannot prolong your life.

6:30 Jesus revealed that the real cause of anxiety is when disciples have little faith, meaning doubt about God’s power and disbelief in His desire to provide for His children.

6:32 Obsession with material possessions displays the warped priorities of idolaters (Col 3:5).

6:33 The disciple who values the reign of God over his life and who diligently pursues righteous living can trust God to satisfy his needs.

6:34 Jesus did not prohibit planning for the future, but He did prohibit worrying about it. He urged His disciples instead to focus on the challenges of the present.

7:1 Jesus did not intend to prohibit all acts of judgment. Elsewhere He commanded believers to discern the actions of others (v. 15; 18:15-20). What Jesus condemned is hypocritical judgment that focuses on the faults of others while excusing one’s own sins.

7:2 Jesus warned that those who use a harsh standard of judgment when evaluating others can expect God to use the same harsh standard when they face His judgment.

7:3-5 The speck, perhaps a piece of sawdust, represents a small fault. The log, a piece of large timber, represents a major moral fault. He who corrects the minor faults of others without attending to his own more serious faults is a hypocrite. Believers do have a responsibility to help one another repent of sins, but only after first dealing with their own serious sins.

7:6 What is holy probably refers to sacrificial meat. Dogs would devour it insensibly without appreciating its sacredness. In Jesus’ allegory, this sacrificial meat symbolizes His own sacred teachings. The dogs symbolize the wicked who disregard the value of His teachings. First-century teachers referred to pearls symbolically to speak of insightful and valuable teaching. Consequently, the pearls here symbolize Jesus’ teachings given by the disciples. Pigs were ritually unclean animals. They symbolize the wicked and unclean. Pigs eat spoiled food but have no appreciation for pearls, just as the wicked consume wicked pleasures but disregard the gospel. This contempt for the gospel is pictured by the pig trampling the pearls underfoot. That pigs may turn against the one offering the pearls shows that contempt for the gospel message can become contempt for the gospel messenger, as has often happened in history.

7:7-8 While some people interpret these verses as a promise that God will give disciples whatever they pray for, linguistic connections between these verses and other portions of the Sermon on the Mount suggest that Jesus promised that those who ask, search, and knock will be invited to enter His kingdom. The command to keep asking is tied to the promise of "good things" to those who ask in verse 11. In the Lukan parallel, these good things are interpreted as the Holy Spirit who transforms the disciple and makes him fit for the kingdom. Keep searching uses the same Greek verb as 6:33, "Seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness." Since the word door is not in the Greek text of verse 7, and because ancient people knocked on gates as well as doors to request entrance (Ac 12:13), keep knocking likely refers to knocking on the gate of the kingdom (mentioned in vv. 13-14).

7:9-10 Round loaves of bread resemble smooth, brown stones. Certain fish in the Sea of Galilee resemble snakes.

7:11 Jesus' description of humans as you . . . who are evil disproves the modern concept that people are basically good. Although Jesus acknowledged that humans may perform gracious acts like providing for their children, He insisted that they do so contrary to their sinful nature. God's gracious acts, on the other hand, express our heavenly Father's perfect nature.

7:12 The word therefore suggests that the "Golden Rule" of this verse draws an application from the preceding section. Since the preceding verse describes God's gracious and loving provision for others, the conjunction probably implies that following the Golden Rule shows the disciple's resemblance to the heavenly Father (see notes at 5:44-45; 5:48).

7:13-14 The narrow gate symbolizes the exclusive nature of Christ's kingdom. Entrance requires the disciple to do the will of the Father in heaven (v. 21). The gate that is wide indicates that hell grants unrestricted entrance and that many will enter through its gates. The difficult (lit "narrow") . . . road may symbolize the life of hardship and persecution that the disciple must face. However, since Jewish literature often used the symbol of the road to represent a moral path (Jdg 2:22; Is 30:21; Jr 6:16; 2Jn 6) and because the law was portrayed as a narrow road from which a person was not to deviate (Dt 5:32; 17:20; 28:14; Jos 1:7; 2Kg 22:2), the narrow road probably represents Jesus' morally restrictive teaching. The wide road permits travelers to meander and pursue worldly desires, but the narrow path requires travelers to stick to God's will (Mt 7:21).

7:15-20 False prophets don sheep's clothing to disguise the fact that they are ravaging wolves masquerading as true disciples. However, a prophet's character and behavior (his fruit) indicates whether he is true or false. Other NT texts insist that a teacher's doctrine must also be examined (1Jn 4:2-3). True disciples bear the fruit of good works, and this confirms their identity as Jesus' disciples (Mt 7:21-23). The image of cutting down and burning a bad tree portrays the judgment and eternal punishment of false disciples.

7:21-23 By referring to Himself as Lord and depicting Himself as the ultimate Judge of humanity, Jesus implied His deity. True disciples affirm Jesus' lordship, submit to His authority, and obey His commands. Jesus insisted that a person is confirmed as a true disciple not by prophecy, exorcism, or working miracles but by living a transformed life made possible by God. The disobedient lifestyles of lawbreakers are inconsistent with genuine discipleship. Jesus' words, I never knew you, show that these were never truly disciples.

7:24-27 The adjectives sensible and foolish describe a person's spiritual and moral state, not his intellect. Whether one is considered sensible or foolish is determined by his response to Jesus' teaching. Since OT writers described God's wrath using the image of a great storm (Is 28:16-17; Ezk 13:10-13), the storm that destroys the house on the sand is a picture of divine judgment. Hence, the person who hears and acts on Jesus' teaching is prepared for judgment. The one who hears but doesn't act on Jesus' words will be destroyed in the storm of judgment.

7:28-29 Jesus amazed the crowds with an authority that surpassed that of other teachers. First-century Jewish teachers appealed to the authority of their rabbinic predecessors. However, Jesus introduced His teachings with the contrast, "You have heard that it was said . . . but I tell you" (5:21,27,31,33,38,43). By this Jesus made clear that He had the authority to interpret the law independent from and even contrary to the Jewish oral tradition and the most esteemed rabbis. The words when Jesus had finished are important for understanding the structure of Matthew's Gospel. See "Structure" in the Introduction to Matthew.

8:2 The serious skin disease is difficult to identify. The Greek term can refer to several conditions, ranging from fungal infections to Hansen's Disease. The OT law required lepers to be isolated from society (Lv 13:45-46). By kneeling before Jesus and addressing Him as Lord (Gk kurios, the Greek translation of the Hebrew name Yahweh), the man recognized Jesus as far more than just a man. His confidence in Jesus' ability to heal his condition hints that his act of worship involved full recognition of Jesus' deity. After all, only God was capable of healing lepers in the OT (Ex 4:6-7; Nm 12:10-16; 2Kg 5:1-15, esp. v. 7). The man's qualification, if You are willing, may indicate that other so-called healers had mistreated or failed him.

8:3 Although Jesus frequently healed by touch (v. 15; 9:20,25), He could heal by command and even at great distance from the sufferer (8:5-13; 9:6). Touching a leper was an expression of boldness and deep compassion since doing so was prohibited by OT law (Lv 5:3).

8:4 By being inspected and declared clean by the priest, the healed man could authenticate the miracle that Jesus performed.

8:5 A centurion was an officer of the Roman army who commanded about 100 soldiers.

8:7-8 Jesus' willingness to enter the home of a Gentile shocked the centurion, for Jewish law banned Jews from doing this (Ac 10:28). God's grace to Gentiles and His intention to include them in His redemptive plan is a prominent theme in Matthew. The centurion was confident that Jesus had the authority to heal his servant even though the servant was in another location.

8:11 The kingdom of heaven is open to anyone who places their faith in Jesus. Believing Gentiles will be equal even to the great Jewish patriarchs Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

8:12 The sons of the kingdom refers to Jews to whom the kingdom was originally promised but who will be excluded because they rejected Jesus. Outer darkness is a metaphor for damnation in ancient Jewish texts. Weeping and gnashing of teeth denotes anguish expressed by those who suffer eternal torment.

8:14 Mention of Peter's mother-in-law confirms that Peter was married. His marriage was foundational to Paul's argument that apostles had the right to marry and to have their wives accompany them in their missionary labors (1Co 9:5).

8:15 The woman's ability to get up immediately and serve a meal indicates that her healing was instant and complete.

8:16 Jesus' ability to drive out spirits by command stands in contrast to the drastic measures used by Jewish exorcists. These included using offensive odors to drive demons away or nose rings to hook them (Tob 6:7-8,16-17; Josephus, Ant. 8:45-49). That Jesus could heal all who were sick indicates that no disease could thwart His healing powers.

8:17 In one sense Jesus was able to heal physical illnesses because His impending sacrificial death purchased spiritual atonement from sin. All sickness is ultimately a consequence of Adam's sinful choice. Jesus could remove these consequences because He would bear the full penalty for sin on the cross. Matthew's application of Is 53:4 shows that he understood Jesus' death as an act of substitution, an atonement in which Jesus was "pierced because of our transgressions" and bore punishment "for the iniquity of us all" (Is 53:5-6).

8:20 Following Jesus can involve sacrificing the comforts of home. Jesus is more than worthy of such sacrifice because He is the Son of Man. This title was drawn from Dn 7:13-14 where it described a ruler of heavenly origin who would reign over a universal and eternal kingdom. This was Jesus' favorite self-designation. It is used 28 times in Matthew.

8:21-22 Jesus' demand seems harsh to modern readers, for today funerals would only briefly delay a commitment to follow Him. However, ancient Jewish burials stretched over an entire year. A year after the initial interment, the eldest son was obligated to gather the skeletal remains and place them in an ossuary for second burial. Many Jews regarded the commandment to honor father and mother as the supreme commandment, and they also viewed giving parents an honorable burial as its most important implication. Jesus insisted that following Him was to be an even higher priority. Since obligation to God supersedes obligation to parents (Dt 13:5-6), Jesus assumed a divine prerogative in this teaching.

8:23-27 Jesus' authority over winds and sea identified Him as the Creator and Ruler of nature.

8:28 Early manuscripts of Matthew describe this event as occurring in the region of the Gadarenes. In contrast, early manuscripts of Mark and Luke describe it as occurring in "the region of the Gerasenes" (Mk 5:1; Lk 8:26). Gadara and Gerasa were located in the same province. The different readings mean very little in this light, and they likely arose due to transcription errors rather than disagreement between the original texts of the Gospels. These regions were Gentile lands, as confirmed by the large herd of pigs nearby. The tombs were burial caves in which fugitives sometimes hid. The presence of the demon-possessed among the tombs indicates their obsession with things profane and unclean.

8:29 Although Jesus' disciples were slow to recognize His divine Sonship, the demons were not. Jesus was first identified as God's Son by the Father during His baptism (3:17). Later, Satan acknowledged Jesus' divine sonship (4:3,6). Now demons reiterated Jesus' identity. Son of God was a messianic title drawn from Ps 2:7,12 (see note at Mt 3:17). The demons also recognized Jesus as the One who would judge and punish them.

8:30-32 No longer able to continue their destructive and violent work in the lives of the two men, the demons begged for permission to enter the herd of pigs where the demons' deceptive and murderous nature was clearly displayed in the senseless destruction of the entire herd. Here is a picture of Satan's ultimate aim for the world.

8:34 Gentiles from the nearby town may have thought that Jesus personally destroyed the herd as a statement against Gentile idolatry and uncleanness, and they naturally feared destruction of other valuable herds (see note at v. 28).

9:1 Jesus' own town was Capernaum, the headquarters of His ministry (see note at 4:13).

9:2 Jesus elsewhere insisted that illness is not necessarily a direct consequence of a person's sin (Jn 9:1-3). Seeing their faith implies that personal faith ("their" included the paralytic and his friends) was necessary to receive Jesus' healing and forgiveness. On the association of personal faith with Jesus' miracles, see verses 22,28-29; 8:13. In chapter 9, Jesus healed people who were lame (vv. 1-8), blind (v v. 27-31), and unable to speak (vv. 32-34). A Jewish audience who knew OT prophecies would recognize these miracles as the fulfillment of Is 35:5-6.

9:3 Scribes were a guild of scholars skilled in copying and interpreting the OT. They viewed themselves as guardians of Jewish traditions. The scribes considered Jesus' pronouncement of forgiveness to be blasphemous since only God can forgive sins. By asserting this divine right, Jesus put Himself in God's place (Mk 2:7).

9:4 Jesus' ability to know the scribes' secret thoughts implies supernatural knowledge.

9:5 Jesus proved His authority to forgive sins by removing the physical consequences of sin.

9:6 Jesus associated His authority to forgive sins with His identity as the Son of Man (see note at 8:20). Although first-century Jews did not associate forgiveness of sin with Messiah, Is 53 showed that Messiah would offer the sacrifice that accomplished atonement for sin. Matthew alludes to this in Mt 8:17 (see also 20:28).

9:8 Although other individuals do not share Jesus' authority to forgive sins, Jesus did impart to His disciples the authority to heal sickness and disease (10:1). The amazement of the crowds shows that the scribes were incapable of performing such miracles even though they claimed to be God's authoritative spokespersons.

9:9 Parallel texts (Mk 2:14; Lk 5:27) identify this tax collector as Levi. Most Jews had two or three names. Matthew means "Gift of Yahweh," and it may have been a nickname given to Levi by Jesus (cp. Mt 16:17-18) to remind him that his conversion and call were gifts from God. Many interpreters believe this verse identifies Matthew as the author of this Gospel.

9:11 Tax collectors were detested by many first-century Jews because they served the oppressive Roman government and often abused their authority for their own financial gain.

9:13 Hosea 6:6 is an important text in Matthew, since it is quoted twice (see 12:7). In its original context, the verse meant that sacrifice would not secure atonement for anyone who sought God's mercy but did not extend it to others.

Jesus often insisted that those who seek forgiveness from God must also offer it to others (5:23-24; 6:14-15; 18:21-35). The two Hs 6:6 citations are the only times that Matthew uses the term sacrifice. Elsewhere when he refers to sacrifice, he uses the term "gift" (Gk doron). This is likely because Jesus' death was the one true sacrifice that secured atonement for sins (8:17; 20:28). Matthew wanted Jewish Christians who continued to practice temple rituals to view their sacrifices as gifts expressing gratitude for forgiveness already received through Jesus rather than acts that accomplish atonement.

9:15 The presence of Messiah gave the disciples an irrepressible joy that was inconsistent with fasting.

9:16-17 The images of a shrinking patch tearing the garment that it was intended to repair and brittle wineskins rupturing from the gases released by fermenting wine picture the incompatibility of traditional Jewish teaching and Jesus' teaching.

9:20 This woman's condition left her perpetually unclean (Lv 25:15-31; Is 64:6). The penalty for entering the temple while unclean ranged from 40 lashes to death by stoning (m. Ker. 1.1). The tassel attached to the four corners of the outer cloak was prescribed in Nm 15:38-39 and Dt 22:12 as a reminder of God's commandments.

9:24 The presence of mourners and flute players indicate that the girl had been dead for a while and that her funeral had begun (m. Ketub. 4.4). The word sleeping implies that death is a state from which believers will be awakened at the resurrection (1Th 4:13-14).

9:27 On the meaning of Son of David, see note at 1:1. The healing of the blind recalls Is 35:5-6 and confirms Jesus' identity as Messiah.

9:28-29 On the relationship between faith and Jesus' healing miracles, see note at 9:2.

9:32 The healing of a man who was unable to speak recalls Is 35:5-6 and confirms Jesus' identity as Messiah (see notes at vv. 2 and 27).

9:34 Because they were unable to deny Jesus' repeated exorcisms, the Pharisees attempted to dismiss them as evidence of His alliance with Satan. Jesus later showed how unreasonable this accusation was (12:25-32).

9:35 On Jesus' ministry in the region of Galilee, see note at 4:23. These two very similar verses bracket Mt 4:23-9:34 as a single literary unit.

9:36 The words like sheep without a shepherd recall Ezk 34. They imply that Israel's spiritual condition reflected the failures of its spiritual shepherds. By showing compassion for the abused and neglected sheep of God's flock, Jesus identified Himself as the Shepherd of God's people, Lord and Servant of David (Ezk 34:11-16,20-24). See also Mt 25:32; 26:31.

9:38 By sending out the Twelve in Mt 10:5, Jesus identified Himself as Lord of the harvest. Since OT texts and rabbinic parables presented Yahweh as Master of the harvest in portrayals of eschatological judgment (Is 18:4-5; 27:12; Hs 6:11; Jl 3:13), this identification strongly implies Jesus' deity (3:11-12; 13:39,41).

10:1 The emphasis on Jesus' selection of 12 disciples (cp. 11:1) reminds readers of the 12 tribes of Israel (Mt 19:28) and identifies Jesus' followers (the church) as the new and true Israel, the beneficiaries of God's promises to Abraham (Gn 12:1-3; 15:6; see note at Mt 1:1).

10:5-6 Jesus prioritized the mission to Israel. Although He had already served Gentiles (8:5-13) and would do so again (15:21-28), Jews were the main focus of the earliest Christian missions (see Acts).

10:9-10 Jesus prohibited His disciples from carrying the provisions normally taken on lengthy trips. This invited utter dependence on God. The disciples trusted that God would provide for them just as He had for OT Israel (Dt 8:3-4). Some suggest that the prohibition against a walking stick here contradicts the permission to carry one in Mk 6:8. However, the texts can be harmonized by several explanations. For example, Matthew may prohibit acquiring a staff while Mark allows those who already own one to take it along.

10:11-14 Those who were worthy would welcome the disciples and their message (see note at 7:6). Those who were unworthy would neither welcome them nor listen. The typical Jewish greeting Shalom ("Peace be unto you") pronounced a blessing, but those who rejected the gospel were unworthy of such a greeting. Jews shook the dust off their feet when they returned to Israel from pagan lands. By doing this when rejected, Jesus' disciples marked those who rejected the gospel as pagans who did not truly belong to Israel.

10:15 God destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah because of their wickedness (Gn 19:24-29). Jesus declared in Mt 11:23-24 that even these notorious cities would have repented if they had heard the message the disciples announced and had witnessed the miracles they performed.

10:16 Just as wolves stalk and destroy sheep, persecutors will attempt to hunt and destroy Jesus' disciples. Serpents are shrewd because they flee from danger (see note at 3:7-9). Similarly, Jesus' disciples must be prepared to take strategic action when persecution threatens (10:23). However, like doves, they should be harmless and not use violent means to answer persecution.

10:17-18 The references to sanhedrins and synagogues show that Jews sponsored the first anti-Christian persecution. Jewish persecutors appealed to governors and kings because only Roman officials had the authority to order executions. However, persecution by the highest levels of government gave the disciples opportunity to bear witness . . . to the nations.

10:23 The phrase you will not have covered the towns of Israel before the Son of Man comes may mean that Christian disciples will not complete their mission to the Jewish people before the second coming of Christ. The towns of Israel likely include the far-flung cities of the world where Jews settled down after several dispersions from Israel. However, Jesus' promise is closely linked to the first half of the verse by the conjunction for and by the repetition of the word town. Thus "will not have covered the towns" primarily means that the disciples will not have run out of Jewish towns to which to escape before Messiah comes. The mission to the nations in Mt 28:19-20 augments rather than replaces the mission to Israel.

10:25 On the meaning of Beelzebul, see note at 12:24.

10:29-30 If God must consent to the fall of sparrows, no disciple can suffer persecution without His consent. The God who has numbered even the hairs of your head has also numbered the days of your life. His plan for His disciples cannot be cut short by persecution.

10:34 Jesus' words do not imply that His disciples should take up the sword in violent reprisal against persecutors. The sword is merely a symbol for conflict and division (Lk 12:51).

10:38 Taking up a cross does not refer to evangelism. Instead, Jesus refers here to the death march that leads to crucifixion. The point is that disciples must be prepared to die (literally and figuratively) as martyrs for Christ.

10:40-42 The person who welcomes a persecuted disciple welcomes Jesus and the One who sent Him. He can expect to receive a heavenly reward, just as the person who welcomes a prophet or righteous person receives the reward that a prophet or righteous person deserves.

11:1 The words when Jesus had finished are important for understanding the structure of the Gospel. See "Structure" in the Introduction to Matthew.

11:2-3 John the Baptist previously expressed faith in Jesus as Messiah (3:14; Jn 1:29-37; 3:22-30). John's doubts here were likely the result of his prolonged imprisonment and his disappointment that a "baptism of fire" had not yet occurred (Mt 3:11-12). Jesus identified Himself as the One anointed by the Spirit in Is 61:1-3. However, Is 61:1 promised that the Anointed One would "proclaim liberty to the captives, and freedom to the prisoners." John probably interpreted the prophecy literally and thus mistakenly expected a miraculous release from prison.

11:4-5 Jesus confirmed His identity as the Christ by appealing to His miraculous and gracious works (Is 29:18-19; 35:5-6; 61:1).

11:6 Jesus pronounced blessing on those who were willing to suffer without being offended at Him. John thus serves as a model for those who persevere in faith despite suffering.

11:7 A reed swaying in the wind is a metaphor for someone who lacks conviction and is easily swayed by public opinion (1Kg 14:15; 2Kg 18:21).

11:8 Unlike false prophets, John did not allow himself to be bought off by a king who wished to purchase favorable prophecies (see 1Kg 22:13-28).

11:10 On John the Baptist in Isaiah's prophecy, see note at 3:3.

11:11 John was imprisoned and executed before Jesus' reign was established through His death and resurrection (Ac 2:32-36; Rm 1:4). Thus, disciples who enjoy the present reign of Christ enjoy blessings that John yearned for but did not experience (Mt 13:17). The description of the OT prophets in 1Pt 1:10-12 accurately portrays the experience of John. These men did not live to see the messianic sufferings and the glories that followed.

11:12 The arrest, imprisonment, and eventual execution of John and the Jewish leaders' violent opposition to Jesus were attempts to seize and control the unfolding kingdom of heaven. The words until now hint that the kingdom will someday break free from the grip of those who seek to restrain it (see note at v. 14).

11:14 Malachi 4:5 promised that the Day of the Lord, a time of divine judgment for the wicked but healing and joy for God's people, would be preceded by the sending of Elijah. Jesus explained that John the Baptist fulfilled this role and that his ministry signaled the dawn of the Day of the Lord. Malachi 4:3 promised that the Day of the Lord would be a time when God's people "will trample the wicked, for they will be ashes under the soles of your feet." This signals that violent suppression of the kingdom will soon end (see note at Mt 11:12).

11:16-19 Jesus portrayed His unbelieving contemporaries as spoiled children who whined when they did not get their way. In an ancient version of the game "Simon says," if a designated child played a pretend flute the other children were supposed to dance. If he sang a lament they were supposed to mourn. However, like unresponsive children, Israel did not pay heed to the ministries of Jesus and John the Baptist. The reference to wisdom's deeds parallels the reference to Messiah's deeds (v. 2) and implies that Jesus' claims were vindicated by the acts described in verses 4-6. Between the time of the OT and the NT, Jewish interpreters elaborated on Pr 8:32-36 and taught that Wisdom was an eternal being who served as God's agent in the creation of the world. By identifying Himself with personified wisdom, Jesus hinted that He is the eternal One through whom the Father created everything (Jn 1:3).

11:20-24 These verses remind us that the Gospels are not exhaustive accounts of Jesus' life. Jesus performed most of His miracles in Chorazin . . . Bethsaida, and Capernaum, and yet the Gospels do not describe His miracles at Chorazin and mention only two that were performed at Bethsaida (Mk 6:45; 8:22; Lk 9:10). God's judgment against sin is more tolerable for people to whom little revelation is given. On the other hand, those who have received much revelation bear greater responsibility and thus incur greater judgment for their unbelief.

11:27 Jesus' statement resembles those attributed to Him in John's Gospel (Jn 7:29; 10:14-15; 17:25). This shows how substantially John and the Synoptic Gospels agree on the portrait of Jesus.

11:28-30 Jesus' words recall a statement made by personified Wisdom in a Jewish document dating to several hundred years before Christ (Sir 6:18-31; 51:23-27). When combined with Mt 11:19, this suggests that Jesus portrayed Himself as personified Wisdom, the One who exists eternally and acted on Yahweh's behalf to create the world. (1Co 1:24; see note at Mt 11:16-19). Jesus' teaching provided an easy yoke in contrast to the heavy, suppressive yoke of rabbinic teaching (23:4; Ac 15:10).

12:1-2 Work was prohibited on the Sabbath. First-century rabbis divided work into 39 categories, each having many subcategories. Three prohibited categories were picking, threshing, and winnowing. The disciples picked grain and rubbed it between their hands to remove the husks and thus broke the highly restrictive rabbinic law on three different counts. Handpicking grain from a neighbor's field was not considered stealing (Dt 23:25).

12:3-7 Jesus taught that Sabbath law was overridden by priorities such as (1) genuine human need (1Sm 21:1-6); (2) worship (Nm 28:9-10); and (3) acts of kindness (Hs 6:6).

12:8 Son of Man was Jesus' favorite self-designation. Lord of the Sabbath refers to Yahweh since He instituted the Sabbath (Gn 2:1-3), commanded the Sabbath (Ex 20:10), and was the Lord for whom the Sabbath was observed (Lv 23:3). By calling Himself "Lord of the Sabbath," Jesus clearly meant to identify Himself as God Almighty.

12:10 Many rabbis permitted healing on the Sabbath only when a life was at risk (m. Yoma 8:6). Otherwise, it was illegal to tie a bandage, set a broken bone, or administer medicine. Some rabbis even banned prayer for the sick on the Sabbath.

12:11-12 With the exception of the Essenes (CD 11.13-14), most Jews believed it was permissible to rescue a beast of burden (e.g., a donkey) on the Sabbath. It was inconsistent to refuse the same privilege to humans since God values people more than animals. The Sabbath was to be kept holy (Ex 20:8-11), but a ban on good deeds is unholy and dishonors God.

Reconstruction of a typical first-century synagogue.

12:13 The man's paralyzed hand had wasted away from disuse. Jesus restored the hand's function and also renewed the wasted muscle. Thus, this miracle was an act of creation. Since the Creator God had instituted the Sabbath (Gn 2:1-3), the miracle confirmed Jesus' self-confessed identity as Lord of the Sabbath.

12:15-21 Matthew recognized Jesus as the fulfillment of Is 42:1-4. This implies: (1) He is God's Son/Servant; (2) He is chosen and loved by God; (3) He pleases God with His obedience; (4) He bears God's Spirit; (5) He will rule over a universal kingdom that includes all nations; (6) He is humble and nonviolent; and (7) He will include Gentiles in His redemptive plan. Matthew's identification of Jesus as "Servant" is closely connected to his interpretation of Is 53 (see note at 8:17).

12:23 On Son of David, see note at 1:1.

12:24 Beelzebul was probably an ancient name for Baal, a Canaanite storm/fertility god. Worship of Baal competed with worship of Yahweh in the OT. Although gods were nonexistent, demonic spirits were at work in the pagan religions (Ps 106:28,36-39; 1Co 10:19-20). Satan himself was deemed to be the spirit at work in Baal worship. Consequently, Beelzebul became an alternate name for Satan.

12:25-27 Jesus argued that Satan is too smart to undermine his own kingdom. Also, the objection of the Pharisees (v. 24) indicted their own disciples, for they too claimed to cast out demons.

12:28-29 Jesus' power to cast out demons proved that the kingdom of God was overthrowing Satan's kingdom. Jesus was tying up the strong man (Satan) so He could rob his house, or claim Satan's captives as citizens of His own kingdom.

12:31-32 Jesus claimed to cast out demons "by the Spirit of God" (v. 28). By refuting this and attributing His exorcisms to Satan's power instead, Jesus' opponents were guilty of blasphemy against the Spirit in whose power Jesus worked the miracles. Their attempt to dismiss Jesus' supernatural power would not be forgiven because it expressed a resolute, permanent rejection of Jesus.

12:33-37 The evil words spoken by the Pharisees divulged the true nature of their hearts.

12:38 The Jewish leaders had already witnessed several of Jesus' miracles (vv. 9-14; 9:1-8).

12:39-40 The word adulterous refers to the scribes' and Pharisees' spiritual adultery exhibited by their rejection of Jesus. Mention of the sign of . . . Jonah is Jesus' first explicit prediction of His death in Matthew. Jonah was as good as dead for three days and three nights (Jnh 1:17). His prayer compared his experience to being in the grave. Thus, Jonah's experience was analogous to Jesus' experience of being interred for three days. Since Jesus' resurrection occurred on Sunday, some have argued that the reference to three days and three nights requires a Thursday or Wednesday crucifixion. However, 1Sm 30:12-13 suggests that "three days and three nights" could be idiomatic for a span of time that covered all of one day and parts of two others. Thus Jesus' interment late on Friday and His resurrection early Sunday counts as three days.

12:41-42 Ninevites and the queen of Sheba were pagan Gentiles who repented and sought the truth. Jesus is greater than Jonah and Solomon, whom these pagans heard and obeyed.

12:43-45 The words that's how it will also be with this evil generation show that this discussion functioned like a parable. Jesus cast evil spirits out of afflicted people, but the Jewish leaders discouraged them from accepting God's help and rule through the person of Jesus. This left them empty and vulnerable to even greater evil.

12:48-50 Jesus valued His spiritual relationship with His disciples above His physical relationship with His family. Later, once faith had dawned in their hearts, His family members understood and adopted this value system (Jms 1:1; Jd 1).

13:3-9 The word parables can refer to a wide variety of figurative speech. Although many interpreters insist that Jesus' parables were simple metaphors that teach only one main truth, Jesus' interpretation of His own parables may suggest that many of them were allegories that carried multiple points of symbolism, teaching several related truths (see note at vv. 18-23).

13:10-13 Jesus' parables had two distinct purposes: (1) to reveal truth to those who were willing to hear and believe, and (2) to conceal truth from those who willingly rejected truth because of their calloused hearts (v. 15). The hiddenness component of Jesus' teaching may seem harsh, but since greater exposure to truth increases one's accountability to God in judgment (11:20-24), the concealment may represent God's graciousness toward those whom He knew would be unresponsive.

13:14-16 Matthew frequently explained how Jesus' ministry fulfilled prophecy. Here Jesus Himself described the fulfillment of Is 6:9-10. The application of this text to Jesus' contemporaries probably implies that Israel's hardened rejection of Jesus was not permanent, since Is 6:11-13 showed that the hearts of the people would someday be softened and that God would preserve a righteous remnant in Israel. The word "never" (Gk ou me) in the phrases never understand and never perceive means "will absolutely not" rather than "never will." Thus the picture is of stony resistance, not permanent resistance.

13:17 The OT prophets and saints had eagerly awaited Messiah's coming (see 1Pt 1:10-12).

13:18-23 The four types of soil represent types of people and their differing responses to Jesus. The first three types represent those who reject Jesus outright (7:26-27) and those who falsely claim to be His disciples (7:15-23; 10:35-39). These are all unfruitful. Only the last type does bear fruit. Since bearing the fruit of good deeds is an essential expression of discipleship (3:8,10; 7:16-20; 12:33; 21:18-19,33-41), only the last type is a true disciple. A harvest of 10 to 20 times what was sown was considered a bumper crop, given the primitive agricultural technology of the period. The amazing harvest described by Jesus' parable (100 . . . 60 . . . 30) shows that true disciples bear fruit in a miraculous quantity.

13:24-30 The weeds were probably darnel. This plant is related to wheat and resembles it during the early stages of growth, but darnel is actually a poisonous weed. Roman law prohibited sowing darnel in another's field, which suggests Jesus' story was realistic. The root systems of wheat and darnel become intertwined as the crop matures and makes it difficult to uproot the weeds without damaging the wheat. For the interpretation of this parable, see note at verses 36-43.

13:31-32 Like the mustard seed, the kingdom of heaven began as something small and seemingly insignificant but later grew to be large.

13:33 The image of a pinch of yeast permeating 50 pounds of dough parallels the great impact the kingdom would have despite its small beginnings.

13:34-35 Like Asaph in Ps 78, Jesus taught in parables and revealed to His disciples truths that had not previously been understood.

13:36-43 This parable is frequently interpreted as if the wheat represents true disciples and the weeds false disciples. But Jesus' interpretation shows that the subject is not the mixture of true and false disciples in the church but rather the presence of both good and evil people in the broader world. Many Jews expected

Messiah to immediately destroy evildoers and vindicate the righteous. Thus they were puzzled as to why Jesus didn't do this if He truly were the Son of Man (see Dn 7:13-14). In this parable Jesus demonstrated (1) that He is not the source of evil (13:27-28,36-39); (2) the entire world belongs to the Son of Man and the Devil had no right to bring evil into it; and (3) the Son of Man would assert His kingship over the world by punishing the wicked and blessing the righteous at an appropriate future time.

13:44-46 These parables teach that the kingdom of heaven is so valuable that the wise are willing to sacrifice anything in order to gain it (19:21-26).

13:47-50 The parable of the net closely parallels the parable of the wheat and weeds (vv. 24-30,38-43). It describes the final judgment in which the righteous (Jesus' disciples) are separated from those who reject Him and His rule and are sentenced to everlasting punishment.

13:51-52 Because of their exposure to Jesus' teaching, which disclosed what had previously been hidden (vv. 34-35), Jesus' disciples were better qualified than the scribes and Pharisees to serve as teachers of the law. In their storeroom of instruction, they had old treasures (the OT) and new treasures (the teachings of Jesus).

13:53 The words when Jesus had finished are important for understanding the structure of the Gospel. See "Structure" in the Introduction to Matthew.

13:54 Jesus' hometown was Nazareth (see note at 2:22-23).

13:55 This verse and its parallels (Mk 6:3; Lk 4:22) are the only references to Joseph's and Jesus' trade in the NT. Jewish tradition dictated that fathers teach their trade to their sons. The word "carpenter" (Gk tekton) was occasionally used to describe stone masons, but normally referred to woodworkers. One early tradition says that Jesus primarily made yokes and plows. Both James and Judas later became followers of Jesus and authored NT books.

13:57 Jesus identified Himself as a prophet, but also more than a prophet (12:41). Prophets were typically rejected (23:37).

14:1 Herod Antipas ruled as tetrarch of Galilee and Perea from about 4 B.C. until he was banished for seeking the kingship in A.D. 39 (Josephus, Ant. 18.252-54). In general, a tetrarch was one step below an ethnarch which was in turn a step below king.

14:3 The explanatory conjunction for (Gk gar) shows that Herod's belief that John had been resurrected and possessed supernatural powers was a product of paranoia fed by his guilty conscience. John was arrested because he criticized Herod's illicit marriage to his brother's wife.

14:6-11 Herodias's daughter Salome danced erotically for her uncle Herod. This seems to have enticed a drunken Herod to make an oath he would later regret. Herodias preferred beheading as the means of execution so she could display John's head as a trophy. The Gospel accounts of this event were probably dependent on an informant in Herod's court, possibly Joanna or Manaen (Lk 8:3; 24:10; Ac 13:1).

14:14 On Jesus' compassion for the crowd, see note at 9:36.

14:17 Loaves of bread and small fish were staple foods in Galilee. The loaves were the size of dinner rolls. John's description of the fish (Gk opsarion) indicates that they were either dried or pickled (Jn 6:9). He also identified the loaves as made of barley, the food of the poor. He implied that the loaves and fish were small since they were sufficient for only one boy's lunch.

14:18-21 This is the only miracle of Jesus recorded by all four Gospels. A true miracle is clearly expressed by the words everyone ate and was filled. Normally, a few small loaves and fish divided among so many people would only provide each person with a very tiny crumb. However, everyone ate to satisfaction and the disciples collected in leftovers more food than was originally available. Collecting these baskets full of leftover pieces served as a powerful reminder of Jesus' ability to provide abundance for His disciples (6:11,25-33). John's Gospel shows that many bystanders compared Jesus' miracles to God's provision of manna in the wilderness (Jn 6:22-33). The miracle also closely resembles a miracle of Elisha (2Kg 4:42-44). Although the miracle is referred to as the "Feeding of the 5,000," the 5,000 men, besides women and children might equal a total of 15,000 people. Thus Jesus' miracle was far greater than that performed by Elisha.

14:24 Whether the original text stated that the disciples' boat was "in the middle of the sea" or "many stadia (a stadia equaling about 600 feet) from the land," the location of the boat is roughly the same. John noted that the boat was 25 or 30 stadia from the land, a distance ranging from about 2.8 to 3.5 miles. The Sea of Galilee is about eight miles wide at its widest point.

14:25 Around three in the morning is literally "during the fourth watch of the night." The Romans divided the period from 6:00 p.m. to 6:00 a.m. into four watches of three hours each. Thus the fourth watch lasted from 3:00 a.m. to 6:00 a.m.

14:26 The word ghost (Gk phantasma) was used in Greek literature to describe dream visions or spirit apparitions. In the OT a closely related term referred to a dream or vision in which one saw something that was not real (Is 28:7; Jb 20:8 [LXX]). Matthew's usage may imply that the disciples thought their eyes were deceiving them. The language of the text does not imply that the Bible supports the belief that spirits of the dead roam the earth.

14:27 The words It is I are literally "I am." The statement is Jesus' purposeful echo of OT texts like Ex 3:14 and identifies Him as Yahweh God.

14:33 The disciples' confession of Jesus as Son of God is not surprising in light of close connections between this miracle and important OT parallels. The title "Son of God" often serves as a messianic title in the NT (see note at 3:17), but here it also implies Jesus' deity. The disciples likely interpreted the miracle in light of Jb 9:8 (LXX) which states that Yahweh walked on the sea as if it were dry land. Their worship of Jesus also confirmed their growing recognition of His divine nature (see note at Mt 4:10-11).

14:34 Gennesaret was located on the northwestern shore of the Sea of Galilee about five miles south of Capernaum.

14:36 The people of Gennesaret appeared to be aware of the healing of the woman in Mt 9:20. This miracle occurred in nearby Capernaum and set a precedent for healing by touching the tassel of Jesus' robe (see note at 9:20).

15:1-2 The Mishnah devotes an entire tractate of Jewish law to a discussion on how the hands should be washed. Good Jews were expected to perform ritual hand washing before, during, and after each meal. A person would first pour water over his hands with the fingers pointing up and with the water reaching the wrist, then he would point the fingers down and pour the water again, this time allowing the water to drip off the fingers. If one mixed up this order or poured the water both times with the hands pointed down or up, the hands were still ritually unclean. Each hand had to be rubbed with the other, but this could not be done until the other hand was clean. To neglect the first or third washing was considered a serious sin, possibly a deadly one. Such washing was not prescribed by OT law, but was a tradition passed down to first-century Jews by their elders. Many teachers gave these human traditions an authority equal to that of OT commandments.

15:3 Jesus taught that the authority of the Scriptures trumps all human tradition, and He condemned the Pharisees and scribes for valuing human tradition above Scripture.

15:5-6 Jewish law required sons to care for their aging parents (1Tm 5:8). However, corrupt priests allowed sons who were tired of caring for their parents to take a vow of Corban. This vow dedicated to God and the Jerusalem temple the resources they would otherwise have used to support their parents. Since one's obligation to God truly outweighs all other obligations, the priests taught that such a maneuver was righteous. Jesus strongly condemned it, however.

15:11-12 The laws regarding purification of the hands were concerned with ritual purity, not sanitation. After all, Jewish law permitted the water to be drawn from vessels made of cow manure. Further, it permitted the water to be so filthy that cattle refused to drink it (m. Ta'an. 1). Jesus argued that food consumed with unpurified hands does not spiritually defile a person. The words that proceed from the mouth defile a person because they show the sinful condition of the heart (v. 18). That the Pharisees took offense at Jesus' teaching suggests that they understood that He was referring to their hypocritical speech, which honored God even as their hearts refused to worship Him (vv. 8-9).

15:13 Based on texts like Is 60:21 and 61:3, first-century Jews described themselves as the "plant of the Lord." Every plant that My heavenly Father didn't plant represents national Jews who neither understood nor practiced true righteousness. Like the weeds in the parable of Mt 13:24-30, these imposters would be uprooted and destroyed.

15:14 Jewish teachers like the Pharisees and scribes prided themselves on being guides for the blind (Rm 2:19). In ironic reversal, Jesus claimed the guides themselves were blind.

15:16-20 Jesus taught that the human heart is innately corrupt, but He also described His followers as "pure in heart" (5:8). From this we conclude that following Jesus results in a transformation of the heart that greatly diminishes our love of sin.

15:21 Tyre and Sidon were port cities on the coast of the Mediterranean Sea north of Galilee. Because these cities were denounced in Is 23 and Ezk 28, first-century Jews viewed them as notoriously wicked and deserving of divine wrath (11:21).

15:22 By labeling the woman a Canaanite (cp. Mk 7:26), Matthew associates her with the most notorious pagan enemy of Israel. Like the magi of Mt 2, her role shows that Gentiles may follow Christ and be blessed by Him (see note at 2:1). Her use of the title Son of David indicates that she recognized Jesus as the Jewish Messiah (see note at 1:1).

15:24 Matthew emphasized Jesus' intention to include Gentiles in His kingdom, but he also stressed that Jesus focused His earthly ministry on Israelites who had been abused by their spiritual leaders (10:5-6).

15:26-27 Comparison of the Canaanite woman to a dog sounds like a racial slur to modern readers, but the word dogs (Gk kunarion) was a diminutive used as a term of endearment. It typically referred to house dogs that slept in the master's lap. Jesus' metaphorical statement merely implies that He had a higher obligation to serve His fellow Jews, not that He despised Gentiles. The woman replied that Jesus need not neglect Jews by meeting Gentile needs any more than children go hungry because crumbs that fall from their table are eaten by their pets.

15:28 The faith that Jesus most highly commended in Matthew was expressed by Gentiles (see notes at 8:7-8 and 8:11). The faith of the Canaanite woman even compared favorably to that of the 12 disciples (14:31).

15:29-31 The location is apparently the northern shores of the Sea of Galilee, still in Gentile territory. The list of ailments that Jesus cured is reminiscent of Is 35:5-6 and identifies Jesus as Messiah (Mt 11:1-6). The people's praise to the God of Israel shows that Jesus' ministry pointed Gentiles to the one true God.

15:32-38 This miracle is similar to the previous feeding (Mt 14:13-21). In both cases Jesus was moved with compassion, utilized loaves and fish, and satisfied the people so completely that leftover pieces were collected. One notable difference is the audience. The first miracle was performed for Israelites, the second for Gentiles.

15:39 The Magadan mentioned here was probably ancient Magdala on the northwestern shore of the Sea of Galilee.

16:1 The Pharisees and Sadducees disagreed on major theological and political views. They unite only because of their joint opposition to John the Baptist and Jesus (3:7).

16:2-3 Jesus' opponents could skillfully read signs for the coming weather but they missed the more obvious signs (Jesus' miracles) about the coming kingdom of God (see note at 16:4).

16:4 Jesus' description of Israel's religious leaders is reminiscent of Dt 32:5, where Moses rebuked Israel for rejecting Yahweh. Jesus thus compared Israel's rejection of God with its rejection of Himself. By doing this, He equated Himself with God. The context of Dt 32:5 uses meteorological terms like heavens, rain, dew, and showers (Dt 32:1-2) and Moses elsewhere calls "heaven and earth as witnesses" against rebellious Israel (Dt 4:26; 30:19). Jesus used a meteorological illustration in order to tie in the OT text. On the sign of Jonah, see note at 12:39-40.

16:5-7 The disciples should have collected leftovers from Jesus' feeding miracle in order to sustain them on their next journey. Their failure to do so may have been an act of carelessness, but it may also indicate that they expected Jesus to perform signs and wonders at every turn, as did the sect leaders (vv. 1-4). The verb had forgotten (Gk epilanthanomai) often implies willful neglect (Ezk 23:35, LXX). Yeast was a metaphor for something seemingly insignificant that could have enormous influence (see note at 13:33). It could be used to indicate positive influence, but here it is used negatively. The Pharisees and Sadducees disagreed about many doctrines, so reference to their common teaching likely meant their joint skepticism regarding Jesus' messiahship.

16:8-12 The disciple's memory of Jesus' feeding miracles should have been enough to sustain their faith. Their constant desire for miracles paralleled the Pharisees' and Sadducees' demand for a "sign from heaven" (v. 1) and demonstrated that they were people of little faith.

16:13 Two cities in ancient Israel were named Caesarea. Caesarea Maritima was located on the coast of the Sea of Galilee. Caesarea Philippi was an inland city located approximately 25 miles north of the Sea of Galilee. This was the site of worship for a nature god known as Pan and the home of a temple dedicated to Augustus Caesar. That Jesus' identity as Messiah was announced here demonstrates that Jesus' kingdom is superior to Caesar's and that He is likewise superior to all idols and mythical gods. On the meaning of Son of Man, see note at 8:20.

16:14 Many of Jesus' contemporaries recognized His prophetic role. Herod suspected He was John the Baptist resurrected (14:2). Some of Jesus' miracles were similar to those of Elijah (cp. 1Kg 17:9-16 and Mt 14:13-21; 1Kg 17:17-24 and Mt 9:18-19,23-26), leading people to believe He was the fulfillment of Elijah's promised return (Mal 4:5). Like Jeremiah, Jesus was a much-rejected preacher of judgment.

16:16 On the titles Messiah and Son of the living God, see notes at 1:1 and 3:17. Although Matthew called Jesus Messiah earlier (1:1,16), this is the first time the disciples called Him this. Peter used the title "living God" to contrast Yahweh with lifeless pagan deities, such as the false god Pan who was represented in a nearby pagan temple.

16:17-18 Simon understood Jesus' identity due to divine revelation (11:25-27), which is why Jesus nicknamed him Peter. Although Matthew previously referred to Simon as Peter, this is the first time in the Gospel that Jesus did so. Jesus identified Peter as the rock on which His church would be founded. Peter and the other apostles' proclamation of Jesus' messiahship laid the foundation for the church (Eph 2:19-20; Rv 21:14). I will build demonstrates that Jesus is ultimately responsible for the growth and expansion of the church. The word church was the word used in the OT to describe sacred Jewish assemblies. Jesus' use of the word implies that His followers constitute the new Israel, the true people of God who submit to His kingly reign.

16:19 The keys are a symbol of authority. The rabbis used the words bind and loose to denote decisions about what was or was not permitted. Note that Peter will permit or prohibit only what had already been permitted or prohibited in heaven. Peter was an agent of divine revelation.

16:20 Jesus' contemporaries, even His disciples, were slow to understand the nature of His messiahship.

16:21-22 On the significance of the words from then on Jesus began to, see "Structure" in the Introduction to Matthew. Jesus referred to His death and resurrection earlier (12:40), but now He did so more persistently and clearly. Peter could not accept the warning because his messianic expectations did not include a suffering, executed Messiah.

16:23 The cross was central to Jesus' purposes on earth. Because Peter's statement essentially tempted Jesus to evade the cross, he unwittingly became a spokesman for Satan.

16:24 Take up his cross refers to the death march of the Christian disciple, who is figuratively sentenced to crucifixion over his decision to follow Christ. The Christian must be prepared to give his life for Jesus. Follow me requires the disciple to follow the example of his Master, emulating Jesus' character and behavior.

16:27 Jesus applied to Himself Ps 62:12 and Zch 14:5, statements which referred to Yahweh God. On the title Son of Man, see note at 8:20.

16:28 This promise refers to Jesus' transfiguration which foreshadowed His resurrection and glorification (2Pt 1:16-18).

17:1-6 The reference to six days indicates the rapidity of the fulfillment of Jesus' promise in Mt 16:28, but it also may draw a parallel between Jesus' transfiguration and God's revelation of Himself to Moses in Ex 24:13-18. Other parallels include the reference to a cloud, a brilliant light, a mountain, and the separation of a small number of men from the larger group. Moses' face shone brilliantly after he met with God (Ex 34:29-35), so Jesus' transfiguration serves to identify Him as the new Moses. This seems confirmed by the words listen to Him which echo Dt 18:15, a text from the prophet-like-Moses prophecy (Dt 18:15-19). On the new Moses theme, see notes at Mt 2:15 and 2:16-17. However, the description of Jesus transcends OT descriptions of the glorified Moses. In Ex 34:29-35, only Moses' face was radiant and this radiance was concealed by his veil. Jesus' face had radiance too glorious to conceal and even His clothes became as white as the light. The description of Jesus parallels the description of the Ancient of Days in Dn 7:9-10 and shows that Jesus possessed the glory of His Father (Mt 16:27).

The presence of Moses and Elijah indicates that the necessary conditions for Messiah's coming had been fulfilled (v. 10; Dt 18:15-19; Mal 4:5). Peter's request to build tabernacles unjustly suggested equal treatment for Jesus and His guests. The Father's voice from heaven showed Jesus' superiority to Moses and Elijah. Jesus is God's beloved Son, the object of His delight, and the focus of true disciples. God spoke from heaven only twice in Matthew, both times to express His love for Jesus and His delight in His works (v. 5; 3:17). On the meaning of Son, see note at 3:17. The disciples' reaction is understandable, for the OT shows that direct encounters with God inspire fright (e.g., Is 6:1-5).

Mount Tabor, in lower Galilee, is the traditional site of Jesus' transfiguration, but it is not a high mountain (1,850 ft.) and was probably fortified and inaccessible in Jesus' day. The more likely site is Mount Hermon, shown in the photo. Mount Hermon is 9,100 feet and is north of Caesarea Philippi where Peter confessed that Jesus was the Messiah.

17:9 The disciples could report the transfiguration only after the resurrection when the nature of Jesus' messianic reign became clear. This is Jesus' third mention of His resurrection in this Gospel.

17:10-13 The view of the scribes was prompted by Mal 4:5. John the Baptist was the fulfillment of the Elijah prophecy since his ministry had many similarities to Elijah's. See notes at Mt 3:1,4, and 11:14.

17:14-16 Like the magi (2:11), the leper (8:2), the father of the deceased daughter (9:18), and Jesus' disciples (14:33), this father worshiped Jesus (cp. 4:10). The seizures were probably the result of epilepsy. Epilepsy is distinguished from demon possession in Mt 4:24. However, Jesus recognized in this rare instance that the seizures were the result of demonic activity. The apparent suicidal tendencies described in verse 15 show the destructive influence of demons.

17:17-18 Jesus' description of His own disciples as an unbelieving and rebellious generation is similar to His description of the Jewish leaders who rejected Him (11:16; 12:39,45).

17:20-21 Moving a mountain was a metaphor for accomplishing an impossible task (1Co 13:2). Nothing that Christ authorizes His followers to do will be impossible. Verse 21 does not appear in the oldest and best manuscripts of Matthew. It was probably incorporated into the text by later scribes who were familiar with the parallel text in Mk 9:29.

17:22-23 This is Jesus' fourth prediction of His death in Matthew (v. 12; 12:40; 16:21). Each prediction adds additional details. This prophecy adds that Jesus will be thrust into the hands of men by an act of betrayal.

17:24 On Capernaum, see note at 4:13. The double-drachma tax was collected from every Jewish male over the age of 20 and used for the upkeep of the Jerusalem temple (Ex 30:13; 38:25-26; Josephus, Ant. 18.9.1 and War 7.6.6). This episode is recorded only in Matthew and provides evidence for the pre- A.D. 70 date of Matthew. See "Date" in the Introduction to Matthew.

17:25-26 Because Jesus' disciples were children of the true King, they were exempt from the obligation to support the temple. This had enormous implications for Jewish Christians. If temple taxes were no longer obligatory, sacrifices and other offerings were also now optional. See the discussion of Matthew's view of sacrifice under "Date" in the Introduction to Matthew.

17:27 Though Jesus insisted that the temple tax was not obligatory for His disciples, He gladly paid it to avoid offending His fellow Jews. His action provided an important model for believers who dealt with issues of ritual later in the early church (Rm 14:13-23). Several ancient texts refer to fishermen discovering valuable items inside fish. Through supernatural knowledge, Jesus knew that a nearby fish had swallowed an amount of money that was sufficient to pay the tax. He also exercised authority over nature, ensuring that the fish would take the bait Peter offered.

18:1-5 These verses are commonly said to promote childlike innocence or naivety, but Jesus' statement actually urged disciples to adopt childlike humility. The desire to be the greatest in the kingdom displayed a pride that was inconsistent with genuine discipleship. Humility is the path to true greatness. Jesus urged kind and gracious treatment of children by teaching that anyone welcoming a child in His name would be rewarded as if they had received Messiah Himself.

18:6-7 Jesus shifted the topic from literal children to spiritual little ones who believe in Him, meaning His disciples. The heavy millstone was a large round stone turned by a donkey rather than the much smaller stone used to pound grain by hand. Drowning was a particularly horrifying way to die in the mind-set of first-century Jews, for Israel was not a seafaring nation.

18:8-9 Those who cause Jesus' disciples to sin will face severe punishment. Nevertheless, disciples are responsible for their own actions and must commit to purity (see note at 5:29-30).

18:10 Daniel 10:10-14 teaches that angels are assigned to represent and protect the nations. In similar fashion, Jesus appears to teach that angels are assigned to represent believers to God. Jesus said that these angels continually view the face of My Father, meaning they have access to the heavenly throne and constantly present the needs of believers to God.

18:11-14 Sinful believers who are restored to church fellowship should not be received begrudgingly or hesitantly but with the jubilation of a shepherd who finds a sheep that goes astray. The heavenly Shepherd cannot accept the loss of even a single believer. Like the shepherd of this parable, He will rescue His stray sheep.

18:15-17 These verses outline the process by which disciples demonstrate the Great Shepherd's concern for stray sheep. The words against you do not appear in the earliest and best manuscripts of verse 15. Thus the process is not intended merely for dealing with personal grievances but rather for any sinful conduct on the part of a Christian brother (or sister) that indicates they are straying from Christ. The purpose of the process is not to punish, but to restore the sinful disciple (you have won your brother). If, at the final step of the process, the professing disciple refuses to heed the church's call to repentance, the church must assume that they are not a true believer and must exclude them from fellowship (see 1Co 5:1-13).

18:18 On binding and loosing, see note at 16:19. The decisions made by the church about what behavior is permissible or unacceptable reflect decisions already made by God in heaven.

18:19-20 A common but mistaken interpretation holds that these verses promise that God will do whatever two or more believers ask. This violates the context. There is a clear connection with the immediately preceding discussion about restoring a sinning disciple. Verses 18 and 19 relate the restoration/disciplinary actions of Jesus' disciples on earth to the decisions of the Father in heaven. The word again at the beginning of verse 19 suggests that this verse restates the principle of verse 18. The two or three mentioned in verse 20 are thus the two or three witnesses that were first mentioned in verse 16. Christ is present with His disciples when they gather and seek His leadership about troubling behavior among disciples. He will answer their prayer for the sinning believer's restoration.

18:21-22 Although forgiving someone only seven times seems stingy, this standard was generous considering the fact that some rabbis required their students to forgive offenders only three times. Interpreters dispute whether Jesus demanded forgiving one's brother 77 times or 490 times (70 times 7), but Jesus' point was that forgiveness should be unlimited when true repentance is present.

18:23-27 In Jewish parables, a king symbolizes God and to settle accounts symbolizes divine judgment. The 10,000 talents was equivalent to a billion day's worth of peasant wages. This was more money than was circulating in all of Palestine. The talent was the largest unit of currency (equivalent to approximately 6,000 days' worth of wages) and 10,000 is the highest single number that can be expressed in Greek. Thus we see that in this allegory the sum represents the sinner's hopeless debt to God. Selling the debtor, his family, and possessions would hardly begin to recoup this debt. Forgiving such a loan is an astounding act of grace.

18:28-31 One hundred denarii was equivalent to three months of wages. This was negligible compared to the first slave's debt to the king. The contrast between the 10,000 talents and the 100 denarii shows that the sins of others against us are trivial in comparison to the enormity of our own sins against God. The drudge begged the slave to be patient just as the slave had begged before the king, but the drudge was more honest in his pleas and promises since his debt was actually manageable.

18:32-35 The parable's point is now revealed. Since God has shown believers such great mercy by pardoning their sins, they should in turn forgive the sins of others from their heart. The word jailers literally means "torturers." The debtor's torture would continue until the debt was paid in full. Since the debt could not possibly be repaid, the torture symbolizes eternal punishment.

19:1 For the importance of when Jesus had finished, see "Structure" in the Introduction to Matthew.

19:3 First-century Pharisees who associated themselves with Hillel's school were liberal toward divorce. They permitted it for virtually any reason, including such ridiculous grounds as the wife burning her husband's supper or having physical defects like bushy eyebrows.

19:4-6 God ordained marriage both by creation and command. He created two complimentary genders, male and female, and commanded one man and one woman to unite in marriage. Since God ordained marriage, human efforts to dissolve it constitute an attack on God's own work.

19:7-9 Although the Pharisees described divorce as something Moses commanded, Jesus described it as something Moses merely permitted. No provision for divorce was given at the beginning. Only after human hearts became hardened by sin was divorce permitted. The hearts of Jesus' disciples are transformed (5:8), enabling them to be faithful to their marital covenant. Jesus permitted divorce and remarriage for marital unfaithfulness because sexual infidelity effectively destroys the one-flesh union of marriage.

19:10-12 The disciples rashly concluded that if marriage covenants are permanent, lifelong celibacy is the wisest option. Jesus upheld the value of marriage, but in this case He affirms those who chose celibacy in order to devote themselves wholly to God. Eunuchs who have made themselves that way are those who voluntarily abstain from marriage. Jesus did not condone selfemasculation.

19:13-15 On Jesus' blessing of children, see note at 18:1-5.

19:16-17 This question wrongly assumed that eternal life can be earned through good deeds. The statement there is only One who is good was intended to shatter the man's deluded notion of attaining a personal goodness that merited salvation.

19:18-22 Jesus' command to sell your belongings . . . Then come, follow Me was designed to show the young man that (1) his covetousness defied the spirit of the tenth commandment, (2) his neglect of the poor defied the commandment to love his neighbor, and possibly (3) his love for his possessions surpassed his love for God, thus breaking the commandment against idolatry.

19:24-26 The image of the largest animal in Palestine, a camel, passing through a small opening was an oft-used metaphor for impossible events. The salvation of rich people (tempted as they are to trust themselves and their possessions) is possible only by divine miracle.

19:28-29 The Messianic Age is literally the "regeneration," the renewal of all creation. This renewal will take place when the Son of Man sits on His glorious throne, reigning over the new heaven and new earth. The reign of the 12 disciples over Israel demonstrates that Jesus' disciples constitute the new Israel, the chosen people of God who will benefit from His covenant with Abraham. In a great divine reversal in which the first become last and the last become first, those who made personal sacrifices for Christ will enjoy enormous blessings and those like the rich young ruler, who loved wealth more than Christ, will be punished.

20:1-2 In Jewish parables, authority figures like a wealthy landowner typically represent God. A denarius was the wage for a day's work in the first century.

20:8 The words starting with the last and ending with the first recall 19:30 and show that this parable is an illustration of the principle taught there.

20:9-12 Since those who worked only one hour received a denarius, a full day's wage, other workers expected to be paid proportionately—one denarius an hour.

20:13-15 The workers had no right to protest their pay since their wage was the normally accepted sum and since they had agreed to work for this wage in the first place (v. 2). Just as the landowner was free to dispense his wealth as he saw fit, God is free to dispense His grace as He determines. The first workers hired represent people who consider themselves to be of greater importance to God, like the self-righteous man in 19:16-26. The last workers hired represent people like the 12 disciples, who live sacrificially but will be rewarded far more generously than they expect or deserve.

20:16 This repeats 19:30. Since this is repeated immediately before and after the parable of the vineyard workers, it is the key to interpreting the parable. The conjunction at the beginning of 19:30 links this discussion with the one about the unexpected reward of Jesus' disciples.

20:17-19 This is Jesus' fifth prediction of His death in Matthew's Gospel (12:40; 16:21; 17:12,22-23). Each prediction adds additional details. This time He added that He would be mocked, flogged, and crucified at the hands of Gentiles.

20:20 Zebedee's sons were James and John (see note at 4:18-22).

20:21 Jesus had promised that His disciples would sit on 12 thrones ruling over Israel in the Messianic Age (19:28-29). Now James and John sought, through their mother, to gain prominence over their fellows. Along with Peter, they were members of Jesus' inner circle. Because Jesus rebuked Peter in 16:23, they may have aspired to usurp Peter's position of prominence as well.

20:22-23 The cup was a metaphor for suffering (26:39). Jesus' question probed the disciples' willingness to suffer for Him like He would suffer for them. You will indeed drink My cup foretells the martyrdom of James (Ac 12:1-2) and John. The parable in Mt 20:1-16 demonstrated that the Father distributes reward as He chooses, not according to merit. Jesus confirmed again the principle of the Father's freedom to determine who will enjoy heaven's greatest blessings.

20:24-28 The competition between the disciples exposed their pride. Jesus called His disciples to the same humble servitude that He modeled. The ultimate expression of His humility was His own sacrificial death that served as a ransom for believers. Jesus' words echo the themes of Is 53 which Matthew applied to Jesus in Mt 8:17.

20:29-31 The parallel passage in Mk 10:46-52 refers to only one blind man, not two blind men. However, since Mark gives the name of the blind man he mentions, he was probably known to Mark's original readers. Mark did not mention the other blind man because he wished to focus attention only on the man with whom his readers were familiar. On Son of David, see note at 1:1.

21:1 The Mount of Olives was a large hill on the eastern side of Jerusalem. It was mentioned in Zch 14:4 and ancient rabbis interpreted the text as referring to Messiah (Mt 24:3). Bethphage was a small village on the slopes of the hill.

21:2-3 Jesus may have made previous arrangements to use the animals mentioned here, but since Matthew often refers to Jesus' supernatural knowledge (17:27; 20:17-19), it is also possible that Jesus used supernatural knowledge here, in which case He has commandeered the animals in a show of messianic authority.

21:4-5 The formula that Matthew used to introduce the OT quotation affirms that God spoke through the OT prophets. The quotation is a combination of one line from Is 62:11 and excerpts from Zch 9:9. The first text refers to the coming of the Lord while the second refers to the approach of the divine King. Both texts imply Jesus' deity and messiahship.

21:7 The mother donkey was led alongside her untamed colt in order to calm it. The robes of bystanders were draped across the backs of both animals, serving as makeshift decorative saddles. The words He sat on them refer to Jesus sitting atop the robes, not to His riding both animals simultaneously.

21:8 The scattering of robes and branches in Jesus' path recalls the way in which kings entered their royal cities (2 Kg 9:13).

21:9 These words of celebration echo Ps 118:25-26. The people pleaded for salvation from God and blessed God for sending a deliverer who came in the name of the Lord.

21:12 Since Roman currency had idolatrous images stamped on it, the temple accepted only idol-free Tyrian currency. Money changers exchanged pagan coins for acceptable currency for a fee. Merchants sold sacrificial animals to those who had traveled long distances. Doves were sacrificed by poor pilgrims who could not afford lambs (Lv 5:7). Although the merchants and money changers normally performed their services outside the temple precincts, they occasionally set up shop in the court of the Gentiles.

21:13 Jesus' quote is from Is 56:7 and Jr 7:11. The commotion in the Court made the temple unsuitable as a house of prayer. Zechariah 6:12-13 foretold that Messiah would purify the temple. See also Zch 14:21.

21:14 Evidence suggests that first-century Jews extended the demands of Lv 21:16-20 to exclude handicapped persons from entering the temple (2Sm 5:8, LXX). By healing the blind and lame, Jesus identified Himself as Messiah (Is 35:5-6). By doing so in the temple complex, He demonstrated that the handicapped were welcomed by a gracious God.

21:15-16 Both the wonders performed by Jesus and the words spoken by the children identified Jesus as the Son of David and Messiah (see notes at v. 14 and 1:1). Jesus argued from Ps 8:2 that the children's celebration was appropriate and divinely inspired. After all, God had prepared praise from the mouths of children.

21:17-19 On His way from Bethany to Jerusalem, Jesus passed again through Bethphage, "the House of Unripe Figs" (v. 1). In light of Mc 5:7, the fruitless fig tree symbolized Israel's moral barrenness. The cursing of the tree forewarned of God's coming judgment against Jerusalem and its temple.

21:20-22 Jesus' disciples apparently overlooked the symbolic significance of Jesus' miracle and simply focused on the power of His command. Although this mountain could be a reference to the Mount of Olives (Zch 14:4) or the temple mount, it probably referred to God's power to do humanly impossible things in response to prayer (1Co 13:2).

21:23-27 John the Baptist said that Messiah would pour out the transforming Spirit on His disciples and punish the unrepentant with fiery judgment (see note at 3:11). John also identified Jesus as the promised Messiah (see note at 3:14). Admission that John was a prophet would require the Jewish leaders to acknowledge Jesus' authority also.

21:28-32 The father here symbolizes God. The first son symbolizes notorious sinners like tax collectors and prostitutes who initially rebel against the Father's will but later repent and obey. The other son represents the chief priests and elders who promised obedience to God but never fulfilled their commitment.

21:33-41 The landowner represents God; the vineyard stands first for Israel (Is 5:1-7), then Jerusalem, then the kingdom; the tenant farmers represent the Jewish leaders; the slaves, the OT prophets; the son, Jesus. Because the Jewish leaders refused to give God the fruits of righteousness that He demanded and because they rejected and murdered His Son, God would destroy them, take His kingdom away from them, and entrust it to Jesus' disciples.

21:42-44 Jesus quoted Ps 118:22-23, the same psalm from which the people described in Mt 21:9 drew their expressions of praise. The image of a stone that was rejected as worthless by builders but later used as the cornerstone—the most important part of the structure—foreshadowed the fact that though Jesus was rejected by the Jewish leaders, He would be vindicated by God and would become the focal point of God's kingdom. Verse 43 interprets and applies the parable of the vineyard owner: God would take His kingdom away from the Jewish leaders and entrust it to Jesus' disciples. Verse 44 alludes to Is 8:14-15 and Dn 2:34,44-45. In Isaiah, the stone is Yahweh over whom the people of Israel stumble, fall, and are broken. By identifying Himself as the stone, Jesus strongly implied His deity. In Daniel, the stone symbolized a powerful kingdom that would destroy all others and endure forever. The OT allusion thus describes Jesus' deity and kingship and the destruction of all who reject Him.

22:1-7 This parable is an allegory of Israel's history. The king represents God; the son, Jesus; the slaves, the prophets and possibly Jesus' disciples; and the wedding banquet symbolized the great messianic feast that Jews expected to share with Messiah at the beginning of His rule. Those who rejected, persecuted, and murdered the slaves represent OT Israel and their rejection of the prophets. The destruction of the city represents God's judgment on those who refuse to honor His Son. This destruction, like the penalty described in verse 13, portrays eternal punishment but may also hint at the destruction of Jerusalem in A.D. 70.

22:8-12 The guests represent Jesus' disciples who are invited into the kingdom despite their unworthiness. The improperly dressed guest represents a false disciple (7:15-23). His presence seems initially to honor the Son, but his refusal to wear festive garments dishonors Him. Similarly, many false disciples appear to honor Jesus by calling Him "Lord," but their lack of true faith and repentance offends Him.

22:13-14 On the guest's punishment, see note at 8:12. Many people are invited to God's kingdom, but only those who repent and honor the Son are chosen to enter.

22:15-17 The question was a trap. Jesus would have seemed to support the Roman occupation if He expressed approval, and had He disapproved it would have counted as treason against Rome. Matthew mentioned the Herodians only here. Little is known about them. They were probably Jews who preferred the rule of the Herodian dynasty over the rule of Roman procurators.

22:18 On hypocrites, see note at 6:2-4.

22:19 The parallel texts in Mark and Luke refer to the coin as a denarius (see notes at vv. 20-22 and 20:1-2), but Matthew also uses the more precise term "state coin" (Gk nomisma). This may reflect his background as a tax collector.

22:20-22 The denarius was a Roman silver coin that bore a portrait of Emperor Tiberius, a Latin superscription that said "Tiberius Caesar, son of the Divine Augustus," an image of a goddess, and superscripted titles of the Roman high priest. Thus the coins were loaded with propaganda for the worship of emperors and pagan gods, and the Jews considered them to be idolatrous. Jesus approved the payment of taxes to Rome. However, He said that coins ultimately belong to the one whose image it bears, which implied that all a person is and has belongs to God since we bear God's image and likeness (Gn 1:26-27).

22:23 The Sadducees believed that humans cease to exist at the moment of physical death (Ac 23:6-8; Josephus, Ant. 18:16; War 2.164-65).

22:24-28 The Sadducees appealed to the law of levirate marriage (Dt 25:5) in an attempt to disprove the doctrine of resurrection. Although many first-century Jews practiced polygamy, they generally rejected polyandry (a woman having multiple husbands). The Sadducees tried to force Jesus either to reject the doctrine of resurrection or admit the legitimacy of polyandry.

22:29-32 Like angels, resurrected people will not marry because they are eternal and have no need to procreate. This shows that the dilemma described by the Sadducees is false. The Sadducees accepted only the Pentateuch (Genesis-Deuteronomy) as Scripture, and so they dismissed resurrection texts like Is 26:19 and Dn 12:2. In order to convince them of the resurrection, Jesus needed to appeal to the books they revered. Thus He cited Ex 3:6,15-16, where God spoke to Moses from the burning bush and He referred to the dead patriarchs in a manner that implied that they still existed, i.e., I am the God of Abraham rather than "I was the God of Abraham."

22:37 Deuteronomy 6:4-5, known as the Shema, was recited several times daily by faithful Jews.

22:40 Deuteronomy 6:4 and Lv 19:18 summarized the essence of God's demands in Scripture by calling individuals to love God and their fellow man (Mt 5:43-47).

22:41-42 After having been questioned by His opponents repeatedly (vv. 17,23-28,34-36), Jesus entrapped them with a question of His own.

22:42 Son was used in ancient Greek and Hebrew to describe any male descendant. Due to several OT prophecies, Messiah was expected to be David's descendant (see note at 1:1).

22:43-46 Psalm 110:1 describes Yahweh's command to David's Lord (Gk kurios ; Hb adon). "Lord" was a title of authority and/or deity that portrayed Messiah as David's divine superior, not just his descendant. Psalm 110:1-4 is quoted more often in the NT than any other OT passage.

23:2 Chair of Moses may figuratively identify the scribes and Pharisees as representatives of Moses as they taught the OT. Several centuries after Jesus, seats reserved for teachers in synagogues were regularly called "Moses' seat."

23:3 Jesus did not intend to impose all the teachings of the Pharisees on His disciples. After all, He criticized many of their beliefs. His command meant "Obey the Pharisees' teachings whenever they accurately interpret the Scriptures."

23:4 The Pharisees sought to "build a fence around the law," i.e., establish rules so strict that people would not even come close to breaking God's law (Ac 15:10).

23:5 Phylacteries were small boxes containing tiny scrolls of Ex 13:2-16 and Dt 6:4-9; 11:13-21. They were worn by faithful Jewish men on one arm and on the forehead (Dt 6:8; 11:18). Tassels made of blue or white threads were worn at the four corners of the outer garment (Nm 15:38-39; Dt 22:12). The Pharisees enlarged the phylacteries and lengthened the tassels in a bid to appear more pious.

23:8-10 Jesus prohibited the use of honorific titles for spiritual leaders that might encourage a sense of superiority in them or detract from the reverence that is properly due the Father and Messiah.

23:13 Woe was a term used by OT prophets to express condemnation (Is 5:8-23; Hab 2:6-9). Pharisees prevented people from entering the kingdom of heaven by discouraging them from following Jesus.

23:16-22 First-century laws declared some oaths to be valid and others invalid. The system was corrupt insomuch as it allowed loopholes that justified lies and manipulated naive or credulous people. See note at 5:33-37.

23:23-24 In accordance with Lv 27:30; Nm 18:21-32; and Dt 14:22, the scribes and Pharisees meticulously tithed a tenth of everything, including their tiny garden herbs. Jesus did not discourage this since these things should have been done. However, He rebuked the Jewish leaders for obsessing with ritual matters while overlooking the true essence of religion as described in Mc 6:8. Like those who strain a gnat out of their drink but leave a camel floating in it, they were obsessed with tiny matters but overlooked important ones.

23:25-26 Some first-century rabbis debated whether cleansing the outside or inside of vessels was more important. Jesus cited this to illustrate their obsession with ritual purity and their neglect of inner spiritual purity.

23:27-28 First-century Jews whitewashed the tombs in Jerusalem to alert people to their location so they would not unintentionally draw too near and thus defile themselves. The whitewash also beautified the tombs. Despite this outer beauty, Jewish purity laws regarded the inside of tombs as defiled. Jesus said this resembled individuals whose outer piety (the whitewash) masks an inner corruption (spiritual defilement).

23:32 By persecuting God's representatives (John the Baptist, Jesus, the disciples), the scribes and Pharisees continued the rebellion of their ancestors and probed the limits of God's patience.

23:33 On snakes and brood of vipers, see note at 3:7-9.

23:35-36 Jesus, in an apparent allusion to the coming destruction of the temple in A.D. 70, warned that His generation would suffer God's wrath for its abuse of the righteous. Abel's murder is recorded in Genesis 4, while Zechariah's is recorded in 2Ch 24:20-21. Second Chronicles was the final book of the OT in the typical order of the Hebrew Bible, so the martyrdoms of Abel and Zechariah were recorded in the first and last books of the Hebrew OT. Thus Jesus apparently meant to cite the whole span of martyrdom in the OT. Some interpreters argue that He confused the Zechariah of 2 Chronicles (identified as the son of Jehoiada) with the prophet Zechariah (described as the son of Berechiah in Zch 1:1). However, the Hebrew phrase son of was used to identify sons, grandsons, and even remote descendants. Consequently, Jesus probably identified the Zechariah of 2 Chronicles by an earlier or later ancestor. It is not unreasonable to suggest that both Zechariahs had ancestors ("fathers") named Berechiah.

23:37 In Ps 17:8; 91:4; and Is 31:5, the image of a hen sheltering her chicks portrayed Yahweh's protection of Israel. By rejecting Jesus, Jerusalem rejected God's protection. The image implies Jesus' identity as Yahweh.

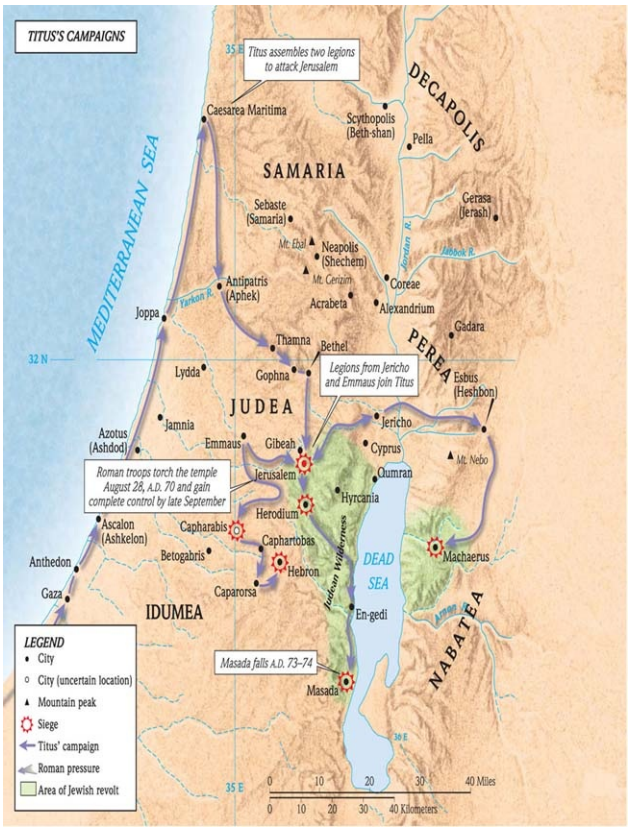
23:38-39 The word desolate means "abandoned." It denotes God's abandonment of His house, the temple. This occurred when Jesus departed from the temple with the words you will never see Me again. Is the blessed one quotes Ps 118:26 and echoes the jubilant greeting that welcomed Jesus into Jerusalem in Mt 21:9 before His rejection by the people.

24:2 This remarkable prophecy must have stunned the disciples. Josephus (Ant. 15.392) stated that the temple was constructed of blocks of white limestone that measured 37.5 feet long, 12 feet high, and 18 feet wide. Some of the remaining blocks weigh nearly 400 tons.



As Jesus left the temple He prophesied, "Not one stone will be left here on another that will not be thrown down!" (24:2). This part of Jesus' prophecy was fulfilled in A.D. 70 when the Roman general (and later emperor) Titus led in the destruction of Jerusalem.

24:3 The separate questions imply that Jesus' disciples understood that the destruction of the temple and His second coming would be separate events.

24:4-14 These verses describe events that will happen between Jesus' prophecy and the end of the age.

24:15-22 These verses probably describe events related to the destruction of Jerusalem that occurred in A.D. 70. However, Mt 24:29 closely associates this tribulation period with the second coming of Jesus. This implies that these events closely parallel things that will occur immediately before Jesus' return (2Th 2:3-4). The entire period ranging from the destruction of the temple to the events preceding Christ's return may be described as a period of great tribulation for Christ's followers. The abomination that causes desolation is an idolatrous object that will desecrate the Jerusalem temple as foretold in Dn 9:27. Though Josephus identified it as the shedding of priestly blood in the sanctuary several years before the destruction of the temple (War 4.147-201; 4.343; 5.17-18; cp. Mt 23:29-36), Jesus' description of the abomination as standing in the temple implies that it is an object, not an event.

24:24 God protects and preserves the faith of the elect. Those who truly believe in Jesus as God, Savior, and King will persevere in their faith to the end.

24:27 The second coming will be visible to everyone on earth.

24:28 Some interpreters believe this verse refers to eagles that were emblazoned on the standards carried by Roman soldiers as they destroyed Jerusalem, but it is probably a reference to birds of carrion descending upon the corpses of those destroyed during this judgment (Dt 28:26; Jb 39:30; Ezk 39:17-20).

24:29 Jesus' words combine allusions to Is 13:10, which describes the fall of Babylon, and Is 34:4, which describes the judgment of Edom and the nations. In the OT context, the words were metaphorical. Jesus may also have used the words in a symbolic portrayal of the judgment and destruction of people and nations who opposed His rule.

24:30 The sign of the Son of Man may resemble military banners that signal the onset of battle, calling all who belong to Christ to gather around Him (Is 13:2-4). Such a sign would parallel the function of the trumpet in Mt 24:31. However, since Is 11:10 figuratively identified Messiah Himself as a military banner, His own appearance may be the sign about which He spoke. Matthew 24:30b is an allusion to Zch 12:10-14 in which the Jews will mourn for the One they pierced (crucified). The reference to the Son of Man coming on the clouds is an allusion to Dn 7:13. It identifies Jesus as the King who will descend from heaven to establish an eternal reign over the earth.

24:31 This verse combines Dt 30:4; Is 27:13, and Zch 2:6 (LXX). The Messiah will gather the elect, His followers both living and dead, from heaven and earth. The angels are His angels because He has absolute authority over them (see note at 4:10-11).

24:33-34 All these things refers to the tribulation that will precede Jesus' return, not the second coming itself. He is near means that Messiah is prepared to return at any moment, not that He must return immediately after these events unfold. All of these events occurred within Jesus' generation, particularly in the circumstances surrounding the fall of Jerusalem in A.D. 70. Thus Christ's followers must always be ready for His return.

24:35 Jesus' words have the same reliability and enduring quality as the OT itself (5:18).

24:36-44 Close observation of world events will not enable us to predict the time of Christ's return. Rather, Jesus' followers should live in a state of constant preparation. The words one will be taken and one left likely refers to the fact that some will be gathered by Messiah at His return while others will be left behind. On Son of Man, see note at 8:20.

24:45-51 We must not take advantage of the delay in Messiah's return by pursuing sinful pleasures. Rather, we must live each day as if it were the day of His return.

25:1-5 Whereas the previous parable warned against postponing preparation for Messiah's coming, this one warns against making preparations that are inadequate for the lengthy delay that precedes His second coming.

25:6-9 The virgins least expected the groom to arrive in the middle of the night. This signifies the suddenness of Jesus' return (24:36,42). The shout announcing the groom's arrival parallels the trumpet blast in 24:31.

25:10-13 The foolish virgins represent those who fail to persevere by waiting for Jesus' return with constant vigilance. The cry Master, master (Gk kurie, kurie) is identical to that of the false disciples in 7:21. I do not know you echoes 7:23 and expresses exclusion from Messiah's kingdom. The parable does not describe a true disciple who loses his salvation, but a false one whose commitment to Jesus was deficient from the start. By portraying Himself as a spiritual bridegroom, Jesus implied His deity. God was often portrayed as a bridegroom in the OT (Is 54:4-6; Ezk 16:7-34; Hs 2:19).

25:14-30 The man on the long journey symbolizes Jesus and the lengthy delay that will precede His second coming. The talents (Greek coins whose value equaled 6,000 days of wages) represent the financial resources, gifts, privileges, and opportunities that Jesus entrusts to His disciples. The faithful servants (true disciples) used their gifts and resources responsibly and were generously rewarded. The evil, lazy servant (a false disciple) failed to use the resources and was severely punished. He attempted to excuse his failure by assaulting the character of his master (v. 24). However, the master's treatment of the other servants demonstrates that the wicked servant's slander was unfair.

25:31-46 This passage uses figurative language (shepherd . . . sheep . . . goats) drawn from Ezk 34:17-19 in Mt 25:32-33, but the rest is too literal to be classified as a parable. The passage is therefore best taken as a literal description of the final judgment. Verses 31 and 34 define the title Son of Man as King (see note at 8:20). The King, Jesus, will judge people based on their reception and treatment of the least of His brothers. In light of 12:50, the words refer to Jesus' followers who seek to do God's will. Humble and compassionate treatment of Jesus' followers necessarily accompanies acceptance of the gospel that they proclaim (10:40-42). Whatever you did for one of the least of these brothers of Mine, you did for Me means that a person's treatment of Jesus' representatives expresses their love for and commitment to Jesus Himself. Those who show no compassion to Jesus' followers betray their lack of devotion to Him. As in 7:21-23, Jesus identifies Himself as the final Judge, a role that Jews expected Yahweh to fulfill.

26:1-2 Passover was a celebration that commemorated the Israelites' flight from Egypt in the days of Moses (Ex 12). The timing of Jesus' death (at Passover) confirms His identity as the new Moses who will lead His disciples on a new spiritual exodus. On Son of Man, see note at 8:20. The temporal reference Passover takes place after two days means that Jesus' prophecy was given on Tuesday.

26:3 Joseph Caiaphas served as high priest from A.D. 18 to 36, after he replaced his father-in-law, Annas. His burial cave was discovered in 1990 south of Abu Tor.

26:5 The fear of rioting during Passover was well-founded since riots had previously occurred (Josephus, War 1.88). A riot would cause the Romans to strengthen their grip on Jerusalem and the Jewish leadership.

26:6 Jesus had apparently healed Simon of his serious skin disease at a previous date since he now lived in a house (rather than a leper colony) and entertained Jewish guests before the Passover.

26:7 The unnamed woman was Mary (Jn 12:3). Her fragrant oil was very expensive, worth a year's wages. Since Jesus was Messiah (a title meaning "anointed One"), anointing His head was especially meaningful. It recalled the anointing of OT kings (1Sm 10:1; 2Kg 9:3,6).

26:12 Corpses were perfumed in first-century Palestine to mask the odor of putrefaction. Jesus interpreted Mary's act as preparation for His burial. Messiah was beginning His reign, but, to the surprise of His disciples, His throne would be a cross and His diadem a crown of thorns.

26:14-16 If the 30 pieces of silver are 30 shekels, the amount was equal to 120 days' wages. Thus by his traitorous act Judas earned an amount of money that equaled only one-third of the value of Mary's lavish gift (see note at v. 7). On the significance of this amount, see note at 27:9.

26:17 The feast of Unleavened Bread was a seven-or eight-day feast associated with the one-day Passover. During this feast, the Jews refused to eat anything containing yeast in order to commemorate the speed with which God delivered them from Egypt (Ex 13:7-8; Dt 16:3-4). The feast began on the day before Passover, Thursday of Passion Week.

26:18-19 Mark's account of this event more clearly implies that Jesus' instructions to His disciples indicate that He had used supernatural knowledge (Mk 14:13-16).

26:24 Just as it is written indicates that Jesus' sufferings were foretold in the OT. Jesus probably had in mind texts such as Is 53 and Ps 22.

26:26 The Passover meal was rich with symbolic meaning. Jews ate lamb to commemorate the lamb whose blood protected firstborn Israelites from the death plague before the exodus. Bitter herbs were reminiscent of their enslavement. Unleavened bread symbolized the haste of their departure from Egypt (Ex 12). Jesus invested the meal with new symbolism: the unleavened bread symbolized His own body which would be torn by scourging and crucifixion. His sacrifice would begin a new exodus in which people were liberated from slavery to sin.

26:28 The making of a covenant was normally accompanied by an act of sacrifice. The slaughter of the animal signified the consequences that would befall anyone who broke the covenant. The old covenant was sealed by such a sacrifice (Ex 24:8). Now, Jesus' sacrifice enacted the new covenant that had been promised in the OT (Jr 31:31-34). In this covenant God vowed to forgive and forget His people's sins. He also promised to write His law on the hearts of His people so that they will fulfill His righteous demands.

26:29 Many Jews expected Messiah to begin His reign by sharing a great banquet with His subjects. The final cup of the meal anticipated that great messianic feast and encouraged Jesus' disciples to eagerly wait "until He comes" (1Co 11:26).

26:30 Jews typically sang portions of OT psalms like Pss 113-118 during the Passover meal.

26:31 Many Jews regarded Zch 13:7, which Jesus quoted here, as a prophecy about Messiah. Jesus' quote implied that the Father Himself would strike Him. Although His crucifixion involved the conspiracy of religious leaders, Roman officials, and the betrayal of a friend, Jesus viewed His death ultimately as the fulfillment of God's righteous plan.

26:34 For the fulfillment of Jesus' prophecy, see verses 69-75.

26:38 Jesus' sorrow resulted from His anticipation of His physical, emotional, and spiritual suffering, especially His alienation from His Father as He bore the sins of the world on the cross.

26:39 In the OT, the cup is often an image of divine wrath and judgment (Ps 75:7-8; Is 51:17). The cup that Jesus faced was God's wrath against sin. With the words if it is possible, let this cup pass, Jesus asked His Father to provide forgiveness by some means other than His sacrificial death. Jesus knew that God's power made it possible for Him to evade the power of Jewish and Roman executioners (see note at v. 53), but He did not want to reject the Father's plan to provide salvation to His people.

26:42 Jesus' second petition in Gethsemane assumed that His sacrificial death was necessary. Matthew 26:54 shows that God had predicted Jesus' death in the OT. The Scriptures, being God's Word, had to be fulfilled. This second petition closely parallels the Model Prayer of 6:9-13. Both prayers address God as Father and contain the petition Your will be done.

26:47-49 Jewish men did not kiss one another publicly except on formal occasions. Such a kiss expressed respect and affection. Thus Judas's kiss was an act of shameful hypocrisy.

26:51 The servant was named Malchus (Jn 18:10). Jesus restored his severed ear (Lk 22:51).

26:53 A Roman legion consisted of 6,000 soldiers. A roughly equal number of auxiliary troops supported each legion. Thus 12 legions of angels would be equivalent to 72,000 or even 144,000 angels, more than enough to defend Jesus against arrest and crucifixion.

26:54-56 Jesus expressed the same view of the Scriptures that He taught in the Sermon on the Mount (5:17-20).

26:59-60 The Sanhedrin was obligated to interview witnesses separately and then compare their testimonies to determine if they were consistent (Mk 14:55-59). Inconsistent testimonies were considered invalid.

26:61-63 The testimony was based on a confused understanding of Jesus' statement in Jn 2:19. Since both 2Sm 7:13-14 and Zch 6:12 portrayed Messiah as One who would build a temple for God, the high priest regarded the statement about building the temple in three days as a claim to messiahship. The high priest appears to use the titles Messiah and Son of God interchangeably, suggesting that many Jews saw the title "Son of God" as messianic in light of Ps 2.

26:64 Jesus' confession acknowledged that He is Messiah and the Son of God. However, He countered confused interpretations of His messianic role by describing Himself as the Son of Man. Both "Son of Man" and the phrase coming on the clouds of heaven were drawn from Dn 7:13. Jesus' words confirmed that He intended this title to express not just His humanity but His identity as a King of heavenly origin who would reign over an eternal kingdom. The words seated at the right hand echo Ps 110:1 (see note at Mt 22:43-46).

Jesus' application of Ps 110:1 to Himself gave the impression that He was claiming to be God's equal. The unbelieving Jewish leaders regarded this as blasphemy, a crime worthy of death (Lv 24:10-23).

26:65 Tearing one's robes was a common expression of deep grief and was the customary Jewish response to blasphemy. However, because the robes of the high priest were sacred, Lv 21:10 prohibited "the priest who is highest among his brothers" from tearing his garments. Thus the high priest's anger at Jesus' statement prompted him to commit an act of sacrilege.

26:66 Execution by stoning was the prescribed OT penalty for blasphemy (Lv 24:10-23).

26:67-68 Mark 14:65 shows that the men covered Jesus' face before they beat Him. Thus Jesus was expected to identify His abusers by name without seeing their faces or hearing their voices. This mock test of messiahship was probably based on a misinterpretation of Is 11:3 which said that Messiah "will not judge by what He sees with His eyes . . . [or] by what He hears with His ears." A century later Bar Kochba was executed after his claims to be Messiah were disproved by his inability to judge by smell.

26:69-71 The emphasis on Jesus' identity as a Galilean and a Nazarene may imply that one of the arguments used to refute His messianic claims was that He did not come from Bethlehem, the city of David. This city is identified as the birthplace of Messiah in Mc 5:2. Thus, this argument against Jesus' messiahship confused His hometown with His birthplace (Mt 2:4-11).

26:73 Gl ileans spoke with an accent that distinguished them from the inhabitants of Judah.

26:75 This event fulfilled Jesus' prophecy in verse 34.

27:1-2 This early morning meeting of the Sanhedrin was convened to compensate for the illegal procedures of the previous night. According to Jewish law, judges had to conduct and conclude capital trials during daylight hours (m. Sanh. 4:1). The law also prohibited conducting trials on the eve of the Sabbath. The Jewish leaders also needed to plot and secure Roman approval for the intended execution of Jesus. Pontius Pilate was the Roman prefect of Judea from A.D. 26-36. The title governor (Gk hegemon) was an acceptable Greek translation of the Latin title "prefect" and was also used of Pilate by Josephus (Ant. 18.55).

27:4 Betraying innocent blood is a heinous offense that results in a divine curse (Dt 27:25). The reaction of the chief priests and elders shows that they realized that Jesus was innocent.

27:5 Some Jews believed that criminals received atonement from God through their execution (m. Sanh 6:3). Once he realized the horror of his crime, guilt-stricken Judas ended his life, perhaps hoping to earn atonement. But only one death brings atonement: that of Jesus Christ.

27:8 This verse hints that Matthew wrote his Gospel before the destruction of Jerusalem in A.D. 70. That such a burial field could be located and recognized by name decades after the utter destruction of Jerusalem is unlikely.

27:9-10 Matthew's appeal to the OT blends themes from Zch 11:12-13 and Jr 32:6-9. The first text describes Israel's rejection of its spiritual Shepherd, the low estimation they had of Him (worth only 30 pieces of silver, the price of a slave; Ex 21:32), and destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans. The second text assures that Israel will be restored after its devastation by the Babylonians. The two prophecies do more than just foretell the events surrounding Judas's actions. By merging these texts, Matthew showed that Jerusalem's rejection of Messiah would result in its destruction, but that God would restore the city in due time.

27:11-14 According to Roman law, the refusal to offer a defense counted as an admission of guilt.

27:15 The custom of releasing a prisoner for Passover seems to be attested in one Jewish text (m. Pes. 8:6: "they may slaughter a Passover lamb for one . . . whom they have promised to bring out of prison").

27:16 Mark 15:7 describes Barabbas as a murderous rebel. Some ancient manuscripts of Matthew and some important figures in the early church mention that Barabbas's full name was Jesus Bar Abbas, which might indicate that he was the son of a renowned teacher ("son of Rabba"). Thus Pilate apparently offered the Jews a choice between a Jesus who was the son of a teacher and a Jesus who was the Son of God.

27:24-25 Both Judas (vv. 3-5) and Pilate (v. 24) feared being accountable for Jesus' death, but the people gladly accepted responsibility. Many later Christians speculated that the destruction of Jerusalem was the penalty for this self-confessed guilt.

27:26 Roman flogging utilized an instrument of torture called the (Gk) flagellum, a leather whip that had thongs laced with sharp pieces of iron or bone. Although beatings in the Jewish synagogue were limited to 39 blows, no limit was imposed on Roman flogging. Ancient writers described victims being disemboweled or having their bones laid bare by the flagellum.

27:28-29 With their mock royal robe . . . crown, and scepter, the soldiers ridiculed Jesus' messianic claims.

27:32 Crucifixion victims normally carried the cross's (Gk) patibulum (crossbeam) to the execution site. Having lost much blood, Jesus was too weak to carry it beyond the city walls. The soldiers impressed (see note at 5:41) Simon, a Cyrenian, to carry the beam the rest of the way. Simon's sons were later known in the early church (Mk 15:21). This suggests that Simon became a disciple of Jesus. Cyrene was situated near the Mediterranean coast in northern Africa. Simon was probably an ethnic Jew visiting Jerusalem for the Passover (Ac 6:9).

27:34 This wine was probably intended to dull the pain of crucifixion or hasten death. Jesus' refusal to drink it expressed His determination to suffer the full agony of the cross.

27:35 Crucifixion was a horrifying and torturous means of execution. Naked victims were tied or nailed (Jn 20:25) to a cross. The victim might remain alive for days, and after death they were often consumed by dogs, carrion birds, or insects. Josephus described crucifixion as "the most wretched of all ways of dying" (War 7.5.4). Cicero (106-43 B.C.) said that crucifixion so frightened Roman citizens that they refused to speak the word "cross."

27:37 A wooden placard called a titulus was often tied around the criminal's neck as he marched to death. This sign announced the reason for his crucifixion. When Jesus arrived at Golgotha, the placard was nailed over His head. Although Roman crosses were sometimes shaped like X or T, the placement of the titulus on Jesus' cross shows that it was shaped like a lowercase letter "t."

27:45 The bystanders naturally interpreted the darkness as God's judgment (Am 8:9). While they likely thought the judgment was against Jesus (as if He were a heretic), in light of His later resurrection they came to see the darkness as judgment against the sin that Jesus became on our behalf (2Co 5:21).

27:46 Jesus' lament quotes Ps 22:1. The psalm reads like it was written by someone standing near the cross (see especially Ps 22:7-8,14-18). Jesus' cry expressed the alienation from God that He endured as He bore the Father's wrath against sin. Although Jesus elsewhere addressed God as "Father," He addressed Him merely as My God in this verse.

27:51 Jesus' death at 3:00 p.m. coincided with the afternoon sacrifice. Thus the priests were present in the temple to observe the rending of the curtain. The curtain of the sanctuary separated the holy of holies from the rest of the temple. According to the Mishnah, it was 60 feet long, 30 feet wide, and as thick as a man's palm. It was so heavy that it took 300 men to lift it when it was wet (m. Shek. 8:5). That it split in two from top to bottom shows that it was torn by God. This signified that Jesus' death granted sinners new access to God (Heb 6:19-20; 10:19-20).

27:52-53 Although the tombs were ruptured at the time of Jesus' death, the saints did not depart from them until after Jesus' resurrection. This demonstrated that Jesus' victory over death guaranteed that God would also raise His people (1Co 15:20).

Gordon's Calvary, one of two sites consider to be the location of Jesus' crucifixion. This site was named for British General Charles Gordon who argued that this was the site of Jesus' crucifixion. It is located just north and east of the Damascus Gate and conforms closely to the details of the Gospels. The second site is the Church of the Holy Sepulchre within the walls of the modern city. It has the weight of tradition on its side (from about the fourth century).

27:54 Gentiles again recognized and confessed Jesus' true identity. This hints at God's worldwide plan for salvation (see note at 28:19).

27:56 Mary the mother of James and Joseph was probably the mother of two of Jesus' lesser known disciples (Mk 15:40).

27:57-60 Joseph, a member of the Sanhedrin (Mk 15:43), had opposed their condemnation of Jesus (Lk 23:50-51). Though Jesus taught that rich people cannot enter God's kingdom by their own efforts, Joseph is proof that God can save anyone by His grace (Mt 19:24-26). The bodies of crucified victims were normally allowed to rot on the cross, but Pilate respected Jewish scruples and allowed the dead to be buried.

27:65 Pilate sent a detachment of soldiers to protect the tomb from disciples who might attempt to stage a fake resurrection. The Greek term for the detachment (Gk koustodia) does not specify the number of soldiers in the unit.

27:66 The seal consisted of wax bearing the imprint of an official Roman seal. This ensured that no one could tamper with the tomb without being detected. Any unauthorized persons who broke the seal defied the authority of Rome and could be punished by death.

28:1 These events occurred early Sunday morning. For the identity of the other Mary, see note at 27:56. Since the ancients did not view women as trustworthy, a writer who made up an account designed to convince readers of Jesus' resurrection would not have made women the first witnesses of the resurrection. That Matthew included the women confirms that he was faithful to record actual events, even if they would be seen as discreditable by society.

28:3 The angel's appearance identified him as a heavenly being (see Dn 7:9; 10:6).

28:4 The soldiers lost consciousness and fell to the ground.

28:6 The words just as He said recall Jesus' prophecies about His resurrection (12:40; 16:21; 17:23; 20:19). Jesus taught that the OT prophecies had to be fulfilled since they came from God (5:18; 26:54,56).

28:9 During His wilderness temptation (4:10), Jesus quoted Dt 6:13, "Worship the Lord your God, and serve only Him" (Mt 4:10). By accepting worship here, Jesus identified Himself as "the Lord your God."

28:13-14 Wide circulation of this story probably led to the emperor's edict in the Nazareth Inscription (likely dated ca A.D. 41-54) that threatened death to anyone who removed an entombed body. Several aspects of the soldiers' story make no sense. If the soldiers were all asleep, they could not have known that it was Jesus' disciples who removed His body. Furthermore, it is extremely unlikely that all of the soldiers would have slept at the same time. Finally, soldiers were severely punished or even executed for sleeping on duty.

28:17 On the significance of the disciples' worship, see note at verse 9. The lingering confusion among them about Jesus' resurrection undermines the skeptical theory that the disciples shared a hallucination of Jesus' resurrection because they all expected Him to arise.

28:18 Before the resurrection, Jesus had authority (7:29; 9:6,8; 11:27; 21:23). However, through the resurrection, the Father granted Him all authority over heaven and . . . earth, an authority far greater than that which Satan had vainly promised Him (see note at 4:8-9).

28:19 The command to extend their mission worldwide brings to a climax Matthew's repeated theme of Gentile participation in God's salvation. The inclusion of four Gentile women in Jesus' genealogy and the summons of the magi to worship the infant Christ foreshadowed the disciples' mission of making disciples of all nations. Baptism marked a person's entrance into the faith community. In the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit is a reference to the Trinity. Matthew's language shows that a clear understanding of Jesus' nature and identity as God was required before baptism.

28:20 The Great Commission (vv. 19-20) is preceded by a reference to Jesus' authority and followed by the promise of Jesus' spiritual presence among us. Both are necessary if we are to fulfill our God-given mission.

Word Studies magos Greek Pronunciation [MAH gahss]

HCSB Translation wise man, sorcerer Uses in Matthew 4
Uses in the NT 6
Focus passage Matthew 2:1,7,16

In the Greek OT, magos occurs only in Daniel 2:2,10 and describes a group of people possessing knowledge of Babylonian religious and magical arts, whom Nebuchadnezzar summoned to interpret his dream. In Matthew 2:1,7,16, magos refers to those who have wisdom through investigation and interpretation of the movements of heavenly bodies (i.e., wise men/astrologers). It is likely (though not certain) these astrologers were from Babylon, since there they would have had contact with Jewish exiles and obtained an interest in the Jewish Messiah. The irony in the passage is difficult to miss: The Jewish King Herod in Jerusalem attempted to slaughter baby Jesus born in nearby Bethlehem, while pagan devotees of a foreign religion recognized Messiah's star, traveled a great distance to find Him, presented Him with valuable gifts, and paid homage to Him. Elsewhere in the NT, magos refers to Elymas the sorcerer (Ac 13:6,8).

makarios Greek Pronunciation [mah KAH ree ahss]
HCSB Translation blessed Uses in Matthew 13 (Lk, 15; Jn, 2) Uses in the NT 50
Focus passage Matthew 5:3-12

Makarios occurs 30 times in the Gospels, all but two on the lips of Jesus (Lk 1:45; 11:27). The OT Hebrew term ashrey stands behind the NT usage of makarios . Both terms are normally translated "blessed" or "happy." Makarios has two main nuances in the NT. It predominantly refers to God's blessing upon His people, and secondarily to God's people blessing Him. In the latter sense, makarios is basically synonymous with praise . When a person is blessed by God, he is approved by God. The opposite of makarios is "woe" (ouai) , the status of one who is not approved by God and is thus the object of impending judgment (Mt 23:13-32; Lk 6:24-26). God's blessing does not necessarily include material prosperity in this life (Mt 19:23-24; Lk 6:24; 16:19-31)—the contrary is actually quite possible (Lk 6:20)—but it does anticipate full, uninterrupted prosperity in the future kingdom (Mt 5:4-9,11-12; 25:34).

HCSB Translation fulfill Uses in Matthew 16 (Mk, 2; Lk, 9; Jn, 15) Uses in the NT 86
Focus passage Matthew 8:17

Pleroo (to fill) refers to the action of filling up an item with some object (Mt 13:48; Ac 2:2; 5:28), and metaphorically to the filling of persons with certain qualities or powers (Lk 2:40; Ac 2:28; Rm 15:13-14; 2Tm 1:4) or to the completion (i.e., filling up) of some time period (Mk 1:15; Ac 9:23) or activity (Lk 7:1; Ac 12:25; 13:25). By extension, pleroo may also mean to fulfill and often indicates the fulfillment of OT prophecies. Prophecies may be directly prophetic (a predicted event is fulfilled ; e.g., Jesus' Gl ilean ministry; Mt 4:13-16; cp. Is 9:1-7), or they may be indirectly fulfilled by the correspondence of two historical events (the first event foreshadows the second; Mt 27:9; cp. Jr 32:6-9; Zch 11:12-13), or they may be based on parallels between Israel's history and Jesus' life (Israel and Jesus being called out of Egypt; Mt 2:15; cp. Hs 11:1) eleos Greek Pronunciation [EH leh ahss]

HCSB Translation mercy Uses in Matthew 3 (Lk, 6) Uses in the NT 27

Focus Passage Matthew 9:13

Eleos is one of several NT words meaning mercy . Each of the three times that this word appears in Matthew, Jesus uses it to refer to principles established in the OT, where God clearly required that His people show mercy . Twice Jesus quotes from Hosea 6:6, "I desire mercy and not sacrifice" (Mt 9:13; 12:7). The Hebrew term (chesed) underlying the Greek translation combines the ideas of love, mercy , and faithful loyalty. The Pharisees condemned Jesus for fraternizing with social outcasts (Mt 9:11), but He reminded them that God expected His people to show mercy before giving sacrifice. In Matthew 23 Jesus rebuked the Pharisees even more harshly, and one of His grievances was their neglect of the more important aspects of the law ("justice, mercy , and faith") even while they meticulously tithed their mint, dill, and cumin.

phobeo Greek Pronunciation [fah BEH oh]

HCSB Translation fear Uses in Matthew 18 (Mk, 12; Lk, 23; Jn, 5) Uses in the NT 95

Focus Passage Matthew 10:28

Like the English term fear, Greek phobeo covers a broad spectrum of meanings, including worry (Mt 1:20), discomfort at potential circumstances (Mt 2:22; 10:31; 14:5; 21:26,46), and feelings of awe and/or terror, especially in the presence of the supernatural (Mt 9:8; 10:28; 14:27; 17:6-7; 27:54; 28:5,10). Phobeo has two main applications in the NT: fear of God and fear of man or circumstances. In regard to the former, fear can be understood as a healthy understanding of who God is, His power, and what He demands from us (cp. Pr 1:7; 9:10). The unbeliever should tremble in terror before such a God, for He is the one who can "destroy both soul and body in hell" (Mt 10:28). For the believer, however, such fear is replaced by a relationship in which perfect love can flourish (1Jn 4:18; cp. Rm 8:15), though awe of God's greatness remains (2Co 5:11; 7:1).

blasphemia Greek Pronunciation [blahss fay MEE uh] HCSB Translation blasphemy Uses in Matthew 4 (Mk, 3; Lk, 1; Jn, 1) Uses in the NT 18
Focus Passage Matthew 12:31

The Greek noun blasphemia comes from a compound verb (blasphemeo) meaning to speak evil against (blas-evil; phemi-to speak), slander, or revile. In the NT, blasphemy is an extremely serious offense and primarily directed against God (Mt 9:3; 26:65), Christ (Lk 22:65), or anything related to either Person (1Tm 6:1; Ti 2:5; Jms 2:7). Blasphemy can also be directed against angels (2Pt 2:10; Jd 8) and human beings (Rm 3:8; 1Co 4:13; 10:30; Ti 3:2). Jesus told the Jewish religious leaders that the most grievous sin, one that cannot be forgiven, is blasphemy against the Holy Spirit (Mt 12:31-32). Apparently, they were in danger of committing this sin, or perhaps already had, for Jesus' warning was in response to their claim that He cast out demons through the power of Satan (Mt 12:24) and that Jesus Himself was demon-possessed (Mk 3:30).

splanchnizomai Greek Pronunciation [splahnk NIH zah migh]
HCSB Translation feel compassion for Uses in Matthew 5 (Mk, 4; Lk, 3) Uses in the NT 12
Focus Passage Matthew 15:32

Splanchnizomai (to feel compassion for) is related to the noun splanchnon, which in the plural literally means bowels (insides; Ac 1:18). In the ancient world, internal organs served as referents for psychological aspects (cp. modern English usage of heart). Thus, the bowels were considered the seat of love, sympathy, affection, and compassion (Lk 1:78; 2Co 6:12; 7:15; Php 2:1; Col 3:12). By extension, splanchnon became synonymous with the feeling itself (i.e., love, affection, compassion; Php 1:8; Phm 12). The verb splanchnizomai occurs only in the Synoptic Gospels and apart from appearing in Jesus' parables (Mt 18:27; Lk 10:33; 15:20), the word refers to Jesus Himself. His compassion led Him to provide the crowds with leadership (Mt 9:36 = Mk 6:34), to feed people (Mt 15:32 = Mk 8:2), and to heal them (Mt 14:14; 20:34; Mk 1:41; Lk 7:13).

metamorphoo Greek Pronunciation [meh tah mohr FAH oh]
HCSB Translation transform Uses in Matthew 1 (Mk, 1) Uses in the NT 4
Focus Passage Matthew 17:2

Metamorphoo means to change or transform and occurs only in the passive (to be changed, transformed, or transfigured) in the NT. Metamorphoo may refer to outward physical change (e.g., Jesus' transfiguration) or to an inward spiritual transformation. Jesus was transformed (Mt 17:1-2 = Mk 9:2) on the "holy mountain" (2Pt 1:18) while Peter, James, and John looked on. He temporarily assumed the form of His heavenly glory, permitting His disciples to see Him as He will appear in His kingdom. Paul employs metamorphoo in reference to the inward spiritual transformation occurring in Christians. As believers gaze upon the Lord's glory, they are transformed into His image through the work of the Spirit (2Co 3:18), reattaining the fullness of the divine image, which they shared at creation. On the basis of their status in Christ, Paul commands believers to be inwardly transformed through the renewing of their minds (Rm 12:2).

aphiemi Greek Pronunciation [ah FEE ay mee] HCSB Translation forgive Uses in Matthew 47 (Mk, 34; Lk, 31;Jn, 15) Uses in the NT 143
Focus Passage Matthew 18:27

Aphiemi exhibits a broad range of nuances in the NT. It can mean to send away/dismiss (Mt 13:36) and in a legal sense to leave/divorce (1Co 7:11-13). It may also mean to leave/depart (Mk 1:20,31) or to tolerate (Rv 2:20). Another important meaning is to pardon/forgive. In this sense, aphiemi may describe the cancellation of a loan or debt (Mt 18:27,32), but it more commonly means to forgive sins (Mt 6:12,14-15; Mk 2:5,7,9-10; 3:28; Lk 7:47-49; Jn 20:23; Rm 4:7). The related noun aphesis almost always refers to God's forgiveness of human sins. The resurrected Lord told the disciples that this forgiveness would be preached in His name, and the apostles were the first to do exactly that (Ac 2:38; 5:31; 10:43; 13:38; 26:18). Paul employed aphiemi and aphesis to describe the cancellation of sin's infinite debt to God (Rm 4:7; Eph 1:7; Col 1:14).

hosanna Greek Pronunciation [hoh sahn NAH]
HCSB Translation Hosanna Uses in Matthew 3 (Mk, 2; Jn, 1) Uses in the NT 6
Focus Passage Matthew 21:9,15

Hosanna derives from two Hebrew words hoshi'ah na' via Aramaic hosha' na', meaning "Please save!" The phrase first occurs in Psalm 118:25 (similar expressions occur in Ps 12:1; 20:9; 28:9; 60:5; 108:6), and by the time of Jesus it had become a fixed liturgical expression used as a prayer for help, an exclamation of praise, and a shout of celebration. Sometimes, the phrase was interpreted messianically, and in this sense, the Gospels highlight Jesus' triumphal entry by noting the crowds shouting Hosanna (Mt 21:9 = Mk 11:9-10 = Lk 19:38 = Jn 12:13) as well as the cheering of the children in praise of Jesus (Mt 21:15).

hupokrites Greek Pronunciation [hoo pah krih TAYSS]
HCSB Translation hypocrite Uses in Matthew 13 (Mk, 1; Lk, 3) Uses in the NT 17
Focus Passage Matthew 23:13-36

Hupokrites (hypocrite) is derived from the verb hupokrinomai meaning to interpret or play the part. Hupokrinomai was often used to describe what actors accomplished on stage, and hupokrites referred to an actor, as one who interprets the words of a poet and plays a part. Though not originally a negative term, hupokrites metaphorically assumed a negative sense in Jewish and Christian literature, referring to one who pretends or who misinterprets truth and subsequently plays a part contrary to reality (e.g., the Jewish leaders of Jesus' day misinterpreted the relationship between written Law and interpretive tradition and subsequently played the part of properly interpreting the Law when they were actually not properly interpreting it). Jesus uses hupokrites 17 times to denounce the Jewish leaders' fraudulent claim to spirituality. Perhaps His most scorching declamation comes in Matthew 23:13-36.

paradidomi Greek Pronunciation [pah rah DIHD oh mee] HCSB Translation betray, hand over, entrust Uses in Matthew 31 (Mk, 20; Lk, 17; Jn, 15) Uses in the NT 119
Focus Passage Matthew 26:46

In a positive sense, paradidomi (entrust, hand down) may describe commendation for service (Ac 14:26) or the passing on of traditions (Lk 1:2; Ac 6:14; Rm 6:17; 1Co 11:2,23; 15:3; 2Pt 2:21; Jd 3). It also describes the Father entrusting all things to the Son (Mt 11:27 = Lk 10:22) and the Son handing over all things to the Father (1Co 15:24), as well as Jesus being offered up by the Father (Rm 8:32) and giving His own life as a sacrifice (Jn 19:30; Gl 2:20; Eph 5:2,25). Negatively, paradidomi describes arrest and/or imprisonment (Mt 4:12; 10:19; 18:34; Ac 8:3; 22:4; 2Pt 2:4), Jesus being handed over to death by His enemies (Mt 26:2; 27:2,26; Ac 3:13), believers being persecuted (Mt 10:21; 24:9; Ac 21:11), people being turned over to Satan (1Co 5:5; 1Tm 1:20), and God delivering people over to their sin (Rm 1:24,26,28).

stauroo Greek Pronunciation [stow RAH oh]
HCSB Translation crucify Uses in Matthew 10 (Mk, 8; Lk, 6; Jn, 11) Uses in the NT 46
Focus Passage Matthew 27:31

Stauroo originally referred to building a fence by driving stakes into the ground. Stakes could easily be used as instruments of death, and impalement became an early form of execution. Through the Roman practice of crucifixion , stauroo eventually came to refer primarily to the common form of execution—tying or nailing someone to a cross and leaving them hanging until they died. The vast majority of the occurrences of stauroo refer to the manner of Jesus' death, though the NT mentions others who died by crucifixion (Mt 23:34; 27:38). Crucifixion was occasionally used as a metaphor for the Christian life (Mt 16:24; Gl 5:24; 6:14), an image emphasizing the believers' identification with Christ and His suffering and death. It thus became a subject of boasting among Christians (Gl 6:14), for their crucified Savior was also the risen Lord and Messiah (Ac 2:36; 4:10; 1Co 1:23; 2:2; 2Co 13:4).

matheteuo Greek Pronunciation [mah they TYOO oh]
HCSB Translation make disciples Uses in Matthew 3
Uses in the NT 4
Focus Passage Matthew 28:19

The verb matheteuo (to make disciples) is derived from the noun mathetes, which occurs over 250 times, entirely in the Gospels and Acts. Mathetes means disciple, pupil, one who learns from another, and typically indicates a person whose life is bound up with that of Jesus, his Master. Matheteuo means to become a disciple (Mt 27:57) or to be instructed (Mt 13:52). In another two occurrences it means to make disciples (Mt 28:19; Ac 14:21). In the Great Commission (Mt 28:18-20), the particular Greek construction (aorist participle followed by aorist imperative; this construction is relatively common in Matthew, Luke, and Acts) indicates that the primary weight of Jesus' command in the Great Commission is to make disciples, while the act of "going" is a necessary prerequisite to accomplishing this task.

Essays Differences in the Gospels Robert H. Stein Serious readers of the Gospels notice various differences between them. One difference involves geographical arrangement. In the Synoptic Gospels (Matthew, Mark, and Luke), Jesus visits Jerusalem only once during His entire ministry. For instance, all of the events in Mark 1:1-11:10 take place either in Galilee (1:1-8:21) or on the way to Jerusalem (8:22-11:10). Only from 11:11 forward is Jesus recorded as entering Jerusalem. The Gospel of John takes a different approach. John records Jesus visiting Jerusalem several times throughout His ministry (2:13-4:45; 5:1-47; 7:1-10:40; and 12:12-20:31), including an early temple cleansing (John 2:13-22). The Synoptics say nothing about an early temple cleansing, and John in turn says nothing about the later cleansing that the Synoptics recount (Mt 21:12-13; Mk 11:15-18; Lk 19:45-48). It seems the authors chose different ways of using geography as a tool for arranging their accounts of Jesus' life. Mark, whose Gospel likely predated and influenced Matthew and Luke, chose not to discuss any of Jesus' doings in Jerusalem until the climactic events beginning in 11:11. This literary approach builds a steady tension that finally explodes with Jesus' crucifixion in the sacred city. John, writing years after the Synoptics, took a different approach, sprinkling Jerusalem throughout his account.

Another literary consideration that helps account for differences among the Gospels is how the authors chose to group Jesus' teachings. Matthew is organized around alternating blocks of Stories of Jesus and Teachings of Jesus. Here is the arrangement: chapters 1-4 (S); 5-7 (T); 8-9 (S); 10 (T); 11-12 (S); 13 (T); 14-17 (S); 18 (T); 19-22 (S); 23-25 (T); 26-28 (S). Luke, on the other hand, places the teachings of Jesus in two large sections: 6:20-8:3; and 9:51-18:14. Different approaches such as this explain why the Gospel authors often place sayings of Jesus in different contexts, as for instance when Matthew records the Lord's Prayer early in Jesus' ministry (6:9-13) while Luke places it later (11:1-4). The Gospel writers arranged much of their material on topical and logical grounds rather than chronological. The earliest reference to any Gospel was made by Papias, a church father who in the first decade of the second century stated that Mark wrote accurately but not in chronological order the traditions he learned from Peter. Thus early readers noticed the differences between the Gospels, understood some of the basic causes of the differences, and did not regard them as problematic.

Another reason for differences involves the literary style of individual evangelists. In Matthew 8:5-13 and Luke 7:1-10 we have two accounts of Jesus healing a centurion's servant. In Luke the conversation takes place between Jesus and Jewish elders who speak on behalf of the centurion. In Matthew the conversation is directly between Jesus and the centurion. There is no conflict in these accounts when we realize that Matthew has abbreviated the story (103 words compared to 186 words in Luke). Matthew omitted material unessential to the story, and the elders (serving as go-betweens) are the least important element in the story. Thus, just as modern-day journalists report on meetings between heads of state without mentioning the go-betweens, Matthew makes no mention of the elders.

Furthermore, the evangelists understood themselves to be inspired interpreters, not mere stenographers of Jesus' acts and teachings. They felt free to clarify and add explanatory comments to the traditions they were recording. For example, whereas Matthew in 7:11 records Jesus as saying God the Father gives "good things" to those who ask, Luke has Jesus saying God gives "the Holy Spirit." In this case, Luke has done some interpretive extension: of all the good things God gives, the Holy Spirit is the best of them. Other examples of inspired editorial work include: The Baptism of Jesus

- In Matthew 3:17 the voice from heaven states, “This is My beloved Son.”
- In Mark 1:11 and Luke 3:22 the voice states, “You are My beloved Son.”
- Explanation: In Mark and Luke, God’s voice addresses Jesus. Matthew shifts the audience to the bystanders in order to make clear to his readers that God would have them know that Jesus is His Son. The overall meaning is unchanged.

The Beatitudes

- In Matthew 5:3 the first beatitude reads, “The poor in spirit are blessed . . .”
- Luke 6:20 has, “You who are poor are blessed . . .”
- Explanation: Matthew gives a “thought for thought” rather than “word for word” translation of the original. He adds “in spirit” to help his readers understand that in this context “poor” refers to spiritual humility. A similar usage of “poor” occurs in Psalm 86:1, where King David (who was financially wealthy) speaks of being “poor and needy.”

Hour of the Crucifixion

- In Mark 15:25 Jesus is crucified at "nine in the morning" (the third hour).
- In John 19:14 Jesus is crucified at "about six in the morning."
- Explanation: There are twenty-three time designations in the New Testament referring to a particular hour. Twenty of them refer to the third, sixth, or ninth hour. Only three designate other hours (the seventh, tenth, and eleventh). In an era when timekeeping was imprecise, a mid-morning crucifixion (occurring at, say, 10:30 a.m.) could very reasonably have been referred to as taking place at either the third or sixth hours since it fell between these times.

Peter's Denial of Christ

- Mark tells his readers of Peter's denial in Mk 14:53-54 and 14:66-72. Wedged between this two-part account is the story of Jesus' trial.
- Luke completes the entire account of Peter's denial before telling of Jesus' trial.
- Explanation: Rather than a chronological discrepancy, these are two different ways of telling two separate stories. Mark follows one of his favored stylistic techniques and "sandwiches" Jesus' trial between the two halves of the story of Peter's denial. Luke chooses to treat them separately.

We have avoided such terms as "discrepancy" and "contradiction" when discussing differences among the Gospels. When we seek to understand what the evangelists are doing as interpreters of Jesus' life, we often find that their different approaches help clarify and draw out implications from Jesus' acts and teachings. This often entails sharing the stories of Jesus' life in a topical or logical order, not chronological. In this light, alleged "discrepancies" and "contradictions" are seen as mere "differences."

CHURCH DISCIPLINE MARK DEVER

Jesus Christ founded and purchased the church with His blood (Ac 20:28), and He builds it upon acknowledgment and faith in Him as Messiah (Mt 16:18). This means the church belongs to Jesus and represents Him to the nations. In this light, the purity of the church is vital. Rightly practiced, church discipline helps ensure that purity.

Two Categories of Church Discipline Two categories of church discipline describe ways a church may teach its members right living and right beliefs.

- Formative Discipline: Formative discipline is a preventative measure. It includes the positive, direct teaching of biblical truth through sermons and Sunday school lessons. It also includes modeling godliness and mentoring new believers.
- Corrective Discipline: Corrective discipline is used when trouble arises. It can include contradicting, challenging, rebuking, and excommunicating a member for unrepentance or erroneous teachings.

Corrective discipline may seem controversial, but Jesus clearly taught that if a believer continues to sin despite the call to repentance, the church should treat him as if he were "an unbeliever and a tax collector" (Mt 18:17). This exclusion from church membership is generically called "church discipline." It is also called "excommunication" because those under discipline are not permitted to participate in Communion (the Lord's Supper).

Correcting Misconceptions about Church Discipline Excommunication is the final stage of church discipline. It is undertaken only if other corrective measures fail to bring the sinner to repentance. Though painful and traumatic, excommunication is not an unloving act. One of the obligations of love is to not leave someone in their sin. "Better an open reprimand than concealed love. The wounds of a friend are trustworthy, but the kisses of an enemy are excessive" (Pr 27:5-6).

Excommunication does not mean that the person should stop attending church. Except in rare cases, the congregation desires the disciplined sinner to continue attending and sitting under the preaching of God's Word. By this the sinner is confronted by Scripture and his life is observed by the faith community that has disciplined him.

Church discipline need not be permanent. One goal is the repentance of the sinner. Paul rebuked the Corinthian church for not readmitting into membership repentant members whom they had disciplined (2Co 2:6-7). Finally, church discipline is not an infallible assessment of the eternal state of the person disciplined. It is instead a fallible but serious warning about an evident lack of regeneration.

Why Church Discipline Is Important Church discipline presents to the world and believers a clarifying picture of what it means to follow Christ. It is important to make sinners aware of their sin (e.g., 1Co 5). By confronting persistent sin, the church may reveal hypocrites—both to themselves so that they might repent, and to the church so that the church might distinguish sheep from wolves (see Mt 7).

The practice of church discipline is also an important part of glorifying God, for the church is to reflect God's holy character in a fallen world (1Pt 1:14-16). God is both merciful and holy. To neglect either aspect of His character is to distort His image and lie about Him.

THE BIBLICAL BASIS FOR MISSIONS M. DAVID SILLS NOT ONLY IS THERE A BIBLICAL BASIS FOR MISSIONS, IT IS ACCURATE TO SEE A MISSIONARY PURPOSE FOR THE ENTIRE BIBLE. IF GOD HAD NOT REVEALED HIMSELF IN SCRIPTURE, WE WOULD ONLY KNOW THAT THERE IS A CREATOR GOD (PS 19; RM 1:18-20) AND THAT WE ARE SINNERS (RM 2:14-15). SUCH GENERAL REVELATION IS NOT SUFFICIENT TO LEAD US TO SAVING KNOWLEDGE OF GOD.

The Bible teaches that Jesus is the only answer to humanity's need for holiness and salvation (Jn 3:16; 14:6; Ac 4:12; 2Co 5:21). We are all sinners by birth and choice (Rm 3:23). Therefore, everyone must repent and be spiritually born again because sin separates us from God (Rm 3:2). People are not spiritually neutral until they hear the gospel and reject it; as sinners, they are already condemned and hopeless. Therefore, God gave us the Bible that we might know Him and make Him known. Making God known is what missions is all about.

The Bible teaches that God has a missionary heart. After their fall into sin, God came to Adam and Eve and announced the protoevangelion (first gospel), that One was coming to destroy the work of the evil one (Gn 3:15). When God later called Abram, He told him that He would bless all the families of the earth through him (Gn 12:3). Many of the Psalms also reveal God's desire that all nations know and glorify Him (Pss 67; 96). In Isaiah 49:6, God says that it is too small a thing for the Christ to raise up only the tribes of Israel; He would also make Him a light to the Gentiles. Simeon quoted this passage when he held the baby Jesus at the temple (Lk 2:29-32). The book of Jonah reveals God's missionary heartbeat, for God sent Jonah to pagan Nineveh. Jesus' disciples were surprised when some Greeks wanted to see Him, but He announced that He would draw all people to Himself (Jn 12:32). Throughout the Bible God led people from many nations to join with His people. We even see this on display in the lineage of Jesus, which includes Gentile ancestors (Mt 1:1-17; Lk 3:3-38).

We see God's missionary purpose and heartbeat in three key elements of the Gospels: the Great Commission, the Great Commandments, and the Great Compassion. In the Great Commission, Jesus charges His followers to make disciples of all nations by going to them, winning and baptizing them, and teaching them to obey all He has commanded (Mt 28:19-20). In Matthew 22:33-40, the Great Commandments teach us to love God and our neighbor. If we love God, we will obey His commands and strive to see the whole world worship Him. If we love our neighbor, we will want him to have eternal life. As we seek to imitate Jesus, the Great Compassion that characterized His life will shape ours also. Mark 6:34 shows that Jesus had compassion for the crowds who were like sheep without a shepherd. He said in Luke 19:10 that He came to seek and save those who were lost. Our compassion should lead us to go to them and preach the gospel, disciple believers, teach leaders, and plant New Testament churches among them.

The gospel is God's power to save all who believe (Rm 1:16; 10:13), and Christ calls every Christian to participate in global missions (Mt 28:19-20). While all who call on Jesus will be saved, Paul reasons that no one can call on Him if they do not believe, believe unless they hear, hear unless someone goes to preach, or go to preach unless they are sent. The Bible teaches that we all have a role in missions, either as “goers” or as “senders.” Neither is more biblical than the other and neither is possible without the other (Rm 10:13-15).

MARK

The Messiah's Herald

1 The beginning [a] of the gospel [b] of Jesus Christ, the Son of God. [c] 2 As it is written in Isaiah [d] the prophet: [e, f]

Look, I am sending My messenger [g] ahead of You, who will prepare Your way. [h]
3 A voice of one crying out in the wilderness: [i] Prepare the way for the Lord; [j] make His paths straight! [k, l]

4 John came baptizing [A, m] in the wilderness [n] and preaching a baptism of repentance [B, o] for the forgiveness [p] of sins. [q] 5 The whole Judean countryside and all the people of Jerusalem [r] were flocking to him, and they were baptized by him in the Jordan [s] River as they confessed [t] their sins. [u] 6 John wore a camel-hair garment with a leather belt around his waist and ate locusts [v] and wild honey. [w] 7 He was preaching: “Someone more powerful [x] than I will come after me. [y] I am not worthy [z] to stoop down and untie the strap of His sandals. [a] 8 I have baptized you with [C] water, [b] but He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit.” [c]

The Baptism of Jesus

9 In [d] those days Jesus came from Nazareth [e] in Galilee [f] and was baptized in the Jordan by John. 10 As soon as He came up out of the water, He saw the heavens [g] being torn open and the Spirit descending to Him like a dove. 11 And a voice [h] came from heaven: [i]

You are My beloved [j] Son; [k]
I take delight [l] in You! [D]

The Temptation of Jesus

12 Immediately [m] the Spirit [n] drove [o] Him into the wilderness. [p] 13 He was in the wilderness 40 days, being tempted [q] by Satan. [r] He was with the wild animals, [s] and the angels [t] began to serve Him.

Ministry in Galilee

14 After [u] John was arrested, [v] Jesus went to Galilee, [w] preaching [x] the good news [y, E], [z] of God: [F, a] 15 “The time [b] is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God [c] has come [d] near. [e] Repent [f] and believe [g] in the good news! ”

The First Disciples

16 As [h] He was passing along by the Sea of Galilee, [i] He saw Simon [j] and Andrew, [k] Simon's brother. They were casting a net into the sea, [l] since they were fishermen.

17 "Follow Me," [m] Jesus told them, "and I will make you fish for [n,] [o] people! " [p] 18 Immediately they left their nets and followed [q] Him. [r] 19 Going on a little farther, He saw James [s] the son of Zebedee [t] and his brother John. [u] They were in their boat mending their nets. 20 Immediately He called them, and they left their father Zebedee in the boat with the hired men and followed Him. [v]

Driving Out an Unclean Spirit

21 Then [w] they went into Capernaum, [x] and right away He entered the •synagogue [y] on the Sabbath [z] and began to teach. [a] 22 They were astonished [b] at His teaching [c] because, unlike the •scribes , [d] He was teaching them as one having authority.

23 Just then a man with an •unclean [e] spirit [f] was in their synagogue. [g] He cried out, [h] 24 "What do You have to do with us, [G] Jesus — Nazarene? [i] Have You come to destroy [j] us? I know who You are — the Holy [k] One of God! " [l]

25 But Jesus rebuked [m] him and said, "Be quiet, [n,] [o] and come out of him! " 26 And the unclean spirit convulsed him, [p] shouted with a loud voice, and came out of him.

27 Then they were all amazed, [q] so they began to argue [r] with one another, saying, "What is this? A new teaching [s] with authority! [t,] [u] He commands even the unclean [v] spirits, [w] and they obey Him." 28 News about Him then spread throughout the entire vicinity of Galilee. [x]

Healings at Capernaum

29 As [y] soon as they left the synagogue, [z] they went into Simon [a] and Andrew's [b] house [c] with James [d] and John. [e] 30 Simon's mother-in-law was lying in bed with a fever, and they told Him about her at once. 31 So He went to her, took her by the hand, and raised her up. [f] The fever [g] left her, [h] and she began to serve [i] them. [j]

32 When [k] evening came, after the sun had set, they began bringing to Him all those who were sick [l] and those who were demon-possessed. [m] 33 The whole town was assembled at the door, 34 and He healed [n] many who were sick with various diseases [o] and drove out [p] many demons. [q] But He would not permit the demons to speak, because they knew Him. [r]

Preaching in Galilee

35 Very [s] early in the morning, while it was still dark, He got up, went out, and made His way to a deserted place. [t] And He was praying [u] there. 36 Simon [v] and his companions went searching for Him. 37 They found Him and said, “Everyone’s looking for You! ”

38 And He said to them, “Let’s go on to the neighboring villages so that I may preach [w] there too. This is why I have come.” 39 So He went into all of Galilee, [x] preaching in their synagogues [y] and driving out demons.

A Man Cleansed

40 Then [z] a man with a serious skin disease [a] came to Him and, on his knees, [b, c] begged Him: “If You are willing, You can make me •clean .” [d]

41 Moved with compassion, [e] Jesus reached out His hand and touched [f] him. “I am willing,” He told him. “Be made clean.” 42 Immediately the disease [g] left him, and he was healed. [H] 43 Then He sternly warned [h] him and sent him away [i] at once, 44 telling him, “See that you say nothing to anyone; [j] but go and show [k] yourself to the priest, [l] and offer [m] what Moses prescribed for your cleansing, [n] as a testimony [o] to them.” 45 Yet he went out and began to proclaim [p] it widely and to spread the news, [q] with the result that Jesus could no longer enter a town openly. But He was out in deserted places, and they would come to Him from everywhere.

The Son of Man Forgives and Heals

2 When [a] He entered Capernaum [b] again after some days, it was reported that He was at home. 2 So many people gathered together that there was no more room, not even in the doorway, and He was speaking the message [c] to them. 3 Then they came to Him bringing a paralytic, [d] carried by four men. 4 Since they were not able to bring him to [e] Jesus because of the crowd, they removed the roof above where He was. And when they had broken through, they lowered the mat on which the paralytic was lying.
5 Seeing their faith, [f] Jesus told the paralytic, “Son, your sins [g] are forgiven.”
[h]
6 But some of the •scribes [i] were sitting there, thinking [j] to themselves: [A] 7 “Why does He speak like this? He’s blaspheming! [k] Who can forgive [l] sins [m] but God alone? ” [n]
8 Right away [o] Jesus understood in His spirit [p] that they were thinking like this within themselves and said to them, “Why are you thinking these things in your hearts? [q] 9 Which is easier: [r] to say to the paralytic, [s] ‘Your sins are forgiven,’ or to say, ‘Get up, pick up your mat, and walk’? [t] 10 But so you may know that the •Son of Man [u] has authority [v] on earth to forgive sins,” [w] He told the paralytic, 11 “I tell you: get up, [x] pick up your mat, and go home.” 12 Immediately he got up, picked up the mat, and went out in front of everyone. As a result, they were all astounded [y] and gave glory [z] to God, [a] saying, “We have never seen anything like this! ” [b]

The Call of Matthew

13 Then [c] Jesus went out again beside the sea. The whole crowd was coming to Him, and He taught [d] them. 14 Then, moving on, He saw Levi [e] the son of Alphaeus sitting at the tax office, [f] and He said to him, “Follow Me! ” [g] So he got up and followed [h] Him.

Dining with Sinners

15 While He was reclining at the table in Levi's house, many tax collectors [i] and sinners [j] were also guests [B, k] with Jesus and His disciples, because there were many who were following Him. 16 When the scribes [l] of the •Pharisees [m, n] saw that He was eating [o] with sinners [p] and tax collectors, [q] they asked His disciples, "Why does He eat [r] with tax collectors and sinners? "

17 When Jesus heard this, He told them, "Those who are well don't need [s] a doctor, [t] but the sick [u] do need one. I didn't come to call the righteous, [v] but sinners." [w]

A Question about Fasting

18 Now [x] John's [y] disciples [z] and the Pharisees [a, b] were fasting. [c] People came and asked Him, "Why do John's disciples and the Pharisees' disciples fast, but Your disciples do not fast? "

19 Jesus said to them, "The wedding guests [d] cannot fast while the groom [e] is with them, can they? As long as they have the groom with them, they cannot fast. 20 But the time [f] will come [g] when the groom is taken away from them, [h] and then they will fast [i] in that day. 21 No one sews a patch of unshrunk cloth on an old garment. Otherwise, the new patch pulls away from the old cloth, [j] and a worse tear is made. 22 And no one puts new wine [k] into old wineskins. Otherwise, the wine will burst [l] the skins, and the wine is lost as well as the skins. [m] But new wine is for fresh wineskins."

Lord of the Sabbath

23 On [n] the Sabbath He was going through the grainfields, and His disciples [o] began to make their way picking some heads of grain. 24 The Pharisees [p] said to Him, “Look, why are they doing what is not lawful [q] on the Sabbath? ”

25 He said to them, “Have you never read what David [r] and those who were with him did when he was in need [s] and hungry [t] — 26 how he entered the house of God in the time of Abiathar [u] the high priest [v] and ate the •sacred bread [w] — which is not lawful for anyone to eat except the priests [x] — and also gave some to his companions? ” 27 Then He told them, “The Sabbath was made for [y] man and not man for [z] the Sabbath. [a] 28 Therefore, the Son of Man [b] is Lord [c] even of the Sabbath.” [d]

The Man with the Paralyzed Hand

3 Now [a] He entered the •synagogue [b] again, and a man was there who had a paralyzed [c] hand. 2 In order to accuse [d] Him, they were watching Him closely [e] to see whether He would heal [f] him on the Sabbath. [g] 3 He told the man with the paralyzed hand, “Stand before us.” [h] 4 Then He said to them, “Is it lawful [i] on the Sabbath to do what is good [j] or to do what is evil, [k] to save life [l] or to kill? ” [m] But they were silent. [n] 5 After looking around at them with anger [o] and sorrow at the hardness [p] of their hearts, He told the man, “Stretch out your hand.” So he stretched it out, and his hand was restored. [q] 6 Immediately the •Pharisees [r] went out and started plotting [s] with the •Herodians [t] against Him, how they might destroy [u] Him.

Ministering to the Multitude

7 Jesus [v] departed with His disciples to the sea, and a large crowd followed from Galilee, [w] Judea, [x] 8 Jerusalem, [y] Idumea, beyond the Jordan, [z] and around Tyre [a] and Sidon. [b] The large crowd came to Him because they heard about everything He was doing. 9 Then He told His disciples to have a small boat [c] ready for Him, so the crowd would not crush Him. 10 Since He had healed [d] many, all who had diseases were pressing toward Him to touch [e] Him. 11
Whenever the •unclean [f] spirits [g] saw Him, those possessed fell down [h] before Him and cried out, “You are the Son of God! ” [i] 12 And He would strongly warn [j] them not to make Him known. [k]

The 12 Apostles

13 Then [l] He went up the mountain [m] and summoned those He wanted, and they came to Him. 14 He also appointed 12 — He also named them apostles [n, o]
— to be with Him, to send them out to preach, [p] 15 and to have authority to [q] drive out demons.

16 He appointed the Twelve: [r, s]

To Simon, [t] He gave the name Peter; [u] 17 and to James [v] the son of Zebedee, [w] and to his brother John, [x]
He gave the name “Boanerges”
(that is, “Sons of Thunder” [y]);
18 Andrew; [z]
Philip [a] and Bartholomew;
Matthew [b] and Thomas; [c]
James the son of Alphaeus, and Thaddaeus;
Simon the Zealot, [A] 19 and Judas Iscariot, [B, d]
who also betrayed Him.

A House Divided

20 Then He went home, and the crowd gathered again so that they were not even able to eat. C 21 When His family [e] heard this, they set out to restrain Him, because they said, “He’s out of His mind.” [f]

22 The •scribes [g] who had come down from Jerusalem said, “He has •Beelzebul [h] in Him! ” and, “He drives out [i] demons [j] by the ruler [k] of the demons! ” [l]

23 So He summoned [m] them and spoke to them in parables: [n] “How can Satan [o] drive out Satan? [p] 24 If a kingdom [q] is divided against itself, that kingdom cannot stand. 25 If a house is divided against itself, that house cannot stand. 26 And if Satan rebels against himself and is divided, he cannot stand but is finished! [r]

27 “On the other hand, no one can enter a strong man’s house and rob his possessions unless he first ties up [s] the strong man. Then he will rob his house.
28 •I assure you: People will be forgiven for all sins [t] and whatever blasphemies [u] they may blaspheme. 29 But whoever blasphemes [v] against the Holy Spirit never has forgiveness, [w] but is •guilty [x] of an eternal sin” [y, z] — 30 because they were saying, “He has an unclean spirit.” [a]

True Relationships

31 Then [b] His mother [c] and His brothers [d] came, and standing outside, they sent word to Him and called Him. 32 A crowd was sitting around Him and told Him, “Look, Your mother, Your brothers, [e] and Your sisters [f] are outside asking for You.”

33 He replied to them, “Who are My mother and My brothers? ” 34 And looking about at those who were sitting in a circle around Him, He said, “Here are My mother and My brothers! [g] 35 Whoever does the will of God [h] is My brother and sister and mother.”

The Parable of the Sower

4 Again [a] He began to teach [b] by the sea, and a very large crowd gathered around Him. So He got into a boat on the sea and sat down, while the whole crowd was on the shore facing the sea. 2 He taught them many things in parables, [c] and in His teaching [d] He said to them: 3 “Listen! Consider the sower who went out to sow. [e] 4 As he sowed, this occurred: Some seed fell along the path, [f] and the birds came and ate [g] it up. 5 Other seed fell on rocky ground where it didn’t have much soil, and it sprang up right away, [h] since it didn’t have deep soil. 6 When the sun came up, it was scorched, and since it didn’t have a root, it withered. [i] 7 Other seed fell among thorns, and the thorns came up and choked it, and it didn’t produce a crop. 8 Still others fell on good ground and produced a crop that increased [j] 30, 60, and 100 times what was sown.” [k] 9 Then He said, “Anyone who has ears to hear should listen! ” [l]

Why Jesus Used Parables

10 When He was alone with the Twelve, [m] those who were around Him asked Him about the parables. [n] 11 He answered them, “The •secret [o] of the kingdom of God [p] has been given to you, but to those outside, [q] everything comes in parables 12 so that they may look and look,

yet not perceive;
they may listen and listen,
yet not understand; [r]
otherwise, they might turn back — and be forgiven.” [s, t, u]

The Parable of the Sower Explained

13 Then [v] He said to them: “Don’t you understand this parable? [w] How then will you understand any of the parables? 14 The sower sows [x] the word. [y] 15 These [z] are the ones along the path [a] where the word is sown: when they hear, immediately Satan [b] comes and takes away the word [c] sown in them. [d] 16 And these are [e] the ones sown on rocky ground: when they hear the word, immediately they receive it with joy. [f] 17 But they have no root in themselves;
they are short-lived. When pressure [g] or persecution comes because of the word, they immediately •stumble . [h] 18 Others are sown among thorns; these are the ones who hear the word, 19 but the worries [i] of this age, [j] the seduction [k, l] of wealth, [m] and the desires [n] for other things enter in and choke the word, and it becomes unfruitful. [o] 20 But the ones sown on good ground are those who hear the word, [p] welcome it, and produce a crop: [q] 30, 60, and 100 times what was sown.”

Using Your Light

21 He [r] also said to them, “Is a lamp brought in to be put under a basket or under a bed? [s] Isn’t it to be put on a lampstand? [t] 22 For nothing is concealed except to be revealed, [u] and nothing hidden except to come to light. 23 If anyone has ears to hear, he should listen! ” [v] 24 Then He said to them, “Pay attention to what you hear. By the measure [w] you use, [x, y] it will be measured and added [z] to you. 25 For to the one who has, it will be given, and from the one who does not have, even what he has will be taken away.” [a]

The Parable of the Growing Seed

26 “The kingdom of God [b] is like this,” He said. “A man scatters seed on the ground; 27 he sleeps [c] and rises [d] — night [e] and day, and the seed sprouts and grows — he doesn’t know how. 28 The soil produces a crop [f] by itself — first the blade, then the head, and then the ripe grain [g] on the head. 29 But as soon as the crop is ready, he sends for the sickle, [h] because the harvest [i] has come.”

The Parable of the Mustard Seed

30 And [j] He said: “How can we illustrate the kingdom of God, [k] or what parable [l] can we use to describe it? 31 It’s like a mustard seed [m] that, when sown in the soil, is smaller than all the seeds on the ground. 32 And when sown, [n] it comes up and grows taller than all the vegetables, [o] and produces large branches, so that the birds of the sky [p] can nest in its shade.”

Using Parables

33 He would speak the word [q] to them with many parables [r] like these, as they were able to understand. [s] 34 And He did not speak to them without a parable. Privately, however, He would explain everything to His own disciples. [t]

Wind and Wave Obey the Master

35 On [u] that day, when evening had come, He told them, “Let’s cross over to the other side of the sea.” 36 So they left the crowd and took Him along since He was already in the boat. And other boats were with Him. 37 A fierce windstorm [v] arose, and the waves [w] were breaking over the boat, so that the boat was already being swamped. 38 But He was in the stern, sleeping [x] on the cushion. So they woke Him up [y] and said to Him, “Teacher! Don’t you care that we’re going to die? ” [z]

39 He got up, rebuked [a] the wind, and said to the sea, “Silence! [b] Be still! ” The wind ceased, and there was a great calm. 40 Then He said to them, “Why are you fearful? [c] Do you still have no faith? ”

41 And they were terrified [d] and asked one another, “Who then is this? Even the wind and the sea obey [e] Him! ” [f]

Demons Driven Out by the Master

5 Then [a] they came to the other side of the sea, to the region of the Gerasenes.
[b] 2 As soon as He got out of the boat, a man with an •unclean [c] spirit [d] came out of the tombs [e] and met Him. 3 He lived in the tombs. [f] No one was able to restrain him anymore — even with chains [g] — 4 because he often had been bound with shackles and chains, but had snapped off the chains and smashed [h] the shackles. No one was strong enough to subdue [i] him. 5 And always, night [j] and day, he was crying out among the tombs [k] and in the mountains [l] and cutting himself with stones.

6 When he saw Jesus from a distance, he ran and knelt down before Him. 7 And he cried out with a loud voice, "What do You have to do with me, [A] Jesus, Son [m] of the Most High God? [n] I beg [B] You before God, don't torment [o] me! " 8 For He had told him, "Come out of the man, you unclean [p] spirit! " [q]

9 "What is your name? " He asked him.

"My name is Legion," [r, s] he answered Him, "because we are many." 10 And he kept begging Him not to send them out of the region.

11 Now a large herd of pigs [t] was there, feeding [u] on the hillside. 12 The demons [v] begged Him, "Send us to the pigs, so we may enter them." 13 And He gave them permission. Then the unclean [w] spirits [x] came out and entered the pigs, and the herd of about 2,000 rushed down the steep bank into the sea and drowned there. 14 The men who tended them [y] ran off [z] and reported it in the town and the countryside, and people went to see what had happened. 15 They came to Jesus and saw the man who had been demon-possessed [a] by the legion, [b] sitting there, dressed and in his right mind; [c] and they were afraid. [d] 16 The eyewitnesses described to them what had happened to the demon-possessed [e] man and told about the pigs. 17 Then they began to beg Him to leave their region.

18 As He was getting into the boat, the man who had been demon-possessed kept begging Him to be with Him. 19 But He would not let him; instead, He told him, "Go back home to your own people, and report to them how much the Lord [f] has done [g] for you and how He has had mercy on you." 20 So he went out and began to proclaim [h] in the •Decapolis [i] how much Jesus had done for him, and they were all amazed. [j]

A Girl Restored and a Woman Healed 21 When [k] Jesus had crossed over again by boat to the other side, a large crowd [l] gathered around Him while He was by the sea. 22 One of the •synagogue leaders, named Jairus, [m] came, and when he saw Jesus, he fell at His feet [n] 23 and kept begging Him, "My little daughter is at death's door. [C] Come and lay Your hands on [o] her so she can get well [p] and live."

24 So Jesus went with him, and a large crowd was following and pressing against Him. 25 A woman suffering from bleeding [q] for 12 years 26 had endured [r] much under many doctors. [s] She had spent everything she had and was not helped at all. On the contrary, she became worse. 27 Having heard about Jesus, she came behind Him in the crowd and touched [t] His robe. [u] 28 For she said, "If I can just touch His robes, I'll be made well! " [v] 29 Instantly her flow of blood ceased, and she sensed in her body that she was cured [w] of her affliction.

30 At once Jesus realized in Himself that power [x] had gone out from Him. He turned around in the crowd [y] and said, "Who touched My robes? " [z]

31 His disciples said to Him, "You see the crowd pressing against You, and You say, 'Who touched Me? ' "

32 So He was looking around to see who had done this. 33 Then the woman, knowing what had happened to her, came with fear and trembling, fell down [a] before Him, and told Him the whole truth. [b] 34 "Daughter," He said to her, "your faith [c] has made you well. [d, e] Go in peace and be free [f, g] from your affliction." [h]

35 While He was still speaking, people came from the synagogue leader's house and said, "Your daughter is dead. Why bother the Teacher [i] anymore? "

36 But when Jesus overheard what was said, He told the synagogue leader, "Don't be afraid. [j] Only believe." 37 He did not let anyone accompany Him except Peter, [k] James, [l] and John, [m] James's brother. 38 They came to the leader's house, and He saw a commotion — people weeping and wailing loudly. 39 He went in and said to them, "Why are you making a commotion and weeping? [n] The child [o] is not dead but asleep." [p]

40 They started laughing at Him, but He put them all outside. He took the child's father, [q] mother, and those who were with Him, and entered the place where the child was. 41 Then He took the child [r] by the hand and said to her, "Talitha koum!" [s] (which is translated, "Little girl, I say to you, get up! " [t]). 42 Immediately the girl got up [u] and began to walk. [v] (She was 12 years old.) At this they were utterly astounded. [w] 43 Then He gave them strict orders that no one should know about this [x] and said that she should be given something to eat.

Rejection at Nazareth

6 He [a] went away from there and came to His hometown, [b] and His disciples [c] followed Him. [2] When the Sabbath [d] came, He began to teach [e] in the •synagogue , [f] and many who heard Him were astonished. “Where did this man get these things? ” they said. “What is this wisdom [g] given to Him, and how are these miracles [h] performed by His hands? [3] Isn’t this the carpenter, [i] the son of Mary, [j] and the brother of James, [k] Joses, Judas, [l] and Simon? And aren’t His sisters here with us? ” So they were •offended [m] by Him.

[4] Then Jesus said to them, “A prophet [n] is not without honor [o] except in his hometown, among his relatives, and in his household.” [5] So He was not able to do any miracles [A, p] there, except that He laid His hands on [q] a few sick [r] people and healed [s] them. [6] And He was amazed [t] at their unbelief. [u]

Commissioning the Twelve

Now He was going around the villages in a circuit, teaching. [v] 7 He [w] summoned [x] the Twelve [y] and began to send [z] them out in pairs and gave them authority over •unclean [a] spirits. [b] 8 He instructed them to take nothing for the road except a walking stick: no bread, no traveling bag, [c] no money in their belts. 9 They were to wear sandals, but not put on an extra shirt. [d] 10 Then He said to them, “Whenever you enter a house, stay there until you leave that place. 11 If any place does not welcome [e] you and people refuse to listen to you, when you leave there, shake the dust off your feet [f] as a testimony [g] against them.” [h]

12 So they went out and preached [i] that people should repent. [j] 13 And they were driving out many demons, [k] anointing [l] many sick [m] people with olive oil, [n] and healing them. [o]

John the Baptist Beheaded

14 King [p] •Herod [q] heard of this, because Jesus' name [r] had become well known. Some [s] said, "John the Baptist [t] has been raised from the dead, [u] and that's why supernatural powers [v] are at work [w] in him." 15 But others said, "He's Elijah." [x] Still others said, "He's a prophet [B] — like one of the prophets." [y]

16 When Herod [z] heard of it, he said, "John, [a] the one I beheaded, has been raised! " [b] 17 For [c] Herod himself had given orders to arrest John and to chain [d] him in prison on account of Herodias, [e] his brother Philip's wife, whom he had married. [f] 18 John had been telling Herod, "It is not lawful [g] for you to have your brother's wife! " [h] 19 So Herodias held a grudge against him and wanted to kill [i] him. But she could not, 20 because Herod was in awe [j] of [C] John and was protecting him, knowing he was a righteous [k] and holy [l] man. When Herod heard him he would be very disturbed, [m, n] yet would hear him gladly. [o]

21 Now an opportune time came on his birthday, when Herod gave a banquet [p] for his nobles, [q] military commanders, [r] and the leading men of Galilee. [s] 22 When Herodias's own daughter [t] came in and danced, [u] she pleased Herod and his guests. The king said to the girl, "Ask me whatever you want, and I'll give it to you." 23 So he swore [v] oaths [w] to her: "Whatever you ask me I will give you, up to half my kingdom." [x]

24 Then she went out and said to her mother, "What should I ask for? "

"John the Baptist's [y] head! " she said.

25 Immediately she hurried to the king and said, "I want you to give me John the Baptist's [z] head on a platter [a] — right now! "

26 Though the king was deeply distressed, [b] because of his oaths [c] and the guests [D] he did not want to refuse [d] her. 27 The king immediately sent for an executioner and commanded him to bring John's head. So he went and beheaded him in prison, 28 brought his head on a platter, and gave it to the girl. Then the girl gave it to her mother. 29 When his disciples [e, f] heard about it, they came and removed his corpse and placed it in a tomb. [g]

Feeding 5,000

30 The [h] apostles [i] gathered around Jesus and reported to Him all that they had done and taught. 31 He said to them, "Come away by yourselves to a remote place and rest a while." For many people were coming and going, and they did not even have time to eat. 32 So they went away in the boat by themselves to a remote place, 33 but many saw them leaving and recognized them. People ran there by land from all the towns and arrived ahead of them. [j] 34 So as He stepped ashore, He saw a huge crowd and had compassion [k] on them, because they were like sheep [l] without a shepherd. Then He began to teach them many things.

35 When it was already late, His disciples [m] approached Him and said, “This place is a wilderness, [n] and it is already late! 36 Send them away, so they can go into the surrounding countryside and villages to buy themselves something to eat.”

37 “You give them something to eat,” He responded.

They said to Him, “Should we go and buy 200 •denarii [o] worth of bread and give them something to eat? ”

38 And He asked them, “How many loaves do you have? Go look.”

When they found out they said, “Five, and two fish.”

39 Then He instructed them to have all the people sit down [E] in groups on the green grass. 40 So they sat down in ranks of hundreds and fifties. 41 Then He took the five loaves and the two fish, and looking up to heaven, He blessed and broke the loaves. He kept giving them to His disciples to set before the people. He also divided the two fish among them all. 42 Everyone ate and was filled. [p] 43 Then they picked up 12 baskets full of pieces of bread and fish. 44 Now those who ate the loaves were 5,000 men.

Walking on the Water

45 Immediately [q] He made His disciples get into the boat and go ahead of Him to the other side, to Bethsaida, [r] while He dismissed the crowd. 46 After He said good-bye to them, He went away to the mountain [s] to pray. [t] 47 When evening came, the boat was in the middle of the sea, and He was alone on the land. 48 He saw them being battered [u] as they rowed, [F] because the wind was against them.
Around three in the morning [G] He came toward them walking on the sea and wanted to pass by them. 49 When they saw Him walking on the sea, they thought it was a ghost [v] and cried out; 50 for they all saw Him and were terrified. [w] Immediately He spoke with them and said, “Have courage! [x] It is I. [y] Don’t be afraid.” [z] 51 Then He got into the boat with them, and the wind ceased.
They were completely astounded, [H] 52 because they had not understood about the loaves. Instead, their hearts were hardened. [a]

Miraculous Healings

53 When they had crossed over, they came to land at Gennesaret [b] and beached the boat. 54 As they got out of the boat, people immediately recognized Him. 55 They hurried throughout that vicinity and began to carry the sick [c] on mats to wherever they heard He was. 56 Wherever He would go, into villages, towns, or the country, they laid the sick in the marketplaces and begged Him that they might touch just the •tassel [d] of His robe. [e] And everyone who touched it was made well.

The Traditions of the Elders

7 The [a] •Pharisees [b] and some of the •scribes [c] who had come from Jerusalem [d] gathered around Him. 2 They observed that some of His disciples were eating their bread with •unclean [e] — that is, unwashed — hands.
3 (For the Pharisees, in fact all the Jews, will not eat unless they wash their hands ritually, keeping the tradition of the elders. 4 When they come from the marketplace, [f] they do not eat unless they have washed. [g] And there are many other customs they have received and keep, like the washing of cups, jugs, copper utensils, and dining couches. [h, i]) 5 Then the Pharisees [j] and the scribes [k] asked Him, "Why don't Your disciples live according to the tradition of the elders, [l] instead of eating bread with ritually unclean [m] hands? "

6 He answered them, "Isaiah [n] prophesied [o] correctly about you hypocrites, [p] as it is written: [q]

These people honor [r] Me with their lips,
but their heart is far from Me.
7 They worship Me in vain,
teaching [s] as doctrines [t] the commands [u] of men. [v, w]

8 Disregarding the command of God, you keep the tradition of men." [x] 9 He also said to them, "You completely invalidate God's command in order to maintain [y] your tradition! 10 For Moses [z] said:

Honor your father and your mother; [a, b] and Whoever speaks evil of father or mother must be put to death. [c, d]

11 But you say, 'If a man tells his father or mother: Whatever benefit [e] you might have received from me is Corban' " (that is, a gift [f] committed to the temple), 12 "you no longer let him do anything for his father or mother. 13 You revoke God's word [g] by your tradition that you have handed [h] down. And you do many other similar things." 14 Summoning [i] the crowd again, He told them, "Listen to Me, all of you, and understand: [j] 15 Nothing that goes into a person from outside can defile him, but the things that come out of a person are what defile him. [16 If anyone has ears to hear, he should listen!]" [k]

17 When He went into the house away from the crowd, the disciples asked Him about the parable. 18 And He said to them, "Are you also as lacking in understanding? Don't you realize that nothing going into a man from the outside can defile him? 19 For it doesn't go into his heart but into the stomach [l] and is eliminated.” [m] (As a result, He made all foods •clean . [n, o]) [20] Then He said, “What comes out of a person — that defiles him. [21] For from within, out of people’s hearts, come evil thoughts, sexual immoralities, [p] thefts, murders, [q] [22] adulteries, [r] greed, [s] evil actions, deceit, [t] promiscuity, [u] stinginess, [v] blasphemy, [w] pride, [x] and foolishness. [y] [23] All these evil things come from within and defile a person.”

A Gentile Mother’s Faith

[24] He got up and departed from [z] there to the region of Tyre [a] and Sidon. [b, c] He entered a house and did not want anyone to know it, but He could not escape notice. [25] Instead, immediately after hearing about Him, a woman whose little daughter had an unclean spirit [d] came and fell at His feet. [e] [26] Now the woman was Greek, [f] a Syrophoenician by birth, and she kept asking Him to drive the demon [g] out of her daughter. [27] He said to her, “Allow the children to be satisfied first, because it isn’t right to take the children’s bread and throw it to the dogs.” [h]

[28] But she replied to Him, “Lord, [i] even the dogs under the table eat the children’s crumbs.”

[29] Then He told her, “Because of this reply, you may go. The demon has gone out of your daughter.” [30] When she went back to her home, she found her child lying on the bed, and the demon was gone.

Jesus Does Everything Well

31 Again, leaving the region of Tyre, [j] He went by way of Sidon to the Sea of Galilee, [k] through [A] the region of the •Decapolis . [l] 32 They brought to Him a deaf [m] man who also had a speech difficulty, [n] and begged Jesus to lay His hand on [o] him. 33 So He took him away from the crowd privately. After putting His fingers in the man's ears and spitting, [p] He touched his tongue. 34 Then, looking up to heaven, [q] He sighed deeply and said to him, "Ephphatha!" [r] (that is, "Be opened! "). 35 Immediately his ears were opened, [s] his speech difficulty was removed, [B] and he began to speak clearly. [t] 36 Then He ordered them to tell no one, [u] but the more He would order them, the more they would proclaim [v] it.

37 They were extremely astonished and said, "He has done everything well! [w]
He even makes deaf [x] people hear, and people unable to speak, [y] talk! "

Feeding 4,000

8 In [a] those days there was again a large crowd, and they had nothing to eat.
He summoned [b] the disciples [c] and said to them, 2 “I have compassion [d] on the crowd, because they’ve already stayed with Me three days and have nothing to eat. 3 If I send them home hungry, [e] they will collapse on the way, [f] and some of them have come a long distance.”

4 His disciples answered Him, “Where can anyone get enough bread here in this desolate place to fill [g] these people? ”

5 “How many loaves do you have? ” He asked them.

“Seven,” they said. 6 Then He commanded the crowd to sit down on the ground. Taking the seven loaves, He gave thanks, broke [h] the loaves, and kept on giving them to His disciples to set before the people. So they served the loaves to the crowd. 7 They also had a few small fish, and when He had blessed them, He said these were to be served as well. 8 They ate and were filled. Then they collected seven large baskets of leftover pieces. 9 About 4,000 men were there. He dismissed them 10 and immediately got into the boat with His disciples and went to the district of Dalmanutha. [i]

The Yeast of the Pharisees and Herod 11 The [j] •Pharisees [k] came out and began to argue with Him, demanding of Him a sign [l] from heaven [m] to test [n]
Him. 12 But sighing deeply in His spirit, [o] He said, “Why does this generation [p] demand a sign? •I assure you: [q] No sign will be given to this generation! ” 13
Then He left them, got on board the boat again, and went to the other side.

14 They had forgotten to take bread and had only one loaf with them in the boat. 15 Then [r] He commanded them: “Watch out! Beware of the yeast [s] of the Pharisees and the yeast of •Herod .” [t]

16 They were discussing among themselves that they did not have any bread.
17 Aware of this, He said to them, “Why are you discussing that you do not have any bread? Don’t you understand or comprehend? Is your heart hardened? [u] 18 Do you have eyes, and not see, and do you have ears, and not hear? [v, w]
And do you not remember? [x] 19 When I broke the five loaves for the 5,000, how many baskets full of pieces of bread did you collect? ”

“Twelve,” they told Him.

20 “When I broke the seven loaves for the 4,000, how many large baskets full of pieces of bread did you collect? ”

“Seven,” they said.

21 And He said to them, “Don’t you understand yet? ” [y]

Healing a Blind Man

22 Then they came to Bethsaida. [z] They brought a blind [a] man to Him and begged Him to touch him. 23 He took the blind man by the hand and brought him out of the village. Spitting [b] on his eyes and laying His hands on [c] him, He asked him, “Do you see anything? ”

24 He looked up and said, “I see people — they look to me like trees walking.” [d]

25 Again Jesus placed His hands on the man’s eyes, and he saw distinctly. He was cured and could see everything clearly. 26 Then He sent [e] him home, saying, “Don’t even go into the village.” [f, g]

Peter’s Confession of the Messiah 27 Jesus [h] went out with His disciples to the villages of Caesarea Philippi. And on the road He asked His disciples, “Who do people say that I am? ”

28 They answered Him, “John the Baptist; [i] others, Elijah; still others, one of the prophets.” [j]

29 “But you,” He asked them again, “who do you say that I am? ”

Peter [k] answered Him, “You are the •Messiah ! ” [l]

30 And He strictly warned [m] them to tell no one about Him.

His Death and Resurrection Predicted 31 Then [n] He began to teach them that the •Son of Man [o] must suffer many things and be rejected [p] by the elders, [q] the •chief priests, and the •scribes , [r] be killed, and rise [s] after three days. [t] 32 He was openly talking about this. So Peter took Him aside and began to rebuke Him.

33 But turning around and looking at His disciples, He rebuked Peter and said, “Get behind Me, Satan, [u] because you’re not thinking about God’s concerns, [v] but man’s! ”

Take Up Your Cross

34 Summoning the crowd along with His disciples, He said to them, “If anyone wants to be My follower, he must deny himself, [w] take up his cross, [x] and follow Me. [y] 35 For whoever wants to save [z] his •life will lose it, [a] but whoever loses [b] his life [c] because of Me [d] and the gospel [e] will save it. [f] 36 For what does it benefit [g] a man to gain [h] the whole world [i] yet lose [j] his life? [k] 37 What can a man give in exchange for his life? [l] 38 For whoever is ashamed [m] of Me and of My words [n] in this adulterous and sinful [o] generation, [p] the Son of Man will also be ashamed of him when He comes in the glory [q] of His Father [r] with the holy [s] angels.” [t]

9 Then He said to them, "•I assure you: [a] There are some standing here who will not taste death [b] until they see the kingdom of God come in power." [c]

The Transfiguration

2 After [d] six days [e] Jesus took Peter, James, and John [f] and led them up on a high mountain [g] by themselves to be alone. He was transformed [A, h] in front of them, 3 and His clothes [i] became dazzling — extremely white [j] as no launderer on earth could whiten [k] them. 4 Elijah [l] appeared to them with Moses, [m] and they were talking with Jesus.

5 Then Peter said to Jesus, "•Rabbi , [n] it's good [o] for us to be here! Let us make three •tabernacles : [p] one for You, one for Moses, and one for Elijah" — 6 because he did not know what he should say, [q] since they were terrified. [r]

7 A cloud [s] appeared, overshadowing [t] them, and a voice [u] came from the cloud: [v]

> This is My beloved [w] Son; [x] > listen to Him! [y]

8 Then suddenly, looking around, they no longer saw anyone with them except Jesus alone.

9 As [z] they were coming down from the mountain, [a] He ordered them to tell no one what they had seen [b] until the •Son of Man [c] had risen [d] from the dead. [e] 10 They kept this word [f] to themselves, discussing what "rising from the dead" meant.

11 Then they began to question Him, "Why do the •scribes [g] say that Elijah must come first? " [h]

12 "Elijah does come first and restores [i] everything," [j] He replied. "How then is it written [k] about the Son of Man that He must suffer [l] many things and be treated with contempt? [m] 13 But I tell you that Elijah really has come, and they did whatever they pleased to him, just as it is written [n] about him."

The Power of Faith over a Demon

14 When [o] they came to the disciples, they saw a large crowd around them and scribes disputing [p] with them. 15 All of a sudden, when the whole crowd saw Him, they were amazed [B] and ran to greet Him. 16 Then He asked them, "What are you arguing with them about? "

17 Out of the crowd, one man answered Him, "Teacher, [q] I brought my son to You. He has a spirit [r] that makes him unable to speak. [s] 18 Wherever it seizes him, it throws him down, and he foams at the mouth, grinds his teeth, and becomes rigid. So I asked Your disciples to drive it out, but they couldn't."

19 He replied to them, “You unbelieving [t] generation! How long will I be with you? How long must I put up with you? Bring him to Me.” 20 So they brought him to Him. When the spirit saw Him, it immediately convulsed the boy. He fell to the ground and rolled around, foaming at the mouth. 21 “How long has this been happening to him? ” Jesus asked his father.

“From childhood,” he said. 22 “And many times it has thrown him into fire or water to destroy [u] him. But if You can do anything, have compassion [v] on us and help us.”

23 Then Jesus said to him, “ ‘If You can? ’ [w, x] Everything is possible [y] to the one who believes.” [z]

24 Immediately the father of the boy cried out, “I do believe! Help my unbelief.”

25 When Jesus saw that a crowd was rapidly coming together, He rebuked [a] the •unclean [b] spirit, saying to it, “You mute and deaf [c] spirit, [d] I command you: come out of him and never enter him again! ”

26 Then it came out, shrieking and convulsing [e] him [f] violently. The boy became like a corpse, so that many said, “He’s dead.” 27 But Jesus, taking him by the hand, raised him, [g] and he stood up.

28 After He went into a house, His disciples asked Him privately, “Why couldn’t we drive it out? ”

29 And He told them, “This kind can come out by nothing but prayer [h] [and fasting].” [i, j]

The Second Prediction of His Death

30 Then [k] they left that place and made their way through Galilee, but He did not want anyone to know it. [l] 31 For He was teaching [m] His disciples and telling them, “The Son of Man [n] is being betrayed [o] into the hands of men. They will kill Him, and after He is killed, He will rise [p] three days later.” [q] 32 But they did not understand this statement, and they were afraid to ask Him. [r]

Who is the Greatest?

33 Then [s] they came to Capernaum. [t] When He was in the house, [u] He asked them, “What were you arguing about on the way? ” [v] 34 But they were silent, [w] because on the way they had been arguing with one another about who was the greatest. [x] 35 Sitting down, He called the Twelve [y] and said to them, “If anyone wants to be first, he must be last of all and servant of all.” [z] 36 Then He took a child, [a] had him stand among them, and taking him in His arms, He said to them,

37 “Whoever welcomes [b] one little child such as this in My name [c] welcomes Me. And whoever welcomes Me does not welcome Me, but Him who sent [d] Me.” [e]

In His Name

38 John [f] said to Him, “Teacher, [g] we saw someone [h] driving out demons [i] in Your name, [j] and we tried to stop him because he wasn’t following us.” [k] 39 “Don’t stop him,” said Jesus, “because there is no one who will perform a miracle [l] in My name who can soon afterward speak evil of Me. 40 For whoever is not against us is for us. [m] 41 And whoever gives you a cup of water to drink [n] because of My name, [o] since you belong to the •Messiah [p] — I assure you: [q]
He will never lose his reward. [r]

Warnings from Jesus

42 “But whoever •causes the downfall of one of these little ones who believe in Me [s] — it would be better for him if a heavy millstone [t, u] were hung around his neck and he were thrown into the sea. 43 And if your hand causes your downfall, cut it off. [v] It is better for you to enter life maimed [w] than to have two hands and go to •hell — the unquenchable fire, [x] [44 where

Their worm does not die,
and the fire is not quenched.] [y, z, a]

45 And if your foot causes your downfall, [b] cut it off. It is better for you to enter life lame [c] than to have two feet and be thrown into hell — [the unquenchable fire, [d] 46 where

Their worm does not die,
and the fire is not quenched.] [e, f, g]

47 And if your eye causes your downfall, gouge it out. It is better for you to enter the kingdom of God [h] with one eye than to have two eyes and be thrown [i] into hell, [j] 48 where

Their worm does not die,
and the fire is not quenched. [k]

49 For everyone will be salted with fire. [l, m, n] 50 Salt is good, but if the salt should lose its flavor, how can you make it salty? [o] Have salt [p] among yourselves and be at peace [q] with one another.”

The Question of Divorce

10 He [a] set out from there and went to the region of Judea [b] and across the Jordan. [c] Then crowds converged on Him again and, as He usually did, He began teaching [d] them once more. 2 Some •Pharisees [e] approached Him to test [f] Him. They asked, “Is it lawful [g] for a man to divorce [h] his wife? ” [i]
3 He replied to them, “What did Moses [j] command you? ”
4 They said, “Moses permitted us to write divorce papers [k] and send her away.” [l]
5 But Jesus told them, “He wrote this command for you because of the hardness of your hearts. [m] 6 But from the beginning [n] of creation [o] God [p] made them male and female. [q, r]

7 For this reason a man will leave [s]
his father and mother
[and be joined to his wife], [t]
8 and the two will become one flesh. [u, v]

So they are no longer two, but one flesh. 9 Therefore what God has joined together, man must not separate.” [w]
10 Now in the house the disciples questioned Him again about this matter. 11
And He said to them, “Whoever divorces his wife [x] and marries [y] another commits adultery [z] against her. 12 Also, if she divorces her husband [a] and marries another, she commits adultery.”

Blessing the Children

13 Some [b] people were bringing little children [c] to Him so He might touch them, but His disciples rebuked [d] them. 14 When Jesus saw it, He was indignant [e] and said to them, “Let the little children come to Me. [f] Don’t stop [g] them, for the kingdom of God [h] belongs to such as these. 15 •I assure you: [i] Whoever does not welcome [j, k] the kingdom of God like a little child [l] will never enter it.” 16
After taking them in His arms, He laid His hands on [m] them and blessed [n] them.

The Rich Young Ruler

17 As [o] He was setting out on a journey, [p] a man ran up, knelt down [q] before Him, and asked Him, “Good [r] Teacher, [s] what must I do to inherit [t] eternal life? ” [u]

18 “Why do you call Me good? ” Jesus asked him. “No one is good but One — God. [v] 19 You know the commandments:

Do not murder; [w]
do not commit adultery; [x]
do not steal; [y]
do not bear false witness; [z]
do not defraud; [a] honor [b] your father and mother.” [c, d]

20 He said to Him, “Teacher, [e] I have kept all these from my youth.”

21 Then, looking at him, Jesus loved him [f] and said to him, “You lack one thing: Go, sell all you have and give to the poor, [g] and you will have treasure [h] in heaven. [i] Then come, [j] follow Me.” [k] 22 But he was stunned [A] at this demand, and he went away grieving, [l] because he had many possessions. [m]

Possessions and the Kingdom

23 Jesus looked around and said to His disciples, “How hard it is for those who have wealth [n] to enter the kingdom of God! ” [o] 24 But the disciples were astonished at His words. Again Jesus said to them, “Children, [p] how hard it is [q] to enter the kingdom of God! 25 It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich [r] person to enter the kingdom of God.”

26 So they were even more astonished, saying to one another, “Then who can be saved? ” [s]

27 Looking at them, Jesus said, “With men it is impossible, [t] but not with God, because all things are possible with God.”

28 Peter [u] began to tell Him, “Look, we have left everything and followed
You.”

29 “I assure you,” [v] Jesus said, “there is no one who has left house, brothers or sisters, mother or father, [w] children, or fields because of Me and the gospel, [x] 30 who will not receive 100 times [y] more, now at this time [z] — houses, brothers and sisters, mothers and children, and fields, with persecutions [a] — and eternal life [b] in the age to come. [c] 31 But many who are first will be last, and the last first.” [d]

The Third Prediction of His Death

32 They [e] were on the road, going up to Jerusalem, [f] and Jesus was walking ahead of them. They were astonished, but those who followed Him were afraid.
[g] Taking the Twelve aside again, He began to tell them the things that would happen to Him. [h]

33 “Listen! We are going up to Jerusalem. The •Son of Man [i] will be handed over to the •chief priests and the •scribes , [j] and they will condemn Him to death.
Then they will hand Him over to the Gentiles, [k] 34 and they will mock Him, spit on Him, flog [l] Him, and kill Him, and He will rise [m] after three days.” [n]

Suffering and Service

35 Then [o] James [p] and John, [q] the sons of Zebedee, [r] approached Him and said, “Teacher, [s] we want You to do something for us if we ask You.”

36 “What do you want Me to do for you? ” He asked them.

37 They answered Him, “Allow us to sit at Your right and at Your left in Your glory.” [t]

38 But Jesus said to them, “You don’t know what you’re asking. [u] Are you able to drink the cup [v] I drink or to be baptized with the baptism [w] I am baptized with? ” [x]

39 “We are able,” they told Him.

Jesus said to them, “You will drink the cup I drink, and you will be baptized with the baptism I am baptized with. [y] 40 But to sit at My right or left is not Mine to give; instead, it is for those it has been prepared for.” 41 When the other 10 disciples heard this, they began to be indignant with James and John. [z]

42 Jesus called them over and said to them, “You know that those who are regarded as rulers of the Gentiles dominate [a] them, and their men of high positions exercise power over them. 43 But it must not be like that among you. [b] On the contrary, whoever wants to become great among you must be your servant, [c] 44 and whoever wants to be first among you must be a •slave [d] to all. 45 For even the Son of Man [e] did not come to be served, but to serve, [f] and to give His life [g] — a ransom [h] for many.” [i, j]

A Blind Man Healed

46 They [k] came to Jericho. [l] And as He was leaving Jericho with His disciples and a large crowd, Bartimaeus (the son of Timaeus), a blind [m] beggar, [n] was sitting by the road. [o] 47 When he heard that it was Jesus the •Nazarene , [p] he began to cry out, “Son of David, [q] Jesus, have mercy [r] on me! ” [s] 48 Many people told him to keep quiet, but he was crying out all the more, “Have mercy on me, [t] Son of David! ”

49 Jesus stopped and said, “Call him.”

So they called the blind man and said to him, “Have courage! [u] Get up; He’s calling for you.” 50 He threw off his coat, [v] jumped up, and came to Jesus.

51 Then Jesus answered him, “What do you want [w] Me to do for you? ”

“Rabbouni,” [B,] [x] the blind man told Him, “I want to see! ”

52 “Go your way,” Jesus told him. “Your faith has healed you.” [y] Immediately he could see and began to follow Him on the road.

The Triumphal Entry

11 When [a] they approached Jerusalem, [b] at Bethphage and Bethany [c] near the •Mount of Olives, He sent two of His disciples [2] and told them, “Go into the village ahead of you. As soon as you enter it, you will find a young donkey tied there, on which no one has ever sat. Untie it and bring it here. [3] If anyone says to you, ‘Why are you doing this? ’ say, ‘The Lord needs it and will send it back here right away.’ ”

[4] So they went and found a young donkey outside in the street, tied by a door.
They untied it, [5] and some of those standing there said to them, “What are you doing, untying the donkey? ” [6] They answered them just as Jesus had said, so they let them go. [7] Then they brought the donkey to Jesus and threw their robes on it, and He sat on it.

[8] Many people spread their robes on the road, [d] and others spread leafy branches cut from the fields. [e] [9] Then those who went ahead and those who followed kept shouting:

• Hosanna!
He who comes in the name [f]
of the Lord is the blessed One! [g, h] [10] The coming kingdom [i] of our father David [j] is blessed!
Hosanna [k] in the highest heaven!

[11] And He went into Jerusalem [l] and into the •temple complex. [m] After looking around at everything, since it was already late, He went out to Bethany [n] with the Twelve.

The Barren Fig Tree Is Cursed

[12] The [o] next day when they came out from Bethany, He was hungry. [13] After seeing in the distance a fig [p] tree with leaves, He went to find out if there was anything on it. When He came to it, He found nothing but leaves, because it was not the season for figs. [14] He said to it, “May no one ever eat fruit [q] from you again! ” [r] And His disciples [s] heard it.

Cleansing the Temple Complex

15 They came to Jerusalem, [t] and He went into the temple complex [u] and began to throw out those buying and selling in the temple. He overturned the money changers' [v] tables and the chairs of those selling doves, 16 and would not permit anyone to carry goods through the temple complex.

17 Then He began to teach them: "Is it not written, [w] My house [x] will be called a house of prayer [y] for all nations? [z] But you have made it a den of thieves! " [a, b] 18 Then the •chief priests and the •scribes [c] heard it and started looking for a way to destroy Him. For they were afraid [d] of Him, because the whole crowd was astonished by His teaching.

19 And whenever evening came, they would go out of the city.

The Barren Fig Tree Is Withered

20 Early [e] in the morning, as they were passing by, they saw the fig tree withered from the roots up. 21 Then Peter [f] remembered and said to Him, "•Rabbi , [g] look! The fig tree that You cursed [h] is withered."

22 Jesus replied to them, "Have faith in God. [i] 23 •I assure you: [j] If anyone says to this mountain, 'Be lifted up and thrown into the sea,' and does not doubt [k] in his heart, but believes [l] that what he says will happen, it will be done for him. [m] 24 Therefore I tell you, all the things you pray [n] and ask for [o] — believe that you have received [p, q] them, and you will have them. 25 And whenever you stand [r] praying, if you have anything against anyone, forgive [s] him, so that your Father [t] in heaven [u] will also forgive [v] you your wrongdoing. [26 But if you don't forgive, neither will your Father in heaven [w] forgive your wrongdoing.]" [x, y]

Messiah's Authority Challenged

27 They [z] came again to Jerusalem. [a] As He was walking in the temple complex, [b] the chief priests, the scribes, [c] and the elders [d] came 28 and asked Him, "By what authority [e] are You doing these things? Who gave You this authority to do these things? "

29 Jesus said to them, "I will ask you one question; [f] then answer Me, and I will tell you by what authority I am doing these things. 30 Was John's baptism [g] from heaven or from men? Answer Me."

31 They began to argue among themselves: "If we say, 'From heaven,' He will say, 'Then why didn't you believe [h] him? ' 32 But if we say, 'From men' " — they were afraid of the crowd, because everyone thought that John was a genuine prophet. [i] 33 So they answered Jesus, “We don’t know.”

And Jesus said to them, “Neither will I tell you by what authority I do these things.”

The Parable of the Vineyard Owner

12 Then [a] He began to speak to them in parables: “A man planted a vineyard, [b] put a fence around it, dug out a pit for a winepress, and built a watchtower. Then he leased it to tenant farmers and went away. 2 At harvest time he sent [c] a •slave [d] to the farmers to collect some of the fruit [e] of the vineyard from the farmers. 3 But they took him, beat [f] him, and sent him away empty-handed. [g] 4 Again he sent another slave to them, and they [h] hit him on the head and treated him shamefully. [i] 5 Then he sent another, and they killed that one. He also sent many others; they beat some and they killed some.

6 “He still had one to send, a beloved [j] son. Finally [k] he sent him to them, saying, ‘They will respect my son.’

7 “But those tenant farmers said among themselves, ‘This is the heir. Come, let’s kill him, and the inheritance will be ours! ’ 8 So they seized him, killed him, and threw him out of the vineyard.

9 “Therefore, what will the owner [l, m] of the vineyard do? He will come and destroy the farmers and give the vineyard to others. 10 Haven’t you read this Scripture: [n]

The [o] stone that the builders rejected has become the cornerstone. [p, q] 11 This came from the Lord [r] and is wonderful in our eyes? ” [s]

12 Because they knew He had said this parable against them, they were looking for a way to arrest Him, but they were afraid of the crowd. So they left Him and went away.

God and Caesar

13 Then [t] they sent some of the •Pharisees [u] and the •Herodians [v] to Him to trap Him by what He said. [A, w] 14 When they came, they said to Him, “Teacher, we know You are truthful and defer to no one, for You don’t show partiality [B, x] but teach truthfully the way of God. Is it lawful to pay taxes [y] to Caesar or not?
15 Should we pay, or should we not pay? ”

But knowing their hypocrisy, [z] He said to them, “Why are you testing [a] Me?
Bring Me a •denarius [b] to look at.” 16 So they brought one. “Whose image [c] and inscription [d] is this? ” He asked them.

“Caesar’s,” they said.

17 Then Jesus told them, “Give back to Caesar the things that are Caesar’s, and to God the things that are God’s.” [e] And they were amazed [f] at Him.

The Sadducees and the Resurrection

18 Some [g] •Sadducees , [h] who say there is no resurrection, [i] came to Him and questioned Him: 19 "Teacher, [j] Moses [k] wrote for us that if a man's brother dies, leaves his wife behind, and leaves no child, [l] his brother should take the wife [m] and produce •offspring for his brother. [n, o] 20 There were seven brothers. The first took a wife, and dying, left no offspring. 21 The second also took her, and he died, leaving no offspring. And the third likewise. 22 So the seven [p] left no offspring. Last of all, the woman died too. 23 In the resurrection, when they rise, [q] whose wife will she be, since the seven had married her? " [C]

24 Jesus told them, "Are you not deceived because you don't know the Scriptures [r] or the power [s] of God? [t] 25 For when they rise [u] from the dead, [v] they neither marry nor are given in marriage [w] but are like angels [x] in heaven.
26 Now concerning the dead being raised — haven't you read in the book of Moses, in the passage about the burning bush, how God spoke to him: I [y] am the God of Abraham [z] and the God of Isaac [a] and the God of Jacob? [b, c] 27 He is not God of the dead but of the living. You are badly deceived."

The Primary Commandments

28 One [d] of the •scribes [e] approached. When he heard them debating and saw that Jesus answered them well, he asked Him, “Which command is the most important of all? ” [D]

29 “This is the most important,” [f] Jesus answered:

> Listen, Israel! The Lord [g] our God, the Lord [h] is One. [i] 30 Love [j] > the Lord your God [k] with all your heart, with all your soul, with > all your mind, [l] and with all your strength. [m, n, o]

31 “The second is: Love your neighbor [p] as yourself. [q, r] There is no other command [s] greater than these.”

32 Then the scribe said to Him, “You are right, Teacher! You have correctly said that He is One, and there is no one [t] else except Him. [u] 33 And to love [v] Him with all your heart, with all your understanding, [w] and with all your strength, and to love your neighbor as yourself, is far more important than all the burnt offerings and sacrifices.” [x]

34 When Jesus saw that he answered intelligently, He said to him, “You are not far from the kingdom of God.” [y] And no one dared [z] to question Him any longer.

The Question about the Messiah

35 So [a] Jesus asked this question as He taught in the •temple complex, [b] "How can the scribes [c] say that the •Messiah [d] is the Son of David? [e] 36 David [f] himself says by the Holy Spirit: [g]

The Lord [h] declared to my Lord,
'Sit at My right hand [i]
until I put Your enemies under Your feet.' [j, k]

37 David himself calls Him 'Lord'; how then can the Messiah be his Son? " And the large crowd was listening to Him with delight.

Warning against the Scribes

38 He [l] also said in His teaching, “Beware of the scribes, who want to go around in long robes, [m] and who want greetings in the marketplaces, [n] 39 the front seats [o] in the •synagogues , [p] and the places of honor [q] at banquets. [r] 40 They devour [s] widows’ [t] houses and say long prayers [u] just for show. These will receive harsher punishment.”

The Widow’s Gift

41 Sitting [v] across from the temple treasury, [w] He watched how the crowd dropped money into the treasury. Many rich [x] people were putting in large sums. 42 And a poor [y] widow came and dropped in two tiny coins worth very little. [E] 43 Summoning His disciples, [z] He said to them, “•I assure you: [a] This poor widow has put in more than all those giving to the temple treasury. [b] 44 For they all gave out of their surplus, [c] but she out of her poverty [d] has put in everything she possessed [e] — all she had to live on.” [f]

Destruction of the Temple Predicted

13 As [a] He was going out of the •temple complex, [b] one of His disciples said to Him, “Teacher, [c] look! What massive stones! What impressive buildings! ” [d]

2 Jesus said to him, “Do you see these great buildings? [e] Not one stone will be left here on another that will not be thrown down! ”

Signs of the End of the Age

3 While He was sitting on the •Mount of Olives [f] across from the temple complex, [g] Peter, [h] James, [i] John, [j] and Andrew [k] asked Him privately, 4 “Tell us, when will these things happen? And what will be the sign when all these things are about to take place? ”

5 Then Jesus began by telling them: “Watch out that no one deceives you. 6 Many will come in My name, [l] saying, ‘I am He,’ [m] and they will deceive [n] many. 7 When you hear of wars and rumors of wars, [o] don’t be alarmed; [p] these things must take place, [q] but the end is not yet. 8 For nation will rise up against nation, and kingdom against kingdom. [r] There will be earthquakes in various places, and famines. [s] These are the beginning [t] of birth pains. [u]

Persecutions Predicted

9 “But you, be on your guard! They will hand you over to sanhedrins, [v, w] and you will be flogged [x] in the •synagogues . [y] You will stand before governors and kings [z] because of Me, [a] as a witness [b] to them. [c] 10 And the good news [d, e] must first be proclaimed to all nations. 11 So when they arrest you and hand you over, don’t worry beforehand what you will say. On the contrary, whatever is given to you in that hour — say it. For it isn’t you speaking, but the Holy Spirit.
12 Then brother will betray [f] brother to death, [g] and a father his child. Children will rise up against parents and put them to death. 13 And you will be hated by everyone because of My name. [h] But the one who endures to the end will be delivered. [i, j]

The Great Tribulation

14 “When you see the abomination that causes desolation [k, l] standing where it should not” (let the reader understand [m]), “then those in Judea [n] must flee to the mountains! 15 A man on the housetop must not come down or go in to get anything out of his house. [o] 16 And a man in the field must not go back to get his clothes. [p] 17 Woe [q] to pregnant women and nursing mothers in those days!
18 Pray [r] it [s] won’t happen in winter. 19 For those will be days of tribulation, [t]
the kind that hasn’t been from the beginning [u] of the world, [v, w] which God created, until now and never will be again! 20 Unless the Lord [x] limited those days, [y] no one would survive. [z] But He limited those days because of the elect, [a] whom He chose. [b]

21 “Then if anyone tells you, ‘Look, here is the •Messiah ! [c] Look — there! ’ do not believe it! 22 For false messiahs [d] and false prophets will rise up and will perform signs and wonders [e] to lead astray, if possible, the elect. 23 And you must watch! I have told you everything in advance.

The Coming of the Son of Man

24 “But in those days, after that tribulation: [f]

The sun will be darkened,
and the moon will not shed its light;
25 the stars [g] will be falling from the sky,
and the celestial powers will be shaken. [h]

26 Then they will see the •Son of Man [i] coming [j] in clouds [k] with great power [l] and glory. [m] 27 He will send out the angels [n] and gather His elect [o] from the four winds, from the end of the earth to the end of the sky. [p]

The Parable of the Fig Tree

28 “Learn [q] this parable [r] from the fig [s] tree: As soon as its branch becomes tender and sprouts leaves, you know that summer is near. [t] 29 In the same way, when you see these things happening, know [u] that He [v] is near — at the door! 30 •I assure you: [w] This generation will certainly not pass away until all these things take place. 31 Heaven and earth [x] will pass away, [y] but My words will never pass away. [z]

No One Knows the Day or Hour

32 “Now concerning that day [a] or hour no one knows — neither the angels [b] in heaven nor the Son [c] — except the Father. [d] 33 Watch! Be alert! [e] For you don't know when the time [f] is coming. [g] 34 It is like [h] a man on a journey, who left his house, gave authority to his •slaves , [i] gave each one his work, and commanded the doorkeeper to be alert. 35 Therefore be alert, [j] since you don't know when the master [k] of the house is coming — whether in the evening or at midnight or at the crowing of the rooster or early in the morning. 36 Otherwise, he might come suddenly and find you sleeping. [l] 37 And what I say to you, I say to everyone: Be alert! "

The Plot to Kill Jesus

14 After [a] two days it was the •Passover [b] and the Festival [c] of •Unleavened Bread. [d] The •chief priests and the •scribes [e] were looking for a treacherous [f] way to arrest and kill Him. [g 2] “Not during the festival,” they said, “or there may be rioting among the people.”

The Anointing at Bethany

3 While [h] He was in Bethany [i] at the house of Simon who had a serious skin disease, [j] as He was reclining at the table, [k] a woman came with an alabaster jar of pure and expensive fragrant oil of nard. She broke the jar and poured it on His head. [l] 4 But some were expressing indignation to one another: “Why has this fragrant oil been wasted? 5 For this oil might have been sold for more than 300 •denarii [m] and given to the poor.” [n] And they began to scold her.

6 Then Jesus said, “Leave her alone. Why are you bothering her? She has done a noble thing [o] for Me. 7 You always have the poor [p] with you, and you can do what is good for them whenever you want, but you do not always have Me. [q] 8 She has done what she could; she has anointed My body [r] in advance for burial. [s] 9 •I assure you: [t] Wherever the gospel [u] is proclaimed in the whole world, [v] what this woman has done will also be told in memory of her.”

10 Then [w] Judas Iscariot, [x] one of the Twelve, [y] went to the chief priests [z] to hand Him over [a] to them. 11 And when they heard this, they were glad and promised to give him silver. [A,] [b] So he started looking for a good opportunity to betray [c] Him.

Preparation for Passover

12 On [d] the first day of Unleavened Bread, when they sacrifice the Passover lamb, [e] His disciples [f] asked Him, “Where do You want us to go and prepare the Passover so You may eat it? ”

13 So He sent two of His disciples and told them, “Go into the city, and a man carrying a water jug will meet you. Follow him. 14 Wherever he enters, tell the owner of the house, ‘The Teacher [g] says, “Where is the guest room for Me to eat the Passover with My disciples? ” ’ 15 He will show you a large room upstairs, furnished and ready. Make the preparations for us there.” 16 So the disciples [h] went out, entered the city, and found it just as He had told them, and they prepared the Passover.

Betrayal at the Passover

17 When [i] evening came, He arrived with the Twelve. [j] 18 While they were reclining and eating, Jesus said, “I assure you: One of you will betray Me — one who is eating with Me! ”

19 They began to be distressed and to say to Him one by one, “Surely not I? ”

20 He said to them, “It is one of the Twelve — the one who is dipping bread with Me in the bowl. 21 For the •Son of Man [k] will go just as it is written [l] about Him, [m] but woe [n] to that man by whom the Son of Man is betrayed! It would have been better for that man if he had not been born.”

The First Lord’s Supper

22 As [o] they were eating, He took bread, [p] blessed and broke [q] it, gave it to them, [r] and said, “Take it; [s] this is My body.” [t]

23 Then He took a cup, and after giving thanks, [u] He gave it to them, and so they all drank from it. 24 He said to them, “This is My blood that establishes the covenant; [v, w] it is shed [x] for many. [y] 25 I assure you: [z] I will no longer drink of the fruit of the vine [a] until that day when I drink it in a new [b] way [c] in the kingdom of God.” [d] 26 After singing psalms, [e] they went out to the •Mount of Olives. [f]

Peter’s Denial Predicted

27 Then [g] Jesus said to them, “All of you will run away, [h, i] because it is written: [j]

I will strike the shepherd,
and the sheep [k] will be scattered. [l, m]

28 But after I have been resurrected, [n] I will go ahead of you to Galilee.” [o]

29 Peter [p] told Him, “Even if everyone runs away, I will certainly not! ”

30 “I assure you,” Jesus said to him, “today, this very night, before the rooster crows twice, you will deny Me three times! ” [q]

31 But he kept insisting, “If I have to die with You, I will never deny You! ”
And they all said the same thing.

The Prayer in the Garden

32 Then [r] they came to a place named Gethsemane, and He told His disciples, [s] "Sit here while I pray." [t] 33 He took Peter, [u] James, [v] and John [w] with Him, and He began to be deeply distressed and horrified. 34 Then He said to them,
"My soul is swallowed up in sorrow [x] — to the point of death. Remain here and stay awake." [y] 35 Then He went a little farther, fell to the ground, and began to pray that if it were possible, the hour [z] might pass from Him. 36 And He said, "• Abba , [a] Father! [b] All things are possible [c] for You. Take this cup [d] away from Me. Nevertheless, not what I will, but what You will."

37 Then He came and found them sleeping. "Simon, [e] are you sleeping? " He asked Peter. [f] "Couldn't you stay awake one hour? 38 Stay awake and pray [g] so that you won't enter into temptation. [h] The spirit [i] is willing, but the flesh [j] is weak."

39 Once again He went away and prayed, saying the same thing. 40 And He came again and found them sleeping, because they could not keep their eyes open. [B] They did not know what to say to Him. [k] 41 Then He came a third time and said to them, "Are you still sleeping and resting? Enough! The time has come. Look, the Son of Man [l] is being betrayed into the hands of sinners. [m] 42 Get up; [n] let's go! See — My betrayer is near."

The Judas Kiss

43 While [o] He was still speaking, Judas, [p] one of the Twelve, [q] suddenly arrived. With him was a mob, with swords and clubs, from the chief priests, the scribes, [r] and the elders. [s] 44 His betrayer had given them a signal. “The One I kiss,” he said, “He’s the One; arrest Him and take Him away under guard.” 45
So when he came, he went right up to Him and said, “•Rabbi ! ” [t] — and kissed Him. 46 Then they took hold of Him and arrested Him. 47 And one of those who stood by drew his sword, struck the high priest’s •slave , and cut off his ear.

48 But Jesus said to them, “Have you come out with swords and clubs, as though I were a criminal, [u] to capture Me? 49 Every day I was among you, teaching in the •temple complex, [v] and you didn’t arrest Me. But the Scriptures [w] must be fulfilled.” [x] 50 Then they all deserted Him and ran away. [y]

51 Now a certain young man, [z] having a linen cloth wrapped around his naked body, was following Him. They caught hold of him, 52 but he left the linen cloth behind and ran away naked. [a]

Jesus Faces the Sanhedrin

53 They [b] led Jesus away to the high priest, [c] and all the chief priests, the elders, and the scribes [d] convened. [e] 54 Peter [f] followed Him at a distance, right into the high priest's courtyard. He was sitting with the temple police, [C, g] warming himself by the fire. [D]

55 The chief priests and the whole •Sanhedrin [h] were looking for testimony against Jesus to put Him to death, [i] but they could find none. 56 For many were giving false testimony [j] against Him, but the testimonies did not agree. 57 Some stood up and were giving false testimony against Him, stating, 58 "We heard Him say, 'I will demolish this sanctuary made by human hands, [k] and in three days I will build another not made by hands.' " 59 Yet their testimony did not agree [l] even on this.

60 Then the high priest stood up before them all and questioned Jesus, "Don't You have an answer to what these men are testifying against You? " 61 But He kept silent and did not answer anything. [m] Again the high priest questioned Him, "Are You the •Messiah , [n] the Son [o] of the Blessed [p] One? "

62 "I am," [q] said Jesus, "and all of you [r] will see the Son of Man [s] seated at the right hand [t] of the Power and coming with the clouds [u] of heaven." [v, w]

63 Then the high priest [x] tore his robes [y] and said, "Why do we still need witnesses? [z] 64 You have heard the blasphemy! [a] What is your decision? " [E]

And they all condemned Him to be deserving of death. [b] 65 Then some began to spit on Him, to blindfold Him, and to beat Him, saying, "Prophesy! " [c] The temple police [d] also took Him and slapped Him.

Peter Denies His Lord

66 While [e] Peter [f] was in the courtyard below, one of the high priest's servants came. 67 When she saw Peter warming himself, she looked at him and said,
"You also were with that •Nazarene , [g] Jesus."
68 But he denied it: "I don't know or understand what you're talking about! "
Then he went out to the entryway, and a rooster crowed. [h] 69 When the servant saw him again she began to tell those standing nearby,
"This man is one of them! " 70 But again he denied it. After a little while those standing there said to Peter again, "You certainly are one of them, since you're also a Galilean! " [i, j] 71 Then he started to curse [k] and to swear with an oath, [l] "I don't know this man you're talking about! "
72 Immediately a rooster crowed a second time, [m] and Peter remembered when Jesus had spoken the word to him, "Before the rooster crows twice, you will deny Me three times." When he thought about it, he began to weep. [F]

Jesus Faces Pilate

15 As [a] soon as it was morning, the •chief priests had a meeting with the elders, [b] •scribes , [c] and the whole •Sanhedrin . [d] After tying Jesus up, they led Him away and handed Him over to •Pilate . [e]

2 So Pilate asked Him, “Are You the King [f] of the Jews? ” [g]

He answered him, “You have said it.” [h]

3 And the chief priests began to accuse Him of many things. 4 Then Pilate [i] questioned Him again, “Are You not answering anything? Look how many things they are accusing You of! ” 5 But Jesus still did not answer anything, so Pilate was amazed.

Jesus or Barabbas

6 At [j] the festival [k] it was Pilate's [l] custom to release for the people a prisoner they requested. 7 There was one named Barabbas, who was in prison with rebels who had committed murder [m] during the rebellion. [n] 8 The crowd came up and began to ask Pilate to do for them as was his custom. 9 So Pilate answered them,
"Do you want me to release the King [o] of the Jews [p] for you? " 10 For he knew it was because of envy [q] that the chief priests had handed Him over. 11 But the chief priests stirred up the crowd so that he would release Barabbas to them instead.

12 Pilate asked them again, "Then what do you want me to do with the One you call the King of the Jews? "

13 Again they shouted, "Crucify Him! "

14 Then Pilate said to them, "Why? What has He done wrong? "

But they shouted, "Crucify Him! " all the more.

15 Then, willing to gratify the crowd, Pilate released Barabbas to them. And after having Jesus flogged, [r] he handed Him over to be crucified.

Mocked by the Military

16 Then [s] the soldiers led Him away into the courtyard (that is, •headquarters [t]) and called the whole •company together. 17 They dressed Him in a purple [u] robe, twisted together a crown [v] of thorns, and put it on Him. 18 And they began to salute Him, “Hail, [w] King [x] of the Jews! ” 19 They kept hitting Him on the head with a reed and spitting on Him. Getting down on their knees, [y] they were paying Him homage. 20 When they had mocked [z] Him, they stripped Him of the purple robe, put His clothes on Him, and led Him out to crucify Him.

Crucified between Two Criminals

21 They [a] forced a man coming in from the country, who was passing by, to carry Jesus' cross. [b] He was Simon, a Cyrenian, [c] the father of Alexander and Rufus. [d] 22 And [e] they brought Jesus to the place called Golgotha (which means Skull Place [f]). 23 They tried to give Him wine [g] mixed with myrrh, [h] but He did not take it. 24 Then they crucified Him and divided His clothes, casting lots [i] for them to decide what each would get. 25 Now it was nine in the morning [A] when they crucified Him. 26 The inscription of the charge written against Him was:

THE KING [j] OF THE JEWS. [k]

27 They [l] crucified two criminals [B, m] with Him, one on His right and one on His left. [28 So the Scripture was fulfilled that says: And He was counted among outlaws.] [n, o], [p] 29 Those [q] who passed by were yelling insults [r] at [C] Him, shaking their heads, [s] and saying, "Ha! The One who would demolish the sanctuary and build it in three days, [t] 30 save Yourself by coming down from the cross! " [u] 31 In the same way, the chief priests with the scribes [v] were mocking Him to one another and saying, "He saved others; He cannot save Himself! 32 Let the •Messiah, [w] the King [x] of Israel, [y] come down now from the cross, [z] so that we may see and believe." [a] Even those who were crucified with Him were taunting Him.

The Death of Jesus

33 When [b] it was noon, [D] darkness came over the whole land [E] until three in the afternoon. [F, c] 34 And at three [G] Jesus cried out with a loud voice, "Eloi, Eloi, lemá [d] sabachtháni?" which is translated, "My God, My God, why have You forsaken Me?" [e, f]

35 When some of those standing there heard this, they said, "Look, He's calling for Elijah! " 36 Someone ran and filled a sponge with sour wine, fixed it on a reed, offered Him a drink, [g] and said, "Let's see if Elijah comes to take Him down! "

37 But Jesus let out a loud cry and breathed His last. 38 Then the curtain [h] of the sanctuary [i] was split in two from top to bottom. 39 When the •centurion , who was standing opposite Him, saw the way He [j] breathed His last, he said, "This man really was God's Son! " [H, k]

40 There [l] were also women looking on from a distance. Among them were •Mary Magdalene, [m] Mary the mother of James the younger and of Joses, and Salome. 41 When He was in Galilee, [n] they would follow Him and help Him. Many other women had come up with Him to Jerusalem. [o]

The Burial of Jesus

42 When [p] it was already evening, because it was preparation day (that is, the day before the Sabbath), 43 Joseph of Arimathea, a prominent member of the Sanhedrin who was himself looking forward [q] to the kingdom of God, [r] came and boldly went in to Pilate [s] and asked for Jesus' body. [t] 44 Pilate was surprised that He was already dead. Summoning the centurion, he asked him whether He had already died. 45 When he found out from the centurion, he gave the corpse to Joseph. 46 After he bought some fine linen, he took Him down and wrapped Him in the linen. Then he placed Him in a tomb [u] cut out of the rock, and rolled a stone [v] against the entrance to the tomb. 47 Now [w] Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of Joses were watching where He was placed.

Resurrection Morning

16 When [a] the Sabbath was over, •Mary Magdalene, [b] Mary the mother of James, and Salome bought spices, so they could go and anoint Him. [2]
Very early in the morning, on the first day of the week, [c] they went to the tomb [d] at sunrise. [3] They were saying to one another, “Who will roll away the stone from the entrance to the tomb for us? ” [4] Looking up, they observed that the stone — which was very large — had been rolled away. [5] When [e] they entered the tomb, [f] they saw a young man [g, h] dressed [i] in a long white [j] robe sitting on the right side; they were amazed and alarmed.

[6] “Don’t be alarmed,” he told them. “You are looking for Jesus the •Nazarene
, [k] who was crucified. He has been resurrected! [l] He is not here! See the place where they put Him. [7] But go, tell His disciples and Peter, [m] ‘He is going ahead of you to Galilee; [n] you will see Him there just as He told you.’ ”

[8] So they went out and started running from the tomb, [o] because trembling and astonishment overwhelmed them. And they said nothing to anyone, [p] since they were afraid.

Appearances of the Risen Lord

[9 Early [q] on the first day of the week, [r] after He had risen, [s] He appeared first to Mary Magdalene, [t] out of whom He had driven seven demons. [u] 10 She went and reported to those who had been with Him, as they were mourning and weeping. 11 Yet, when they heard that He was alive and had been seen by her, they did not believe it. [v] 12 Then after this, He appeared [w] in a different form to two of them walking on their way into the country. [x] 13 And they went and reported it to the rest, who did not believe them either.

The Great Commission

14 Later, He appeared to the Eleven [y] themselves as they were reclining at the table. He rebuked their unbelief and hardness of heart, because they did not believe those who saw Him after He had been resurrected. [z] 15 Then [a] He said to them, “Go into all the world [b] and preach the gospel to the whole creation. [c] 16 Whoever believes [d] and is baptized will be saved, [e] but whoever does not believe will be condemned. [f] 17 And these signs will accompany those who believe: In My name they will drive out demons; they will speak in new languages; 18 they will pick up snakes; [g, h] if they should drink anything deadly, it will never harm [i] them; they will lay hands on [j] the sick, and they will get well.”

The Ascension

19 Then after speaking to them, the Lord Jesus [k] was taken up into heaven [l] and sat down at the right hand [m] of God. 20 And they went out and preached everywhere, the Lord working with them and confirming the word by the accompanying signs.] [n]

MARK

Introduction | Outline | Timeline | Study Notes | Word Studies

Introduction

"Who then is this?" is the central question of Mark's Gospel. Jesus' disciples asked this question to each other just after Jesus spoke to and calmed what seemed a life-threatening storm on the Sea of Galilee (4:35-41).

Mark's Gospel emphasizes actions and deeds. Jesus is on the go—healing, casting out demons, performing miracles, hurrying from place to place, and teaching. In Mark everything happens "immediately." As soon as one episode ends, another begins. The rapid pace slows down when Jesus enters Jerusalem (11:1). Thereafter, events are marked by days, and His final day by hours.

Circumstances of Writing Author: The Gospel of Mark is anonymous. Eusebius, the early church historian, writing in A.D. 326, preserved the words of Papias, an early church father. Papias quoted "the elder," probably John, as saying that Mark recorded Peter's preaching about the things Jesus said and did, but not in order. Thus, Mark was considered the author of this Gospel even in the first century.

The Mark who wrote this Gospel was John Mark, the son of a widow named Mary, in whose house the church in Jerusalem sometimes gathered (Ac 12:12-17) and where Jesus possibly ate the Last Supper with His disciples. Mark was the cousin of Barnabas (Col 4:10), and he accompanied Barnabas and Paul back to Antioch after their famine relief mission to Jerusalem (Ac 12:25). Mark next went with Barnabas and Paul on part of the first missionary journey as an assistant (Ac 13:5), but at Perga, Mark turned back (Ac 13:13).

When the apostle Peter wrote to the churches in Asia Minor shortly before his martyrdom, he sent greetings from Mark, whom he called "my son" (1Pt 5:13). Then shortly before his execution, Paul asked Timothy to "Bring Mark with you, for he is useful to me in the ministry" (2Tm 4:11). After Paul's execution, Mark is said to have moved to Egypt, established churches, and served them in Alexandria (Eusebius, Eccl. Hist., 2:16). Some have suggested the young man in Mark 14:51-52 was Mark himself.

Background: According to the early church fathers, Mark wrote his Gospel in Rome just before or just after Peter's martyrdom. Further confirmation of the Roman origin of Mark's Gospel is found in Mark 15:21 where Mark noted that Simon, a Cyrenian who carried Jesus' cross, was the father of Alexander and Rufus, men apparently known to the believers in Rome.

Because Mark wrote primarily for Roman Gentiles, he explained Jewish customs, translated Aramaic words and phrases into Greek, used Latin terms rather than their Greek equivalents, and rarely quoted from the OT. Most Bible scholars are convinced that Mark was the earliest Gospel and served as one of the sources for Matthew and Luke.

Message and Purpose Mark's Gospel is a narrative about Jesus. Mark identified his theme in the first verse: "the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God." That Jesus is the divine Son of God is the major emphasis of his Gospel. God announced it at Jesus' baptism in 1:11. Demons and unclean spirits recognized and acknowledged it in 3:11 and 5:7. God reaffirmed it at the transfiguration in 9:7. Jesus taught it parabolically in 12:1-12, hinted at it in 13:32, and confessed it directly in 14:61-62. Finally, the Roman centurion confessed it openly and without qualification in 15:39. Thus Mark's purpose was to summon people to repent and respond in faith to the good news of Jesus Christ, the Messiah, the Son of God (1:1,15).

Contribution to the Bible Many concepts of the Messiah existed in Jesus' day, and several individuals laid claim to the title. What Mark contributes is a clarification of the concept of Messiah and a redefining of the term. Peter's insightful confession at Caesarea Philippi in 8:29 became the turning point at which Jesus began to explain that the divine conception of the Messiah involved rejection, suffering, death, and then resurrection (8:31). Mark also shows us the human side of Jesus. In fact, more than the other Gospel writers, Mark emphasizes Jesus' human side and His emotions. Thus Mark gives us a strong picture of both the humanity and the divinity of Jesus.

Structure Mark's Gospel begins with a Prologue (1:1-13), which is then followed by three major sections. The first (1:14-8:21) tells of Jesus' Gl ilean ministry. There Jesus healed and cast out demons and worked miracles. The second section (8:22-10:52) is transitional. Jesus began His journey that would take Him to Jerusalem. The final section (11:1-16:8) involves a week in Jerusalem. From the time Jesus entered the city He was at odds with the religious leaders, who quickly brought about His execution. A brief appendix (16:9-20) in which some of Jesus' appearances, His commissioning of His disciples, and His ascension are recorded is attached to the Gospel.

Outline I. Prologue to the Gospel (1:1-13) II. Jesus' Ministry in Galilee (1:14-8:21) A. Events in and around Capernaum (1:14-45) B. Five conflict stories (2:1-3:6) C. Jesus' arrest, trial, and crucifixion (14:43-15:47) L. An alarming visit to the tomb (16:1-8) V. Appendix: Jesus' Appearances (16:9-20) Timeline

Study Notes 1:1 Mark's Gospel starts at the beginning (Gk archē) of the gospel (Gk euangelion, meaning "good news"). The name Jesus is the NT equivalent of the OT name Joshua, meaning "Yahweh is salvation." Jesus is identified as Christ or Messiah and Son of God. Jesus is often identified as God's Son in Mark: at His baptism (v. 11), by demons (3:11; 5:7), the transfiguration (9:7), His trial (14:61), and the centurion's confession (15:39).

1:2-3 As it is written is a formulaic expression indicating the authoritative character of the OT (7:6; 9:13; 11:17; 14:21,27). The phrase in Isaiah the prophet introduces a mixed quotation from Ex 23:20; Is 40:3; and Mal 3:10. Hence some manuscripts read "in the prophets." In its original context, Lord refers to Yahweh. The messenger announces the coming of God Himself. The Gospel writers applied the words to Jesus, who is God in flesh (Jn 1:14).

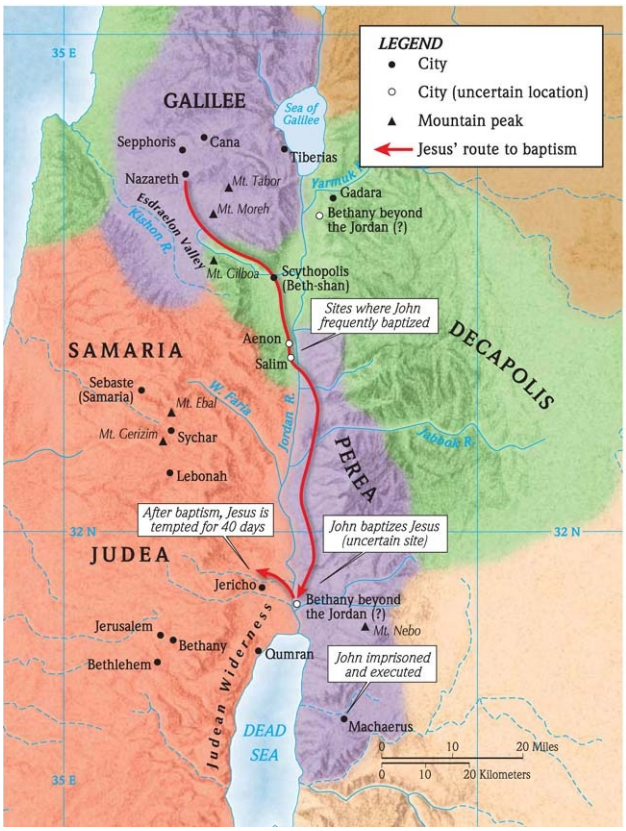
1:4 Mark does not mention John's birth (Lk 1) but instead introduces him as baptizing in the wilderness, a place that recalled Israel's disobedience (Jos 5:6) and God's redemption. John called for a baptism of repentance for the forgiveness of sins. "Repentance" means "to change one's mind." It involves a deliberate turn from sins.

1:5 That John attracted the whole Judean countryside and all the people of Jerusalem indicates his appeal among both country folk and urbanites.

1:6 John's dress was like Elijah's (2Kg 1:8) and other prophets (Zch 13:4). Mark's description suggests that John was the Elijah who was expected to return and call the nation to repent before the day of the Lord (Mal 4:5-6).

1:7-8 John announced that the coming One was more powerful and that he was not worthy to stoop down and untie the strap of His sandals—a task for Gentile slaves. The coming One was also superior in His work: He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit (Ac 11:16; see notes at Ac 1:5 and 1:8). John's baptism was symbolic; Jesus' baptism would introduce the reality. Only here and in Mk 3:29 and 13:11 does Mark mention the Holy Spirit.

1:9-11 Nazareth is mentioned only here in Mark (cp. 6:1). Three things occurred as soon as Jesus came up out of the water. The heavens were torn open . . . the Spirit descended, and God's voice came from heaven. "As soon as" or "immediately" (Gk euthus) occurs over 40 times in Mark. My beloved Son indicates the Son's uniqueness and recalls Abraham's love for Isaac (Gn 22:2,12,16). Only Israel (Ex 4:23) and Israel's king (Ps 2:7) were called God's son in the OT. The divine declaration in Mk 1:11 announced Jesus' eternal relationship to God. All three persons of the Trinity were represented at Jesus' baptism.



1:12-13 The same Spirit who descended on Jesus at His baptism now drove Him into the wilderness. "Drove" is a strong term used for the driving out of demons (vv. 34,39; 3:15,22,23; 6:13; 7:26; 9:18,28,38) and other forced expulsions (5:40; 9:47; 12:8). In the wilderness 40 days recalls Israel's testing for 40 years as well as Moses' (Dt 9:18) and Elijah's (1Kg 19:8) 40-day wilderness fasts. The angels began to serve Him is in the imperfect tense. This may indicate that they ministered to Jesus in unstated ways throughout His temptation, though He was not fed until the end (Mt 4:11). Angels also ministered to Elijah during his 40-day wilderness fast (1Kg 19:1-8).

1:14-15 The words after John was arrested indicate an interval between verses 13 and 14, possibly as long as a year if this parallels Jn 4:3,43. Mark did not include Jesus' early Judean ministry (Jn 3:22-36). Further details about John's arrest and execution appear in Mk 6:17-29. In the person of Jesus, the kingdom of God was so near that announcement of its arrival demanded immediate response—repent and believe.

1:16-20 Mark included two accounts of Jesus calling fishermen, two pairs of brothers, to become His disciples. These four formed the core of the group (v. 29; 3:16-18; 13:3; see notes at 5:37; 9:2; 14:33). Mark emphasized Jesus' authority to call people to leave all and follow Him. According to Lk 5:7-10, the two pair of brothers were partners in the fishing business.

1:16-18 The Sea of Galilee was a freshwater lake about 12 miles long and 7 miles wide that lay 700 feet below sea level. Also known as the Sea of Gennesaret (Lk 5:1) and the Sea of Tiberias (Jn 21:1), it hosted a thriving fishing industry. Brothers Simon and Andrew hailed from Bethsaida, across the northern end of the lake (Jn 1:44), but they now lived in Capernaum (Mk 1:29). Follow Me is the heart of NT discipleship. It involves adopting Jesus' values and lifestyle. I will make you fish for people expands on their former profession. The words also point to a second aspect of discipleship—the call to serve the Lord and people through ministry.

1:19-20 The phrase going on a little farther links the call of the second pair of brothers—James and John—in time and place to the first pair. The fact that hired men were present implies their fishing business was prosperous. Leaving this to follow Jesus meant leaving a nice living. Like the first pair of brothers in verse 18, these followed Jesus. Mark's words in the Greek directly link their response in verse 20 to Jesus' command in verse 17.

1:21-22 Capernaum, on the northwestern shore of the Sea of Galilee, became Jesus' home (2:1) and headquarters (Mt 4:13). Mark did not record what Jesus began to teach in the synagogue, but he did say that the people were astonished. This was a regular reaction to Jesus' teachings (6:2; 7:37; 10:26; 11:18). What impressed listeners was the authority with which Jesus taught. His authority contrasted with that of the scribes who mastered the Torah and treasured traditional interpretations (oral traditions). In Mark the scribes were Jesus' fiercest opponents (2:6,16; 11:27) and were among the main instigators leading to His death (8:31; 10:33; 11:18; 14:1,43,53; 15:1,31).

1:23-24 Just then links this event to verses 21-22. Mark used unclean spirit to denote a demonic spirit. "Unclean spirit" contrasts with the demons' identification of Jesus as the Holy One of God. The man's shout What do You have to do with us echoes Jephthah's words to the Ammonite king (Jdg 11:12) and those of the widow of Zarephath to Elijah (1Kg 17:18).

1:25-26 On the basis of the authority of His word, Jesus rebuked and expelled the spirit, commanding it to be quiet, (lit "be muzzled") and come out of him. The spirit convulsed the man (see note at 9:26-27) and shouted its desperate but futile resistance to Jesus.

1:27-28 The people were amazed to see an exorcism, especially given the authoritative manner in which Jesus accomplished it. Their statement that the unclean spirits . . . obey Him indicates their belief that what He did to one spirit, He could do to all. The word then (Gk euthus, "immediately") indicates how quickly the story of these events traveled throughout . . . Galilee.

1:29-31 As soon as they left the synagogue connects verses 29-34 to the same Sabbath day as verses 21-28. Simon and Andrew's house was large enough to host Jesus and His followers. Archaeologists have identified such a house near the synagogue in Capernaum. Simon's mother-in-law indicates that Peter was married. First Corinthians 9:5 suggests Peter's wife was supportive of his ministry. Jesus did not speak any words to heal Peter's mother-in-law, He simply took her by the hand. The phrase raised her up is a common expression for Jesus' healings in Mark (2:9,11; 3:3; 5:41; 9:27; 10:49).

1:32-34 The expressions when evening came and after the sun had set emphasize that the Sabbath prohibitions against work were over since the Sabbath ended at sunset. The phrases those who were sick . . . those who were demon-possessed recall the two types of healings Jesus performed earlier that day (vv. 23-26 and 30-31). That there is a difference between disease and demon possession is affirmed by Mark's description of Jesus' actions: He healed the sick but drove out the demons (3:10-11; 6:13). That Jesus healed various diseases points to the comprehensive nature of His healing powers.

1:35-39 Very early in the morning and while it was still dark together indicate that Jesus did not rest much after the previous evening's activity. The early hour explains how He got out of town undetected. The motion verbs got up, went out, and made His way describe Jesus' search for a deserted place, the same word used for the wilderness where John preached (v. 4) and where Jesus was tempted (v. 12). Simon and his companions refers to the four disciples Jesus called. This is the first time Mark depicted Peter as the leading disciple. Went searching implies an unwelcome intrusion. Apparently everyone expected more miracles, but Jesus intended to preach, thus returning the focus to the start of His ministry (vv. 14-15).

1:40-45 Legislation related to serious skin disease appears in Lv 13-14. This account (and parallels in Mt 8:1-4 and Lk 5:12-16) and that of the 10 men (Lk 17:11-19) are the only stories of healing skin diseases in the NT. Came to Him shows the sick man initiated the action and that he broke protocol in doing so. His words if You are willing, You can make me clean affirmed Jesus' ability while submitting to His willingness. That Jesus was moved with compassion is a detail only Mark recorded. To touch someone with a skin disease violated OT law and rendered a person unclean. Nevertheless, Jesus reached out His hand and touched him, healing the man immediately. Jesus told him to follow the requirements of Lv 13:47-14:54 as a testimony to the priests of his cure. We do not know whether he completed the prescribed rites, but he disobeyed Jesus' command to say nothing to anyone about his healing.

2:1-3:6 This section contains five conflict stories relating to Jesus' authority. In each, Jesus was accused of blasphemy, challenged about His association with sinners, rebuked for neglecting religious customs, and accused of breaking Sabbath laws.

2:1 He was at home probably refers to Peter's house (see note at 1:29-31).

2:2 The message (lit "the [Gk] logos," see also 4:33; 8:32) was later used to refer to Christian missionary preaching (Ac 6:4; 8:4; 17:11; Gl 6:6; Col 4:3). Here, it refers to the good news (Mk 1:14-15).

2:3 This is the only time Mark mentioned a paralytic (cp. Mt 8:6).

2:4 Removed the roof literally translates "unroofed the roof." Most houses in Palestine were single-story, flat-roofed structures with an outside staircase. The roof was used for work, drying laundry, sleeping, or prayer. Over the crossbeams small poles or branches were placed and covered with thatch and mud. Broken through (lit "digging it out") suggests debris must have fallen on the people below. A mat (vv. 4,9,11-12) was a poor person's pallet (6:55; Jn 5:8-11; Ac 5:15).

2:5 Their faith refers to those who carried the paralyzed man as well as the paralytic himself. Rather than a word of healing, Jesus spoke forgiveness over the paralytic after addressing him as son. Your sins is plural and possibly specific. The Greek word "sin" refers to missing the mark. Only here did Jesus link sin and infirmity. Possibly there was a direct relationship between this man's sins and his paralysis.

2:6-7 The scribes supposed Jesus was blaspheming when they heard Him declare the man's sins forgiven. Death by stoning was the prescribed penalty for blasphemy (Lv 24:16; Jn 10:33), and it was the charge on which Jesus was eventually executed (Mk 14:64).

2:8-11 The answer to Jesus' question which is easier is of course the unverifiable claim to have forgiven the paralytic's sins. After all, forgiveness of sins is a quality that cannot be checked against visible evidence, and so anyone can claim to forgive sins. Actually having the authority to do it is another thing altogether. To prove His right to forgive sins, Jesus undertook the more verifiable (yet still remarkable) task of healing the man. Son of Man was Jesus' favorite self-designation. It derives from Dn 7:13-14, where the messianic Son of Man is given authority (see note at 1:21-22).

2:12 This proved that Jesus could forgive sins. On immediately, see note at 1:9-11. They were all astounded recalls 1:27. The scribes accused Jesus of usurping God's prerogatives (2:7), but the crowd gave glory to God because of Jesus.

2:13-14 Sea refers to the Sea of Galilee. Only Mark identified the tax collector as Levi the son of Alphaeus (cp. Mt 9:9; Lk 5:27, from which we learn that Levi was another name for Matthew; Mt 10:3). The tax office was probably a local customs booth. Tax collectors were regarded as no better than thieves or Gentiles. Follow Me recalls 1:17-18. This is the standard term in the Gospels for discipleship. He got up and followed Him shows Levi's response to Jesus' call was immediate.

2:15-17 Reclining at the floor-level table on an elbow with the feet extended across the floor was the traditional dining posture. Levi invited Jesus and His disciples to a banquet that included notorious figures—tax collectors and sinners (cp. Lk 5:29). "Sinners" refers to those who deliberately violate God's laws. By dining with such people, Jesus in some sense identified with them. Far from condoning their sins, Jesus dwelt among them because He had come to save sinners. On scribes, see note at 1:21-22. Most scribes were Pharisees. Pharisees ("separated ones") strictly observed the written and oral law, believed in angels and resurrection, opposed Greek influence, and were esteemed by the people. They were constantly in conflict with Jesus. The righteous whom Jesus says He didn't come to call is an ironical reference to the self-righteous Pharisees.

2:18 The question about fasting arose because the behavior of Jesus' disciples contrasted with that of disciples who belonged to John the Baptist and the Pharisees. Fasting was only required on the Day of Atonement (Lv 16:29-30, but see Est 9:31 and Zch 8:19 for fasts originating in the postexilic period). In NT times, the Pharisees fasted on Mondays and Thursdays (Lk 18:12). It was considered an act of piety (Mt 6:16-18).

2:19-20 A wedding typically lasted seven days. Guests (lit "sons of the bridal chamber") may refer to wedding guests or the groom's attendants. The groom recalls John the Baptist's designation of Jesus (Jn 3:29). Is taken away suggests forcible removal and shifts the focus to Jesus' coming death. Jesus stated that after He had been violently "taken away" as John the Baptist had been (1:14), His disciples would fast as John's disciples were doing now.

2:21-22 These are Jesus' first parables in Mark. Wineskins were made from soft, pliable goatskins. Old wineskins that already had been used to ferment wine lost their elasticity, became brittle, and would burst if used again, resulting in the loss of the containers and the new wine. Both sayings indicate the impossibility of integrating Jesus' teachings (the new) with the religious structures and practices of traditional Judaism (the old).

2:23-24 What is not lawful does not specify what regulations were broken. The controversy was that they did this on the Sabbath, a day of rest on which no work was permitted (Ex 20:8-11; Dt 5:12-15). Harvesting and threshing grain on the Sabbath was specifically forbidden (Ex 34:21). The ripened grain places this narrative in late spring or early summer. On the Pharisees, see note at verses 15-17.

2:25-26 Jesus defended His disciples by appealing to David's flight from King Saul (1Sm 21:1-6). In the time of Abiathar the high priest is peculiar to Mark (cp. Mt 12:3; Lk 6:3) and is debated because the event actually happened when Abiathar's father Ahimelech was high priest. However, Abiathar was the only high priest to escape Saul's slaughter of the priests (1Sm 22:19-20), and he was well-known throughout David's era. Thus Mark's reference is a fitting approximation. The sacred bread refers to 12 loaves of unleavened bread placed in the temple's holy place to represent Israel's 12 tribes. These were replaced every Sabbath, and only priests could eat them (Lv 24:5-9). Which is not lawful is a repetition of the Pharisees' phrase in verse 24, allowing Jesus to declare that while David's actions were technically a violation of OT law they were not condemned.

2:27-28 Mark alone recorded Jesus' declaration about God's priorities regarding the Sabbath and humans. On Son of Man, see note at verses 8-11. Lord even of the Sabbath turned the issue to Jesus' authority and affirmed His status.

3:1-2 The synagogue that Jesus entered . . . again was probably the one in Capernaum. A paralyzed hand is literally "withered." To accuse is a legal term for bringing a charge against someone (cp. 15:3-4). The Pharisees are almost certainly the ones who were watching Him closely (v. 6). To see whether He would heal indicates they did not question Jesus' ability to heal. They only wanted to know whether He would dare to do so on the Sabbath. Only life-saving medical treatment and preventive medical measures were regarded as legal on the Sabbath.

3:3-4 Stand before us (lit "rise up into the middle") indicates that Jesus was about to heal the man (1:31; 2:9,11-12; 5:41; 10:49). Is it lawful recalls the previous exchange (2:24,26).

3:5 Mark alone mentioned Jesus' anger (Gk orge). It can mean righteous indignation. Sorrow is an intensive form of the same word. The reason for Jesus' emotion was the hardness of their hearts, an expression describing willful rejection of God's truth. Mark used this phrase twice of the disciples (6:52; 8:17).

3:6 Only Mark mentions the Herodians here (cp. Mt 12:14; Lk 6:11). They are also mentioned in Mk 12:13 and Mt 22:16, and possibly alluded to in Mk 8:15. The Herodians were Jewish supporters of Herod the Great and his family, here specifically Herod Antipas of Galilee. The Herodians are allied with the Pharisees in the NT, which is ironic because the Herodians supported Hellenism (Greek influence) while the Pharisees opposed it. The linking of these groups indicates that opposition to Jesus involved the unlikely unification of diverse political and religious factions.

3:7-8 Galilee and Judea, including Jerusalem, were Jewish areas. Idumea was the OT Edomite area south of Judea in the Negev. Its population was mixed Jewish-Gentile. Beyond the Jordan refers to the Jewish area of Perea, east of the Jordan River. Tyre and Sidon were in the old Phoenician area north of Galilee and were largely Gentile, but they included a Jewish presence. The phrase large crowd emphasizes the large area over which Jesus' fame had spread.

3:11-12 On You are the Son of God, compare 1:1,11,24. To this point in Mark, only the Father and the unclean spirits fully understood Jesus' identity. Not to make Him known recalls 1:25,34,44.

3:13-15 The mountain here is not identified. Jesus spent the night praying (Lk 6:12). Summoned those He wanted seems to indicate more than just the 12 disciples (cp. Lk 6:13). The number 12 recalls the 12 tribes of Israel (cp. Mt 19:28; Lk 22:30). Two purpose clauses identify the apostles' functions. They were to be with Him and learn His message, then go out to preach.

3:16-17 Verses 16-19 identify the Twelve men whom Jesus appointed as apostles. The NT contains three other such lists (Mt 10:2-4; Lk 6:14-16; Ac 1:13), and these contain variations in names and order. Peter is first in all lists. Only Mark says that Jesus nicknamed James and John the Sons of Thunder, possibly because of their temperament (Lk 9:54). Peter, James, and John made up Jesus' inner circle (Mk 5:37; 9:2; 14:33).

3:18-19 On Andrew, Peter's brother, see note at 1:16-18. Philip (lit "lover of horses") is not mentioned again in Mark. Bartholomew may be Nathaniel (Jn 1:45-46), otherwise he is not mentioned in the Gospels again. Matthew is mentioned only here in Mark, but he is the same person as Levi the tax collector (2:14; Mt 9:9; 10:3). Thomas appears in Jn 11:16; 20:24. James the son of Alphaeus is not mentioned again. He is distinguished from James who was the son of Zebedee. Thaddaeus is not mentioned again in the NT and is not in Luke's lists (Lk 6:14-16; Ac 1:13). Possibly he is the same as "Judas the son of James" (Lk 6:16; Ac 1:13). Simon the Zealot (cp. Lk 6:15) is literally "Simon the Cananean," an Aramean rendering of "zealous" and not an indication that he was a Canaanite. The term was used of religious and political zealots but here likely refers to Simon's piety (cp. Ac 21:20; 22:3; Gl 1:14) and distinguishes him from Simon Peter. Nothing more is said about him in the NT. Judas Iscariot appears last in each list. "Judas" is the Greek form of "Judah." "Iscariot" probably indicates that he hailed from Kerioth and thus may identify him as the only Judean among the group.

3:20-21 Home probably refers to Capernaum (1:29; 2:1). To this point Mark has not mentioned Jesus' family, and after this extended section they are mentioned only in 6:3. After introducing them in 3:21, Mark picks them up again in verses 31-35. To restrain Him is the same verb used for "arrest" in 6:17; 12:12; 14:1,44. Mark hinted that Jesus' family tried to do what the Jewish authorities sought to do. Neither Matthew nor Luke mention that Jesus' family thought He was out of His mind (cp. Ps 69:8).

3:22 Between the introduction of Jesus' family (v. 21) and discussing their actions (vv. 31-35), Mark placed an incident with the scribes (v. 22) and two parabolic sayings (vv. 23-26,27-30). The description of the scribes as those who had come down from Jerusalem indicates they were an official delegation (cp. 7:1). Said is an imperfect tense, indicating continuous action. What they were saying repeatedly was that He has Beelzebul in Him (see notes at Mt 12:24; Lk 11:14-15) and He drives out demons by the ruler of the demons (see note at Mt 9:34). The scribes and Pharisees did not deny Jesus' power; instead, they attributed His power to Satan (Mk 1:13; cp. Mt 10:25; 12:24,27; Lk 11:15,18-19).

3:23-27 This is the first mention of parables in Mark, though Jesus had already used them (2:17,21-22). A parable is an analogy or comparison that includes proverbial sayings, allegories, or narrative. Jesus used parables to reject the scribes' logic of 3:22. Neither a kingdom nor a house is strengthened by internal divisions. Attacks on Satan's kingdom came not from within but from God's kingdom. In Jesus' reference to external attack on a strong man's house and tying him up, Satan was the strong man (v. 27; cp. Is 49:24-26; Rv 20:1-3).

3:28-30 I assure you is a declaration of Jesus' authority to declare truth. This is the first time it appears in Mark (8:12; 9:1,41; 10:15,29; 11:23; 13:30; 14:25,30). All sins that people commit, including blasphemies (see note at 2:6-7), can be forgiven—except whoever blasphemes against the Holy Spirit. This person never has forgiveness, and is guilty of an eternal sin (a sin with eternal consequences). Blasphemy against the Holy Spirit is attributing Jesus' works to Satan, claiming that Jesus was empowered by evil.

3:31-35 This completes the account begun in verses 20-21. Mark did not name Jesus' mother, His brothers, or His sisters (cp. 6:3). Possibly Joseph was dead by now. The phrases standing outside and sent word indicate there was no direct contact between Jesus and His family, only messages exchanged. Whoever signifies that being part of Jesus' most significant family, His spiritual family, is a possibility for all people.

4:1-20 Between the parable (vv. 3-9) and its interpretation (vv. 13-20), Mark placed Jesus' explanation for why He spoke in parables (vv. 10-12). For Mark, the parable of the seeds and soils was the key to understanding the rest of Jesus' parables (v. 13).

4:1 Again recalls 2:13 and 3:1. The sea refers to the Sea of Galilee (see note at 1:16-18). He got into a boat to use it as a floating platform from which to teach.

4:3 The imperative listen calls for obedience to what is taught, not mere comprehension. The sower represents Jesus.

4:4-7 Three failures based on soil type and circumstances are pictured. The seed that fell along the path did not have time to germinate (profess faith) before birds (Satan) came and ate it up. The seed that fell on rocky ground . . . sprang up, meaning there was early evidence of faith, but it quickly withered when the sun (pressure, persecution) came. The seed that fell among thorns (worries) was choked and didn't produce a crop.

4:8 The seed that fell on good ground . . . produced a crop that increased. Jesus pointed to the productive nature of the good soil versus the unproductive or transitory yield of the others. He reinforced this by specifying a bountiful increase (cp. Gn 26:12) of 30, 60, and 100 times what was sown.

4:9 The phrase anyone who has ears to hear should listen ("should listen" is imperative) recalls His initial admonition ("Listen!") in verse 3 and prepares His listeners for the important information in verses 10-12 (cp. v. 23; 7:14; 8:18).

4:10-12 These verses, among the most difficult in the NT, give Jesus' rationale for teaching in parables. Interpreters are divided as to their meaning. It may be that one of Jesus' purposes in using parables was to deliver judgment against hard-hearted listeners.

4:10 Verses 10-12 were not part of Jesus' lakeside teaching but were spoken when He was alone. This is the first mention of the Twelve since they were chosen in 3:14. Those who were around Him were not just the Twelve. The Greek reads, “those around Him with the Twelve” (cp. 3:34), indicating a larger group.

4:11 Jesus distinguished two audiences: you (pl) to whom revelation has been given (by God) and those outside. Outsiders only heard parables; insiders learned the secret. “Secret” is literally “mystery” (Gk musterion). In the NT, musterion refers not to esoteric knowledge or secret rites that are discoverable by human effort, but to truth that is hidden and can only be known if God reveals it (Dn 2:18-19,27-30,47). The secret relates to the kingdom of God, which is what Jesus came to announce (1:15) and what He will begin to explain in 4:26-32.

4:12 So that (Gk hina) can indicate purpose or result. Thus Jesus’ quotation of Is 6:9-10 either offers the reason for His teaching in parables or describes the result. Matthew 13:13 reads “because” (Gk hoti), and thus states the result of the hearers’ unwillingness, not its cause. Mark’s abbreviated quotation of Is 6:9-10 reverses the first two clauses, drops the first half of verse 10, and changes “and be healed” to and be forgiven. Turn back expresses repentance. “Be forgiven” is a divine passive, meaning “be forgiven by God.”

4:13-20 Jesus responded to the question of verse 10 and interpreted His own parable.

4:13 For Mark this verse is key: Whoever does not understand this parable will not understand any of the parables of Jesus.

4:14-20 In Jesus’ explanation, the seed sown (cp. 1Co 3:5-9) is the word (cp. 2:2); the birds become Satan; the sun and its scorching become pressure or persecution (i.e., religious persecution); withered becomes stumble; the choking from the thorns is specified as the worries of this age, the seduction of wealth, and the desires for other things (i.e., from misplaced priorities, see Mt 6:24-34); and the good ground is identified as those who hear the word, welcome it, and produce a crop. Clearly Jesus’ emphasis was on the word (Gk logos)—used eight times in these verses—and on hear—used four times. Those who hear the word, welcome it, and produce a crop are true disciples, even though they produce varying results (Mt 25:14-30).

4:21-34 Mark concluded his section on Jesus teaching in parables with four epigrams (vv. 21-25), two parables about the kingdom of God (vv. 26-29,30-32), and a brief explanation of Jesus’ parabolic teaching method (vv. 33-34).

4:21-23 Lamp refers to a small clay lamp that was placed on a lampstand to maximize illumination. The lamp represents Jesus. A basket refers to a grain container that would hold about two gallons. The rhetorical questions assume that light should not be hidden. The sayings in verse 22 are an example of synonymous parallelism which emphasizes that Jesus is only temporarily to be concealed.

4:24-25 Pay attention to what you hear reinforces verses 9 and 23 and the emphasis on hearing in verses 13-20. Jesus' words to His disciples are almost the opposite of those given to outsiders in verse 12. Hearing is vital (Rm 10:17), and God will grant more revelation and understanding to those who listen to and respond. Some will neither hear nor benefit from revelation (Mk 4:25).

4:26-29 Mark included two parables related to the kingdom of God (vv. 26-29,30-32; cp. 1:15). Like seed, God's kingdom contains within itself the power to grow. The only human role is planting. Once planted, seeds grow and become a harvest. The sickle is a symbol of the final judgment (Jl 3:13; Rv 14:15).

4:30-32 Mark's second kingdom parable (cp. Mt 13:31-32 and Lk 13:18-19) contrasts a small beginning with disproportionate growth. Technically a mustard seed is not smaller than all the seeds on the ground, but it was apparently the smallest seed used in Jesus' time and thus was metaphorical for very small things (Mt 17:20; Lk 17:6). The mustard seed produces a bush up to six feet tall with large branches on which the birds of the sky can nest. The OT used this image for Gentiles finding a place among God's people (Ps 104:12; Ezk 17:22-23; 31:6; Dn 4:9-21).

4:33-34 Mark concluded his section on Jesus' parabolic teaching with a final explanation. Would speak is imperfect tense, denoting customary action. With many parables like these indicates Mark (and the other Gospel writers) included only a selection of Jesus' parables (cp. v. 2). As they were able to understand is literally "as they were able to hear." He did not speak to them without a parable indicates that parables were Jesus' regular method of public teaching, but in private He would explain everything to His own disciples.

4:35 On that day refers to the same day that Jesus delivered His teaching in verses 1-34. When evening had come is typical of Mark's dual references in which the second time marker is more specific than the first. In this case the words indicate that Jesus had been teaching all day and they help build suspense for what follows since a storm on the water at night is more frightening. The other side of the sea refers to the eastern side, which was Gentile territory.

4:37 The Greek term for "furious squall" is used here and in Lk 8:23 to describe the fierce windstorm, whereas Mt 8:24 used a phrase that means "sea-quake." The Sea of Galilee lies almost 700 feet below sea level. It is surrounded by highlands. To the northeast is Mount Hermon, which rises over 9,000 feet above sea level. When the cold air from Mount Hermon meets the rising warm air from the sea, it often results in a storm that sweeps down on to the lake from the heights. Because fishing boats of the day had low sides, the boat was already being swamped.

4:38 The stern (rear) of the boat had a raised deck on which fishermen could sit or lay. The cushion was for the helmsman. For the only time recorded in the Gospels, Jesus was sleeping. Exhausted from teaching, He entrusted Himself to God (cp. v. 27; Ps 3:5; 4:8). Don't You care that we're going to die was softened in Mt 8:25 and Lk 8:24. The words recall Jnh 1:14.

4:39 The phrase Silence! Be still! recalls the exorcism of 1:25 in which Jesus rebuked and silenced the demon. The use of the perfect tense means "be still, and stay still." Nature responded immediately. The great calm of verse 39 contrasts with the great storm of verse 37. This transformation was accomplished by just a word from Jesus.

4:40 Jesus' rebuke of His disciples was not as harsh in Mt 8:26 and Lk 8:25. Fearful refers to timidity and lack of confidence in God. Faith is trust in God. Lack of faith thus made them fearful in the crisis.

4:41 They were terrified is literally "they feared a great fear." The great storm that Jesus turned into great calm now led to great fear. Their terror is understandable in light of the teaching that only God can make the wind and the sea obey Him (cp. Ps 65:7; 89:8-9).

5:1-20 The healing of the demoniac is recorded in Mt 8:28-34 in shortened form and in Lk 8:26-39. Jesus brought calm to a raging man just as He brought calm to the raging sea.

5:1 The region where Jesus and His disciples landed is unclear.

5:2 A man is reported as "two demon-possessed men" in Mt 8:28. On unclean spirit, see note at 1:23-24.

5:3-5 Mark's description is the most detailed in the Gospels. Three times he mentioned the tombs where the demoniac lived. They were cut from rock or were natural mountain caves. Tombs, burial places, and items associated with the dead were unclean for Jews. Though shackles and chains were repeatedly used, no one was able to restrain or subdue him. "Subdue" can refer to taming a wild animal (Jms 3:7). The man's supernatural strength is indicated by the fact that he snapped off the chains and smashed the shackles. The man was always . . . crying out, his shrieks echoing among the tombs and in the mountains. He was a danger to himself and others.

5:6 From a distance does not indicate discrepancy between verses 2 and 6. Verse 6 resumes the story from verse 2 after Mark's description of the demon-possessed man.

5:7 What do You have to do with me virtually repeats the unclean spirit's words from 1:24. The demoniac's identification of Jesus as Son of the Most High God answered the disciples' question from 4:41 and underscored that the spirits knew who Jesus was. Ironically the spirits asked Jesus not to torment them as they had tormented the possessed man.

5:9 My name is Legion indicated the strength of the demons. A Roman military legion consisted of about 6,000 soldiers (cp. the number of pigs in v. 13). The name "Legion" thus serves to indicate a large number (because we are many), explains the supernatural strength of the man, and magnifies the fact that Jesus was the "more powerful" One (1:7) who could "enter a strong man's house" and tie him up (3:27).

5:10 Out of the region may refer to the false idea that demons were territorial.

5:11 Pigs were unclean to Jews. Herding them was forbidden (Lv 11:7; Dt 14:8). The large herd reminds us that this event took place in a Gentile area.

5:12 In verse 10 the unclean spirits begged Jesus not to send them out of the region. In this verse they begged to be sent into unclean animals.

5:13 Drowned refers to the pigs, not the spirits (cp. Mt 12:43-44). None of the Gospel authors comment on the loss of animal life or its economic impact. The action of the demon-possessed pigs reemphasizes the self-destructive impulse caused by demon possession (Mk 5:5).

5:15 Sitting . . . dressed . . . in his right mind proved the man's healing. They were afraid echoes the reaction of the disciples in 4:41. Ironically, the people were more afraid of the One who cast out demons than they were of the demoniac.

5:17-18 The spirits begged Jesus (vv. 10,12), the people of the region begged Jesus (v. 17), and now the healed man kept begging to stay with Jesus.

5:19-20 Jesus told the man to tell his own people . . . how much the Lord had done for him. People changed by Jesus must tell the world about His miraculous works. The Decapolis (lit "Ten Cities") refers to a league of 10 Greek cities spread throughout Syria, Jordan, and Palestine. They were predominantly Gentile and were largely independent from Rome.

5:21-43 The intertwined miracles involving Jairus's daughter and the bleeding woman occur in all three Synoptic Gospels (cp. Mt 9:18-26; Lk 8:40-56). Both miracles involved uncleanness.

5:21 The other side refers to the western side of the Sea of Galilee. Mark has already recorded key ministry events by the sea (1:16-20; 2:13-15; 4:1-34). Mark's description of Jesus' return is virtually identical to that given in 4:1 before He crossed the lake.

5:22-23 Synagogue leaders such as Jairus were respected laymen responsible for synagogue oversight and activities. Fell at His feet and kept begging Him shows Jairus's desperate concern for his little daughter. Luke recorded that she was his only daughter (Lk 8:42). The ruler's request lay Your hands on her shows awareness of Jesus' method in other healings (1:31,41; 6:5; 7:32; 8:23,25). Jairus's word for get well also means "be saved." The same word was used of the woman in verse 28 and in Jesus' proclamation in verse 34.

5:25-26 The implication is that the woman suffering from bleeding was beset with vaginal bleeding, making her unclean according to OT law (Lv 15:19-33). That this had gone on for 12 years (cp. v. 42) and that she had been treated by many doctors but not helped at all indicates an illness that was beyond the help of current medicine.

5:27-29 The climax that has been building since verse 25 is finally reached with touched. The woman fulfilled her intent to reach out and touch Jesus. His robe is clarified in Mt 9:20 and Lk 8:44 as "the tassel." Many Jews wore tassels on the corners of their outer garments (Nm 15:38-39; Dt 22:12). On instantly, see note at 1:9-11.

5:30-31 At once are the same words as "instantly" (v. 29). As soon as the woman was healed, Jesus knew that power (Gk dunamis) had gone out from Him. This reaction is not reported in His other healings.

5:32-33 Fell down before Him recalls the actions of Jairus (v. 22) and the demoniac (v. 6).

5:34 Only here did Jesus address someone as daughter. It reassured the trembling woman. Your faith has made you well recalls the healing of the paralytic in 2:5 and anticipates 10:52. Go in peace was the usual Hebrew blessing at dismissal (Ex 4:18; Jdg 18:6; 1Sm 1:17; 25:35; 2Kg 5:19; Lk 7:50; Ac 16:36; Jms 2:16). Jesus used the word affliction (v. 29) to assure the woman that her cure was permanent.

5:35 This resumes Jairus's story (vv. 21-24) after the interruption. Precious time had been lost, with the result that the girl had died.

5:36 Jesus' words to Jairus (only believe) are a present tense imperative, "Keep believing."

5:37 On other important occasions (9:2; 14:33), Peter, James, and John accompanied Jesus while the other disciples waited behind (see note at 1:16-20).

5:38-39 The commotion and people weeping and wailing were typical of Middle Eastern funerals. Flute players were also present (Mt 9:23). The mourners could have been friends or hired professionals. Before even seeing the girl, Jesus declared she was not dead but asleep. This earned Him much derision. He meant that her sleep was not the sleep of final death.

5:40 The laughing indicates skepticism and mockery. Those who were with Him refers to Peter, James, and John (v. 37).

5:41 Taking the girl's body by the hand technically made Jesus unclean. Talitha koum (lit "little lamb, arise!") is Aramaic. Her spirit returned at this command (Lk 8:55).

5:42-43 That Jesus arranged for the girl to get something to eat proves His practical concern for her.

6:1 Jesus' hometown was Nazareth (see note at 1:9-11).

6:2 The words He began to teach assume Jesus was invited to do so. Unlike Luke (Lk 4:16-21), Mark did not focus on the content of Jesus' teaching. In Galilee Jesus regularly taught (Mk 1:21-22,39) or performed miracles (1:23-28,39; 3:1-6) in the synagogues. After His rejection at Nazareth, there is no record of Jesus entering a synagogue again. Synagogues are only mentioned again in Mark as places of hypocrisy and persecution (12:39; 13:9). As was true in Capernaum (1:22), people in Nazareth were astonished by Jesus' teaching.

6:3 This is the only place in the NT where Jesus is called a carpenter. The parallel in Mt 13:55 reads, "Isn't this the carpenter's son?" Luke 4:22 has, "Isn't this Joseph's son?" A carpenter (Gk tekton) was a craftsman in wood and stone. Son of Mary may hint at Jesus' supposed illegitimacy or indicate that Joseph had died (no mention is made of him in v. 4 or elsewhere in Mark, but see Jn 6:42). This is the only time Jesus' mother is mentioned by name in Mark. Jesus' brother James later became leader of the Jerusalem church and was killed on orders from the high priest in A.D. 62 (Josephus, Ant ., 20.9.1). He authored the book of James. Judas probably was the author of the book of Jude. Joses ("Joseph") and Simon are not named again in the NT (but see Jn 2:12; 7:5; Ac 1:14; 1Co 9:5). Jesus' sisters are not named, but the plural indicates He had more than one.

6:4 Jesus used this self-applied proverb elsewhere (Jn 4:44). In Mark's version (cp. parallels in Mt 13:57; Lk 4:24) Jesus named three settings where a prophet is dishonored—in his hometown, among his relatives (referring to 3:20-21,31-35), and in his household.

6:5-6a Matthew treats He was not able not as a statement about limitations of power but as a statement of fact ("He did not do," Mt 13:58). The reason was the people's unbelief. Previously they were astonished at Jesus (v. 2). In an ironic twist, Mark alone ended the narrative (cp. Lk 4:25-30) with Jesus being amazed at them. What amazed Him was their "lack of faith." The people of Nazareth did not refer to Jesus by name but only as "this man," a sign of contempt.

6:6 b This is the third time Jesus went on a preaching circuit in Galilee (1:14,39).

6:7 He summoned the Twelve recalls 3:13. To send them out recalls 3:14. Authority over unclean spirits recalls 3:15. In pairs reflects common-sense wisdom (Ec 4:9-10) and was Jesus' usual practice (Mk 11:1; 14:13; Lk 10:1), which was followed in the early church (Ac 8:14; 9:38; 11:30; 12:25; 13:2; 15:39-40). The practice ensured companionship and mutual support, and it fulfilled the OT requirement of two witnesses (Dt 17:6; 19:15; 2Co 13:1). "The Twelve" are called "apostles" after they returned (Mk 6:30).

6:8-9 According to Mark, the disciples were to take a walking stick . . . belts . . . sandals . . . shirt. These were the same items God told the Israelites to take on their departure from Egypt (Ex 12:11). Matthew and Luke's accounts prohibited the walking stick (Mt 10:10; Lk 9:3) and Matthew also forbade sandals (Mt 10:10; cp. Lk 10:4). According to Mark, they were not to take bread, a traveling bag . . . money, or an extra shirt.

6:10-11 The disciples were to stay in one home until they left a given town and not look for better lodging. If they were not welcomed, they were to shake the dust off their feet. Jesus elaborated more on this when He sent out the 70 (Lk 10:10-11), and it was the practice of the earliest missionaries (Ac 13:51; cp. Ac 18:6). As a testimony against them can be rendered "as a witness to them," signifying a call to repentance (cp. Mk 1:44; 13:9).

6:12-13 That people should repent was the content of their preaching, modeling the messages of John the Baptist (1:4) and Jesus (1:15). The ministry of the Twelve is summarized as preaching and teaching (6:30), exorcism, and healing. Anointing . . . sick people with olive oil is mentioned only here, in a parable in Luke 10:34, and in James 5:14.

6:14-15 The story of Herod Antipas, Herodias, and John is similar to that of Ahab, Jezebel, and Elijah in 1Kg 21. In fact, Elijah's name is closely tied to this story (Mk 6:15). King Herod was Herod Antipas (born 20 B.C.), a son of Herod the Great. He ruled Galilee and Perea from 4 B.C. to A.D. 39. Jesus had become well known because of His circuit preaching and the mission of the Twelve. The three opinions about Jesus' identity (that He was John the Baptist . . . Elijah, or a prophet) are given again in 8:28 as reflections of popular opinion.

6:16-17 Herod's belief that Jesus was John the Baptist resurrected prompted him to reflect fearfully on the one he had beheaded (see Josephus, Ant., 18.5.2). John was imprisoned (1:14) on account of Herodias. Herodias was formerly married to Herod's half-brother, Herod Philip, and had a daughter with him named Salome. Herod Antipas convinced Herodias to leave Philip and marry him instead. To clear the way, Herod Antipas had to divorce his own wife.

6:18 John the Baptist repeatedly condemned this marriage as not lawful (Lv 18:16; 20:21).

6:19-20 These verses contrast Herodias's and Herod Antipas's conflicting opinions about John the Baptist. Herodias held a grudge . . . wanted to kill him, and asked for a way to do so (all imperfect tense verbs). Antipas, on the other hand, was in awe of John . . . was protecting him, and considered him a righteous and holy man.

6:21 It is ironic that wicked Herod's birthday became the death day for righteous John.

6:22 Mark did not name Salome, but the Jewish historian Josephus did (Josephus, Ant., 18.5.4). Girl (vv. 22,28) is the same word Jesus used of the 12-year-old in 5:41. Danced and pleased do not necessarily carry a nuance of sensuousness, though it is possible.

6:23 Herod's oath recalls King Ahasuerus's words to Esther (Est 5:3,6; 7:2). Since Antipas was only an underlord to Rome, the promise was a hyperbolic figure of speech, not a literal promise (cp. 1Kg 13:8).

6:24-25 From this point the story moves quickly to conclusion. Note the double reference to immediately (vv.25,27) and the words hurried and right now in verse 25. Salome was a pawn in her mother's hands. When she sought to fulfill her mother's wish, she literally said to the king, "I desire that at once you may give to me upon a platter the head of John the Baptist."

6:26-28 Herod was deeply distressed. The only other time Mark used this word was concerning Jesus in the garden of Gethsemane (14:33).

6:30-31 Mark referred to the Twelve as the apostles only here and in 3:14 when they were appointed. Reported to Him all that they had done and taught refers to the mission of verses 7-13. A remote place recalls 1:3-5,12-13,35,45 and provides the ideal setting for the miracle that echoes the provision of bread in the wilderness. They did not even have time to eat recalls 3:20 and prepares the way for the story that follows.

6:32 Mark did not name the remote place (cp. Lk 9:10). In Mark this was Jesus' third journey by boat (4:35-5:1,21-22).

6:34 The word for compassion refers to intestinal organs, which were thought to be the seat of the emotions. The word is only used of Jesus in the NT (see note at 1:40-45). Jesus saw the people as leaderless and needy (like sheep without a shepherd). In fulfillment of Is 40:11, Jesus cared for His flock.

6:35-44 The feeding of the 5,000 is the only miracle recorded in all four Gospels (Mt 14:13-21; Lk 9:10-17; Jn 6:1-15).

6:35-36 The words this place is a wilderness mark the third mention of the remoteness of the place (vv. 31-32,35). After pointing out it was already late, the disciples commanded Jesus to send them away.

6:37 Jesus responded with a command of His own. You is emphatic. Two hundred denarii would be about a year's salary. Obviously the disciples did not have that much money since they had just returned from a mission on which they had taken no bread or money (v. 8). Feeding this many people was a big challenge. (Cp. Moses' wilderness situation in Ex 16:1-35; Nm 11:13,22; and Elijah's in 2Kg 4:42-44.) 6:38 The disciples focused on what they lacked, but Jesus focused on what they had—five . . . loaves and two fish. The loaves were probably small, round, flat barley biscuits; the fish were probably dried.

6:39-40 Sit down is literally "recline," the traditional position for dining. Matthew (14:19) and John (6:10) mentioned the grass on which the people sat, but only Mark said it was green, indicating springtime.

6:41 Looking up to heaven was a position of prayer (cp. 7:34). The Gospel writers did not record Jesus' prayer, but the traditional Jewish blessing over bread would have been appropriate: "Blessed art Thou, Lord our God, King of the world, who bringeth forth bread from the earth."

6:42 The word was filled is used of fattening animals. Thus Jesus provided abundance, not just sustenance.

6:43 The 12 baskets matches the number of apostles and tribes of Israel. The word for "baskets" denotes large, heavy containers.

6:44 A total of 5,000 men were fed. Mark's word (Gk) andres ("males") is gender specific. Matthew added "besides women and children" (Mt 14:21) which mean that considerably more than 5,000 people were fed.

6:45 The word immediately is characteristic of Mark's style (see note at 1:9-11). Made is a strong verb that carries the sense of "compelled." Mark did not say why Jesus rushed His disciples away, but Jn 6:14-15 indicates that the people wanted to make Him king.

6:46 After He said good-bye to them refers to the disciples. For the second time in Mark, Jesus went off by Himself to pray.

6:48 The phrases being battered (lit "tormented") as they rowed and the wind was against them do not picture the same situation as 4:35-41 when Jesus calmed wind and sea. Around three in the morning (lit "around the fourth watch of the night") reflects the Roman method of dividing the night into four watches. The fourth was from 3:00 a.m. to 6:00 a.m. Walking on the sea is meant literally and is verbally parallel to "on the land" (v. 47).

6:49 The disciples thought Jesus was a ghost (Gk phantasma), which expresses the idea of illusion.

6:50 Jesus reassured the disciples with two commands: Have courage and don't be afraid. The words It is I are literally "I am" (Gk Ego Eimi), the divine name of God in Ex 3:14 (cp. Is 41:4; 43:10-11; 48:12). Jesus did what God alone could do and used God's name to identify Himself.

6:51 In 4:35-41 the wind ceased when Jesus commanded it to stop; here it stopped when He got into the boat. "Astounded" was the usual reaction to Jesus' power (1:22,27; 2:12; 5:15,20,42).

6:52 Mark diagnosed a twofold problem: the disciples had not understood and their hearts were hardened. Hard hearts (spiritual insensitivity) characterized the Pharisees at the synagogue in Capernaum (3:5).

6:53-56 This is Mark's third summary of Jesus' ministry (cp. 1:35-39; 3:7-12).

6:53 Gennesaret was a fertile plain on the western shore of the Sea of Galilee between Capernaum and Tiberius.

6:54 The people immediately recognized Jesus. This contrasts with the disciples, who had failed to recognize Him (v. 49).

6:55 The mats on which the sick were carried were the same type used by the paralytic (2:2-12).

6:56 Villages, towns, and country sum up the entire region of Galilee. Marketplaces (Gk agora) were the busiest centers of local life. The statement that the sick . . . begged Jesus to heal them recalls the man with skin disease (1:40), the demoniac (5:10,12,17-18), and the synagogue ruler (5:23) where the same word is used. Their desire to touch just the tassel of His robe recalls the desire of the bleeding woman (5:28).

7:1-23 This is Jesus' longest conflict speech in the Gospel of Mark.

7:1 On the Pharisees and scribes, see notes at 1:21-22; 2:15-17; and 3:22.

7:2 As in 2:18,24, the dispute occurred over the actions of Jesus' disciples. Unclean . . . hands refers to ritual cleansing, not hygiene.

7:3-4 These verses are an explanatory parenthesis. This is Mark's only reference to the Jews as a group. Wash their hands ritually (lit "wash their hands with the fist") could refer to washing with a fistful of water, or washing up to the wrist. The tradition of the elders (cp. vv. 5,8-9,13) refers to oral traditions which had grown up around the written law. Such traditions became the heart of rabbinic Judaism. Apparently when the Pharisees returned from the marketplace they did more than just ritually wash their hands; they thoroughly purified themselves.

7:5 Jesus replied in verse 8 that the tradition of the elders is merely "the tradition of men."

7:6-7 The word for hypocrites referred to an actor who hid behind a mask. Thus the word meant "pretender." Jesus' quotation from Is 29:13 clearly defined what a hypocrite was and focused on God's condemnation of those who taught as doctrines the commands of men.

7:8-9 Jesus accused the scribes and Pharisees of disregarding the command of God while keeping the tradition of men. They made their oral traditions more important than God's law.

7:10 By quoting the fifth commandment (Ex 20:12; Dt 5:16) and Ex 21:17 (Lv 20:9), Jesus introduced a specific example of what He charged in Mk 7:8-9.

7:11-13 You say is emphatic and pits the rabbis' teaching against God's word.

The rabbinic custom of Corban (modified from Lv 27:28; Nm 18:14) allowed a person to devote all his material goods to the Lord. The rabbis shamefully allowed Corban to excuse sons from meeting the material needs of their aging parents. You do many other similar things emphasized that the Corban practice was representative of other hypocritical Pharisaic practices.

7:14-16 Jesus broadened His audience to the crowd and expanded His topic to true defilement. Verse 15 is the heart of His teaching. A person is defiled by what comes out, not what goes in.

7:17-18 The disciples asked Jesus privately about the parable of verse 15. Jesus repeated what He had said and rebuked them for their lack of understanding.

7:19 What goes into a person's stomach doesn't defile because it is digested and eliminated. Recall that Mark was written under Peter's influence and that Peter learned in Ac 10:15 that all foods are clean. Thus the parenthetical statement of Mk 7:19 indicates that Mark, Peter, and others looked back afresh on Jesus' saying and realized that He had pronounced all foods clean. They failed fully to grasp this when Jesus originally uttered it.

7:20-23 Jesus listed 13 moral problems to illustrate His point about internal defilement. The first seven are plural and indicate repeated acts. Sexual immoralities (Gk porneia) includes all illicit sexual practices outside marriage. Evil actions is a term for maliciousness. The last six evils are all singular, indicating attitudes. Stinginess is literally "the evil eye." It refers to jealousy, envy, covetousness, and a grudging attitude. Blasphemy includes slander of others (cp. 2Tm 3:2). The word for pride refers to exalting oneself above others. Foolishness is lack of moral judgment.

7:24-8:10 These verses describe Jesus' ministry in the Gentile areas of Tyre, Sidon, and the Decapolis.

7:24 Tyre was on the Mediterranean coast northwest of Galilee. Jesus went to the region of Tyre, which refers to the administrative district around Tyre and not to the city itself. Sidon was about 20 miles north of Tyre. Persons from these areas had earlier traveled to Galilee to hear Jesus (3:8).

7:25-26 This woman was not ethnically Greek. Rather, she was a Gentile who lived according to Greek culture. A Syrophoenician (a Phoenician from Syria) reflects Mark's use of double expression, with the second term being more specific. Fell at His feet recalls the actions of Jairus (5:23) and the Gerasene demoniac (5:6).

7:27 In Jesus' curt statement, the children refers to the Jews (cp. Mt 15:24). Jews typically referred to Gentiles as dogs. Since Jews considered dogs unclean (Ex 22:31; 1Kg 21:23; 22:38; 2Kg 9:36; Pr 26:11; Mt 7:6; 2Pt 2:22), calling someone a dog was an insult (1Sm 17:43; 24:14; 2Sm 16:9; Is 56:10-11).

7:28 Lord can be a divine title or just a polite address. The woman asserted that even though dogs did not eat with the children at the table, they did eat the crumbs that fell to the floor (cp. Lk 16:21). She accepted the priority of Jesus' mission to the Jews but pointed out that Israel's privileges did not exclude Gentiles from enjoying the overflow.

7:29-30 The narrative returns to the exorcism, which was the occasion for the woman's coming to Jesus. His words because of this reply in Matthew's account focused on the greatness of the woman's faith (Mt 15:28).

7:31-37 This account is likely part of a larger healing ministry in the Decapolis that Matthew summarized (Mt 15:29-31). Jesus' reception this time contrasts with that of His first visit (cp. Mk 5:17) and possibly hints at the success of the Gerasene demoniac's proclamation (5:20).

7:31 By way of Sidon . . . the Decapolis indicates Jesus traveled more than 20 miles farther north before turning southeast. The entire journey was more than 120 miles. On the Decapolis, see note at 5:19-20.

7:32 A speech difficulty is also used in the Greek version of Is 35:5-6, a passage that Jesus fulfilled with this miracle.

7:33-34 Only here and in 8:22-26 did Jesus take the person He healed aside privately. Spitting (cp. 8:23) probably means Jesus spit into His hand and applied saliva to the man's tongue (Jn 9:6). Looking up to heaven is a sign of prayer (see note at 6:41). Sighed deeply indicates Jesus' deep emotional involvement. Mark translates the Aramaic word Ephphatha parenthetically (cp. 5:41).

7:35 His speech difficulty was removed is literally "the chain of his tongue was broken." He began to speak clearly indicates that, like many deaf people, he was previously able to make sounds but not form coherent words.

7:36 Proclaim is the word Mark used for telling others about Jesus (Gk kerysso). The people of the Decapolis now responded as the Gerasene demoniac had done (5:20).

7:37 While Jesus' other healing miracles brought astonishment and amazement (1:22,27; 2:12; 5:20,42; 6:2,6,51), this is the only time that extremely or "beyond all measure" appears. He has done everything well echoes the Septuagint wording of Gn 1:31. Once again, Jesus had done what only God could do (Ex 4:11).

8:1-10 The feeding of the 4,000 fulfilled the request of the Syrophoenician woman in 7:28 for the Gentiles to eat the children's crumbs.

8:1 In those days refers to the time Jesus spent in the Decapolis (7:31).

8:7 The phrase a few small fish can refer to sardines or fish scraps.

8:8 Were filled is literally "were satisfied." Seven large baskets corresponds to the number of loaves (v. 5). The Greek word for "baskets" differs from the Jewish term in 6:43. This term refers to a hamper large enough to hold a person (Ac 9:25).

8:9 The number 4,000 men is not gender specific as in 6:44. It implies men, women, and children (as Mt 15:38 makes clear).

8:10 The district of Dalmanutha is only mentioned here in the NT and in ancient literature. Matthew identified the place as Magadan.

8:11 Back on the western side of the lake, Jesus was again accosted by the Pharisees. On Pharisees, see note at 2:15-17. A sign from heaven could refer to "a sign from God" or to "a cosmic phenomenon." The Pharisees demanded further divine confirmation to test Jesus. They were trying to discredit Him and His authority.

8:12 The word for sighing deeply points to despair rather than anger. In His spirit (cp. 2:8) refers to Jesus' inner being and the depth of His dismay.

8:13 He left them marks Jesus' break with the Pharisees. After verse 15 they are mentioned only in 10:2 and 12:13. The other side where Jesus went was Bethsaida on the northeastern shore of the Sea of Galilee (see note at v. 22).

8:14 One loaf of bread was not enough to feed those in the boat.

8:15 Jesus' double warning indicates strong admonition. Yeast permeates, spreads, and grows. It is a symbol for evil or corruption (1Co 5:6-8; Gl 5:9). In Matthew the yeast is identified as the teaching of the Pharisees (Mt 16:6), while in Luke it is their hypocrisy (Lk 12:1). After this, nothing more is said about yeast or Pharisees.

8:16-20 Jesus used the disciples' discussion about bread to rebuke them. His reference to deafness recalled His healing of a deaf man (7:32-37); His reference to blindness anticipated His next miracle (8:22-26). He was disappointed that His disciples lacked spiritual perception.

8:21 This repeats the question of verse 17. The disciples still did not get it. This is Jesus' most severe rebuke of the disciples in the Gospel of Mark, but there was a bright spot. They didn't understand yet what Jesus was about.

8:22-10:52 In this section, Jesus completed His ministry in Galilee and began His journey to Jerusalem. It was time to leave the crowds, limit His miracles, and teach the disciples about His impending death.

8:22 Bethsaida, on the northeastern shore of the Sea of Galilee, was the hometown of Philip, Andrew, and Peter (Jn 1:44; 12:21). Mark did not record Jesus' previous visit to Bethsaida, but Luke associated it with the feeding of the 5,000 (Lk 9:10). They brought presumably refers to the blind man's friends (cp. 2:3-5; 7:32). This is Mark's first account about the healing of a blind man (cp.

10:46-52).

8:23 Jesus' taking the blind man out of the village and then spitting on him recalls 7:33 (cp. Jn 9:6-7). Laying His hands on him recalls 5:23; 6:2,5.

8:24 After Jesus' first action, the man's vision was only partially restored. This is the only miracle of Jesus in which healing did not occur immediately and completely.

8:26 No reason is given for Jesus' command to avoid the village.

8:27-30 Peter's confession near Caesarea Philippi is the watershed of Mark's Gospel.

8:27-28 Caesarea Philippi was 25 miles north of Bethsaida in the foothills of Mount Hermon. Caesar Augustus gave the city to Herod the Great. Herod's son Philip rebuilt and enlarged it and renamed it in honor of Caesar Augustus. The villages refers to surrounding settlements. Jesus' question and the disciples' response recall the opinions voiced to Antipas in 6:14-15.

8:29 The words but you are emphatic and call for a deeper answer. Jesus asked His disciples to state their own belief. Peter responded, You are the Messiah. This is the first time in Mark's Gospel that a person made this identification. To this point, only God (1:11) and demons (1:24,34; 3:11; 5:7) had testified to Jesus' true identity. The word "Messiah" (Christ) means "anointed one," and refers to God's appointed deliverer and King.

8:30 Strictly warned is the same Greek verb Jesus used (1:25; 3:12) to silence unclean spirits. His command to tell no one was a response to the popular misunderstanding that Messiah would be a military conqueror. Jesus had to teach His disciples that Messiah would actually suffer and die.

8:31 This is the first of three times in Mark that Jesus predicted His death (see notes at 9:31; 10:33-34). On Son of Man, see note at 2:8-11. Jesus will now use this title often, including in His death predictions. Must suffer points to the necessity of His suffering and death. The elders, the chief priests, and the scribes were the three power groups of the Sanhedrin, the ruling Jewish body. Jesus would be killed, not by a lawless mob but by Israel's religious leaders.

The disciples earlier asked each other who Jesus was (4:35-41). Later, in the vicinity of the Banias waterfall near Caesarea Philippi, Jesus asked His disciples this question (8:27-30).

8:32 Peter could not accept a suffering Messiah. He took Jesus aside in a bid to convince Him to stop speaking of His death.

8:33 Get behind Me, Satan are the same words Jesus spoke to the Devil during the wilderness temptation (Mt 4:10).

8:34 The kind of Messiah Jesus was had implications for anyone who wanted to be His follower. An incorrect understanding of Jesus' messiahship leads to an incorrect understanding of discipleship. Deny himself is found only here and in the parallels (Mt 16:24; Lk 9:23). It refers to a denial of self-centered interests. To take up a cross referred to the fact that crucifixion victims were made to carry the crossbeam to the site of their execution.

8:35-37 The words save and lose show that Jesus was speaking not merely of physical life but of the essence of humanity: the soul. The sure way to save the soul is to lose it (entrust it to Jesus). There is no exchange rate high enough for the soul; money cannot buy it. Jesus' words echo Ps 49:7-9.

8:38 The phrase My words refers to the gospel. This adulterous and sinful generation is used only here in the NT (cp. Mt 12:39; 16:4) and is based on the language of OT prophets (Is 1:4; 57:3-13; Ezk 16:32-41; Hs 2:2-6). Jesus' present rejection contrasts with His future glory. His coming with the holy angels is spelled out in 13:26-27.

9:1 Jesus previously used this solemn introductory formula (I assure you) in 3:28 and 8:12. Some standing here is clarified by verse 2. Until they see the kingdom of God come in power is clarified by Jesus' transfiguration in verses 2-13. This saying precedes the transfiguration in all three Synoptic Gospels (Mt 16:28; Lk 9:27).

9:2 Six days appears to refer to the time between Peter's confession and Jesus' transfiguration. It may also tie Jesus' experience to Moses' (Ex 24:15-17). On Peter, James, and John as Jesus' inner circle, see note at 1:16-20. The high mountain is often identified as Mount Tabor, but Mount Hermon or Mount Meron may be better candidates. Transformed is from the Greek verb from which our word metamorphosis comes (Mt 17:2; Rm 12:2; 2Co 3:18). Jesus' nature was not changed but unveiled.

9:3 Dazzling connotes extreme whiteness that is beyond natural explanation (Mt 17:2 describes them as "white as the light"). Matthew (17:2; cp. Lk 9:29) added that Jesus' face glowed like the sun (cp. Ex 34:35).

9:4 Mark probably intended to indicate Moses as the greater OT figure by saying Elijah appeared with Moses. Luke said they were talking about Jesus' death (Lk 9:31, lit "Jesus' exodus").

9:5 The three tabernacles Peter mentioned relate to the Jewish custom of building booth-like shelters during the Feast of Tabernacles (Lv 23:39-43). Perhaps Peter wished to prolong this experience, but his words wrongly implied equality among the three persons.

9:6 Peter proves that when you don't know what to say, it's best to keep quiet. But he was not alone in his uncertainty; all the disciples were terrified.

9:7 A cloud is often a symbol of God's presence in the OT (Ex 40:34-38). The voice from within echoes Ex 24:15-18. Them probably refers to all six persons on the mountain. The divine announcement recalls the divine words at Jesus' baptism (see note at 1:9-11). This time Jesus' Sonship is confirmed to others, not just to Jesus, and the hearers are told to listen to Him (cp. Dt 18:15). God's words affirmed Jesus' teaching in Mk 8:31-38 about His suffering and the requirements for discipleship.

9:8 Not even Moses or Elijah can compare with Jesus. The spotlight was on Him and Him alone.

9:9 Nine times in Mark's Gospel Jesus enjoined people to be quiet about His messiahship. This is the only time when He put a time limit on the injunction. Jesus' prohibition indicated that His glory and mission could not be understood fully until after His death and resurrection.

9:10 This verse indicates continued lack of understanding among Jesus' inner circle (cp. 8:31).

9:11 On the scribes, see note at 1:21-22. The question here was based on Mal 4:5-6.

9:12-13 Jesus affirmed the scribal teaching about Elijah and his role, but Elijah's coming did not change the fact that the Son of Man . . . must suffer many things (cp. 8:31). Jesus then made two startling statements: Elijah had come already, and he suffered because the people did whatever they pleased to him. Jesus was identifying Elijah with John the Baptist. The treatment John received (6:16-29) foreshadowed the way Jesus would be treated.

9:14-29 These verses reveal what the other disciples were doing while Jesus and His inner circle were on the Mount of Transfiguration. Mark's account is twice as long as the parallels (Mt 17:14-20; Lk 9:37-43).

9:14 The scribes, again showing hostility toward the disciples (cp. 2:6,16; 3:22; 7:1), have no further role in Mark's account.

9:15 Only Mark in the entire NT used the verb for were amazed (cp. 14:33; 16:5-6). It refers to intense emotion.

9:17-18 That the disciples couldn't drive . . . out this demon is surprising because Jesus had commissioned them to do this (3:15; 6:7) and they had previously succeeded in doing so (6:13). The symptoms were similar to epilepsy, but Mark said they were the result of unclean spirits (9:17,20,25).

9:19 Jesus' words you unbelieving generation recalls 8:38.

9:20 The reaction of the spirit when it saw Jesus was similar to that of other demonic spirits (see notes at 1:25-26 and 5:7).

9:22 To destroy him shows the evil intention of demons. The father asked for help based on Jesus' compassion (see notes at 1:40-45 and 6:34). If You can was an appropriate qualifier, considering the disciples' failure to cast out the demon.

9:23 At issue was not Jesus' ability but the father's faith—everything is possible to the one who believes (cp. 5:36; 10:27).

9:24 Both faith and unbelief resided in the father's heart. Mark previously used unbelief when describing the people of Nazareth (see note at 6:5-6a).

9:25 The demonic spirit was mute and deaf, rendering the boy mute (v. 17). When Jesus issued the command to come out of him, He used a word that emphasized His authority. The demon was able to resist the disciples, but not the Lord. Jesus' command to never enter him again is unique in all the exorcisms in the Gospels.

9:26-27 The unclean spirit responded like one that Jesus had cast out earlier (see note at 1:25-26).

9:28-29 To the disciples' question why, Jesus told them this kind (apparently a very resistant and powerful evil being) required spiritual preparation on the part of the exorcist, specifically prayer and fasting.

9:30 This is the last reference in Mark to Galilee until after Jesus' resurrection (see 14:28; 16:7 and notes there).

9:31 Jesus' second death prediction is the briefest of the three (see notes at 8:31; 10:33-34), and has much in common with the others. The new element in this prediction is that He would be betrayed. The words teaching and telling are imperfect tenses, indicating repeated instruction.

9:32 Luke explained why the disciples did not understand: "It was concealed from them so that they could not grasp it" (Lk 9:45).

9:33 This is the last time Jesus returned to Capernaum. The house may have been Peter's (see note at 1:29-31).

9:34 They were silent also described the people in the Capernaum synagogue (3:4).

9:35 Sitting down was the posture assumed by a teacher (4:1-2; Mt 5:1). Jesus' teaching reversed human thinking. In His value system, being first did not come through aggressiveness and privilege but through humility (Mt 18:4) and by being servant of all.

9:36-37 Jesus used a child as an object lesson. He did not command His disciples to become like children but to welcome those who are like a little child. A child is an example of a person with no status and no rights.

9:38 It is ironic that the disciples told this man to stop driving out demons when they had failed at the same task (vv. 14-29). Apparently they thought they were the only ones authorized to do this (3:14-15; 6:7,13). The episode recalls Nm 11:26-29.

9:39-41 Jesus gave three reasons not to stop the man. First, anyone who performed a miracle in Jesus' name wouldn't turn and speak evil of Him. Second, there is no middle ground. A person is either against or for Jesus. Third, anyone who extends a kind gesture (giving a cup of water was a basic Eastern courtesy) because of My name . . . will never lose his reward. Except for two objective uses in 12:35 and 13:21, this is the only time in Mark's Gospel that Jesus used the name Messiah of Himself.

9:42 The words causes the downfall refer to hindering discipleship or causing someone to sin. Little ones refers to immature disciples. A heavy millstone was the one donkeys turned to grind wheat. As terrible as drowning was, Jesus said it would be better than suffering the punishments of verses 43-48.

9:43-48 The body parts and admonitions are figures of speech that warn disciples to guard their sight and actions against participation in evil, for recklessness here can lead to spiritual downfall (cp. Jb 31:1,5,7). This is the only place where Mark used the word for hell (Gk gehenna). The imagery for hell developed from the Hinnom Valley southwest of Jerusalem. This valley was used for pagan human sacrifice (2Kg 16:3; 21:6; Jr 7:31) and as a garbage dump, hence the association with unquenchable fire and perpetual rot (their worm does not die).

9:49-50 Jesus' puzzling statement in verse 49 probably drew on the association of fire and salt in the sacrificial context of Lv 2:13. The first salt saying of Mk 9:50 occurs elsewhere (Mt 5:13; Lk 14:34) and focuses on the good uses of salt, which disciples must reflect on (Mt 5:13). Salt from deposits around the Dead Sea could lose its flavor since it was not pure sodium chloride. Disciples who lose their saltiness are no longer effective witnesses. The second "salt saying" of verse 50 draws on the OT custom of using salt in making covenants of peace (Lv 2:13; Nm 18:19; 2Ch 13:5; cp. Col 4:6).

10:1 The words from there probably refer to Capernaum (9:33). Judea was south; across the Jordan refers to Perea or Transjordan. This latter area was under the jurisdiction of Antipas and may explain the reason for the question in verse 2.

10:2 Two major schools of thought differed on the justifications for divorce (Mt 19:3). Shammai's school was strict, Hillel's liberal. The Pharisees' motive was to test Jesus (8:11; 12:15). Perhaps if this encounter occurred in Antipas's territory, they hoped Jesus would answer as John the Baptist had done and suffer the same fate (see note at 6:16-17).

10:3-4 Jesus asked, What did Moses command you? They responded based on Dt 24:1-4, but this passage did not command divorce. It only acknowledged it, protected the woman's rights, and prohibited a husband from remarrying his original wife if he married another woman in between. Once again the Pharisees were misusing Scripture.

10:5 The phrase hardness of your hearts refers to closing one's heart to God's truths. Moses allowed divorce as a concession to spiritual hardness.

10:6-8 Jesus moved from Moses' concession to God's intention from the beginning of creation. By quoting Gn 1:27 Jesus established that marriage is between a male and female.

10:9 Jesus emphasized that marriage is a divinely established institution. His final statement, man must not separate, refers to the husband, not a judicial court (cp. v. 11). Thus Jesus answered the question of verse 2 and ruled out divorce.

10:10 Jesus' disciples were stunned by His teaching and asked what He meant.

10:11-12 Though Jesus appeared to associate remarriage with adultery, He did not rule out all remarriage but emphasized that if a divorce is not grounded in biblically valid reasons, subsequent marriage is adulterous. Mark did not include the exception clauses of Mt 5:32 and 19:9. This is a reminder that this passage does not contain all of Jesus' teaching on divorce and remarriage.

10:13 The phrase some people probably refers to parents. Little children was clarified by Luke as "infants" (Lk 18:15). Touch them is clarified in verse 16 as "blessed them."

10:14 This is the only place in the Gospels where Jesus was indignant (cp. 3:5). The word indicates strong anger. Jesus allowed the children to come to Him, but the real point related to such as these. This saying pertains to the kind of people to whom God's kingdom belongs.

10:15 Jesus' second saying relates to how a person welcomes and enters the kingdom of God. A little child accepts what is given as a gift without asserting his rights or claims (cp. Mt 18:3). To enter God's kingdom a person must accept it as a gracious gift.

10:16 The phrase taking them in His arms is one word in Greek. Jesus not only received the children, He also blessed them. The word for "blessed" is intensified, conveying Jesus' sincerity.

10:17 The journey language continues, reminding readers that Jesus was on His final sweep toward Jerusalem (v. 1; 8:27; 9:2,30,33). Matthew (Mt 19:22) stated that this man who approached Jesus was "young," and Luke (Lk 18:18) that he was "a ruler." Mark indicated that he was wealthy (Mk 10:22). Hence the man is referred to as "the rich young ruler." His actions—ran up, knelt down—suggest earnestness and respect. He knew he was not entitled to life after death. Verse 23 shows that eternal life and "the kingdom of God" are synonymous.

10:18 Jesus' rebuff directed the man to God. In asserting that only God is good, Jesus did not deny His own deity. He only indicated that human judgment cannot serve as ultimate judge of good and bad.

10:19 The commandments were from the second tablet of the law, those that focused on behavior and relationships (Ex 20:12-16; Dt 5:16-20).

10:20 The young man again addressed Jesus as Teacher, but this time he did not add "good."

10:21 Looking at him is an intensified form of the verb, indicating close scrutiny. Only Mark stated that Jesus loved him. The phrase you lack one thing shows that perfect obedience to the law does not merit eternal life. The "one thing" involved divesting himself of his possessions and becoming a disciple (1:17; 2:14). In exchange for earthly possessions, he would have treasure in heaven.

10:22 He was stunned is a descriptive verb used only here in Mark. It means "shocked" or "appalled." The effect of Jesus' demand must have been visible on the young man's face. Rather than following Jesus (v. 21), he went away, choosing his many possessions over Jesus. He is an example of 4:19 (see note at 4:14-20).

10:23 How hard it is refers to extreme difficulty. Rather than an advantage, possessions are a hindrance to entering God's kingdom.

10:24 On were astonished, see note at 1:21-22. Perhaps the disciples understood wealth as a sign of God's blessing (Dt 28:1-14).

10:25 Jesus used a proverb for impossibility. The camel was the largest animal in Palestine, and one certainly could not squeeze through the eye of a needle.

10:26 The astonishment of Jesus' disciples increased from "astonished" (Gk thambein) in verse 24 to even more astonished (Gk perissos ekplessesthai) in verse 26. Be saved (Gk sozo) is equivalent to "enter the kingdom of God" (vv. 23-25), "eternal life" (vv. 17,30), "heaven" (v. 21), and "the age to come" (v. 30).

10:27 The phrase looking at connotes great intensity. It recalls how Jesus looked at the young man (v. 21).

10:28 As usual, Peter served as spokesman for the disciples (8:29,32; 9:5; 11:21). In his judgment, he and the disciples had done what Jesus commanded the rich man to do (10:21).

10:29 I assure you was Jesus' solemn oath formula. He placed equal importance on Himself and the gospel.

10:30 The promised compensation (100 times more) covered this time (see 3:34-35) and the age to come. Following Jesus provides no protection against suffering, but the reward includes eternal life. The rich ruler sought this (v. 17) but walked away from it (v. 22).

10:31 Jesus emphasized the reversal of values that is so prominent in Christian discipleship (cp. Mt 19:30; 20:16; Lk 13:30).

10:32 The road trip continues (vv. 1,17; 8:27; 9:2,30,33-34). The eastern approach to Jerusalem goes up because of the city's elevation. Jesus was walking ahead of them, showing He was not afraid of what awaited Him.

10:33-34 On listen, see note at 4:3. Jesus' use of we must have frightened the disciples even further. In this final prediction, Jesus declared that the chief priests and the scribes would condemn Him to death (see notes at 14:53 and 14:64) and hand Him over to the Gentiles since they lacked authority to carry out the sentence (15:1-2).

10:35-45 James and John failed to realize the implications of Jesus' suffering and death.

10:35-36 This is the only time in Mark that James and John acted on their own apart from the other disciples, and they did so selfishly. Most likely they asked Jesus to grant their request even before they spelled it out because they knew they were being selfish.

10:37 The right side was the highest position of honor, the left the second. James and John caught a glimpse of Jesus' glory in the transfiguration (9:2-13), now they wanted more. It was their mother who suggested they make this request (Mt 20:20-21).

10:38 The cup and baptism refer to Jesus' suffering and death (14:36).

10:39-40 You will may predict James's martyrdom (Ac 12:2) and John's exile (Rv 1:9). It is for those it has been prepared for is a divine passive, indicating that God would decide who would receive places of honor.

10:41 The other disciples became indignant, the same verb used of Jesus in verse 14.

10:42 That Jesus instructed all His apostles in this lesson shows that all of them struggled with the same greed that led James and John to seek places of honor.

10:43-44 Becoming great in Christian leadership means becoming a servant. The Greek word diakonos refers to a person who waits on tables. But even more is required of a disciple: Whoever wants to be first among you must be a slave to all. A "slave" (Gk doulos) is lower than a servant, has no rights, and does only his master's bidding.

10:45 The greatest example of servant leadership is the Son of Man. Giving is the essence of servanthood, and Jesus gave His life as a ransom for many (cp. Is 53:10-12). "Ransom" refers to the price paid to release a slave.

10:46-52 Mark concluded the "on the road" section just as he began it—with the story of a blind man (8:22-26). This account contrasted what the blind man could see with what the disciples could not (10:35-45).

10:46 The city of Jericho lay 17 miles northeast and 3,500 feet below Jerusalem. The large crowd was made up of Passover pilgrims.

10:47-48 This is the second time Mark identified Jesus as the Nazarene (1:24), and the only time in Mark that someone addressed Jesus as Son of David, a messianic designation based on 2Sm 7:11-14 (cp. Mk 11:10; 12:35-37).

10:52 In contrast to His healing of the blind man in 8:22-25, Jesus simply announced Bartimaeus's healing. Healed is the Greek word sozo . It can refer to physical healing and spiritual salvation. Bartimaeus experienced both.

11:1-11 Jesus' royal procession into Jerusalem took place on what is now called "Palm Sunday."

11:1 This is Jesus' first recorded visit to Jerusalem in Mark. (Luke 2:41-52 records Jesus' visit as a boy and John's Gospel indicates several visits.)

Bethphage (lit "house of unripe figs") was located on the slope of the Mount of Olives, a large hill east of Jerusalem. Bethany was two miles east of Jerusalem.

11:2 The village ahead of you was probably Bethphage.

11:4 Outside in the street indicates the donkey was in plain sight.

11:6 This verse may indicate that Jesus arranged in advance to borrow the donkey.

11:7 The two unnamed disciples threw their robes on the donkey to create a makeshift saddle. Even though Mark did not quote Zch 9:9 in this account (as did Mt 21:5; Jn 12:15), the messianic symbolism of Jesus' action is clear.

11:8 Robes and leafy branches were traditionally draped across the road to receive a king (cp. 2Kg 9:13).

11:9 The two groups (those who went ahead . . . those who followed) may refer to fellow pilgrims traveling with Jesus (10:46) and those who came out of Jerusalem to meet them (Jn 12:9; cp. Mt 21:10-11). The crowd's shouts were recitations from Ps 118:25-26, the last of the Hallel psalms sung at Passover. Hosanna is Hebrew for "save us."

11:10 Only Mark recorded this shout from the crowd. The words echo Bartimaeus's cry (10:47-48).

11:11 The temple complex included several buildings and courtyards. Herod's temple was being reconstructed, a project that had been going on for more than 45 years (13:1; Jn 2:20). Bethany, two miles east of Jerusalem, was where Jesus apparently lodged during Passover.

11:12-26 Matthew recorded the temple clearing (Mt 21:12-17) and the cursing of the fig tree (Mt 21:18-20) as distinct events. Mark divided the cursing of the fig tree (Mk 11:12-14) from its withering (vv. 20-21) and placed the clearing of the temple in between (vv. 15-19). Thus he meant for readers to see the connection between the barren fig tree (symbolic for Israel) and the barren temple. Jesus' cursing of the fig tree was an acted-out parable of God's judgment on Jerusalem and the temple.

11:12 The next day was Monday of Holy Week.

11:13 Jesus spotted a fig tree that bore nothing but leaves. Even though it was not the season for figs, the leafy tree should have been covered with edible buds (Gk paggim).

11:14 Jesus' words express a curse (v. 21). This is the last of Jesus' miracles recorded in Mark and the only miracle of destruction in the Gospels. In the OT, the fig tree was a symbol of Israel (Jr 24:1-10; Hs 9:10; cp. Lk 13:6-9). The episode recalls Jr 8:13; Hs 2:12; and Mc 7:1.

11:15-18 Scripture prophesied Messiah would purify the temple (Ezk 37:26-28; Mal 3:1-4). Jesus' temple cleansing is clearly messianic. John recorded a cleansing at the beginning of his Gospel (Jn 2:13-17).

11:15 Having noted all that went on in the temple complex the day before, Jesus now returned, probably to the Court of the Gentiles, where most buying and selling occurred. People who traveled from afar needed to purchase pure, unblemished animals once they arrived for Passover. Money changers exchanged idol-engraved Greek and Roman coinage for imageless Tyrian or Jewish temple coins that could be used to buy sacrificial items or pay the temple tax (Ex 30:11-16). Doves were offered by women after childbirth (Lv 12:6-8; Lk 2:22-24), by cleansed lepers (Lv 14:22), by those healed of bodily discharges (Lv 15:14,29), and by those who could not afford more expensive sacrifices (Lv 5:7,11). Sheep and cattle were sold also (Jn 2:14). The Court of the Gentiles had become a virtual stockyard.

11:16 Only Mark added the information in this verse, indicating further inappropriate use of the temple as a thoroughfare or shortcut.

11:17 Only Mark added for all nations. The den of thieves quotation is from Jr 7:11, part of Jeremiah's sermon in which he condemned temple goers for their attitudes and behaviors and predicted the temple's destruction (Jr 7:12-15).

11:18 Jesus' last word in verse 17, "thieves" (Gk lestes), involved foreshadowing since within three days He would be arrested as if He were a thief (14:48) and within four days would be crucified between two thieves (15:27). The words a way to destroy Him recall the plot in 3:6 by the Pharisees and Herodians.

11:19-20 The destruction of the fig tree echoes Hs 9:10,16.

11:21 This is the second time Mark recorded Peter addressing Jesus as Rabbi (9:5). Peter served as spokesman for the disciples (8:29,32; 9:5; 10:28).

11:22 The proper object of faith is God, not the temple.

11:23 Jesus' saying on faith and impossibilities (cp. 1Co 13:2) began with His solemn formula, I assure you (cp. 3:28; 8:12; 9:1,41; 10:15,29). He gave a negative condition (does not doubt in his heart) and a positive condition (but believes) for fulfillment of this promise (cp. Jms 1:6).

11:24 For more about the role of faith in prayer, see 1Jn 5:14-15 and note there.

11:25 A second condition to petitions being granted is to forgive others. Standing while praying was the usual Jewish posture for public prayers (cp. Lk 18:9-14). If you have anything against anyone recalls Mt 5:23-24 (cp. Mt 18:21-35).

11:27-12:44 In this section Mark recorded a series of conflict stories with the religious leaders.

11:27 The chief priests, the scribes, and the elders made up the Sanhedrin, the 70-member governing body of the Jews. These were representatives, not the whole body. In His first death prediction, Jesus named these groups as those who would put Him to death (see note at 8:31).

11:28 The questions focused on the nature (by what) of Jesus' authority (Gk exousia) and on who gave it to Him. Jesus' authority had been at issue since the beginning (1:22,27; 2:10). These things probably refer to His temple clearing and His royal entry into the city.

11:30 John's baptism encapsulates John the Baptist's entire ministry. From heaven means "from God." Jesus' question turned the tables on the Pharisees. If they admitted that John was sent by God, they would have to admit the same about Jesus.

11:31-33 A genuine prophet has authority from heaven. If John was a prophet from God, Jesus was even more so. Unwilling to admit this, the authorities refused to answer Jesus.

12:1 The phrase a man planted a vineyard points to the song of Is 5:1-7 in which Israel is symbolized by a vineyard. Tenant farmers and absentee landlords stand for Israel's leaders.

12:2-5 Harvest time for a vineyard might be as late as the fifth year after the vines were planted (Lv 19:23-25). The mistreated slaves stand for the prophets.

12:6 The beloved son in this parable is Jesus.

12:7 Come, let's kill him were the words spoken by Joseph's brothers (Gn 37:20).

12:8 Matthew (Mt 21:39) and Luke (Lk 20:15) reported that the son was cast out before being killed. Mark's order (seized him, killed him, and threw him out) indicates they did not give the son a proper burial.

12:9 The man who planted the vineyard (v. 1) and sent his servants and son is identified as the owner. The word is literally "lord" (Gk kyrios), which is also a title for God. Give the vineyard to others alludes to the upcoming gospel mission to the Gentiles.

12:10-11 Jesus concluded by quoting Ps 118:22-23, the first verse of which is also quoted elsewhere (Lk 20:17; Ac 4:11; Rm 9:33; 1Pt 2:6-8). Only Mark and Matthew (Mt 21:42) included Ps 118:23, which adds a strong providential element. Cornerstone (lit "head of the corner") may refer to a foundation cornerstone, the capstone on a column, or the keystone in an arch.

12:13 The fact that the Pharisees (see note at 2:15-17) and the Herodians (see note at 3:6) were sent indicates an approved delegation. The same groups are united in 3:6 in the plot against Jesus in Galilee. They hoped to trap Jesus with a trick question.

12:14 The specific tax the Pharisees and Herodians had in mind was the Roman poll tax imposed when Judea became a Roman province in A.D. 6. This tax represented Jewish subjugation to Rome.

12:15 If Jesus answered "yes," He would be seen as pro-Roman and would alienate the crowds. If He said "no," the Pharisees and Herodians would denounce Him as a revolutionary (Lk 20:20). Jesus was not fooled. He saw their hypocrisy and realized they were testing Him. A denarius was the equivalent of a day's wages (Mt 20:9-10).

12:16-17 The denarius bore an image of Tiberius Caesar (reigned A.D. 14-37) with an inscription professing his divinity. Since Jesus was asked about giving (vv. 14-15), He replied with a lesson about ownership. Give back has the nuance of obligation. The coin had Caesar's image, so it belonged to Caesar. Jesus supported the legitimacy of human government, but He raised the issue to a higher level. He did not identify the things that are God's, but since humans bear God's image (Gn 1:27), we have an obligation to give to God that which bears His image—ourselves.

12:18 The Sadducees arose in the second century B.C. during the Maccabean revolt. They were closely associated with aristocratic and priestly classes; accepted only the books of Moses (the Pentateuch) as Scripture; denied bodily resurrection, future judgment, the existence of angels, demons, and spirits; and affirmed human free will (v. 18; Ac 23:6-8; Josephus, Ant.,18.1.4).

Roman denarius bears the image of Tiberius Caesar who reigned A.D. 14-37.

12:19-23 The Sadducees approached Jesus with a situation based on the books of Moses. Specifically, the case involved the levirate (or brother-in-law) marriage law (Dt 25:5-6). This law obligated a male sibling to marry his deceased brother's widow in order to preserve the family name and inheritance. Based on this, the Sadducees presented a scenario designed to make the doctrine of resurrection look absurd. Their question assumed that the future life will be like the temporal life.

12:24-27 Jesus declared that the afterlife will be different from life on earth. In heaven people will not marry or be given in marriage. By going to the book of Moses, specifically Ex 3 and the passage about the burning bush, Jesus used the part of the OT that the Sadducees recognized as Scripture. The point of the OT quotation is that Abraham . . . Isaac, and Jacob were long dead by the time God spoke to Moses, but God declared He was their God. Since God is not God of the dead but of the living, they must still be alive in the afterlife.

12:28-40 This section describes three encounters with the scribes. The scribes were allies of the chief priests and elders (see note at 11:27).

12:28 The phrase one of the scribes may indicate that others were standing by ready to challenge Jesus (cp. Mt 22:34-35). This is the first time an individual scribe approached Jesus. He wanted to know which command was most important. The rabbis had counted 613 commandments in the books of Moses. They classified 365 as prohibitions and 248 as commands. They further divided the commandments into weightier and lesser ("least" in Mt 5:19).

12:29-30 Jesus quoted the Shema (Dt 6:4-5), a Scripture passage that pious Jews recited every morning and evening. The words affirmed monotheistic orthodoxy (the Lord is One), identified the primary affection with which people were to relate to God (love), and emphasized the necessity to do so with one's total being: heart (affections); soul (spirit); mind (intelligence); and strength (the will).

12:31 The scribe asked Jesus for one commandment, but Jesus gave him two. Love for neighbors is rooted in love for God, the First Commandment. No one before Jesus had combined these commandments (Lv 19:18; Dt 6:5), but it became standard for His followers (Rm 13:8-10; Gl 5:14; Jms 2:8-11; 1Jn 4:11,19-20).

12:32-33 Only Mark recorded the scribe's response and Jesus' praise. He saw that the love Jesus spoke of was far more important than all the burnt offerings and sacrifices.

12:34 Jesus told the scribe that he had answered intelligently, a word meaning "wisely." Ironically the scene ended with Jesus judging the scribe rather than vice versa. Having foiled all questioners, Jesus now posed His own question (v. 35).

12:35 Jesus' question related to the scribes and their understanding of Messiah (1:1; 8:29) as Son of David (see note at 10:47-48). This identification, based on God's promise in 2Sm 7:12-16, was commonplace in Jesus' time.

12:36-37 Jesus quoted Ps 110:1, the OT text quoted and alluded to most frequently in the NT (33 times). Jesus affirmed the psalm's Davidic authorship and inspiration by the Holy Spirit (cp. 2Sm 23:2; Ac 1:16). The scribes identified Messiah as David's Son (vv. 35-36), but David identified Messiah as his Lord. Therefore, Messiah was not just a descendant of David. He was David's Lord.

12:38-39 The phrase He also said indicates that Mark's summary in verses 38-40 is only a brief part of the extensive condemnations of the scribes and Pharisees (cp. Mt 23, Lk 11:37-54). Naming four examples of what the scribes took pleasure in, Jesus first condemned them for showmanship. Their long robes (Gk stole) were festive garments that were unreasonable for everyday wear. Greetings in the marketplaces refers to the fact that people were expected to rise in the presence of scribes. The front seats faced the congregation, identifying those seated as teachers and distinguished persons. The places of honor at banquets literally reads "the first (or best) couches." See Jesus' comments on this in Lk 14:7-11.

12:40 Jesus condemned the scribes for dishonesty and hypocrisy. Widows were among the most vulnerable people. To defraud them was despicable (Is 1:17,23; 10:2; Jr 7:6; Ezk 22:7; Zch 7:10). The phrase these will receive harsher punishment refers to God's eschatological judgment (cp. 9:42-48).

12:41 Previously Jesus was in the Court of the Gentiles. The temple treasury was in the Court of the Women, so named because that was as close as women could come to the sanctuary. The treasury consisted of 13 trumpet-shaped chests into which worshipers deposited their freewill offerings. Apparently the trumpet shape of the collection boxes amplified the sound of coins when they were dropped in, making it obvious when rich people deposited large sums.

12:42-44 The two tiny coins are identified as lepta—copper coins of little value. The widow's gift meant more than the larger gifts of rich people because she gave in spite of her poverty. The phrase all she had to live on meant she would not have enough for her next meal.

13:1-37 This chapter is often called Jesus' Olivet Discourse (cp. Mt 24-25; Lk 21). The themes of the destruction of Jerusalem and the temple by the Romans in A.D. 70 seem to be interwoven with the final tribulation and Jesus' return. Some interpreters assign all of Mk 13 to the destruction of Jerusalem and the temple. Most believe Jesus used the earlier destruction to foreshadow the end times. Some who hold this latter view assign verses 1-13 to the first-century events and verses 14-37 to earth's last days. Others assign verses 1-31 to the first century and verses 32-37 to the end times. Still others find an A1-B1-A2-B2 pattern and assign verses 1-13 and 28-31 to the first century and verses 14-27 and 32-37 to the end times.

13:1 The massive stones and buildings of the temple complex were truly impressive. Herod's temple had been under construction for almost 50 years, and the Jewish historian Josephus said some of the stones were 60 feet long. Archaeologists have found stones 42 feet long, 11 feet high, and 14 feet deep, weighing over a million pounds.

13:2 Jesus prophesied (announced, not merely predicted) the destruction of the great buildings. Symbolically in the withering of the fig tree (11:12-14,20-21) Jesus had already prophesied their end. Some question the accuracy of not one stone will be left here on another because some stones remain today in the Western Wall, but this was not part of the temple itself but the foundation that supported the platform on which the temple stood.

13:3 The Mount of Olives rose 300 feet above Jerusalem, across the Kidron Valley. It provided a panoramic view of the temple complex and Jerusalem.

13:4 These things and all these things refer to Jesus' comment in verse 2 and the temple's destruction. According to Mark and Luke (Lk 21:7), the disciples asked a double question. Their first question was about when the destruction would occur; their second asked what sign would precede it.

13:5-13 Jesus began His discourse by warning that His followers would experience persecution because of Him.

13:5 It is the responsibility of disciples to watch out and not be deceived.

13:6 False claimants and false teachers can be popular. The phrase in My name may mean these imposters would claim to teach in Jesus' name or that they would claim to be Messiah (cp. Mt 24:5).

13:7 Wars and rumors of wars are not signs of the end but characterize the entire age. Jesus said these things must take place, meaning they are part of God's plan.

13:8 Natural disasters are not signs of the end, only the beginning of birth pains. Though troubling, these pains are harbingers of hope and new life.

13:9 Hand you over refers to betrayal. Sanhedrins (cp. Mt 10:17) and synagogues were local Jewish councils (not the Sanhedrin in Jerusalem that conducted Jesus' trial; Mk 14:53-65). On being flogged, see 2Co 11:24-25. Governors and kings referred to Roman political authorities.

13:10 Persecution is the context in which universal proclamation of the good news will take place.

13:11 Jesus admonished His disciples against anxiety that would distract them from their witness. God would give the appropriate response through His Holy Spirit. This is the last reference to the Spirit in Mark (1:8,10,12; 3:29; 12:36) and the only one that pictures His role with believers. On the Holy Spirit as Counselor, see Jn 14:16,26; 15:26; 16:7; 1Jn 2:1.

13:12 Some Christians will experience betrayal by family members, even to the point of death (cp. Mt 10:34-36).

13:13 You will be hated indicates the animosity unbelievers often feel toward Christians because of the name of Jesus (cp. 1Pt 4:16). Jesus did not warn His followers so they could seek safety but so they would endure faithfully.

13:14 The abomination that causes desolation is drawn from Dn 9:27; 11:31; 12:11 (cp. Mt 24:15) and was used to describe the desecration of the temple by Antiochus Epiphanes in 167 B.C. (see the Apocryphal book, 1Macc 1:54). Jesus' reference may be to some event prior to A.D. 70 or to the "man of lawlessness" (2Th 2:3-10; Rv 13:1-10,14-15). Mark did not identify the location for standing where it should not, but Matthew (Mt 24:15) said "in the holy place," meaning the temple's sanctuary (cp. 2Th 2:4).

13:15-16 On housetop, see note at 2:4.

13:17 Woe is not a condemnation as in Mt 23:13-32 but a cry of pity for pregnant women and nursing mothers unable to move quickly.

13:18 Winter weather along with swollen streams that could not be crossed would add to the difficulty of their flight (cp. Mt 24:20).

13:19 This verse is drawn from Dn 12:1. The intensity of these days of tribulation (cp. Rv 7:14) will exceed what was experienced in the destruction of Jerusalem in A.D. 70.

13:20 The Lord will curtail the tribulation for the sake of the elect (lit "the elect whom He elected"), emphasizing God's sovereign choice.

13:21-22 Many messianic pretenders and false prophets will come throughout the final age.

13:24-25 Just as Jesus warned of earthly signs occurring before the tribulation, He also spoke of cosmic signs occurring after that tribulation. He declared that the celestial powers will be shaken as if with a heavenly earthquake (cp. Heb 12:26-29). His language is drawn from Is 13:9-10; Jl 2:10-11,30-31; 3:14-16.

13:26 Jesus drew the wording for this verse from Dn 7:13. They will see refers to those living when these events occur. The clouds are a reference to God's presence (9:7; 14:62; Ex 19:9; 1Kg 8:10-11; Ps 97:2; Dn 7:13). The phrase with great power and glory contrasts with the Son of Man's first coming in weakness and humility.

13:27 The angels are regularly pictured as accompanying Christ on His return (8:38; Mt 13:39-41; 16:27; 25:31).

13:28 For Jesus' previous use of a fig tree, see notes at 11:13 and 11:19-20. When the fig tree sprouts, usually in March or April around Passover, summer is near.

13:29 Just as Jesus' followers knew how to read the signs of the coming summer, so also when they saw these things happening they were to know that a cataclysmic event was near. It is unclear whether Jesus was referring to Jerusalem's fall or His return in the end time.

13:30 I assure you was Jesus' standard indication of a solemn pronouncement.

The generation that will not pass away until all these things take place is either Jesus' contemporary generation that would live to see the destruction of Jerusalem and the temple (cp. 8:12,38; 9:19) or the eschatological generation that will be alive when the end begins.

13:31 Heaven and earth will pass away because they are temporal by nature. Jesus' words, however, will never pass away. Only God can make this claim (Is 40:8; 51:6). Jesus' words are as sure and permanent as God's Word (Mt 5:18; Lk 16:17).

13:32 That day or hour indicates Jesus was speaking of the eschatological future. When the end will come is unknown to angels or even the Son. Only the Father knows (Ac 1:7).

13:33 Be alert expresses the idea of staying awake and watchful. Even though Jesus' disciples don't know when the time is coming, they are to be ready and faithful.

13:35-37 Jesus' followers are to be like the doorkeeper (v. 34), always on the alert for the master's coming.

14:1 After two days points to the start of the Jewish Passover and the Festival of Unleavened Bread. This means the Sanhedrin plotted Jesus' death some time between sunset on Tuesday and sunset on Wednesday.

14:2 The Sanhedrin hesitated to act because of Jesus' popularity among the people who had flooded into town for Passover.

14:3 On Bethany, see notes at 11:1 and 11:11. An alabaster jar was a long-necked perfume vase that was considered a luxury item. A woman (Mary of Bethany, according to Jn 12:2-3) poured expensive fragrant oil of nard on Jesus' head.

14:4-5 Some people expressed indignation at the waste of expensive perfume. A denarius was a day's wage for a common laborer (Mt 20:2). Hence the perfume's value of 300 denarii was about a year's wages.

14:6 Jesus rebuked the critics of this woman. What they considered wasteful was actually a noble thing (lit "a good work"). Her act was noble because she did it for the Son of God, who is worthy of great sacrifices.

14:7 Christ's followers could always minister to the poor, but they would not always have the chance to serve Jesus in person. On concern for the poor, see Dt 15:1-11.

14:8 The phrase she has done what she could is almost identical to what Jesus said about the poor widow's donation (see note at 12:42-44). The widow gave almost nothing of monetary value; this woman gave a wealthy gift, but Jesus commended both equally. Jesus interpreted the perfume as a makeshift anointing oil for His coming burial.

14:9 Jesus anticipated that the gospel would be proclaimed in the whole world (cp. 13:10). When this happened, this woman's act would be told in memory of her (cp. Mt 26:13). Your reading of this verse fulfills this promise.

14:10 Mark mentions Judas Iscariot here, in the account of Jesus' arrest (vv. 43-45), and in the listing of the Twelve (3:19). The phrase went to places the initiative for Jesus' betrayal clearly on Judas; he wasn't recruited by the authorities. Hand Him over is used of John the Baptist (1:14), of Jesus (9:31; 10:33; 14:10-11,18,21,41-42,44; 15:1,10,15), and of Jesus' disciples after Him (13:9,11-12).

14:11 Only Matthew (Mt 26:15) indicated how much silver Judas was given. The phrase a good opportunity recalls the Sanhedrin's hope to arrest Jesus "when the crowd was not present" (Lk 22:6) so they would not cause a riot (Mk 14:1-2).

14:12 Jesus decided where they would observe the Passover, but His disciples were responsible to prepare it. Preparations included obtaining and preparing a lamb, bitter herbs, unleavened bread, wine, crushed fruit, etc.

14:13-14 Luke (Lk 22:8) identified the two . . . disciples as Peter and John. Go into the city indicates they were outside Jerusalem, probably at Bethany. A man carrying a water jug was unusual. Normally women carried water in earthenware pitchers whereas men used animal skins. Meet could mean either "encounter" or that the man was looking for them. He apparently knew Jesus since the disciples identified Jesus cryptically as the Teacher.

14:15-16 The "guest room" (v. 14) was a large room upstairs, probably the spacious roof chamber of a wealthy man. The room was ready to accommodate a large group.

14:17 When evening came marked the start of a new day by Jewish reckoning. According to Ex 12:8, the Passover meal had to be eaten at night and be finished by midnight.

14:18 Jesus had said earlier that He would be betrayed (9:31; 10:33). Now He added that the betrayer would be one of His disciples. The words one who is eating with Me did not immediately identify the betrayer since all of the disciples were dining together.

14:19 No one attempted to refute Jesus or make accusations. Apparently Judas was above all suspicion at this point. The disciples' statement surely not I expected both a negative response and a word of reassurance from Jesus.

14:20 That the betrayer was dipping bread with Jesus meant he was seated nearby (Mt 26:25; Jn 13:23-30).

14:21 On Son of Man, see note at 2:8-11. Previously Jesus had stated His betrayal was predicted by Scripture (9:12). This verse unites God's prophesied plan (just as it is written) with human actions and responsibility.

14:22 Mark did not specify at what point in the traditional course of the Passover meal Jesus instituted the Last Supper. This is My body is metaphorical.

14:23 They all drank from one cup. "Eucharist" derives from the word for giving thanks.

14:24 The phrase blood that establishes the covenant recalls the institution of the Mosaic covenant at Sinai when the Israelites were sprinkled with blood (Ex 24:1-8; cp. Heb 9:19-20; 10:28-30). Jesus' blood established a new covenant. Shed for many recalls Jesus' words in 10:45 and Isaiah's words (Is 53:11-12) about Messiah dying on behalf of others.

14:25 Jesus' solemn formula I assure you focused the group's attention on the eschatological future. Even though Jesus had explained His death and its meaning, it would not be the end for Him. The day (cp. 13:17,19-20,24,32) would come when He would drink with them in the kingdom of God (cp. 15:43-46).

14:26 The Passover meal traditionally ended with singing the Hallel psalms (Pss 115-118).

14:27 Jesus told His disciples, All of you will run away. The Greek word skandalizein means literally "to stumble." It is written grounds Jesus' prediction in OT Scripture, specifically Zch 13:7.

14:28 Jesus referred to His resurrection and added that He would gather His disciples again in Galilee for a new mission (cp. 16:7).

14:29-31 Quick-tongued Peter declared his steadfastness, but Jesus infallibly foreknew that Peter would cower in the face of opposition.

14:32 Gethsemane means "olive press." Located across the Kidron Valley on the western slope of the Mount of Olives, it was Jesus' regular meeting place with His disciples (Jn 18:2).

Located across the Kidron Valley on the western slope of the Mount of Olives, Gethsemane was Jesus' regular meeting place with His disciples (Jn 18:2). It means "olive press" (Mk 14:32).

14:33 Peter, James, and John were the inner circle of Jesus' disciples (5:37; 9:2; 13:3). Each had pledged his willingness to die with Jesus (10:38-39; 14:29,31). Mark used two rare words to describe Jesus' emotions. Deeply distressed occurs only in Mark (v. 33; 9:15; 16:5-6) and has the nuance of "greatly alarmed." The word for horrified expresses extreme anxiety, and it occurs elsewhere in Mt 26:37 and Php 2:26.

14:34 The phrase to the point of death indicates the depth of Jesus' distress (cp. Jnh 4:9). Luke 22:44 added that "His sweat became like drops of blood falling to the ground."

14:35 Fell to the ground pictures Jesus collapsing under His burden (Mt 26:39; cp. Lk 22:41). The hour refers to Jesus' divinely appointed death (Jn 7:30; 8:20; 12:23,27; 13:1; 17:1). If it were possible was a request for God to change His divine plan.

14:36 Abba is Aramaic for "father." Jesus' words all things are possible for You affirmed God's power and recalled His teaching (10:27). This cup refers to personal suffering and death (cp. 10:38-39) but also to God's judgment on sin (14:24; cp. Jr 25:15-16; 2Co 5:21; 1Pt 2:24). Not what I will, but what You will recalls Jesus' Model Prayer (Mt 6:10). Not His personal desire but the Father's will defined Jesus' life (Jn 5:30; 6:38).

14:37 Peter was singled out for his failure to stay awake because of his bold claims earlier in the evening (vv. 29-31). One hour may be idiomatic rather than literal.

14:38 Jesus' acknowledgment that the flesh is weak may have applied to Himself also that night, given His suffering. Natural human weaknesses (hunger, fatigue, etc.) can pose great spiritual danger.

14:39-40 The stupefied disciples did not know what to say to Him. This recalls Peter's experience on the Mount of Transfiguration (9:6) and the disciples' silence in 9:34.

14:41-42 Enough was a cry of exasperation and served to awaken the sleepers. The time has come literally is "the hour is come." Jesus had prayed "that if it were possible, the hour might pass from Him" (v. 35), but God did not grant that request. Get up; let's go was a call to meet the mob head-on, not an encouragement to flee (cp. Jn 14:31). The words look and see indicate they could see the torches of the approaching throng.

14:43 In fulfillment of Jesus' prediction in 8:31, the mob hailed from the chief priests, the scribes, and the elders—the three parties of the Sanhedrin. This was an officially sanctioned arrest party.

14:44 Signal refers to a sign agreed on in advance. The specific signal was a kiss (probably on the cheek). While a kiss was a common greeting (Lk 7:45; Ac 20:37; Rm 16:16), this is the only time a disciple is recorded as greeting Jesus this way (cp. 2Sm 20:9-10).

14:45 Rabbi means "my great one." It was an address of honor to one's teacher.

14:47 The attack on the high priest's slave is recorded in all four Gospels (Mt 26:51-52; Lk 22:49-51; Jn 18:10-11). John identifies the attacker as Peter and the slave as Malchus (Jn 18:10). Apparently Jesus' disciples asked if they should defend Him with swords (Lk 22:49), but Peter didn't wait for a reply. On Jesus' disciples carrying swords, see note at Lk 22:35-38. Jesus restored Malchus's ear (Lk 22:51).

14:48-50 The Scriptures that must be fulfilled are not identified, but verse 50 points to Zch 13:7 as one of them. They all deserted Him refers to the fleeing disciples.

14:51-52 The young man is unidentified, but many have suggested he was John Mark, the author of this Gospel.

14:53-65 No single Gospel comprehensively records Jesus' trials, and each emphasizes different perspectives and events. It is clear, however, that both Roman political authorities and Jewish religious leaders were involved in handing down Jesus' death sentence.

14:53 They refers to those who arrested Jesus (vv. 43,46). Matthew said the high priest was Caiaphas, who served from A.D. 18-36 (Mt 26:57). That all three parties convened indicates this was a meeting of the Sanhedrin (vv. 43,55).

14:54 Peter followed the arrest party and ended up warming himself (cp. Jn 18:18) in the high priest's courtyard.

14:55-56 The entire Sanhedrin, especially the chief priests, had already decided to put Jesus to death, so they went looking for evidence to justify their plan. Many witnesses gave false testimony that did not agree under cross-examination. The OT required the agreement of two witnesses in a capital case (Nm 35:30; Dt 17:6; 19:15).

14:57-58 Some who gave false testimony claimed firsthand experience. Apparently they distorted Jesus' remark in 13:2 where the same word for demolish was used.

14:59 Only Mark noted that the accusers did not agree even on this (cp. Mt 26:60). The Jews took threats against the temple seriously (cp. Jr 26:7-24). This charge was issued against Jesus again while He hung on the cross (Mk 15:29).

14:60 Frustrated with the ineptitude of the proceedings, Caiaphas stood up and questioned Jesus himself.

14:61-62 Throughout Mark's Gospel Jesus had shied away from the title Messiah to avoid misunderstanding, but here He embraced it. I am (cp. Mt 26:64; Lk 22:67) echoes the divine name (Ex 3:14). Jesus then switched to His favorite self-designation Son of Man and quoted from Ps 110:2 and Dn 7:13. To be seated at the right hand was an honor (cp. 10:37,40). Coming with the clouds of heaven is often understood as a reference to the second coming, but all of you will see leads some interpreters to understand that Jesus was referring to His post-ascension enthronement in heaven.

14:63 Tearing one's clothes symbolized grief (Gn 37:34; Jos 7:6; 2Sm 1:11-12; 2Kg 2:12) or horror at blasphemy (2Kg 18:37; 19:1). Witnesses were no longer needed since Jesus had incriminated Himself by claiming He was the Messiah.

14:64 Deserving of death indicates death by stoning for blasphemy (Lv 24:10-16).

14:65 To spit in a person's face (Mt 26:67) was the ultimate insult (Nm 12:14; Dt 25:9; Jb 30:9-10). Jesus predicted this would happen (Mk 10:34; cp. 15:19). Isaiah described this as one of the sufferings of the Servant of the Lord (Is 50:6).

14:66 This picks up from verse 54. The phrase the courtyard below indicates Jesus' hearing was held in the hall above the entry level to the high priest's house.

14:67 As Peter stood in the courtyard of the high priest's house (see note at v. 54), a servant said she had seen him with that Nazarene (a contemptuous usage, as is "the Gl ilean," Mt 26:69).

14:68 Many manuscripts do not include and a rooster crowed. Only Mark recorded Jesus as predicting a rooster would crow twice (vv. 29-31). This is a logical place for the first crowing even though it apparently escaped Peter's notice.

14:69 The phrase when the servant saw him again seems to imply that the same servant confronted Peter again, but Matthew said it was a different person (Mt 26:71). This time those standing nearby were made aware of Peter's identity.

14:70 The tense of the word denied suggests Peter repeatedly denied knowing Jesus. Peter's accent identified him as a Galilean (Mt 26:73).

14:71 Peter's denials escalated. To curse (Gk anathematize) means to call down God's curse on oneself (cp. Ac 23:12,14,21). To swear refers to taking an oath in God's name. Peter's cursing and swearing backed his strongest denial—I don't know this man.

14:72 Immediately (see note at 1:9-11) links Peter's third denial to the fulfillment of Jesus' prophecy (14:26-31). Jesus turned and looked at Peter (Lk 22:61) and then he remembered Jesus' prediction and his own vow of steadfastness.

15:1 This verse is often seen as a third Jewish trial in which the whole Sanhedrin legalized their verdict in the morning (cp. Lk 22:66-71). Decisions reached at night were not binding. Being handed . . . over (Gk paradidomi) is repeatedly emphasized in this chapter (vv. 1,10,15) and throughout Mark. Pilate was a Roman official among the Jews from A.D. 26-36.

15:2 Pilate focused on whether Jesus claimed to be King of the Jews. This is the first use of this title in Mark's Gospel, but Pilate used it several times (vv. 2,9,12,26; cp. v. 32).

15:3-5 Pilate's question involves a double negative. It is matched by Mark's double negative that Jesus did not answer anything. Pilate was amazed at Jesus' silence because he could free Him if His answers were satisfactory.

15:6 Mark is silent about Pilate's attempt to extricate himself from the situation by sending Jesus to Herod Antipas (cp. Lk 23:5-12), the same Herod as in Mk 6:14-29. Here, in 15:6-15, Pilate tried another maneuver involving a custom to release for the people a prisoner. This custom is not documented outside the NT and was apparently done only at the Passover festival (Jn 18:39).

15:7 The rebels who were in prison with Barabbas probably included the two criminals who were crucified with Jesus. Mark gave no other details about the rebellion, which may indicate that his readers were familiar with it and thus did not need him to spell it out.

15:8-9 The crowd, coached by Jesus' enemies, asked Pilate to follow his custom of releasing a prisoner. Pilate instinctively offered them the King of the Jews (vv. 2,9,12,26). Thus Pilate unknowingly confessed Jesus' true status.

15:10 Pilate recognized that envy was why the chief priests wanted Jesus dead.

15:11-12 Again the chief priests (vv. 1,3,10) manipulated the course of events. Stirred up suggests they incited the crowd to riot. Ironically, the crowd chose Barabbas ("son of the father") over Jesus, the true Son of the Father.

15:13 This is Mark's first reference to crucifixion. None of Jesus' death predictions specifically mentioned crucifixion, though He had hinted at it (8:34).

15:15 Willing to gratify the crowd at the cost of justice, Pilate handed Jesus over.

15:16 Company reflects the Greek equivalent of the Latin "cohort," which totaled 600 soldiers. Mark did not use "company" in its technical sense, but he meant to indicate that a large group of soldiers mocked Jesus.

15:17 The soldiers used makeshift substitutes for the robe . . . crown, and scepter of a king. Purple was a royal color.

15:18 Hail, King of the Jews was a mocking corruption of the greeting, "Hail, Caesar."

15:19 The verbs in this verse are in the imperfect tense, indicating repeated action. They beat the King of the Jews on the head with his own scepter (reed) to indicate, as they believed, the weakness of His reign.

15:20 The phrase led Him out to crucify Him refers to the centurion and the execution squad, not to the company of soldiers.

15:21 Roman soldiers had the right to press citizens of subject nations into compulsory service (Mt 5:41), so they forced Simon to carry Jesus' cross. Simon was a Jewish Cyrenian from the north coast of Africa. He was the father of Alexander and Rufus, indicating that readers in Rome probably knew these men (Rm 16:13). Simon apparently became a Christian due to this experience.

15:22 Golgotha is Aramaic for Skull Place. The traditional site of the crucifixion is the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, located outside the city walls (Lv 24:14; Nm 15:35-36; Heb 13:12).

15:23 Wine mixed with myrrh was a primitive narcotic. The offer fulfilled Ps 69:21.

15:24 They crucified Him is all Mark wrote about the main event of the gospel. The crucifixion took place on Friday, now known as Good Friday. That the four soldiers of the execution squad divided His clothes and cast lots for them fulfilled Ps 22:18 (cp. Jn 19:23-24).

15:25 Nine in the morning is literally "the third hour." Jews reckoned time of the daylight from sunrise.

15:26 The charge on which a person was condemned was often written on a placard and hung around his neck. In Jesus' case, it was nailed to His cross (Jn 19:19). All four Gospels record the words differently (cp. Mt 27:37; Lk 23:38; Jn 19:19), possibly because the inscription was trilingual (Jn 19:20). THE KING OF THE JEWS ironically proclaimed the truth about Jesus.

15:27 Criminals is the word used to describe Barabbas in Jn 18:40 (cp. Mk 14:48). Jesus' crucifixion between "criminals" was meant as a parody of His kingship (as if He had attendants on either side) but by God's design the whole event really was His royal enthronement. The phrase one on His right and one on His left recalls the request of James and John (10:37,40).

15:29-30 Insults means "blasphemies." Those who passed by were thus guilty of the very thing for which the Sanhedrin had condemned Jesus (14:64). The bystanders' insults and shaking of their heads fulfilled Ps 22:7 and Lm 2:15.

15:31 Once again the chief priests led the mockery of Jesus. Their derision along with that of the scribes went to the heart of Jesus' mission: To save others, Jesus refused to save Himself (10:45).

15:32 On Messiah, see note at 8:29. The religious leaders' mockery recalls the second charge Jesus faced before the Sanhedrin (14:61). Mark reported that the two crucified with Jesus also taunted Him. One of them repented (Lk 23:39-43).

15:33 Noon was literally "the sixth hour," and three in the afternoon was "the ninth hour." The darkness was supernatural and represented God's judgment (Ex 10:21-23; Am 8:9-10).

15:34 At 3:00 p.m. Jesus cried out with a loud voice the Aramaic phrase, Eloi, Eloi, lemá sabachtháni. As usual, Mark provided a translation. Even when Jesus felt most forsaken by God, He affirmed His relationship with His Father—My God, My God, quoting the opening words of Ps 22:1. Jesus endured God's wrath as the sin-bearer.

15:35-36 Perhaps bystanders mistook Eloi for Elijah (Aram Eli) since there was a tradition in Judaism that Elijah would return (9:11-13; Mal 4:5). Sour wine, made with vinegar and water, was a drink of the soldiers, not the wine of verse 23. This action fulfilled Ps 69:21 (see note at Jn 19:28-29).

15:37 The content of Jesus' loud cry (reported by all three Synoptic Gospels) is specified in Jn 19:30—"It is finished." Luke recorded Jesus' final words (Lk 23:46).

15:38 The curtain of the sanctuary hung before the holy of holies in the temple. Its tearing symbolizes unhindered access to God, made possible because of Jesus' atonement for sin on the cross (Heb 6:19-20; 9:3; 10:19-22).

15:39 The Gentile centurion who presided over the execution was the first in Mark's Gospel to confess Jesus as God's Son (cp. 1:11,24; 3:11; 5:9; 9:7). His confession matched Mark's opening statement (1:1).

15:40 This is the first reference to Mary Magdalene in Mark. Jesus expelled seven demons from her (16:9; Lk 8:2). She came from Magdala on the western side of the Sea of Galilee. Mary the mother of James the younger and of Joses is called "the other Mary" in Mt 27:61. Possibly she was the mother of James the son of Alphaeus (Mk 3:18). Salome is named only in Mark (v. 40; 16:1). She was the mother of James and John, the sons of Zebedee (Mt 20:20; 27:56).

15:41 In Mark, only women (v. 41; 1:31) and angels (1:13) serve or help (Gk diakoneo) Jesus. The many other women who made the pilgrimage to Jerusalem did so for Passover.

15:42-47 Jesus' burial, an important element in early Christian proclamation (1Co 15:3-4), is recorded also in Mt 27:57-61; Lk 23:50-56; and Jn 19:38-42.

15:42 Jesus' burial was hastily performed because it was already evening on Friday. The Sabbath was soon to begin, a time when burial labors were not permitted. Preparation day (the day before the Sabbath) was when pious Jews prepared whatever they needed for the Sabbath.

15:43 Joseph of Arimathea was a secret follower of Jesus (Mt 27:57; Jn

19:38). That he was a prominent member of the Sanhedrin and opposed their verdict (Lk 23:51) shows that this group was not unanimous in its decision to execute Jesus (cp. Mk 14:55,64; 15:1). Joseph went boldly to Pilate to ask for Jesus' body. This contrasts with his formerly secret discipleship (Jn 19:38). The Romans often let criminals rot on their crosses, but the Jews objected to leaving the dead hanging overnight (Dt 21:22-23).

15:44 Crucifixion victims often survived for days before dying. Jesus died in about six hours. Thus He surprised Pilate a second time (v. 5).

15:45 Pilate gave Joseph Jesus' body without demanding the bribe that families sometimes had to pay to retrieve the bodies of their loved ones.

15:46 To seal the tomb and prevent looting, they rolled a stone against the entrance. The large, circular, flat stone rolled in a track cut into the rock at the tomb entrance.

15:47 The women who witnessed Jesus' death also witnessed His burial.

16:1-8 Women were the first to know that Jesus was risen (Mt 28:1-8; Lk 24:1-8; Jn 20:1-2). Mary Magdalene's name heads the list in all four Gospels. The role of women in this account is astonishing since Judaism did not accept the testimony of women as legally valid.

16:1 The Sabbath was over at about 6:00 p.m. on Saturday. This allowed the women to buy more spices that evening. All three women had witnessed Jesus' crucifixion (15:40), and two of them had witnessed His burial (15:47). On Mary the mother of James, see note at 15:40. The Jews anointed bodies to cover the stench of decay.

16:2 The first day of the week was Sunday. Very early in the morning probably indicates when the women left for the tomb, whereas at sunrise indicates when they arrived.

16:3 That the women wondered who would roll away the stone reveals that they did not know that the tomb was sealed or guarded (Mt 27:62-66).

16:5 The stone was not moved to let Jesus out but to let witnesses enter. That the women entered the tomb confirms it was a large family tomb. The young man dressed in a long white robe (Mt 28:3; Ac 1:10; 10:30) was an angel (Mt 28:5; Lk 24:4).

16:6 The words of reassurance (don't be alarmed) are a standard feature in angelic manifestations (Dn 10:12,19; Mt 28:5; Lk 1:13,30; 2:10; Ac 27:24). See the place where they put Him recalls 15:47 (cp. Jn 20:6-7) and indicates the shelf inside the tomb on which Jesus' body was placed.

16:7 Go, tell are the two things that all followers of Jesus are to do. Peter is given special mention only in Mark as an encouragement following his denials of Jesus (14:66-72). The message for the disciples to meet Jesus in Galilee recalls Jesus' prophecy in 14:28.

16:8 Trembling and astonishment overwhelmed the women, whether from fear or excitement (cp. Mt 28:8). Most likely it was both. The phrase they said nothing to anyone, stated only by Mark, is a strong double negative. It does not imply that they forever kept silent but that they initially refused to speak about their bewildering experience (Mt 28:8; Lk 24:9-10).

16:9-20 These verses do not appear in the oldest and best manuscripts of Mark's Gospel.

16:9 This verse jumps abruptly from the topic of verses 1-8 to Jesus' appearance to Mary Magdalene (Jn 20:11-18). The description out of whom He had driven seven demons comes from Lk 8:2 and makes it appear that Mary Magdalene is being introduced by Mark for the first time, but in fact she was mentioned in Mk 15:40,47 and 16:1. This is another indication that this ending (vv. 9-20) of the Gospel was added at a later time by someone other than Mark, the author of this Gospel.

16:10 Those who had been with Him recalls 3:14.

16:11 They did not believe it recalls Lk 24:11.

16:12-13 These verses are a synopsis of Jesus' appearance to the two disciples on the road to Emmaus (Lk 24:13-35). In a different form explains why they did not recognize Jesus (Lk 24:16). On the reaction of the rest, who did not believe them either, compare Lk 24:33-34.

16:14 Jesus' appearance to the Eleven (vv. 14-18) is based on Lk 24:36-49 and Jn 20:19-29. The reason for Jesus' rebuke is stated twice: unbelief (cp. vv. 11,13). They had not believed the eyewitness testimonies of Mary Magdalene or the Emmaus travelers.

16:15 This verse echoes the Great Commission (Mt 28:19; Lk 24:47). All the world and the whole creation are universal and inclusive. Preach is an imperative, indicating a binding responsibility.

16:16 Believes points to the acceptance of the gospel by faith. Baptized points to the outward testimony of one's conversion. These elements were closely related in apostolic preaching (Ac 2:38; 8:36-38; 16:30-33).

16:17-18 Jesus named five signs that would accompany those who believe, not just those who preach. In My name stands emphatically at the head of the list before any signs are enumerated. This emphasizes that the power to do these things comes from the risen Lord.

16:19 Jesus' ascension recalls Lk 24:50-51 and Ac 1:9-11. Sat down at the right hand of God draws from Ps 110:1. His exaltation and enthronement are also noted in Mt 26:64; Ac 2:33-35; 7:56; Heb 1:3; 8:1; 10:12; 12:2.

16:20 Preached everywhere is the fulfillment of verse 15. The Lord working with them fulfills the "in My Name" of verse 17 and Jesus' promise in Mt 28:20. The word is the gospel. The signs that accompanied their ministry (vv. 17-18) were for the purpose of confirming the word, or authenticating the message. Testimony to this is found in Ac 14:3 and Heb 2:4.

HCSB Translation apostle Uses in Mark's Gospel 2
Uses in the NT 80
Focus Passage Mark 3:14

The Greek noun apostolos comes from the common verb apostello and literally means "one sent forth with a message." The noun did not attain the significance of being sent with authority until its adoption by Jesus and the NT writers. The original 12 disciples were chosen and named apostles by Jesus (Mt 10:2; Mk 3:14; Lk 6:13); they were trained by Him (see Ac 1:15-26) and were invested with His authority to lead the church to accomplish the task He gave it (Mt 28:18-20). Apostles had to be eyewitnesses of Jesus' resurrection (Ac 1:22; 1Co 9:1; 15:8-9). Together with prophets, apostles were foundational for the early church (Eph 2:20), particularly in being responsible for giving divine revelation to God's people (Eph 3:5). Only 15 people are clearly referred to as apostles in the NT: the original 12, Matthias (Ac 1:26), Paul, and Barnabas (Ac 14:14).

daimonizomai Greek Pronunciation [digh mah NEE zah migh] HCSB Translation be demon-possessed Uses in Mark's Gospel 4
Uses in the NT 13
Focus Passage Mark 5:1-20

The Greek verb daimonizomai comes from the noun daimonion, meaning "demon," or "evil spirit." The verb literally means to "be demonized" and refers to the activities of demons in harassing, oppressing, and even possessing people. Though possession is not always in view when the NT mentions demonic activity, this is the case in Mark 5 where a man is described with a "Legion" of demons that Jesus cast into a herd of pigs. The loss of 2,000 pigs implies an incredibly high demon possession that explains the man's bizarre behavior and astounding strength. The word daimonion was used in the ancient world to refer to pagan gods and lesser deities (such as stars), but the NT reveals that they are actually Satan's followers. The verb is used only in the Gospels to demonstrate both the reality of the unseen world of spirit beings and Jesus' absolute power over demons, regardless of the evil they cause.

HCSB Translation cause the downfall of Uses in Mark's Gospel 8
Uses in the NT 29
Focus Passage Mark 9:42-50

The Greek verb skandalizo means "to entrap" and is related to the noun skandalon, meaning "trap" or "snare." Symbolically, skandalizo can mean to cause [someone] to stumble or in a passive sense to take offense. Similarly, the noun skandalon can mean offense or stumbling block. In the NT, both skandalizo and skandalon always refer to offenses either given or taken in spiritual matters. Paul used skandalizo three times (1Co 8:13 [2 x]; 2Co 11:29) and skandalon once (Rm 14:13) in connection with a Christian's responsibility to other Christians. Every other use of skandalizo occurs in the Gospels. Jesus often warned about offending people, that is, doing spiritual harm to others (Mk 9:42-50; see Jn 16:1). Incredibly, Jesus Himself was often the cause of the offense, for those who did not believe in Him often misunderstood His words and actions (see Mt 11:6; 13:57; 15:12; 17:27; Mk 6:3; 14:27; Jn 6:61).

doulos Greek Pronunciation [DOO lahss]
HCSB Translation slave Uses in Mark's Gospel 5
Uses in the NT 126
Focus Passage Mark 10:44

Several Greek words in the NT convey the idea of one person being the servant of another. By far the most common is doulos, best conveyed by the English word slave. Other types of servants had various responsibilities, privileges, and rights, but under Roman law the doulos had no rights. He belonged completely to his master and had only those responsibilities and privileges granted by his master. In the NT, doulos is normally used literally (14:47; Mt 8:9; Lk 17:7-10; Jn 13:16; Eph 6:5-9; Phm 16), but a figurative meaning describing someone who serves God and His people is also common (Mk 10:44; Ac 2:18; 4:29; Rm 1:1; 2Co 4:5; 1Pt 2:16; Rv 2:20). Paul has two significant uses of doulos, one about Christ and the other about Christians: (1) Php 2:6 refers to Jesus' condescension in the incarnation, and (2) Rm 6:16-18 refers to being slaves of righteousness instead of slaves of sin.

sozo Greek Pronunciation [SOH zoh]
HCSB Translation deliver Uses in Mark's Gospel 15

Uses in the NT 106
Focus Passage Mark 13:13

The Greek verb sozo literally means "to preserve" or "to keep safe" with an underlying idea of "making whole." The term can refer to saving someone from physical harm (Mt 8:25) or death (Mt 14:30; 15:30-31; Ac 27:20,31), healing (Mk 5:23,28,34; 6:56; Jms 5:15), exorcism (Lk 8:36), or deliverance from a severe ordeal (Jn 12:27; Heb 5:7; Jd 5). The most common use of sozo in the NT, especially in Acts and the Epistles, is to describe the various aspects of salvation. Two important nouns are derived from sozo: (1) soteria, which means salvation (in the redemptive sense) or deliverance from physical death or danger (see Ac 7:25; 27:34); and (2) soter, which means "Savior" and is always a reference to either the Father or Jesus Christ in the work of redemption.

enkataleipo Greek Pronunciation [en kah tah LIGH poh]
HCSB Translation forsake Uses in Mark's Gospel 1
Uses in the NT 10
Focus Passage Mark 15:34

The Greek verb enkataleipo is a double compound that produces an intensive form of a verb meaning "to lack or leave" (leipo). With one exception (Rm 9:29), each occurrence of the term in the NT means forsake or "abandon." In Mk 15:34 and Mt 27:46, enkataleipo is used to translate the Aramaic word sabach, which in turn translates the original Hebrew 'azab in Ps 22:1. Jesus' quote of this verse occurred toward the end of three hours of darkness (Mk 15:33) during which He endured God's wrath by being separated from the Father as payment for the sins of mankind. The word enkataleipo also occurs in Heb 13:5: "I will never . . . forsake you." Since this promise is addressed to believers, it indicates that while God was willing to forsake Jesus on the cross in order to redeem us, He is not now willing to forsake those whom He has redeemed.

Essays The Resurrection of Jesus as a Historical Event Gary R. Habermas

In recent years, studies of Jesus' resurrection have taken surprisingly positive directions. This does not mean that contemporary critical scholars now accept exactly what Scripture states. However, there is a newfound respect for some of the New Testament (NT) reports. We will mention key areas leading to these developments and address their significance.

Early Traditions Embedded in the New Testament Writings Arguably the most exciting development in recent decades is the almost unanimous recognition of scholars that the NT contains many items that predate the book in which they appear. This means the NT authors frequently made use of earlier sources—traditions, creeds, or confessions that they had gathered or received from others. Examples include a reliable statement received from others (1Co 11:23-26; 15:3ff), repeating the words of what was likely an early Christian hymn (Php 2:6-11) and summarizing an early sermon (such as Ac 1:21-22; 2:22-36; 3:13-16). These sources had different applications, such as keeping a reliable record, passing on doctrine, or serving liturgical functions like worship.

Of course, just because the NT authors claimed to have received accurate material from others does not make it so. But the growing consensus among critical scholars is that many of these traditions present ample indications that the material is in fact reliable. In the case of the resurrection traditions, the crucial portion of the data is taken from known church leaders who were actually present at the events themselves, and whose very lives depended on the veracity of their reports.

The Gospel Reports Some New Testament writers claim to have witnessed personally the events that they record (Jn 19:35; Gl 1:20; 1Jn 1:1-3) or to have checked the existing sources for relevant information (Lk 1:1-4). Again, critical scholars do not take this testimony at face value, but there is a growing conviction in recent years that points to a positive verdict. The best critical example is that of influential scholar Richard Bauckham, whose work Jesus and the Eyewitnesses (Eerdmans, 2006) applies a startling array of checks and balances to the Gospels.

Scholars are increasingly convinced that particular tests, commonly termed "criteria," establish the credibility of many individual Gospel reports. For example, these tests emphasize material that is attested by multiple sources, is dissimilar from other Jewish or Christian literature, includes Palestinian or Aramaic background, is acknowledged even by ancient enemies of Christianity, or is embarrassing to report.

Test Case For a variety of reasons, virtually all scholars, no matter how skeptical their orientation, agree that 1 Corinthians and Gl atians are among the early, authoritative Christian writings that were written by the apostle Paul. In 1 Corinthians 15:3-7, Paul presents perhaps the earliest tradition of all. He probably acquired it from the apostles Peter and James the brother of Jesus when he visited them in Jerusalem about A.D. 35, a mere five or six years after Jesus' crucifixion (Gl 1:18-24). Paul inquired of these two witnesses (Gk historeμ o, 1:18), and, in the context of this chapter, discussed the gospel message, which unquestionably included the claim that Jesus had literally risen from the dead (Rm 10:9; 1Co 15:3-5).

Fourteen years later, Paul returned to Jerusalem to discuss the gospel once again with the apostles Peter, James, and John, to determine whether they all held to the same, central message of Christ's resurrection (Gl 2:2). None of the others added anything to Paul's message (Gl 2:6); rather, they agreed with him (Gl 2:9).

It is easy to miss the significance of the pre-Pauline tradition in 1 Corinthians 15:3-7. As he reported often, the most sacred proclamation of Christianity, the gospel, centered on the deity, death, and resurrection of Jesus Christ (Rm 1:3-4; 10:9-13). Therefore, Paul prefaced this creedal tradition by asserting that this message was of primary importance (1Co 15:3). Nothing was more central than the resurrection of Christ. In fact, whether or not we are Christians is determined by how we have responded to it (1Co 15:1-2).

Whenever we study history, we endeavor to uncover the past. Since the events cannot be repeated, the best method is to study the experiences of those who were there on those occasions. This is why Paul interviewed those who knew Jesus firsthand. Paul was especially interested in learning from those to whom Jesus had appeared after His death (1Co 15:9-11). Paul had also seen the risen Jesus personally, but His appearance to Paul was somewhat distinctive (1Co 15:8). By traveling to Jerusalem more than once, he was able to chat with the other apostles about their own experiences of the risen Christ.

Not only did Paul discuss these matters with two of the original eyewitnesses of these events, Peter and James, but he did so almost immediately after the actual events. His initial trip to Jerusalem occurred a mere five years after the crucifixion. In the second visit, John was also present. These were the three most influential leaders in the early church, and their memories would have been fresh at the time Paul spoke with them.

While Paul heard the testimonies firsthand no more than several years after Jesus' death, Peter, James, and John had obviously experienced the appearances even earlier. Therefore we have an unbroken path here that stretches from Paul's hearing this early, eyewitness testimony back to the actual events themselves.

While witnesses may be mistaken, additional pointers attest to the truth of the resurrection testimony. For example, it is recognized that the early believers were more than willing to die for their proclamation. While this does not necessarily make it true, it does indicate that they certainly believed their testimony to be true and would rather suffer execution rather than deny what they knew to be true about the resurrection. Crucially, they were the only ones who were in a position to know whether or not their testimony was accurate, and they persisted in bearing testimony to the resurrection until their deaths.

No hypothesis has yet been able to viably explain the resurrection testimony in natural terms. Critics have tried often over the centuries, but today only a few scholars even make such suggestions. The evidence for Jesus' resurrection appearances is defensible and very compelling, and it stands as the best indicator of the believer's own future resurrection (1Co 15:53-57; 2Co 4:14-18; 1Pt 1:3-9)!

The Dedication to Theophilus

1 Many have undertaken to compile a narrative about the events that have been fulfilled [A] among us, [a] 2 just as the original eyewitnesses [b] and servants of the word [c] handed them down to us. 3 It also seemed good to me, since I have carefully investigated everything from the very first, to write to you in an orderly sequence, most honorable [d] Theophilus, [e] 4 so that you may know the certainty of the things about which you have been instructed. [B, f]

Gabriel Predicts John's Birth

5 In the days of King •Herod [g] of Judea, there was a priest of Abijah's division [h, i] named Zechariah. His wife was from the daughters of Aaron, and her name was Elizabeth. 6 Both were righteous in God's sight, [j] living without blame [k] according to all the commands and requirements of the Lord. 7 But they had no children [C] because Elizabeth could not conceive, [D] and both of them were well along in years. [E]

8 When his division was on duty [l] and he was serving as priest before God, 9 it happened that he was chosen by lot, according to the custom of the priesthood, to enter the sanctuary of the Lord and burn incense. [m] 10 At the hour of incense the whole assembly of the people was praying outside. 11 An angel of the Lord [n] appeared to him, standing to the right of the altar of incense. 12 When Zechariah saw him, he was startled and overcome with fear. [F] 13 But the angel said to him:

Do not be afraid, [o] Zechariah,
because your prayer has been heard.
Your wife Elizabeth will bear you a son,
and you will name him John. [p] 14 There will be joy and delight for you, and many will rejoice at his birth.
15 For he will be great in the sight of the Lord and will never drink wine or beer. [q]
He will be filled with the Holy Spirit while still in his mother's womb. [r] 16 He will turn many of the sons of Israel to the Lord their God.
17 And he will go before Him in the spirit and power of Elijah, to turn the hearts of fathers to their children, [s] and the disobedient

to the understanding of the righteous, to make ready for the Lord a prepared people. [t]

18 “How can I know this? ” Zechariah asked the angel. “For I am an old man, and my wife is well along in years.” [G]
19 The angel answered him, “I am Gabriel, [u] who stands in the presence of God, [v] and I was sent to speak to you and tell you this good news. 20 Now listen! You will become silent and unable to speak until the day these things take place, because you did not believe my words, which will be fulfilled in their proper time.”
21 Meanwhile, the people were waiting for Zechariah, amazed that he stayed so long in the sanctuary. 22 When he did come out, he could not speak to them. Then they realized that he had seen a vision in the sanctuary. He kept making signs to them [w] and remained speechless. 23 When the days of his ministry were completed, he went back home.
24 After these days his wife Elizabeth conceived and kept herself in seclusion for five months. She said, 25 “The Lord has done this for me. He has looked with favor in these days to take away my disgrace [x] among the people.”

Gabriel Predicts Jesus’ Birth

26 In the sixth month, the angel Gabriel [y] was sent by God to a town in Galilee called Nazareth, [z] 27 to a virgin •engaged [a] to a man named Joseph, of the house of David. [b] The virgin’s name was Mary. 28 And the angel came to her and said, “Rejoice, favored woman! The Lord is with you.” [c] 29 But she was deeply troubled [d] by this statement, wondering what kind of greeting this could be. 30 Then the angel told her:

Do not be afraid, Mary, [e]
for you have found favor with God.
31 Now listen:
You will conceive and give birth to a son,
